

Journal of Insurance Regulation

2021 Call for Papers

You are invited to submit a research paper to the Journal of Insurance Regulation (JIR) related to a key initiative of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) – Race and Insurance. Current events have brought to light the racial inequities that exist across the United States. A special committee of insurance regulators has been charged to more closely examine this issue and JIR invites papers on the following topics:

- Access to insurance products by minorities and historically underrepresented groups
- Current practices and/or barriers that impact access of minorities and historically underrepresented groups to insurance products
- Evaluation of the degree of diversity and inclusion in the insurance sector and/or industry efforts to address this
- Any other topic related to race and insurance

Papers can be discussion pieces or empirical in nature but must focus on major regulatory and public policy issues. Authors are encouraged to review the article submission guidelines and recent articles on the JIR's website before submission. Submissions are requested by March 1, 2021 and will undergo an expedited blind peer-review process.

To view additional details related to the NAIC's Special Committee on Race and Insurance, visit the Committee's page. The JIR also welcomes articles on any of the other Key Initiatives of the NAIC.

If you have questions, contact the editors at jireditor@gmail.com.

Cassandra Cole and Kathleen McCullough
Co-editors, Journal of Insurance Regulation