In addition to cross field validation exceptions, there are also form format validation exceptions. Below are examples of this type of validation exception:

- * Field is required
- * Field must be an integer (could also be string or decimal)
- * Duplicate record

Notes regarding duplicate records:

- * If the company code, state and form number combination filing has already been successfully submitted, and you try to resubmit it, you will receive a duplicate record validation exception. In this case, if it is necessary to resubmit the data, you will need to contact the NAIC to have the previous filing submission rejected.
- * If multiple state/form number combination filings are submitted using one excel file and it is necessary to resubmit one or more of the state/form combinations, the NAIC will completely reject the previous submission that included these filings. This means all filings submitted with those that need to be revised will need to be resent.
- * For example: Filings for form 123 and states MO, CO and LA are all submitted using multiple tabs in one Excel file. The filing for MO needs to be resubmitted. The NAIC will have to reject the previous filing that included MO, CO and LA. So, all three state filings will need to be resubmitted.
