(2) "Health benefit plan" includes short-term and catastrophic health insurance policies, and a policy that pays on a cost-incurred basis, except as otherwise specifically exempted in this definition.

Drafting Note: HIPAA uses the term "health insurance coverage." "Health benefit plan," as defined in this model regulation, is intended to be consistent with the definition of "health insurance coverage" contained in HIPAA. Paragraphs (3), (4), (5), and (6) below track the language of HIPAA that addresses "excepted benefits," i.e., those benefits that are excepted from the requirements of HIPAA.

(3) "Health benefit plan" shall not include one or more, or any combination of, the following:

(a) Coverage only for accident, or disability income insurance, or any combination thereof;

(b) Liability insurance, including general liability insurance and automobile liability insurance;

(c) Coverage issued as a supplement to liability insurance;

(d) Workers' compensation or similar insurance;

(e) Automobile medical payment insurance;

(f) Credit-only insurance;

(g) Coverage for on-site medical clinics; and

(h) Other similar insurance coverage, specified in federal regulations issued pursuant to Pub. L. No. 104-191, under which benefits for medical care are secondary or incidental to other insurance benefits.

(4) "Health benefit plan" shall not include the following benefits if they are provided under a separate policy, certificate or contract of insurance or are otherwise not an integral part of the plan:

(a) Limited scope dental or vision benefits;

(b) Benefits for long-term care, nursing home care, home health care, community-based care, or any combination thereof; or

(c) Other similar, limited benefits specified in federal regulations issued pursuant to Pub. L. No. 104-191.

(5) "Health benefit plan" shall not include the following benefits if the benefits are provided under a separate policy, certificate or contract of insurance, there is no coordination between the provision of the benefits and any exclusion of benefits under a group health plan maintained by the same plan sponsor, and the benefits are paid with respect to an event without regard to whether benefits are provided with respect to such an event under a group health plan maintained by the same plan sponsor:

(a) Coverage only for a specified disease or illness; or

(b) Hospital indemnity or other fixed indemnity insurance.

(6) "Health benefit plan" shall not include the following if offered as a separate policy, certificate or contract of insurance:

(a) Medicare supplemental health insurance as defined under Section 1882(g)(1) of the Social Security Act;

(b) Coverage supplemental to the coverage provided under Chapter 55 of Title 10, United States Code; or

(c) Similar supplemental coverage provided to coverage under a group health plan.

K. "Health care services" means services for the diagnosis, prevention, treatment, cure or relief of a medical condition, illness, injury or disease.

L. "Health maintenance organization" means a person that undertakes to provide or arrange for the delivery of health care services to enrollees on a prepaid basis, except for enrollee responsibility for copayments or deductibles or both.

M. (1) "Health factor" means, in relation to an individual, any of the following health status-related factors:

(a) Health status;

(b) Medical condition, including both physical and mental illnesses, as defined in Subsection O;

(c) Claims experience;

(d) Receipt of health care;

(e) Medical history;

(f) Genetic information;

(g) Evidence of insurability, including:

(i) Conditions arising out of acts of domestic violence; or

(ii) Participation in activities, such as motorcycling, snowmobiling, all-terrain vehicle riding, horseback riding, skiing, and other similar activities; or

(h) Disability.

(2) For purposes of this subsection, "health factor" does not include the decision whether to elect health insurance coverage, including the time chosen to enroll, such as under special enrollment or late enrollment.

Drafting Note: This definition tracks the language contained in PHSA Section 2702(a), as amended by HIPAA, and federal final interim regulations.

N. "Medical care" means amounts paid for:

(1) The diagnosis, care, mitigation, treatment or prevention of disease, or amounts paid for the purpose of affecting any structure or function of the body;

(2) Transportation primarily for and essential to medical care referred to in Paragraph (1); and

(3) Insurance covering medical care referred to in Paragraphs (1) and (2).

O. (1) "Medical condition" means any condition, whether physical or mental, including any condition resulting from illness, injury, accident, pregnancy or congenital malformation.

(2) For purposes of Paragraph (1), genetic information is not a condition.

P. "Participant" has the meaning stated in Section 3(7) of ERISA.

Q. (1) "Preexisting condition" means a condition, regardless of the cause of the condition, for which medical advice, diagnosis, care or treatment was recommended or received during the six (6) months immediately preceding the enrollment date of the coverage.

(2) "Preexisting condition" shall not mean a condition for which medical advice, diagnosis, care or treatment was recommended or received for the first time while the covered person held creditable coverage and that was a covered benefit under the health benefit plan, provided that the prior creditable coverage was continuous to a date not more than ninety (90) days prior to the enrollment date of the new coverage.

(3) Genetic information shall not be treated as a condition under Paragraph (1) for which a preexisting condition exclusion may be imposed in the absence of a diagnosis of the condition related to the information.

R. "Significant break in coverage" means a period of ninety (90) consecutive days during all of which the individual does not have any creditable coverage, except that neither a waiting period nor an affiliation period is taken into account in determining a significant break in coverage.

S. "Waiting period" means, with respect to a health benefit plan and an individual, who is a potential enrollee in the plan, the period that must pass with respect to the individual before the individual is eligible to be covered for benefits under the terms of the plan. For purposes of calculating periods of creditable coverage pursuant to Subsection E(2), a waiting period shall not be considered a gap in coverage.

Section 4. Applicability and Scope

This regulation shall apply to any carrier that provides coverage under a health benefit plan in the group market.

Section 5. Prohibited Discrimination in Rules for Eligibility

A. A carrier subject to this regulation shall not establish a rule for eligibility, including continued eligibility, of an individual to enroll for benefits under the plan that discriminates based on any health factor that relates to the individual or dependent of the individual.

B. For purposes of this section, rules of eligibility include rules relating to:

(1) Enrollment;

(2) The effective date of coverage;

(3) Waiting or affiliation periods;

(4) Late and special enrollment;

(5) Eligibility for benefit packages, including rules for individuals to change their selection among benefit packages;

(6) Benefits, including rules relating to covered benefits, benefit restrictions, and cost-sharing mechanisms, such as coinsurance, copayments and deductibles, as described in Section 7A and B of this regulation;

(7) Continued eligibility; and

(8) Terminating coverage, including disenrollment, of an individual under the plan.

C. Nothing in this section prohibits a carrier subject to this regulation from:

(1) Establishing more favorable rules of eligibility for individuals with an adverse health factor, such as disability, than for individuals without the adverse health factor; or

(2) Subject to state law, charging a higher premium or contribution with respect to an individual with an adverse health factor if the individual would not be eligible for coverage, but for the adverse health factor.

Section 6. Prohibited Discrimination in Premium and Contribution Rates

A. (1) A carrier subject to this regulation shall not require an individual, as a condition of enrollment or continued enrollment under the plan, to pay a premium or contribution rate that is greater than the premium or contribution rate for a similarly situated individual enrolled in the plan based on any health factor that relates to the individual or a dependent of the individual.

(2) In determining an individual's premium or contribution rate, discounts, rebates, payments-in-kind and any other premium differential mechanisms shall be taken into account.

B. (1) Subject to Paragraph (2), nothing in this section restricts the aggregate amount that a carrier subject to this regulation may charge an employer for coverage under a plan.

(2) A carrier subject to this regulation shall not quote or charge an employer or an individual participant or beneficiary a different premium than that quoted or charged an individual in a group of similarly situated individuals based on a health factor unless permitted under Section 5C(2) of this regulation or Subsection D of this section.

C. Notwithstanding Subsections A and B, a carrier subject to this regulation may establish a premium or contribution differential based on whether an individual has complied with the requirements of a bona fide wellness program.

D. Nothing in this section prohibits a carrier subject to this regulation from charging an individual a premium or contribution rate that is less than the premium or contribution rate for similarly situated individuals if the lower charge is based on an adverse health factor of the individual, such as a disability.

Section 7. Application of Section 5 to Plan Benefits; Preexisting Condition Exclusions; Similarly Situated Individuals

A. (1) Subject to Paragraph (2), Section 5 of this regulation does not require a carrier subject to this regulation to provide coverage for any particular benefit to any group of similarly situated individuals.

(2) (a) A carrier subject to this regulation shall make the benefits provided under a plan available uniformly to all similarly situated individuals, as those groups are determined under Subsection C.

(b) For any restriction on a benefit or benefits provided under a plan, a carrier subject to this regulation:

(i) Shall apply the restriction uniformly to all similarly situated individuals; and

(ii) Shall not direct the restriction, as determined based on all of the relevant facts and circumstances, at individual participants or beneficiaries based on any health factor of the participants or beneficiaries.

(c) A carrier subject to this regulation may impose annual, lifetime or other limits on benefits and may require a deductible, copayment, coinsurance or other cost-sharing requirement in order to obtain a benefit under the plan if the limit or cost-sharing requirement:

(i) Applies uniformly to all similarly situated individuals; and

(ii) Is not directed at individual participants or beneficiaries based on any health factor of the participants or beneficiaries.

(d) For purposes of this paragraph, a plan amendment applicable to all individuals in one or more groups of similarly situated individuals under the plan and made effective no earlier than the first day of the first plan year after the amendment is adopted is not considered to be directed at any individual participants or beneficiaries.

(3) If a carrier subject to this regulation generally provides benefits for a type of injury, the plan or carrier shall not deny an individual participant or beneficiary benefits otherwise provided under the plan for treatment of the injury if the injury results from an act of domestic violence or a medical condition.

(4) A carrier subject to this regulation with a cost-sharing mechanism, such as a deductible, copayment or coinsurance, that requires a higher payment from an individual, based on a health factor of that individual or dependent of that individual, than for a similarly situated individual under the plan, does not violate this subsection if the payment differential is based on whether the individual has complied with the requirements of a bona fide wellness program.

B. (1) Section 5 of this regulation does not prohibit a carrier subject to this regulation from imposing a preexisting condition exclusion period if the preexisting exclusion period:

(a) Complies with the requirements for imposing a preexisting condition exclusion period established by federal regulation;

(b) Is applied uniformly to all similarly situated individuals, as those groups are determined under Subsection C; and

(c) Is not directed at individual participants or beneficiaries based on any health factor of the participants or beneficiaries.

(2) For purposes of this subsection, a plan amendment relating to a preexisting condition exclusion that is applicable to all individuals in one or more groups of similarly situated individuals under the plan and made effective no earlier than the first day of the first plan year after the amendment is adopted is not considered to be directed at any individual participants or beneficiaries.

C. (1) This subsection applies only within a group of individuals who are treated as similarly situated individuals.

(2) (a) Subject to Paragraph (4) of this subsection, Section 5 of this regulation does not prohibit a carrier subject to this regulation from treating participants as two (2) or more distinct groups of similarly situated individuals if the distinction made between or among groups of participants is based on a bona fide employment-based classification that is consistent with the employer's usual business practice.

(b) (i) Whether an employment-based classification is bona fide shall be determined based on all of the relevant facts and circumstances.

(ii) For purposes of Item (i), relevant facts and circumstances include whether the employer uses the classification for purposes independent of qualification for health coverage, such classifications may include:

(I) Full-time versus part-time status;

(II) Geographic location;

(III) Membership in a collective bargaining unit;

(IV) Date of hire;

(V) Length of service;

(VI) Current employee versus former employee status; and

(VII) Occupation.

(iii) A classification based on a health factor shall not be determined to be a bona fide employment-based classification for purposes of this subsection unless the requirements of Section 5C and Section 6D of this regulation are satisfied.

(3) (a) Subject to Paragraph (4), Section 5 of this regulation does not prohibit a carrier subject to this regulation from treating beneficiaries as two (2) or more distinct groups of similarly situated individuals if the distinction made between or among the groups of beneficiaries is based on any of the following factors:

(i) A bona fide employment-based classification of the participant through whom the beneficiary is receiving coverage;

(ii) Relationship to the participant (e.g., as a spouse or as a dependent child);

(iii) Marital status;

(iv) With respect to a child of the participant, age or student status; or

(v) Any other factor, if the factor is not a health factor.

(b) Subparagraph (a) of this paragraph shall not be construed to prevent a carrier subject to this regulation from providing more favorable treatment of individuals under the plan with adverse health factors in accordance with Section 5C and Section 6D of this regulation.

(4) Notwithstanding Paragraphs (2) and (3), unless permitted under Section 5C or Section 6D of this regulation, if the creation or modification of an employment or coverage classification is directed at individual participants or beneficiaries based on a health factor of the participants or beneficiaries, the classification is not permitted under this subsection.

Section 8. Application of Sections 5 and 6 to Nonconfinement and Actively-at-Work Provisions

A. Except to the extent permitted under Subsection B(2) or Subsection C, in accordance with Sections 5 and 6 of this regulation, a carrier subject to this regulation shall not establish a rule of eligibility or set an individual's premium or contribution rate based on:

(1) Whether the individual is confined in a hospital or other health care institution; or

(2) The individual's ability to engage in normal life activities.

B. (1) In accordance with Sections 5 and 6 of this regulation, a carrier subject to this regulation shall not establish a rule for eligibility or set an individual's premium or contribution rate based on whether the individual is actively-at-work, including whether an individual is continuously employed, unless absence from work due to any health factor is treated, for purposes of the plan, as being actively-at-work.

(2) Notwithstanding Paragraph (1), a carrier subject to this regulation may establish a rule for eligibility that requires an individual to begin work for the employer sponsoring the plan before coverage under the plan becomes effective if the rule for eligibility applies regardless of the reasons for the absence.

C. Notwithstanding Subsections A and B, a carrier subject to this regulation may establish a rule of eligibility or set an individual's premium or contribution rate with respect to similarly situated individuals, as those groups are determined under Section 7C of this regulation.

Section 9. Enforcement

A. The commissioner shall conduct a reasonable investigation based on a complaint [add any means by which the commissioner receives complaints] received by the commissioner and issue a prompt determination as to whether a violation of this regulation may have occurred.

B. If the commissioner finds from the investigation that a violation of this regulation may have occurred, the commissioner shall promptly begin an adjudicatory proceeding.

C. The commissioner may address a violation of this regulation through means appropriate to the nature and extent of the violation, which may include suspension or revocation of certificates of authority or licenses, imposition of civil penalties, issuance of cease and desist orders, injunctive relief, a requirement for restitution, referral to prosecutorial authorities or any combination of these.

D. The powers and duties set forth in this section are in addition to all other authority of the commissioner.

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. PROJECT HISTORY - 2002

NONDISCRIMINATION IN HEALTH INSURANCE COVERAGE IN THE GROUP MARKET MODEL REGULATION (#107)

1. Description of the project, issues addressed, etc.

The Nondiscrimination in Health Insurance Coverage in the Group Market Model Regulation incorporates requirements set forth in an interim final rule issued by the three federal agencies charged with administering the provisions of the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA). This regulation prohibits group health carriers from discriminating against individual participants or beneficiaries based on any health factor. This regulation will apply to any health carrier that provides health insurance coverage in the group market.

2. Name of group responsible for draft the model:

3. Project authorized by what charge and date first given to the group:

The following charge was given to the Regulatory Framework (B) Task Force in 1999:

Consider the revision of NAIC model laws and regulations affected by the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA) and final federal regulations promulgated pursuant to HIPAA to comport with the requirements of HIPAA and final federal regulations.

4. A general description of the drafting process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated.

The proposed model regulation was drafted by the task force. Numerous interested parties participated, including insurance industry representatives, such as the American Association of Health Plans (AAHP), the Health Insurance Association of America (HIAA), and the BlueCross BlueShield Association (BCBSA); and representatives of key federal agencies, the Department of Labor (DOL) and the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA).

5. A general description of the due process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited.

Beginning with the 2001 NAIC Summer National Meeting, drafts of the proposed model regulation were reviewed and discussed at each National Meeting. Comments were requested and were received and considered throughout the drafting process. In addition, all of the drafts of the proposed model regulation were posted on the NAIC web site.

6. A discussion of the significant issues (items of some controversy) raised during the drafting process and the group's response.

There were no significant issues raised during the drafting process.

GROUP COVERAGE DISCONTINUANCE AND REPLACEMENT MODEL REGULATION

Table of Contents

Section 1. Authority

This regulation is adopted by [title of supervisory authority] pursuant to Section [insert applicable section] of the [insert state] Insurance Code.

Section 2. Scope

This regulation is applicable to all insurance policies and subscriber contracts issued or provided by a carrier on a group or group-type basis covering persons as employees of employers or as members of unions or associations.

Section 3. Definitions

For purposes of this Act:

A. (1) "Carrier" means a person or an entity that offers or provides a policy, contract or certificate of insurance coverage in this state.

(2) "Carrier" includes an insurer, a health maintenance organization, a nonprofit service corporation or any other person or entity providing a policy, contract or certificate of insurance coverage subject to state insurance regulation.

B. "Group-type basis" means a benefit plan, other than a "salary budget" plan utilizing individual insurance policies or subscriber contracts, which meets the following conditions:

(1) Coverage is provided through insurance policies or subscriber contracts to classes of employees or members defined in terms of conditions pertaining to employment or membership;

(2) The coverage is not available to the general public and can be obtained and maintained only because of the covered person's membership in or connection with the particular organization or group;

(3) There are arrangements for bulk payment of premiums or subscription charges to the carrier; and

(4) There is sponsorship of the plan by the employer, union or association.

C. (1) "Health insurance coverage" means a hospital and medical expense incurred policy, a nonprofit health care service plan contract, a health maintenance organization subscriber contract, or any other health care plan or arrangement that pays for or furnishes medical or health care services whether by insurance or otherwise.

(2) "Health insurance coverage" shall not include one or more, or any combination of, the following:

(a) Coverage only for accident, or disability income insurance, or any combination thereof;

(b) Coverage issued as a supplement to liability insurance;

(c) Liability insurance, including general liability insurance and automobile liability insurance;

(d) Workers' compensation or similar insurance;

(e) Automobile medical payment insurance;

(f) Credit-only insurance;

(g) Coverage for on-site medical clinics; and

(h) Other similar insurance coverage, specified in federal regulations issued pursuant to the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA) (Pub.L.No. 104-191), under which benefits for medical care are secondary or incidental to other insurance benefits.

(3) "Health insurance coverage" shall not include the following benefits if they are provided under a separate policy, certificate or contract of insurance or are otherwise not an integral part of the coverage:

(a) Limited scope dental or vision benefits;

(b) Benefits for long-term care, nursing home care, home health care, community-based care, or any combination thereof; or

(c) Other similar, limited benefits specified in federal regulations issued pursuant to HIPAA.

(4) "Health insurance coverage" shall not include the following benefits if the benefits are provided under a separate policy, certificate or contract of insurance, there is no coordination between the provision of the benefits and any exclusion of benefits under any group health plan maintained by the same plan sponsor, and the benefits are paid with respect to an event without regard to whether benefits are provided with respect to such an event under any group health plan maintained by the same plan sponsor:

(a) Coverage only for a specified disease or illness; or

(b) Hospital indemnity or other fixed indemnity insurance.

(5) "Health insurance coverage" shall not include the following if offered as a separate policy, certificate or contract of insurance:

(a) Medicare supplemental health insurance as defined under Section 1882(g)(1) of the Social Security Act;

(b) Coverage supplemental to the coverage provided under Chapter 55 of Title 10, United States Code; or

(c) Similar supplemental coverage provided to coverage under a group health plan.

Section 4. Effective Date of Discontinuance for Non-Payment of Premium or Subscription Charges

A. If a policy or contract subject to this regulation provides for automatic discontinuance of the policy or contract after a premium or subscription charge has remained unpaid through the grace period allowed for such payment, the carrier shall be liable for valid claims for covered losses incurred prior to the end of the grace period.

B. If the actions of the carrier after the end of the grace period indicate that it considers the policy or contract as continuing in force beyond the end of the grace period (such as, by continuing to recognize claims subsequently incurred), the carrier shall be liable for valid claims for losses beginning prior to the effective date of written notice of discontinuance to the policyholder or other entity responsible for making payments or submitting subscription charges to the carrier. The effective date of discontinuance shall not be prior to midnight at the end of the third scheduled workday after the date upon which the notice is delivered.

Section 5. Requirements for Notice of Discontinuance

A. A notice of discontinuance given by the carrier shall include a request to the group policyholder or other entity involved to notify employees covered under the policy or subscriber contract of the date as of which the group policy, contract or certificate will discontinue and to advise that, unless otherwise provided in the policy, contract or certificate the carrier shall not be liable for claims for losses incurred after the date of discontinuance. The notice of discontinuance also shall advise, in any instance in which the plan involves employee contributions, that if the policyholder or other entity continues to collect contributions for the coverage beyond the date of discontinuance, the policyholder or other entity may be held solely liable for the benefits with respect to which the contributions have been collected.

B. The carrier shall prepare and furnish to the policyholder or other entity at the same time it gives a notice of discontinuance a supply of notice forms to be distributed to the employees or members concerned, indicating the discontinuance and the effective date of the discontinuance, and urging the employees or members to refer to their certificates or contracts in order to determine what rights, if any, are available to them upon the discontinuance.

Section 6. Extension of Benefits

A. Every group policy, contract or certificate subject to this regulation issued on or after the effective date of this regulation, or under which the level of benefits is altered, modified or amended on or after the effective date of this regulation, shall provide a reasonable provision for extension of benefits in the event of total disability at the date of discontinuance of the group policy, contract or certificate as required by the following subsections of this section.

B. In the case of a group life plan that contains a disability benefit extension of any type (e.g., premium waiver extension, extended death benefit in event of total disability, or payment of income for a specified period during total disability), the discontinuance of the group policy, contract or certificate shall not operate to terminate the extension.

C. In the case of a group plan providing benefits for loss of time from work or specific indemnity during hospital confinement, discontinuance of the group policy, contract or certificate during a disability shall have no effect on benefits payable for that disability or confinement.

D. (1) In the case of hospital or medical expense coverages other than dental and maternity expense, a reasonable extension of benefits or accrued liability provision is required.

(2) An extension of benefits or accrued liability provision will be considered "reasonable" if:

(a) It provides an extension of at least twelve (12) months under "major medical" and "comprehensive medical" type coverages; and

(b) Under other types of hospital or medical expense coverages, it provides:

(i) An extension of benefits of at least ninety (90) days; or

(ii) An accrued liability for expenses incurred during a period of disability or during a period of at least ninety (90) days starting with a specific event that occurred while coverage was in force (e.g., an accident).

E. (1) An applicable extension of benefits or accrued liability shall be described in any policy or contract involved as well as in group insurance certificates. The benefits payable during any period of extension of benefits or accrued liability may be subject to the policy's, contract's or certificate's regular benefit limits, such as benefits ceasing at exhaustion of a benefit period or of maximum benefits.

(2) For hospital or medical expense coverages, the benefit payments may be limited to payments applicable to the disabling condition only.

Section 7. Continuance of Coverage in Situations Involving Replacement of One Carrier by Another

A. This section shall indicate the carrier responsible for liability in those instances in which one carrier's (succeeding carrier) policy, contract or certificate replaces a plan of similar benefits of another (prior carrier).

B. After discontinuance of the policy, contract or certificate, the prior carrier remains liable only to the extent of its accrued liabilities and extensions of benefits. The position of the prior carrier shall be the same whether the group policyholder or other entity secures replacement coverage from a new carrier, self-insures, or foregoes the provision of coverage.

C. (1) (a) If the individual was validly covered under the prior plan on the date of discontinuance, each individual who is eligible for coverage in accordance with the succeeding carrier's plan of benefits with respect to the class or classes of individuals eligible for coverage under the succeeding carrier's plan and any actively-at-work and nonconfinement rules and requests enrollment shall be enrolled and covered by the succeeding carrier's plan of benefits.

(b) In the case of health insurance coverage:

(i) A succeeding carrier shall not have any nonconfinement rules in its plan of benefits; and

(ii) Any actively-at-work rules provided in the succeeding carrier's plan of benefits shall provide that absence from work due to any health status-related factor be treated as being actively-at-work.

(c) For purposes of this paragraph, "health status-related factor" means any of the following factors:

(i) Health status;

(ii) Medical condition, including both physical and mental illnesses;

(iii) Claims experience;

(iv) Receipt of health care;

(v) Medical history;

(vi) Genetic information;

(vii) Evidence of insurability, including conditions arising out of acts of domestic violence; or

Drafting Note: This definition tracks the language contained in Public Health Service Act Section 2702(a), as amended by HIPAA.

(2) (a) Each person not covered under the succeeding carrier's plan of benefits in accordance with Paragraph (1) shall nevertheless be covered by the succeeding carrier in accordance with the following rules if the individual was validly covered, including benefit extension, under the prior plan on the date of discontinuance and if the individual is a member of the class or classes of individuals eligible for coverage under the succeeding carrier's plan. Any reference in the following rules to an individual who was or was not totally disabled is a reference to the individual's status immediately prior to the date the succeeding carrier's coverage becomes effective.

(b) The minimum level of benefits to be provided by the succeeding carrier shall be the applicable level of benefits of the prior carrier's plan reduced by any benefits payable by the prior plan.

(c) Coverage shall be provided by the succeeding carrier until the earliest of the following dates:

(i) The date the individual becomes eligible under the succeeding carrier's plan as described in Paragraph (1);

(ii) For each type of coverage, the date the individual's coverage would terminate in accordance with the succeeding carrier's plan provisions applicable to individual termination of coverage, such as at termination of employment or ceasing to be an eligible dependent; or

(iii) In the case of an individual who was totally disabled, and in the case of a type of coverage for which Section 6 of this regulation requires an extension of benefits or accrued liability, the end of any period of extension benefits or accrued liability that is required of the prior carrier by Section 6 of this regulation, or if the prior carrier's policy, contract or certificate is not subject to that section, but would have been required of the prior carrier had the policy, contract or certificate been subject to Section 6 of this regulation at the time the prior carrier's plan was discontinued and replaced by the succeeding carrier's plan.

(3) For health insurance coverage, in the case of an individual who was totally disabled at the time the prior carrier's plan was discontinued and replaced by the succeeding carrier's plan, and in the case in which Section 6 of this regulation requires an extension of benefits or accrued liability, the minimum level of benefits to be provided by the succeeding carrier shall be the applicable level of benefits of the prior carrier's plan reduced by any benefits paid by the prior plan.

(4) In the case of a preexisting conditions limitation included in the succeeding carrier's plan, the level of benefits applicable to preexisting conditions of individuals becoming covered by the succeeding carrier's plan in accordance with this paragraph during the period of time this limitation applies under the new plan shall be the lesser of:

(a) The benefits of the new plan determined without application of the preexisting conditions limitation; or

(b) The benefits of the prior plan.

(5) The succeeding carrier, in applying any deductibles or coinsurance amounts applicable to the out-of-pocket maximums or waiting periods in its plan, shall give credit for the satisfaction or partial satisfaction of the same or similar provisions under a prior plan providing similar benefits. In the case of deductible provisions or coinsurance amounts applicable to the out-of-pocket maximums, the credit shall apply for the same or overlapping benefit periods and shall be given for expenses actually incurred and applied against the deductible or coinsurance provisions of the prior carrier's plan during the ninety (90) days preceding the effective date of the succeeding carrier's plan but only to the extent these expenses are recognized under the terms of the succeeding carrier's plan and are subject to a similar deductible or coinsurance provision.

(6) In any situation where a determination of the prior carrier's benefit is required by the succeeding carrier, at the succeeding carrier's request the prior carrier shall furnish a statement of the benefits available or pertinent information, sufficient to permit verification of the benefit determination or the determination itself by the succeeding carrier. For the purposes of this paragraph, benefits of the prior plan shall be determined in accordance with all of the definitions, conditions and covered expense provisions of the prior plan rather than those of the succeeding plan. The benefit determination shall be made as if coverage had not been replaced by the succeeding carrier.

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. To perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2002

GROUP COVERAGE DISCONTINUANCE AND REPLACEMENT MODEL REGULATION (#110)

1. Description of the project, issues addressed, etc.

The Group Coverage Discontinuance and Replacement Model Regulation incorporates requirements set forth in the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA). In addition, the amendments to the model regulation comply with a bulletin issued by the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services. This regulation outlines the requirements that group carriers must follow when a group health benefit plan is discontinued and replaced with a plan of similar benefits, including the extent to which the prior carrier is liable for payment of benefits. The amendments also specify the requirements that both the prior carrier and the succeeding carrier must follow with respect to disabled individuals to be enrolled in the succeeding carrier's health benefit plan.

2. Name of group responsible for draft the model:

3. Project authorized by what charge and date first given to the group:

The following charge was given to the Regulatory Framework (B) Task Force in 1999:

Consider the revision of NAIC model laws and regulations affected by the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA) and final federal regulations promulgated pursuant to HIPAA to comport with the requirements of HIPAA and final federal regulations.

4. A general description of the drafting process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated.

The proposed revisions to the model regulation were drafted by the task force. Numerous interested parties participated, including insurance industry representatives, such as the American Association of Health Plans (AAHP), the Health Insurance Association of America (HIAA), and the BlueCross BlueShield Association (BCBSA); and representatives of key federal agencies, the Department of Labor (DOL) and the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS).

5. A general description of the due process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited.

Beginning with the 2000 NAIC Winter National Meeting, drafts of the proposed revisions to the model regulation were reviewed and discussed at each National Meeting. Comments were requested throughout the drafting process. In addition, all of the drafts of the proposed revisions to the model regulation were posted on the NAIC web site.

6. A discussion of the significant issues (items of some controversy) raised during the drafting process and the group's response.

There were no significant issues raised during the drafting process.

COORDINATION OF BENEFITS MODEL REGULATION

Section 1. Authority

This regulation is adopted and promulgated by the Commissioner of Insurance pursuant to Section [insert section] of the Insurance Code.

Section 2. Purpose

The purpose of this regulation is to:

A. Establish a uniform order of benefit determination under which plans pay claims;

B. Reduce duplication of benefits by permitting a reduction of the benefits to be paid by plans that, pursuant to rules established by this regulation, do not have to pay their benefits first; and

C. Provide greater efficiency in the processing of claims when a person is covered under more than one plan.

Section 3. Definitions

As used in this regulation, these words and terms have the following meanings, unless the context clearly indicates otherwise:

A. (1) "Allowable expense," except as set forth below or where a statute requires a different definition, means any health care expense, including coinsurance or copayments and without reduction for any applicable deductible, that is covered in full or in part by any of the plans covering the person.

(2) If a plan is advised by a covered person that all plans covering the person are high-deductible health plans and the person intends to contribute to a health savings account established in accordance with Section 223 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, the primary high-deductible health plan's deductible is not an allowable expense, except for any health care expense incurred that may not be subject to the deductible as described in Section 223(c)(2)(C) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

(3) An expense or a portion of an expense that is not covered by any of the plans is not an allowable expense.

(4) Any expense that a provider by law or in accordance with a contractual agreement is prohibited from charging a covered person is not an allowable expense.

(5) The following are examples of expenses that are not allowable expenses:

(a) If a person is confined in a private hospital room, the difference between the cost of a semi-private room in the hospital and the private room is not an allowable expense, unless one of the plans provides coverage for private hospital room expenses.

(b) If a person is covered by two (2) or more plans that compute their benefit payments on the basis of usual and customary fees or relative value schedule reimbursement or other similar reimbursement methodology, any amount charged by the provider in excess of the highest reimbursement amount for a specified benefit is not an allowable expense.

(c) If a person is covered by two (2) or more plans that provide benefits or services on the basis of negotiated fees, any amount in excess of the highest of the negotiated fees is not an allowable expense.

(d) If a person is covered by one plan that calculates its benefits or services on the basis of usual and customary fees or relative value schedule reimbursement or other similar reimbursement methodology and another plan that provides its benefits or services on the basis of negotiated fees, the primary plan's payment arrangement shall be the allowable expense for all plans. However, if the provider has contracted with the secondary plan to provide the benefit or service for a specific negotiated fee or payment amount that is different than the primary plan's payment arrangement and if the provider's contract permits, that negotiated fee or payment shall be the allowable expense used by the secondary plan to determine its benefits.

Drafting Note: Many plans negotiate rates with physicians, hospitals and other providers that are lower than the providers' usual and customary charges using other reimbursement methodology, such as relative value schedule reimbursement or other similar reimbursement methodology. Because the provider has agreed to accept the negotiated payment, less any required deductibles, coinsurance or copayments for the services, COB is not to be used to increase the provider payment. Conversely, because the provider has agreed to accept the negotiated payment, less any required deductibles, coinsurance or copayments for the services, COB is not to be used to decrease the amount the provider has negotiated to accept in payment for the services. This provision limits COB allowable expense to the negotiated rate. Plans should include provisions in their provider contracts to account for payments under coordination of benefits.

(6) The definition of "allowable expense" may exclude certain types of coverage or benefits such as dental care, vision care, prescription drug or hearing aids. A plan that limits the application of COB to certain coverages or benefits may limit the definition of allowable expense in its contract to expenses that are similar to the expenses that it provides. When COB is restricted to specific coverages or benefits in a contract, the definition of allowable expense shall include similar expenses to which COB applies.

Drafting Note: The intent of this provision is to permit plans to limit the extent of coordination to plans with similar types of coverages or benefits, e.g., coordination of health plans with health plans or dental plans with dental plans, etc.

(7) When a plan provides benefits in the form of services, the reasonable cash value of each service will be considered an allowable expense and a benefit paid.

(8) The amount of the reduction may be excluded from allowable expense when a covered person's benefits are reduced under a primary plan:

(a) Because the covered person does not comply with the plan provisions concerning second surgical opinions or precertification of admissions or services; or

(b) Because the covered person has a lower benefit because the covered person did not use a preferred provider.

B. "Birthday" refers only to month and day in a calendar year and does not include the year in which the individual is born.

C. "Claim" means a request that benefits of a plan be provided or paid. The benefits claimed may be in the form of:

(1) Services (including supplies);

(2) Payment for all or a portion of the expenses incurred;

(3) A combination of Paragraphs (1) and (2); or

(4) An indemnification.

D. "Closed panel plan" means a plan that provides health benefits to covered persons primarily in the form of services through a panel of providers that have contracted with or are employed by the plan, and that excludes benefits for services provided by other providers, except in cases of emergency or referral by a panel member.

E. "Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985" or "COBRA" means coverage provided under a right of continuation pursuant to federal law.

F. "Coordination of benefits" or "COB" means a provision establishing an order in which plans pay their claims, and permitting secondary plans to reduce their benefits so that the combined benefits of all plans do not exceed total allowable expenses.

G. "Custodial parent" means:

(1) The parent awarded custody of a child by a court decree; or

(2) In the absence of a court decree, the parent with whom the child resides more than one half of the calendar year without regard to any temporary visitation.

H. (1) "Group-type contract" means a contract that is not available to the general public and is obtained and maintained only because of membership in or a connection with a particular organization or group, including blanket coverage.

(2) "Group-type contract" does not include an individually underwritten and issued guaranteed renewable policy even if the policy is purchased through payroll deduction at a premium savings to the insured since the insured would have the right to maintain or renew the policy independently of continued employment with the employer.

I. "High-deductible health plan" has the meaning given the term under Section 223 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended by the Medicare Prescription Drug, Improvement and Modernization Act of 2003.

J. (1) "Hospital indemnity benefits" means benefits not related to expenses incurred.

(2) "Hospital indemnity benefits" does not include reimbursement-type benefits even if they are designed or administered to give the insured the right to elect indemnity-type benefits at the time of claim.

K. (1) "Plan" means a form of coverage with which coordination is allowed. Separate parts of a plan for members of a group that are provided through alternative contracts that are intended to be part of a coordinated package of benefits are considered one plan and there is no COB among the separate parts of the plan.

Drafting Note: A state may choose to allow coordination only between group plans within its COB rules. In that case, a state would need to modify Section 3K(4) to exempt certain coverages from the definition of "plan."

(2) If a plan coordinates benefits, its contract shall state the types of coverage that will be considered in applying the COB provision of that contract. Whether the contract uses the term "plan" or some other term such as "program," the contractual definition may be no broader than the definition of "plan" in this subsection. The definition of "plan" in the model COB provision in Appendix A is an example.

(3) "Plan" includes:

(a) Group and nongroup insurance contracts and subscriber contracts;

(b) Uninsured arrangements of group or group-type coverage;

(c) Group and nongroup coverage through closed panel plans;

(d) Group-type contracts;

(e) The medical care components of long-term care contracts, such as skilled nursing care;

(f) The medical benefits coverage in automobile "no fault" and traditional automobile "fault" type contracts;

(g) Medicare or other governmental benefits, as permitted by law, except as provided in Paragraph (4)(h). That part of the definition of plan may be limited to the hospital, medical and surgical benefits of the governmental program; and

(h) Group and nongroup insurance contracts and subscriber contracts that pay or reimburse for the cost of dental care.

(4) "Plan" does not include:

(a) Hospital indemnity coverage benefits or other fixed indemnity coverage;

(b) Accident only coverage;

(c) Specified disease or specified accident coverage;

(d) Limited benefit health coverage, as defined in [insert reference in state law equivalent to Section 7 of the NAIC Model Regulation to Implement the Accident and Sickness Insurance Minimum Standards Model Act];

(e) School accident-type coverages that cover students for accidents only, including athletic injuries, either on a twenty-four-hour basis or on a "to and from school" basis;

(f) Benefits provided in long-term care insurance policies for non-medical services, for example, personal care, adult day care, homemaker services, assistance with activities of daily living, respite care and custodial care or for contracts that pay a fixed daily benefit without regard to expenses incurred or the receipt of services;

(g) Medicare supplement policies;

(h) A state plan under Medicaid; or

(i) A governmental plan, which, by law, provides benefits that are in excess of those of any private insurance plan or other non-governmental plan.

L. "Policyholder" means the primary insured named in a nongroup insurance policy.

M. "Primary plan" means a plan whose benefits for a person's health care coverage must be determined without taking the existence of any other plan into consideration. A plan is a primary plan if:

(1) The plan either has no order of benefit determination rules, or its rules differ from those permitted by this regulation; or

(2) All plans that cover the person use the order of benefit determination rules required by this regulation, and under those rules the plan determines its benefits first.

N. "Secondary plan" means a plan that is not a primary plan.

Section 4. Applicability and Scope

This regulation applies to all plans that are issued on or after the effective date of this regulation, which is [insert date].

Section 5. Use of Model COB Contract Provision

A. Appendix A contains a model COB provision for use in contracts. The use of this model COB provision is subject to the provisions of Subsections B, C and D and to the provisions of Section 6 of this regulation.

B. Appendix B is a plain language description of the COB process that explains to the covered person how health plans will implement coordination of benefits. It is not intended to replace or change the provisions that are set forth in the contract. Its purpose is to explain the process by which the two (2) or more plans will pay for or provide benefits.

C. The COB provision contained in Appendix A and the plain language explanation in Appendix B do not have to use the specific words and format shown in Appendix A or Appendix B. Changes may be made to fit the language and style of the rest of the contract or to reflect differences among plans that provide services, that pay benefits for expenses incurred and that indemnify. No substantive changes are permitted.

D. A COB provision may not be used that permits a plan to reduce its benefits on the basis that:

(1) Another plan exists and the covered person did not enroll in that plan;

(2) A person is or could have been covered under another plan, except with respect to Part B of Medicare; or

(3) A person has elected an option under another plan providing a lower level of benefits than another option that could have been elected.

E. No plan may contain a provision that its benefits are "always excess" or "always secondary" except in accordance with the rules permitted by this regulation.

F. Under the terms of a closed panel plan, benefits are not payable if the covered person does not use the services of a closed panel provider. In most instances, COB does not occur if a covered person is enrolled in two (2) or more closed panel plans and obtains services from a provider in one of the closed panel plans because the other closed panel plan (the one whose providers were not used) has no liability. However, COB may occur during the plan year when the covered person receives emergency services that would have been covered by both plans. Then the secondary plan shall use the provisions of Section 7 of this regulation to determine the amount it should pay for the benefit.

G. No plan may use a COB provision, or any other provision that allows it to reduce its benefits with respect to any other coverage its insured may have that does not meet the definition of plan under Section 3K of this regulation.

Section 6. Rules for Coordination of Benefits

When a person is covered by two (2) or more plans, the rules for determining the order of benefit payments are as follows:

A. (1) The primary plan shall pay or provide its benefits as if the secondary plan or plans did not exist.

(2) If the primary plan is a closed panel plan and the secondary plan is not a closed panel plan, the secondary plan shall pay or provide benefits as if it were the primary plan when a covered person uses a non-panel provider, except for emergency services or authorized referrals that are paid or provided by the primary plan.

(3) When multiple contracts providing coordinated coverage are treated as a single plan under this regulation, this section applies only to the plan as a whole, and coordination among the component contracts is governed by the terms of the contracts. If more than one carrier pays or provides benefits under the plan, the carrier designated as primary within the plan shall be responsible for the plan's compliance with this regulation.

(4) If a person is covered by more than one secondary plan, the order of benefit determination rules of this regulation decide the order in which secondary plans benefits are determined in relation to each other. Each secondary plan shall take into consideration the benefits of the primary plan or plans and the benefits of any other plan, which, under the rules of this regulation, has its benefits determined before those of that secondary plan.

B. (1) Except as provided in Paragraph (2), a plan that does not contain order of benefit determination provisions that are consistent with this regulation is always the primary plan unless the provisions of both plans, regardless of the provisions of this paragraph, state that the complying plan is primary.

Drafting Note: The medical benefits coverage in automobile "no fault" and traditional automobile "fault" type contracts (often referred to as "med pay"), which is included in the definition of "plan" under Section 3K(3) of this model regulation, does not normally contain order of benefit determinations provisions. As such, unless state law or regulation specifies otherwise, in accordance with paragraph (1), such coverage would be primary. Med pay coverage is not liability coverage and is not dependent upon fault.

(2) Coverage that is obtained by virtue of membership in a group and designed to supplement a part of a basic package of benefits may provide that the supplementary coverage shall be excess to any other parts of the plan provided by the contract holder. Examples of these types of situations are major medical coverages that are superimposed over base plan hospital and surgical benefits, and insurance type coverages that are written in connection with a closed panel plan to provide out-of-network benefits.

C. A plan may take into consideration the benefits paid or provided by another plan only when, under the rules of this regulation, it is secondary to that other plan.

D. Order of Benefit Determination

Each plan determines its order of benefits using the first of the following rules that applies:

(1) Non-Dependent or Dependent

(a) Subject to Subparagraph (b) of this paragraph, the plan that covers the person other than as a dependent, for example as an employee, member, subscriber, policyholder or retiree, is the primary plan and the plan that covers the person as a dependent is the secondary plan.

(b) (i) If the person is a Medicare beneficiary, and, as a result of the provisions of Title XVIII of the Social Security Act and implementing regulations, Medicare is:

(I) Secondary to the plan covering the person as a dependent; and

(II) Primary to the plan covering the person as other than a dependent (e.g. a retired employee),

(ii) Then the order of benefits is reversed so that the plan covering the person as an employee, member, subscriber, policyholder or retiree is the secondary plan and the other plan covering the person as a dependent is the primary plan.

Drafting Note: The provisions of Subparagraph (b) address the situation where federal law requires Medicare to be secondary with respect to group health plans in certain situations despite state law order of benefit determination provisions to the contrary. One example of this type of situation arises when a person, who is a Medicare beneficiary, is also covered under his or her own group health plan as a retiree and under a group health plan as a dependent of an active employee. In this situation, each of the three plans is secondary to the other as the following illustrates: (1) Medicare is secondary to the group health plan covering the person as a dependent of an active employee as required pursuant to the Medicare secondary payer rules; (2) the group health plan covering the person as a dependent of an active employee is secondary to the group health plan covering the person as a retiree, as required under Subparagraph (a); and (3) the group health plan covering the claimant as retiree is secondary to Medicare because the plan is designed to supplement Medicare when Medicare is the primary plan. Subparagraph (b) resolves this problem by making the group health plan covering the person as a dependent of an active employee the primary plan. The dependent coverage pays before the non-dependent coverage even though under state law order of benefit determination provisions in the absence of Subparagraph (b), the non-dependent coverage (e.g. retiree coverage) would be expected to pay before the dependent coverage. Therefore, in cases that involve Medicare, generally, the dependent coverage pays first as the primary plan, Medicare pays second as the secondary plan, and the non-dependent coverage (e.g. retiree coverage) pays third.

The reason why Subparagraph (b) provides for this order of benefits making the plan covering the person as dependent of an active employee primary is because Medicare will not be primary in most situations to any coverage that a dependent has on the basis of active employment and, as such, Medicare will not provide any information as to what Medicare would have paid had it been primary. The plan covering the person as a retiree cannot determine its payment as a secondary plan unless it has information about what the primary plan paid. The plan covering the person as a dependent of an active employee could be subject to penalties under the Medicare secondary payer rules if it refuses to pay its benefits. The plan covering the person as a retiree is not subject to the same penalties because, in this particular situation, as described above, which does not involve a person eligible for Medicare based on end-stage renal disease (ESRD), the plan can never be primary to Medicare. As such, out of the three plans providing coverage to the person, the plan covering the person as a dependent of an active employee can determine its benefits most easily.

(2) Dependent Child Covered Under More Than One Plan

Unless there is a court decree stating otherwise, plans covering a dependent child shall determine the order of benefits as follows:

(a) For a dependent child whose parents are married or are living together, whether or not they have ever been married:

(i) The plan of the parent whose birthday falls earlier in the calendar year is the primary plan; or

(ii) If both parents have the same birthday, the plan that has covered the parent longest is the primary plan.

(b) For a dependent child whose parents are divorced or separated or are not living together, whether or not they have ever been married:

(i) If a court decree states that one of the parents is responsible for the dependent child's health care expenses or health care coverage and the plan of that parent has actual knowledge of those terms, that plan is primary. If the parent with responsibility has no health care coverage for the dependent child's health care expenses, but that parent's spouse does, that parent's spouse's plan is the primary plan. This item shall not apply with respect to any plan year during which benefits are paid or provided before the entity has actual knowledge of the court decree provision;

(ii) If a court decree states that both parents are responsible for the dependent child's health care expenses or health care coverage, the provisions of Subparagraph (a) of this paragraph shall determine the order of benefits;

(iii) If a court decree states that the parents have joint custody without specifying that one parent has responsibility for the health care expenses or health care coverage of the dependent child, the provisions of Subparagraph (a) of this paragraph shall determine the order of benefits; or

(iv) If there is no court decree allocating responsibility for the child's health care expenses or health care coverage, the order of benefits for the child are as follows:

(I) The plan covering the custodial parent;

(II) The plan covering the custodial parent's spouse;

(III) The plan covering the non-custodial parent; and then

(IV) The plan covering the non-custodial parent's spouse.

(c) For a dependent child covered under more than one plan of individuals who are not the parents of the child, the order of benefits shall be determined, as applicable, under Subparagraph (a) or (b) of this paragraph as if those individuals were parents of the child.

Drafting Note: Subparagraph (c) addresses the situation where individuals other than the parents of a child are responsible for the child's health care expenses or provide health care coverage for the child under each of their plans. In this situation, for the purpose of determining the order of benefits under this paragraph, Subparagraph (c) requires that these individuals be treated in the same manner as parents of the child.

(d) (i) For a dependent child who has coverage under either or both parents' plans and also has his or her own coverage as a dependent under a spouse's plan, the rule in Paragraph (5) applies.

(ii) In the event the dependent child's coverage under the spouse's plan began on the same date as the dependent child's coverage under either or both parents' plans, the order of benefits shall be determined by applying the birthday rule in Subparagraph (a) to the dependent child's parent(s) and the dependent's spouse.

Drafting Note: Subparagraph (d) is intended to address the situation created by the enactment of Section 2714 of the Public Health Service Act, as that section was added by the federal Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (Public Law 111-148) (ACA), as amended by the federal Health Care and Education Reconciliation Act of 2010 (Public Law 111-152). Section 2714 of the PHSA extended coverage for dependents to age 26 regardless of any dependency factors, such as support, residency, student status or marital status.

(3) Active Employee or Retired or Laid-Off Employee

(a) The plan that covers a person as an active employee that is, an employee who is neither laid off nor retired or as a dependent of an active employee is the primary plan. The plan covering that same person as a retired or laid-off employee or as a dependent of a retired or laid-off employee is the secondary plan.

(b) If the other plan does not have this rule, and as a result, the plans do not agree on the order of benefits, this rule is ignored.

(c) This rule does not apply if the rule in Paragraph (1) can determine the order of benefits.

Drafting Note: This rule applies only in the situation when the same person is covered under two plans, one of which is provided on the basis of active employment and the other of which is provided to retired or laid-off employees. The rule in Paragraph (1) does not apply because the person is covered either as a non-dependent under both plans (i.e. the person is covered under one plan as an active employee and at the same time is covered as a retired or laid-off employee under the other plan) or as a dependent under both plans (i.e. the person is covered under one plan as a dependent of an active employee and at the same time is covered under the other plan as a dependent of a retired or laid-off employee). This rule does not apply when a person is covered under his or her own plan as an active employee or retired or laid-off employee and a dependent under a spouse's plan provided to the spouse on the basis of active employment. In this situation, the rule in Paragraph (1) applies because the person is covered as a non-dependent under one plan (i.e. the person is covered as an active employee or retired or laid-off employee) and at the same time is covered as a dependent under the other plan (i.e. the person is covered as a dependent under a plan provided on the basis of active employment or a plan that is provided to retired or laid-off employees).

(4) COBRA or State Continuation Coverage

(a) If a person whose coverage is provided pursuant to COBRA or under a right of continuation pursuant to state or other federal law is covered under another plan, the plan covering the person as an employee, member, subscriber or retiree or covering the person as a dependent of an employee, member, subscriber or retiree is the primary plan and the plan covering that same person pursuant to COBRA or under a right of continuation pursuant to state or other federal law is the secondary plan.

(b) If the other plan does not have this rule, and if, as a result, the plans do not agree on the order of benefits, this rule is ignored.

(c) This rule does not apply if the rule in Paragraph (1) can determine the order of benefits

Drafting Note: COBRA originally provided that coverage under a new group health plan caused the COBRA coverage to end. An amendment passed as part of P.L. 101-239, the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989 (OBRA 89), allows the COBRA coverage to continue if the newly acquired group health plan contains any preexisting condition exclusion or limitation. In this instance two group health plans will cover the person, and the rule above will be used to determine which of the plans determines its benefits first. In addition, some states have continuation provisions comparable to COBRA.

Drafting Note: This rule applies only in the situation when a person has coverage pursuant to COBRA or under a right of continuation pursuant to state or other federal law and has coverage under another plan on the basis of employment. The rule under Paragraph (1) does not apply because the person is covered either: (a) as a non-dependent under both plans (i.e. the person is covered under a right of continuation as a qualified beneficiary who, on the day before a qualifying event, was covered under the group health plan as an employee or as a retired employee and is covered under his or her own plan as an employee, member, subscriber or retiree); or (b) as a dependent under both plans (i.e. the person is covered under a right of continuation as a qualified beneficiary who, on the day before a qualifying event, was covered under the group health plan as a dependent of an employee, member or subscriber or retired employee and is covered under the other plan as a dependent of an employee, member, subscriber or retiree). The rule under Paragraph (1) applies when the person is covered pursuant to COBRA or under a right of continuation pursuant to state or other federal law as a non-dependent and covered under the other plan as a dependent of an employee, member, subscriber or retiree. The rule in this paragraph does not apply because the person is covered as a non-dependent under one of the plans and as a dependent under the other plan.

(5) Longer or Shorter Length of Coverage

(a) If the preceding rules do not determine the order of benefits, the plan that covered the person for the longer period of time is the primary plan and the plan that covered the person for the shorter period of time is the secondary plan.

(b) To determine the length of time a person has been covered under a plan, two successive plans shall be treated as one if the covered person was eligible under the second plan within twenty-four (24) hours after coverage under the first plan ended.

(c) The start of a new plan does not include:

(i) A change in the amount or scope of a plan's benefits;

(ii) A change in the entity that pays, provides or administers the plan's benefits; or

(iii) A change from one type of plan to another, such as, from a single employer plan to a multiple employer plan.

(d) The person's length of time covered under a plan is measured from the person's first date of coverage under that plan. If that date is not readily available for a group plan, the date the person first became a member of the group shall be used as the date from which to determine the length of time the person's coverage under the present plan has been in force.

(6) If none of the preceding rules determines the order of benefits, the allowable expenses shall be shared equally between the plans.

Section 7. Procedure to be Followed by Secondary Plan to Calculate Benefits and Pay a Claim

In determining the amount to be paid by the secondary plan on a claim, should the plan wish to coordinate benefits, the secondary plan shall calculate the benefits it would have paid on the claim in the absence of other health care coverage and apply that calculated amount to any allowable expense under its plan that is unpaid by the primary plan. The secondary plan may reduce its payment by the amount so that, when combined with the amount paid by the primary plan, the total benefits paid or provided by all plans for the claim do not exceed 100 percent of the total allowable expense for that claim. In addition, the secondary plan shall credit to its plan deductible any amounts it would have credited to its deductible in the absence of other health care coverage.

Section 8. Notice to Covered Persons

A plan shall, in its explanation of benefits provided to covered persons, include the following language: "If you are covered by more than one health benefit plan, you should file all your claims with each plan."

Section 9. Miscellaneous Provisions

A. A secondary plan that provides benefits in the form of services may recover the reasonable cash value of the services from the primary plan, to the extent that benefits for the services are covered by the primary plan and have not already been paid or provided by the primary plan. Nothing in this provision shall be interpreted to require a plan to reimburse a covered person in cash for the value of services provided by a plan that provides benefits in the form of services.

B. (1) A plan with order of benefit determination rules that comply with this regulation (complying plan) may coordinate its benefits with a plan that is "excess" or "always secondary" or that uses order of benefit determination rules that are inconsistent with those contained in this regulation (non-complying plan) on the following basis:

(a) If the complying plan is the primary plan, it shall pay or provide its benefits first;

(b) If the complying plan is the secondary plan, it shall pay or provide its benefits first, but the amount of the benefits payable shall be determined as if the complying plan were the secondary plan. In such a situation, the payment shall be the limit of the complying plan's liability; and

(c) If the non-complying plan does not provide the information needed by the complying plan to determine its benefits within a reasonable time after it is requested to do so, the complying plan shall assume that the benefits of the non-complying plan are identical to its own, and shall pay its benefits accordingly. If, within two (2) years of payment, the complying plan receives information as to the actual benefits of the non-complying plan, it shall adjust payments accordingly.

(2) If the non-complying plan reduces its benefits so that the covered person receives less in benefits than the covered person would have received had the complying plan paid or provided its benefits as the secondary plan and the non-complying plan paid or provided its benefits as the primary plan, and governing state law allows the right of subrogation set forth below, then the complying plan shall advance to the covered person or on behalf of the covered person an amount equal to the difference.

(3) In no event shall the complying plan advance more than the complying plan would have paid had it been the primary plan less any amount it previously paid for the same expense or service. In consideration of the advance, the complying plan shall be subrogated to all rights of the covered person against the non-complying plan. The advance by the complying plan shall also be without prejudice to any claim it may have against a non-complying plan in the absence of subrogation.

C. COB differs from subrogation. Provisions for one may be included in health care benefits contracts without compelling the inclusion or exclusion of the other.

D. If the plans cannot agree on the order of benefits within thirty (30) calendar days after the plans have received all of the information needed to pay the claim, the plans shall immediately pay the claim in equal shares and determine their relative liabilities following payment, except that no plan shall be required to pay more than it would have paid had it been the primary plan.

Section 10. Effective Date for Existing Contracts

A. A contract that provides health care benefits and that was issued before the effective date of this regulation shall be brought into compliance with this regulation by:

(1) The later of:

(a) The next anniversary date or renewal date of the contract; or

(b) Twelve (12) months following [insert date that the amended regulation is adopted]; or

(2) The expiration of any applicable collectively bargained contract pursuant to which it was written.

B. For the transition period between the adoption of this regulation and the timeframe for which plans are to be in compliance pursuant to Subsection A, a plan that is subject to the prior COB requirements shall not be considered a non-complying plan by a plan subject to the new COB requirements and if there is a conflict between the prior COB requirements under the prior regulation and the new COB requirements under the amended regulation, the prior COB requirements shall apply.

APPENDIX A MODEL COB CONTRACT PROVISIONS

COORDINATION OF THIS CONTRACT'S BENEFITS WITH OTHER BENEFITS

The Coordination of Benefits (COB) provision applies when a person has health care coverage under more than one Plan. Plan is defined below.

The order of benefit determination rules govern the order in which each Plan will pay a claim for benefits. The Plan that pays first is called the Primary plan. The Primary plan must pay benefits in accordance with its policy terms without regard to the possibility that another Plan may cover some expenses. The Plan that pays after the Primary plan is the Secondary plan. The Secondary plan may reduce the benefits it pays so that payments from all Plans does not exceed 100% of the total Allowable expense.

DEFINITIONS

A. A Plan is any of the following that provides benefits or services for medical or dental care or treatment. If separate contracts are used to provide coordinated coverage for members of a group, the separate contracts are considered parts of the same plan and there is no COB among those separate contracts.

(1) Plan includes: group and nongroup insurance contracts, health maintenance organization (HMO) contracts, closed panel plans or other forms of group or group-type coverage (whether insured or uninsured); medical care components of long-term care contracts, such as skilled nursing care; medical benefits under group or individual automobile contracts; and Medicare or any other federal governmental plan, as permitted by law.

(2) Plan does not include: hospital indemnity coverage or other fixed indemnity coverage; accident only coverage; specified disease or specified accident coverage; limited benefit health coverage, as defined by state law; school accident type coverage; benefits for non-medical components of long-term care policies; Medicare supplement policies; Medicaid policies; or coverage under other federal governmental plans, unless permitted by law.

Each contract for coverage under (1) or (2) is a separate Plan. If a Plan has two parts and COB rules apply only to one of the two, each of the parts is treated as a separate Plan.

B. This plan means, in a COB provision, the part of the contract providing the health care benefits to which the COB provision applies and which may be reduced because of the benefits of other plans. Any other part of the contract providing health care benefits is separate from this plan. A contract may apply one COB provision to certain benefits, such as dental benefits, coordinating only with similar benefits, and may apply another COB provision to coordinate other benefits.

C. The order of benefit determination rules determine whether This plan is a Primary plan or Secondary plan when the person has health care coverage under more than one Plan.

When This plan is primary, it determines payment for its benefits first before those of any other Plan without considering any other Plan's benefits. When This plan is secondary, it determines its benefits after those of another Plan and may reduce the benefits it pays so that all Plan benefits do not exceed 100% of the total Allowable expense.

D. Allowable expense is a health care expense, including deductibles, coinsurance and copayments, that is covered at least in part by any Plan covering the person. When a Plan provides benefits in the form of services, the reasonable cash value of each service will be considered an Allowable expense and a benefit paid. An expense that is not covered by any Plan covering the person is not an Allowable expense. In addition, any expense that a provider by law or in accordance with a contractual agreement is prohibited from charging a covered person is not an Allowable expense.

The following are examples of expenses that are not Allowable expenses:

(1) The difference between the cost of a semi-private hospital room and a private hospital room is not an Allowable expense, unless one of the Plans provides coverage for private hospital room expenses.

(2) If a person is covered by 2 or more Plans that compute their benefit payments on the basis of usual and customary fees or relative value schedule reimbursement methodology or other similar reimbursement methodology, any amount in excess of the highest reimbursement amount for a specific benefit is not an Allowable expense.

(3) If a person is covered by 2 or more Plans that provide benefits or services on the basis of negotiated fees, an amount in excess of the highest of the negotiated fees is not an Allowable expense.

(4) If a person is covered by one Plan that calculates its benefits or services on the basis of usual and customary fees or relative value schedule reimbursement methodology or other similar reimbursement methodology and another Plan that provides its benefits or services on the basis of negotiated fees, the Primary plan's payment arrangement shall be the Allowable expense for all Plans. However, if the provider has contracted with the Secondary plan to provide the benefit or service for a specific negotiated fee or payment amount that is different than the Primary plan's payment arrangement and if the provider's contract permits, the negotiated fee or payment shall be the Allowable expense used by the Secondary plan to determine its benefits.

(5) The amount of any benefit reduction by the Primary plan because a covered person has failed to comply with the Plan provisions is not an Allowable expense. Examples of these types of plan provisions include second surgical opinions, precertification of admissions, and preferred provider arrangements.

E. Closed panel plan is a Plan that provides health care benefits to covered persons primarily in the form of services through a panel of providers that have contracted with or are employed by the Plan, and that excludes coverage for services provided by other providers, except in cases of emergency or referral by a panel member.

F. Custodial parent is the parent awarded custody by a court decree or, in the absence of a court decree, is the parent with whom the child resides more than one half of the calendar year excluding any temporary visitation.

ORDER OF BENEFIT DETERMINATION RULES

When a person is covered by two or more Plans, the rules for determining the order of benefit payments are as follows:

A. The Primary plan pays or provides its benefits according to its terms of coverage and without regard to the benefits of under any other Plan.

B. (1) Except as provided in Paragraph (2), a Plan that does not contain a coordination of benefits provision that is consistent with this regulation is always primary unless the provisions of both Plans state that the complying plan is primary.

(2) Coverage that is obtained by virtue of membership in a group that is designed to supplement a part of a basic package of benefits and provides that this supplementary coverage shall be excess to any other parts of the Plan provided by the contract holder. Examples of these types of situations are major medical coverages that are superimposed over base plan hospital and surgical benefits, and insurance type coverages that are written in connection with a Closed panel plan to provide out-of-network benefits.

C. A Plan may consider the benefits paid or provided by another Plan in calculating payment of its benefits only when it is secondary to that other Plan.

D. Each Plan determines its order of benefits using the first of the following rules that apply:

(1) Non-Dependent or Dependent. The Plan that covers the person other than as a dependent, for example as an employee, member, policyholder, subscriber or retiree is the Primary plan and the Plan that covers the person as a dependent is the Secondary plan. However, if the person is a Medicare beneficiary and, as a result of federal law, Medicare is secondary to the Plan covering the person as a dependent; and primary to the Plan covering the person as other than a dependent (e.g. a retired employee); then the order of benefits between the two Plans is reversed so that the Plan covering the person as an employee, member, policyholder, subscriber or retiree is the Secondary plan and the other Plan is the Primary plan.

(2) Dependent Child Covered Under More Than One Plan. Unless there is a court decree stating otherwise, when a dependent child is covered by more than one Plan the order of benefits is determined as follows:

(a) For a dependent child whose parents are married or are living together, whether or not they have ever been married:

- The Plan of the parent whose birthday falls earlier in the calendar year is the Primary plan; or
- If both parents have the same birthday, the Plan that has covered the parent the longest is the Primary plan.

(b) For a dependent child whose parents are divorced or separated or not living together, whether or not they have ever been married:

(i) If a court decree states that one of the parents is responsible for the dependent child's health care expenses or health care coverage and the Plan of that parent has actual knowledge of those terms, that Plan is primary. This rule applies to plan years commencing after the Plan is given notice of the court decree;

(ii) If a court decree states that both parents are responsible for the dependent child's health care expenses or health care coverage, the provisions of Subparagraph (a) above shall determine the order of benefits;

(iii) If a court decree states that the parents have joint custody without specifying that one parent has responsibility for the health care expenses or health care coverage of the dependent child, the provisions of Subparagraph (a) above shall determine the order of benefits; or

(iv) If there is no court decree allocating responsibility for the dependent child's health care expenses or health care coverage, the order of benefits for the child are as follows:

- The Plan covering the Custodial parent;
- The Plan covering the spouse of the Custodial parent;
- The Plan covering the non-custodial parent; and then
- The Plan covering the spouse of the non-custodial parent.

(c) For a dependent child covered under more than one Plan of individuals who are the parents of the child, the provisions of Subparagraph (a) or (b) above shall determine the order of benefits as if those individuals were the parents of the child.

(3) Active Employee or Retired or Laid-off Employee. The Plan that covers a person as an active employee, that is, an employee who is neither laid off nor retired, is the Primary plan. The Plan covering that same person as a retired or laid-off employee is the Secondary plan. The same would hold true if a person is a dependent of an active employee and that same person is a dependent of a retired or laid-off employee. If the other Plan does not have this rule, and as a result, the Plans do not agree on the order of benefits, this rule is ignored. This rule does not apply if the rule labeled D(1) can determine the order of benefits.

(4) COBRA or State Continuation Coverage. If a person whose coverage is provided pursuant to COBRA or under a right of continuation provided by state or other federal law is covered under another Plan, the Plan covering the person as an employee, member, subscriber or retiree or covering the person as a dependent of an employee, member, subscriber or retiree is the Primary plan and the COBRA or state or other federal continuation coverage is the Secondary plan. If the other Plan does not have this rule, and as a result, the Plans do not agree on the order of benefits, this rule is ignored. This rule does not apply if the rule labeled D(1) can determine the order of benefits.

(5) Longer or Shorter Length of Coverage. The Plan that covered the person as an employee, member, policyholder, subscriber or retiree longer is the Primary plan and the Plan that covered the person the shorter period of time is the Secondary plan.

(6) If the preceding rules do not determine the order of benefits, the Allowable expenses shall be shared equally between the Plans meeting the definition of Plan. In addition, This plan will not pay more than it would have paid had it been the Primary plan.

EFFECT ON THE BENEFITS OF THIS PLAN

A. When This plan is secondary, it may reduce its benefits so that the total benefits paid or provided by all Plans during a plan year are not more than the total Allowable expenses. In determining the amount to be paid for any claim, the Secondary plan will calculate the benefits it would have paid in the absence of other health care coverage and apply that calculated amount to any Allowable expense under its Plan that is unpaid by the Primary plan. The Secondary plan may then reduce its payment by the amount so that, when combined with the amount paid by the Primary plan, the total benefits paid or provided by all Plans for the claim do not exceed the total Allowable expense for that claim. In addition, the Secondary plan shall credit to its plan deductible any amounts it would have credited to its deductible in the absence of other health care coverage.

B. If a covered person is enrolled in two or more Closed panel plans and if, for any reason, including the provision of service by a non-panel provider, benefits are not payable by one Closed panel plan, COB shall not apply between that Plan and other Closed panel plans.

RIGHT TO RECEIVE AND RELEASE NEEDED INFORMATION

Certain facts about health care coverage and services are needed to apply these COB rules and to determine benefits payable under This plan and other Plans. [Organization responsibility for COB administration] may get the facts it needs from or give them to other organizations or persons for the purpose of applying these rules and determining benefits payable under This plan and other Plans covering the person claiming benefits. [Organization responsibility for COB administration] need not tell, or get the consent of, any person to do this. Each person claiming benefits under This plan must give [Organization responsibility for COB administration] any facts it needs to apply those rules and determine benefits payable.

FACILITY OF PAYMENT

A payment made under another Plan may include an amount that should have been paid under This plan. If it does, [Organization responsibility for COB administration] may pay that amount to the organization that made that payment. That amount will then be treated as though it were a benefit paid under This plan. [Organization responsibility for COB administration] will not have to pay that amount again. The term "payment made" includes providing benefits in the form of services, in which case "payment made" means the reasonable cash value of the benefits provided in the form of services.

RIGHT OF RECOVERY

If the amount of the payments made by [Organization responsibility for COB administration] is more than it should have paid under this COB provision, it may recover the excess from one or more of the persons it has paid or for whom it has paid; or any other person or organization that may be responsible for the benefits or services provided for the covered person. The "amount of the payments made" includes the reasonable cash value of any benefits provided in the form of services.

COORDINATION OF BENEFITS

IMPORTANT NOTICE

This is a summary of only a few of the provisions of your health plan to help you understand coordination of benefits, which can be very complicated. This is not a complete description of all of the coordination rules and procedures, and does not change or replace the language contained in your insurance contract, which determines your benefits.

Double Coverage

It is common for family members to be covered by more than one health care plan. This happens, for example, when a husband and wife both work and choose to have family coverage through both employers.

When you are covered by more than one health plan, state law permits your insurers to follow a procedure called "coordination of benefits" to determine how much each should pay when you have a claim. The goal is to make sure that the combined payments of all plans do not add up to more than your covered health care expenses.

Coordination of benefits (COB) is complicated, and covers a wide variety of circumstances. This is only an outline of some of the most common ones. If your situation is not described, read your evidence of coverage or contact your state insurance department.

Primary or Secondary?

You will be asked to identify all the plans that cover members of your family. We need this information to determine whether we are the "primary" or "secondary" benefit payer. The primary plan always pays first when you have a claim.

Any plan that does not contain your state's COB rules will always be primary.

When This Plan is Primary

If you or a family member are covered under another plan in addition to this one, we will be primary when:

Your Own Expenses

- The claim is for your own health care expenses, unless you are covered by Medicare and both you and your spouse are retired.

Your Spouse's Expenses

- The claim is for your spouse, who is covered by Medicare, and you are not both retired.

Your Child's Expenses

- The claim is for the health care expenses of your child who is covered by this plan and

- You are married and your birthday is earlier in the year than your spouse's or you are living with another individual, regardless of whether or not you have ever been married to that individual, and your birthday is earlier than that other individual's birthday. This is known as the "birthday rule"; or

- You are separated or divorced and you have informed us of a court decree that makes you responsible for the child's health care expenses;

or

- There is no court decree, but you have custody of the child.

Other Situations

We will be primary when any other provisions of state or federal law require us to be.

How We Pay Claims When We Are Primary

When we are the primary plan, we will pay the benefits in accordance with the terms of your contract, just as if you had no other health care coverage under any other plan.

How We Pay Claims When We Are Secondary

We will be secondary whenever the rules do not require us to be primary.

How We Pay Claims When We Are Secondary

When we are the secondary plan, we do not pay until after the primary plan has paid its benefits. We will then pay part or all of the allowable expenses left unpaid, as explained below. An "allowable expense" is a health care expense covered by one of the plans, including copayments, coinsurance and deductibles.

- If there is a difference between the amount the plans allow, we will base our payment on the higher amount. However, if the primary plan has a contract with the provider, our combined payments will not be more than the amount called for in our contract or the amount called for in the contract of the primary plan, whichever is higher. Health maintenance organizations (HMOs) and preferred provider organizations (PPOs) usually have contracts with their providers.

- We will determine our payment by subtracting the amount the primary plan paid from the amount we would have paid if we had been primary. We may reduce our payment by any amount so that, when combined with the amount paid by the primary plan, the total benefits paid do not exceed the total allowable expense for your claim. We will credit any amount we would have paid in the absence of your other health care coverage toward our own plan deductible.

- If the primary plan covers similar kinds of health care expenses, but allows expenses that we do not cover, we may pay for those expenses.

- We will not pay an amount the primary plan did not cover because you did not follow its rules and procedures. For example, if your plan has reduced its benefit because you did not obtain pre-certification, as required by that plan, we will not pay the amount of the reduction, because it is not an allowable expense.

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. To perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

Who do I speak to if I have questions?

If you have questions or believe information related to a state should be updated, please contact Jennifer Neuerburg at jneuerburg@naic.org.

Disclaimer: *This chart does not constitute a formal legal opinion by the NAIC staff on the provisions of state law and should not be relied upon as such. Nor does this state page reflect a determination as to whether a state meets any applicable accreditation standards. Every effort has been made to provide correct and accurate summaries to assist readers in locating useful information. PROJECT HISTORY - 2013

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

The revisions to the Coordination of Benefits Model Regulation (#120) were made to address issues related to medical benefits (med pay) coverage in automobile "no fault" and traditional automobile "fault" type contracts and, as provided in Section 2714 of the federal Public Health Services Act (PHSA), as amended by the federal Affordable Care Act (ACA), the extension of dependent coverage to age 26. The revisions also make it clear that dental coverage is considered a "plan" under the model for purposes of ensuring that a coordination of benefits provision can be included in such coverage and therefore, subject to coordination, which is particularly important given that pediatric dental is an essential benefit under the ACA and might be subject to new cost-sharing limitations. Adoption of these changes will help ensure that a state's coordination of benefits requirements is consistent with the ACA.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Regulatory Framework (B) Task Force was responsible for drafting the revisions. The members of the Task Force are: South Dakota, Chair; Idaho, Vice Chair; Arizona; California; Colorado; Connecticut; District of Columbia; Florida; Illinois; Indiana; Kansas; Kentucky; Maine; Massachusetts; Minnesota; Montana; Nebraska; New Jersey; Ohio; Oklahoma; Oregon; Pennsylvania; Tennessee; Utah; Virginia; Washington; West Virginia; and Wisconsin.

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The Regulatory Framework (B) Task Force was given a charge in 2012 to: review and revise, as necessary, the Coordination of Benefits Model Regulation (#120) to address issues related to medical benefits coverage in automobile "no fault" and traditional automobile "fault" type contracts and, as provided in section 2714 of the Public Health Service Act (PHSA), the extension of dependent coverage to age 26. Important

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc.). Include any parties outside the members that participated.

The revisions were drafted by the Regulatory Framework (B) Task Force, which developed three drafts of proposed revisions to Model #120 prior to its adoption. The Task Force discussed the drafts and the comments received on the drafts at the 2012 Spring National Meeting, 2012 Summer National Meeting, 2012 Fall National Meeting and 2013 Spring National Meeting. All drafts and comments were posted on the Task Force's Web page. Numerous interested parties participated in the drafting process, including consumer representatives and industry representatives.

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited).

The Regulatory Framework (B) Task Force discussed the drafts and comments received on them during person-to-person meetings at the 2012 Spring National Meeting, 2012 Summer National Meeting, 2012 Fall National Meeting and 2013 Spring National Meeting. All drafts and comments were posted on the Task Force's Web page.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response).

7. Any Other Important Information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard).

PROJECT HISTORY - 2004

COORDINATION OF BENEFITS MODEL REGULATION (#120)

1. Description of the project, issues addressed, etc.

The amendments to the NAIC Group Coordination of Benefits Model Regulation revise the model to reflect changes in the health care delivery system since the model was last revised in 1995. The revisions also make the model easier to implement and understand by eliminating unused provisions and rewording esoteric language.

2. Name of group responsible for draft the model:

Regulatory Framework (B) Task Force

States Participating:

Wisconsin, Chair

Arkansas	Nebraska
California	Nevada
Colorado	New Hampshire
Delaware	New Mexico
Florida	North Carolina
Idaho	Rhode Island
Kansas	Vermont
Louisiana	Virginia
Maine	West Virginia

3. Project authorized by what charge and date first given to the group:

The following charge given in January 2002: Review and revise the Group Coordination of Benefits Model Regulation to reflect the changes in health care delivery systems since the model was adopted.

4. A general description of the drafting process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated.

The revisions, and comments received on them, were reviewed and discussed by the task force and former members of the Coordination of Benefits Working Group.

5. A general description of the due process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited.

Each draft of proposed revisions to the COB model was circulated by email to interested parties and posted on the NAIC website. Interested parties were given the opportunity to submit comments on each draft. The task force and former members of the Coordination of Benefits Working Group reviewed and considered all comments received.

6. A discussion of the significant issues (items of some controversy) raised during the process and the group's response.

There were two controversial issues: (1) whether to revise the model to permit individual-to-group plan coordination; and (2) whether to delete the benefit reserve provision. On the first issue, after extensive discussion of the pros and cons of permitting such coordination, the task force decided to revise the model regulation to permit individual-to-group plan coordination. Those in favor of permitting such coordination based their reasoning on the idea that an individual should not be able to profit from filing claims under both the individual and group policy. This can happen when individual-to-group plan coordination is not permitted. Those opposed to this revision stated that because consumers paid the premium on both policies, they should be able to reap the benefit even if it permitted double-dipping.

With respect to the second issue, those in favor of eliminating the benefit reserve provision argued that only a handful of states have the provision in their COB laws. One reason for this is that the benefit reserve is too difficult and too costly to administer. In those states that require the benefit reserve, few health carriers have been able to consistently apply it correctly. Those arguing in favor of retaining the provision reminded everyone that the reason for requiring the benefit reserve. Requiring the benefit reserve helped to ensure that the covered person is covered 100% for all allowable expenses, including deductibles and copayments. After considering these arguments, the task force voted to delete the provision. Given the cost of administering the provision and the possible benefit to the consumer, the task force decided that the administrative cost of administering the benefit reserve outweighed any possible benefit.

SMALL GROUP MARKET HEALTH INSURANCE COVERAGE MODEL REGULATION

Section 1. Statement of Purpose

This regulation is intended to implement the provisions of the Small Group Market Health Insurance Coverage Model Act ("Act"). The purposes of the Act and this regulation are to set out the requirements for guaranteed availability, guaranteed renewability and premium rating in the small group market and provide for the establishment of coverage and other benefit requirements in the small group market.

Section 2. Definitions

As used in this regulation:

A. "Actuarial Value" or "AV" means the percentage paid by a health benefit plan of the total allowed costs of benefits.

B. "Annual open enrollment period" means the period each year during which a small employer, eligible employee or covered person may enroll or change coverage in a health benefit plan.

C. "CMS" means the federal Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services.

D. (1) "Cost-sharing" means any expenditure required by or on behalf of a covered person with respect to essential health benefits.

(2) "Cost-sharing" includes deductibles, coinsurance, copayments or similar charges, but excludes premiums, balance billing amounts for non-network providers and spending for non-covered services.

E. "EHB-benchmark plan" means the standardized set of essential health benefits (EHB) that a health carrier must provide as required by the commissioner or Secretary.

F. "Enrollment date" means the first day of coverage or, if there is a waiting period, the first day of the waiting period.

G. "HHS" means the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

H. (1) "Health factor" means, in relation to any individual, any of the following health status-related factors:

(a) Health status;

(b) Medical condition, including both physical and mental illnesses;

(c) Claims experience;

(d) Receipt of health care services;

(e) Medical history;

(f) Genetic information;

(g) Evidence of insurability, including:

(i) Conditions arising out of acts of domestic violence; or

(ii) Participation in activities, such as motorcycling, snowmobiling, all-terrain vehicle riding, horseback riding, skiing, and other similar activities; or

(h) Disability.

(2) For purposes of this subsection, "health factor" does not include the decision whether to elect small group market health insurance coverage, including the time chosen to enroll, such as under special enrollment or later enrollment.

I. "Late enrollee" means an individual whose enrollment in a health benefit plan is a late enrollment.

J. "Late enrollment" means enrollment of an individual in a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage other than the earliest date on which coverage can be effective for the individual under the terms of the plan other than through a special enrollment period.

K. "Minimum essential coverage" has the meaning stated in Section 5000A(f) of the Internal Revenue Code (Code).

L. "Percentage of the total allowed costs of benefits" means the anticipated covered medical spending for EHB coverage, as defined in Section 3L of the Act, paid by a health benefit plan for a standard population, computed in accordance with the plan's cost-sharing, divided by the total anticipated allowed charges for EHB coverage provided to a standard population, and expressed as a percentage.

M. "Plan" means, with respect to a health carrier and a product, the pairing of health insurance coverage benefits under the product with a metal tier level, as described in Section 1302(d) and (e) of the Federal Act, and service area. The product comprises all plans offered within the product, and the combination of all plans offered within a product constitutes the total service area of the product.

N. "Plan year" means the year that is designated as the plan year in the plan document of a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage, except that if the plan document does not designate a plan year or if there is no plan document, the plan year is:

(1) The deductible or limit year used under the plan;

(2) If the plan does not impose deductibles or limits on a yearly basis, then the plan year is the policy year;

(3) If the plan does not impose deductibles or limits on a yearly basis, and the policy is not renewed on a yearly basis, the plan year is the employer's taxable year; or

(4) In any other case, the plan year is the calendar year.

O. "Product" means a discrete package of health insurance coverage benefits that a health carrier offers using a particular product network type (e.g. HMO, PPO, EPO, POS or indemnity) within a geographic service area.

P. "Special enrollment period" means a period during which an eligible employee or covered person who experiences certain qualified events may enroll in or change enrollment in a health benefit plan outside of the annual open enrollment periods.

Q. "Wellness program" means a program of health promotion or disease prevention.

Section 3. Applicability and Scope

Subject to the provisions in Section 4 of the Act and specific provisions in this regulation, this regulation is applicable to health carriers offering health benefit plans providing small group market health insurance coverage in this State.

Section 4. Restrictions Relating to Premium Rates

A. The premium rate charged by a health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage, in accordance with Section 5 of this regulation, may vary only, with respect to the particular coverage involved, on the basis of the following:

(1) Whether the plan covers an individual or family:

(a) For family coverage, the total premium for family coverage must be determined by summing the premiums for each individual family member, except that if there are more than three (3) covered children under the age of twenty-one (21), the total family premium shall include only the premiums for all covered family members over the age of twenty-one (21) and the three (3) oldest covered children under the age of twenty-one (21);

(b) For family coverage, any rating premium variation on the basis of age or tobacco use must be applied separately to the portion of the premium attributable to each covered family member;

Drafting Note: As specified in 45 CFR §147.102(c)(2), a state has the option to establish uniform family tiers and uniform rating multipliers for those tiers in lieu of the family rating methodology specified in Subparagraphs (a) and (b) of this paragraph, but only if the state does not permit any rating variation for age and tobacco use as described in Paragraphs (3) and (4). If the state does not establish uniform family tiers and the corresponding multipliers, the per-member-rating methodology in this section under Subparagraphs (a) and (b) of this paragraph will apply in that state.

(c) The total premium charged to the small group is determined by summing the premiums of covered persons in accordance with Subparagraphs (a) and (b) of this paragraph, or for a state that does not permit any rating variation for the factors described in Paragraphs (3) and (4), the methodology established by the state for calculating total premium; and Drafting Note: States should be aware that the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act; HHS Notice of Benefit and Payment Parameters for 2015; Final Rule (79 FR 13743) published in the Federal Register March 11, 2014, provides in 45 CFR §147.102(c)(3) that a state may require a health carrier to offer, or a health carrier may voluntarily offer, to a small employer group premiums that are based on the average covered amounts provided the total small employer group premium is the same total amount derived in accordance with Subparagraphs (a) and (b) of this paragraph or determined using the methodology to calculate premium established by a state that does not permit any rating variation for the factors described in Paragraphs (3) and (4). If a state requires a health carrier to offer, or a health carrier decides to voluntarily offer, small employer group premiums that are based on the average covered person amounts or a health carrier voluntarily offers such premiums, then effective for plan years beginning on or after Jan. 1, 2015, the health carrier must comply with the additional requirements found in 45 CFR §147.102(c)(3)(iii).

(2) (a) (i) Geographic rating area, as established by HHS in accordance with 45 CFR §147.102(b), unless the commissioner establishes alternative geographic rating areas pursuant to Item (ii) of this subparagraph; and

(ii) The commissioner may adopt regulations establishing uniform geographic rating area subject to the provisions of 45 CFR §147.102(b); and Drafting Note: States choosing to limit the permissible variation based on geographic rating areas, or to establish uniform geographic area multipliers, should consider incorporating those provisions in an additional provision under this paragraph, such as Item (iii).

Drafting Note: States should be aware that 45 CFR §147.102(b) of the final rule published in the Federal Register Feb. 27, 2013, permits a state to establish one or more geographic rating areas within that state. If a state does not establish geographic rating areas, or the federal Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) determines that the state's geographic rating areas are not adequate, the default will be one geographic rating area for each metropolitan statistical area in the state and one geographic rating comprising all non-metropolitan statistical areas in the state, as defined by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB).

(b) For purposes of this paragraph, geographic rating area is to be determined in the small group market using the small employer's principal business address;

(3) Age:

(a) The rate may not vary based on age by more than 3:1 for like individuals of different age who are twenty-one (21) and older, and the variation in rate must be actuarially justified for individuals under age twenty-one (21);

(b) The rate for each covered person must be based on the covered person's age as of the date of plan issuance, renewal or addition to the plan;

(c) Variations in rates based on age must be consistent with the uniform age rating curve established by HHS under 45 CFR §147.102(e), unless the commissioner establishes an alternative age rating curve pursuant to Subparagraph (d) of this paragraph; and

(d) The commissioner may adopt regulations establishing a uniform age rating curve, subject to the restrictions imposed by 45 CFR §147.102(e). Any uniform age rating curve must be based on the following uniform age bands:

(i) A single age band for individuals age 0 through 20;

(ii) One-year age bands for individuals age 21 through 63; and

(iii) A single age band for individuals age 64 and older; and Drafting Note: States should be aware that 45 CFR §147.102(e) of the final rule published in the Federal Register Feb. 27, 2013, permits a state to establish a uniform age rating curve in the individual or small group market, or both markets. If a state does not establish a uniform age rating curve or provide information on such age curve in accordance with 45 CFR §147.103, a default uniform age rating curve specified in guidance by the Secretary will apply in that state which takes into account the rating variation permitted for age under state law.

(4) Subject to Section 2705 of the Public Health Service Act (PHSA) and its implementing regulations (related to prohibiting discrimination based on health status and programs of health promotion or disease prevention), tobacco use:

(a) The rate may not vary by more than 1.5:1 on the basis of tobacco use;

(b) A rating surcharge for tobacco use may only be applied to individuals who may legally use tobacco under federal and state law;

(c) A rating charge for "tobacco use" may only be applied to individuals who have used tobacco on average four (4) or more times per week within the most recent six-month period; and

(d) The health carrier may consider the use of any tobacco product for rating purposes, but may not consider religious or ceremonial use of tobacco. Further, the health carrier must consider "tobacco use" in terms of when a tobacco product was last used.

Drafting Note: The reference to Section 2705 of the PHSA in the introductory language for this paragraph is meant to reflect the requirement that a health carrier can only impose a rating surcharge for tobacco use if the carrier has a wellness program that offers a tobacco cessation program in which covered persons may participate.

Drafting Note: States may prohibit tobacco use as a rating factor or may impose stronger restrictions on tobacco use rating than the restrictions in this regulation as provided in Paragraph (4) above.

B. A premium rate may not vary with respect to a particular coverage by any other factor not described in Subsection A.

C. This section does not apply to grandfathered health plan coverage in accordance with 45 CFR §147.140.

Section 5. Single Risk Pool

A. A health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage subject to the Act must consider the claims experience of all covered persons in all health benefit plans (other than grandfathered health plan coverage) subject to Section 5 of the Act and offered by the carrier in the small group market in a state, including covered persons who do not enroll in such plans through the exchange, to be members of a single risk pool.

Drafting Note: As specified in 45 CFR §156.80, a state may require the individual and small group health insurance markets within the state to be merged into a single risk pool if the state determines appropriate. A state that requires such merger must submit to CMS information on its election in accordance with the procedures described in 45 CFR §147.103.

B. (1) (a) A health carrier must establish an index rate that is effective January 1 of each calendar year for the small group market, described in Subsection A or, if applicable, a merged market, if the state has required such merger, based on the total combined claims cost for providing essential health benefits within the single risk pool of that state market.

(b) The index rate must be adjusted on a market-wide basis for the state based on the total expected market-wide payments and charges under the risk adjustment and reinsurance programs and exchange user fees (expected to be remitted under 45 CFR §156.50(b) or §156.50(c) and (d), as applicable, plus the dollar amount under 45 §156.50(d)(3)(i) and (ii) expected to be credited against user fees payable in that state market).

(c) The premium rate for all of the health carrier's plans in the relevant state market must use the applicable market-wide adjusted index rate, subject only to plan-level adjustments permitted in Paragraph (2).

(2) For plan years beginning on or after January 1, 2014, a health carrier may vary premium rates for a particular health benefit plan from its market-wide index rate for a relevant state market based only on the following actuarially justified plan-specific factors:

(a) The actuarial value and cost-sharing design of the plan;

(b) The plan's provider network, delivery system characteristics and utilization management practices;

(c) The benefits provided under the plan that are in addition to the essential health benefits. These additional benefits must be pooled with similar benefits within the single risk pool and the claims experience from those benefits must be utilized to determine rate variations for plans that offer those benefits in addition to essential health benefits; and

(d) Administrative costs, excluding exchange user fees.

(3) (a) A health carrier may not establish an index rate and make the market-wide adjustments pursuant to Paragraph (1), or make the plan-level adjustments pursuant to Paragraph (2), more or less frequently than annually, except as provided in Subparagraph (b) of this paragraph.

(b) Beginning the quarter after HHS issues notification that the federally-facilitated Small Business Health Options Program (SHOP), as that term is defined in 45 CFR §155.20, can process quarterly rate updates, a health carrier in the small group market (not including a merged market) may establish index rates and make the market-wide adjustments pursuant to Paragraph (1), and make the plan-level adjustments pursuant to Paragraph (2), no more frequently than quarterly, provided that any changes to rates must have effective dates of January 1, April 1, July 1 or October 1.

C. This section does not apply to grandfathered health plan coverage in accordance with 45 CFR §147.140.

Section 6. Guaranteed Availability of Small Group Market Health Insurance Coverage; Enrollment Periods

A. Subject to Subsections B through D and Section 6 of the Act, a health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage must offer to any small employer in the state all products that are approved for sale in the small group market and must accept any small employer that applies for coverage under any of those products.

Drafting Note: States should be aware that additional exceptions (i.e. exceptions for network plans, limited financial capacity, etc.) to guaranteed availability of coverage can be found in Section 6 of the Small Group Market Health Insurance Coverage Model Act (#106). Those provisions were not included in this section in order to avoid unnecessary duplication. However, states may choose to include those provisions in this section if they want to do so.

B. A health carrier may restrict enrollment in health insurance coverage to open or special enrollment periods.

C. (1) Subject to Paragraph (2), a health carrier must allow a small employer to purchase health insurance coverage at any point during the year.

(2) A health carrier may limit the availability of coverage to an annual enrollment period that begins November 15 and extends through December 15 of each year in the case of a plan sponsor that is unable to comply with a material plan provision relating to employer contribution or group participation rules as provided in Section 6D of the Act and Section 7B(3) of this regulation, and pursuant to applicable state law.

D. (1) A health carrier must establish special enrollment periods for qualifying events consistent with the requirements of Section 9 of the Act and as defined under section 603 of ERISA. These special enrollment periods are in addition to any other special enrollment periods required under state or federal law.

(2) In addition to the provisions of Paragraph (1), a health carrier must permit an individual within a group, who is otherwise eligible to enroll, to enroll in a health benefit plan when:

(a) The individual is enrolled in a health benefit plan that is a network plan that does not provide benefits to individuals who no longer reside, live or work in the service area and the individual loses coverage under the plan because the individual no longer resides, lives or works in the service area; and

(b) The individual is enrolled in a health benefit plan that no longer offers any benefits to the class of similarly situated individuals, as described in Section 10C of this regulation that includes the individual.

Drafting Note: States should be aware that federal preemption standards allow states to impose stronger consumer protections in state law such as, for example, additional special enrollment periods or open enrollment periods that allow individuals to purchase coverage more frequently than the federal minimum requirements.

E. (1) A health carrier must provide covered persons thirty (30) days after the date of the qualifying event described in Subsection D to elect coverage.

(2) (a) The health carrier must offer to special enrollees all of the benefit packages available to similarly situated individuals who enroll when first eligible for coverage and may not require a special enrollee to pay more for coverage than a similarly situated individual who enrolls in the same coverage when first eligible for coverage.

(b) Any difference in benefits or cost-sharing requirements for different individuals is a different benefit package.

(3) The coverage must become effective consistent with the following based on when the health carrier receives the election:

(a) Between the first and fifteenth day of any month, the health carrier must ensure a coverage effective date of the first day of the following month; and

(b) Between the sixteenth and the last day of any month, the health carrier must ensure a coverage effective date of the first day of the second following month.

F. This section applies to grandfathered health plan coverage in accordance with 45 CFR §147.140 to the extent the grandfathered health plan coverage was required to comply with the guaranteed availability provisions under section 2711 of the PHSA in effect pursuant to Pub. L. No. 104-191 (HIPAA) prior to the effective date of the Federal Act.

Section 7. Guaranteed Renewability of Small Group Market Health Insurance Coverage

A. As provided in Section 7 of the Act and this section, subject to Subsection B, a health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small employer market health insurance coverage subject to the Act must renew or continue in force the coverage at the option of the small employer.

Drafting Note: States should be aware that additional exceptions (i.e. exceptions for product discontinuation, market exit, loss of association membership, etc.) to guaranteed renewability of coverage can be found in Section 7 of the Small Group Market Health Insurance Coverage Model Act (#106). Those provisions were not included in this section in order to avoid unnecessary duplication. However, states may choose to include those provisions in this section if they want to do so.

B. A health carrier may nonrenew or discontinue health insurance coverage based only on one or more of the following:

(1) The plan sponsor has failed to pay premiums in accordance with the terms of the health insurance coverage, including any timeliness requirements;

(2) The plan sponsor has performed an act or practice that constitutes fraud or made an intentional misrepresentation of material fact in connection with the coverage;

(3) The plan sponsor has failed to comply with a material provision related to employer contribution or group participation requirements, pursuant to applicable state law. For purposes of this paragraph the following apply:

(a) The term "employer contribution requirement" means a requirement relating to the minimum level or amount of employer contribution toward the premium for enrollment of employees and employee dependents; and

(b) The term "group participation requirement" means a requirement relating to the minimum number of employees or employee dependents that must be enrolled in relation to a specified percentage or number of eligible employees of a small employer;

(4) The carrier is ceasing to offer coverage in the market in accordance with section 7D (discontinuing a particular product) or section 7E (discontinuing all coverage) of the Act and applicable state law; or

(5) For network plans, there is no longer any employee who lives, resides or works in the service area of the carrier (or the area for which the carrier is authorized to do business) using the same criteria under which the carrier would deny enrollment in the plan under Section 6E of the Act.

C. (1) At the time of coverage renewal only, a health carrier may modify the health insurance coverage for a product offered in the small group market if, for coverage available in this market (other than only through one or more bona fide associations), the modification is consistent with federal or state law and is effective uniformly among small group market health insurance plans with that product.

(2) For purposes of Paragraph (1), a modification made uniformly and solely pursuant to applicable federal or state requirements is considered a uniform modification of coverage if:

(a) The modification is made within a reasonable time period after the imposition or modification of the federal or state requirement; and

(b) The modification is directly related to the imposition or modification of the federal or state requirement.

(3) Other types of modifications made uniformly are considered a uniform modification of coverage if the small group market health insurance coverage for the product meets all of the following criteria:

(a) The product is offered by the same health carrier, as that term is defined in section 3B of the Act;

(b) The product is offered as the same product network type;

(c) The product continues to cover at least a majority of the same service area;

(d) Within the product, each plan has the same cost-sharing structure as before the modification, except for any variation in cost-sharing solely related to changes in cost and utilization of health care services, or to maintain the same metal tier level described in section 1302(d) and (e) of the Federal Act; and

(e) The product provides the same covered benefits, except any changes in benefits that cumulatively impact the plan-adjusted index rate, as described in Section 5B of this regulation, for any plan within the product within an allowable variation of +/- two (2) percentage points, not including changes pursuant to applicable federal or state requirements.

Drafting Note: States should be aware that 45 CFR §147.106(e)(4) permits a state to broaden the standards described in Paragraph (3)(c) and (d) above.

D. If a health carrier is renewing small group market health insurance coverage as described in Subsection A, or uniformly modifying coverage as described in Subsection C, the health carrier must provide to each plan sponsor written notice of the renewal at least sixty (60) calendar days before the date of the coverage will be renewed in a form and manner specified by the Secretary.

E. In the case of group health insurance coverage that is made available by a health carrier in the small group market to small employers only through one or more associations, the reference to "plan sponsor" is deemed, with respect to coverage provided to a small employer member of the association, to include a reference to the small employer.

F. Nothing in this section should be construed to require a health carrier to renew or continue in force small group market health insurance coverage for which continued eligibility would otherwise be prohibited under applicable federal law.

G. This section applies to grandfathered health plan coverage in accordance with 45 CFR §147.140 to the extent the grandfathered health plan coverage was required to comply with the guaranteed renewability provisions under section 2712 of the PHSA in effect pursuant to Pub. L. No. 104-191 (HIPAA) prior to the effective date of the Federal Act.

Section 8. Prohibition on Waiting Periods Exceeding Ninety (90) Days

A. (1) A health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage may not apply any waiting period longer than ninety (90) days.

(2) (a) A health carrier may not consider the period before an individual's late or special enrollment date a waiting period.

(b) (i) If an individual loses eligibility for coverage under the health benefit plan and subsequently becomes eligible for coverage, a health carrier may only consider the individual's most recent period of eligibility in determining whether the individual is a late enrollee under the plan with respect to the most recent period of coverage.

(ii) Similarly, a health carrier must apply the provisions of Item (i) to an individual who becomes eligible for coverage under the health benefit plan after a suspension of coverage that applied generally under the plan.

B. (1) (a) Except as provided in Paragraphs (2) and (3), an individual is otherwise eligible to enroll under the terms of a health benefit plan if the individual has met the plan's substantive eligibility conditions, such as being in an eligible job classification, achieving job-related licensure requirements specified in the plan's terms or satisfying a reasonable bona fide employment-based orientation period.

(b) A plan sponsor is not required to offer small group market health insurance coverage to any particular individual or class of individuals despite the individual being otherwise eligible to enroll under the plan, but individuals otherwise eligible for coverage under the plan may not be required to wait more than ninety (90) days before coverage is effective.

(2) Conditions of eligibility to enroll for coverage under the terms of a health benefit plan may be based solely on the lapse of a time period, but only for a time period of no more than ninety (90) days.

(3) (a) Other conditions of eligibility to enroll for coverage under the terms of a health benefit plan are permitted unless the condition is designed to avoid compliance with this section as determined in accordance with the following provisions:

(i) Subject to Subparagraph (b) of this paragraph, if eligibility is based on an employee having a specified number of hours of service per pay period, or working full-time, and it cannot be determined that a newly-hired employee is reasonably expected to regularly work that number of hours per period, or work full-time, the terms of the health benefit plan may allow a reasonable period of time, not to exceed twelve (12) months and beginning on any date between the employee's employment start date and the first day of the first calendar month following the employee's start date, to determine whether the employee meets the plan's eligibility condition; or

(ii) If eligibility is based on an employee's having completed a number of cumulative hours of service, the eligibility condition is not considered to be designed to avoid compliance with the 90-day waiting period limitation if the cumulative hours-of-service requirement does not exceed 1,200 hours.

(b) Except for cases in which the health benefit plan imposes a waiting period exceeding a 90-day period in addition to a measurement period, as described in Subparagraph (a)(i) of this paragraph, the time period for determining whether the employee meets the plan's eligibility requirements will not be considered to be designed to avoid compliance with the 90-day waiting period limitation if coverage is made effective no more than thirteen (13) months after the employee's employment start date plus the time remaining until the first day of the next calendar month if the employee's employment start date is not the first day of a calendar month.

(c) (i) To ensure that an orientation period is not used as a subterfuge for the passage of time, or designed to avoid compliance with the 90-day waiting period limitation, an orientation period is permitted only if it does not exceed one month.

(ii) For purposes of Item (i), one month is determined by adding one calendar month and subtracting one calendar day, measured from an employee's start date in a position otherwise eligible for small group market health insurance coverage under the health benefit plan.

C. The health carrier may treat an employee whose employment has terminated and then rehired as newly eligible to enroll for coverage upon rehire and, therefore, required to meet the health benefit plan's eligibility requirements and waiting period anew, if reasonable under the circumstances and the termination and rehiring is not used or designed as a subterfuge to avoid compliance with the 90-day waiting period limitation.

D. (1) Under this section, all calendar days are counted beginning on the enrollment date, including weekends and holidays.

(2) For administrative convenience, a health carrier that imposes a 90-day waiting period may choose to permit coverage to become effective earlier than the 91st day if the 91st day is a weekend or holiday.

E. A health carrier satisfies the requirements of this section if, under the terms of the health benefit plan, an individual employee can elect coverage that begins on a date before the end of a 90-day waiting period and may not be considered in violation of this section if an individual employee takes, or is permitted to take, additional time beyond any 90-day waiting period to elect coverage.

F. A health carrier that relies on the eligibility information reported to it by the small employer will not be considered to violate the requirements of this section with respect to the carrier's administration of any waiting period if the following is satisfied:

(1) The carrier requires the small employer to make a representation and update this representation with any changes regarding the terms of any eligibility conditions or waiting periods imposed before an individual is eligible for coverage under the health benefit plan; and

(2) The carrier has no specific knowledge of a waiting period imposed that exceeds the permitted 90-day period.

Section 9. Prohibition of Preexisting Condition Exclusions

A health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage subject to the Act may not impose any preexisting condition exclusions as provided in Section 9A of the Act.

Section 10. Prohibition on Discrimination Based on Health Factors

Drafting Note: The Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services (HHS) and the Treasury (collectively, the Departments) published joint final regulations implementing the HIPAA nondiscrimination and wellness provisions Dec. 13, 2006, at 71 FR 75014 (the 2006 regulations). These regulations implemented the provisions of Section 2702 of the Public Health Service Act (PHSA), as enacted by HIPAA, which generally prohibited group health plans and group health insurance issuers from discriminating against individual employees and their dependents in eligibility, benefits or premiums based on a health factor. These regulations, however, permitted group health plans and group health insurance issuers to establish certain rules which, under the ACA, are no longer permitted. One example of such rules is a provision in the 2006 regulations permitting group health plans and group health insurance issuers to impose preexisting condition exclusions (with some limitations) for the group market. Because such provisions from the 2006 regulations are no longer permitted due to the ACA, they have not been included in this section. However, states should be aware that they may want to somehow retain these provisions for purposes of continued enforcement related to grandfathered health plan coverage and some group health benefit plan coverage with plans years that extend into 2014 (and possibly additional years, as permitted). States also should be beware that the ACA retained provisions from Section 2702 of the PHSA, now Section 2705 of the PHSA, as enacted by Section 1201 the ACA. For the group market only, this section provides for a general exception to the prohibition on discrimination based on a health factor to allow premium discounts or rebates and modification to otherwise applicable cost sharing, including copayments, deductibles or coinsurance, in return for adherence to certain programs of health promotion and disease prevention. States also should be aware that Section 2705 of the PHSA also extends the HIPAA nondiscrimination protections to the individual market. However, Section 2705 of the PHSA does not extend the wellness program exception to the prohibition on discrimination to coverage in the individual market.

A. (1) A health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage subject to the Act may not establish a rule for eligibility, including continued eligibility, of an employee to enroll for benefits under the plan that discriminates based on any health factor that relates to the employee or dependent of the employee.

(2) For purposes of this section, a rule of eligibility includes a rule relating to:

(a) Enrollment;

(b) The effective date of coverage;

(c) Waiting or affiliation periods;

(d) Late and special enrollment;

(e) Eligibility for benefit packages, including rules for individuals to change their selection among benefit packages;

(f) Benefits, including a rule relating to covered benefits, benefit restrictions, and cost-sharing mechanisms, such as coinsurance, copayments and deductibles, as described in Subsection C(1) and (2);

(g) Continued eligibility; and

(h) Terminating coverage, including disenrollment, of an individual under the plan.

(3) Nothing in this section prohibits a health carrier from establishing more favorable rules of eligibility for individuals with an adverse health factor, such as a disability, than for individuals without the adverse health factor.

B. (1) (a) A health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage subject to the Act may not require an employee, as a condition of enrollment or continued enrollment under the plan, to pay a premium or contribution rate that is greater than the premium or contribution rate for a similarly situated individual enrolled in the plan based on any health factor that relates to the employee or a dependent of the employee.

(b) In determining an individual employee's premium or contribution rate, discounts, rebates, payments-in-kind and any other premium differential mechanisms shall be taken into account.

(2) (a) Subject to Subparagraph (b) of this paragraph, nothing in this subsection restricts the aggregate amount that a health carrier may charge a small employer for coverage under a plan.

(b) A health carrier may not quote or charge a small employer or an individual employee or dependent of an employee a different premium than that quoted or charged an individual employee in a group of similarly situated individuals based on a health factor unless permitted under Paragraph (3) or under Section 4 of this regulation.

(3) Notwithstanding Paragraphs (1) and (2), a health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage subject to the Act may establish a premium or contribution differential based on whether an individual has complied with the requirements of a wellness program that satisfies the requirements of Subsection E.

C. (1) (a) Subject to federal or state law or regulations and Subparagraph (b) of this paragraph, Subsection A does not require a health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage subject to the Act to provide coverage for any particular benefit to any group of similarly situated individuals.

(b) (i) A health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage subject to the Act shall make the benefits provided under a plan available uniformly to all similarly situated individuals, as those groups are determined under Paragraph (2).

(ii) For any restriction on a benefit or benefits provided under a plan, the health carrier:

(I) Shall apply the restriction uniformly to all similarly situated individuals; and

(II) May not direct the restriction, as determined based on all of the relevant facts and circumstances, at individual employees or dependents of employees based on any health factor of the individual employee or a dependent of the individual employee.

(iii) The health carrier may require a deductible, copayment, coinsurance or other cost-sharing requirement in order to obtain a benefit under the plan if the cost-sharing requirement:

(I) Applies uniformly to all similarly situated individuals;

(II) Is not directed at individual employees or dependents of individual employees based on any health factor of the individual employee or dependent of an individual employee; and

(III) Does not apply to preventive services specified in Section 2713 of the Public Health Service Act (PHSA).

(iv) For purposes of this paragraph, a plan amendment applicable to all individuals in one or more groups of similarly situated individuals under the plan and made effective no earlier than the first day of the first plan year after the amendment is adopted is not considered to be directed at any individual employee or dependent of an individual employee.

(c) If the health carrier generally provides benefits for a type of injury, the health carrier may not deny an individual employee or dependent of an employee benefits otherwise provided under the plan for treatment of the injury if the injury results from an act of domestic violence or a medical condition. This provision applies to an injury resulting from a medical condition even if the medical condition is not diagnosed before the injury

(d) A health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage subject to the Act with a cost-sharing mechanism, such as a deductible, copayment or coinsurance, that requires a higher payment from an individual employee, based on a health factor of that individual employee or dependent of the individual employee, than for a similarly situated individual under the plan, does not violate this subsection if the payment differential is based on whether the individual has complied with the requirements of a wellness program that satisfies the requirements of Subsection E.

(2) (a) This paragraph applies only within a group of individuals who are treated as similarly situated individuals.

(b) (i) Subject to Subparagraph (d) of this paragraph, Subsection A does not prohibit a health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage subject to the Act from treating dependents of employees as two (2) or more distinct groups of similarly situated individuals if the distinction made between or among groups of dependents is based on a bona fide employment-based classification that is consistent with the small employer's usual business practice.

(ii) Whether an employment-based classification is bona fide shall be determined based on all of the relevant facts and circumstances.

(iii) For purposes of Item (ii), relevant facts and circumstances include whether the small employer uses the classification for purposes independent of qualification for health insurance coverage, such classifications may include:

(I) Full-time versus part-time status;

(II) Geographic location;

(III) Membership in a collective bargaining unit;

(IV) Date of hire;

(V) Length of service;

(VI) Current employee versus former employee status; and

(VII) Occupation.

(iv) A classification based on a health factor may not be determined to be a bona fide employment-based classification for purposes of this subsection unless the requirements of Subsection A(3) and Subsection B(3) are satisfied.

(c) (i) Subject to Subparagraph (d) of this paragraph, Subsection A does not prohibit a health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage subject to the Act from treating dependents of individual employees as two (2) or more distinct groups of similarly situated individuals if the distinction made between or among the groups is based on any of the following factors:

(I) A bona fide employment-based classification of the individual employee through whom the dependent is receiving coverage;

(II) Relationship to the individual employee (e.g., as a spouse or as a dependent child);

(III) Marital status;

(IV) With respect to a dependent child of the individual employee, age or student status to the extent that such treatment does not conflict with the requirements of section 2714 of the PHSA; or

(V) Any other factor, if the factor is not a health factor.

(ii) Item (i) may not be construed to prevent the health carrier from providing more favorable treatment of individuals under the plan with adverse health factors in accordance with Subsection A(3) and Subsection B(3).

(d) Notwithstanding Subparagraphs (b) and (c) of this paragraph, unless permitted under Subsection A(3) or Subsection B(4), if the creation or modification of an employment or coverage classification is directed at individual employees or dependents of individual employees based on a health factor of an individual employee or a dependent of an individual employee, the classification is not permitted under this subsection.

D. (1) Except to the extent permitted under Paragraph (2)(b) or Paragraph (3), in accordance with Subsections A and B, a health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage subject to the Act may not establish a rule of eligibility or set an individual employee's premium or contribution rate based on:

(a) Whether the individual employee is confined in a hospital or other health care institution; or

(b) The individual employee's ability to engage in normal life activities.

(2) (a) In accordance with Subsections A and B, a health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage subject to the Act may not establish a rule for eligibility or set an individual's premium or contribution rate based on whether the individual is actively-at-work, including whether the individual is continuously employed, unless absence from work due to any health factor is treated, for purposes of the plan, as being actively-at-work.

(b) Notwithstanding Subparagraph (a) of this paragraph, the health carrier may establish a rule for eligibility that requires an individual to begin work for the small employer sponsoring the plan before coverage under the plan becomes effective if the rule for eligibility applies regardless of the reasons for the absence.

(3) Notwithstanding Paragraphs (1) and (2), a health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage subject to the Act may establish a rule of eligibility or set an individual's premium or contribution rate with respect to similarly situated individuals, as those groups are determined under Subsection C(2).

E. (1) For purposes of this subsection, the following terms have the meanings indicated:

(a) (i) "Activity-only wellness program" means a health-contingent wellness program that requires an individual to perform or complete an activity related to a health factor in order to obtain a reward, but does not require the individual to attain or maintain a specific health outcome.

(ii) Examples of an "activity-only wellness program" include walking, diet or exercise programs, which some individuals may be unable to participate or complete (or have difficulty participating or completing) due to a health factor, such as severe asthma, pregnancy or a recent surgery.

(b) (i) "Health-contingent wellness program" means a wellness program that requires an individual to:

(I) Satisfy a standard related to a health factor to obtain a reward; or

(II) Undertake more than a similarly situated individual based on a health factor in order to obtain the same reward.

(ii) "Health-contingent wellness program" includes a wellness program that is an activity-only wellness program or an outcome-based wellness program.

(c) (i) "Outcome-based wellness program" means a health-contingent wellness program that requires an individual to attain or maintain a specific health outcome, such as not smoking or attaining certain results on biometric screenings, in order to obtain a reward.

(ii) To comply with this subsection, an "outcome-based wellness program" typically has two tiers:

(I) For individuals who do not attain or maintain the specific health outcome, compliance with an educational program or an activity may be offered as an alternative to achieve the same reward. This alternative pathway, however, does not mean that the overall program, which has an outcome-based component, is not an outcome-based wellness program; and

(II) If a measurement, test or program screening is used as part of an initial standard and individuals who meet the standard are granted the reward, the program is considered an outcome-based wellness program. For example, if a wellness program tests individuals for specified conditions or risk factors, including biometric screening such as testing for high cholesterol, high blood pressure, abnormal body mass index or high glucose level, and provides a reward to individuals identified as within a normal or healthy range for these medical conditions or risk factors, while requiring individuals who are identified as outside the normal or healthy range or at risk to take additional steps, such as meeting with a health coach, taking a health or fitness course, adhering to a health improvement action plan, complying with a walking or exercise program or complying with a health care provider's plan of care, to obtain the same reward, the program is an outcome-based wellness program and is subject to the requirements of Paragraph (5) for health-contingent wellness programs that are outcome-based wellness programs.

(d) (i) "Participatory wellness program" means a wellness program that:

(I) Does not base any condition for obtaining an award on an individual satisfying a standard that is related to a health factor; or

(II) Does not provide a reward.

(ii) Examples of "participatory wellness program" include:

(I) A program that reimburses employees for all or part of the cost for membership in a fitness program;

(II) A diagnostic testing program that provides a reward for participation in that program and does not base any part of the reward on outcomes;

(III) A program that encourages preventive care through the waiver of the copayment or deductible requirement under a health benefit plan for the costs of, for example, prenatal care or well-baby visits;

(IV) A program that reimburses employees for the costs of participating, or that otherwise provides a reward for participating, in a smoking cessation program without regard to whether the employee quits smoking;

(V) A program that provides a reward to employees for attending a monthly, no-cost health education seminar; and

(VI) A program that provides a reward to employees who complete a health risk assessment regarding current health status, without any further action, educational or otherwise, required by the employee with regard to the health issues identified as part of the assessment.

(e) (i) Except where expressly provided otherwise, references in this section to an individual obtaining a "reward" include both obtaining a reward, such as a discount or rebate of a premium or contribution, a waiver of all or part of a cost-sharing mechanism, an additional benefit or any financial or other incentive and avoiding a penalty, such as the absence of a premium surcharge or other financial or nonfinancial disincentive.

(ii) Except where expressly provided otherwise, references in this section to a health benefit plan providing a "reward" include both providing a reward, such as a discount or rebate of a premium or contribution, a waiver of all or part of a cost-sharing mechanism, an additional benefit or any financial or other incentive and imposing a penalty, such as a premium surcharge or other financial or nonfinancial disincentive.

(2) Subsection B(3) and Subsection C(2)(c) provide exceptions to the general prohibition against discrimination based on a health factor for a health benefit plan that varies benefits, including cost-sharing mechanisms, or the premium or contribution for similarly situated individuals in connection with a wellness program that satisfies the requirements of this subsection.

(3) A participatory wellness program, as defined in Paragraph (1)(d), does not violate the provisions of this section only if participation in the program is made available to all similarly situated individuals, regardless of health status.

(4) A health-contingent wellness program that is an activity-only wellness program, as defined in Paragraph (1)(a), does not violate the provisions of this section only if all of the following requirements are satisfied:

(a) The program must give individuals eligible for the program the opportunity to qualify for the reward under the program at least once per year;

(b) (i) The reward for the activity-only wellness program, together with the reward for other health-contingent wellness programs with respect to the plan, must not exceed the applicable percentage provided in Paragraph (6) of the total cost of employee-only coverage under the plan. However, if, in addition to employees, any class of dependents, such as spouses or spouses and dependent children, may participate in the wellness program, the reward may not exceed the applicable percentage of the total cost of the coverage in which an employee and any dependents are enrolled.

(ii) For purposes if this subparagraph, the cost of coverage is determined based on the total amount of employer and employee contributions toward the cost of coverage for the benefit package under which the employee is, or the employee and any dependents are, receiving coverage;

(c) (i) The program must be reasonably designed to promote health or prevent disease.

(ii) A program satisfies Item (i) if, based on all of the relevant facts and circumstances:

(I) It has a reasonable chance of improving the health of, or preventing disease in, participating individuals; and

(II) It is not overly burdensome, is not a subterfuge for discriminating based on a health factor and is not highly suspect in the method chosen to promote health or prevent disease;

(d) (i) The full reward under the activity-only wellness program must be available to all similarly situated individuals.

(ii) Under this subparagraph, a reward under an activity-only wellness program is not available to all similarly situated individuals for a period unless the program meets both of the following requirements:

(I) The program allows a reasonable alternative standard, or waiver of the otherwise applicable standard, for obtaining the reward for any individual for whom, for that period, it is unreasonably difficult due to a medical condition to satisfy the otherwise applicable standard; and

(II) The program allows a reasonable alternative standard, or waiver of the otherwise applicable standard, for obtaining the reward for any individual for whom, for that period, is it medically inadvisable to attempt to satisfy the otherwise applicable standard.

(iii) While a carrier is not required to determine a particular reasonable alternative standard in advance of an individual's request for one, if an individual is described in either Item (ii)(I) or (II), a reasonable alternative standard must be furnished by the carrier upon the individual's request or the condition for obtaining the reward must be waived;

(iv) All of the facts and circumstances are taken into account in determining whether a carrier has furnished a reasonable alternative standard, including but not limited to the following:

(I) If the reasonable alternative standard is completion of an educational program, the carrier must make the educational program available or, instead of requiring the employee to find such a program unassisted, assist the employee in finding such a program, and may not require an individual to pay for the cost of the program;

(II) The time commitment required must be reasonable;

(III) If the reasonable alternative standard is a diet program, the carrier is not required to pay for the cost of food, but must pay any membership or participation fee; and

(IV) If an individual's personal physician states that a plan standard, including, if applicable, the recommendations of the plan's medical professional, is not medically appropriate for that individual, the carrier must provide a reasonable alternative standard that accommodates the recommendations of the individual's personal physician with regard to medical appropriateness. Carriers may impose standard cost-sharing under the plan or coverage for medical items and services furnished pursuant to the physician's recommendations;

(v) (I) To the extent that a reasonable alternative standard under an activity-only wellness program is, itself, an activity-only wellness program, it must comply with the requirements of this paragraph in the same manner as if it were an initial program standard.

(II) To the extent that a reasonable alternative standard under an activity-only wellness program is, itself, an outcome-based wellness program, it must comply with the requirements of Paragraph (5), including Paragraph (5)(d)(iv);

(vi) If reasonable under the circumstances, a carrier may seek verification, such as a statement from an individual's personal physician, that a health factor makes it unreasonably difficult for the individual to satisfy, or medically inadvisable for the individual to attempt to satisfy, the otherwise applicable standard of an activity-only wellness program. Carriers may seek verification with respect to requests for a reasonable alternative standard for which it is reasonable to determine that medical judgment is required to evaluate the validity of the request; and

(e) The carrier must disclose in all plan materials describing the terms of an activity-only wellness program the availability of a reasonable alternative standard to qualify for the reward and, if applicable, the possibility of waiver of the otherwise applicable standard, including contact information for obtaining a reasonable alternative standard and a statement that recommendations of an individual's personal physician will be accommodated. If plan materials merely mention that such a program is available, without describing its terms, this disclosure is not required. Sample language is provided in Paragraph (7) of this subsection.

(5) A health-contingent wellness program that is an outcome-based wellness program, as defined in Paragraph (1)(c), does not violate the provisions of this subsection only if all of the following are satisfied:

(a) The program must give individuals eligible for the program the opportunity to qualify for the reward under the program at least once a year;

(b) (i) The reward for the outcome-based wellness program, together with the reward for other health-contingent wellness programs with respect to the plan, must not exceed the applicable percentage, as defined in Paragraph (6) of the total cost of employee-only coverage under the plan. However, if, in addition to employees, any class of dependents, such as spouses or spouses and dependent children, may participate in the wellness program, the reward may not exceed the applicable percentage of the total cost of the coverage in which an employee and any dependents of the employee are enrolled;

(ii) For purposes of this subparagraph, the cost of coverage is determined based on the total amount of small employer and employee contributions toward the cost of coverage for the benefit package under which the employee is, or the employee and any dependents are, receiving coverage;

(c) (i) The program must be reasonably designed to promote health or prevent disease;

(ii) A program satisfies Item (i) if, based on all of the relevant facts and circumstances:

(I) It has a reasonable chance of improving the health of, or preventing disease in, participating individuals; and

(II) It is not overly burdensome, is not a subterfuge for discriminating based on a health factor and is not highly suspect in the method chosen to promote health or prevent disease;

(iii) To ensure that an outcome-based wellness program is reasonably designed to improve health and does not act as a subterfuge for underwriting or reducing benefits based on a health factor, a reasonable alternative standard to qualify for the reward must be provided to any individual who does not meet the initial standard based on a measurement, test or screening that is related to a health factor, as explained in Subparagraph (d) of this paragraph;

(d) (i) The full reward under the outcome-based wellness program must be available to all similarly situated individuals;

(ii) Under this subparagraph, a reward under an outcome-based wellness program is not available to all similarly situated individuals for a period unless the program allows a reasonable alternative standard, or waiver of the otherwise applicable standard, for obtaining the reward for any individual who does not meet the initial standard based on the measurement, test or screening, as described in this subparagraph;

(iii) While health carriers are not required to determine a particular reasonable alternative standard in advance of an individual's request for one, if an individual is described in Item (ii), a reasonable alternative standard must be furnished by the carrier upon the individual's request or the condition for obtaining the reward must be waived;

(iv) All of the facts and circumstances are taken into account in determining whether a health carrier has furnished a reasonable alternative standard, including but not limited to the following:

(I) If the reasonable alternative standard is the completion of an educational program, the health carrier must make the educational program available or, instead of requiring an employee to find an educational program unassisted, assist the employee in finding such a program and may not require the employee to pay for the cost of the program;

(II) The time commitment required must be reasonable;

(III) If the reasonable alternative standard is a diet program, the health carrier is not required to pay for the cost of food, but must pay any membership or participation fee; and

(IV) If an individual's personal physician states that a plan standard, including, if applicable, the recommendations of the plan's medical professional, is not medically appropriate for that individual, the health carrier must provide a reasonable alternative standard that accommodates the recommendations of the individual's personal physician with regard to medical appropriateness. Health carriers may impose standard cost-sharing under the plan or coverage for medical items and services furnished pursuant to the physician's recommendations;

(v) To the extent that a reasonable alternative standard under an outcome-based wellness program is, itself, an activity-only wellness program, it must comply with the requirements of Paragraph (4) in the same manner as if it were an initial program standard. To the extent that a reasonable alternative standard under an outcome-based wellness program is, itself, another outcome-based wellness program, it must comply with the requirements of this paragraph, subject to the following special rules:

(I) The reasonable alternative standard cannot be a requirement to meet a different level of the same standard without additional time to comply that takes into account the individual's circumstances; and

(II) An individual must be given the opportunity to comply with the recommendations of the individual's personal physician as a second reasonable alternative standard to meeting the reasonable alternative standard defined by the carrier, but only if the physician joins in the request. The individual can make a request to involve a personal physician's recommendations at any time and the personal physician can adjust the physician's recommendations at any time, consistent with medical appropriateness;

(vi) (I) It is not reasonable to seek verification, such as a statement from an individual's personal physician, under an outcome-based wellness program that a health factor makes it unreasonably difficult for the individual to satisfy, or medically inadvisable for the individual to attempt to satisfy, the otherwise applicable standard as a condition of providing a reasonable alternative to the initial standard;

(II) However, if a health carrier provides an alternative standard to otherwise applicable measurement, test or screening that involves an activity that is related to a health factor, then the rules of Paragraph (4) for activity-only wellness programs apply to that component of the wellness program and the health carrier may, if reasonable under the circumstances, seek verification that it is unreasonably difficult due to a medical condition for an individual to perform or complete the activity or it is medically inadvisable to attempt to perform or complete the activity; and

(e) The health carrier must disclose in all plan materials describing the terms of an outcome-based wellness program the availability of a reasonable alternative standard to qualify for the reward and, in any disclosure that an individual did not satisfy an initial outcome-based standard, the availability of a reasonable alternative standard to qualify for the reward and, if applicable, the possibility of waiver of the otherwise applicable standard, including contact information for obtaining a reasonable alternative standard and a statement that recommendations of an individual's personal physician will be accommodated. If plan materials merely mention that such a program is available, without describing its terms, this disclosure is not required. Sample language is provided in Paragraph (7).

(6) (a) For purposes of this subsection, the applicable percentage is thirty (30) percent, except that the applicable percentage is increased by an additional twenty (20) percentage points to fifty (50) percent to the extent that the additional percentage is in connection with a program designed to prevent or reduce tobacco use.

(b) The rules of this paragraph are illustrated in examples found in 45 CFR 146.121(f)(5).

(7) The following language, or substantially similar language, can be used to satisfy the notice requirement of Paragraphs (4) and (5):

"Your health benefit plan is committed to helping you achieve your best health. Rewards for participating in a wellness program are available to all employees. If you think you might be unable to meet a standard for a reward under this wellness program, you might qualify for an opportunity to earn the same reward by different means. Contact us at [insert contact information] and we will work with you (and, if you wish, with your doctor) to find a wellness program with the same reward that is right for you in light of your health status."

Section 11. Essential Health Benefits Package

A. To meet the requirements of Section 13 of the Act, provision of essential health benefits means that a health benefit plan provides health benefits that:

(1) Are substantially equal to the EHB-benchmark plan including:

(a) Covered benefits;

(b) Limitations on coverage including coverage of benefit amount, duration and scope; and

(c) Prescription drug benefits that meet the requirements of Section 10 of this regulation;

(2) With the exception of the essential health benefits category of coverage for pediatric services, do not exclude an enrollee from coverage in an essential health benefits category;

(3) With respect to the mental health and substance use disorder services, including behavioral health treatment services, comply with the requirements of 45 CFR §146.136 related to parity in mental health and substance use disorder benefits;

(4) Include preventive health services, as provided in Section 14 of the Act;

(5) If the EHB-benchmark plan does not include coverage for habilitative services, include habilitative services in a manner that meets one of the following:

(a) Provides parity by covering habilitative services benefits that are similar in scope, amount and duration to benefits covered for rehabilitative services;

(b) Is determined by the health carrier and reported to HHS; or

(c) As determined by the state as provided in 45 CFR §156.110(f).

B. A health carrier offering a health benefit plan in the small group market providing essential health benefits may substitute benefits if the carrier meets the following conditions:

Drafting Note: States should be aware that they may adopt more restrictive requirements related to health carriers substituting benefits, including not permitting the practice.

(1) Substitutes a benefit that:

(a) Is actuarially equivalent to the benefit that is being replaced as determined in Paragraph (2);

(b) Is made only within the same essential health benefit category; and

(c) Is not a prescription drug benefit; and

(2) Submits evidence of actuarial equivalence that is:

(a) Certified by a member of the American Academy of Actuaries;

(b) Based on an analysis performed in accordance with generally accepted actuarial principles and methodologies;

(c) Based on a standardized plan population; and

(d) Determined regardless of cost-sharing.

C. A health benefit plan does not fail to provide essential health benefits solely because it does not offer the services described in 45 CFR §156.280(d).

D. A health carrier offering a health benefit plan in the small group market providing essential health benefits may not include routine non-pediatric dental services, routine non-pediatric eye exam services, long-term/custodial nursing home care benefits or non-medically necessary orthodontia as essential health benefits.

E. A health carrier offering health benefit plan in the small group market providing essential health benefits may not impose annual and lifetime dollar limits on essential health benefits in accordance with 45 CFR §147.126.

Section 12. Parity in Mental Health and Substance Use Disorder Benefits

A. The provisions of 45 CFR §146.136 apply to a health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage subject to the Act, as the term "small employer" is defined in Section 2791 of the PHSA as provided in Section 11 of this regulation.

Drafting Note: Section 1304 of the Federal Act gives states the option, prior to Jan. 1, 2016, to define a "small employer" as an employer that employed an average of at least one (1), but not more than fifty (50) employees on business days during the preceding calendar year and that employs at least one (1) employee on the first day of the plan year. On or after Jan. 1, 2016, a "small employer" must be defined as an employer that employed an average of at least one (1) but not more than one hundred (100) employees on business days during the preceding calendar year and who employs at least one (1) employee on the first day of the plan year. As such, the small employer exemption provided in Section 2726 of the PHSA and implementing regulations will continue to apply to employers with fifty-one (51) or more employees in 2016 when the upper limit of the small employer size increases in accordance with Section 1304 of the Federal Act. For more information, states can refer to page 68248 of the final rules published in the Federal Register (78 FR 68240), Nov. 13, 2013.

B. This section applies to non-grandfathered health plan coverage and grandfathered health plan coverage.

Section 13. Prescription Drug Benefits

A. A health benefit plan does not provide essential health benefits unless it:

(1) Except as provided in Subsection B, covers at least the greater of:

(a) One drug in every United States Pharmacopeia (USP) category and class; or

(b) The same number of prescription drugs in each category and class as the EHB-benchmark plan; and

(2) Submits its drug list to the state.

B. A health benefit plan does not fail to provide essential health benefits prescription drug benefits solely because it does not offer drugs approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration as a service described in 45 CFR §156.280(d).

C. (1) A health benefit plan providing essential health benefits must have procedures in place that allow an enrollee to request and gain access to clinically appropriate drugs not covered by the health benefit plan.

(2) (a) The procedures must include a process for an enrollee, the enrollee's designee or the enrollee's prescribing physician or other prescriber to request an expedited review based on exigent circumstances.

(b) Exigent circumstances exist when an enrollee is suffering from a health condition that may seriously jeopardize the enrollee's life, health or ability to regain maximum function or when an enrollee is undergoing a current course of treatment using a non-formulary drug.

(c) A health benefit plan must make its coverage determination on an expedited review request based on exigent circumstances and notify the enrollee or the enrollee's designee and the prescribing physician or other prescriber, as appropriate, of its coverage determination no later than twenty-four (24) hours after it receives the request.

(d) A health benefit plan that grants an exception based on exigent circumstances must provide coverage of the non-formulary drug for the duration of the exigency.

Drafting Note: The provisions of Subsection C above reference health benefit plans having procedures, including an expedited review process as part of those procedures, in place to allow enrollees to request and gain access to clinically appropriate drugs not covered by the health benefit plan. In considering what procedures, if any, states may want to require health carriers to have in place for their health benefit plans to carry out the provisions of Subsection C, states may want to review procedures in the NAIC models concerning internal and external review. In addition, states may want to review the provisions of the NAIC Health Carrier Prescription Drug Benefit Management Model Act (#22), particularly Section 7—Medical Exceptions Approval Process Requirements and Procedures.

Section 14. Prohibition on Discrimination in Providing Essential Health Benefits

A. A health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage subject to the Act does not provide essential health benefits if its benefit design, or the implementation of its benefit design, discriminates based on an individual's age, expected length of life, present or predicted disability, degree of medical dependency, quality of life or other health conditions.

B. A health carrier must not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, disability, age, sex, gender identity or sexual orientation.

Drafting Note: States should review their laws and regulations for consistency with the provisions of Subsection B above and, if necessary, revise the language in Subsection B.

C. Nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent a health carrier from appropriately utilizing reasonable medical management techniques.

Section 15. Cost-Sharing Requirements

A. (1) For a plan year beginning in calendar year 2014, cost-sharing may not exceed the following:

(a) For self-only coverage that is in effect for 2014, the annual dollar limit as described in Section 223(c)(2)(A)(ii)(I) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended; or

(b) For non-self-only coverage that is in effect for 2014, the annual dollar limit as described in Section 223(c)(2)(A)(ii)(II) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended.

(2) For a plan year beginning in a calendar year after 2014, cost-sharing may not exceed the following:

(a) For self-only coverage, the dollar limit for calendar year 2014 increased by an amount equal to the product of that amount and the premium adjustment percentage, as defined in Subsection E; or

(b) For non-self-only coverage, twice the dollar limit for self-only coverage described in Subparagraph (a) of this paragraph.

B. In the case of a plan using a network of providers, the annual limitation on cost-sharing, as defined in Subsection A does not apply to benefits provided out-of-network, other than benefits provided on an appeal or exceptions basis because medically necessary services were not reasonably accessible within the network.

Drafting Note: Subject to state or federal law or regulations, nothing in this section would prohibit a health carrier from establishing contractual limits on cost-sharing that are lower than the limits provided in Subsection A or establishing contractual limits on cost-sharing that apply to benefits provided both in-network and out-of-network. Federal law does not prevent a state from establishing lower cost-sharing limits, or establishing limits that apply to out-of-network benefits.

C. For a plan year beginning in a calendar year after 2014, any increase in the annual dollar limits described in Subsection A that does not result in a multiple of 50 dollars will be rounded down, to the next lowest multiple of 50 dollars.

D. The premium adjustment percentage is the percentage, if any, by which the average per capita premium for health insurance coverage for the preceding calendar year exceeds such average per capita premium for health insurance coverage for 2013. HHS will publish the annual premium adjustment percentage in the annual HHS notice of benefits and payment parameters.

E. Nothing in this section is in derogation of the requirements of Section 14 of the Act.

F. Emergency department services must be provided as follows:

(1) Without imposing any requirement under the health benefit plan for prior authorization of services or any limitation on coverage where the provider of services is out of network that is more restrictive than the requirements or limitations that apply to emergency department services received in network; and

(2) If such services are provided out of network, cost-sharing must be limited as provided in [insert reference to state law or regulation equivalent to Section 11C of the Utilization Review and Benefit Determination Model Act].

Section 16. Actuarial Value Calculation for Determining Level of Coverage; Levels of Coverage

A. Subject to Subsection B, a health carrier must use the AV Calculator developed and made available by HHS to calculate the AV of a health benefit plan.

B. If a health benefit plan's design is not compatible with the AV Calculator, the health carrier must meet the following:

(1) Submit the actuarial certification from an actuary, who is a member of the American Academy of Actuaries, on the chosen methodology identified in Subparagraphs (a) and (b) of this paragraph:

(a) Calculate the plan's AV by:

(i) Estimating the fit of its plan design into the parameters of the AV calculator; and

(ii) Having an actuary, who is a member of the American Academy of Actuaries, certify that the plan design was fit appropriately in accordance with generally accepted actuarial principles and methodologies; or

(b) Use the AV Calculator to determine the AV for the plan provisions that fit within the calculator parameters and have an actuary, who is a member of the American Academy of Actuaries, calculate and certify, in accordance with generally accepted actuarial principles and methodologies, appropriate adjustments to the AV identified by the calculator, for plan design features that deviate substantially from the parameters of the AV Calculator; and

(2) The calculation methods described in Paragraph (1)(a) and (b) may include in-network cost-sharing, including multi-tier networks.

C. For health benefit plans offered in the small group market that, at the time of purchase are offered in conjunction with an HSA or with integrated HRAs that may be used only for cost-sharing, annual employer contributions to HSAs and amounts newly made available under such HRAs for the current year are:

(1) Counted towards the total anticipated medical spending of the standard population that is paid by the health benefit plan; and

(2) Adjusted to reflect the expected spending for health care costs in a benefit year so that:

(a) Any current year HSA contributions are accounted for; and

(b) The amounts newly made available under such integrated HRAs for the current year are accounted for.

D. (1) Beginning in 2015, if submitted by the state and approved by HHS, a state-specific data set, in a format specified by HHS that can support the use of the AV Calculator as described in Subsection A, will be used as the standard population to calculate AV in accordance with Subsection A.

(2) The AV will be calculated using the default standard population described in Paragraph (3), unless a data set in a format specified by HHS that can support the use of the AV Calculator, as described in Subsection A, is submitted by a state and approved by HHS consistent with the requirements of 45 CFR §156.135(d) by a state specified by HHS.

(3) The default standard population for AV calculation will be developed and summary statistics, such as in continuance tables, will be provided by HHS in a format that supports the calculation of AV as described in Subsection A.

E. (1) The AV, calculated as described in Subsections A through D, and within a de minimis variation as defined in Paragraph (3), determines whether a health benefit plan offers a bronze, silver, gold or platinum level of coverage.

(2) The levels of coverage are:

(a) A bronze plan is a health benefit plan that has an AV of 60%.

(b) A silver plan is a health benefit plan that has an AV of 70%.

(c) A gold plan is a health benefit plan that has an AV of 80%.

(d) A platinum plan is a health benefit plan that has an AV of 90%.

(3) The allowable variation in the AV of a health benefit plan that does not result in a material difference in the true dollar value of the health benefit plan is +/-2 percentage points.

F. Any health benefit plan offered in the small group market that meets any of the levels of coverage described in Subsection E satisfies minimum value.

Section 17. Provision of Summary of Benefits and Coverage; Uniform Glossary

Drafting Note: States should be aware that in addition to the provisions of 45 CFR §147.200, the Departments of Labor (DOL), Health and Human Services (HHS) and the Treasury (collectively, the Departments), the federal agencies charged with implementing the ACA, have issued extensive sub-regulatory guidance in the form of frequently asked questions (FAQs) and enforcement safe harbors for issuers subject to Section 2715 of the PHSA and the implementing federal regulations. The drafting note below details this sub-regulatory guidance and issuer enforcement safe harbors.

Drafting Note: The Departments have maintained their intent to continue the safe harbors and other enforcement relief provided to issuers for the first year of applicability related to the requirement to provide a Summary of Benefits and Coverage (SBC) and a uniform glossary during subsequent years of applicability. The Departments confirmed their intent in the Affordable Care Act Implementation FAQs Part XIX, Q8 issued May 2, 2014, "in recognition of and to ensure a smooth transition to new market changes in 2014,"to extend the following previously-issued enforcement and transition relief guidance until further guidance is issued:

- Affordable Care Act Implementation FAQs Part VIII, Q2 (regarding the federal agencies' basic approach to implementation of the SBC requirements during the first year of applicability);
- Affordable Care Act Implementation FAQs Part IX, Q1 (regarding the circumstances in which an SBC may be provided electronically);
- Affordable Care Act Implementation FAQs Part IX, Q8 (regarding penalties for failure to provide the SBC or uniform glossary);
- Affordable Care Act Implementation FAQs Part IX, Q9 (regarding the coverage examples calculator); and related information related to use of the coverage examples calculator;

A. A health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage subject to the Act must provide a summary of benefits and coverage (SBC) for each benefit package without charge to persons and individuals described in this section and in accordance with this section.

Drafting Note: States should be aware that, as enacted, the Federal Act retained, with amendment, what was Section 2713 of the PHSA, now Section 2709 of the PHSA (Disclosure of Information), which requires health carriers to disclose information to individuals concerning the carrier's right to change premium rates and the factors that may affect changes in premium rates and the benefits and premiums available under all health insurance coverage for which the individual is qualified. The provisions of this section do not include these required disclosure requirements.

B. (1) A health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group health insurance coverage must provide the SBC to the plan sponsor upon application for coverage, as soon as practicable following receipt of the application, but in no event later than seven (7) business days following receipt of the application.

(2) If there is any change in the information required to be in the SBC that was provided upon application and before the first day of coverage, the carrier must update and provide a current SBC to the individual no later than the first day of coverage.

(3) If a health carrier renews or reissues the certificate or contract of coverage, the health carrier must provide a new SBC as follows:

(a) If written application is required in either paper or electronic form for renewal or reissuance, the carrier must provide the SBC no later than the date on which the written application materials are distributed; or

(b) If renewal or reissuance is automatic, the carrier must provide the SBC no later than thirty (30) days prior to the first day of the new plan year; however, if the certificate or contract of insurance has not been issued or renewed before such 30-day period, the carrier must provide the SBC as soon as practicable, but in no event later than seven (7) business days after issuance of the new certificate or contract of insurance or the receipt of the written confirmation of intent to renew whichever is earlier.

(4) If a plan sponsor requests an SBC or summary information about a health insurance product from a health carrier, the health carrier must provide an SBC as soon as practicable, but in no event later than seven (7) business days following receipt of the request.

C. (1) A health carrier must provide an SBC to covered persons and, consistent with Subsection D, with respect to each benefit package offered by the carrier for which the covered person is eligible.

(2) A health carrier must provide an SBC as part of any written application materials that are distributed by the carrier for enrollment. If the carrier does not distribute written application materials for enrollment, the carrier must distribute the SBC no later than the first date on which the employee is eligible to enroll in coverage for the employee and any dependents of the employee.

(3) If there is any change in the information required to be in the SBC that was provided upon application and before the first day of coverage, the carrier must update and provide a current SBC to the covered person no later than the first day of coverage.

(4) A health carrier must provide the SBC to special enrollees, as described in Section 6 of this regulation, no later than the date by which a summary plan description is required to be provided under the timeframe set forth in ERISA Section 104(b)(1)(A) and its implementing regulations, which is ninety (90) days from enrollment.

(5) If a health carrier requires covered persons to renew in order to maintain coverage, the carrier must provide a new SBC when the coverage is renewed as follows:

(a) If written application is required for renewal in either paper or electronic form, the carrier must provide the SBC no later than the date on which the written application materials are distributed; or

(b) If the renewal is automatic, the carrier must provide the SBC no later than thirty (30) days prior to the first day of the new plan year; however, if the certificate or contract of insurance has not been issued or renewed before the 30-day period, the carrier must provide the SBC as soon as practicable, but in no event later than seven (7) business days after issue of the new certificate or contract of insurance, or the receipt of written confirmation of intent to renew, whichever is earlier.

(6) A health carrier must provide the SBC to covered persons upon request for an SBC or summary information about health coverage, as soon as practicable, but in no event no later than seven (7) business days following receipt of the request.

D. (1) A person required to provide an SBC under this section with respect to an individual satisfies that requirement if another party provides the SBC, but only to the extent that the SBC is timely and complete in accordance with the requirements of this section. Therefore, for example, in the case of a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage, the person satisfies the requirement to provide an SBC with respect to an individual if the health carrier provides a timely and complete SBC to the individual.

(2) If a health carrier provides a single SBC to an employee and any dependents of the employee at the employee's last known address, then the requirement to provide the SBC to the employee and any dependents of the employee is generally satisfied. However, if an employee's dependent's last known address is different than the employee's last known address, the health carrier must provide a separate SBC to the employee's dependent at the dependent's last known address.

(3) With respect to a health benefit plan providing small group health insurance coverage that offers multiple benefit packages, the health carrier must provide a new SBC automatically upon renewal only with respect to the benefit package in which the covered person is enrolled. A health carrier is not required to provide SBCs automatically upon renewal with respect to benefit packages in which the covered person is not enrolled. However, if the covered person requests an SBC with respect to another benefit package or more than one other benefit package for which the covered person is eligible, the health carrier must provide the SBC, or in the case of a request for SBCs relating to more than one benefit package, upon request as soon as practicable, but in no event later than seven (7) business days following receipt of the request.

E. (1) Subject to Paragraph (3), an SBC provided under this section must include the following:

(a) Uniform definitions of standard insurance terms and medical terms so that consumers may compare health coverage and understand the terms of, or exceptions to, their coverage, in accordance with guidance as specified by the Secretary;

(b) A description of the coverage, including cost-sharing, for each category of benefits identified by the Secretary in guidance;

(c) The exceptions, reductions and limitations of coverage;

(d) The cost-sharing provisions of the coverage, including deductible, coinsurance and copayment obligations;

(e) The renewability and continuation of coverage provisions;

(f) Coverage examples in accordance with Paragraph (2);

(g) A statement about whether the coverage provides minimum essential coverage as defined under Section 5000A(f) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended and whether the coverage's share of the total allowed costs of benefits provided under the coverage meets applicable requirements;

(h) A statement that the SBC is only a summary and that the policy, certificate or contract of insurance should be consulted to determine the governing contractual provisions of the coverage;

(i) Contact information for questions and obtaining a copy of the insurance policy, certificate or contract of insurance, such as a telephone number for customer service and a publicly accessible Internet address where a copy of the plan document or the insurance policy, certificate or contract of insurance can be reviewed and obtained;

(j) For carriers that maintain one or more provider networks, an Internet address, or similar contact information, for obtaining a list of network providers;

(k) For carriers that use a formulary in providing prescription drug coverage, an Internet address, or similar contact information, for obtaining information on prescription drug coverage; and

(l) An Internet address for obtaining the uniform glossary, as described in Subsection G, as well as a contact telephone number to obtain a paper copy of the uniform glossary, and a disclosure that paper copies are available.

(2) (a) The SBC must include coverage examples specified by the Secretary in guidance that illustrate benefits provided under the coverage for common benefit scenarios, including pregnancy and serious or chronic medical conditions in accordance with this paragraph. The Secretary may identify up to six (6) coverage examples that may be required in an SBC.

(b) For purposes of this paragraph, a benefit scenario is a hypothetical situation, consisting of a sample treatment plan for a specified medical condition during a specified period of time, based on recognized clinical practice guidelines as defined by the National Guideline Clearinghouse, Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality.

Drafting Note: The HHS Secretary will specify, in guidance, the assumptions, including the relevant items and services and reimbursement information, for each claim in the benefits scenario.

(c) (i) For purposes of this paragraph, to illustrate benefits provided under the coverage for a particular benefits scenario, a carrier simulates claims processing in accordance with guidance issued by the Secretary to generate an estimate of what an individual might expect to pay under the policy or benefit package.

(ii) The illustration of benefits provided will take into account any cost-sharing, excluded benefits and other limitations on coverage as specified by the Secretary in guidance.

(3) (a) In lieu of summarizing coverage for items and services provided outside of the United States, a carrier may provide an Internet address (or similar contact information) for obtaining information about benefits and coverage provided outside the United States.

Drafting Note: In Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs), the federal agencies charged with implementing the ACA provide that expatriate coverage is not subject to the ACA requirements for plan years ending before Dec. 15, 2015, including the requirements to provide an SBC with respect to expatriate coverage during the first year of applicability. States should refer to the Drafting Note at the beginning of this section for additional information regarding this enforcement safe harbor.

(b) In any case, the carrier must provide an SBC in accordance with this section that accurately summarizes benefits and coverage available under the coverage within the United States.

F. (1) A carrier must provide an SBC in the form, and in accordance with the instructions for completing the SBC, that are specified by the Secretary in regulations and applicable guidance.

Drafting Note: States should refer to the Drafting Note at the beginning of this section regarding the safe harbor for plans and issuers provided in the Special Rule in the final Instruction Guides for Group and Individual Coverage (February 2012 Edition) for completing the SBC. As stated in the final Instruction Guides for Group and Individual Coverage (February 2012 Edition), the Special Rule provides: "To the extent a plan's terms that are required to be described in the SBC template cannot reasonably be described in a manner consistent with the template and instructions, the plan or issuer must accurately describe the relevant plan terms while using its best efforts to do so in a manner that is still as consistent with the instructions and template format as reasonably possible. Such situations may occur, for example, if a plan provides a different structure for provider network tiers or drug tiers than is represented in the SBC template and these instructions, if a plan provides different benefits based on facility type (such as hospital inpatient versus non-hospital inpatient), in a case where a plan is denoting the effects of a related health flexible spending arrangement or a health reimbursement arrangement, or if a plan provides different cost sharing based on participation in a wellness program."

(2) The SBC must be provided in a uniform format, use terminology understandable by the average individual covered under the policy, not exceed four (4) double-sided pages in length and not include print smaller than 12-point font.

(3) The carrier must provide the SBC as a stand-alone document.

G. (1) A health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage may provide an SBC in paper form.

(2) In lieu of providing an SBC in paper form under Paragraph (1), a health carrier may provide an SBC electronically, such as by email or an Internet posting, if the following is satisfied:

Drafting Note: States should refer to the Drafting Note at the beginning of this section regarding the circumstances in which a SBC may be provided electronically consistent with the safe harbor provided by the federal agencies.

(a) The form is readily accessible by the plan sponsor;

(b) The SBC is provide in paper form free of charge upon request; and

(c) If the electronic form is an Internet posting, the carrier timely advises the plan sponsor in paper form or email that the documents are available on the Internet and provides the Internet address.

(3) A health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage may provide an SBC to a covered person in paper form.

H. A health carrier must provide the SBC in a culturally and linguistically appropriate manner. For purposes of this section, a carrier is considered to provide the SBC in a culturally and linguistically appropriate manner if the thresholds and standards of 45 CFR §147.136(e) are met as applied to the SBC.

I. If a health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage makes any material modification, as defined under Section 102 of ERISA, in any terms of coverage that would affect the content of the SBC, that is not reflected in the most recently provided SBC, and that occurs other than in connection with a renewal or reissuance of coverage, the health carrier must provide notice of the modification to covered persons not later than sixty (60) days prior to the date on which the modification will become effective. The notice of modification must be provided in a form that is consistent with Subsection G.

J. (1) A health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group market health insurance coverage subject to the Act must make available to covered persons, the uniform glossary described in Paragraph (2) of this subsection in accordance with the appearance and form and manner requirements of Paragraphs (3) and (4).

(2) The uniform glossary must provide uniform definitions, specified by the Secretary in guidance of the following health-coverage-related terms and medical terms:

(a) Allowed amount; appeal; balance billing; co-insurance; complications of pregnancy; co-payment; deductible; durable medical equipment; emergency medical condition; emergency medical transportation; emergency room care; emergency services; excluded services; grievance; habilitative services; health insurance; home health care; hospice services; hospitalization; hospital out-patient care; in-network co-insurance; in-network co-payment; medically necessary; network; non-preferred provider; out-of-network co-insurance; out-of-network co-payment; out-of-pocket limit; physician services; plan; preauthorization; preferred provider; premium; prescription drug coverage; prescription drugs; primary care physician; primary care provider; provider; reconstructive surgery; rehabilitation services; skilled nursing care; specialist; usual customary and reasonable (UCR); and urgent care;

(b) Such other terms as the Secretary determines are important to define so that individuals may compare and understand the terms of coverage and medical benefits, including any exceptions to those benefits, as specified in guidance.

(3) A health carrier must provide the uniform glossary with the appearance specified by the Secretary in guidance to ensure the uniform glossary is presented in a uniform format and uses terminology understandable to the average individual covered under a health insurance policy.

(4) A health carrier must make the uniform glossary described in this subsection available upon request, in either paper or electronic form (as requested), within seven (7) business days after receipt of the request.

Section 18. Certification and Disclosure of Prior Creditable Coverage

Drafting Note: The federal agencies charged with implementing the provisions of the ACA published a final rule (79 FR 10295) in the Federal Register Feb. 24, 2014, finalizing their proposed rule to amend 45 CFR §146.115 to eliminate the requirement for the group market to provide certificates of credible coverage and to demonstrate creditable coverage. The language in this section is consistent with the language from the final rule.

A. The federal rules for providing certificates of creditable coverage and demonstrating creditable coverage under 45 CFR §146.115 have been superseded by the prohibition on preexisting condition exclusions in accordance with Section 2704 of the Public Health Service Act.

B. The provisions of this section apply beginning December 31, 2014.

Section 19. Rules Related to Fair Marketing

A. A health carrier offering health benefit plans providing small group market health insurance coverage subject to the Act must actively market each of its health benefit plans to individuals in this state, except that for health benefit plans providing small group market health insurance coverage not subject to Section 6 of the Act, a health carrier must offer coverage upon request and is not required to actively market such coverage.

B. (1) (a) A health carrier offering health benefit plans providing small group market health insurance coverage must actively offer all health benefit plans it actively markets in this state to any small employer that applies for or makes an inquiry regarding small group market health insurance coverage from the carrier.

(b) The offer may be provided directly to the small employer or delivered through a producer.

(2) The offer must be in writing and must include at least the following information:

(a) A general description of the benefits contained in the health benefit plan being offered to the small employer, and

(b) Information describing how the small employer may enroll in the plans.

(3) The carrier must provide a price quote to a small employer directly or through an authorized producer within ten (10) working days of receiving a request for a quote and such information as is necessary to provide the quote. The carrier must notify a small employer directly or through an authorized producer within five (5) working days of receiving a request for a price quote of any additional information needed by the carrier to provide the quote.

(4) Subject to Section 6A of the Act, the carrier must issue any health benefit plan to any eligible small employer that applies for the plan.

(5) The carrier may not directly or indirectly use group size or any health status-related factor as criteria for establishing eligibility for a health benefit plan.

C. A health carrier must establish and maintain a toll-free telephone service to provide information to small employers regarding the availability of health benefit plans providing small group health insurance coverage in this state. The service shall provide information to callers on how to apply for coverage from the carrier. The information may include the names and phone numbers of producers located geographically proximate to the caller or such other information that is reasonably designed to assist the caller to locate an authorized producer or to otherwise apply for coverage.

Drafting Note: Some states with smaller populations may determine that this provision is not necessary to assure fair marketing of health benefit plans providing small group health insurance coverage in their state.

D. (1) The health carrier may not require a small employer to join or contribute to any association or group as a condition of being accepted for coverage by the carrier or for the issuance of any health benefit plan offered by the carrier.

(2) A health carrier may modify the terms of a policy issued to a small employer that is not a member of the association provided the modifications do not affect the policy's benefit design or other substantive terms of coverage.

Drafting Note: The provisions of Paragraph (2) are intended to allow a carrier to make necessary technical or administrative modifications to a health benefit plan issued to a small employer that is not a member of an association.

E. A health carrier may not require, as a condition to the offer or sale of a health benefit plan to a small employer, that the small employer purchase or qualify for any other insurance product or service.

F. (1) Health carriers offering health benefit plans providing small group health insurance coverage in this state shall be responsible for determining whether the plans are subject to the requirements of the Act and this regulation.

(2) Health carriers must elicit the following information from applicants for such plans at the time of application:

(a) Whether or not any portion of the premium will be paid by or on behalf of a small employer, either directly or through wage adjustments or other means of reimbursement; and

(b) Whether or not the prospective policyholder, certificateholder or any prospective insured individual intends to treat the health benefit plan as part of a plan or program under Section 162 (other than Section 162(l)), Section 125 or Section 106 of the United States Internal Revenue Code.

(3) If a health carrier offering a health benefit plan providing small group health insurance coverage fails to comply with Paragraph (2), the carrier will be deemed to be on notice of any information that could reasonably have been attained if the carrier had complied with Paragraph (2).

G. (1) A health carrier must file annually the following information with the commissioner related to small group market health benefit plans issued by the carrier to individuals in this state:

(a) The number of small employer that were issued, or received renewals of, small group market health benefit plans in the previous calendar year (separated as to newly issued plans and renewals);

(b) The number of small group market health benefit plans in force in the state as of December 31 of the previous calendar year;

Drafting Note: Instead of requesting information on the number of individual health benefit plans in force in the state, as provided in Subparagraph (b) above, a state may decide it is more appropriate to request such information by county, three-digit zip code or metropolitan statistical area and non-metropolitan statistical area geographic regions.

(c) The number of small group market health benefit plans that were voluntarily not renewed by small employers in the previous calendar year; and

(d) The number of small group market health benefit plans that were terminated or not renewed and reasons (other than nonpayment of premium) for the termination or nonrenewal by the carrier in the previous calendar year.

(2) The information described in Paragraph (1) shall be filed no later than March 15 of each year.

H. A health carrier may not create financial incentives or disincentives for producers to sell or to not sell any of its small group market health benefit plans. The commissioner shall have authority to review a carrier's commission structure to ensure no financial incentives or disincentives to sell or to not sell any of its small group market health benefit plans are created by the structure.

I. A health carrier may not employ marketing practices or benefit designs that will have the effect of discouraging enrollment of individuals with significant health needs in health insurance coverage or discriminate based on an individual's race, color, national origin, present or predicted disability, age, sex, gender identity, sexual orientation, expected length of life, degree of medical dependency, quality of life or other health conditions.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2015

SMALL GROUP MARKET HEALTH INSURANCE COVERAGE MODEL REGULATION (#126)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

At the 2013 Fall National Meeting, the Regulatory Framework (B) Task Force began its review of an initial draft of the Small Group Market Health Insurance Coverage Model Regulation as a companion regulation to the Small Group Market Health Insurance Coverage Model Act (#106). The draft model regulation incorporates the provisions of various federal regulations implementing the 2014 market reform provisions and other relevant provisions of the federal Affordable Care Act (ACA). The Task Force adopted the Small Group Market Health Insurance Coverage Model Regulation Nov. 16 at the 2014 Fall National Meeting and presented it to the Health Insurance and Managed Care (B) Committee for its consideration. As part of the Task Force's report, the Committee adopted the Small Group Market Health Insurance Coverage Model Regulation Nov. 17.

Major provisions in the model regulation include:

- Restrictions Relating to Premium Rates (Section 4)
- Single Risk Pool (Section 5)
- Guaranteed Availability of Small Group Market Health Insurance Coverage; Enrollment Periods (Section 6)
- Guaranteed Renewability of Small Group Market Health Insurance Coverage (Section 7)
- Prohibition on Waiting Periods Exceeding Ninety (90) Days (Section 8)
- Prohibition on Preexisting Condition Exclusions (Section 9)
- Essential Health Benefits Package (Section 11*)*
- Prescription Drug Benefits (Section 13)
- Cost-Sharing Requirements (Section 15)
- Actuarial Value Calculation for Determining Level of Coverage; Levels of Coverage (Section 16)
- Provision of Summary of Benefits and Coverage; Uniform Glossary (Section 17)
- Certification and Disclosure of Prior Creditable Coverage (Section 18)

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Regulatory Framework (B) Task Force drafted the model regulation. The members of the Task Force at the time of adoption were: Wisconsin, Chair; Utah, Vice Chair; Arizona; California; Colorado; Connecticut; Delaware; Florida; Idaho; Illinois; Indiana; Kansas; Kentucky; Maine; Minnesota; Missouri; Montana; Nebraska; Nevada; New Jersey; N. Marina Islands; Ohio; Oklahoma; Oregon; Pennsylvania; Puerto Rico; South Dakota; Tennessee; Virginia; and West Virginia.

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The Regulatory Framework (B) Task Force has a general charge to: coordinate and develop the provision of technical assistance to the states regarding state level implementation issues raised by federal health legislation and regulations. The Task Force also has a specific charge to consider the development of new NAIC model laws and regulations, as well as the revision of existing NAIC model laws and regulations affected by federal legislation and final federal regulations promulgated pursuant to such legislation.

After the enactment of the ACA in March 2010, consistent with its charges, the Health Insurance and Managed Care (B) Committee directed the Task Force to review and revise existing NAIC models affected by the ACA or, as necessary, develop new NAIC models to assist the states in implementing the ACA. This proposed new NAIC model regulation is consistent with that directive.

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated.

The model regulation was drafted by the Regulatory Framework (B) Task Force. The Task Force held in-person meetings at each of the 2013 and 2014 National Meetings and several open conference calls, during which the drafts and comments received on the drafts were discussed. All drafts and comments were posted on the Task Force's page on the NAIC website. During these in-person meetings and open conference calls, representatives from various stakeholder groups participated, including consumer representatives, such as the Georgetown University Health Policy Institute, the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities (CBPP), the Consumers Union and Families USA, and the Alzheimer's Foundation of America; industry representatives, such as the America's Health Insurance Plans (AHIP), the BlueCross and BlueShield Association (BCBSA) and the Pharmaceutical Research and Manufacturers of America (PhRMA); and individual consumers.

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

The model regulation was drafted by the Regulatory Framework (B) Task Force. The Task Force held in-person meetings at each of the 2013 and 2014 National Meetings and several open conference calls, during which the drafts and comments received on the drafts were discussed. All drafts and comments were posted on the Task Force's page on the NAIC website.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response)

There was only one significant issue discussed at the end of the drafting process. During the last public comment period, more than 40 comment letters were received concerning an issue related to network plans found in Section 15B. The issue related to a provision in the final federal regulations concerning the application of non-network cost-sharing to the annual limitation on cost-sharing. As provided in 45 CFR §156.130, in the case of a plan using a network of providers, the annual limitation on cost-sharing, as defined in 45 CFR §156.130(a), does not apply to benefits provided out-of-network. Section 15B of the model regulation reflected the federal provision, but included a drafting note alerting state insurance regulators that subject to state or federal law or regulations, nothing prohibits a health carrier from establishing contractual limits on cost-sharing that are lower than the limits provided in the federal regulations or establishing contractual limits on cost-sharing that apply to benefits provided both in-network and out-of-network. A majority of the comment letters received on this issue urged the Regulatory Framework (B) Task Force to consider revising the model regulation, at a minimum, to provide that the out-of-network cost-sharing that results from an exceptions or appeal process permitting a covered person to obtain covered benefits from an out-of-network provider should apply to the annual cost-sharing limitation.

During its meeting at the 2014 Fall National Meeting, the Task Force discussed the comment letters received on this issue and the suggested revisions to address it. The Task Force voted unanimously to revise Section 15B to permit benefits provided on an appeal or exceptions basis because medically necessary services were not reasonably available within the network to be applied to the annual cost-sharing limitation. The Task Force also voted unanimously to add a sentence to the drafting note specifically alerting the states that federal law does not prevent a state from establishing lower cost-sharing limits or establishing limits that apply to out-of-network benefits.

GUIDELINES FOR FILING OF RATES FOR INDIVIDUAL HEALTH INSURANCE FORMS

Section 1. General

A. Every policy, rider or endorsement form affecting benefits that is submitted for approval shall be accompanied by a rate filing unless the rider or endorsement form does not require a change in the rate. Any subsequent addition to or change in rates applicable to the policy, rider or endorsement shall also be filed.

B. General Contents of All Rate Filings

The purpose of this guideline, including its Appendix, is to provide appropriate guidelines for the submission and the filing of individual health insurance rates and to establish standards for determining the reasonableness of the relationship of benefits to premiums. Each rate submission shall include an actuarial memorandum describing the basis on which rates were determined and shall indicate and describe the calculation of the ratio, hereinafter called "anticipated loss ratio," of the present value of the expected benefits to the present value of the expected premiums over the entire period for which rates are computed to provide coverage. Interest shall be used in the calculation of this loss ratio. Each rate submission must also include a certification by a qualified actuary that to the best of the actuary's knowledge and judgment the entire rate filing is in compliance with the applicable laws and regulations of the state to which it is submitted and that the benefits are reasonable in relation to premiums.

Drafting Note: Assumptions applying to the future "period for which rates are computed" should be reasonable in relation to the circumstances. For example, if future rates of inflation are a major factor, the period of projection of such rates normally should be short, such as three to five years only. Other assumptions, however, may still appropriately apply over the entire future policy renewal period, particularly in cases where the basic rate structure is one of level premiums based on original issue age.

C. Previously Approved Forms

Filings of rate revisions for a previously approved policy, rider or endorsement form shall also include the following:

(1) A statement of the scope and reason for the revision, and an estimate of the expected average effect on premiums, including the anticipated loss ratio for the form;

(2) A statement as to whether the filing applies only to new business, only to in force business, or both, and the reasons therefore;

(3) A history of the experience under existing rates, including at least the data indicated in Section 1D. The history may also include, if available and appropriate, the ratios of actual claims to the claims expected according to the assumptions underlying the existing rates. Additional data might include: substitution of actual claim run-offs for claim reserves and liabilities, determination of loss ratios with the increase in policy reserves subtracted from premiums rather than added to benefits, accumulation of experience fund balances, substitution of net level policy reserves for preliminary term policy reserves, reserve adjustments arising because of select period loss experience, adjustment of premiums to an annual mode basis, or other adjustments or schedules suited to the form and to the records of the company. All additional data shall be reconciled, as appropriate, to the required data; and

(4) The date and magnitude of each previous rate change, if any.

D. Experience Records

(1) Insurers shall maintain records of earned premiums and incurred benefits for each calendar year for each policy form, including data for rider and endorsement forms that are used with the policy form, on the same basis, including all reserves, as required for the Accident and Health Policy Experience Exhibit. Separate data may be maintained for each rider of endorsement form to the extent appropriate. Subject to approval of the commissioner, experience under forms that provide substantially similar coverage and provisions that are issued to substantially similar risk classes and that are issued under similar underwriting standards, may be combined for purposes of evaluating experience data in relation to premium rates and rate revisions, particularly where statistical credibility would be materially improved by the combination. Once such a combining of forms is adopted, however, the insurer may not afterward again separate the experience, except with approval of the commissioner.

(2) The data shall be for all years of issue combined and for each calendar year of experience utilized in the rate determination process (but never less than the last three years). For example, for policies originally filed under this guideline, experience since inception would be required because of the utilization of the rule in Section 2B(2)(b)(ii). Here, it is permissible to combine experience for calendar years prior to the most recent five.

E. Evaluating Experience Data

In determining the credibility and appropriateness of experience data, due consideration must be given to all relevant factors, such as:

(1) Statistical credibility of premiums and benefits, e.g., low exposure, low loss frequency;

(2) Experienced and projected trends relative to the kind of coverage, e.g., inflation in medical expenses, economic cycles affecting disability income experience;

(3) The concentration of experience at early policy durations where select morbidity and preliminary term reserves are applicable and where loss ratios are expected to be substantially lower than at later policy durations. Where this consideration is pertinent, ratios of actual to expected claims, on a select basis, will often be appropriate for an adequate evaluation; and

(4) The mix of business by risk classification.

Section 2. Reasonableness of Benefits in Relation to Premiums

A. New Forms

(1) With respect to a new form under which the average annual premium as defined in Paragraph (5) below, is expected to be at least as large as the maximum $X in Paragraph (3) below but not more than the minimum $X in Paragraph (4) below, benefits shall be deemed reasonable in relation to premiums provided the anticipated loss ratio is at least as great as shown in the following table:

Type of Coverage	Renewal Clause
	OR	CR	GR	NC
Medical Expense	60%	55%	55%	50%
Loss of Income and Other	60%	55%	50%	45%

(2) Definitions of Renewal Clause

OR - Optionally Renewable: renewal is at the option of the insurance company.

CR - Conditionally Renewable: renewal can be declined by class, by geographic area or for stated reasons other than deterioration of health.

GR - Guaranteed Renewable: renewal cannot be declined by the insurance company for any reason, but the insurance company can revise rates on a class basis.

NC - Non-Cancelable: renewal cannot be declined nor can rates be revised by the insurance company.

(3) Low Average Premium Forms

For a policy form, including riders and endorsements, under which the expected average annual premium per policy is low (as defined below), the appropriate ratio from the table above should be adjusted downward by the following formula:

$$RN = R \times \frac{(I \times 500) + X}{(I \times 750)}$$

Where: R is the table ratio
RN is the resulting guideline ratio
I is the consumer price index factor
X is the average annual premium up to a maximum of I .250.

The factor I is determined as follows:

$$I = \frac{\text{CPI-U, Year (N-1)}}{\text{CPI-U, (1982)}} = \frac{\text{CPI-U, Year (N-1)}}{293.3}$$

where:

(a) (N-1) is the calendar year immediately preceding the calendar year (N) in which the rate filing is submitted in the state;

(b) CPI-U is the consumer price index for all urban consumers, for all items, and for all regions of the U.S. combined, as determined by the U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics;

(c) The CPI-U for any year (N-1) is taken as the value of September. For 1982, this value was 293.3;

(d) Hence, for rate filings submitted during calendar year 1983, the value of I is 1.00.

(4) High Average Premium Forms

For a policy form, including riders and endorsements, under which the expected average annual premium per policy is high (as defined below), the appropriate ratio from the table above should be adjusted upward by the following formula:

$$RN = R \times \frac{(I \times 4000) + X}{(I \times 5500)}$$

Where: R is the table ratio
RN is the resulting guideline ratio
I is the consumer price index factor (as defined in Paragraph (3) above), or X is an average annual premium exceeding I . 1500.

In no event, however, shall RN exceed the lesser of:

(a) R + 5 percentage points, or
(b) 63%.

(5) Determination of Average Premium

The average annual premium per policy shall be estimated by the insurer based on an anticipated distribution of business by all significant criteria having a price difference, such as age, sex, amount, dependent status, rider frequency, etc., except assuming an annual mode for all policies (i.e., the fractional premium loading shall not affect the average annual premium or anticipated loss ratio calculation).

The value of X should be determined on the basis of the rates being filed. Thus, where this adjustment is applicable to a rate revision under Section 2B of these guidelines, rather than to a new form, X should be determined on the basis of anticipated average size premium immediately after the revised rates have fully taken effect.

(6) Medicare Supplement Forms

For Medicare supplement policies, benefits shall be deemed reasonable in relation to premiums provided the anticipated loss ratio is at least sixty percent (60%).

(7) Conflict with Specific Statutes or Regulations

The above anticipated loss ratio standards do not apply to a class of business where the standards are in conflict with specific statutes or regulations.

(8) Forms with Indexing of Benefits

Certain policy forms provide for automatic indexing of benefits in relation to some base that is not subject to control by the insurer or the insured. Medicare supplement plans under which benefits automatically adjust in response to changes in the Part A or Part B deductibles under federal Medicare are a common example. Other possibilities exist, under disability income, major medical and other forms of coverage.

In such cases, the insurer should be permitted to file rates on a basis that provides for automatic adjustment of premiums, on an actuarial basis appropriate in relation to the automatic adjustment in the benefits. While such premium adjustment would thus be considered "pre-filed," to apply "automatically," it should nevertheless be subject to ongoing monitoring of the continuing loss experience and there should be some agreement with the insurer that the commissioner may require, from time to time, renewed justification that the automatic premium adjustments remain appropriate and reasonable.

B. Rate Revisions

(1) With respect to filing of rate revisions for a previously approved form, or a group of previously approved forms combined for experience, benefits shall be deemed reasonable in relation to premiums, provided the revised rates meet the standards applicable to the prior rate filing for the form or forms.

In general, the rule that applies is that any rate revision is subject to the guideline basis under which the previous rates were filed (with consideration of all relevant rating factors: morbidity, expenses, persistency, interest, etc.), and to those regulatory guidelines, if any, that were in effect at the time of the filing. Where there was no written guideline applicable to the prior rate filing, the regulatory benchmark then generally recognized, such as the 1953 NAIC benchmark (1953 Proceedings of the NAIC, Vol. II, p. 542), will continue to govern rate revisions of the prior rate filings.

(2) With respect to filings of rate revisions for a form approved subject to these guidelines, benefits will be deemed reasonable in relation to premiums provided both the following loss ratios meet the standards in Section 2A of these guidelines:

(a) The anticipated loss ratio over the entire future period for which the revised rates are computed to provide coverage;

Drafting Note: Assumptions applying to the future "period for which rates are computed" should be reasonable in relation to the circumstances. For example, if future rates of inflation are a major factor, the period of projection of such rates normally should be short, such as three to five years only. Other assumptions, however, may still appropriately apply over the entire future policy renewal period, particularly in cases where the basic rate structure is one of level premiums based on original issue age.

(b) The lifetime anticipated loss ratio derived by dividing (i) by (ii) where (i) is the sum of the accumulated benefits from the original effective date of the form to the effective date of the revision, and the present value of future benefits, and (ii) is the sum of the accumulated premiums from the original effective date of the form to the effective date of the revision, and the present value of future premiums, such present values to be taken over the entire period for which the revised rates are computed to provide coverage, and the accumulated benefits and premiums to include an explicit estimate of the actual benefits and premiums from the last date as of which an accounting has been made to the effective date of the revision. Interest shall be used in the calculation of these accumulated benefits and premiums and present values only if it is a significant factor in the calculation of this loss ratio.

C. Anticipated loss ratios lower than those indicated in Subsection B(2)(a) and (2)(b) will require justification based on the special circumstances that may be applicable.

(1) Examples of coverages requiring special consideration are as follows:

(a) Accident only;

(b) Short term non-renewable, e.g., airline trip, student accident;

(c) Specified peril, e.g., cancer, common carrier;

(d) Other special risks.

(2) (a) Examples of other factors requiring special consideration are as follows:

(i) Marketing methods, giving due consideration to acquisition and administration costs and to premium mode;

(ii) Extraordinary expenses, or, in the case of a rate increase, expenses in excess of those expected under the previous rate filing;

(iii) High risk of claim fluctuation because of the low loss frequency or the catastrophic, or experimental nature of the coverage;

(iv) Product features such as long elimination periods, high deductibles and high maximum limits; and

(v) The industrial or debit method of distribution.

(b) Companies are urged to review their experience periodically and to file rate revisions, as appropriate, in a timely manner to avoid the necessity of later filing exceptionally large rate increases.

Appendix. Rate Filing Guidelines

A basic actuarial requirement in the establishment of a premium rate scale is that the benefits provided be reasonable in relation to premiums. This requirement has been incorporated in the statutes of many jurisdictions and in the regulations and operating rules, formal and informal, of the insurance departments of probably all jurisdictions.

One of the principal objectives of these guidelines is to establish a basis for assisting both those filing rates and those responsible for regulatory review of filings in deciding whether a premium rate filing meets this requirement.

The individuals who drafted these guidelines recognized that the guidelines would be applicable to the wide range of products marketed by a diversity of methods under the general title "Individual Health Insurance." For this reason, they decided it would be inappropriate to establish rigid rules or inflexible standards. It should be recognized, therefore, that the guidelines are intended to be only guidelines, and they must be interpreted and applied flexibly.

Section 2A of the guidelines includes a table of numerical values representing loss ratios that "shall be deemed reasonable in relation to premium." This "deemer level" of loss ratio is meant to be the initial guideline test for establishing the reasonableness of the premiums in relation to benefits. Satisfying this test establishes that the premiums are reasonable in relation to benefits. However, premium rates not meeting this test may still have benefits that are reasonable in relation to premiums based on further considerations.

Other parts of Section 2, and particularly Subsection C, give examples of situations where considerations beyond the initial test would be appropriate in determining the reasonableness of premiums in relation to benefits.

Although expenses are not addressed in detail in the guidelines, the variations in loss ratio benchmarks by average annual premiums per policy is clearly intended to provide for the fact that a substantial amount of general expense is not a function of premium but is flat per policy. Thus, the guidelines intend to make realistic provision for actual expenses as incurred. As inflation causes unit expenses to rise, despite the gains from improved productivity through greater mechanization, etc., the possibility of lower loss ratios may have to be confronted for some forms.

One of the purposes of Section 1 of the guidelines is to set the requirements for rate filings. The usefulness of this section is enhanced by showing herein the minimum requirements as to the documentation of these rate filings.

In developing the checklist below, consideration was merely given to pointing out some of the factors that may be involved in calculating the rates, e.g., interest, mortality, morbidity, selection, lapse, expenses, inflation, etc., and spell out how those factors might be used in such calculations. It was felt, however, that this approach would produce details not always necessary to justify or review the rate filing while leaving out possibly essential information.

The checklists are separate for filing of rates for a new product and filing of rate increases.

The test in Section 2B(2) is an innovation of these guidelines. It seems appropriate, therefore, that this appendix include an example of how it works.

The first test in Section 2B(2)(a) is the same for a new form, new business on an existing form, or experience on existing business following a rate revision. Suppose that we are talking about an OR form with an average annual premium exceeding $X, defined in the guidelines, and the new rates are originally set to provide the benchmark loss ratio of sixty percent (60%).

When the new rates are applied to existing business in force and we calculate the present value of future premiums and benefits, we obtain the following results.

Table 1 - Future Projection

	Present Value at Current Volume from next year anniversaries
Premiums	$30,000,000
Benefits	18,000,000
Loss Ratio	.60

Then we look at the accumulated experience for the past. Suppose it can be summarized as follows: The poor recent experience has prompted the need for the current increase request.

Table 2 - Accumulated Experience

	Prior to 3 years	Last 3 years	From last year end to next anniversary	Total
Premiums	$50,000,000	$10,000,000	$10,000,000	$70,000,000
Benefits	20,000,000	9,000,000	11,000,000	40,000,000
Loss Ratio	.400	.900	1.100	.571

When the accumulated and present value figures are combined, the following results appear.

Table 3 - Combined Experiences

	Accumulated	Present Value	Total
Premiums	$70,000,000	$30,000,000	$100,000,000
Benefits	40,000,000	18,000,000	58,000,000
Loss Ratio	.571	.600	.580

The test in Section 2B(2)(b) is not met.

With respect to future premiums on the existing volume, the rates proposed must be reduced so that the .58 result is increased to .60. Since the benefits are what they are and the present value is settled, we can work backwards to determine that the total premiums must be $96,666,667 ($58,000,000 - .60). Thus the present value of future premiums must be $26,666,667 and the proposed rates, applicable to new business, must be reduced by one-ninth, with respect to the existing volume. The new table which meets the Section 2B(2)(b) test is as follows.

Table 4 - Revised Combined Experiences

	Accumulated	Present Value	Total
Premiums	$70,000,000	$26,666,667	$96,666,667
Benefits	40,000,000	18,000,000	58,000,000
Loss Ratio	.571	.675	.600

The next rate increase request will depend on how experience develops, if the company wishes to charge the same rates for new business and renewal, one way it could do so would be by reducing the rates otherwise proposed for new business. An alternative approach would be to combine the experience under new and existing business in a similar analysis to arrive at a single rate structure applying to both.

If the early experience under the form was poor, the losses would not be recoverable. Suppose, for instance, that only the last three years and the estimate for the last year-end to the next year's anniversary in the above example existed and the proposed new business rates applied. Then, the following test from Section 2B(2)(b) appears:

Table 5 - Alternate Combined Experiences

	Accumulated	Present Value	Total
Premiums	$20,000,000	$30,000,000	$50,000,000
Benefits	20,000,000	18,000,000	38,000,000
Loss Ratio	1.000	.600	.760

While the present value of future premiums could be increased under the Section 2B(2)(b) test to recover past losses and still meet the 60% benchmark, the test in Section 2B(2)(a) would preclude such an increase.

It is believed that this test will be rather simple to apply, in practice, from readily available records. It will be an effective tool in reviewing the reasonableness of rate increases.

Section 2B, as amended, is not intended to substitute new standards retroactively in place of standards in effect before the date of these guidelines. It is not intended that the rules be changed in the middle of the contract period. On the other hand, the principles of these guidelines may have been implicit in a state's former rules and guidelines.

It should be emphasized again that the tests in Section 2A and 2B have to do with benchmarks, not legal minimums. Section 2C mentions some situations in which lower loss ratios may be justifiable. If, however, a rate submission meets the benchmark standards and includes full documentation as described in the guidelines and this appendix, the requirement that benefits be reasonable in relation to premiums should be considered met.

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. To perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

NONCANCELLABLE AND GUARANTEED RENEWABLE TERMINOLOGY DEFINED

Table of Contents

Section 1. Applicability

The terms "non-cancellable" or "non-cancellable and guaranteed renewable" may be used only in a policy which the insured has the right to continue in force by the timely payment of premiums set forth in the policy until at least age fifty (50), or in the case of a policy issued after age forty-four (44), for at least five (5) years from its date of issue, during which period the insurer has no right to make unilaterally any change in any provision of the policy while the policy is in force.

Section 2. Guaranteed Renewable Policies Defined

Except as provided above, the term "guaranteed renewable" may be used only in a policy that the insured has the right to continue in force by the timely payment of premiums until at least age fifty (50), or in the case of a policy issued after age forty-four (44), for at least five (5) years from its date of issue, during which period the insurer has no right to make unilaterally any change in any provision of the policy while the policy is in force, except that the insurer may make changes in premium rates by classes.

The foregoing limitation on use of the term "non-cancellable" shall also apply to any synonymous term such as "guaranteed continuable."

Nothing herein contained is intended to restrict the development of policies having other guarantees of renewability, or to prevent the accurate description of their terms of renewability or the classification of such policies as guaranteed renewable or non-cancellable for any period during which they may actually be such, provided the terms used to describe them in policy contracts and advertising are not such as may readily be confused with the above terms.

Comment: These minimum requirements have been prepared in an effort to make the language conform as closely as possible with various suggestions in the past and to be consistent with existing NAIC language, with state rulings, letters and existing law, and with the U.S. Senate Committee Report on HR 4245 of 1959 (life insurance company taxation). The recommended limiting ages are consistent with the NAIC Uniform Individual Accident and Sickness Policy Provisions Law with the definition used in 1956 (See 1956 NAIC Proceedings II 293) and with the definition in California's law for non-cancellable insurance. We further recommend that your committee affirm the opinion that any required or optional provision contained in the 1950 NAIC Uniform Individual Accident and Sickness Policy Provisions Law which may be used in a "non-cancellable" or "non-cancellable and guaranteed renewable" policy may also be used in a "guaranteed renewable policy."

Drafting Note: Section 7 of the NAIC Rules Governing the Advertisement of Accident and Sickness Insurance provides that any advertisement of a policy which refers to renewability or cancellability must disclose in a manner which would not minimize or render obscure any qualifications relating to renewability or cancellability. The same requirement of clear disclosure should also apply with respect to policy forms.

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

OFF-LABEL DRUG USE MODEL ACT

Table of Contents

Drafting Note: Each state should determine where the provisions of this model act should be incorporated into its statutory or regulatory scheme. For example, it might be appropriate to include these provisions in a state's Unfair Trade Practices Act.

Section 1. Purpose

In order to prevent unfair discrimination among insured persons in this state and to prohibit unfair competition among health carriers that include coverage for drugs as part of health benefit plans, standards for payment or reimbursement of costs associated with prescription drugs are required. Some health benefit plans deny payment for drugs that have been approved by the federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA) when the drugs are used for indications other than those stated in the labeling approved by the FDA (this use is hereinafter referred to as "off-label use") while other health benefit plans with similar drug coverage pay or reimburse for off-label use. Denial of payment or reimbursement for off-label use can interrupt or effectively deny access to necessary and appropriate treatment for persons being treated for life-threatening illnesses. In addition, drugs for off-label use may provide efficacious treatment at a lower cost.

Drafting Note: States may want to consider utilizing the term "lawfully marketed to be prescribed for at least one indication" instead of the term "approved by the FDA" in this section and throughout this model. States that elect to utilize the term "lawfully marketed to be prescribed for at least one indication" may also want to define the term "prescribed" to be limited to the lawful prescriptive authority of the state.

Section 2. Scope

This Act applies to all health benefit plans that are issued, amended, delivered or renewed on or after the effective date of this Act and provide coverage for drugs, and to all persons making determinations regarding payment of reimbursement for prescription drugs under these health benefit plans.

Drafting Note: States that have appropriate statutory authority may wish to consider framing this model as a regulation rather than as an Act.

Section 3. Definitions

A. "Commissioner" means the commissioner of insurance.

Drafting Note: Insert the title of the chief insurance regulatory official wherever the term "commissioner" appears.

B. "Drug" or "drugs" means any substance prescribed by a licensed health care provider acting within the scope of the provider's license and that is intended for use in the diagnosis, mitigation, treatment or prevention of disease that is taken by mouth; injected into a muscle, the skin, a blood vessel or cavity of the body; applied to the skin; or otherwise assimilated by the body. The term includes only those substances that are approved by the FDA for at least one indication.

C. "FDA" means the federal Food and Drug Administration.

D. "Health benefit plan" means a risk transferring contract entered into to provide, deliver, arrange for, pay for or reimburse the cost of health care services.

E. "Health carrier" means a person that contracts or offers to contract on a risk assuming basis to provide, deliver, arrange for, pay for, or reimburse any of the cost of health care services unless the person assuming the risk is accepting the risk from a duly licensed health carrier.

F. "Peer-reviewed medical literature" means a published scientific study in a journal or other publication in which original manuscripts have been published only after having been critically reviewed for scientific accuracy, validity and reliability by unbiased independent experts, and that has been determined by the International Committee of Medical Journal Editors to have met the Uniform Requirements for Manuscripts submitted to biomedical journals. Peer-reviewed medical literature does not include publications or supplements to publications that are sponsored to a significant extent by a pharmaceutical manufacturing company or health carrier.

G. "Standard reference compendia" means:

(1) The American Hospital Formulary Service-Drug Information;

(2) The American Medical Association Drug Evaluation; or

(3) The United States Pharmacopoeia-Drug Information.

Section 4. Minimum Standards of Coverage

A. A health benefit plan that provides coverage for drugs shall provide for any drug prescribed to treat a covered indication so long as the drug has been approved by the FDA for at least one indication, if the drug is recognized for treatment of the covered indication in one of the standard reference compendia or in substantially accepted peer-reviewed medical literature.

B. Coverage of a drug required by this section shall also include medically necessary services associated with the administration of the drug.

C. This section shall not be construed to require coverage for a drug when the FDA has determined its use to be contra-indicated for treatment of the current indication.

D. A drug use that is covered by reason of Subsection A shall not be denied coverage based on a "medical necessity" requirement except for reasons that are unrelated to the legal status of the drug use.

E. The following drugs or services shall not be subject to coverage under Subsection A:

(1) Drugs that are used in research trials sponsored by their manufacturers or a government entity; or

(2) Drugs or services furnished in a research trial, if the sponsor of the research trial furnishes the drugs or services without charge to any participant in the research trial.

Drafting Note: Some states may wish to authorize the commissioner to appoint a panel of medical experts to review specific indications and make written recommendations for approval by the commissioner as to what drugs are recognized for treatment in substantially accepted peer-reviewed medical literature. States choosing to authorize this procedure would need to add language to Section 4A to include drugs recognized and approved by the commissioner through this peer-review panel process. States may wish to ensure that members of such panels have training in assessing new drugs or new usage of existing drugs, follow scientifically sound and objective protocols, and have no financial or other conflicts of interest. A review panel would be subject to the state administrative procedures and open meetings laws.

Section 5. Effective Date

This Act is effective on [insert date].

NEWBORN AND ADOPTED CHILDREN COVERAGE MODEL ACT

Table of Contents

Section 1. Title

This Act shall be known and may be cited as the Newborn and Adopted Children Coverage Act.

Drafting Note: In some states existing statutes may provide the commissioner with sufficient authority to promulgate the provisions of this Act in a regulation format. States should review existing authority and determine whether to adopt this model as an act or adapt it to promulgate as a regulation.

Section 2. Purpose and Intent

The purpose of this Act is to provide for uniformity of coverage requirements for newborn and newly adopted children and children placed for adoption under both group and individual health benefit plans.

Drafting Note: This model was designed to promote the uniformity of coverage for newborn infants under both individual and group health benefit plans. It was proposed by outside organizations to the NAIC as a way to clarify that a plan that provides coverage for dependents should cover a newborn from the moment of birth. 1974 Proc I 413, 415. Since its endorsement in 1973, a majority of health benefit plans now provide coverage consistent with the model's intent and purpose for both individual and group health benefit plans. The Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA) requires, for the group health benefit plans only, health carriers to provide immediate coverage to newborn children from the moment of birth, newly adopted children from the date of adoption and children placed for adoption from the date of placement. This revised model retains the model's purpose to require coverage of newborn children from the moment of birth and extends these coverage requirements for individual health benefit plans to newly adopted children and children placed for adoption, including preexisting exclusion provision requirements.

Section 3. Definitions

For purposes of this Act:

A. "Commissioner" means the Commissioner of Insurance.

Drafting Note: Use the title of the chief insurance regulatory official wherever the term "commissioner" appears. If the jurisdiction of certain health carriers, such as health maintenance organizations, lies with some state agency other than the insurance department, or if there is dual regulation, a state should add language referencing that agency to ensure the appropriate coordination of responsibilities.

B. "Covered benefits" or "benefits" means those health care services to which a covered person is entitled under the terms of a health benefit plan.

C. "Covered person" means a policyholder, subscriber, enrollee or other individual participating in a health benefit plan.

D. "Dependent" shall be defined in the same manner as in [insert reference to state insurance law defining dependent].

Drafting Note: States without a statutory definition of dependent may wish to use the definition below. If using the suggested definition, status should insert a maximum age for student dependents that is consistent with other state laws. States also may wish to include other individuals defined as dependents by state law. The term child below is not intended to be limited to natural children of the covered person.

"Dependent" means a spouse, an unmarried child under the age of [nineteen (19)] years, an unmarried child who is a full-time student under the age of [insert maximum age] and who is financially dependent upon the covered person, and an unmarried child of any age who is medically certified as disabled and dependent upon the covered person.

E. "Health benefit plan" means a policy, contract, certificate or agreement offered or issued by a health carrier to provide, deliver, arrange for, pay for or reimburse any of the costs of health care services.

F. "Health care services" means services for the diagnosis, prevention, treatment, cure or relief of a health condition, illness, injury or disease.

G. "Health carrier" means an entity subject to the insurance laws and regulations of this state, or subject to the jurisdiction of the commissioner, that contracts or offers to contract to provide, deliver, arrange for, pay for or reimburse any of the costs of health care services, including a sickness and accident insurance company, a health maintenance organization, a nonprofit hospital and health service corporation, or any other entity providing a plan of health insurance, health benefits or health care services.

H. "Health maintenance organization" means a person that undertakes to provide or arrange for the delivery of health care services to covered persons on a prepaid basis, except for a covered person's responsibility for copayments, coinsurance or deductibles.

Section 4. Applicability

A. Except as provided in Subsection B, this Act shall apply to health benefit plans that provide coverage for a dependent of a covered person.

B. The provisions of this Act shall not apply to a health benefit plan that provides coverage only for a specified disease, specified accident or accident-only coverage, credit, dental, disability income, hospital indemnity or other fixed indemnity coverage, long-term care insurance, as defined by [insert reference in state law that defines long-term care insurance], vision care or any other supplemental benefit or to a Medicare supplement policy, coverage under a plan through Medicare, Medicaid or the federal employees health benefits program, any coverage issued under Chapter 55 of Title 10, U.S. Code and any coverage issued as supplemental to that coverage, any coverage issued as supplemental to liability insurance, workers' compensation or similar insurance, automobile medical-payment insurance or any insurance under which benefits are payable with or without regard to fault, whether written on a group blanket or individual basis.

Section 5. Coverage Requirements

A. Each health benefit plan subject to this Act shall provide coverage to:

(1) A newborn child of a covered person from the moment of birth; or

(2) A newly adopted child of a covered person from the earlier of:

(a) The date of placement for the purpose of adoption and continues in the same manner as other dependents of the covered person unless the placement is disrupted prior to legal adoption and the child is removed from placement;

(b) The date of entry of an order granting the covered person custody of the child for purposes of adoption; or

(c) The effective date of adoption.

B. To the extent the health care service or treatment is a covered benefit under the health benefit plan and the birth, adoption or placement of adoption described under Subsection A occurs while the covered person is eligible for coverage under the health benefit plan, the coverage required under Subsection A:

(1) Shall consist of coverage of injury or sickness including the necessary care and treatment of medically diagnosed congenital defects and birth abnormalities; and

(2) Is not subject to any preexisting condition exclusion.

Section 6. Notification Requirements

A. For a newborn child:

(1) If payment of a specific premium or subscription fee is required to provide coverage for a newborn child, as described in Section 5 of this Act, the health benefit plan may require the covered person to notify the health carrier of the birth of the child and furnish payment of the required premium or fees be furnished to the health carrier within sixty (60) days after the date of birth.

(2) If notice is not provided, the health carrier may refuse to continue coverage for the child under the health benefit plan beyond the sixty-day period unless within four (4) months after the birth of the child the covered person makes all past-due payments and in addition pays interest on the payments at the rate of 5 1/2% per year.

(3) If payment of a specific premium or subscription fee is not required to provide coverage for a newborn child under the health benefit plan, the health carrier may request notification of the birth of the child, but shall not deny or refuse to continue coverage if the covered person does not furnish the notice.

B. For a newly adopted child or child placed for adoption:

(1) If payment of a specific premium or subscription fee is required to provide coverage under the health benefit plan for a newly adopted child or child placed for adoption, as described in Section 5 of this Act, the health benefit plan may require the covered person to notify the health carrier of the adoption or placement for adoption and furnish payment of the required premium or fees to the health carrier within sixty (60) days after coverage is required to begin under Section 5A(2) of this Act.

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. To perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2005

NEWBORN AND ADOPTED CHILDREN COVERAGE MODEL ACT (#155)

1. Description of the project, issues addressed, etc.

This model was identified last year as in need of revision as part of the NAIC model law review initiative. The revisions make the model consistent with HIPAA with respect to the group market requirements for coverage of newborns and newly adopted children while also extending these coverages to the individual market.

2. Name of group responsible for draft the model:

Regulatory Framework (B) Task Force

States Participating:

Wisconsin, Chair
Arkansas	Nebraska
California	Nevada
Colorado	New Hampshire
Delaware	New Mexico
Florida	North Carolina
Idaho	Rhode Island
Iowa	Vermont
Kansas	Virginia
Louisiana	West Virginia

3. Project authorized by what charge and date first given to the group:

The following charge given in January 2004:

Review and revise, as necessary, NAIC model laws and regulations identified as in need of review and revision as a result of the NAIC model law review initiative. Report annually.

4. A general description of the drafting process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated.

The revisions, and comments received on them, were reviewed and discussed by the task force.

5. A general description of the due process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited.

Each draft of the proposed revisions to the model was circulated to interested parties and posted on the NAIC website. Interested parties were given the opportunity to submit comments. The task force reviewed and considered all comments received.

6. A discussion of the significant issues (items of some controversy) raised during the due process and the group's response.

The only controversial issue that was raised was the length of time that a parent should be given to notify the health carrier of a newly born child or newly adopted child. The original model provided for a 31-day notification period. Task force members were concerned that this time frame was too short, and a 60-day notification period was proposed. One task force member suggested having a 1-year notification period for newborn children. After extensive discussion, the task force compromised and approved, for newborns only, a four-month notification period.

7. Any other important information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard).

None.

F. "Type of insurance" means those coverages listed on the NAIC Uniform Life, Accident and Health, Annuity and Credit Product Coding Matrix or any successor document under the headings "Continuing Care Retirement Communities," "Health," "Long Term Care" and "Medicare Supplement."

Section 4. Applicability and Scope

This [Act] [Regulation] shall apply to any individual or group policy form issued by an accident and health carrier required to be filed with the commissioner for review or approval.

Section 5. Due Diligence

All parties in the filing process shall act in good faith and with due diligence in performance of their duties pursuant to this [Act][regulation].

Section 6. Review Procedures

A. Subject to the provisions of this section, no policy form subject to this [Act] [regulation] shall be delivered or issued for delivery in this state, unless it has been filed with and approved by the commissioner.

B. (1) The commissioner shall create a document containing filing requirements for each type of insurance. The document shall contain a list of all product filing requirements contained in the statutes, regulations and published bulletins in this state having the force and effect of law, with appropriate citations to each, including the citation for the type of insurance that is required to be filed, and shall be available on the Insurance Department Internet site.

(2) The commissioner shall update the document no less frequently than annually, and within thirty (30) days of any change in law, regulation or bulletin published by the commissioner having the force and effect of law in this state requiring its amendment.

C. A filer shall submit a copy of the document with a policy form filing, indicating the location within the policy form or supplemental documents for each requirement contained in the document, and certifying that the policy form meets all requirements of state law.

D. The commissioner shall review and approve, provide notice of deficiencies or disapprove the initial filing within sixty (60) days of receipt. Any notice of deficiencies or disapproval shall be in writing and based only on the specific provisions of applicable statutes, regulations or bulletins published by the commissioner having the force and effect of law in this state and contained in the document created by the commissioner pursuant to Subsection B. The notice of deficiencies or disapproval shall provide the reasons for notice of deficiencies or disapproval and sufficient detail for the filer to bring the policy form into compliance, and shall cite the specific statutes, regulations or bulletins upon which the notice of deficiencies or disapproval is based.

E. A filer may resubmit a policy form that corrects any deficiencies or resubmit a disapproved policy form, and a revised certification, within thirty (30) days of its receipt of the commissioner's notice of deficiencies or disapproval. Any policy form not resubmitted within thirty (30) days of the notice of deficiencies shall be deemed withdrawn. Any disapproved policy form not resubmitted within thirty (30) days is disapproved.

Drafting Note: States should review statutory language with regard to the insurer's right to a hearing upon policy form disapproval to ensure consistent terminology.

F. At the end of the review period, the form is deemed approved if the commissioner has taken no action.

G. (1) The commissioner shall review the resubmitted filing and certification, and shall approve or disapprove it within thirty (30) days. Notice of deficiencies or disapproval shall be in writing and shall provide a detailed description of the reasons for the disapproval and sufficient detail for the filer to bring the policy form into compliance and shall cite the specific statutes, regulations, or bulletins upon which the disapproval is based. No further extensions of time may be taken unless the filer has introduced new provisions in the resubmission or the filer has materially modified any substantive provisions of the policy form, in which case the commissioner may extend the time for review by an additional thirty (30) days. At the end of the review period, the policy form is deemed approved if the commissioner has taken no action.

(2) (a) Subject to Subparagraph (b) of this paragraph, the commissioner may not disapprove a resubmitted policy form for reasons other than those initially set forth in the original notice of deficiencies or disapproval sent pursuant to Subsection D.

(b) The commissioner may disapprove a resubmitted policy form for reasons other than those initially set forth in the original notice of deficiencies or disapproval sent pursuant to Subsection D if:

(i) The filer has introduced new provisions in the resubmission;

(ii) The filer has materially modified any substantive provisions of the policy form;

(iii) There has been a change in statutes, regulations or published bulletins in this state having the force and effect of law; or

(iv) There has been reviewer error and the written disapproval fails to state a specific provision of applicable statute, regulation or bulletin published by the commissioner having the force and effect of law in this state that is necessary to have the policy form conform to the requirements of law.

H. Notwithstanding any other provision in this section, the commissioner may return a grossly inadequate filing to the filer without triggering any of the time deadlines set forth in this section. For purposes of this subsection, a "grossly inadequate filing" means a filing that fails to provide key information, including state-specific information, regarding a product, policy or rate, or that demonstrates an insufficient understanding of what is required to comply with state statutes or regulations.

OPTIONAL PROVISION

Section 7. Self-Certification Option

A. A filer may elect to self-certify its policy forms pursuant to the requirements of this section and opt out of the review procedures of Section 6 of this [Act] [regulation].

B. (1) A valid self-certification shall be made by the [appropriate company officer] and shall be on a form prescribed by the commissioner certifying that the policy form meets all requirements of state law and that the filer intends to forego the review process.

(2) A filer shall submit a copy of the document created by the commissioner pursuant to Section 6B of this [Act][regulation], with a policy form filing, indicating the location within the policy form for each requirement contained in the document.

C. (1) If the commissioner determines that there are material errors or omissions in a policy form that has been self-certified, then the commissioner may review and disapprove the policy form. The commissioner shall notify the filer in writing of the reasons for the disapproval. Any disapproval shall be based only on the specific provisions of applicable statutes, regulations or bulletins published by the commissioner having the force and effect of law in this state and contained in the document created by the commissioner pursuant to Section 6B of this [Act][regulation]. The notice shall provide a detailed description of the reasons for disapproval and sufficient detail for the filer to bring the policy form into compliance, and shall cite the specific statutes, regulations, or bulletins upon which the disapproval is based.

(2) If a self-certified filing is disapproved, the commissioner may order the filer to take appropriate actions with respect to existing policyholders.

(3) A filer may correct any deficiencies and resubmit a disapproved policy form within sixty (60) days of its receipt of the commissioner's notice of disapproval. Any disapproved policy form not resubmitted within sixty (60) days shall be deemed withdrawn.

(4) (a) The commissioner shall review the resubmitted filing and may approve or disapprove it within thirty (30) days. Notice of disapproval shall be in writing and shall provide a detailed description of the reasons for the disapproval, specific recommendations for compliance and shall cite the specific statutes, regulations or bulletins upon which the disapproval is based. No further extensions of time may be taken unless the filer has introduced new provisions in the resubmission or the filer has materially modified any substantive provisions of the policy form, in which case the commissioner mayextend the time for review by an additional thirty (30) days. At the end of the review period, the policy form is deemed approved if the commissioner has taken no action.

(b) (i) Except as provided in Item (ii), the commissioner may not disapprove a resubmitted policy form for reasons other than those initially set forth in the original disapproval letter sent pursuant to Paragraph (1) of this subsection.

(ii) The commissioner may disapprove a resubmitted policy form for reasons other than those initially set forth in the original notice of disapproval sent pursuant to Paragraph (1) of this subsection if the filer has introduced new provisions in the resubmission or if the filer has materially modified any substantive provisions of the policy form.

D. If the commissioner has made a finding pursuant to Subsection C(1), the self-certification option is no longer available to that filer for a time period to be determined by the commissioner.]

Drafting Note: States that do not want to allow a self-certification option should not adopt this section.

Section 8. Effect of Deemer Provision

Except in cases of a material error or omission in a policy form that has been approved or deemed approved pursuant to the provisions of this [Act][regulation], the commissioner shall not:

A. Retroactively disapprove that filing; or

B. With respect to those policy forms, examine the filer during a routine or targeted market conduct examination for compliance with any later-enacted policy form filing requirements.

Section 9. Effect of Subsequent Law Changes

Unless otherwise required by statute, no rules or regulations issued by the commissioner impacting product filings shall be applicable to existing approved or deemed-approved policy forms except upon policy renewal or anniversary date.

Section 10. Rate Filings and Marketing Materials

If a rate filing or marketing material is required to be filed or approved by state law for a specific policy form, the time frames for review, approval or disapproval, resubmission, and re-review of those rates or materials shall be the same as those provided for in Sections 6 and 7 of this [Act][regulation] for the review of policy forms.

Section 11. Effective Date

This [Act] [Regulation] shall be effective for health policy forms and rates filed on or after [insert date].

PROJECT HISTORY - 2006

HEALTH PLAN RATE AND FORM FILING MODEL [ACT][REGULATION] (#165)

1. Description of the project, issues addressed, etc.

This model regulation was drafted to implement rate and form filing process standards for health insurance.

2. Name of group responsible for drafting the model:

Rate and Form Filing (B) Working Group

States Participating:

Kansas (chair), Arkansas, Florida, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, Texas, Utah, Wisconsin

3. Project authorized by what charge and date first given to the group:

The working group completed the following 2005 charge:

> Review issues surrounding existing rate and form filing processes with respect to regulatory modernization and determine whether national uniform processing standards are appropriate. If so, recommend an appropriate vehicle to achieve goals. Report by Winter 2006 National Meeting.

4. A general description of the drafting process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated.

The working group drafted the model. States on the working group actively contributed comments on drafts. Trade associations, including America's Health Insurance Plans (AHIP), and the American Council of Life Insurers (ACLI), participated in the process.

5. A general description of the due process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited.

The first draft of the model regulation is dated July 21, 2005. It was reviewed by the working group in September 2005, and a new draft was issued on February 10, 2006. It was adopted by the Working Group on March 6, 2006. Comment letters were received and considered throughout the drafting process.

6. A discussion of the significant issues (items of some controversy) raised during the due process and the group's response.

Rather than being controversial, issues were discussed regarding definitions, appropriate timeframes, and the various steps of the process. A self-certification option for insurers is optional to the states.

7. Any other important information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard).

SUPPLEMENTARY AND SHORT-TERM HEALTH INSURANCE MINIMUM STANDARDS MODEL ACT

Table of Contents

Section 1. Purpose

The purpose of this Act is to standardize and simplify the terms and coverages, to facilitate public understanding and comparison, to eliminate provisions that may be misleading or unreasonably confusing in connection either with the purchase of these coverages or with the settlement of claims and to provide for full disclosure in the sale of supplementary and short-term health insurance, as defined in this Act.

Section 2. Applicability and Scope

A. This Act shall apply to individual and group insurance policies and certificates providing hospital indemnity or other fixed indemnity insurance, accident only, specified accident, specified disease, limited benefit health, and disability income protection, referred to collectively in Section 1 of this Act and hereafter, as "supplementary health insurance." This Act also applies to short-term, limited-duration health insurance coverage, which, unless otherwise specified, is included in the definition of "short-term health insurance" under this Act.

Drafting Note: Subsection A includes short-term, limited-duration health insurance within the scope of this Act. Although, short-term, limited-duration health insurance is not an "excepted benefit," as the other listed coverages, short-term, limited-duration coverage has been included in this Act because it is not considered individual health insurance under federal law and, as such, is not subject to the individual market reforms under the federal Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA) or the federal Affordable Care Act (ACA).

Drafting Note: The term "individual" as used in this Act corresponds to its use in the NAIC Uniform Individual Accident and Sickness Policy Provision Law (#180), thus extending the coverage of the Act to "family" policies. The term "group" as used in this Act corresponds to its use in the NAIC Group Health Insurance Standards Model Act (#100).

Drafting Note: States should be aware that generally, Section 1251 of the ACA exempts coverage from most reforms in Subtitles A and C of Title 1 of the ACA if the coverage was in force as of March 23, 2010, the date on which the ACA was signed into law, and the terms of coverage have not materially changed. This coverage is known as "grandfathered health plan coverage." However, Section 1251 of the ACA specifically applies certain provisions of the ACA from which such coverage would otherwise be exempt. Some of these provisions apply to all grandfathered health plans, while other provisions apply only to grandfathered group health insurance plans. To the extent provisions of the PHSA, ERISA and the Internal Revenue Code (IRC) do not apply as amended by the ACA to a grandfathered plan, the pre-ACA versions of those provisions will continue to apply. In general, grandfathered plans must also comply with all applicable state laws; the only express preemption provision in the ACA is the prohibition against states including grandfathered plans in the rating pool for non-grandfathered plans. The standards for grandfathered plans, including the requirements for maintaining grandfathered status, are found in the final regulations on grandfathered plans (26 CFR 54.9815-1251, 29 CFR 2590.715-1251 and 45 CFR 147.140), as published in the Federal Register Nov. 18, 2015 (80 FR 72191).

B. This Act shall apply to limited scope dental coverage and limited scope vision coverage only as specified.

C. This Act shall not apply to:

(1) Medicare supplement policies subject to [insert reference to state law equivalent to the NAIC Medicare Supplement Insurance Minimum Standards Model Act (#650)];

(2) Long-term care insurance policies subject to [insert reference to state law equivalent to the NAIC Long-Term Care Insurance Model Act (#640)]; or

Drafting Note: The NAIC Long-Term Care Insurance Model Act (#640) defines long-term care insurance as a policy that provides coverage for not less than twelve months. If a state allows issuance of policies that provide benefits similar to long-term care insurance for a period of less than twelve months, then those policies should be considered limited long-term care insurance plans, and should be subject to the Limited Long-Term Care Insurance Model Act (#642) and the Limited Long-Term Care Insurance Model Regulation (#643).

(3) TRICARE formerly known as the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (Chapter 55, title 10, of the United States Code) (CHAMPUS) supplement insurance policies.

Drafting Note: TRICARE supplement insurance is not subject to federal regulation. TRICARE supplement policies are sold only to eligible individuals as determined by the Department of Defense and are tied to TRICARE benefits. In general, states regulate TRICARE supplement insurance policies under the state group or individual insurance laws.

Section 3. Definitions

A. "Certificate" means a statement of the coverage and provisions of a policy of group supplementary and short-term health insurance, which has been delivered or issued for delivery in this state and includes riders, endorsements and enrollment forms, if attached.

B. "Commissioner" means the insurance commissioner of this state.

Drafting Note: Where the word "commissioner" appears in this Act, the appropriate designation for the chief insurance supervisory official of the state should be substituted.

C. "Direct response solicitation" means a communication through a sponsoring or endorsing entity or individually through mail, telephone, the internet or other mass communication media.

D. "Form" means policies, certificates, contracts, riders, endorsements and applications as provided in [insert reference to state law regarding the filing and approval of supplementary and short-term health insurance policy forms].

Drafting Note: This definition may be unnecessary if the term "form" is appropriately defined elsewhere, but it may be helpful to include it here with an appropriate cross-reference.

E. "Hospital indemnity or other fixed indemnity insurance" refers to coverage that provides benefits on an independent, non-coordinated basis and that pays a fixed amount for specified events without regard to other insurance.

Drafting Note: "Hospital indemnity or other fixed indemnity insurance" does not include any other type or category of insurance that is listed separately as an excepted benefit in Section 2791(c) of the federal Public Health Service Act (PHSA) (e.g., disability income protection coverage, specified disease coverage, etc.) regardless of whether benefits under such coverage are paid as a fixed dollar amount.

F. "Limited scope dental coverage" means insurance that provides coverage substantially all of which is for treatment of the mouth, including any organ or structure within the mouth, which is provided under a separate policy, certificate or contract of insurance or is otherwise not an integral part of a group benefit plan.

G. "Limited scope vision coverage" means insurance that provides coverage substantially all of which is for treatment of the eye, which is provided under a separate policy, certificate or contract of insurance or is otherwise not an integral part of a group benefit plan.

H. "Policy" means the entire contract between the insurer and the insured, including riders, endorsements and the application, if attached.

I. "Short-term, limited-duration insurance" means health insurance coverage offered or provided within the state pursuant to a contract by a health carrier, regardless of the situs of the delivery of the contract, that has an expiration date specified in the contract that is less than [X days or months] after the original effective date and, taking into account any extensions that may be elected by the policyholder with or without the carrier's consent, has a duration no longer than [X days or months] after the original effective date of the contract.

Drafting Note: Subsection I does not include a potential maximum length of coverage for short-term, limited duration insurance. States have established different terms and durations of coverage for short-term, limited-duration insurance, if such coverage can be sold. Some states have prohibited the sale of such products, while others have set the maximum duration of coverage at less than 12 months, such as establishing a three-month maximum. In addition, some states provide that such coverage may not be renewed or extended beyond the established term, or have otherwise limited total duration, while other states have no such provisions regarding renewal or extension. The current federal regulations, which were effective Oct. 2, 2018, limit short-term, limited-duration insurance contracts to less than twelve months and, taking into account renewals or extensions, to a maximum duration of no longer than 36 months in total. States should carefully examine their health insurance markets to determine the appropriate maximum term and duration for such plans, including whether renewability or extension of such coverage is appropriate and consistent with federal law. States should also ensure that any other definitions of short-term limited-duration insurance that are used in statutes that provide exemptions from otherwise applicable regulatory requirements are consistent with the definition used above in order to prevent gaps in regulatory authority.

J. (1) "Supplementary and short-term health insurance" means insurance written under [insert reference to state law authorizing supplementary and short-term health insurance].

(2) "Supplementary and short-term health insurance" does not include credit accident and sickness insurance.

Drafting Note: The phrase "supplementary and short-term health" should be replaced by "accident and disability," "accident and health," or other phrase appropriate under state law.

Section 4. Standards for Policy Provisions

A. The commissioner shall issue regulations to establish specific standards, including standards of full and fair disclosure, that set forth the manner, content and required disclosure for the sale of supplementary and short-term health insurance subject to this Act. The commissioner may issue additional regulations to establish specific standards for the sale of limited scope dental and limited scope vision coverage. This Act and any regulations issued pursuant to this Act shall be in addition to and in accordance with applicable laws of this state, including the [insert reference to state law equivalent to the NAIC Uniform Individual Accident and Sickness Policy Provision Law (#180)], which may cover, but shall not be limited to:

(1) Terms of renewability or extension of coverage;

(2) Initial and subsequent conditions of eligibility;

(3) Nonduplication of coverage provisions;

(4) Coverage of dependents;

(5) Preexisting conditions and pre-existing condition exclusions;

(6) Termination of insurance;

(7) Probationary periods;

(8) Limitations;

(9) Exceptions;

(10) Reductions;

(11) Elimination periods;

(12) Requirements for replacement;

(13) Recurrent conditions;

(14) The definition of terms, including but not limited to, the following: hospital, accident, sickness, injury, physician, accidental means, total disability, partial disability, mental or nervous disorder, guaranteed renewable and noncancelable; and

(15) Any maximum duration of coverage.

Drafting Note: States may want to consider reviewing issues surrounding post-claims underwriting possibly using their state unfair practices law or regulation, or other appropriate state law or regulation, to address issues, such as policy rescissions in instances of fraud and intentional misrepresentation.

Drafting Note: This section authorizes the commissioner to establish specific standards to facilitate public understanding of policy provisions. The section does not alter the requirements of the NAIC Uniform Individual Accident and Sickness Policy Provision Law (UPPL) (#180) or other specifically applicable state laws dealing with individual policy provisions. Regulations adopted under this section should be consistent with the UPPL and other applicable state laws relating to the subject matter. The phrase "including standards of full and fair disclosure" provides the commissioner authority to establish standards that ensure policy provisions are technically accurate, in clear language and make the significance of policy provisions fully understandable.

B. The commissioner may issue regulations that specify prohibited policies or policy provisions not otherwise specifically authorized by statute which, in the opinion of the commissioner, are unjust, unfair, or unfairly discriminatory to the policyholder, a person insured under the policy, or to a beneficiary of the policy.

Section 5. Minimum Standards for Benefits

A. The commissioner shall issue regulations to establish minimum standards for benefits under specified categories of coverage of supplementary and short-term health insurance subject to this Act.

B. The regulation shall set minimum standards for benefits for the following categories of supplementary coverage:

(1) Hospital indemnity or other fixed indemnity coverage;

(2) Disability income protection coverage;

(3) Accident only coverage;

(4) Specified disease coverage;

(5) Specified accident coverage; and

Drafting Note: "Specified disease coverage" or "specified accident coverage" refers to coverage that contains exclusions, limitations, reductions, or conditions that limit the payments of benefits under the policy or contract to a specified frequency and/or amounts. Examples of a specified disease or specified accident coverage would be a cancer only policy or an automobile accident only policy.

(6) Limited benefit health coverage.

C. The regulation shall set minimum standards for benefits for short-term coverage referred to hereafter as "short-term, limited duration health insurance coverage."

D. This section does not preclude the issuance of a policy or contract that combines two (2) or more of the categories of coverage enumerated in Subsection B or C.

Drafting Note: This subsection does not restrict reasonable combinations of the coverages in Subsection B and C. For example, accident only coverage may be issued in conjunction with other categories. However, the section does not permit the combination of specified disease or specified accident coverages with other categories of coverage unless specifically permitted by a regulation adopted pursuant to this Act. In addition, it should be noted that the combination of coverages might not qualify as "excepted benefits" under HIPAA, as amended by the ACA, thus making those combination policies subject to HIPAA requirements as amended by the ACA, and ACA requirements, such as guaranteed availability, guaranteed renewability, and premium rating restrictions. States may want to consider developing regulations on combination products and the potential for such products to confuse consumers that the combination coverage is equivalent to comprehensive, major medical coverage.

E. A policy or contract shall not be delivered or issued for delivery in this state that does not meet the prescribed minimum standards for the categories of coverage listed in Subsection B or C or does not meet the requirements set forth in [insert reference to state law authorizing the commissioner to disapprove policy forms if the benefits provided in the policy forms are unreasonable in relation to the premium charged].

F. The commissioner shall prescribe the method of identification of policies, certificates and contracts based upon coverages provided.

Section 6. Disclosure Requirements

A. An insurer shall deliver an outline of coverage to an applicant or enrollee in the sale of supplementary and short-term health insurance subject to this Act and limited scope dental coverage and limited scope vision coverage delivered or issued for delivery in this state.

B. If the sale of a policy described in Subsection A occurs through an insurance producer, the outline of coverage shall be delivered to the applicant at the time of application or to the certificateholder at the time of enrollment.

C. If the sale of a policy described in Subsection A occurs through direct response advertising, the outline of coverage shall be delivered no later than in conjunction with the issuance of the policy or delivery of the certificate.

D. If the outline of coverage required in Subsections A and H, and any regulations issued by the commissioner pursuant to this Act, is not delivered at the time of application or enrollment, the advertising materials delivered to the applicant or enrollee shall contain all the information required in Subsection H and in any regulations issued by the commissioner pursuant to this Act.

E. If the outline of coverage is delivered to the applicant or enrollee at the time of application or enrollment, the insurer shall collect an acknowledgment of receipt or certificate of delivery of the outline of coverage and the insurer shall maintain evidence of the delivery.

F. If coverage is issued on a basis other than as applied for, an outline of coverage properly describing the coverage or contract actually issued shall be delivered with the policy or certificate to the applicant or enrollee.

G. An insurer shall not be required to deliver an outline of coverage for group supplementary and short-term health insurance group limited scope dental coverage, and group limited scope vision coverage to individual members of the group if the certificate contains a brief description of:

(1) Benefits;

(2) Provisions that exclude, eliminate, restrict, limit, delay or in any other manner operate to qualify payment of the benefits;

(3) Conditions under which the insurance coverage may terminate; and

(4) Notice requirements as provided in the regulation promulgated pursuant to this Act.

Drafting Note: Advertisements can fulfill the requirements for outlines of coverage if they satisfy the standards specified for outlines of coverage under Subsection H and in the regulation promulgated pursuant to this Act.

H. The commissioner shall prescribe the format and content of the outline of coverage required by Subsection A. "Format" means style, arrangement and overall appearance, including such items as the size, color and prominence of type and the arrangement of text and captions. The outline of coverage shall include:

(1) A statement identifying the applicable category or categories of coverage as prescribed in Section 5 of this Act;

(2) A description of the principal benefits and coverage provided;

(3) A statement of the exceptions, reductions and limitations;

(4) A statement of the renewal provisions including any reservation by the insurer of a right to change premiums; and

(5) A statement that the outline is a summary of the policy or certificate issued or applied for and that the policy or certificate should be consulted to determine governing policy provisions.

Drafting Note: Any possible conflict with Section 3A(1) of the NAIC Uniform Individual Accident and Sickness Policy Provision Law (#180) can be avoided by enclosing and not attaching the outline at the time of policy or certificate delivery.

I. An insurer shall deliver to persons eligible for Medicare notice required under [insert reference to state law equivalent to Section 17D of the Model Regulation to Implement the NAIC Medicare Supplement Insurance Minimum Standards Model Act (#651)].

J. For supplementary health insurance providing hospital indemnity or other fixed indemnity coverage, an insurer shall display prominently in the application materials in connection with enrollment a notice providing information that this coverage is not required to comply with federal requirements for health insurance, principally the requirements in the federal Affordable Care Act (ACA). The notice also shall provide information advising the consumer to check the policy to understand what the policy covers and does not cover (including exclusions related to pre-existing conditions and treatment limitations on health benefits outside the scope of coverage.) The notice shall also state that if coverage expires or eligibility for coverage under the policy is lost, the consumer may have to wait until an open enrollment period to obtain other health insurance coverage.

Drafting Note: States may have to alter the language in Subsection J or consider additional disclosures to reflect hybrid types of supplementary coverage subject to this Act.

K. For short-term, limited-duration coverage, an insurer shall display prominently in the application materials provided in connection with enrollment a notice providing information that this coverage is not required to comply with federal requirements for health insurance, principally the requirements in the federal Affordable Care Act (ACA). The notice also shall provide information advising the consumer to review and check the policy to understand what the policy covers and does not cover and the possibility that if coverage expires or eligibility for coverage under the policy is lost, the consumer may have to wait until an open enrollment period to obtain other health insurance coverage.

Drafting Note: Because states may have different statutory requirements for short-term, limited duration insurance coverage, states should carefully review the language in Subsection K to ensure it accurately reflects a state's specific requirements. States also should be aware that federal regulations effective Oct. 2, 2018 (see Federal Register, Vol. 83, No. 150, p. 38243 for the changes to 45 CFR §144.103), include specific notice requirements for short-term, limited-duration coverage, and recognize that the notice also may need to contain additional information as required by applicable state law, rules, or guidance. A state also may need to require disclosure language to reflect any additional requirements a state may have, such as requirements regarding minimum essential coverage or special enrollment periods for expiration or loss of eligibility for this coverage. States also may have to consider including language to alert consumers to potential issues to consider prior to enrollment when the consumer is purchasing coverage under a policy using funds from a health reimbursement account (HRA).

Section 7. Preexisting Conditions

A. Notwithstanding the provisions of [insert reference to state law equivalent to Section 3A(2)(b) of the NAIC Uniform Individual Accident and Sickness Policy Provision Law (#180)], if an insurer elects to use a simplified application or enrollment form, with or without a question as to the prospective insured's health at the time of application or enrollment, but without any questions concerning the prospective insured's health history or medical treatment history, the policy shall cover any loss occurring after twelve (12) months from any preexisting condition not specifically excluded from coverage by terms of the policy, and except as so provided, the policy or certificate shall not include wording that would permit a defense based upon preexisting conditions.

Drafting Note: States that have specific requirements with respect to waivers, exclusionary riders or evidence of insurability for group insurance should modify Subsection A by deleting references to "enrollment" and adding a new subsection addressing the requirements.

B. Notwithstanding the provisions of Subsection A and the provisions of [insert reference to state law equivalent to Section 3A(2)(b) of the NAIC Uniform Individual Accident and Sickness Policy Provision Law (#180)] an insurer that issues a specified disease policy or certificate, regardless of whether the policy or certificate is issued on the basis of a detailed application form, a simplified application form or an enrollment form, may not deny a claim for any covered loss that begins after the policy or certificate has been in force for at least six (6) months, unless the loss results from a preexisting condition that first manifested itself within six (6) months prior to the effective date of the policy or certificate or was diagnosed by a physician at any time prior to that date. Except for rescission for misrepresentation, no other defenses based upon preexisting conditions are permitted.

Section 8. Administrative Procedures

The adoption of regulations pursuant to this Act shall be subject to the notice and hearing requirements set forth in [insert reference to state law relating to the adoption and promulgation of rules and regulations or state Administrative Procedures Act].

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. PROJECT HISTORY – 2019

ACCIDENT AND SICKNESS INSURANCE MINIMUM STANDARDS MODEL ACT (#170)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

In 2013, the Regulatory Framework (B) Task Force was charged with reviewing NAIC existing models related to health insurance to determine whether they needed to be amended in light of all the changes made by the federal Affordable Care Act (ACA). During that review process, the Task Force added the Accident and Sickness Insurance Minimum Standards Model Act (#170) to the list of NAIC models to be considered for revision given the model's provisions for certain types of health insurance plans that would not be permitted under the ACA.

Beginning at the 2014 Fall National Meeting, the Task Force began discussing revisions to Model #170 and the Model Regulation to Implement the Accident and Sickness Insurance Minimum Standards Model Act (#171). At the 2015 Spring National Meeting, the Task Force decided, given its other priorities for 2015, specifically with respect to revising the formerly titled Managed Care Network Adequacy Model Act (#74), now the Health Benefit Plan Network Access and Adequacy Model Act (#74), to defer discussing additional revisions to the models until it finished its work on Model #74. The Task Force finished its work in late 2015.

In February 2016, the Task Force established the Accident and Sickness Insurance Minimum Standards (B) Subgroup, with Wisconsin as chair, to begin working on revising Model #170 and Model #171. In March 2016, the Subgroup began meeting every other week to review and discuss the comments received on Model #170 by the Jan. 22, 2016, public comment deadline. The Subgroup met throughout 2016 until November 2016. During its conference calls, the Subgroup discussed a myriad of issues with respect to the revisions to Model #170, including issues concerning the definition of "hospital indemnity or other fixed indemnity insurance;" short-term, limited-duration insurance; and the disclosure of certain information with respect to these coverages as reflected in federal regulations. The Subgroup also discussed initial revisions to Model #171. At the 2017 Spring National Meeting, concerned with the uncertainty of the ACA's future, given congressional proposals to repeal, replace and/or repair it, the Task Force decided to halt Subgroup meetings until there was more certainty about actions at the congressional level.

At the 2017 Fall National Meeting, the Task Force decided to move forward with discussing revisions to Model #170 and Model #171, and it directed the Subgroup to resume its work in early 2018. During its first meetings in 2018, the Subgroup decided to focus first on revisions to Model #170, and after those revisions were complete, the Subgroup would begin discussion of revisions to Model #171. During its meetings via conference call, the Subgroup continued its discussions of revisions to Model #170 to address issues related to hospital indemnity or other fixed indemnity insurance; and short-term, limited-duration insurance. The Subgroup also discussed what language disclosures and notices carriers must provide to consumers purchasing such coverage to alert consumers that these types of coverages are not required to comply with the requirements of the ACA because they are not considered the types of health insurance coverage subject to the ACA's requirements. The Subgroup also discussed revisions to Model #170's scope section for consistency with the types of coverage subject to the model's provisions.

The Subgroup adopted the revisions July 23, 2018. As part of its adoption, the Subgroup established a 30-day public comment period ending Aug. 27, 2018, for the Task Force to receive comments on the revised model. Following the end of the public comment period, the Task Force met Oct. 17 and Sept. 24, 2018, via conference call to discuss the comments received focusing on comments received related to Model #170's title and other clarifying suggested revisions. The Task Force adopted the revised model at the 2018 Fall National Meeting. The Health Insurance and Managed Care (B) Committee adopted the revisions Feb. 14.

The proposed revisions to Model #170 remove provisions in the model concerning the type of health insurance plans subject to the ACA's requirements, such as its guaranteed issue, guaranteed renewal, and prohibition on preexisting condition exclusion requirements. The revisions add specific provisions concerning short-term, limited-duration insurance; and hospital indemnity or other fixed indemnity insurance, including definitions of the terms and provisions requiring that certain notices and disclosures be provided to consumers purchasing such coverage.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Subgroup of the Task Force drafted the proposed revisions to Model #170. The members of the Subgroup were: Wisconsin, Chair; Colorado; Florida; Iowa; Louisiana; Maine; Missouri; Nebraska; Oklahoma; Oregon; Pennsylvania; South Carolina; Utah; Vermont; and Washington. The Task Force adopted additional revisions to Model #170 following the Subgroup's adoption of the proposed revisions. The members of the Task Force were: Wisconsin, Chair; Colorado, Vice Chair; Alaska; American Samoa; Arkansas; California; District of Columbia; Florida; Idaho; Iowa; Kansas; Kentucky; Maine; Maryland; Massachusetts; Minnesota; Missouri; Nebraska; New Hampshire; North Carolina; North Dakota; Oklahoma; Pennsylvania; South Dakota; Texas; Utah; Virginia; Washington; and West Virginia.

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The Task Force established the Subgroup in February 2016 to consider revisions to Model #170 and Model #171 based on the Task Force's continuing charge to "review the model law review recommendations of NAIC models recommended for revision by the former Affordable Care Act (ACA) Model Review (B) Working Group and, as appropriate, appoint a working group to revise the NAIC model(s) prioritized for revision in 2016."

Based on that charge, the Task Force's charge to the Subgroup is to"review and consider revisions to the Accident and Sickness Insurance Minimum Standards Model Act (#170) and its companion regulation, the Model Regulation to Implement the Accident and Sickness Insurance Minimum Standards Model Act (#171)."

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc.; include any parties outside the members that participated)

Beginning in March 2016 and ending in July 2018, the reviewed and discussed all comments received as part of the drafting process. Numerous interested parties participated in the process. The interested parties represented all stakeholder groups, including consumers, insurers and other stakeholders. Each draft of proposed revisions was posted to the Subgroup's webpage and as appropriate, the Task Force's webpage, on the NAIC website. All comment letters received were also posted.

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

Beginning in March 2016 and ending in July 2018, the Subgroup reviewed and discussed all comments received as part of the drafting process. Numerous interested parties participated in the process. The interested parties represented all stakeholder groups, including consumers, insurers and other stakeholders. Each draft of proposed revisions was posted to the Subgroup's webpage and as appropriate, the Task Force's webpage, on the NAIC website. All comment letters received were also posted.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response)

A few significant issues were raised and addressed during the drafting process. Those issues focused on: 1) the definition of "short-term, limited-duration insurance;" and 2) what specific information insurers must include in the notices provided to consumers purchasing hospital indemnity or other fixed indemnity insurance or short-term, limited-duration insurance. Specifically, regarding the definition of "short-term, limited-duration insurance," the Subgroup discussed whether the draft should reflect language in the final federal regulations defining the maximum duration of such coverage or whether to provide flexibility to the states to establish their own such provisions. After extended discussion, given the different requirements the states have with respect to the duration of short-term, limited-duration insurance coverage and the renewal of such coverage, the Subgroup decided to include in the revisions language in the definition of "short-term, limited-duration coverage," in proposed Section 3I, providing flexibility to the states to establish their own requirements related to such coverage. The Subgroup also added a drafting note for proposed Section 3I explaining its rationale. In its discussions related to the information insurers must include in the notices to be provided to consumers purchasing hospital indemnity or other fixed indemnity insurance or short-term, limited-duration insurance coverage, the Subgroup discussed how detailed the language should be with respect to distinguishing these types of coverage from major, medical insurance coverage and the ACA requirements. The Subgroup decided not to be too detailed in order avoid consumer confusion. The Subgroup decided to require insurers to include in the notices broad language noting these coverages are not required to comply with ACA requirements. In addition, the Subgroup decided to require that insurers include in the notice language advising consumers to check the policy to understand what it covers and does not cover as an additional measure to help ensure that consumers know what they are purchasing.

7. Any Other Important Information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard)

None.

MODEL REGULATION TO IMPLEMENT THE ACCIDENT AND SICKNESS INSURANCE MINIMUM STANDARDS MODEL ACT

Section 1. Purpose

The purpose of this regulation is to implement [insert reference to state law equivalent to the NAIC Accident and Sickness Insurance Minimum Standards Model Act] (the Act) to standardize and simplify the terms and coverages of individual accident and sickness insurance policies, and group accident and sickness policies and certificates providing hospital confinement indemnity, accident only, specified disease. specified accident or limited benefit health coverage (hereafter referred to as "group supplemental health insurance"). This regulation is also intended to facilitate public understanding and comparison of coverage, to eliminate provisions contained in individual accident and sickness insurance policies and group supplemental health insurance that may be misleading or confusing in connection with the purchase of the coverages or with the settlement of claims; and to provide for full disclosure in the marketing and sale of individual accident and sickness insurance policies and group supplemental health insurance. This regulation is also intended to assert the commissioner's jurisdiction over dental and vision plans, and to provide for disclosure in the sale of those plans.

Drafting Note: States should determine if the phrase "individual accident and sickness insurance policies" is broad enough or particular enough to cover the array of individual health insurance issuers in the state. States that use different terminology (e.g. "subscriber contracts" of "nonprofit hospital, medical and dental associations") to cover these plans should choose terminology conforming to state statute.

Section 2. Authority

This regulation is issued pursuant to the authority vested in the commissioner under [insert reference to state law equivalent to NAIC Accident and Sickness Insurance Minimum Standards Model Act and any other appropriate section of law regarding authority of commissioner to issue regulations].

Section 3. Applicability and Scope

A. This regulation applies to all individual accident and sickness insurance policies and group supplemental health policies and certificates, delivered or issued for delivery in this state on and after [insert effective date] that are not specifically exempted from this regulation.

B. This Act shall apply to dental plans and vision plans only as specified.

C. This regulation shall not apply to:

(1) Individual policies or contracts issued pursuant to a conversion privilege under a policy or contract of group or individual insurance when the group or individual policy or contract includes provisions that are inconsistent with the requirements of this regulation;

(2) Policies issued to employees or members as additions to franchise plans in existence on the effective date of this regulation;

(3) Medicare supplement policies subject to [insert reference to state law equivalent to the Model Regulation to Implement the NAIC Medicare Supplement Insurance Minimum Standards Model Act];

(4) Long-term care insurance policies subject to [insert reference to state law equivalent to the NAIC Long-Term Care Insurance Model Act]; or

(5) Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (Chapter 55, title 10 of the United States Code) (CHAMPUS) supplement insurance policies.

Drafting Note: CHAMPUS supplement insurance is not subject to federal regulation. CHAMPUS supplement policies are sold only to eligible individuals as determined by the Department of Defense and are tied to CHAMPUS benefits. In general, states regulate CHAMPUS supplement insurance policies under the state group or individual insurance laws.

D. The requirements contained in this regulation shall be in addition to any other applicable regulations previously adopted.

Section 4. Effective Date

This regulation shall be effective on [insert a date not less than 120 days after the date of adoption of the regulation].

Section 5. Policy Definitions

A. Except as providedin this regulation, an individual accident and sickness insurance policy or group supplemental health insurance policy delivered or issued for delivery to any person in this state and to which this regulation applies shall contain definitions respecting the matters set forth below that comply with the requirements of this section.

B (1) "Accident," "accidental injury," and "accidental means" shall be defined to employ "result" language and shall not include words that establish an accidental means test or use words such as "external, violent, visible wounds" or similar words of description or characterization.

(2) The definition shall not be more restrictive than the following: "injury" or "injuries" means accidental bodily injury sustained by the insured person that is the direct cause of the condition for which benefits are provided, independent of disease or bodily infirmity or any other cause and that occurs while the insurance is in force.

(3) The definition may provide that injuries shall not include injuries for which benefits are provided under workers' compensation, employers' liability or similar law; or under a motor vehicle no-fault plan, unless prohibited by law; or injuries occurring while the insured person is engaged in any activity pertaining to a trade, business, employment or occupation for wage or profit.

C. "Convalescent nursing home," "extended care facility," or "skilled nursing facility" shall be defined in relation to its status, facility and available services.

(1) A definition of the home or facility shall not be more restrictive than one requiring that it:

(a) Be operated pursuant to law;

(b) Be approved for payment of Medicare benefits or be qualified to receive approval for payment of Medicare benefits, if so requested;

(c) Be primarily engaged in providing, in addition to room and board accommodations, skilled nursing care under the supervision of a duly licensed physician;

(d) Provide continuous twenty-four-hour-a-day nursing service by or under the supervision of a registered nurse; and

(e) Maintain a daily medical record of each patient.

(2) The definition of the home or facility may provide that the term shall not be inclusive of:

(a) A home, facility or part of a home or facility used primarily for rest;

(b) A home or facility for the aged or for the care of drug addicts or alcoholics; or

(c) A home or facility primarily used for the care and treatment of mental diseases or disorders, or for custodial or educational care.

Drafting Note: The laws of the states relating to nursing and extended care facilities recognized in health insurance policies are not uniform. Reference to the individual state law may be required in structuring this definition.

D. "Hospital" may be defined in relation to its status, facilities and available services or to reflect its accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations.

(1) The definition of the term "hospital" shall not be more restrictive than one requiring that the hospital:

(a) Be an institution licensed to operate as a hospital pursuant to law;

(b) Be primarily and continuously engaged in providing or operating, either on its premises or in facilities available to the hospital on a prearranged basis and under the supervision of a staff of licensed physicians, medical, diagnostic and major surgical facilities for the medical care and treatment of sick or injured persons on an in-patient basis for which a charge is made; and

(c) Provide twenty-four-hour nursing service by or under the supervision of registered nurses.

(2) The definition of the term "hospital" may state that the term shall not be inclusive of:

(a) Convalescent homes or, convalescent, rest or nursing facilities;

(b) Facilities affording primarily custodial, educational or rehabilitory care;

(c) Facilities for the aged, drug addicts or alcoholics; or

(d) A military or veterans' hospital, a soldiers' home or a hospital contracted for or operated by any national government or government agency for the treatment of members or ex-members of the armed forces, except for services rendered on an emergency basis where a legal liability for the patient exists for charges made to the individual for the services.

Drafting Note: The laws of the states relating to the type of hospital facilities recognized in health insurance policies are not uniform. References to individual state law may be required in structuring this definition.

E. "Medicare" means The Health Insurance for the Aged Act, Title XVIII of the Social Security Amendments of 1965 as Then Constituted or Later Amended.

F. "Mental or nervous disorder" shall not be defined more restrictively than a definition including neurosis, psychoneurosis, psychosis, or mental or emotional disease or disorder of any kind.

G. "Nurse" may be defined so that the description of nurse is restricted to a type of nurse, such as registered nurse, a licensed practical nurse, or a licensed vocational nurse. If the words "nurse," "trained nurse" or "registered nurse" are used without specific instruction, then the use of these terms requires the insurer to recognize the services of any individual who qualifies under the terminology in accordance with the applicable statutes or administrative rules of the licensing or registry board of the state.

H. "One period of confinement" means consecutive days of in-hospital service received as an in-patient, or successive confinements when discharge from and readmission to the hospital occurs within a period of time not more than ninety (90) days or three times the maximum number of days of in-hospital coverage provided by the policy to a maximum of 180 days.

I. "Partial disability" shall be defined in relation to the individual's inability to perform one or more but not all of the "major," "important" or "essential" duties of employment or occupation, or may be related to a percentage of time worked or to a specified number of hours or to compensation.

J. "Physician" may be defined by including words such as "qualified physician" or "licensed physician." The use of these terms requires an insurer to recognize and to accept, to the extent of its obligation under the contract, all providers of medical care and treatment when the services are within the scope of the provider's licensed authority and are provided pursuant to applicable laws.

Drafting Note: The laws of the states relating to the type of providers' services recognized in health insurance policies are not uniform. References to the individual state law may be required in structuring this definition.

K. "Preexisting condition" shall not be defined more restrictively than the following: "Preexisting condition means the existence of symptoms that would cause an ordinarily prudent person to seek diagnosis, care or treatment within a [two] year period preceding the effective date of the coverage of the insured person or a condition for which medical advice or treatment was recommended by a physician or received from a physician within a [two-] year period preceding the effective date of the coverage of the insured person."

Drafting Note: This definition does not prohibit an insurer, using an application or enrollment form, including a simplified application form, designed to elicit the health history of a prospective insured and on the basis of the answers on that application or enrollment form, from underwriting in accordance with that insurer's established standards and in accordance with state law. It is assumed that an insurer that elicits a health history of a prospective insured will act on the information and if the review of the health history results in a decision to exclude a condition, the policy or certificate will be endorsed or amended by including the specific exclusion. This same requirement of notice to the prospective insured of the specific exclusion will also apply to insurers that elect to use simplified application or enrollment forms containing questions relating to the prospective insured's health. This definition does, however, prohibit an insurer that elects to use a simplified application or enrollment form, with or without a question as to the proposed insured's health at the time of application or enrollment, from reducing or denying a claim on the basis of the existence of a preexisting condition that is defined more restrictively than above.

States that have specific requirements with respect to waivers or exclusionary riders or evidence of insurability requirements for group insurance should modify the preceding paragraphs by deleting group references and adding a new paragraph addressing these requirements. In states which have adopted or are operating under the "federal fallback" provisions the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA), for major medical coverage issued to a HIPAA eligible individual, there can be no preexisting condition exclusion. In addition, states that have specific preexisting condition requirements for group insurance may need to modify section Subsection K according to applicable statutes.

L. "Residual disability" shall be defined in relation to the individual's reduction in earnings and may be related either to the inability to perform some part of the "major," "important" or "essential duties" of employment or occupation, or to the inability to perform all usual business duties for as long as is usually required. A policy that provides for residual disability benefits may require a qualification period, during which the insured must be continuously totally disabled before residual disability benefits are payable. The qualification period for residual benefits may be longer than the elimination period for total disability. In lieu of the term "residual disability," the insurer may use "proportionate disability" or other term of similar import that in the opinion of the commissioner adequately and fairly describes the benefit.

M. "Sickness" shall not be defined to be more restrictive than the following: "Sickness means sickness or disease of an insured person that first manifests itself after the effective date of insurance and while the insurance is in force. A definition of sickness may provide for a probationary period that shall not exceed thirty (30) days from the effective date of the coverage of the insured person." The definition may be further modified to exclude sickness or disease for which benefits are provided under a worker's compensation, occupational disease, employers' liability or similar law.

N. "Total disability"

(1) A general definition of total disability shall not be more restrictive than one requiring that the individual who is totally disabled not be engaged in any employment or occupation for which he or she is or becomes qualified by reason of education, training or experience; and is not in fact engaged in any employment or occupation for wage or profit.

(2) Total disability may be defined in relation to the inability of the person to perform duties but may not be based solely upon an individual's inability to:

(a) Perform "any occupation whatsoever," "any occupational duty," or "any and every duty of his occupation"; or

(b) Engage in a training or rehabilitation program.

(3) An insurer may require the complete inability of the person to perform all of the substantial and material duties of his or her regular occupation or words of similar import. An insurer may require care by a physician other than the insured or a member of the insured's immediate family.

Section 6. Prohibited Policy Provisions

A. Except as provided in Section 5K, a policy shall not contain provisions establishing a probationary or waiting period during which no coverage is provided under the policy, subject to the further exception that a policy may specify a probationary or waiting period not to exceed six (6) months for specified diseases or conditions and losses resulting from disease or condition related to hernia, disorder of reproduction organs, varicose veins, adenoids, appendix and tonsils. However, the permissible six-month exception shall not be applicable where the specified diseases or conditions are treated on an emergency basis. Accident policies shall not contain probationary or waiting periods.

B. (1) A policy or rider for additional coverage may not be issued as a dividend unless an equivalent cash payment is offered as an alternative to the dividend policy or rider. A dividend policy or rider for additional coverage shall not be issued for an initial term of less than six (6) months.

(2) The initial renewal subsequent to the issuance of a policy or rider as a dividend shall clearly disclose that the policyholder is renewing the coverage that was provided as a dividend for the previous term and that the renewal is optional.

C. A policy shall not exclude coverage for a loss due to a preexisting condition for a period greater than twelve (12) months following the issuance of the policy or certificate where the application or enrollment form for the insurance does not seek disclosure of prior illness, disease or physical conditions or prior medical care and treatment and the preexisting condition is not specifically excluded by the terms of the policy or certificate.

Drafting Note: Where the state has enacted the NAIC Individual Accident and Sickness Insurance Minimum Standard Act Subsection C is unnecessary. States that have specific preexisting condition requirements for group supplemental insurance may need to modify the preceding subsection according to applicable statutes.

D. A disability income policy may contain a "return of premium" or "cash value benefit" so long as the return of premium or cash value benefit is not reduced by an amount greater than the aggregate of claims paid under the policy; and the insurer demonstrates that the reserve basis for the policies is adequate. No other policy subject to the Act and this regulation shall provide a return of premium or cash value benefit, except return of unearned premium upon termination or suspension of coverage, retroactive waiver of premium paid during disability, payment of dividends on participating policies, or experience rating refunds.

Drafting Note: This provision is optional and the desirability of its use should be reviewed by the individual states.

E. Policies providing hospital confinement indemnity coverage shall not contain provisions excluding coverage because of confinement in a hospital operated by the federal government.

F. A policy shall not limit or exclude coverage by type of illness, accident, treatment or medical condition, except as follows:

(1) Preexisting conditions or diseases, except for congenital anomalies of a covered dependent child;

(2) Mental or emotional disorders, alcoholism and drug addition;

(3) Pregnancy, except for complications of pregnancy, other than for policies defined in Section 7H of this regulation;

(4) Illness, treatment or medical condition arising out of:

(a) War or act of war (whether declared or undeclared); participation in a felony, riot or insurrections; service in the armed forces or units auxiliary to it;

(b) Suicide (sane or insane), attempted suicide or intentionally self-inflicted injury;

(c) Aviation;

(d) With respect to short-term nonrenewable policies, interscholastic sports; and

(e) With respect to disability income protection policies, incarceration.

Drafting Note: What should be an allowable exclusion in disability income insurance policies generates much debate. States should be aware that some argue for exclusion of certain diseases or conditions that are difficult to diagnose or are potentially subject to frequent claims (e.g., carpal tunnel and chronic fatigue syndromes). Others argue that carriers have the ability to detect fraudulent claims and deny payment on that basis without singling out specific conditions for blanket exclusion.

(5) Cosmetic surgery, except that "cosmetic surgery" shall not include reconstructive surgery when the service is incidental to or follows surgery resulting from trauma, infection or other diseases of the involved part, and reconstructive surgery because of congenital disease or anomaly of a covered dependent child that has resulted in a functional defect;

(6) Foot care in connection with corns, calluses, flat feet, fallen arches, weak feet, chronic foot strain or symptomatic complaints of the feet;

(7) Care in connection with the detection and correction by manual or mechanical means of structural imbalance, distortion, or subluxation in the human body for purposes of removing nerve interference and the effectsof it, where the interference is the result of or related to distortion, misalignment or subluxation of, or in the vertebral column;

Drafting Note: States should examine any existing "freedom of choice" statutes that require reimbursement of treatment provided by chiropractors, and make adjustments if needed.

(8) Treatment provided in a government hospital; benefits provided under Medicare or other governmental program (except Medicaid), a state or federal workmen's compensation, employers liability or occupational disease law, or motor vehicle no-fault law; services rendered by employees of hospitals, laboratories or other institutions; services performed by a member of the covered person's immediate family; and services for which no charge is normally made in the absence of insurance;

(9) Dental care or treatment;

(10) Eye glasses, hearing aids and examination for the prescription or fitting of them;

(11) Rest cures, custodial care, transportation and routine physical examinations; and

(12) Territorial limitations.

Drafting Note: Some of the exclusions set forth in this provision may be unnecessary or in conflict with existing state legislation and should be deleted.

G. This regulation shall not impair or limit the use of waivers to exclude, limit or reduce coverage or benefits for specifically named or described preexisting diseases, physical condition or extra hazardous activity. Where waivers are required as a condition of issuance, renewal or reinstatement, signed acceptance by the insured is required unless on initial issuance the full text of the waiver is contained either on the first page or specification page.

Drafting Note: States with specific waiver requirements that differ for group insurance should add language in Subsection G to be consistent with applicable statutes.

H. Policy provisions precluded in this section shall not be construed as a limitation on the authority of the commissioner to disapprove other policy provisions in accordance with [cite Section 3B of the Accident and Sickness Insurance Minimum Standards Act] that in the opinion of the commissioner are unjust, unfair or unfairly discriminatory to the policyholder, beneficiary or a person insured under the policy.

Section 7. Accident and Sickness Minimum Standards for Benefits

The following minimum standards for benefits are prescribed for the categories of coverage noted in the following subsections. An individual accident and sickness insurance policy or group supplemental health insurance policy shall not be delivered or issued for delivery in this state unless it meets the required minimum standards for the specified categories or the commissioner finds that the policies or contracts are approvable as limited benefit health insurance and the outline of coverage complies with the outline of coverage in Section 8L of this regulation.

This section shall not preclude the issuance of any policy or contract combining two or more categories set forth in [cite state law equivalent to Section 5A and B of the NAIC Accident and Sickness Insurance Minimum Standards Model Act].

A. General Rules

(1) A "noncancellable," "guaranteed renewable," or "noncancellable and guaranteed renewable" individual accident and sickness policy shall not provide for termination of coverage of the spouse solely because of the occurrence of an event specified for termination of coverage of the insured, other than nonpayment of premium. In addition, the policy shall provide that in the event of the insured's death, the spouse of the insured, if covered under the policy, shall become the insured.

(2) (a) The terms "noncancellable," "guaranteed renewable," or "noncancellable and guaranteed renewable" shall not be used without further explanatory language in accordance with the disclosure requirements of Section 8A(1).

(b) The terms "noncancellable" or "noncancellable and guaranteed renewable" may be used only in an individual accident and sickness policy that the insured has the right to continue in force by the timely payment of premiums set forth in the policy until the age of sixty-five (65) or until eligibility for Medicare, during which period the insurer has no right to make unilaterally any change in any provision of the policy while the policy is in force.

(c) An individual accident and sickness or individual accident-only policy that provides for periodic payments, weekly or monthly, for a specified period during the continuance of disability resulting from accident or sickness may provide that the insured has the right to continue the policy only to age sixty (60) if, at age sixty (60), the insured has the right to continue the policy in force at least to age sixty-five (65) while actively and regularly employed.

(d) Except as provided above, the term "guaranteed renewable" may be used only in a policy that the insured has the right to continue in force by the timely payment of premiums until the age of sixty-five (65) or until eligibility for Medicare, during which period the insurer has no right to make unilaterally any change in any provision of the policy while the policy is in force, except that the insurer may make changes in premium rates by classes.

(3) In an individual accident and sickness policy covering both husband and wife, the age of the younger spouse shall be used as the basis for meeting the age and durational requirements of the definitions of "noncancellable" or "guaranteed renewable." However, this requirement shall not prevent termination of coverage of the older spouse upon attainment of the stated age so long as the policy may be continued in force as to the younger spouse to the age or for the durational period as specified in the policy.

Drafting Note: For Paragraphs (2) and (3) above, coverage as defined under HIPAA or applicable state law must be guaranteed renewable except for reasons stated in Part B Section 2742 of Title XXVII (Public Health Service Act) as amended by HIPAA or applicable state law, unless it is an excepted benefit as described in Part B Sections 2721, 2763 and 2791 of Title XXVII as amended by HIPAA or applicable state law.

(4) When accidental death and dismemberment coverage is part of the individual accident and sickness insurance coverage offered under the contract, the insured shall have the option to include all insureds under the coverage and not just the principal insured.

(5) If a policy contains a status-type military service exclusion or a provision that suspends coverage during military service, the policy shall provide, upon receipt of written request, for refund of premiums as applicable to the person on a pro rata basis.

(6) In the event the insurer cancels or refuses to renew, policies providing pregnancy benefits shall provide for an extension of benefits as to pregnancy commencing while the policy is in force and for which benefits would have been payable had the policy remained in force.

(7) Policies providing convalescent or extended care benefits following hospitalization shall not condition the benefits upon admission to the convalescent or extended care facility within a period of less than fourteen (14) days after discharge from the hospital.

(8) In individual accident and sickness insurance policies, coverage shall continue for a dependent child who is incapable of self-sustaining employment due to mental retardation or physical handicap on the date that the child's coverage would otherwise terminate under the policy due to the attainment of a specified age for children and who is chiefly dependent on the insured for support and maintenance. The policy may require that within thirty-one (31) days of the date the company receives due proof of the incapacity in order for the insured to elect to continue the policy in force with respect to the child, or that a separate converted policy be issued at the option of the insured or policyholder.

(9) A policy providing coverage for the recipient in a transplant operation shall also provide reimbursement of any medical expenses of a live donor to the extent that benefits remain and are available under the recipient's policy or certificate, after benefits for the recipient's own expenses have been paid.

(10) A policy may contain a provision relating to recurrent disabilities; but a provision relating to recurrent disabilities shall not specify that a recurrent disability be separated by a period greater than six (6) months.

(11) Accidental death and dismemberment benefits shall be payable if the loss occurs within ninety (90) days from the date of the accident, irrespective of total disability. Disability income benefits, if provided, shall not require the loss to commence less than thirty (30) days after the date of accident, nor shall any policy that the insurer cancels or refuses to renew require that it be in force at the time disability commences if the accident occurred while the coverage was in force.

(12) Specific dismemberment benefits shall not be in lieu of other benefits unless the specific benefit equals or exceeds the other benefits.

(13) An accident-only policy providing benefits that vary according to the type of accidental cause shall prominently set forth in the outline of coverage the circumstances under which benefits are payable that are lesser than the maximum amount payable under the policy.

(14) Termination of the policy shall be without prejudice ~~of~~ to a continuous loss that commenced while the policy or certificate was in force. The continuous total disability of the insured may be a condition for the extension of benefits beyond the period the policy was in force, limited to the duration of the benefit period, if any, or payment of the maximum benefits.

(15) A policy providing coverage for fractures or dislocations may not provide benefits only for "full or complete" fractures or dislocations.

B. Basic Hospital Expense Coverage

"Basic hospital expense coverage" is a policy of accident and sickness insurance that provides coverage for a period of not less than thirty-one (31) days during a continuous hospital confinement for each person insured under the policy, for expense incurred for necessary treatment and services rendered as a result of accident or sickness for at least the following:

(1) Daily hospital room and board in an amount not less than the lesser of:

(a) [80%] of the charges for semiprivate room accommodations or

(b) [$100] per day;

Drafting Note: The commissioner may determine the level of daily room and board benefits that he or she considers appropriate as a minimum for a basic hospital contract in his state. It should be an underlying principle for the establishment of benefits that the amounts are to be minimums, not maximums. In order to accommodate those states that have a substantial differential in hospital room and board costs between urban and rural areas within a state, the following language may be used in addition to the language in Subsection B(1) above: "except that $[insert amount] may be reduced to $[insert amount] outside the area." Other dollar amounts and percentages applicable to the various minimum benefits that follow are also bracketed to permit a commissioner to set the level of minimum benefits for his or her particular state.

(2) Miscellaneous hospital services for expenses incurred for the charges made by the hospital for services and supplies that are customarily rendered by the hospital and provided for use only during any one period of confinement in an amount not less than either [80%] of the charges incurred up to at least [$3,000] or [ten] times the daily hospital room and board benefits; and

(3) Hospital outpatient services consisting of:

(a) Hospital services on the day surgery is performed,

(b) Hospital services rendered within seventy-two (72) hours after injury, in an amount not less than [$150]; and

(c) X-ray and laboratory tests to the extent that benefits for the services would have been provided in an amount of less than [$100] if rendered to an in-patient of the hospital.

(4) Benefits provided under Paragraphs (1) and (2) of this subsection may be provided subject to a combined deductible amount not in excess of [$100].

C. Basic Medical-Surgical Expense Coverage

"Basic medical-surgical expense coverage" is a policy of accident and sickness insurance that provides coverage for each person insured under the policy for the expenses incurred for the necessary services rendered by a physician for treatment of an injury or sickness for at least the following:

(1) Surgical services:

(a) In amounts not less than those provided on a fee schedule based on the relative values contained in the [insert reference to a fee schedule based on the Current Procedure Terminology (CPT) coding or other acceptable relative value schedule].up to a maximum of at least [$1000] for a one procedure; or

(b) Not less than [80%] of the reasonable charges.

(2) Anesthesia services, consisting of administration of necessary general anesthesia and related procedures in connection with covered surgical service rendered by a physician other than the physician (or the physician assistant) performing the surgical services:

(a) In an amount not less than [80%] of the reasonable charges; or

(b) [15%] of the surgical service benefit.

(3) In-hospital medical services, consisting of physician services rendered to a person who is a bed patient in a hospital for treatment of sickness or injury other than that for which surgical care is required, in an amount not less than [80%] of the reasonable charges, or [$50] per day for not less than twenty-one (21) days during one period of confinement.

Basic Hospital/Medical-Surgical Expense Coverage

"Basic hospital/medical-surgical expense coverage" is a combined coverage and must meet the requirements of both Subsections B and C.

D. Hospital Confinement Indemnity Coverage

(1) "Hospital confinement indemnity coverage" is a policy of accident and sickness insurance that provides daily benefits for hospital confinement on an indemnity basis in an amount not less than [$40] per day and not less than thirty-one (31) days during each period of confinement for each person insured under the policy.

(2) Coverage shall not be excluded due to a preexisting condition for a period greater than twelve (12) months following the effective date of coverage of an insured person unless the preexisting condition is specifically and expressly excluded.

(3) Except for the NAIC uniform provision regarding other insurance with the insurer, benefits shall be paid regardless of other coverage.

Drafting Note: Hospital confinement indemnity coverage is recognized as supplemental coverage. Any hospital confinement indemnity coverage, therefore, must be payable regardless of other coverage. The same general rule should apply so that group insurance cannot reduce its benefits because of the existence of hospital confinement indemnity coverage. Section 3H(4) of the Group Coordination of Benefits Model Regulation states that the definition of a plan (for the purposes of coordination of benefits)…shall not include individual or family insurance contracts…." States should consider using this language to prevent benefit reductions that could otherwise occur because of the existence of hospital confinement indemnity coverage purchased by the insured.

E. Individual Major Medical Expense Coverage

(1) "Individual major medical expense coverage" is an accident and sickness insurance policy that provides hospital, medical and surgical expense coverage, to an aggregate maximum of not less than [$500,000]; coinsurance percentage per year per covered person not to exceed fifty percent (50%) of covered charges, provided that the coinsurance out-of-pocket maximum after any deductibles shall not exceed ten thousand dollars ($10,000) per year; a deductible stated on a per person, per family, per illness, per benefit period, or per year basis, or a combination of these bases not to exceed five percent (5%) of the aggregate maximum limit under the policy for each covered person for at least:

(a) Daily hospital room and board expenses subject only to limitations based on average daily cost of the semiprivate room rate in the area where the insured resides;

(b) Miscellaneous hospital services;

(c) Surgical services;

(d) Anesthesia services;

(e) In-hospital medical services;

(f) Out-of-hospital care, consisting of physicians' services rendered on an ambulatory basis where coverage is not provided elsewhere in the policy for diagnosis and treatment of sickness or injury, diagnostic x-ray, laboratory services, radiation therapy, and hemodialysis ordered by a physician; and

(g) Not fewer than three (3) of the following additional benefits:

(i) In-hospital private duty registered nurse services;

(ii) Convalescent nursing home care;

(iii) Diagnosis and treatment by a radiologist or physiotherapist;

(iv) Rental of special medical equipment, as defined by the insurer in the policy;

(v) Artificial limbs or eyes, casts, splints, trusses or braces;

(vi) Treatment for functional nervous disorders, and mental and emotional disorders; or

(vii) Out-of-hospital prescription drugs and medications.

(2) If the policy is written to complement underlying basic hospital expense and basic medical-surgical expense coverage, the deductible may be increased by the amount of the benefits provided by the underlying coverage.

(3) The minimum benefits required by 7F(1) may be subject to all applicable deductibles, coinsurance and general policy exceptions and limitations. A major medical expense policy may also have special or internal limitations for prescription drugs, nursing facilities, intensive care facilities, mental health treatment, alcohol or substance abuse treatment, transplants, experimental treatments, mandated benefits required by law and those services covered under 7F(1)(g) and other such special or internal limitations as are authorized or approved by the commissioner. Except as authorized by this subsection through the application of special or internal limitations, a major medical expense policy must be designed to cover, after any deductibles or coinsurance provisions are met, the usual, customary and reasonable charges, as determined consistently by the carrier and as subject to approval by the commissioner, or another rate agreed to between the insurer and provider, for covered services up to the lifetime policy maximum.

F. Individual Basic Medical Expense Coverage

(1) "Individual basic medical expense coverage" is an accident and sickness insurance policy that provides hospital, medical and surgical expense coverage, to an aggregate maximum of not less than $250,000; coinsurance percentage per year per covered person not to exceed fifty percent (50%) of covered charges, provided that the coinsurance out-of-pocket maximum after any deductibles shall not exceed $25,000 per year; a deductible stated on a per person, per family, per illness, per benefit period, or per year basis, or a combination of these bases not to exceed ten percent (10%) of the aggregate maximum limit under the policy for each covered person for at least:

(a) Daily hospital room and board expenses subject only to limitations based on average daily cost of the semiprivate room rate in the area where the insured resides or such other rate agreed to between the insurer and provider for a period of not less than thirty-one (31) days during continuous hospital confinement;

(b) Miscellaneous hospital services;

(c) Surgical services;

(d) Anesthesia services;

(e) In-hospital medical services;

(f) Out-of-hospital care, consisting of physicians' services rendered on an ambulatory basis where coverage is not provided elsewhere in the policy for diagnosis and treatment of sickness or injury, diagnostic x-ray, laboratory services, radiation therapy and hemodialysis ordered by a physician; and

(g) Not fewer than three (3) of the following additional benefits:

(i) In-hospital private duty graduate registered nurse services;

(ii) Convalescent nursing home care;

(iii) Diagnosis and treatment by a radiologist or physiotherapist;

(iv) Rental of special medical equipment, as defined by the insurer in the policy;

(v) Artificial limbs or eyes, casts, splints, trusses or braces;

(vi) Treatment for functional nervous disorders, and mental and emotional disorders; or

(vii) Out-of-hospital prescription drugs and medications.

(2) If the policy is written to complement underlying basic hospital expense and basic medical-surgical expense coverage, the deductible may be increased by the amount of the benefits provided by the underlying coverage.

(3) The minimum benefits required by 7G(1) may be subject to all applicable deductibles, coinsurance and general policy exceptions and limitations. An individual basic medical expense policy may also have special or internal limitations for prescription drugs, nursing facilities, intensive care facilities, mental health treatment, alcohol or substance abuse treatment, transplants, experimental treatments, mandated benefits required by law and those services covered under 7G(1)(g) and other such special or internal limitations as are authorized or approved by the commissioner. Except as authorized by this subsection through the application of special or internal limitations, anindividual basic medical expense policy must be designed to cover, after any deductibles or coinsurance provisions are met, the usual customary and reasonable charges, as determined consistently by the carrier and as subject to approval by the commissioner, or another rate agreed to between the insurer and provider, for covered services up to the lifetime policy maximum.

G. Disability Income Protection Coverage

"Disability income protection coverage" is a policy that provides for periodic payments, weekly or monthly, for a specified period during the continuance of disability resulting from either sickness or injury or a combination of them that:

(1) Provides that periodic payments that are payable at ages after sixty-two (62) and reduced solely on the basis of age are at least fifty percent (50%) of amounts payable immediately prior to sixty-two (62);

(2) Contains an elimination period no greater than:

(a) Ninety (90) days in the case of a coverage providing a benefit of one year or less;

(b) One hundred and eighty (180) days in the case of coverage providing a benefit of more than one year but not greater than two (2) years; or

(c) Three hundred sixty five (365) days in all other cases during the continuance of disability resulting from sickness or injury;

(3) Has a maximum period of time for which it is payable during disability of at least six (6) months except in the case of a policy covering disability arising out of pregnancy, childbirth or miscarriage in which case the period for the disability may be one month. No reduction in benefits shall be put into effect because of an increase in Social Security or similar benefits during a benefit period. Section 7F does not apply to those policies providing business buy-out coverage;

(4) Where a policy provides total disability benefits and partial disability benefits, only one elimination period may be required.

H. Accident Only Coverage

"Accident only coverage" is a policy that provides coverage, singly or in combination, for death, dismemberment, disability or hospital and medical care caused by accident. Accidental death and double dismemberment amounts under the policy shall be at least [$1,000] and a single dismemberment amount shall be at least [$500].

I. Specified Disease Coverage

(1) "Specified disease coverage" pays benefits for the diagnosis and treatment of a specifically named disease or diseases. A specified disease policy must meet the following rules and one of the following sets of minimum standards for benefits:

(a) Insurance covering cancer only or cancer in conjunction with other conditions or diseases must meet the standards of Paragraph (4), (5) or (6) of this subsection.

(b) Insurance covering specified diseases other than cancer must meet the standards of Paragraphs (3) and (6) of this subsection.

(2) General Rules

Except for cancer coverage provided on an expense-incurred basis, either as cancer-only coverage or in combination with one or more other specified diseases, the following rules shall apply to specified disease coverages in addition to all other rules imposed by this regulation. In cases of conflict between the following and other rules, the following shall govern:

(a) Policies covering a single specified disease or combination of specified diseases may not be sold or offered for sale other than as specified disease coverage under this section.

(b) Any policy issued pursuant to this section that conditions payment upon pathological diagnosis of a covered disease shall also provide that if the pathological diagnosis is medically inappropriate, a clinical diagnosis will be acceptedinstead.

(c) Notwithstanding any other provision of this regulation, specified disease policies shall provide benefits to any covered person not only for the specified diseases but also for any other conditionsor diseases, directly caused or aggravated by the specified diseasesor the treatment of the specified disease.

(d) Individual accident and sickness policies containing specified disease coverage shall be at least guaranteed renewable.

(e) No policy issued pursuant to this section shall contain a waiting or probationary period greater than thirty (30) days. A specified disease policy may contain a waiting or probationary period following the issue or reinstatement date of the policy or certificate in respect to a particular covered person before the coverage becomes effective as to that covered person.

An application or enrollment form for specified disease coverage shall contain a statement above the signature of the applicant or enrollee that a person to be covered for specified disease is not covered also by any Title XIX program (Medicaid, MediCal or any similar name). The statement may be combined with any other statement for which the insurer may require the applicant's or enrollee's signature.

(f) Payments may be conditioned upon an insured person's receiving medically necessary care, given in a medically appropriate location, under a medically accepted course of diagnosis or treatment.

(g) Except for the NAIC uniform provision regarding other insurance with this insurer, benefits for specified disease coverage shall be paid regardless of other coverage.

Drafting Note: Specified disease coverage is recognized as supplemental coverage. Any specified disease coverage, therefore, must be payable in addition to and regardless of other coverage. The same general rule should apply so that group insurance cannot reduce its benefits because of the existence of specified disease coverage. Section 3H(4) of the Group Coordination of Benefits Model Regulation states that the definition of a "plan" (for the purpose of coordination of benefits) "shall not include individual or family insurance contracts." States should consider using this language to prevent benefit reductions that could otherwise occur because of the existence of specified disease coverage purchased by the insured.

(h) After the effective date of the coverage (or applicable waiting period, if any) benefits shall begin with the first day of care or confinement if the care or confinement is for a covered disease even though the diagnosis is made at some later date. The retroactive application of the coverage may not be less than ninety (90) days prior to the diagnosis.

(i) Policies providing expense benefits shall not use the term "actual" when the policy only pays up to a limited amount of expenses. Instead, the term "charge" or substantially similar language should be used that does not have the misleading or deceptive effect of the phrase "actual charges."

(j) "Preexisting condition" shall not be defined to be more restrictive than the following: "Preexisting condition means a condition for which medical advice, diagnosis, care or treatment was recommended or received from a physician within the six (6) month period preceding the effective date of coverage of an insured person."

(k) Coverage for specified diseases will not be excluded due to a preexisting condition for a period greater than six (6) months following the effective date of coverage of an insured person unless the preexisting condition is specifically excluded.

(l) Hospice Care.

(i) "Hospice" means a facility licensed, certified or registered in accordance with state law that provides a formal program of care that is:

(I) For terminally ill patients whose life expectancy is less than six (6) months;

(II) Provided on an inpatient or outpatient basis; and

(III) Directed by a physician.

(ii) Hospice care is an optional benefit. However, if a specified disease insurance product offers coverage for hospice care, it shall meet the following minimum standards:

(I) Eligibility for payment of benefits when the attending physician of the insured provides a written statement that the insured person has a life expectancy of six (6) months or less;

(II) A fixed-sum payment of at least $50 per day; and

(III) A lifetime maximum benefit limit of at least $10,000.

(iii) Hospice care does not cover nonterminally ill patients who may be confined in a:

(I) Convalescent home;

(II) Rest or nursing facility;

(III) Skilled nursing facility;

(IV) Rehabilitation unit; or

(V) Facility providing treatment for persons suffering from mental diseases or disorders or care for the aged or substance abusers.

(3) The following minimum benefits standards apply to non-cancer coverages:

(a) Coverage for each insured person for a specifically named disease (or diseases) with a deductible amount not in excess of [$250] and an overall aggregate benefit limit of no less than [$10,000] and a benefit period of not less than [two (2) years] for at least the following incurred expenses:

(i) Hospital room and board and any other hospital furnished medical services or supplies;

(ii) Treatment by a legally qualified physician or surgeon;

(iii) Private duty services of a registered nurse (R.N.);

(iv) X-ray, radium and other therapy procedures used in diagnosis and treatment;

(v) Professional ambulance for local service to or from a local hospital;

(vi) Blood transfusions, including expense incurred for blood donors;

(vii) Drugs and medicines prescribed by a physician;

(viii) The rental of an iron lung or similar mechanical apparatus;

(ix) Braces, crutches and wheel chairs as are deemed necessary by the attending physician for the treatment of the disease;

(x) Emergency transportation if in the opinion of the attending physician it is necessary to transport the insured to another locality for treatment of the disease; and

(xi) May include coverage of any other expenses necessarily incurred in the treatment of the disease.

(b) Coverage for each insured person for a specifically named disease (or diseases) with no deductible amount, and an overall aggregate benefit limit of not less than [$25,000] payable at the rate of not less than [$50] a day while confined in a hospital and a benefit period of not less than 500 days.

(4) A policy that provides coverage for each insured person for cancer-only coverage or in combination with one or more other specified diseases on an expense incurred basis for services, supplies, care and treatment of cancer, in amounts not in excess of the usual and customary charges, with a deductible amount not in excess of [$250], and an overall aggregate benefit limit of not less than [$10,000] and a benefit period of not less than three (3) years shall provide at least the following minimum provisions:

(a) Treatment by, or under the direction of, a legally qualified physician or surgeon;

(b) X-ray, radium chemotherapy and other therapy procedures used in diagnosis and treatment;

(c) Hospital room and board and any other hospital furnished medical services or supplies;

(d) Blood transfusions and their administration, including expense incurred for blood donors;

(e) Drugs and medicines prescribed by a physician;

(f) Professional ambulance for local service to or from a local hospital;

(g) Private duty services of a registered nurse provided in a hospital;

(h) May include coverage of any other expenses necessarily incurred in the treatment of the disease; however, Subparagraphs (a), (b), (d), (e) and (g) plus at least the following also shall be included, but may be subject to copayment by the insured person not to exceed twenty percent (20%) of covered charges when rendered on an out-patient basis;

(i) Braces, crutches and wheelchairs deemed necessary by the attending physician for the treatment of the disease;

(j) Emergency transportation if in the opinion of the attending physician it is necessary to transport the insured to another locality for treatment of the disease; and

(k) (i) Home health care that is necessary care and treatment provided at the insured person's residence by a home health care agency or by others under arrangements made with a home health care agency. The program of treatment shall be prescribed in writing by the insured person's attending physician, who shall approve the program prior to its start. The physician must certify that hospital confinement would be otherwise required. A "home health care agency" (1) is an agency approved under Medicare, or (2) is licensed to provide home health care under applicable state law, or (3) meets all of the following requirements:

(I) It is primarily engaged in providing home health care services;

(II) Its policies are established by a group of professional personnel (including at least one physician and one registered nurse;

(III) A physician or a registered nurse provides supervision of home health care services;

(IV) It maintains clinical records on all patients; and

(V) It has a full time administrator.

Drafting Note: State licensing laws vary concerning the scope of "home health care" or "home health agency services" and should be consulted. In addition, a few states have mandated benefits for home health care including the definition of required services.

(ii) Home health includes, but is not limited to:

(I) Part-time or intermittent skilled nursing services provided by a registered nurse or a licensed practical nurse;

(II) Part-time or intermittent home health aide services that provide supportive services in the home under the supervision of a registered nurse or a physical, speech or hearing occupational therapists;

(III) Physical, occupational or speech and hearing therapy; and

(IV) Medical supplies, drugs and medicines prescribed by a physician and related pharmaceutical services, and laboratory services to the extent the charges or costs would have been covered if the insured person had remained in the hospital.

(l) Physical, speech, hearing and occupational therapy;

(m) Special equipment including hospital bed, toilette, pulleys, wheelchairs, aspirator, chux, oxygen, surgical dressings, rubber shields, colostomy and eleostomy appliances;

(n) Prosthetic devices including wigs and artificial breasts;

(o) Nursing home care for noncustodial services; and

(p) Reconstructive surgery when deemed necessary by the attending physician.

Drafting Note: Policies that offer transportation and lodging benefits for an insured person should not condition those benefits on hospitalization.

(5) (a) The following minimum benefits standards apply to cancer coverages written on a per diem indemnity basis. These coverages shall offer insured persons:

(i) A fixed-sum payment of at least [$100] for each day of hospital confinement for at least [365] days;

(ii) A fixed-sum payment equal to one half the hospital inpatient benefit for each day of hospital or nonhospital outpatient surgery, chemotherapy and radiation therapy, for at least 365 days of treatment; and

(iii) A fixed-sum payment of at least $50 per day for blood and plasma, which includes their administration whether received as an inpatient or outpatient for at least 365 days of treatment.

(b) Benefits tied to confinement in a skilled nursing home or to receipt of home health care are optional. If a policy offers these benefits, they must equal the following:

(i) A fixed-sum payment equal to one-fourth the hospital in-patient benefit for each day of skilled nursing home confinement for at least 100 days.

(ii) A fixed-sum payment equal to one-fourth the hospital in-patient benefit for each day of home health care for at least 100 days.

(iii) Benefit payments shall begin with the first day of care or confinement after the effective date of coverage if the care or confinement is for a covered disease even though the diagnosis of a covered disease is made at some later date (but not retroactive more than thirty (30) days from the date of diagnosis) if the initial care or confinement was for diagnosis or treatment of the covered disease.

(iv) Notwithstanding any other provision of this regulation, any restriction or limitation applied to the benefits in (b)(i) and (b)(ii) whether by definition or otherwise, shall be no more restrictive than those under Medicare.

(6) The following minimum benefits standards apply to lump-sum indemnity coverage of any specified disease:

(a) These coverages must pay indemnity benefits on behalf of insured persons of a specifically named disease or diseases. The benefits are payable as a fixed, one-time payment made within thirty (30) days of submission to the insurer of proof of diagnosis of the specified disease. Dollar benefits shall be offered for sale only in even increments of $1,000.

Drafting Note: Policies that offer extremely high dollar benefits may induce fraud and concealment on the part of applicants for coverage. The commissioner should be sensitive to this possibility in approving policies.

(b) Where coverage is advertised or otherwise represented to offer generic coverage of a disease or diseases, the same dollar amounts shall be payable regardless of the particular subtype of the disease with one exception. In the case of clearly identifiable subtypes with significantly lower treatments costs, lesser amounts may be payable so long as the policy clearly differentiates that subtype and its benefits.

Drafting Note: The purpose of requiring equal coverage for all subtypes of a specified disease is to ensure that specified disease policies actually provide what people reasonably expect them to. In approving skin cancer or other exceptions, commissioners should consider whether a specified disease policy might mislead if it treats a subtype of a disease differently from the rest of the specified disease.

J. Specified Accident Coverage

"Specified accident coverage" is a policy that provides coverage for a specifically identified kind of accident (or accidents) for each person insured under the policy for accidental death or accidental death and dismemberment combined, with a benefit amount not less than [$1,000] for accidental death, [$1,000] for double dismemberment [$500] for single dismemberment.

K. Limited Benefit Health Coverage

(1) "Limited benefit health coverage" is a policy or contract, other than a policy or contract covering only a specified disease or diseases, that provides benefits that are less than the minimum standards for benefits required under Subsections B, C, D, E, F, G, I and K. These policies or contracts may be delivered or issued for delivery in this state only if the outline of coverage required by Section 8L of this regulation is completed and delivered as required by Section 8B of this regulation and the policy or certificate is clearly labeled as a limited benefit policy or certificate as required by Section 8A(17). A policy covering a single specified disease or combination of diseases shall meet the requirements of Section 7J and shall not be offered for sale as a "limited coverage."

(2) This subsection does not apply to policies designed to provide coverage for long-term care or to Medicare supplement insurance, as defined in [insert reference to state law equivalent to the NAIC Long-Term Care Insurance Model Act and Medicare Supplement Insurance Minimum Standards Model Act].

Drafting Note: The NAIC Long-Term Care Insurance Model Act defines long-term care insurance as a policy that provides coverage for not less than twelve months. If a state allows issuance of policies that provide benefits similar to long-term care insurance for a period of less than twelve months, then those policies should be considered limited benefit health plans, and should be subject to the NAIC Accident and Sickness Insurance Minimum Standards Model Act and implementing regulation.

Section 8. Required Disclosure Provisions

A. General Rules

(1) All applications for coverages specified in Sections 7B, C, D, E, G, I, J, K and L shall contain a prominent statement by type, stamp or other appropriate means in either contrasting color or in boldface type at least equal to the size type used for the headings or captions of sections of the application and in close conjunction with the applicant's signature block on the application as follows:

"The [policy] [certificate] provides limited benefits. Review your [policy][certificate] carefully."

(2) All applications for dental plans shall contain a prominent statement by type, stamp or other appropriate means in either contrasting color or in boldface type at least equal to the size type used for the headings or captions of sections of the application and in close conjunction with the applicant's signature block on the application as follows:

"The [policy] [certificate] provides dental benefits only. Review your [policy] [certificate] carefully."

(3) All applications for vision plans shall contain a prominent statement by type, stamp or other appropriate means in either contrasting color or in boldface type at least equal to the size type used for the headings or captions of sections of the application and in close conjunction with the applicant's signature block on the application as follows:

(4) Each policy of individual accident and sickness insurance and group supplemental health insurance shall include a renewal, continuation or nonrenewal provision. Section 9. Requirements for Replacement of Individual Accident and Sickness Insurance

Drafting Note: Group supplemental health insurance is not addressed here because it is addressed in the Group Coverage Discontinuance and Replacement Model Regulation, which is applicable. States may also have other statutes or regulations that apply.

A. An application form shall include a question designed to elicit information as to whether the insurance to be issued is intended to replace any other accident and sickness insurance presently in force. A supplementary application or other form to be signed by the applicant containing the question may be used.

B. Upon determining that a sale will involve replacement, an insurer, other than a direct response insurer, or its agent shall furnish the applicant, prior to issuance or delivery of the policy, the notice described in Subsection C below. The insurer shall retain a copy of the notice. A direct response insurer shall deliver to the applicant upon issuance of the policy, the notice described in Subsection D below. In no event, however, will the notices be required in the solicitation of the following types of policies: accident-only and single-premium nonrenewable policies.

C. The notice required by Subsection B above for an insurer, other than a direct response insurer, shall provide, in substantially the following form:

NOTICE TO APPLICANT REGARDING REPLACEMENT

OF ACCIDENT AND SICKNESS INSURANCE

According to [your application] [information you have furnished], you intend to lapse or otherwise terminate existing accident and sickness insurance and replace it with a policy to be issued by [insert company name] Insurance Company. For your own information and protection, you should be aware of and seriously consider certain factors that may affect the insurance protection available to you under the new policy.

(1) Health conditions which you may presently have, (preexisting conditions) may not be immediately or fully covered under the new policy. This could result in denial or delay of a claim for benefits present under the new policy, whereas a similar claim might have been payable under your present policy.

Drafting Note: This subsection may be modified if preexisting conditions are covered under the new policy.

(2) You may wish to secure the advice of your present insurer or its agent regarding the proposed replacement of your present policy. This is not only your right, but it is also in your best interests to make sure you understand all the relevant factors involved in replacing your present coverage.

(3) If, after due consideration, you still wish to terminate your present policy and replace it with new coverage, be certain to truthfully and completely answer all questions on the application concern your medical/health history. Failure to include all material medical information on an application may provide a basis for the company to deny any future claims and to refund your premium as though your policy had never been in force. After the application has been completed and before you sign it, reread it carefully to be certain that all information has been properly recorded.

The above "Notice to Applicant" was delivered to me on:

(Date)

(Applicant's Signature)

D. The notice required by Subsection B of this section for a direct response insurer shall be as follows:

OF ACCIDENT AND SICKNESS INSURANCE

According to [your application] [information you have furnished] you intend to lapse or otherwise terminate existing accident and sickness insurance and replace it with the policy delivered herewith issued by [insert company name] Insurance Company. Your new policy provides thirty days within which you may decide without cost whether you desire to keep the policy. For your own information and protection you should be aware of and seriously consider certain factors that may affect the insurance protection available to you under the new policy.

(1) Health conditions that you may presently have, (preexisting conditions) may not be immediately or fully covered under the new policy. This could result in denial or delay of a claim for benefits under the new policy, whereas a similar claim might have been payable under your present policy.

(2) You may wish to secure the advice of your present insurer or its agent regarding the proposed replacement of your present policy. This is not only your right, but it is also in your best interests to make sure you understand all the relevant factors involved in replacing your present coverage.

(3) [To be included only if the application is attached to the policy]. If, after due consideration, you still wish to terminate your present policy and replace it with new coverage, read the copy of the application attached to your new policy and be sure that all questions are answered fully and correctly. Omissions or misstatements in the application could cause an otherwise valid claim to be denied. Carefully check the application and write to [insert company name and address] within ten days if any information is not correct and complete, or if any past medical history has been left out of the application.

MODEL REGULATION TO IMPLEMENT THE ACCIDENT AND SICKNESS INSURANCE MINIMUM STANDARDS MODEL ACT

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. To perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

Who do I speak to if I have questions?

States that have adopted portions of the current NAIC model will be included in this column with an explanatory note.

PREVIOUS VERSION: States that have citations identified in this column (and nothing listed in the Model Adoption column) have enacted an older version of the model but have not adopted the most recent version of the NAIC model.

RELATED ACTIVITY: Examples of Related Activity include but are not limited to statutes or regulations addressing the same subject matter, or other administrative guidance such as bulletins and notices. States that have citations identified in this column (and nothing listed in the Model Adoption column) have not adopted the most recent version of the NAIC model in a substantially similar manner.

NO CURRENT ACTIVITY: No state activity on the topic as of the date of the most recent update. This includes states that have repealed legislation as well as states that have never adopted legislation.

UNIFORM INDIVIDUAL ACCIDENT AND SICKNESS POLICY PROVISION LAW

Table of Contents

Section 1. Definition of Accident and Sickness Insurance Policy

The term "policy of accident and sickness insurance" as used herein includes any policy or contract covering the kind or kinds of insurance described in [insert here the section of law authorizing accident and sickness insurance].

Drafting Note: If the insurance law of the state in which this draft is proposed for enactment does not have a section specifically authorizing the various types of insurance which may be written, this section should be modified to define accident and sickness insurance as "insurance against loss resulting from sickness or from bodily injury or death by accident, or both."

Section 2. Form of Policy

A. No policy of accident and sickness insurance shall be delivered or issued for delivery to any person in this state unless:

(1) The entire money and other considerations therefor are expressed therein; and

(2) The time at which the insurance takes effect and terminates is expressed therein; and

(3) It purports to insure only one person, except that a policy may insure, originally or by subsequent amendment, upon the application of an adult member of a family who shall be deemed the policyholder, any two (2) or more eligible members of that family, including husband, wife, dependent children or any children under a specified age which shall not exceed nineteen (19) years and any other person dependent upon the policyholder; and

Drafting Note: In states having community property systems derived from the civil law it is suggested that in the foregoing subparagraph the words "an adult member" be replaced with "the head."

(4) The style, arrangement and over-all appearance of the policy give no undue prominence to any portion of the text, and unless every printed portion of the text of the policy and of any endorsements or attached papers is plainly printed in light-faced type of a style in general use, the size of which shall be uniform and not less than ten point with a lower-case unspaced alphabet length not less than one hundred and twenty point (the "text" shall include all printed matter except the name and address of the insurer, name or title of the policy, the brief description if any, and captions and subcaptions); and

(5) The exceptions and reductions of indemnity are set forth in the policy and, except those which are set forth in Section 3 of this Act, are printed, at the insurer's option, either included with the benefit provision to which they apply, or under an appropriate caption such as "Exceptions," or "Exceptions and Reductions," provided that if an exception or reduction specifically applies only to a particular benefit of the policy, a statement of such exception or reduction shall be included with the benefit provision to which it applies; and

(6) Each form, including riders and endorsements, shall be identified by a form number in the lower left-hand corner of the first page; and

(7) It contains no provision purporting to make any portion of the charter, rules, constitution, or bylaws of the insurer a part of the policy unless the portion is set forth in full in the policy, except in the case of the incorporation of, or reference to, a statement of rates or classification of risks, or short-rate table filed with the Commissioner.

Drafting Note: Insert the title of the chief insurance regulatory official wherever the term "commissioner" appears.

B. If any policy is issued by an insurer domiciled in this state for delivery to a person residing in another state, and if the official having responsibility for the administration of the insurance laws of the other state shall have advised the Commissioner that the policy is not subject to approval or disapproval by the official, the Commissioner may by ruling require that the policy meet the standards set forth in Subsection A of this section and in Section 3.

Section 3. Accident and Sickness Policy Provisions

A. Required Provisions.

Except as provided in Subsection C, each policy delivered or issued for delivery to any person in this state shall contain the provisions specified in this subsection in the words in which the same appear in this section; provided, however, that the insurer may, at its option, substitute for one or more such provisions corresponding provisions of different wording approved by the Commissioner which are in each instance not less favorable in any respect to the insured or the beneficiary. Such provisions shall be preceded individually by the caption appearing in this subsection or, at the option of the insurer, by such appropriate individual or group captions or subcaptions as the Commissioner may approve.

(1) A provision as follows:

Entire Contract; Changes: This policy, including the endorsements and the attached papers, if any, constitutes the entire contract of insurance. No change in this policy shall be valid until approved by an executive officer of the insurer and unless such approval be endorsed hereon or attached hereto. No agent has authority to change this policy or to waive any of its provisions.

Drafting Note: When enacted in states which prohibit amendment of a policy form by means other than attached printed rider upon a separate piece of paper the new law should contain (but not as a required policy provision) an added section defining "endorsement" in such a manner as to make the new law consistent with current statutes.

(2) A provision as follows:

Time Limit on Certain Defenses:

(a) After three (3) years from the date of issue of this policy no misstatements, except fraudulent misstatements, made by the applicant in the application for the policy shall be used to void the policy or to deny a claim for loss incurred or disability (as defined in the policy) commencing after the expiration of the three-year period.

Drafting Note: The foregoing policy provision shall not be so construed as to affect any legal requirement for avoidance of a policy or denial of a claim during the initial three-year period, nor to limit the application of Sections 3B(1), (2), (3), (4) and (5) in the event of misstatement with respect to age or occupation or other insurance.

Drafting Note: A policy which the insured has the right to continue in force subject to its terms by the timely payment of premium until at least age 50 or, in the case of a policy issued after age 44, for at least five years from its date of issue, may contain in lieu of the foregoing the following provision (from which the clause in parentheses may be omitted at the insurer's option) under the caption "Incontestable:"

After this policy has been in force for a period of three (3) years during the lifetime of the insured (excluding any period during which the insured is disabled), it shall become incontestable as to the statements contained in the application.

(b) No claim for loss incurred or disability (as defined in the policy) commencing after three (3) years from the date of issue of this policy shall be reduced or denied on the ground that a disease or physical condition not excluded from coverage by name or specific description effective on the date of loss had existed prior to the effective date of coverage of this policy.

(3) A provision as follows:

Grace Period: A grace period of [insert a number not less than 7 for weekly premium policies, 10 for monthly premium policies and 31 for all other policies] days will be granted for the payment of each premium falling due after the first premium, during which grace period the policy shall continue in force.

Drafting Note: A policy in which the insurer reserves the right to refuse renewal shall have, at the beginning of the above provision:

Unless not less than thirty (30) days prior to the premium due date the insurer has delivered to the insured or has mailed to his last address, as shown by the records of the insurer written notice of its intention not to renew this policy beyond the period for which the premium has been accepted;

(4) A provision as follows:

Renewal: Each policy in which the insurer reserves the right to refuse renewal on an individual basis shall provide, in substance, in a provision thereof or in an endorsement thereon or in a rider attached thereto, that subject to the right to terminate the policy upon non-payment of premium when due, the right to refuse renewal shall not be exercised before the renewal date occurring on, or after and nearest each anniversary, or in the case of lapse and reinstatement at the renewal date occurring on, or after and nearest each anniversary of the last reinstatement, and that any refusal of renewal shall be without prejudice to any claim originating while the policy is in force. The preceding sentence shall not apply to accident insurance only policies.

(5) A provision as follows:

Reinstatement: If any renewal premium be not paid within the time granted the insured for payment, a subsequent acceptance of premium by the insurer or by any agent duly authorized by the insurer to accept such premium, without requiring in connection therewith an application for reinstatement, shall reinstate the policy; provided, however that if the insurer or such agent requires an application for reinstatement and issues a conditional receipt for the premium tendered, the policy will be reinstated upon approval of the application by the insurer or, lacking such approval, upon the forty-fifth day following the date of the conditional receipt unless the insurer has previously notified the insured in writing of its disapproval of the application. The reinstated policy shall cover only loss resulting from such accidental injury as may be sustained after the date of reinstatement and loss due to such sickness as may begin more than ten (10) days after that date. In all other respects the insured and insurer shall have the same rights as they had under the policy immediately before the due date of the defaulted premium, subject to the provisions of any rider which may be attached in connection with the reinstatement. Any premium accepted in connection with a reinstatement shall be applied to a period for which premium has not been previously paid, but not to any period more than sixty (60) days prior to the date of reinstatement.

Drafting Note: The last sentence of the above provision may be omitted from any policy which the insured has the right to continue in force subject to its terms by the timely payment of premiums until at least age 50 or, in the case of a policy issued after age 44, for at least five years from its date of issue.

Drafting Note: For a statement of interpretation of this provision. See 1963 NAIC Proceedings II 514-517.

(6) A provision as follows:

Notice of Claim: Written notice of claim must be given to the insurer within twenty (20) days after the occurrence or commencement of any loss covered by the policy, or as soon thereafter as is reasonably possible. Notice given by or on behalf of the insured or the beneficiary to the insurer at [insert the location of such office as the insurer may designate for the purpose], or to any authorized agent of the insurer, with information sufficient to identify the insured, shall be deemed notice to the insurer.

Drafting Note: In a policy providing a loss-of-time benefit which may be payable for at least two years, an insurer may at its option insert the following between the first and second sentences of the above provision:

Subject to the qualifications set forth below, if the insured suffers loss of time on account of disability for which indemnity may be payable for at least two (2) years, he shall, at least once in every six (6) months after having given notice of claim, give to the insurer notice of continuance of said disability, except in the event of legal incapacity. The period of six (6) months following any filing of proof by the insured or any payment by the insurer on account of such claim or any denial of liability in whole or in part by the insurer shall be excluded in applying this provision. Delay in the giving of notice shall not impair the insured's right to any indemnity which would otherwise have accrued during the period of six (6) months preceding the date on which notice is actually given.

(7) A provision as follows:

Claim Forms: The insurer, upon receipt of a notice of claim, will furnish to the claimant such forms as are usually furnished by it for filing proof of loss. If forms are not furnished within fifteen (15) days after the giving of notice the claimant shall be deemed to have complied with the requirements of this policy as to proof of loss upon submitting, within the time fixed in the policy for filing proofs of loss, written proof covering the occurrence, the character and the extent of the loss for which claim is made.

(8) A provision as follows:

Proofs of Loss: Written proof of loss must be furnished to the insurer at its office in case of claim for loss for which this policy provides any periodic payment contingent upon continuing loss within ninety (90) days after the termination of the period for which the insurer is liable and in case of claim for any other loss within ninety (90) days after the date of the loss. Failure to furnish proof within the time required shall not invalidate nor reduce any claim if it was not reasonably possible to give proof within that time, provided such proof is furnished as soon as reasonably possible and in no event, except in the absence of legal capacity, later than one year from the time proof is otherwise required.

(9) A provision as follows:

Time of Payment of Claims: Indemnities payable under this policy for any loss other than loss for which this policy provides any periodic payment will be paid immediately upon receipt of due written proof of loss. Subject to due written proof of loss, all accrued indemnities for loss for which this policy provides periodic payment will be paid [insert period for payment which must not be less frequently than monthly] and any balance remaining unpaid upon the termination of liability will be paid immediately upon receipt of due written proof.

(10) A provision as follows:

Payment of Claims: Indemnity for loss of life will be payable in accordance with the beneficiary designation and the provisions respecting such payment which may be prescribed herein and effective at the time of payment. If no such designation or provision is then effective, the indemnity shall be payable to the estate of the insured. Any other accrued indemnities unpaid at the insured's death may, at the option of the insurer, be paid either to the beneficiary or to the estate. All other indemnities will be payable to the insured.

Drafting Note: The following provisions, or either of them, may be included with the foregoing provision at the option of the insurer:

If any indemnity of this policy shall be payable to the estate of the insured, or to an insured or beneficiary who is a minor or otherwise not competent to give a valid release; the insurer may pay such indemnity, up to an amount not exceeding $[insert an amount which shall not exceed $1000], to any relative by blood or connection by marriage of the insured or beneficiary who is deemed by the insurer to be equitably entitled thereto. Any payment made by the insurer in good faith pursuant to this provision shall fully discharge the insurer to the extent of the payment.

Subject to any written direction of the insured in the application or otherwise, all or a portion of any indemnities provided by this policy on account of hospital, nursing, medical or surgical services may, at the insurer's option and unless the insured requests otherwise in writing not later than the time of filing proofs of loss, be paid directly to the hospital or person rendering such services; but it is not required that the service be rendered by a particular hospital or person.

(11) A provision as follows:

Physical Examinations and Autopsy: The insurer at its own expense shall have the right and opportunity to examine the person of the insured when and as often as it may reasonably require during the pendency of a claim hereunder and to make an autopsy in case of death where it is not forbidden by law.

(12) A provision as follows:

Legal Actions: No action at law or in equity shall be brought to recover on this policy prior to the expiration of sixty (60) days after written proof of loss has been furnished in accordance with the requirements of this policy. No such action shall be brought after the expiration of three (3) years after the time written proof of loss is required to be furnished.

(13) A provision as follows:

Change of Beneficiary: Unless the insured makes an irrevocable designation of beneficiary, the right to change of beneficiary is reserved to the insured and the consent of the beneficiary or beneficiaries shall not be requisite to surrender or assignment of this policy or to any change of beneficiary or beneficiaries, or to any other changes in this policy.

Drafting Note: The first clause of this provision, relating to the irrevocable designation of beneficiary, may be omitted at the insurer's option.

B. Other Provisions

Except as provided in Subsection C, no policy delivered or issued for delivery to any person in this state shall contain provisions respecting the matters set forth below unless such provisions are in the words in which the same appear in this section; provided, however, that the insurer may, at its option, use in lieu of any such provision a corresponding provision of different wording approved by the Commissioner which is not less favorable in any respect to the insured or the beneficiary. Any such provision contained in the policy shall be preceded individually by the appropriate caption appearing in this subsection or, at the option of the insurer, by such appropriate individual or group captions or subcaptions as the Commissioner may approve.

(1) A provision as follows:

Change of Occupation: If the insured is injured or contract sickness after having changed his occupation to one classified by the insurer as more hazardous than that stated in this policy or while doing for compensation anything pertaining to an occupation so classified, the insurer will pay only such portion of the indemnities provided in this policy as the premium paid would have purchased at the rates and within the limits fixed by the insurer for the more hazardous occupation. If the insured changes his occupation to one classified by the insurer as less hazardous than that stated in this policy, the insurer, upon receipt of proof of change of occupation, will reduce the premium rate accordingly, and will return the excess pro-rata unearned premium from the date of change of occupation or from the policy anniversary date immediately preceding receipt of proof, whichever is the more recent. In applying this provision, the classification of occupational risk and the premium rates shall be such as have been last filed by the insurer prior to the occurrence of the loss for which the insurer is liable or prior to date of proof of change in occupation with the state official having supervision of insurance in the state where the insured resided at the time this policy was issued; but if such filing was not required, then the classification of occupational risk and the premium rates shall be those last made effective by the insurer in such state prior to the occurrence of the loss or prior to the date of proof of change in occupation.

(2) A provision as follows:

Misstatement of Age: If the age of the insured has been misstated, all amounts payable under this policy shall be such as the premium paid would have purchased at the correct age.

(3) A provision as follows:

Overinsurance: If an accident or sickness or accident and sickness policy or policies previously issued by the insurer to the insured be in force concurrently herewith, making the aggregate indemnity for [insert type of coverage or coverages] in excess of $[insert maximum limit of indemnity or indemnities] the excess shall be void and all premiums paid for such excess shall be returned to the insured or to his estate.

or, in lieu thereof:

Insurance effective at any one time on the insured under this policy and a like policy or policies in this insurer is limited to the one policy elected by the insured, his beneficiary or his estate, as the case may be, and the insurer will return all premiums paid for all other such policies.

(4) A provision as follows:

Overinsurance: If, with respect to a person covered under this policy, benefits for allowable expense incurred during a claim determination period under this policy together with benefits for allowable expense during such period under all other valid coverage (without giving effect to this provision or to any "overinsurance provision" applying to such other valid coverage), exceed the total of the person's allowable expense during the period, this insurer shall be liable only for the proportionate amount of the benefits for allowable expense under this policy during the period as the total allowable expense during such period bears to the total amount of benefits payable during the period for expense under this policy and all other valid coverage (without giving effect to this provision or to any overinsurance provision applying to the other valid coverage) less any amount of benefits for allowable expense payable under other valid coverage which does not contain an overinsurance provision. In no event shall this provision operate to increase the amount of benefits for allowable expense payable under this policy with respect to a person covered under this policy above the amount which would have been paid in the absence of this provision. This insurer may pay benefits to any insurer providing other valid coverage in the event of overpayment by such insurer. Any such payment shall discharge the liability of this insurer as fully as if the payment had been made directly to the insured, his assignee or his beneficiary. In the event that this insurer pays benefits to the insured, his assignee or his beneficiary, in excess of the amount which would have been payable if the existence of other valid coverage had been disclosed, this insurer shall have a right of action against the insured, his assignee or his beneficiary, to recover the amount which would not have been paid had there been a disclosure of the existence of the other valid coverage. The amount of other valid coverage which is on a provision of service basis shall be computed as the amount the services rendered would have cost in the absence of such coverage.

For purposes of this provision:

(a) "Allowable expense" means 110 percent of any necessary, reasonable and customary item of expense which is covered, in whole or in part, as a hospital, surgical, medical or major medical expense under this policy or under any other valid coverage.

(b) "Claim determination period" with respect to any covered person means the initial period of [insert period of not less than 30 days] and each successive period of a like number of days, during which allowable expense covered under this policy is incurred on account of such person. The first period begins on the date when the first expense is incurred, and successive periods shall begin when expense is incurred after expiration of a prior period.

or, in lieu thereof:

"Claim determination period" with respect to any covered person means each [insert calendar or policy period of not less than a month] during which allowable expense covered under this policy is incurred on account of such person.

(c) "Overinsurance provision" means this provision and any other provision which may reduce an insurer's liability because of the existence of benefits under other valid coverage.

Drafting Note: The foregoing policy provision may be inserted in all (guaranteed renewable and non-cancellable as well as guaranteed renewable) policies providing hospital, surgical, medical or major medical benefits. The insurer may make this provision applicable to either or both (a) other valid coverage with other insurers and, (b) except for individual policies individually underwritten, other valid coverage with the same insurer. The insurer shall include in this provision a definition of "other valid coverage" approved as to form by the Commissioner. The term may include hospital, surgical, medical or major medical benefits provided by group, blanket or franchise coverage, individual and family-type coverage, Blue Cross-Blue Shield coverage and other prepayment plans, group practice and individual practice plans, uninsured benefits provided by labor-management trusteed plans, or union welfare plans, or by employer or employee benefit organizations, benefits provided under governmental programs, workmen's compensation insurance or any coverage required or provided by any other statute, and medical payments under automobile liability and personal liability policies. Other valid coverage shall not include payments made under third party liability coverage as a result of a determination of negligence, but an insurer may at its option include a subrogation clause in its policy. The insurer may require, as part of the proof of claim, the information necessary to administer this provision.

(5) A provision as follows:

Overinsurance: After the loss-of-time benefit of this policy has been payable for ninety (90) days, the benefit will be adjusted, as provided below, if the total amount of unadjusted loss-of-time benefits provided in all valid loss-of-time coverage upon the insured should exceed [insert amount] percent of the insured's earned income; provided, however, that if the information contained in the application discloses that the total amount of loss-of-time benefits under this policy and under all other valid loss-of-time coverage expected to be effective upon the insured in accordance with the application for this policy exceeded [insert amount] percent of the insured's earned income at the time of such application, the higher percentage will be used in place of [insert amount] percent. The adjusted loss-of-time benefit under this policy for any month shall be only such proportion of the loss-of-time benefit otherwise payable under this policy as (i) the product of the insured's earned income and [insert amount] percent (or, if higher, the alternative percentage described at the end of the first sentence of this provision) bears to (ii) the total amount of loss-of-time benefits payable for such month under this policy and all other valid loss-of-time coverage on the insured (without giving effect to the overinsurance provision in this or any other coverage) less in both (i) and (ii) any amount of loss-of-time benefits payable under other valid loss-of-time coverage which does not contain an overinsurance provision. In making the computation, all benefits and earnings shall be converted to a consistent [insert "weekly" if the loss-of-time benefit of this policy is payable weekly, "monthly" if the benefit is payable monthly, etc.] basis. If the numerator of the foregoing ratio is zero or is negative, no benefit shall be payable under this policy. In no event shall this provision operate to reduce the total combined amount of loss-of-time benefits for such month payable under this policy and all other valid loss-of-time coverage below the less of $300 and the total combined amount of loss-of-time benefits determined without giving effect to any overinsurance provision, or operate to increase the amount of benefits payable under this policy above the amount which would have been paid in the absence of this provision, or take into account or operate to reduce any benefit other than the loss-of-time benefit.

For purposes of this provision:

(a) "Earned income," except where otherwise specified, means the greater of the monthly earnings of the insured at the time disability commences and his average monthly earnings for a period of two (2) years immediately preceding the commencement of disability, and shall not include any investment income or any other income not derived from the insured's vocational activities.

(b) "Overinsurance provision" shall include this provision and any other provision with respect to any loss-of-time coverage which may have the effect of reducing an insurer's liability if the total amount of loss-of-time benefits under all coverage exceeds a stated relationship to the insured's earnings.

Drafting Note: The foregoing provision may be included only in a policy which provides a loss-of-time benefit which may be payable for at least fifty-two weeks, which is issued on the basis of selective underwriting of each individual application, and for which the application includes a question designed to elicit information necessary either to determine the ratio of the total loss-of-time benefits or the insured to the insured's earned income or to determine that such ratio does not exceed the percentage of earnings, not less than sixty percent, selected by the insurer and inserted in lieu of the blank factor above. The insurer may require, as part of the proof of claim, the information necessary to administer this provision. If the application indicates that other loss-of-time coverage is to be discontinued, the amount of such other coverage shall be excluded in computing the alternative percentage in the first sentence of the overinsurance provision. The policy shall include a definition of "valid loss-of-time coverage," approved as to form by the Commissioner, which definition may include coverage provided by governmental agencies and by organizations subject to regulation by insurance law and by insurance authorities of this or any other state of the United States or of any other country or subdivision thereof, coverage provided for such insured pursuant to any disability benefits statute or any workmen's compensation or employer's liability statute, benefits provided by labor-management trusteed plans or union welfare plans or by employer or employee benefit organizations, or by salary continuance or pension programs, and any other coverage the inclusion of which may be approved by the Commissioner.

(6) A provision as follows:

Unpaid Premium: Upon the payment of a claim under this policy, any premium then due and unpaid or covered by any note or written order may be deducted therefrom.

(7) A provision as follows:

Conformity with State Statutes: Any provision of this policy which, on its effective date, is in conflict with the statutes of the state in which the insured resides on such date is hereby amended to conform to the minimum requirements of such statutes.

(8) A provision as follows:

Illegal Occupation: The insurer shall not be liable for any loss to which a contributing cause was the insured's commission of or attempt to commit a felony or to which a contributing cause was the insured's being engaged in an illegal occupation.

(9) (a) A provision as follows:

Intoxicants and Narcotics: The insurer shall not be liable for any loss sustained or contracted in consequence of the insured's being intoxicated or under the influence of any narcotic unless administered on the advice of a physician.

(b) This provision may not be used with respect to a medical expense policy.

(c) For purposes of this provision, "medical expense policy" means an accident and sickness insurance policy that provides hospital, medical and surgical expense coverage.

Drafting Note: Paragraphs (9) and (10) are suggested for states which desire such provisions.

C. Inapplicable or Inconsistent Provisions

If any provision of this section is in whole or in part inapplicable to or inconsistent with the coverage provided by a particular form of policy the insurer, with the approval of the Commissioner, shall omit from such policy any inapplicable provision or part of a provision, and shall modify any inconsistent provision or part of the provision in such manner as to make the provision as contained in the policy consistent with the coverage provided by the policy.

D. Order of Certain Policy Provisions

The provisions which are the subject of Subsections A and B of this section, or any corresponding provisions which are used in lieu thereof in accordance with such subsections, shall be printed in the consecutive order of the provisions in such subsections or, at the option of the insurer, any such provisions may appear as a unit in any part of the policy, with other provisions to which it may be logically related, provided the resulting policy shall not be in whole or in part unintelligible, uncertain, ambiguous, abstruse, or likely to mislead a person to whom the policy is offered, delivered or issued.

E. Third Party Ownership

The word "insured," as used in this Act, shall not be construed as preventing a person other than the insured with a proper insurable interest from making application for and owning a policy covering the insured or from being entitled under such a policy to any indemnities, benefits and rights provided therein.

F. Requirements of Other Jurisdictions

(1) Any policy of a foreign or alien insurer, when delivered or issued for delivery to any person in this state, may contain any provision which is not less favorable to the insured or the beneficiary than the provisions of this Act and which is prescribed or required by the law of the state under which the insurer is organized.

(2) Any policy of a domestic insurer may, when issued for delivery in any other state or country, contain any provision permitted or required by the laws of such other state or country.

G. Filing Procedure

The Commissioner may make such reasonable rules and regulations concerning the procedure for the filing or submission of policies subject to this Act as are necessary, proper or advisable to the administration of this Act. This provision shall not abridge any other authority granted the Commissioner by law.

Section 4. Conforming to Statute

A. Other Policy Provisions

No policy which is not subject to Section 3 of this Act shall make a policy, or any portion thereof, less favorable in any respect to the insured or the beneficiary than the provisions thereof which are subject to this Act.

B. Policy Conflicting with this Act

A policy delivered or issued for delivery to any person in this state in violation of this Act shall be held valid but shall be construed as provided in this Act. When any provision in a policy subject to this Act is in conflict with any provision of this Act, the rights, duties and obligations of the insurer, the insured and the beneficiary shall be governed by the provisions of this Act.

Section 5. Application

A. The insured shall not be bound by any statement made in an application for a policy unless a copy of the application is attached to or endorsed on the policy when issued as a part thereof. If any such policy delivered or issued for delivery to any person in this state shall be reinstated or renewed, and the insured or the beneficiary or assignee of the policy shall make written request to the insurer for a copy of the application, if any, for such reinstatement or renewal, the insurer shall within fifteen (15) days after the receipt of the request at its home office or any branch office of the insurer, deliver or mail to the person making the request, a copy of the application. If the copy shall not be so delivered or mailed, the insurer shall be precluded from introducing the application as evidence in any action or proceeding based upon or involving the policy or its reinstatement or renewal.

B. No alteration of any written application for any such policy shall be made by any person other than the applicant without his written consent, except that insertions may be made by the insurer, for administrative purposes only, in such manner as to indicate clearly that such insertions are not to be ascribed to the applicant.

C. The falsity of any statement in the application for any policy covered by this Act may not bar the right to recovery thereunder unless such false statement materially affected either the acceptance of the risk or the hazard assumed by the insurer.

Drafting Note: Section 5, or any subsection thereof, is suggested for use in states which have no comparable statutes relating to the application.

Section 6. Notice, Waiver

The acknowledgment by any insurer of the receipt of notice given under any policy covered by this Act, or the furnishing of forms for filing proofs of loss, or the acceptance of such proofs, or the investigation of any claim thereunder shall not operate as a waiver of any of the rights of the insurer in defense of any claim arising under such policy.

Section 7. Age Limit

If any policy contains a provision establishing, as an age limit or otherwise, a date after which the coverage provided by the policy will not be effective, and if such date falls within a period for which premium is accepted by the insurer or if the insurer accepts a premium after such date, the coverage provided by the policy will continue in force subject to any right of cancellation until the end of the period for which premium has been accepted. In the event the age of the insured has been misstated and if, according to the correct age of the insured, the coverage provided by the policy would not have become effective, or would have ceased prior to the acceptance of such premium or premiums, then the liability of the insurer shall be limited to the refund, upon request, of all premiums paid for the period not covered by the policy.

Section 8. Non-Application to Certain Policies

Nothing in this Act shall apply to or affect:

A. Any policy of workmen's compensation insurance or any policy of liability insurance with or without supplementary expense coverage therein; or

B. Any policy or contract of reinsurance; or

C. Any blanket or group policy of insurance; or

D. Life insurance, endowment or annuity contracts, or contracts supplemental thereto which contain only such provisions relating to accident and sickness insurance as:

(a) Provide additional benefits in case of death or dismemberment or loss of sight by accident, or as

(b Operate to safeguard such contracts against lapse, or to give a special surrender value or special benefit or an annuity in the event that the insured or annuitant shall become totally and permanently disabled, as defined by the contract or supplemental contract.

Drafting Note: This provision may, if desired, be modified in individual states so as to be consistent with current statutes of such states.

Section 9. Violation

Any person, partnership or corporation willfully violating any provision of this Act or order of the Commissioner made in accordance with this Act, shall forfeit to the people of the state a sum not to exceed $[insert amount] for each violation, which may be recovered by a civil action. The Commissioner may also suspend or revoke the license of an insurer or agent for any willful violation.

Drafting Note: This provision is to be used only in those states which do not have similar legislation now in effect.

Section 10. Judicial Review

Any order or decision of the Commissioner under this Act shall be subject to review by appeal (writ of certiorari) to the [insert title] Court at the instance of any party in interest. The filing of the appeal (petition for such writ) shall operate as a stay of any such order or decision until the Court directs otherwise. The Court may review all the facts and, in disposing of the issue before it, may modify, affirm or reverse the order or decision of the Commissioner in whole or in part.

Drafting Note: This provision is to be used only in those states which do not have similar legislation now in effect.

Section 11. Repeal of Inconsistent Acts

Note: This section should contain suitable language to repeal acts or parts of acts presently enacted and inconsistent with this Act. The repealing section should contain an appropriate exception with regard to Section 12 of this Act.

Section 12. Effective Date of Act

This Act shall take effect on the [insert day] of [insert month], 19 [insert year]. A policy, rider or endorsement which could have been lawfully used or delivered or issued for delivery to any person in this state immediately before the effective date of this Act may be used or delivered or issued for delivery to any such person during five (5) years after the effective date of this Act.

APPENDIX A

PROPOSED REGULATION REGARDING OVERINSURANCE PROVISIONS

Each individual health insurance policy, delivered or issued for delivery in this State on or after [insert effective date], which contains the overinsurance provisions authorized in [insert reference to statutory section which contains Section 3B(4) of the Uniform Individual Accident and Sickness Policy Provisions Law] or [insert reference to statutory section which contains Section 3B(5) of the Uniform Individual Accident and Sickness Policy Provisions Law] or, at the option of the insurer, the application for such policy, shall contain, or have attached to or be stamped or endorsed to add, a statement to the effect that benefits under the policy are subject to reduction if the insured has benefits under any other coverage of the type described in the overinsurance provision causing overinsurance as defined in such provision. If the insurer elects to include such statement in the policy, rather than in the application, the policy shall also contain, or have attached to or be stamped or endorsed to add, an additional statement to the effect that during a period of ten (10) days from the date the policy is delivered to the policyholder, it may be surrendered to the insurer together with a written request for cancellation of the policy and in such event the insurer will refund any premium paid therefor including any policy fees or other charges.

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. To perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

RESTATEMENT OF THE NAIC UNIFORM INDIVIDUAL ACCIDENT AND SICKNESS POLICY PROVISION LAW IN SIMPLIFIED LANGUAGE

PURPOSE:

This restatement of the required and most often used optional provisions of the Uniform Policy Provision Law in simplified language is intended as a guideline for the submission and approval of individual accident and sickness policies written in simplified language. Although it is intended specifically for use in those states that adopt the NAIC Model Life and Health Insurance Policy Language Simplification Act, its use as a guide for approval of policies voluntarily written in simplified language is encouraged.

The restated provisions are intended to most accurately reflect the original intent of the Uniform Policy Provision Law and to duplicate its substantive requirements. The rights and obligations of both the insured and insurer or any case law interpreting the uniform provisions are not intended to be affected. They are intended as a uniform "safe harbor" for companies relying upon them. The restatements are no less favorable to the insured or beneficiary and their use is sanctioned under the authority granted by Section 3A of the Uniform Policy Provision Law.

The drafting notes accompanying these restated provisions are in addition to those found in the model law.

Although the provisions are stated in the "insured and insurer" format, rather than the personal "we and you" so as to conform more closely to the style of the model, the use of the personal pronoun format or the substitution of other descriptive terms where appropriate is encouraged. Minor grammatical changes may result from the personal pronoun format.

Section 3. Accident and Sickness Policy Provisions

A. Required Provisions.

(1) Entire Contract; Changes: This policy [with the application and attached papers] is the entire contract between the Insured and the Company. No change in this policy will be effective until approved by a company officer. This approval must be noted on or attached to this policy. No agent may change this policy or waive any of its provisions.

Note: Bracketed material used when appropriate if application or other papers attached.

(2) Time Limit on Certain Defenses:

(a) Misstatements in the Application:

After three years from the issue date only fraudulent misstatements in the application may be used to void the policy or deny any claim for loss incurred or disability that starts after the three-year period.

Drafting Note: A policy which the insured has the right to continue in force subject to its terms by the timely payment of premium (1) until at least age 50 or, (2) in the case of a policy issued after age 44, for at least five years from its date of issue, may contain in lieu of the foregoing the following provision.

Incontestable:

(a) Misstatements in the Application:

After this policy has been in force for three years during the insured's lifetime (excluding any period during which the insured is disabled), the company cannot contest the statements in the application.

(b) Preexisting Conditions:

No claim for loss incurred or disability that starts after three years from the issue date will be reduced or denied because a sickness or physical condition not excluded by name or specific description before the date of loss had existed before the effective date of coverage.

Drafting Note: The restated provision used the reference to loss incurred or disability that starts. If the policy provides coverage for hospital or medical benefits only or for disability benefits only, then one or the other may be inappropriate and companies are encouraged to delete the inappropriate phrase. The three-year period is based on the model, thus, in those states that have reduced the period to a lesser time; the lesser time period should be inserted. The captions "Misstatements in the Application" and "Preexisting Conditions" are an integral part of the provision and must be read in conjunction therewith. The restatement is not intended to have any affect upon or be a bar to any other defenses under the policy.

(3) Grace Period: This policy has a 31-day grace period. This means that if a renewal premium is not paid on or before the date it is due, it may be paid during the following 31 days. The grace period will not apply if, at least 30 days before the premium due date, the company has delivered or mailed to the insured's last address shown in the company's records written notice of the company's intent not to renew this policy. During the grace period, the policy will stay in force.

Drafting Note: The above is for those under which the insurer reserves the right to refuse renewal.

Grace Period: This policy has a 31-day grace period. This means that if a renewal premium is not paid on or before the date it is due, it may be paid during the following 31 days. During the grace period the policy will stay in force.

Drafting Note: The above is for those under which the insurer does not reserve the right to refuse renewal. Insert a number not less than "7" for weekly premium policies, "10" for monthly premium policies and "31" for all other policies.

FLESCH SCORE where insurer reserves right to refuse renewal—62.681

(4) Reinstatement: If the renewal premium is not paid before the grace period ends, the policy will lapse. Later acceptance of the premium by the company (or by an agent authorized to accept payment) without requiring an application for reinstatement will reinstate this policy.

If the company or its agent requires an application, the insured will be given a conditional receipt for the premium. If the application is approved, the policy will be reinstated as of the approval date. Lacking approval, the policy will be reinstated on the 45th day after the date of the conditional receipt unless the company has previously written the insured of its disapproval.

The reinstated policy will cover only loss that results from an injury sustained after the date of reinstatement or sickness that starts more than 10 days after that date. In all other respects the rights of the insured and the company will remain the same, subject to any provisions noted on or attached to the reinstated policy.

Any premiums the company accepts for a reinstatement will be applied to a period for which premiums have not been paid. No premiums will be applied to any period more than 60 days before the reinstatement date.

Drafting Note: The last paragraph of the above provision may be omitted from any policy which the insured has the right to continue in force subject to its terms by the timely payment of premiums (1) until at least age 50 or, (2) in the case of a policy issued after age 44, for at least five years from its date of issue.

The insured need not do this if legally incapacitated. The first six months after any filing of proof by the insured or any payment or denial of a claim by the company will not be counted in applying this provision.

If it was not reasonably possible to give written proof in the time required, the company shall not reduce or deny the claim for this reason if the proof is filed as soon as reasonably possible. In any event, the proof required must be given no later than one year from the time specified unless the claimant was legally incapacitated.

FLESCH SCORE—49.846

REGULATION FOR UNIFORM DEFINITIONS AND STANDARDIZED METHODOLOGIES FOR CALCULATION OF THE MEDICAL LOSS RATIO FOR PLAN YEARS 2011, 2012 AND 2013 PER SECTION 2718 (b) OF THE PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE ACT

Table of Contents

Section 1. Short Title

This Regulation shall be known and may be cited as the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act Medical Loss Ratio Regulation.

Section 2. Purpose

The purpose and intent of this Regulation are to promulgate uniform definitions and a standardized methodology for calculating the medical loss ratio, as legislated by Section 2718 (b) of the Public Health Service Act and the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act.

Section 3. Definitions

A. As used in this Regulation and directed by PPACA to be defined by the NAIC:

(1) "Affiliate" means the statutory accounting definition for affiliate as contained in the then current NAIC Accounting Practices and Procedures Manual.

(2) "Clinical services" means "incurred claims," as defined in 3A (8).

(3) "Earned premium" means the statutory accounting definition for premium for health insurance coverage on a direct basis as contained in the then current NAIC Accounting Practices and Procedures Manual, plus or minus any portions of premium associated with group conversion privileges the issuer transfers between Group and Individual lines of business in its Annual Statement accounting, plus or minus any experience rating refunds paid or received, except as follows:

(a) For purposes of this definition, experience rating refunds shall not include any rebates paid pursuant to Sections 8 or 9 notwithstanding the definition in 3B (10).

(b) Earned premium for policies that were originally issued by one entity and later assumed by another entity via assumption reinsurance are to be treated as direct earned premium for the assuming entity's medical loss ratio rebate calculations and excluded from the ceding entity's medical loss ratio rebate calculations.

(c) If a block of business was subject to indemnity reinsurance and administrative agreements, effective prior to the effective date of PPACA (March 23, 2010), such that the assuming entity is responsible for 100% of the ceding entity's financial risk and takes on all of the administration of the block, then the assuming entity and not the ceding entity should report the reinsured earned premium as part of its medical loss ratio rebate calculations.

(4) "Expenses to improve health care quality" means those expenses as defined in Appendix C and derived from the NAIC Supplemental Health Care Exhibit as adopted by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners on August 17, 2010.

(5) "Federal and State taxes and licensing or regulatory fees" means those taxes and licensing or regulatory fees, as defined in Appendix C and derived from the NAIC Supplemental Health Care Exhibit, as adopted by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners on August 17, 2010.

(6) "Health plan" means health insurance coverage offered by a health insurance issuer as such terms are defined in the Public Health Service Act (including a grandfathered health plan) unless such coverage is an excepted benefit as provided for in the Public Health Service Act.

(7) "Incurred loss" means "incurred claims," as defined in 3A (8).

(8) "Incurred claims" means claims for health insurance coverage on a direct basis incurred during the applicable plan year, plus unpaid claim reserves associated with claims incurred during the applicable plan year, plus the change in contract reserves, plus the claims-related portion of reserves for contingent benefits and lawsuits, plus any experience rating refunds paid or received, and reserves for experience rating refunds. This definition is consistent with the statutory accounting definition contained in the then current NAIC Accounting Practices and Procedures Manual and the definition in Appendix C derived from the NAIC Supplemental Health Care Exhibit as adopted by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners on August 17, 2010. If there are any group conversion charges for a health plan, the conversion charges should be subtracted from the incurred claims for the aggregation that includes the conversion policies and this same amount should be added to the incurred claims for the aggregation that provides coverage that is intended to be replaced by the conversion policies. Additionally, if the issuer transfers portions of earned premium associated with group conversion privileges between Group and Individual lines of business in its Annual Statement accounting, these amounts should be added to or subtracted from incurred claims.

(9) "Individual health plan" means a health plan offered to individuals in the individual market as such term is defined in the Public Health Service Act, but does not include short-term limited duration insurance as defined in the Public Health Service Act.

(10) "Large group health plan" means a health plan offered in the large group market as such term is defined in the Public Health Service Act.

(3) "Calendar year" means the period of time from January 1, YYYY to December 31, YYYY.

(4) "Claims unpaid" means claims reported and in the process of adjustment, percentage withholds from payments made to contracted providers, incurred but not reported claims, and recoverables for anticipated coordination of benefits and subrogation.

(5) "Contract reserves" means reserves that are established which, due to the gross premium pricing structure at issue, account for the value of the future benefits at any time exceeding the value of any appropriate future valuation net premiums at that time. Contract reserves should not include premium deficiency reserves. Contract reserves should not include reserves for expected MLR rebates.

(6) "Credibility adjustment" means the adjustment to account for random statistical fluctuations in claims experience for smaller plans.

(7) "Direct paid claims" means claim payments before ceded reinsurance and excluding assumed reinsurance except as follows: Paid claims for policies that were originally issued by one entity and later assumed by another entity via assumption reinsurance are to be treated as direct paid claims for the assuming entity's medical loss ratio rebate calculations and excluded from the ceding entity's medical loss ratio rebate calculations. If a block of business was subject to indemnity reinsurance and administrative agreements, effective prior to the effective date of PPACA (March 23, 2010), such that the assuming entity is responsible for 100% of the ceding entity's financial risk and takes on all of the administration of the block, then the assuming entity and not the ceding entity should report the reinsured claims as part of its medical loss ratio rebate calculations. If the 2012 experience is not fully credible, the experience rating refund for the plan year 2012 calculation shall also include any rebate paid pursuant to Section 8. The experience rating refund for the plan year 2013 calculation shall also include any rebates paid pursuant to Sections 8 and 9.

(11) "Fully credible," as it relates to experience, means experience generated by 75,000 or more life years.

Section 4. Applicability and Scope

The provisions of this Regulation concerning the calculation and payment of medical loss ratio rebates shall apply to any health insurance issuer offering group or individual health insurance coverage (including a grandfathered health plan) as provided for in Section 2718 of the PHSA for plan years 2011, 2012 and 2013.

Section 5. Levels of Aggregation for Medical Loss Ratio Rebate Calculations

A. Medical loss ratios shall be calculated at the licensed entity level within a state, with experience allocated to states based on the situs of the contract, except that for individual business sold through an association, the allocation shall be based on the issue state of the certificate of coverage and for employer business issued through a group trust, the allocation shall be based on the location of the employer. Experience shall be further subdivided into

(1) Individual health plans;

(2) Small group health plans;

(3) Large group health plans.

B. Pursuant to Section 1312(c)(3) of PPACA, a state may require the individual and small group insurance markets within a state to be merged if the State determines appropriate. In this case, rebates shall be calculated at the licensed entity level within a state, further subdivided into

(1) Individual and small group health plans;

(2) Large group health plans.

C. Plans classified as dual contract may be aggregated as follows:

(1) Experience may be treated as if it were all generated by the plan provided by the in-network issuer.

(2) An issuer that chooses this method of aggregation shall apply it for a minimum of three plan years.

(3) For purposes of this subsection, "experience" means all of the elements used to calculate the numerator and denominator.

Section 6. Frequency and Timing of Medical Loss Ratio Rebate Calculations and Rebate Payments

A. Medical loss ratios shall be calculated annually by all health insurance issuers that provide coverage through one or more health plans that are subject to Section 2718 of the PHSA.

B. Medical loss ratios shall be calculated using data as of December 31 of the plan year except for incurred claims which shall be restated as of March 31 of the year following the plan year.

C. Medical loss ratios shall be reported to the applicable state(s) by May 31 of the year following the plan year using the appropriate reporting format in Appendix A.

D. Rebates shall be paid annually by June 30 of the year following the plan year.

Section 7. Credibility Adjustments to Medical Loss Ratio

A. Plan year 2011

(1) A credibility adjustment is not applicable to any aggregation as defined in Section 5 that is either non-credible or fully credible based on plan year 2011 life years.

(2) The credibility adjustment for any aggregation as defined in Section 5 that is partially credible based on plan year 2011 life years is the unrounded product of the appropriate Table 1 and Table 2 factors. Table 1 and Table 2 are shown in Appendix B.

(a) The Table 1 factor is determined using plan year 2011 life years for the aggregation. The Table 1 factor for a value that is between two life year categories is calculated by linearly interpolating the value between the lower and upper life year categories.

(b) The Table 2 factor may be determined using the plan year 2011 average plan deductible, weighted by life years, for the aggregation. The Table 2 factor for a value that is between two deductible categories is calculated by linearly interpolating the value between the lower and upper deductible categories. A default value of 1.000 may be used as the Table 2 factor at the option of the issuer.

B. Plan year 2012

(1) A credibility adjustment is not applicable to any aggregation as defined in Section 5 that is fully credible based on plan year 2012 life years or based on the sum of life years for plan years 2011 and 2012.

(2) If the sum of life years for plan years 2011 and 2012 is non-credible for any aggregation as defined in Section 5, a credibility adjustment is not applicable.

(3) The credibility adjustment for any aggregation as defined in Section 5 that is partially credible based on the sum of life years for plan years 2011 and 2012 is the unrounded product of the appropriate Table 1 and Table 2 factors. Table 1 and Table 2 are shown in Appendix B.

(a) The Table 1 factor is determined using the sum of plan year 2011 and plan year 2012 life years for the aggregation. The Table 1 factor for a value that is between two life year categories is calculated by linearly interpolating the value between the lower and upper life year categories.

(b) The Table 2 factor may be determined using the average plan deductible for plan year 2011 and plan year 2012 combined, weighted by life years, for the aggregation. The Table 2 factor for a value that is between two deductible categories is calculated by linearly interpolating the value between the lower and upper deductible categories. A default value of 1.000 may be used as the Table 2 factor at the option of the issuer.

C. Plan year 2013

(1) A credibility adjustment is not applicable to any aggregation as defined in Section 5 that is either fully credible or non-credible based on the sum of life years for plan years 2011, 2012, and 2013.

(2) The credibility adjustment for any aggregation as defined in Section 5 that is partially credible based on the sum of life years for plan years 2011, 2012, and 2013 is the unrounded product of the appropriate Table 1 and Table 2 factors. Table 1 and Table 2 are shown in Appendix B.

(a) The Table 1 factor is determined using the sum of life years for plan years 2011, 2012, and 2013 for the aggregation. The Table 1 factor for a value that is between two life year categories is calculated by linearly interpolating the value between the lower and upper life year categories.

(b) The Table 2 factor may be determined using the average plan deductible for plan year 2011, plan year 2012 and plan year 2013 combined, weighted by life years, for the aggregation. The Table 2 factor for a value that is between two deductible categories is calculated by linearly interpolating the value between the lower and upper deductible categories. A default value of 1.000 may be used as the Table 2 factor at the option of the issuer.

Section 8. Medical Loss Ratio Rebate Calculation for Plan Year 2011

A. A rebate is not payable for any aggregation that is non-credible based on plan year 2011 life years.

B. If, for any level of aggregation as defined in Section 5, 50% or more of the total earned premium for 2011 is attributable to policies newly issued in 2011 with less than 12 months of experience in 2011, the experience of these policies may be excluded from the medical loss ratio calculation for plan year 2011. The excluded experience shall be added to the experience used to calculate the medical loss ratio for plan year 2012. For purposes of this subsection, "experience" means all of the elements used to calculate the numerator and denominator.

C. The numerator used to determine the medical loss ratio for the plan year is calculated as incurred claims plus any expenses to improve health care quality.

(1) Incurred claims are those with incurral dates from January 1, 2011 to December 31, 2011, less any claims incurred in 2011 that are to be deferred to the plan year 2012 calculation.

(2) Expenses to improve health care quality are for the period from January 1, 2011 to December 31, 2011, less any expenses to improve health care quality from the 2011 plan year that are to be deferred to the plan year 2012 calculation.

D. Numerator adjustment for insurance coverage provided to a single employer at blended rates.

(1) An issuer that provides insurance coverage to a single employer at blended rates may make an adjustment to each affiliate's numerator calculation to reflect the medical loss ratio calculated for the employer as a whole.

(2) The decision whether to apply the adjustment shall be made prior to January 1, 2011, and shall apply to all groups as described in D(1).

(3) The adjustment shall be an objective formula that is defined prior to January 1, 2011.

(4) For each employer group, the adjustment shall result in each affiliate having the same ratio of incurred claims to earned premium for that employer group for the plan year as the ratio of incurred claims to earned premium calculated for that employer group in aggregate.

(5) An issuer that chooses to use such an adjustment shall use it for a minimum of three plan years.

E. Numerator adjustment for dual option insurance coverage provided to a single employer at blended rates.

(1) An issuer that provides dual option insurance coverage to a single employer at blended rates may make an adjustment to each affiliate's numerator calculation to reflect the medical loss ratio calculated for the employer as a whole.

(2) The decision whether to apply the adjustment shall be made prior to January 1, 2011, and shall apply to all groups as described in E(1).

(3) The adjustment shall be an objective formula that is defined prior to January 1, 2011.

(4) For each employer group, the adjustment shall result in each affiliate having the same ratio of incurred claims to earned premium for that employer group for the plan year as the ratio of incurred claims to earned premium calculated for that employer group in aggregate.

(5) An issuer that chooses to use such an adjustment shall use it for a minimum of three plan years.

F. The denominator used to determine the medical loss ratio for the plan year is calculated as earned premiums less Federal and State taxes and licensing or regulatory fees.

(1) Earned premiums are for the period from January 1, 2011 to December 31, 2011, less any premiums earned in the 2011 plan year that are to be deferred to the plan year 2012 calculation.

(2) Federal and State taxes and licensing or regulatory fees are for the period from January 1, 2011 to December 31, 2011, less any Federal and State taxes and licensing fees from the 2011 plan year that are to be deferred to the plan year 2012 calculation.

G. The medical loss ratio is calculated as the unrounded ratio of the numerator in C, adjusted for conditions in D and E, to the denominator in F.

H. The credibility-adjusted medical loss ratio is calculated as the unrounded sum of the medical loss ratio calculated in G and any applicable credibility adjustment.

I. The credibility-adjusted medical loss ratio is subtracted from the applicable minimum medical loss ratio standard (individual, small group or large group).

J. (1) If the result of I is greater than zero, this number is rounded to the nearer one-tenth of one percentage point and multiplied by the earned premium less Federal and State taxes and licensing or regulatory fees for 2011. The resulting amount is the rebate to be paid.

(2) If the result of I is zero or less, no rebate is to be paid.

Section 9. Medical Loss Ratio Rebate Calculation for Plan Year 2012

A. A rebate is not payable for any aggregation that is non-credible based on the sum of life years for plan years 2011 and 2012.

B. If, for any level of aggregation as defined in Section 5, 50% or more of the total earned premium for 2012 is attributable to policies newly issued in 2012 with less than 12 months of experience in 2012, the experience of these policies may be excluded from the medical loss ratio calculation for plan year 2012. The excluded experience shall be added to the experience used to calculate the medical loss ratio for plan year 2013. For purposes of this subsection, "experience" means all of the elements used to calculate the numerator and denominator.

C. The numerator used to determine the medical loss ratio for the plan year is calculated as incurred claims plus any expenses to improve health care quality.

(1) Incurred claims are those with incurral dates from January 1, 2012 to December 31, 2012, plus any incurred claims deferred from the plan year 2011 calculation, less any claims incurred in 2012 that are to be deferred to the plan year 2013 calculation. If the 2012 experience is not fully credible, incurred claims are those with incurral dates from January 1, 2011 to December 31, 2012, less any claims incurred in 2012 that are to be deferred to the plan year 2013 calculation.

(2) Expenses to improve health care quality are those expenses for the period from January 1, 2012 to December 31, 2012, plus any expenses to improve health care quality deferred from the plan year 2011 calculation, less any expenses to improve health care quality from the 2012 plan year that are to be deferred to the plan year 2013 calculation. If the 2012 experience is not fully credible, expenses to improve health care quality are those for the period from January 1, 2011 to December 31, 2012, less any expenses to improve health care quality from the 2012 plan year that are to be deferred to the plan year 2013 calculation.

D. Numerator adjustment for insurance coverage provided to a single employer at blended rates.

(1) An issuer that provides insurance coverage to a single employer at blended rates may make an adjustment to each affiliate's numerator calculation to reflect the medical loss ratio calculated for the employer as a whole.

(2) The decision whether to apply the adjustment shall be made prior to January 1, 2012, and shall apply to all groups as described in D(1).

(3) The adjustment shall be an objective formula that is defined prior to January 1, 2012.

(4) For each employer group, the adjustment shall result in each affiliate having the same ratio of incurred claims to earned premium for that employer group for the plan year as the ratio of incurred claims to earned premium calculated for that employer group in aggregate.

(5) An issuer that chooses to use such an adjustment shall use it for a minimum of three plan years.

E. Numerator adjustment for dual option insurance coverage provided to a single employer at blended rates.

(1) An issuer that provides dual option insurance coverage to a single employer at blended rates may make an adjustment to each affiliate's numerator calculation to reflect the medical loss ratio calculated for the employer as a whole.

(2) The decision whether to apply the adjustment shall be made prior to January 1, 2012, and shall apply to all groups as described in E(1).

(3) The adjustment shall be an objective formula that is defined prior to January 1, 2012.

(4) For each employer group, the adjustment shall result in each affiliate having the same ratio of incurred claims to earned premium for that employer group for the plan year as the ratio of incurred claims to earned premium calculated for that employer group in aggregate.

(5) An issuer that chooses to use such an adjustment shall use it for a minimum of three plan years.

F. The denominator used to determine the medical loss ratio for the plan year is calculated as earned premiums less Federal and State taxes and licensing or regulatory fees.

(1) Earned premiums are for the period from January 1, 2012 to December 31, 2012, plus any earned premiums deferred from the plan year 2011 calculation, less any premiums earned in the 2012 plan year that are to be deferred to the plan year 2013 calculation. If the 2012 experience is not fully credible, earned premiums are for the period from January 1, 2011 to December 31, 2012, less any premiums earned in the 2012 plan year that are to be deferred to the plan year 2013 calculation.

(2) Federal and State taxes and licensing or regulatory fees are for the period from January 1, 2012 to December 31, 2012, plus any Federal and State taxes and licensing or regulatory fees deferred from the plan year 2011 calculation, less any Federal and State taxes and licensing or regulatory fees from the 2012 plan year that are to be deferred to the plan year 2013 calculation. If the 2012 experience is not fully credible, Federal and State taxes and licensing or regulatory fees are for the period from January 1, 2011 to December 31, 2012, less any Federal and State taxes and licensing or regulatory fees from the 2012 plan year that are to be deferred to the plan year 2013 calculation.

G. The medical loss ratio is calculated as the unrounded ratio of the numerator in C, adjusted for conditions in D and E, to the denominator in F.

H. The credibility-adjusted medical loss ratio is calculated as the unrounded sum of the medical loss ratio calculated in G and any applicable credibility adjustment.

I. The credibility-adjusted medical loss ratio is subtracted from the applicable minimum medical loss ratio standard (individual, small group or large group).

J. (1) If the result of I is greater than zero, this number is rounded to the nearer one-tenth of one percentage point and multiplied by the earned premium less Federal and State taxes and licensing or regulatory fees for the plan year. The resulting amount is the rebate to be paid.

(2) If the result of I is zero or less, no rebate is to be paid.

Section 10. Medical Loss Ratio Rebate Calculation for Plan Year 2013

A. A rebate is not payable for any aggregation that is non-credible based on the sum of life years for plan year 2011, plan year 2012 and plan year 2013.

B. If, for any level of aggregation as defined in Section 5, 50% or more of the total earned premium for 2013 is attributable to policies newly issued in 2013 with less than 12 months of experience in 2013, the experience of these policies may be excluded from the medical loss ratio calculation for plan year 2013. The excluded experience shall be added to the experience used to calculate the medical loss ratio for plan year 2014. For purposes of this subsection, "experience" means all of the elements used to calculate the numerator and denominator.

C. The numerator used to determine the medical loss ratio for the plan year is calculated as incurred claims plus any expenses to improve health care quality.

(1) Incurred claims are those with incurral dates from January 1, 2011 to December 31, 2013, less any claims incurred from January 1, 2013 to December 31, 2013 that are to be deferred to the plan year 2014 calculation.

(2) Expenses to improve health care quality are those expenses for the period from January 1, 2011 to December 31, 2013, less any expenses to improve quality from the 2013 plan year that are to be deferred to the plan year 2014 calculation.

D. Numerator adjustment for insurance coverage provided to a single employer at blended rates.

(1) An issuer that provides insurance coverage to a single employer at blended rates may make an adjustment to each affiliate's numerator calculation to reflect the medical loss ratio calculated for the employer as a whole.

(2) The decision whether to apply the adjustment shall be made prior to January 1, 2013, and shall apply to all groups as described in D(1).

(3) The adjustment shall be an objective formula that is defined prior to January 1, 2013.

(4) For each employer group, the adjustment shall result in each affiliate having the same ratio of incurred claims to earned premium for that employer group for the plan year as the ratio of incurred claims to earned premium calculated for that employer group in aggregate.

(5) An issuer that chooses to use such an adjustment shall use it for a minimum of three plan years.

E. Numerator adjustment for dual option insurance coverage provided to a single employer at blended rates.

(1) An issuer that provides dual option insurance coverage to a single employer at blended rates may make an adjustment to each affiliate's numerator calculation to reflect the medical loss ratio calculated for the employer as a whole.

(2) The decision whether to apply the adjustment shall be made prior to January 1, 2013, and shall apply to all groups as described in E(1).

(3) The adjustment shall be an objective formula that is defined prior to January 1, 2013.

(4) For each employer group, the adjustment shall result in each affiliate having the same ratio of incurred claims to earned premium for that employer group for the plan year as the ratio of incurred claims to earned premium calculated for that employer group in aggregate.

(5) An issuer that chooses to use such an adjustment shall use it for a minimum of three plan years.

F. The denominator used to determine the medical loss ratio for the plan year is calculated as earned premiums less Federal and State taxes and licensing or regulatory fees.

(1) Earned premiums are for the period from January 1, 2011 to December 31, 2013, less any premiums earned in 2013 that are to be deferred to the plan year 2014 calculation.

(2) Federal and State taxes and licensing or regulatory fees are for the period from January 1, 2011 to December 31, 2013, less any Federal and State taxes and licensing or regulatory fees from the 2013 plan year that are to be deferred to the plan year 2014 calculation.

G. The medical loss ratio is calculated as the unrounded ratio of the numerator in C, adjusted for conditions in D and E, to the denominator in F.

H. If both of the following conditions are met, no credibility adjustment will be applicable:

(1) Each of plan years 2011, 2012 and 2013 are partially credible based on the life years for each plan year, respectively, and;

(2) The medical loss ratio, before applying any credibility adjustments, for each of plan years 2011, 2012 and 2013 is less than the minimum medical loss ratio standard for each plan year, respectively.

(a) The plan year 2011 medical loss ratio is the quantity calculated in Section 8 G.

(b) The plan year 2012 medical loss ratio is calculated using the methodology given in Sections 9B, C, D, E, F, and G, with the exception that only experience from January 1, 2012 through December 31, 2012 is to enter into the calculation.

(c) The plan year 2013 medical loss ratio is the quantity calculated using the methodology given in Sections 10B, C, D, E, F, and G, with the exception that only experience from January 1, 2013 through December 31, 2013 is to enter into the calculation.

I. The credibility-adjusted medical loss ratio is calculated as the unrounded sum of the medical loss ratio calculated in G and any applicable credibility adjustment.

J. The credibility-adjusted medical loss ratio is subtracted from the applicable minimum medical loss ratio standard (individual, small group or large group).

K. (1) If the result of J is greater than zero, this number is rounded to the nearer one-tenth of one percentage point and multiplied by the earned premium less Federal and State taxes and licensing or regulatory fees for the plan year. The resulting amount is the rebate to be paid.

(2) If the result of J is zero or less, no rebate is to be paid.

Appendix A. Formats for Reporting Rebate Calculations

This appendix contains formats to report rebate calculations for the 2011, 2012, and 2013 plan years. Each report will require a separate supplemental information form for each experience year in the calculation.

"Line of Business" is the applicable aggregation as defined in Section 5.

"Minimum medical loss ratio" is the loss ratio as defined in Section 3B (15).

Expenses to Improve Health Care Quality:

Derived from SUPPLEMENTAL HEALTH CARE EXHIBIT – PART 3:

Improving Health Care Quality Expenses – General Definition:

Quality Improvement (QI) expenses are expenses, other than those billed or allocated by a provider for care delivery (i.e., clinical or claims costs), for all plan activities that are designed to improve health care quality and increase the likelihood of desired health outcomes in ways that are capable of being objectively measured and of producing verifiable results and achievements. The expenses must be directed toward individual enrollees or may be incurred for the benefit of specified segments of enrollees, recognizing that such activities may provide health improvements to the population beyond those enrolled in coverage as long as no additional costs are incurred due to the non-enrollees other than allowable QI expenses associated with self insured plans. Qualifying QI expenses should be grounded in evidence-based medicine, widely accepted best clinical practice, or criteria issued by recognized professional medical societies, accreditation bodies, government agencies or other nationally recognized health care quality organizations. They should not be designed primarily to control or contain cost, although they may have cost reducing or cost neutral benefits as long as the primary focus is to improve quality. Qualifying QI activities are primarily designed to achieve the following goals set out in Section 2717 of the PHSA and Section 1311 of the PPACA:

- Improve health outcomes including increasing the likelihood of desired outcomes compared to a baseline and reducing health disparities among specified populations;
- Prevent hospital readmissions;
- Improve patient safety and reduce medical errors, lower infection and mortality rates;
- Increase wellness and promote health activities; or
- Enhance the use of health care data to improve quality, transparency, and outcomes.

NOTE: Expenses which otherwise meet the definitions for QI but which were paid for with grant money or other funding separate from premium revenues shall NOT be included in QI expenses.

Include HIT expenses required to accomplish the activities reported in Columns 1 through 4 that are designed for use by health plans, health care providers, or enrollees for the electronic creation, maintenance, access, or exchange of health information, consistent with Medicare/Medicaid meaningful use requirements, in the following ways;

1. Monitoring, measuring, or reporting clinical effectiveness including reporting and analysis costs related to maintaining accreditation by nationally recognized accrediting organizations such as NCQA or URAC; or costs for public reporting of quality of care, including costs specifically required to make accurate determinations of defined measures (e.g., CAHPS surveys or chart review of HEDIS measures and costs for public reporting mandated or encouraged by law;

2. Advancing the ability of enrollees, providers, insurers or other systems to communicate patient centered clinical or medical information rapidly, accurately and efficiently to determine patient status, avoid harmful drug interactions or direct appropriate care – this may include electronic Health Records accessible by enrollees and appropriate providers to monitor and document an individual patient's medical history;

3. Tracking whether a specific class of medical interventions or a bundle of related services leads to better patient outcomes;

Expense Allocation

Supplemental Filing: A single (not state-by-state), separate, regulator only supplemental filing must be made by the insurer to provide a description of the method utilized to allocate QI expenses to each State and to each line and column on Part 3. Additionally, companies reporting QI expenses in Part 3, Columns 1 through 5 must include a detailed description of such expense elements, including how the specific expenses meet the definitions above. The definitions established in the Supplemental Health Care Exhibit apply to this supplemental filing as well. For a new initiative that otherwise meets the definition of QI above but has not yet met the objective, verifiable results requirement, include an "X" in the "New" column of the supplement and include in the description the expected timeframe for the activity to accomplish the objective, verifiable results. Expenses for prospective Utilization Review and the costs of reward or bonuses associated with wellness and health promotion that are included in QI should include an "E" in the "New" column. These will be reviewed for adherence to the definition and standards of QI and may be specifically incorporated into, or excluded from, the instructions for QI for future reporting purposes.

Notes:

a. Healthcare Professional Hotlines: Expenses for healthcare professional hotlines should be included in Claims Adjustment Expenses to the extent they do not meet the criteria for the above defined columns of Improve Health Outcomes, Activities to Prevent Hospital Readmissions, Improve Patient Safety and Reduce Medical Errors, and Wellness & Health Promotion Activities.

b. Prospective Utilization Review: Expenses for prospective Utilization Review should be included in Claims Adjustment Expenses to the extent they do not meet the criteria for the above defined columns of Improve Health Outcomes, Activities to Prevent Hospital Readmissions, Improve Patient Safety and Reduce Medical Errors, and Wellness & Health Promotion Activities, AND the prospective utilization review activities are not conducted in accordance with a program that has been accredited by a recognized accreditation body.

The following items are broadly excluded as not meeting the definitions above:

Note: The NAIC will review requests to include expenses for broadly excluded activities and activities not described under Columns 1 through 5 above. Upon an adequate showing that the activity's costs support the definitions and purposes therein, or otherwise support monitoring, measuring, or reporting health care quality improvement, the NAIC may recommend that the HHS Secretary certify those expenses as Quality Improvement.

Direct Claims Incurred

Line 2 – Direct Claims Incurred:

Hospital/Medical Benefits

Salaries, including fringe benefits, paid to physicians for delivery of medical services. Capitation payments by the reporting entity to physicians for delivery of medical services to reporting entity subscribers.

Fees paid by the reporting entity to physicians on a fee-for-service basis for delivery of medical services to reporting entity subscribers. This includes capitated referrals.

Skilled nursing facilities are primarily engaged in providing skilled nursing care and related services for patients who require medical or nursing care or rehabilitation service.

Other Professional Services

Include: Expenses for other professional providers under contractual arrangement to the reporting entity.

Salaries, as well as fringe benefits, paid by the reporting entity to non-physician providers licensed, accredited or certified to perform specified clinical health services, consistent with state law, engaged in the delivery of medical services to reporting entity enrollees. Capitation payments by the reporting entity to such clinical service.

Out-of-area expenses incurred, whether emergency or hospital, are reported in this line.

Net Healthcare Receivables

Derived from SUPPLEMENTAL HEALTH CARE EXHIBIT – PART 2:

Line 2.9 – Net Healthcare Receivables

Report the change between prior year healthcare receivables and current year healthcare receivables. The amounts on this line are the gross healthcare receivable assets, not just the admitted portion. This amount should not include those healthcare receivables, such as loans or advances to non-related party hospitals, established as prepaid assets that are not expensed until the related claims have been received from the provider.

2010 Proc. 3rd Quarter, Vol. I, 130, 605 (adopted).

PROJECT HISTORY - 2010

REGULATION FOR UNIFORM DEFINITIONS AND STANDARDIZED REBATE CALCULATION METHODOLOGY FOR PLAN YEARS 2011, 2012 AND 2013 PER SECTION 2718 (b) OF THE PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE ACT (#190)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

The Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (PPACA) establishes a minimum loss ratio and rebate program that begins January 1, 2011. The law requires the NAIC to develop the uniform definitions and standard methodologies for calculating the medical loss ratio (MLR). Such methodologies shall be designed to take into account the special circumstances of smaller plans, different types of plans, and newer plans.

The MLR is defined as the sum of clinical services and quality improvements divided by the earned premium minus all federal and state taxes and licensing or regulatory fees. The issues considered were 1) aggregation of the business, 2) whether the calculation would be done on a calendar year or a plan year basis, 3) credibility, 4) group conversion charges, 5) claim run out, and 6) reinsurance.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The 2010 members of the Life and Health Actuarial Task Force are: Kansas (chair), South Carolina (Vice Chair), Alaska, Alabama, California, Connecticut, Florida, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Texas and Utah.

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The initial charge was given to the Task Force in April, 2010, to consider the requirement specified in PPACA and develop a regulation to be delivered to the Secretary of Health and Human Services.

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated

The drafting of the model was done by the PPACA Actuarial Subgroup whose members are: Alabama (Chair), Illinois, Maine, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina, and Washington.

The subgroup began by identifying issues and preparing Issue Resolution Documents (IRDs) on those issues. Each IRD was discussed and posted on the NAIC's home page for comment for at least a week before begin adopted. After all IRDs were adopted by the subgroup, the regulation was written to reflect the issues decided on in the IRDs.

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

The subgroup discussed the proposal at 27 public conference calls on this topic from May 24, 2010, to October 4, 2010. Notice of each of these conference calls was posted on the NAIC's home page on the Internet and e-mailed to approximately 400 interested parties. The drafts of the regulation were released for comment on September 23, 2010, and September 29, 2010. The subgroup voted to adopt the regulation on October 5, 2010.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response)

Level of aggregation: The law specifies that the MLR would be calculated by each legal entity for each state for each line of business: individual, small group, and large group. There was some discussion of aggregating the large group line at the national level, but the subgroup decided to reject that concept.

Dual options: An employer may purchase two or more plans of coverage from two or more affiliated carriers, but typically it purchases an HMO product from an HMO and a more flexible product from a non-HMO. Employees are given the option of coverage through either plan (hence the term "dual option"), although the employer may require different employee contributions. The rates paid by the employer are blended rates. For example, while the rates may vary based on benefit differences, the rates do not reflect the selection between the HMO and non-HMO products. The issue is how to determine the premium and claims allocated to each carrier when there is not a contractual premium reallocation agreement in place. The subgroup decided a pre-defined adjustment may be made to the incurred claims in the calculation of the MLR.

Reinsurance: The subgroup decided to require the MLR calculation be done on a gross basis excluding reinsurance.

Credibility: The subgroup discussed making an adjustment to a MLR calculation when the amount of business involved in the calculation is not large enough to be statistically credible. The NAIC requested an actuarial consulting firm to calculate amounts to be added to the unadjusted MLR based on a 50% two-sided confidence level. The credibility factors are based on the level of life years and the average deductible of business in the calculation.

7. Any Other Important Information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard).

This regulation will be submitted to the Secretary of Health and Human Services and is not an accreditation standard.

Section 3. Scope

This regulation applies to a group life insurance contract providing survivor income benefits, a group annuity contract, or a funding agreement issued for delivery on or after the [insert prospective effective date for applicable state] if the contract is a group contract that utilizes a separate account and provides guaranteed minimum benefits. Drafting Note: This regulation shall govern solely a group contract that utilizes a separate account and provides guaranteed minimum benefits.

Drafting Note: Contracts would remain "grandfathered" until such time as the applicable contract terms or provisions are substantially changed, such as by a contract amendment modifying interest rate or withdrawal provisions. Changes that would not require the filing of a form of contract in compliance with this regulation or a change in the basis of recording asset and liability values in the annual statement would include: address changes, continued deposits, and other non-substantive changes such as these.

(ii) A description of risk-mitigation techniques used by the insurer in connection with contracts issued to pooled funds representing multiple employer-sponsored plans;

Drafting Note: A pooled fund is an arrangement in which multiple, unaffiliated employer -sponsored plans invest in a shared trust. Pooled funds generally allow plan sponsors the right to exit the fund at book value subject to advance notification requirements. In describing the criteria used by the insurer in evaluating the potential issuance of a contract, discuss the insurer's advance notification requirements and how any actual advance notifications will be monitored and reflected in the risk management of the contract.

(7) An unqualified opinion by a qualified actuary with expertise in such matters as to the adequacy of the consideration charged by the insurance company for the risks it has assumed with respect to the contracts in the class to which the plan of operations pertains;

(8) If hedging transactions are to be utilized in managing separate account or any supplemental account assets, a description of the instruments and techniques and an explanation of how they are intended to reduce risk of loss;

(9) If the amount of the asset maintenance requirement depends on the separate account, any supplemental account or a subportfolio of either being duration matched, a description of the method used to determine the durations of separate account and any supplemental account assets and guaranteed contract liabilities;

(10) If a part of the asset maintenance requirement is to be met by maintaining a reserve liability in the general account, a description of:

(a) The circumstances under which increases and decreases in the general account portion of the reserve liability will be made;

(b) The circumstances under which transfers will be made between the separate account and the general account; and

(c) Any arrangements needed to provide sufficient liquidity in the general account to enable the insurance company to make transfers to the separate account when due.

(11) A statement as to the extent to which the contracts in the class will provide or applicable law does provide that the separate account assets shall not be chargeable with liabilities arising out of any other business of the insurance company; and

(12) If any person other than the insurance company may authorize, approve or review the acquisition and disposition of investments for the separate account or any supplemental account, a statement of the safeguards adopted by the insurance company to assure that the actions to be taken by these persons are appropriate, including a description of the criteria used by the insurance company in selecting the person.

C. Notwithstanding the descriptions in the plan of operations, the insurance company may change the rate used pursuant to Section 7F to discount guaranteed contract liabilities and other items applicable to the separate account or any supplemental accounts, such as if the investment portfolio is different from that anticipated by the plan of operations, provided that the rates used shall not exceed the blended spot rates as prescribed in Subsection B(5) of this section. Any such change shall be disclosed and justified in the actuarial opinion submitted pursuant to Section 10.

D. A plan of operations filed pursuant to this section may provide that the separate account will fund guaranteed contract liabilities denominated in the currency of a foreign country with separate account and any supplemental account assets denominated in that currency, provided that at the time of issuance of the account contracts, the country is rated in one of the two (2) highest rating categories by an independent nationally recognized United States rating agency acceptable to the commissioner.

E. The commissioner may require an insurance company to file additional information as part of the plan of operations if the commissioner determines that the plan of operations is not sufficient.

Section 6. Required Contract Provisions and Filing Requirements

Drafting Note: Section 6 may be omitted in its entirety if the state does not require contracts to be filed for approval, and the state wishes to eliminate required contract provisions. Subsection B of this section may be omitted if a state does not require contracts to be filed for approval, but wishes to establish required contract provisions.

A contract may not be delivered or issued for delivery in this state unless the contract satisfies the requirements of Subsection A of this section and the issuing insurer has satisfied the requirements of Subsection B of this section with respect to the contract:

A. The contract shall provide:

(1) A description of any contractual safeguards to assure asset sufficiency, including termination events, discontinuance triggers or discontinuance options and corrective action procedures;

(2) A description of how any charges under the contract are computed, including, but not limited to, any risk or surrender charge; and

(3) For a book value contract, a description of how any market value adjustments under the contract are computed.

B. An insurer will satisfy the filing and approval requirements of this section with respect to a contract if the insurer has filed the form of the contract with the commissioner and it is accompanied by the items specified in Paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) of this subsection, and the form of contract has been approved or has not been disapproved within the thirty-day period following the date of filing, in which event the form of contract shall be deemed approved. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the requirement for filing and approval of the form of contract may be waived at the discretion of the commissioner.

(1) The form of the contract filed for approval shall be accompanied by a statement that the contract meets the conditions of Subsection A of this section.

(2) The form of contract filed for approval shall be accompanied by a statement:

(a) Specifying the range of variation of variable contract provisions, if any, that could have a material effect on the risk assumed by the insurer under the contract, including withdrawal methodology, crediting rate formula and termination events; and Drafting Note: Contract forms covered by this model regulation frequently incorporate variable provisions. The statement required by Subparagraph (a) is intended to provide the information regulators need to evaluate the risks associated with such variability.

(b) Listing events, if any, that give the insurer the right to terminate the contract immediately.

(3) (a) If the plan of operations pertaining to the class of contracts to which the contract belongs has been affirmatively approved by the commissioner of the state in which the issuing insurer is domiciled, the form of a contract filed for approval shall be accompanied by a statement indicating the receipt of approval and that the approval was an affirmative approval; or

(b) If the plan of operations pertaining to the class of contracts to which the contract belongs has been deemed approved in the state in which the issuing insurer is domiciled, the form of contract filed for approval shall be accompanied by a statement indicating that the issuing insurer has met the requirements for deemed approval; or

(c) If the plan of operations pertaining to the class of contracts to which the contract belongs has not been approved, either affirmatively or by deemer, in the state in which the issuing insurer is domiciled, the form of contract filed for approval shall be accompanied by a statement of this fact, together with a plan of operations pertaining to the contract.

Drafting Note: The state of filing may request the plan of operations for informational purposes and may take it into account in deciding whether to approve the form. It is not anticipated that the state of filing would review and approve the plan of operations, but may use it in connection with the review of the form of contract.

Drafting Note: If the plan of operations has not been approved, either affirmatively or by deemer, in the state of domicile of the issuing insurer, the state of issue, in issuing contract approvals, may wish to establish requirements to be met by the issuing insurer (e.g., a notice requirement if the plan of operations subsequently changes, or a requirement that the contract be operated in compliance with the plan of operations) in order to maintain its approval.

Section 7. Asset Maintenance Requirements for Market Value Separate Accounts Supporting Contracts other than Index Contracts

A. At all times an insurer shall hold sufficient assets as a reserve in the general account, the separate account or supplemental accounts, as appropriate, such that the:

(1) Market value of the assets held in the separate account, plus

(2) The market value of any supplemental account, plus

(3) Any assets held in the general account as a reserve for guaranteed contract liabilities (valued in accordance with [insert reference to rules governing valuation of general account assets]), less

(4) The deductions provided for in Subsection B of this section, equals or exceeds the value of guaranteed contract liabilities determined in accordance with Subsection F of this section.

B. In determining compliance with the asset maintenance requirement and the reserve for guaranteed contract liabilities in accordance Subsection A of this section, the insurance company shall deduct a percentage of the market value of the separate account or supplemental account asset or an amount attributable to a replicated (synthetic asset) transaction as follows:

(1) For debt instruments, the percentage shall be the NAIC asset valuation reserve "reserve objective factor," but the factor shall be increased fifty percent (50%) for the purpose of this calculation if the difference in durations of the assets and liabilities is more than one-half year;

(2) For assets that are not debt instruments, the percentage shall be the NAIC asset valuation reserve "maximum reserve factor"; and

(3) For replicated (synthetic asset) transactions, the market value of the separate account or supplemental account assets shall be decreased by an amount equal to the asset valuation reserve for the transaction as if the transaction were occurring in the general account, determined in accordance with [insert reference for determining asset valuation reserve]; but to the extent that the NAIC asset valuation reserve maximum reserve factor was not used in determining the amount of the deduction, the amount of the deduction shall be increased fifty percent (50%) for purposes of this calculation.

C. To the extent that guaranteed contract liabilities are denominated in the currency of a foreign country and are supported by separate account or supplemental account assets denominated in the currency of the foreign country, the percentage deduction for these assets under Subsection B of this section shall be that for a substantially similar investment denominated in the currency of the United States.

D. To the extent that guaranteed contract liabilities are denominated in the currency of the United States and are supported by separate account or supplemental account assets denominated in the currency of a foreign country, and to the extent that guaranteed contract liabilities are denominated in the currency of a foreign country and are supported by separate account or supplemental account assets denominated in the currency of the United States, the deduction for debt instruments and replicated (synthetic assets) transactions under Subsection B of this section shall be increased by fifteen percent (15%) of its market value unless the currency exchange risk has been adequately hedged, in which case the percentage deduction under Subsection B of this section shall be increased by one-half percent (0.5%). No guaranteed contract liabilities denominated in the currency of a foreign country shall be supported by separate account or supplemental account assets denominated in the currency of another foreign country without the approval of the commissioner. For purposes of this subsection, the currency exchange rate on an asset is deemed to be adequately hedged if:

(1) It is an obligation of a jurisdiction that is rated in one of two (2) highest rating categories by an independent nationally recognized United States rating agency acceptable to the commissioner or a political subdivision or other governmental unit of the jurisdiction, or is organized under the laws of the jurisdiction; and

(2) At all times the principal amount and scheduled interest payments on the principal are hedged against the United States dollar pursuant to contracts or agreements that are:

(a) Issued by or traded on a securities exchange or board of trade regulated under the laws of the United States or Canada or a province of Canada;

(b) Entered into with a United States banking institution that has assets in excess of $5 billion and that has obligations outstanding, or has a parent corporation that has obligations, that are rated in one of the two (2) highest rating categories by an independent, nationally recognized United States rating agency, or with a broker-dealer registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission that has net capital in excess of $250 million;

(c) Entered into with any other banking institution that has assets in excess of $5 billion and that has obligations outstanding, or has a parent corporation that has obligations outstanding, that are rated in one of the two (2) highest rating categories by an independent, nationally recognized United States rating agency and that is organized under the laws of a jurisdiction that is rated in one of the two (2) highest rating categories by an independent, nationally recognized United States rating agency; or

(d) Entered into with an entity permitted under [insert reference to section of investment law enumerating permitted counterparties for currency hedging transactions].

E. All or a portion of the amount needed to comply with the asset maintenance requirement may be allocated to one or more supplemental accounts. If the account contract or applicable law provides that the assets in the separate account shall not be chargeable with liabilities arising out of any other business of the insurance company, the insurance company shall maintain in a supplemental account or the general account the amount of any account assets in excess of the sum of (i) the amounts contributed (net of withdrawals) by the contractholder, and (ii) the earnings attributable to the amounts contributed (net of withdrawals) by the contractholder.

F. (1) For purposes of this section, the minimum value of guaranteed contract liabilities is defined to be the sum of the expected guaranteed contract benefits, each discounted at a rate corresponding to the expected time of payment of the contract benefit that is not greater than the rate supportable by the expected return from the separate account and any supplemental account assets provided that the rate used shall not exceed the blended spot rates as prescribed in Section 5B(5) or as described in the actuarial opinion. In calculating the minimum value of contract benefits, all guaranteed contract benefits potentially available to the contractholder shall be considered in the valuation process and analysis, and the reserve held shall be sufficient to fund the greatest present value of each independent guaranteed benefit stream, including guaranteed annuitization options available.

(2) To the extent that future cash flows are dependent upon the benefit responsiveness features of an employer-sponsored plan, a best estimate or an estimate based on the insurance company's experience shall be used in the projections of the future cash flows. In addition, the valuation actuary shall periodically review the actual experience under the contract to validate the assumptions used. In projecting cash flows for contingent benefits involving mortality, the mortality tables for these benefits prescribed or authorized in [insert appropriate section] of the insurance law shall be used.

(3) The minimum value of guaranteed contract benefits under a contract issued to a pooled fund representing multiple employer-sponsored plans shall be determined so as to reflect projected plan sponsor contract value withdrawals available to the member plans in the pooled fund.

Projections of such future cash flows shall take into account (i) known plan sponsor withdrawals, and (ii) a prudent estimate of future plan sponsor withdrawals. The prudent estimate shall be based on company experience and other relevant criteria.

Drafting Note: Other relevant criteria include, but are not limited to, the pooled fund's profile (e.g. number of employer-sponsored plans, and the minimum, maximum, and average size of such plans), the minimum notice that plan sponsors are required to give in order to effectuate a plan sponsor withdrawal, the percentage of the pooled fund that is investment-only and that is full service, and economic conditions.

A single valuation rate shall be determined equal to the lesser of: (i) the expected return from the separate account, or (ii) the blended spot rate based on the duration of the separate account.

This single valuation rate shall be used to model future market values of the separate account. Future credited interest rates shall be modeled according to the contractually defined crediting rate formula. Modeled future contract values shall reflect modeled future market values, modeled future credited interest rates, known future plan sponsor withdrawals, the prudent estimate of future plan sponsor withdrawals, future withdrawals consistent with Paragraph (2) of this subsection, and any remaining final payment at the modeled contract termination date.

All such modeled withdrawals and termination payments shall be discounted using the single valuation rate and the modeled times of those withdrawals and payments. The sum of these present values shall be deemed the minimum value of the guaranteed contract liabilities for a pooled fund contract.

Section 8. Asset Maintenance Requirements for Market Value Separate Accounts Supporting Index Contracts

A. At all times an insurance company shall hold sufficient assets as a reserve in the general account, the separate account or supplemental accounts, as appropriate, such that the:

(1) Market value of the assets held in the separate account, plus,

(2) The market value of any supplemental account, plus,

(3) Any assets held in the general account as a reserve for guaranteed contract liabilities (valued in accordance with [insert reference to rules governing valuation of general account assets]), less

(4) Any deduction provided for in Subsection B of this section, equals or exceeds the value of guaranteed contract liabilities determined in the manner set forth in the plan of operations.

B. In determining compliance with the asset maintenance requirement and the reserves for guaranteed contract liabilities in accordance with Subsection A of this section, the insurance company shall deduct a percentage of the market value of a separate account or supplemental account asset as set forth in the plan of operations, and for replication (synthetic asset) transactions, the value of the separate account or supplemental account assets shall be decreased in the manner set forth in the plan of operations.

C. All or a portion of the amount needed to comply with the asset maintenance requirement may be allocated to one or more supplemental accounts. If the account contract or applicable law provides that the assets in the separate account shall not be chargeable with liabilities arising out of any other business of the insurance company, the insurance company shall maintain in a supplemental account or the general account the amount of any account assets in excess of the sum of (i) the amounts contributed (net of withdrawals) by the contractholder, and (ii) the earnings attributable to the amounts contributed (net of withdrawals) by the contractholder.

Section 9. Asset Maintenance Requirements for Separate Accounts Supporting Book Value Contracts

A. At all times an insurance company shall hold sufficient assets in the general account, the separate account or supplemental accounts, as appropriate, such that the value of the account assets, valued as if the assets were held in the insurance company's general account, equals or exceeds the reserve required for contracts supported by the separate account, determined as if the contracts were held in the general account.

B. All or any portion of the amount needed to comply with the asset maintenance requirement may be allocated to one or more supplemental accounts. If the account contract or applicable law provides that the assets in the separate account shall not be chargeable with liabilities arising out of any other business of the insurance company, the insurance company shall maintain in a supplemental account or the general account the amount of any account assets in excess of the sum of (i) the amounts contributed (net of withdrawals) by the contractholder, and (ii) the earnings attributable to the amounts contributed (net of withdrawals) by the contractholder.

Section 10. Actuarial Opinion and Memorandum

A. An insurance company that maintains any separate accounts governed by this regulation shall submit an actuarial opinion rendered by the valuation actuary to the commissioner annually by March 1 showing the status of the accounts as of the preceding December 31. The actuarial opinion shall be supported by a confidential actuarial memorandum prepared by the valuation actuary rendering the opinion. The valuation actuary may be either the appointed actuary of the company or, alternatively, a qualified actuary designated by the appointed actuary to be the valuation actuary for the purpose of this regulation.

B. The memorandum in support of the opinion, and any other material provided by the company to the commissioner in connection therewith, are deemed to be confidential to the same extent, and under the same conditions, as the actuarial memorandum required by [insert reference to state law equivalent to Section 3 of the NAIC Model Standard Valuation Law].

C. The memorandum shall be made available for examination by the commissioner upon his or her request but shall be returned to the company after such examination and shall not be considered a record of the insurance department or subject to automatic filing with the commissioner.

Drafting Note: Each state should review its laws regarding confidentiality of industry provided information and conform those provisions accordingly.

D. Except in cases of fraud or willful misconduct, the valuation actuary shall not be liable for damages to any person (other than the insurance company and the commissioner) for any act, error, omission, decision, or conduct with respect to the actuary's opinion.

E. The statement of actuarial opinion submitted in accordance with Section 10A shall cover the applicable points set forth in Section [insert reference to regulation governing content of actuarial opinion] and at a minimum consist of:

(1) A paragraph identifying the valuation actuary and his or her qualifications;

(2) A scope paragraph identifying the subjects on which the opinion is to be expressed and describing the scope of the valuation actuary's work;

(3) A reliance paragraph describing those areas, if any, where the valuation actuary has deferred to other experts in developing data, procedures or assumptions (e.g., anticipated cash flows from currently owned assets, including variation in cash flows according to economic scenarios [insert reference to regulation governing content of actuarial opinion with respect to reliance], supported by a statement of each expert in the form prescribed by [insert reference to regulation governing content of actuarial opinion with respect to reliance]); and

(4) An opinion paragraph expressing the valuation actuary's opinion that, after taking into account any risk charge payable from the separate account assets and the amount of any reserve liability of the general account and amounts held in any supplemental account with respect to the asset maintenance requirement, the account assets make adequate provision for the contract liabilities.

(5) The opinion shall also state:

(a) That the level of risk charges, if any, payable to the general account was appropriate in view of such factors as the nature of the guaranteed contract liabilities and losses experienced in connection with account contracts, and other pricing factors;

(b) That after taking account of any reserve liability of the general account and amounts held in any supplemental account with respect to the asset maintenance requirement, the amount of the account assets satisfied the asset maintenance requirement;

(c) That the fixed-income asset portfolio conformed to, and justified, the rates used to discount contract liabilities for valuation pursuant to Section 7F, if applicable; and

(d) Whether any rates used pursuant to Section 7F to discount guaranteed contract liabilities and other items applicable to the separate account or any supplemental account were modified from the rate or rates described in the plan of operations filed pursuant to Section 5.

(6) One or more additional paragraphs may be needed in individual company cases as follows:

(a) If the valuation actuary considers it necessary to state a qualification of his or her opinion;

(b) If the valuation actuary must disclose an inconsistency in the method of analysis used at the prior opinion date with that used for this opinion; or

(c) If the valuation actuary chooses to add a paragraph briefly describing the assumptions which form the basis of the actuarial opinion.

F. The opinion shall be accompanied by a certificate of an officer of the insurance company responsible for monitoring compliance with the asset maintenance requirements for the separate accounts, describing the extent to and manner in which during the preceding year:

(1) Actual benefit payments conformed to the benefit payment estimated to be made as described in the plan of operations;

(2) The determination of the value of the separate account and any supplemental account conformed to the valuation procedures described in the plan of operations, including, but not limited to, a statement of the procedures and sources of information used during the year; and

(3) Any assets were transferred to or from the insurance company's general account, or any amounts were paid to the insurance company by any contractholder to support the insurance company's guarantee.

G. The actuarial memorandum shall:

(1) Substantially conform with those portions of Section [insert reference to section of the regulations related to actuarial memoranda] of these regulations that are applicable to asset adequacy testing and either:

(a) Demonstrate the adequacy of account assets based upon cash flow analysis; or

(b) Explain why cash flow analysis is not appropriate, describe the alternative methodology of asset adequacy testing used, and demonstrate the adequacy of account assets under such methodology.

(2) Clearly describe the assumptions the valuation actuary used in support of the actuarial opinion, including any assumptions made in projecting cash flows under each class of assets, and any dynamic portfolio hedging techniques utilized and the tests performed on the utilization of the techniques;

(3) Clearly describe how the valuation actuary reflected the risk of default on obligations and mortgage loans, including obligations and mortgage loans that are not investment grade;

(4) Clearly describe how the valuation actuary has reflected withdrawal risks, if applicable, including a discussion of the positioning of the contracts within the benefit withdrawal priority order pertaining to the contracts, the impact of any dynamic lapse assumption and the results of sensitivity testing the prudent estimate of future plan sponsor withdrawals pursuant to Section 7F(3);

(5) If the plan of operations provides for investments in separate account or supplemental account assets other than United States government obligations, demonstrate that the rates used to discount contract liabilities pursuant to Section 7F conservatively reflect expected investment returns (taking into account any foreign exchange risks);

(6) If the contracts provide that in certain circumstances they would cease to be funded by a separate account and, instead, would become contracts funded by the general account, clearly describe how any increased reserves would be provided for if and to the extent these circumstances occurred;

(7) State the amount of separate account assets that are not chargeable with liabilities arising out of any other business of the insurance company;

(8) State the amount of reserves and supporting assets as of December 31 and where the reserves and assets are shown in the annual statement;

(9) State the amount of any contingency reserve carried as part of surplus;

(10) For book value contracts, state the market value of supporting assets; and

(11) Where separate account assets are not chargeable with liabilities arising out of any other business of the insurance company, describe how the level of risk charges payable to the general account provider are appropriate compensation for the risk taken by the general account.

Section 11. Asset Valuation Reserve

When the insurance company values separate account or supplemental account assets at market and complies with the asset maintenance requirements of Section 7 or 8, it need not maintain an asset valuation reserve with respect to these assets.

Section 12. Reserve Valuation

A. Reserves for contracts funded by a market value separate account supporting contracts other than index contracts shall be an amount equal to the following:

(1) The total reserve required to be maintained on the valuation date under Section 7;

(2) Plus the excess, if any, of the market value of separate account assets (to the extent that the market value of the assets determines the contractholder's benefits, i.e., to the extent the assets are beneficially "client" assets) over the amount determined in accordance with Paragraph (1) of this subsection;

(3) Plus any additional amount determined by the valuation actuary as necessary to make adequate provision for all of the contract liabilities;

(4) Plus any additional amount determined as necessary by the commissioner due to the nature of the benefits.

B. Reserves for index contracts funded by a market value separate account shall be an amount equal to the following:

(1) The total reserve required to be maintained on the valuation date under Section 8;

(2) Plus the excess, if any, of the market value of separate account assets (to the extent that the market value of the assets determines the contractholder's benefits, i.e., to the extent the assets are beneficially "client" assets) over the amount determined in accordance with Paragraph (1) of this subsection;

(3) Plus any additional amounts determined by the valuation actuary as necessary to make adequate provision for all of the contract liabilities;

(4) Plus any additional amount determined as necessary by the commissioner due to the nature of the benefits.

C. Reserves for book value contracts shall be determined as if the contracts were held in the general account.

D. The amount of any reserves required by Subsections A(3) and (4) or Subsections B(3) and (4) of this section may be established by either:

(1) Allocating sufficient assets to the separate account or a supplemental account to satisfy the requirement; or
(2) Setting up the additional reserves in the general account.

Section 13. Severability

If any provision of this regulation or its application to any person or circumstance is held invalid by a court of competent jurisdiction, that judgment shall not affect or impair the validity of the other provisions of this regulation.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2016

SEPARATE ACCOUNTS FUNDING GUARANTEED MINIMUM BENEFITS UNDER GROUP CONTRACTS MODEL REGULATION (#200)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

Revisions were made to the Separate Accounts Funding Guaranteed Minimum Benefits Under Group Contracts Model Regulation (#200) to modify the valuation methodology. Definitions were added for the following terms: "Treasury-based spot rate"; "index spot rate"; "blended spot rate"; and "prudent estimate." Section 5B(5) and Section 5C were revised to provide further definition. Section 5B(6)(g) was added to expand the plan of operations requirements for pooled funds contracts and to provide further guidance. The modification to Section 7F(1) and the addition of Section 7F(3) clarify and strengthen the valuation requirements for pooled fund contracts. Section 10G(4) was revised to expand the actuarial memorandum requirements related to withdrawal risks.

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The revisions to the model were authorized in 2016 by the following charge to the Task Force: "Provide recommendations and changes, as appropriate, to other reserve and nonforfeiture requirements to address issues and provide actuarial assistance and commentary to other NAIC committees relative to their work on actuarial matters."

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc.). Include any parties outside the members that participated.

The revisions to Model #200 were drafted by the American Academy of Actuaries (Academy) at the request of the Task Force. After reviewing the proposed revisions, the Task Force exposed the revisions for a public comment period. No comments were received. The Task Force adopted the proposed revisions on its Oct. 13, 2016, conference call. The revised model was then forwarded to the Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee. The Committee adopted the revisions on its Oct. 19, 2016, conference call.

All drafts were distributed to more than 100 interested parties and posted on the NAIC website. Numerous interested parties participated in the drafting process, including the American Council of Life Insurers (ACLI) and the Academy.

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

The Task Force met at each national meeting and held interim meetings and conference calls starting in December 2015 until adopting the revisions on its Oct. 13, 2016, conference call. Prior to adoption, the revisions were exposed for a public comment period. No comments were received.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (e.g., items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response)

The revisions to Model #200 were necessitated by the 2015 adoption of similar revisions to the Synthetic Guaranteed Investment Contracts Model Regulation (#695). The products subject to the two regulations differ only in that, under Model #695, the group annuity contract or other agreement establishes the insurer's obligations by reference to a segregated portfolio of assets that is not owned by the insurer.

7. Any Other Important Information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard)

None.

ANNUAL FINANCIAL REPORTING MODEL REGULATION

Table of Contents

Section 1. Authority

This regulation is promulgated by the commissioner of insurance pursuant to Sections [insert applicable sections] of the [insert state] insurance law.

Section 2. Purpose and Scope

The purpose of this regulation is to improve the [insert state] Insurance Department's surveillance of the financial condition of insurers by requiring (1) an annual audit of financial statements reporting the financial position and the results of operations of insurers by independent certified public accountants, (2) Communication of Internal Control Related Matters Noted in an Audit, and (3) Management's Report of Internal Control over Financial Reporting.

Every insurer (as defined in Section 3) shall be subject to this regulation. Insurers having direct premiums written in this state of less than $1,000,000 in any calendar year and less than 1,000 policyholders or certificate holders of direct written policies nationwide at the end of the calendar year shall be exempt from this regulation for the year (unless the commissioner makes a specific finding that compliance is necessary for the commissioner to carry out statutory responsibilities) except that insurers having assumed premiums pursuant to contracts and/or treaties of reinsurance of $1,000,000 or more will not be so exempt.

Foreign or alien insurers filing the audited financial report in another state, pursuant to that state's requirement for filing of audited financial reports, which has been found by the commissioner to be substantially similar to the requirements herein, are exempt from Sections 4 through 13 of this regulation if:

A. A copy of the audited financial report, Communication of Internal Control Related Matters Noted in an Audit, and the Accountant's Letter of Qualifications that are filed with the other state are filed with the commissioner in accordance with the filing dates specified in Sections 4, 11 and 12, respectively (Canadian insurers may submit accountants' reports as filed with the Office of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions, Canada).

B. A copy of any Notification of Adverse Financial Condition Report filed with the other state is filed with the commissioner within the time specified in Section 10.

Foreign or alien insurers required to file Management's Report of Internal Control over Financial Reporting in another state are exempt from filing the report in this state provided the other state has substantially similar reporting requirements and the report is filed with the commissioner of the other state within the time specified.

This regulation shall not prohibit, preclude or in any way limit the commissioner of insurance from ordering or conducting or performing examinations of insurers under the rules and regulations of the [insert state] Department of Insurance and the practices and procedures of the [insert state] Department of Insurance.

Section 4. General Requirements Related to Filing and Extensions for Filing of Annual Audited Financial Reports and Audit Committee Appointment

A. All insurers shall have an annual audit by an independent certified public accountant and shall file an audited financial report with the commissioner on or before June 1 for the year ended December 31 immediately preceding. The commissioner may require an insurer to file an audited financial report earlier than June 1 with ninety (90) days advance notice to the insurer.

B. Extensions of the June 1 filing date may be granted by the commissioner for thirty-day periods upon a showing by the insurer and its independent certified public accountant of the reasons for requesting an extension and determination by the commissioner of good cause for an extension. The request for extension must be submitted in writing not less than ten (10) days prior to the due date in sufficient detail to permit the commissioner to make an informed decision with respect to the requested extension.

C. If an extension is granted in accordance with the provisions in Section 4B, a similar extension of thirty (30) days is granted to the filing of Management's Report of Internal Control over Financial Reporting.

D. Every insurer required to file an annual audited financial report pursuant to this regulation shall designate a group of individuals as constituting its audit committee, as defined in Section 3. The audit committee of an entity that controls an insurer may be deemed to be the insurer's audit committee for purposes of this regulation at the election of the controlling person.

Section 5. Contents of Annual Audited Financial Report

The annual audited financial report shall report the financial position of the insurer as of the end of the most recent calendar year and the results of its operations, cash flows and changes in capital and surplus for the year then ended in conformity with statutory accounting practices prescribed, or otherwise permitted, by the Department of Insurance of the state of domicile.

The annual Audited financial report shall include the following:

A. Report of independent certified public accountant.

B. Balance sheet reporting admitted assets, liabilities, capital and surplus.

C. Statement of operations.

D. Statement of cash flow.

E. Statement of changes in capital and surplus.

F. Notes to financial statements. These notes shall be those required by the appropriate NAIC Annual Statement Instructions and the NAIC Accounting Practices and Procedures Manual. The notes shall include a reconciliation of differences, if any, between the audited statutory financial statements and the annual statement filed pursuant to Section [insert applicable section] of the [insert state] insurance law with a written description of the nature of these differences.

G. The financial statements included in the audited financial report shall be prepared in a form and using language and groupings substantially the same as the relevant sections of the annual statement of the insurer filed with the commissioner, and the financial statement shall be comparative, presenting the amounts as of December 31 of the current year and the amounts as of the immediately preceding December 31. (However, in the first year in which an insurer is required to file an audited financial report, the comparative data may be omitted).

Section 6. Designation of Independent Certified Public Accountant

A. Each insurer required by this regulation to file an annual audited financial report must within sixty (60) days after becoming subject to the requirement, register with the commissioner in writing the name and address of the independent certified public accountant or accounting firm retained to conduct the annual audit set forth in this regulation. Insurers not retaining an independent certified public accountant on the effective date of this regulation shall register the name and address of their retained independent certified public accountant not less than six (6) months before the date when the first audited financial report is to be filed.

B. The insurer shall obtain a letter from the accountant, and file a copy with the commissioner stating that the accountant is aware of the provisions of the insurance code and the regulations of the Insurance Department of the state of domicile that relate to accounting and financial matters and affirming that the accountant will express his or her opinion on the financial statements in terms of their conformity to the statutory accounting practices prescribed or otherwise permitted by that Insurance Department, specifying such exceptions as he or she may believe appropriate.

C. If an accountant who was the accountant for the immediately preceding filed audited financial report is dismissed or resigns, the insurer shall within five (5) business days notify the commissioner of this event. The insurer shall also furnish the commissioner with a separate letter within ten (10) business days of the above notification stating whether in the twenty-four (24) months preceding such event there were any disagreements with the former accountant on any matter of accounting principles or practices, financial statement disclosure, or auditing scope or procedure; which disagreements, if not resolved to the satisfaction of the former accountant, would have caused him or her to make reference to the subject matter of the disagreement in connection with his or her opinion. The disagreements required to be reported in response to this section include both those resolved to the former accountant's satisfaction and those not resolved to the former accountant's satisfaction. Disagreements contemplated by this section are those that occur at the decision-making level, i.e., between personnel of the insurer responsible for presentation of its financial statements and personnel of the accounting firm responsible for rendering its report. The insurer shall also in writing request the former accountant to furnish a letter addressed to the insurer stating whether the accountant agrees with the statements contained in the insurer's letter and, if not, stating the reasons for which he or she does not agree; and the insurer shall furnish the responsive letter from the former accountant to the commissioner together with its own.

Section 7. Qualifications of Independent Certified Public Accountant

A. The commissioner shall not recognize a person or firm as a qualified independent certified public accountant if the person or firm:

(1) Is not in good standing with the AICPA and in all states in which the accountant is licensed to practice, or, for a Canadian or British company, that is not a chartered accountant; or

(2) Has either directly or indirectly entered into an agreement of indemnity or release from liability (collectively referred to as indemnification) with respect to the audit of the insurer.

B. Except as otherwise provided in this regulation, the commissioner shall recognize an independent certified public accountant as qualified as long as he or she conforms to the standards of his or her profession, as contained in the Code of Professional Ethics of the AICPA and Rules and Regulations and Code of Ethics and Rules of Professional Conduct of the [insert state] Board of Public Accountancy, or similar code.

C. A qualified independent certified public accountant may enter into an agreement with an insurer to have disputes relating to an audit resolved by mediation or arbitration. However, in the event of a delinquency proceeding commenced against the insurer under [cite applicable receivership statute], the mediation or arbitration provisions shall operate at the option of the statutory successor.

D. (1) The lead (or coordinating) audit partner (having primary responsibility for the audit) may not act in that capacity for more than five (5) consecutive years. The person shall be disqualified from acting in that or a similar capacity for the same company or its insurance subsidiaries or affiliates for a period of five (5) consecutive years. An insurer may make application to the commissioner for relief from the above rotation requirement on the basis of unusual circumstances. This application should be made at least thirty (30) days before the end of the calendar year. The commissioner may consider the following factors in determining if the relief should be granted:

(a) Number of partners, expertise of the partners or the number of insurance clients in the currently registered firm;

(b) Premium volume of the insurer; or

(c) Number of jurisdictions in which the insurer transacts business.

(2) The insurer shall file, with its annual statement filing, the approval for relief from Subsection D(1) with the states that it is licensed in or doing business in and with the NAIC. If the nondomestic state accepts electronic filing with the NAIC, the insurer shall file the approval in an electronic format acceptable to the NAIC.

E. The commissioner shall neither recognize as a qualified independent certified public accountant, nor accept an annual audited financial report, prepared in whole or in part by, a natural person who:

(1) Has been convicted of fraud, bribery, a violation of the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act, 18 U.S.C. Sections 1961 to 1968, or any dishonest conduct or practices under federal or state law;

(2) Has been found to have violated the insurance laws of this state with respect to any previous reports submitted under this regulation; or

(3) Has demonstrated a pattern or practice of failing to detect or disclose material information in previous reports filed under the provisions of this regulation.

F. The commissioner of insurance, as provided in Section [insert applicable section] of the insurance code, may, as provided in [insert applicable citation], hold a hearing to determine whether an independent certified public accountant is qualified and, considering the evidence presented, may rule that the accountant is not qualified for purposes of expressing his or her opinion on the financial statements in the annual audited financial report made pursuant to this regulation and require the insurer to replace the accountant with another whose relationship with the insurer is qualified within the meaning of this regulation.

G. (1) The commissioner shall not recognize as a qualified independent certified public accountant, nor accept an annual audited financial report, prepared in whole or in part by an accountant who provides to an insurer, contemporaneously with the audit, the following non-audit services:

(a) Bookkeeping or other services related to the accounting records or financial statements of the insurer;

(b) Financial information systems design and implementation;

(c) Appraisal or valuation services, fairness opinions, or contribution-in-kind reports;

(d) Actuarially-oriented advisory services involving the determination of amounts recorded in the financial statements. The accountant may assist an insurer in understanding the methods, assumptions and inputs used in the determination of amounts recorded in the financial statement only if it is reasonable to conclude that the services provided will not be subject to audit procedures during an audit of the insurer's financial statements. An accountant's actuary may also issue an actuarial opinion or certification ("opinion") on an insurer's reserves if the following conditions have been met:

(i) Neither the accountant nor the accountant's actuary has performed any management functions or made any management decisions;

(ii) The insurer has competent personnel (or engages a third party actuary) to estimate the reserves for which management takes responsibility; and

(iii) The accountant's actuary tests the reasonableness of the reserves after the insurer's management has determined the amount of the reserves;

(e) Internal audit outsourcing services;

(f) Management functions or human resources;

(g) Broker or dealer, investment adviser, or investment banking services;

(h) Legal services or expert services unrelated to the audit; or

(i) Any other services that the commissioner determines, by regulation, are impermissible.

Drafting Note: Any additions or deletions from the list of prohibited services by a state must be carefully considered as uniformity among states is essential in this section. In determining whether other services are impermissible, the commissioner shall consider utilizing the guidance provided in the SEC's Final Rule No. 33-8183, Strengthening the Commission's Requirements Regarding Auditor Independence adopted January 28, 2003, in order to evaluate whether the provision of such services impairs the independence of the accountant.

(2) In general, the principles of independence with respect to services provided by the qualified independent certified public accountant are largely predicated on three basic principles, violations of which would impair the accountant's independence. The principles are that the accountant cannot function in the role of management, cannot audit his or her own work, and cannot serve in an advocacy role for the insurer.

H. Insurers having direct written and assumed premiums of less than $100,000,000 in any calendar year may request an exemption from Subsection G(1). The insurer shall file with the commissioner a written statement discussing the reasons why the insurer should be exempt from these provisions. If the commissioner finds, upon review of this statement, that compliance with this regulation would constitute a financial or organizational hardship upon the insurer, an exemption may be granted.

I. A qualified independent certified public accountant who performs the audit may engage in other non-audit services, including tax services, that are not described in Subsection G(1) or that do not conflict with Subsection G(2), only if the activity is approved in advance by the Audit committee, in accordance with Subsection J.

Drafting Note: A qualified independent certified public accountant who performs the audit may also engage in other non-audit services for an insurer, including tax services, that are not described in Subsection G(1) or that do not conflict with Subsection G(2) if the audit committee is in compliance with the SEC's Final Rule No. 33-8183, Strengthening the Commission's Requirements Regarding Auditor Independence adopted January 28, 2003, and has approved such activity.

J. All auditing services and non-audit services provided to an insurer by the qualified independent certified public accountant of the insurer shall be preapproved by the audit committee. The preapproval requirement is waived with respect to non-audit services if the insurer is a SOX Compliant Entity or a direct or indirect wholly-owned subsidiary of a SOX Compliant Entity or:

(1) The aggregate amount of all such non-audit services provided to the insurer constitutes not more than five percent (5%) of the total amount of fees paid by the insurer to its qualified independent certified public accountant during the fiscal year in which the non-audit services are provided;

(2) The services were not recognized by the insurer at the time of the engagement to be non-audit services; and

(3) The services are promptly brought to the attention of the audit committee and approved prior to the completion of the audit by the audit committee or by one or more members of the audit committee who are the members of the board of directors to whom authority to grant such approvals has been delegated by the audit committee.

K. The audit committee may delegate to one or more designated members of the audit committee the authority to grant the preapprovals required by Subsection J. The decisions of any member to whom this authority is delegated shall be presented to the full audit committee at each of its scheduled meetings.

L. (1) The commissioner shall not recognize an independent certified public accountant as qualified for a particular insurer if a member of the board, president, chief executive officer, controller, chief financial officer, chief accounting officer, or any person serving in an equivalent position for that insurer, was employed by the independent certified public accountant and participated in the audit of that insurer during the one-year period preceding the date that the most current statutory opinion is due. This section shall only apply to partners and senior managers involved in the audit. An insurer may make application to the commissioner for relief from the above requirement on the basis of unusual circumstances.

(2) The insurer shall file, with its annual statement filing, the approval for relief from Subsection L(1) with the states that it is licensed in or doing business in and the NAIC. If the nondomestic state accepts electronic filing with the NAIC, the insurer shall file the approval in an electronic format acceptable to the NAIC.

Section 8. Consolidated or Combined Audits

An insurer may make written application to the commissioner for approval to file audited consolidated or combined financial statements in lieu of separate annual audited financial statements if the insurer is part of a group of insurance companies that utilizes a pooling or 100 percent reinsurance agreement that affects the solvency and integrity of the insurer's reserves and the insurer cedes all of its direct and assumed business to the pool. In such cases, a columnar consolidating or combining worksheet shall be filed with the report, as follows:

A. Amounts shown on the consolidated or combined audited financial report shall be shown on the worksheet;

B. Amounts for each insurer subject to this section shall be stated separately;

C. Noninsurance operations may be shown on the worksheet on a combined or individual basis;

D. Explanations of consolidating and eliminating entries shall be included; and

E. A reconciliation shall be included of any differences between the amounts shown in the individual insurer columns of the worksheet and comparable amounts shown on the annual statements of the insurers.

Section 9. Scope of Audit and Report of Independent Certified Public Accountant

Financial statements furnished pursuant to Section 5 shall be examined by the independent certified public accountant. The audit of the insurer's financial statements shall be conducted in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. In accordance with AU Section 319 of the Professional Standards of the AICPA, Consideration of Internal Control in a Financial Statement Audit, the independent certified public accountant should obtain an understanding of internal control sufficient to plan the audit. To the extent required by AU 319, for those insurers required to file a Management's Report of Internal Control over Financial Reporting pursuant to Section 17, the independent certified public accountant should consider (as that term is defined in Statement on Auditing Standards (SAS) No. 102, Defining Professional Requirements in Statements on Auditing Standards or its replacement) the most recently available report in planning and performing the audit of the statutory financial statements. Consideration shall be given to the procedures illustrated in the Financial Condition Examiners Handbook promulgated by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners as the independent certified public accountant deems necessary.

Section 10. Notification of Adverse Financial Condition

A. The insurer required to furnish the annual audited financial report shall require the independent certified public accountant to report, in writing, within five (5) business days to the board of directors or its audit committee any determination by the independent certified public accountant that the insurer has materially misstated its financial condition as reported to the commissioner as of the balance sheet date currently under audit or that the insurer does not meet the minimum capital and surplus requirement of the [insert state] insurance code as of that date. An insurer that has received a report pursuant to this paragraph shall forward a copy of the report to the commissioner within five (5) business days of receipt of the report and shall provide the independent certified public accountant making the report with evidence of the report being furnished to the commissioner. If the independent certified public accountant fails to receive the evidence within the required five (5) business day period, the independent certified public accountant shall furnish to the commissioner a copy of its report within the next five (5) business days.

B. No independent certified public accountant shall be liable in any manner to any person for any statement made in connection with the above paragraph if the statement is made in good faith in compliance with Subsection A.

C. If the accountant, subsequent to the date of the audited financial report filed pursuant to this regulation, becomes aware of facts that might have affected his or her report, the commissioner notes the obligation of the accountant to take such action as prescribed in Volume 1, Section AU 561 of the Professional Standards of the AICPA.

Section 11. Communication of Internal Control Related Matters Noted in an Audit

A. In addition to the annual audited financial report, each insurer shall furnish the commissioner with a written communication as to any unremediated material weaknesses in its internal control over financial reporting noted during the audit. Such communication shall be prepared by the accountant within sixty (60) days after the filing of the annual audited financial report, and shall contain a description of any unremediated material weakness (as the term material weakness is defined by Statement on Auditing Standard 60, Communication of Internal Control Related Matters Noted in an Audit, or its replacement) as of December 31 immediately preceding (so as to coincide with the audited financial report discussed in Section 4(A)) in the insurer's internal control over financial reporting noted by the accountant during the course of their audit of the financial statements. If no unremediated material weaknesses were noted, the communication should so state.

Drafting Note: The insurer is expected to maintain information about significant deficiencies communicated by the independent certified public accountant. Such information should be made available to the examiner conducting a financial condition examination for review and kept in such a manner as to remain confidential.

B. The insurer is required to provide a description of remedial actions taken or proposed to correct unremediated material weaknesses, if the actions are not described in the accountant's communication.

Section 12. Accountant's Letter of Qualifications

The accountant shall furnish the insurer in connection with, and for inclusion in, the filing of the annual audited financial report, a letter stating:

A. That the accountant is independent with respect to the insurer and conforms to the standards of his or her profession as contained in the Code of Professional Ethics and pronouncements of the AICPA and the Rules of Professional Conduct of the [insert state] Board of Public Accountancy, or similar code;

B. The background and experience in general, and the experience in audits of insurers of the staff assigned to the engagement and whether each is an independent certified public accountant. Nothing within this regulation shall be construed as prohibiting the accountant from utilizing such staff as he or she deems appropriate where use is consistent with the standards prescribed by generally accepted auditing standards;

C. That the accountant understands the annual audited financial report and his opinion thereon will be filed in compliance with this regulation and that the commissioner will be relying on this information in the monitoring and regulation of the financial position of insurers;

D. That the accountant consents to the requirements of Section 13 of this regulation and that the accountant consents and agrees to make available for review by the commissioner, or the commissioner's designee or appointed agent, the workpapers, as defined in Section 13;

E. A representation that the accountant is properly licensed by an appropriate state licensing authority and is a member in good standing in the AICPA; and

F. A representation that the accountant is in compliance with the requirements of Section 7 of this regulation.

Section 13. Definition, Availability and Maintenance of Independent Certified Public Accountants Work Papers

A. Work papers are the records kept by the independent certified public accountant of the procedures followed, the tests performed, the information obtained, and the conclusions reached pertinent to the accountant's audit of the financial statements of an insurer. Work papers, accordingly, may include audit planning documentation, work programs, analyses, memoranda, letters of confirmation and representation, abstracts of company documents and schedules or commentaries prepared or obtained by the independent certified public accountant in the course of his or her audit of the financial statements of an insurer and which support the accountant's opinion.

B. Every insurer required to file an audited financial report pursuant to this regulation, shall require the accountant to make available for review by Insurance Department examiners, all work papers prepared in the conduct of the accountant's audit and any communications related to the audit between the accountant and the insurer, at the offices of the insurer, at the Insurance Department or at any other reasonable place designated by the commissioner. The insurer shall require that the accountant retain the audit work papers and communications until the Insurance Department has filed a report on examination covering the period of the audit but no longer than seven (7) years from the date of the audit report.

C. In the conduct of the aforementioned periodic review by the Insurance Department examiners, it shall be agreed that photocopies of pertinent audit work papers may be made and retained by the department. Such reviews by the department examiners shall be considered investigations and all working papers and communications obtained during the course of such investigations shall be afforded the same confidentiality as other examination work papers generated by the department.

Section 14. Requirements for Audit Committees

This section shall not apply to foreign or alien insurers licensed in this state or an insurer that is a SOX Compliant Entity or a direct or indirect wholly-owned subsidiary of a SOX Compliant Entity.

A. The audit committee shall be directly responsible for the appointment, compensation and oversight of the work of any accountant (including resolution of disagreements between management and the accountant regarding financial reporting) for the purpose of preparing or issuing the audited financial report or related work pursuant to this regulation. Each accountant shall report directly to the audit committee.

B. The audit committee of an insurer or group of insurers shall be responsible for overseeing the insurer's Internal audit function and granting the person or persons performing the function suitable authority and resources to fulfill their responsibilities if required by Section 15 of this regulation.

C. Each member of the audit committee shall be a member of the board of directors of the insurer or a member of the board of directors of an entity elected pursuant to Subsection F and Section 3C.

D. In order to be considered independent for purposes of this section, a member of the audit committee may not, other than in his or her capacity as a member of the audit committee, the board of directors, or any other board committee, accept any consulting, advisory or other compensatory fee from the entity or be an affiliated person of the entity or any subsidiary thereof. However, if law requires board participation by otherwise non-independent members, that law shall prevail and such members may participate in the audit committee and be designated as independent for audit committee purposes, unless they are an officer or employee of the insurer or one of its affiliates.

E. If a member of the audit committee ceases to be independent for reasons outside the member's reasonable control, that person, with notice by the responsible entity to the state, may remain an audit committee member of the responsible entity until the earlier of the next annual meeting of the responsible entity or one year from the occurrence of the event that caused the member to be no longer independent.

Drafting Note: In determining independence, the commissioner shall consider utilizing guidance provided in the SEC's Final Rule No. 33-8220, Standards Relating to Listed Company Audit Committees adopted April 9, 2003.

F. To exercise the election of the controlling person to designate the audit committee for purposes of this regulation, the ultimate controlling person shall provide written notice to the commissioners of the affected insurers. Notification shall be made timely prior to the issuance of the statutory audit report and include a description of the basis for the election. The election can be changed through notice to the commissioner by the insurer, which shall include a description of the basis for the change. The election shall remain in effect for perpetuity, until rescinded.

G. (1) The audit committee shall require the accountant that performs for an insurer any audit required by this regulation to timely report to the audit committee in accordance with the requirements of SAS 61, Communication with Audit Committees, or its replacement, including:

(a) All significant accounting policies and material permitted practices;

(b) All material alternative treatments of financial information within statutory accounting principles that have been discussed with management officials of the insurer, ramifications of the use of the alternative disclosures and treatments, and the treatment preferred by the accountant; and

(c) Other material written communications between the accountant and the management of the insurer, such as any management letter or schedule of unadjusted differences.

(2) If an insurer is a member of an insurance holding company system, the reports required by Subsection G(1) may be provided to the audit committee on an aggregate basis for insurers in the holding company system, provided that any substantial differences among insurers in the system are identified to the audit committee.

H. The proportion of independent audit committee members shall meet or exceed the following criteria:

Prior Calendar Year Direct Written and Assumed Premiums
$0 - $300,000,000	Over $300,000,000 - $500,000,000	Over $500,000,000
No minimum requirements. See also Note A and B.	Majority (50% or more) of members shall be independent. See also Note A and B.	Supermajority of members (75% or more) shall be independent. See also Note A.

Note A: The commissioner has authority afforded by state law to require the entity's board to enact improvements to the independence of the audit committee membership if the insurer is in a RBC action level event, meets one or more of the standards of an insurer deemed to be in hazardous financial condition, or otherwise exhibits qualities of a troubled insurer.

Note B: All insurers with less than $500,000,000 in prior year direct written and assumed premiums are encouraged to structure their Audit committees with at least a supermajority of independent audit committee members.

Note C: Prior calendar year direct written and assumed premiums shall be the combined total of direct premiums and assumed premiums from non-affiliates for the reporting entities.

I. An insurer with direct written and assumed premium, excluding premiums reinsured with the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation and Federal Flood Program, less than $500,000,000 may make application to the commissioner for a waiver from the Section 14 requirements based upon hardship. The insurer shall file, with its annual statement filing, the approval for relief from Section 14 with the states that it is licensed in or doing business in and the NAIC. If the nondomestic state accepts electronic filing with the NAIC, the insurer shall file the approval in an electronic format acceptable to the NAIC.

Section 15. Internal Audit Function Requirements

A. Exemption – An insurer is exempt from the requirements of this section if:

(1) The insurer has annual direct written and unaffiliated assumed premium, including international direct and assumed premium but excluding premiums reinsured with the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation and Federal Flood Program, less than $500,000,000; and

(2) If the insurer is a member of a group of insurers, the group has annual direct written and unaffiliated assumed premium including international direct and assumed premium, but excluding premiums reinsured with the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation and Federal Flood Program, less than $1,000,000,000.

Drafting Note: An insurer or group of insurers exempt from the requirements of this section is encouraged, but not required, to conduct a review of the insurer business type, sources of capital, and other risk factors to determine whether an Internal audit function is warranted. The potential benefits of an Internal audit function should be assessed and compared against the estimated costs.

B. Function – The insurer or group of insurers shall establish an internal audit function providing independent, objective and reasonable assurance to the Audit committee and insurer management regarding the insurer's governance, risk management and internal controls. This assurance shall be provided by performing general and specific audits, reviews and tests and by employing other techniques deemed necessary to protect assets, evaluate control effectiveness and efficiency, and evaluate compliance with policies and regulations.

C. Independence – In order to ensure that internal auditors remain objective, the internal audit function must be organizationally independent. Specifically, the internal audit function will not defer ultimate judgment on audit matters to others, and shall appoint an individual to head the internal audit function who will have direct and unrestricted access to the board of directors. Organizational independence does not preclude dual-reporting relationships.

D. Reporting – The head of the internal audit function shall report to the audit committee regularly, but no less than annually, on the periodic audit plan, factors that may adversely impact the internal audit function's independence or effectiveness, material findings from completed audits and the appropriateness of corrective actions implemented by management as a result of audit findings.

E. Additional Requirements – If an insurer is a member of an insurance holding company system or included in a group of insurers, the insurer may satisfy the internal audit function requirements set forth in this section at the ultimate controlling parent level, an intermediate holding company level or the individual legal entity level.

Section 16. Conduct of Insurer in Connection with the Preparation of Required Reports and Documents

A. No director or officer of an insurer shall, directly or indirectly:

(1) Make or cause to be made a materially false or misleading statement to an accountant in connection with any audit, review or communication required under this regulation; or

(2) Omit to state, or cause another person to omit to state, any material fact necessary in order to make statements made, in light of the circumstances under which the statements were made, not misleading to an accountant in connection with any audit, review or communication required under this regulation.

B. No officer or director of an insurer, or any other person acting under the direction thereof, shall directly or indirectly take any action to coerce, manipulate, mislead or fraudulently influence any accountant engaged in the performance of an audit pursuant to this regulation if that person knew or should have known that the action, if successful, could result in rendering the insurer's financial statements materially misleading.

C. For purposes of Subsection B of this section, actions that, "if successful, could result in rendering the insurer's financial statements materially misleading" include, but are not limited to, actions taken at any time with respect to the professional engagement period to coerce, manipulate, mislead or fraudulently influence an accountant:

(1) To issue or reissue a report on an insurer's financial statements that is not warranted in the circumstances (due to material violations of statutory accounting principles prescribed by the commissioner, generally accepted auditing standards, or other professional or regulatory standards);

(2) Not to perform audit, review or other procedures required by generally accepted auditing standards or other professional standards;

(3) Not to withdraw an issued report; or

(4) Not to communicate matters to an insurer's audit committee.

Drafting Note: In determining what types of sanctions or penalties could be assessed for violations of items included in Subsections A through C, each state should refer to its individual authority provided by state statutes.

Section 17. Management's Report of Internal Control over Financial Reporting

A. Every insurer required to file an audited financial report pursuant to this regulation that has annual direct written and assumed premiums, excluding premiums reinsured with the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation and Federal Flood Program, of $500,000,000 or more shall prepare a report of the insurer's or group of insurers' internal control over financial reporting, as these terms are defined in Section 3. The report shall be filed with the commissioner along with the Communication of Internal Control Related Matters Noted in an Audit described under Section 11. Management's Report of Internal Control over Financial Reporting shall be as of December 31 immediately preceding.

B. Notwithstanding the premium threshold in Subsection A, the commissioner may require an insurer to file Management's Report of Internal Control over Financial Reporting if the insurer is in any RBC level event, or meets any one or more of the standards of an insurer deemed to be in hazardous financial condition as defined in (include reference to Corrective Action statute).

C. An insurer or a group of insurers that is:

(1) Directly subject to Section 404;

(2) Part of a holding company system whose parent is directly subject to Section 404;

(3) Not directly subject to Section 404 but is a SOX Compliant Entity; or

(4) A member of a holding company system whose parent is not directly subject to Section 404 but is a SOX Compliant Entity;

may file its or its parent's Section 404 Report and an addendum in satisfaction of this Section 17 requirement provided that those internal controls of the insurer or group of insurers having a material impact on the preparation of the insurer's or group of insurers' audited statutory financial statements (those items included in Section 5B through 5G of this regulation) were included in the scope of the Section 404 Report. The addendum shall be a positive statement by management that there are no material processes with respect to the preparation of the insurer's or group of insurers' audited statutory financial statements (those items included in Section 5B through 5G of this regulation) excluded from the Section 404 Report. If there are internal controls of the insurer or group of insurers that have a material impact on the preparation of the insurer's or group of insurers' audited statutory financial statements and those internal controls were not included in the scope of the Section 404 Report, the insurer or group of insurers may either file (i) a Section 17 report, or (ii) the Section 404 Report and a Section 17 report for those internal controls that have a material impact on the preparation of the insurer's or group of insurers' audited statutory financial statements not covered by the Section 404 Report.

D. Management's Report of Internal Control over Financial Reporting shall include:

(1) A statement that management is responsible for establishing and maintaining adequate internal control over financial reporting;

(2) A statement that management has established internal control over financial reporting and an assertion, to the best of management's knowledge and belief, after diligent inquiry, as to whether its internal control over financial reporting is effective to provide reasonable assurance regarding the reliability of financial statements in accordance with statutory accounting principles;

(3) A statement that briefly describes the approach or processes by which management evaluated the effectiveness of its internal control over financial reporting; and

(4) A statement that briefly describes the scope of work that is included and whether any internal controls were excluded;

(5) Disclosure of any unremediated material weaknesses in the internal control over financial reporting identified by management as of December 31 immediately preceding. Management is not permitted to conclude that the internal control over financial reporting is effective to provide reasonable assurance regarding the reliability of financial statements in accordance with statutory accounting principles if there is one or more unremediated material weaknesses in its internal control over financial reporting;

(6) A statement regarding the inherent limitations of internal control systems; and

(7) Signatures of the chief executive officer and the chief financial officer (or equivalent position/title).

E. Management shall document and make available upon financial condition examination the basis upon which its assertions, required in Subsection D above, are made. Management may base its assertions, in part, upon its review, monitoring and testing of internal controls undertaken in the normal course of its activities.

(1) Management shall have discretion as to the nature of the internal control framework used, and the nature and extent of documentation, in order to make its assertion in a cost effective manner and, as such, may include assembly of or reference to existing documentation.

(2) Management's Report on Internal Control over Financial Reporting, required by Subsection A above, and any documentation provided in support thereof during the course of a financial condition examination, shall be kept confidential by the State Insurance Department.

Drafting Note: It is the recommendation that the company officer responsible for financial reporting would not be a member of the audit committee and that the independent committee members would meet periodically, with no management present, with the independent certified public accountant to discuss the strengths and weaknesses of the insurer's or group of insurers' internal control environments.

Section 18. Exemptions and Effective Dates

A. Upon written application of any insurer, the commissioner may grant an exemption from compliance with any and all provisions of this regulation if the commissioner finds, upon review of the application, that compliance with this regulation would constitute a financial or organizational hardship upon the insurer. An exemption may be granted at any time and from time to time for a specified period or periods. Within ten (10) days from a denial of an insurer's written request for an exemption from this regulation, the insurer may request in writing a hearing on its application for an exemption. The hearing shall be held in accordance with the regulations of the [insert state] Department of Insurance pertaining to administrative hearing procedures.

B. Domestic insurers retaining a certified public accountant on the effective date of this regulation who qualify as independent shall comply with this regulation for the year ending December 31, 20[ ], and each year thereafter unless the commissioner permits otherwise.

C. Domestic insurers not retaining a certified public accountant on the effective date of this regulation who qualifies as independent may meet the following schedule for compliance unless the commissioner permits otherwise.

(1) As of December 31, 20[ ], file with the commissioner an audited financial report

(2) For the year ending December 31, 20[ ], and each year thereafter, such insurers shall file with the commissioner all reports and communication required by this regulation.

D. Foreign insurers shall comply with this regulation for the year ending December 31, 20[ ], and each year thereafter, unless the commissioner permits otherwise.

E. The requirements of Section 7D shall be in effect for audits of the year beginning January 1, 2010, and thereafter.

F. The requirements of Section 14 are to be in effect January 1, 2010. An insurer or group of insurers that is not required to have independent audit committee members or only a majority of independent audit committee members (as opposed to a supermajority) because the total written and assumed premium is below the threshold and subsequently becomes subject to one of the independence requirements due to changes in premium shall have one (1) year following the year the threshold is exceeded (but not earlier than January 1, 2010) to comply with the independence requirements. Likewise, an insurer that becomes subject to one of the independence requirements as a result of a business combination shall have one (1) calendar year following the date of acquisition or combination to comply with the independence requirements.

Drafting Note: Adoption of Section 14 is assumed to occur one year prior to the effective date of Section 17.

G. The requirements of Section 17 and other modified sections [identify modified sections], except for Section 14 covered above, are effective beginning with the reporting period ending December 31, 2010, and each year thereafter. An insurer or group of insurers that is not required to file a report because the total written premium is below the threshold and subsequently becomes subject to the reporting requirements shall have two (2) years following the year the threshold is exceeded (but not earlier than December 31, 2010) to file a report. Likewise, an insurer acquired in a business combination shall have two (2) calendar years following the date of acquisition or combination to comply with the reporting requirements.

H. The requirements of Section 15 are to be in effect January 1, 2016. If an insurer or group of insurers that is exempt from the Section 15 requirements no longer qualifies for that exemption, it shall have one year after the year the threshold is exceeded to comply with the requirements of this article.

Section 19. Canadian and British Companies

A. In the case of Canadian and British insurers, the annual audited financial report shall be defined as the annual statement of total business on the form filed by such companies with their supervision authority duly audited by an independent chartered accountant.

B. For such insurers, the letter required in Section 6B shall state that the accountant is aware of the requirements relating to the annual audited financial report filed with the commissioner pursuant to Section 4 and shall affirm that the opinion expressed is in conformity with those requirements.

Section 20. Severability Provision

If any section or portion of a section of this regulation or its applicability to any person or circumstance is held invalid by a court, the remainder of the regulation or the applicability of the provision to other persons or circumstances shall not be affected.

ANNUAL FINANCIAL REPORTING MODEL REGULATION

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. To perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

Who do I speak to if I have questions?

If you have questions or believe information related to a state should be updated, please contact Jennifer Neuerburg at jneuerburg@naic.org.

Disclaimer: This chart does not constitute a formal legal opinion by the NAIC staff on the provisions of state law and should not be relied upon as such. Nor does this state page reflect a determination as to whether a state meets any applicable accreditation standards. Every effort has been made to provide correct and accurate summaries to assist readers in locating useful information. Readers should consult state law for further details and for the most current information.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2014

ANNUAL FINANCIAL REPORTING MODEL REGULATION (#205)

1. Project Description

U.S. insurance regulators concluded that a greater regulatory focus on corporate governance is required and formed the Corporate Governance (E) Working Group in September 2009. The Working Group received a charge to outline high-level corporate governance principles for use in U.S. insurance regulation. To do so, regulators analyzed the statutory and regulatory requirements and initiatives and best practices of the states, other countries, other regulators, and the insurance industry. The Working Group was also asked to determine the appropriate method to ensure adherence with such principles, giving due consideration to development of a model law and to development of additional regulatory guidance, including detailed best practices for the corporate governance of insurers.

In completing work on this charge, regulators developed a summary of existing corporate governance requirements found within NAIC/insurance-specific sources—as well as more general, broadly based sources—to identify potential changes in the existing insurance regulatory structure that could be affected through the NAIC Solvency Modernization Initiative (SMI). The Working Group then compared those existing U.S. requirements to regulatory needs, best practices and principles outlined in the Insurance Core Principles adopted by the International Association of Insurance Supervisors (IAIS). The results of this comparative analysis indicated the need to require large insurers to maintain an effective internal audit function capable of providing the insurer's audit committee with independent assurance regarding the insurer's governance, risk management and internal controls.

The Working Group determined that the best way to implement an internal audit requirement would be to place the requirement within the NAIC's existing Annual Financial Reporting Model Regulation (#205). This model regulation currently includes a requirement for insurers to receive an annual financial statement audit, as well as requirements related to the establishment of audit committees and maintenance of effective internal controls over financial reporting.

2. Group Responsible for Drafting the Revisions

The project to review and produce revisions to Model #205 to incorporate an internal audit function requirement was given to the Corporate Governance (E) Working Group. The Working Group created an Internal Audit (E) Subgroup to develop an initial draft of the proposed revisions for the Working Group to consider. Members of the Subgroup included Virginia (chair), Connecticut, New York, Ohio and Oklahoma. After the initial draft was developed by the Subgroup, it was reviewed and revised by the Working Group, whose members included Vermont (chair), New York (vice chair), Alabama, California, Connecticut, Florida, Iowa, Indiana, Louisiana, New Hampshire, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and Washington.

3. Charge Authorizing the Project

On April 8, 2013, the Financial Condition (E) Committee adopted a request for model law development to develop an internal audit function requirement as an addition to the existing Model #205. The Executive (EX) Committee and Plenary adopted this request July 26, 2013. The Financial Condition (E) Committee delegated the assignment of developing revisions to Model #205 to the Corporate Governance (E) Working Group, and drafting work began soon after the 2013 Summer National Meeting.

4. General Description of the Drafting Process and Due Process

- During September and October 2013, the Internal Audit (E) Subgroup held regulator-to-regulator conference calls to develop the initial draft of proposed revisions to Model #205.
- After finalizing an initial draft of revisions, the Subgroup referred the draft to the Corporate Governance (E) Working Group for review on a Nov. 8, 2013, conference call.
- The Working Group voted to expose the draft for a 30-day public comment period ending Dec. 6, 2013. Several comment letters were received during the exposure period suggesting a number of changes to the draft.
- The comment letters were reviewed and discussed during a meeting of the Corporate Governance (E) Working Group held Dec. 16, 2013. As a result of its discussions, the Working Group agreed to make a number of amendments to the proposed draft and voted to re-expose the updated draft for a 45-day public comment period ending Jan. 31, 2014.
- One comment letter was received from the Pennsylvania Insurance Department during the second exposure period. Members of the Working Group discussed and agreed to accept the amendments proposed by Pennsylvania before adopting the proposed revisions as final at its March 30, 2014, meeting.

5. Discussion of Key Issues

Revisions were made to several sections of the existing model regulation to incorporate an internal audit function requirement for large insurers. A summary of the revisions is provided below.

i. A definition of "internal audit function" was added to the model as follows:

Section 3 – Definitions

I. "Internal audit function" means a person or persons that provide independent, objective, and reasonable assurance designed to add value and improve an organization's operations and accomplish its objectives by bringing a systematic, disciplined approach to evaluate and improve the effectiveness of risk management, control and governance processes.

ii. Responsibilities and instructions for audit committees to follow in overseeing the internal audit function were added as follows:

Section 14 – Requirements for Audit Committees

B. The Audit committee of an insurer or group of insurers shall be responsible for overseeing the insurer's Internal audit function and granting the person or persons performing the function suitable authority and resources to fulfill their responsibilities if required by Section 15 of this Regulation.

iii. A new section was added to the model regulation to outline the specific requirements and expectations related to the internal audit function employed by large insurers as follows:

Section 15 – Internal Audit Function Requirements

A. Exemption – An insurer is exempt from the requirements of this section if:

(1) The insurer has annual direct written and unaffiliated assumed premium, including international direct and assumed premium but excluding premiums reinsured with the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation and Federal Flood Program, less than $500,000,000; or,

(2) If the insurer is a member of a group of insurers that has annual direct written and unaffiliated assumed premium, including international direct and assumed premium, but excluding premiums reinsured with the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation and Federal Flood Program, less than $1,000,000,000.

(3) An insurer or Group of insurers exempt from the requirements of this section is encouraged, but not required, to conduct a review of the insurer business type, sources of capital, and other risk factors to determine whether an Internal audit function is warranted. The potential benefits of an Internal audit function should be assessed and compared against the estimated costs.

B. Function – The insurer or Group of insurers shall establish an Internal audit function providing independent, objective, and reasonable assurance to the Audit committee and insurer management regarding the insurer's governance, risk management and internal controls. This assurance shall be provided by performing general and specific audits, reviews and tests and by employing other techniques deemed necessary to protect assets, evaluate control effectiveness and efficiency, and evaluate compliance with policies and regulations.

C. Independence – In order to ensure that internal auditors remain objective, the Internal audit function must be organizationally independent. Specifically, the Internal audit function will not subordinate ultimate judgment on audit matters to others and shall appoint an individual to head the Internal audit function who will have direct and unrestricted access to the board of directors. Organizational independence does not preclude dual-reporting relationships.

D. Reporting – The head of the Internal audit function shall report to the Audit committee regularly, but no less than annually, on the periodic audit plan, factors that may adversely impact the Internal audit function's independence or effectiveness, material findings from completed audits and the appropriateness of corrective actions implemented by management as a result of audit findings.

E. Additional Requirements – If an insurer is a member of an insurance holding company system or included in a Group of insurers, the insurer may satisfy the Internal audit function requirements set forth in this section at the ultimate controlling parent level, an intermediate holding company level or the individual legal entity level.

iv. An effective date for the new internal audit function requirement was added to the model as follows:

Section 18 – Exemptions and Effective Dates

H. The requirements of Section 15 are to be in effect January 1, 2016. If an insurer or Group of insurers that is exempt from the Section 15 requirements no longer qualifies for that exemption, it shall have one year after the year the threshold is exceeded to comply with the requirements of this article.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2006

ANNUAL FINANCIAL REPORTING MODEL REGULATION (#205)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

The purpose of this regulation is to improve a state's surveillance of the financial condition of insurers by requiring an annual audit by independent certified public accountants (CPA) of the financial statements reporting the financial position and the results of operations. The proposed amendments strengthen requirements related to CPA independence. In addition, the proposed amendments include new corporate governance standards, primarily requiring that an insurer have an audit committee that is responsible for the appointment, oversight and compensation of the CPA. The proposed amendments also indicate that management of insurers that meet a minimum premium threshold shall provide the regulator with an assessment of its internal control over financial reporting.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The NAIC/AICPA Working Group (the Working Group) of the Financial Condition (E) Committee drafted the revisions to the model. Virginia is the chair of the Working Group, and its members include California, Delaware, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Texas and Utah.

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The following charge was given to the Working Group in 2003: "Monitor the Sarbanes-Oxley Bill and additional rules and regulations promulgated by the newly formed Public Accounting Oversight Board."

In 2005, the charge was expanded to the following: "Based on the study of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act, the NAIC/AICPA Working Group will propose revisions to the NAIC's Model Regulation Requiring Annual Audited Financial Reports for best practices regarding Title II Auditor Independence, Title III Corporate Responsibility and Title IV Enhanced Financial Disclosures of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act.

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated

The drafting process began in conjunction with a review of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002. During that review process, it was noted that the model did not contain requirements related to corporate governance and did not require positive assurance regarding the effectiveness of an insurer's internal control over financial reporting. In addition, the model did not specifically discuss what services a CPA may not provide to an insurer if it also performs the audit of that insurer.

Proposed amendments to the model were first drafted in early 2004 and a public hearing was held at the 2004 Summer National Meeting. Based on comments received, three (3) subgroups were formed to handle the three (3) main topics addressed by the revisions: auditor independence, corporate governance and internal control over financial reporting. These subgroups consisted of regulators, members of industry and representatives from CPA firms. The subgroups related to auditor independence and corporate governance held numerous conference calls during 2004 and 2005. Revisions related to these topics were adopted by the Working Group in mid-2005.

The subgroup formed to discuss internal control over financial reporting met during four (4) separate interim meetings in 2005. During this process, members of the interested parties provided the subgroup with an alternative proposal, and the revisions eventually adopted by the Working Group were based on this alternative proposal rather than the original draft revisions.

Once each of the three (3) subgroups finalized its revisions, the "collective" revisions were exposed by the Working Group for a forty-five (45) day comment period, and comments received were discussed during a series of three (3) conference calls.

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

Widespread input was solicited on many occasions as all conference calls and meetings were held in open session. Approximately seventeen (17) conference calls and six (6) interim meetings were held in addition to any meetings held during national meetings. Both written and oral comments were accepted at any time throughout this process, and the revisions were officially exposed for comment on at least five (5) different occasions. Members of industry and representatives from trade associations actively participated throughout the drafting process.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response)

Auditor independence requirements – Representatives from CPA firms were concerned that the new requirements regarding prohibited non-audit services would be burdensome for smaller insurers or those insurers in rural areas where there is a limited number of CPA firms. Based on this concern, the Working Group agreed that insurers with less than $100 million in direct and assumed premium may request an exemption from this requirement.

Recruiting and retaining qualified, independent audit committee members – Certain industry representatives were concerned that smaller insurance companies may not be able to recruit or retain individuals independent from management that would be qualified to serve on the insurer's audit committee. As such, the Working Group agreed that insurers with less than $500 million in direct and assumed premium may apply for a waiver from the audit committee requirements. In addition, the Working Group revised the independence requirements for audit committee members, so that only a percentage of audit committee members, if any, are required to be independent. This is also based on an insurer's premium level.

Audit committee membership contemplated in state law – Concern was raised that state corporation law may include requirements related to audit committee membership that would conflict with requirements set forth in the model. The Working Group drafted language indicating that if state law requires board participation by otherwise non-independent members, that law shall prevail and members may participate in the audit committee and be designated as independent for audit committee purposes, unless they are an officer or employee of the insurer or one of its affiliates.

Cost of internal control over financial reporting requirements – To address the issue of whether the reporting requirements would be overly burdensome to smaller companies, the Working Group agreed that only those insurers with direct and assumed premium of more than $500 million would be subject to the management assessment requirement. To address expense issues, the Working Group agreed to remove a requirement that the insurer's CPA perform an annual attestation of management's assessment of internal control over financial reporting. In an industry study, this CPA attestation accounted for approximately 74% of the external costs. In addition, the Working Group agreed that an adequate implementation period and implementation guidance would be provided. This was based on a 2005 SEC roundtable discussion during which SEC filers noted that a short implementation period and insufficient guidance were the main cost drivers in compliance with the SEC's requirements related to internal control over financial reporting.

Insurers currently filing internal control reports for SEC purposes – Concern was raised that redundant reporting of internal control over financial reporting would be required for those insurers that are already required to file a management assessment of internal control over financial reporting for SEC purposes. The Working Group agreed that the SEC reports filed in accordance with Section 404 of Sarbanes-Oxley would be sufficient for regulator purposes. However, if there are internal controls of the insurer that have a material impact on the preparation of the insurer's statutory financial statements and those internal controls were not included in the scope of the Section 404 report, the insurer would need to provide an additional report for those internal controls.

How states have adopted the model – Currently, eleven (11) states have adopted the model via law, twenty-eight (28) via regulation and twelve (12) have adopted it by reference through adoption of the Annual Statement Instructions. The model is required for accreditation purposes, although historically a state that has not adopted the model but has adopted the Annual Statement Instructions has been found to be in compliance with the accreditation standard. This is because the Annual Statement Instructions include, verbatim, the significant elements of the model. Some have raised concern that allowing this process to continue may usurp the legislative process. As such, the Working Group has strongly encouraged those twelve (12) states to adopt the model through either law or regulation.

7. Any Other Important Information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard).

The model is currently a Part A: Laws and Regulations accreditation standard of the Financial Regulation Standards and Accreditation Program. If adopted by the NAIC membership, the Financial Regulation Standards and Accreditation (F) Committee would need to consider the revisions to the model. This process would begin at the Spring National Meeting after approval by Executive and Plenary and would include a combined exposure and seasoning period of four (4) years. In order to hear testimony from industry and legislators, and a minimum of two (2) public hearings would be held at the Committee level. In addition, actions taken by the Committee would be subject to approval by Executive and Plenary.

A group of the collective interested parties is currently drafting an implementation guide to assist in application of and compliance with the new requirements. The implementation guide is not intended to create additional requirements, but to explain and clarify the requirements in the model. The Working Group is holding an interim meeting on May 23, 2006, to discuss the first draft of the implementation guide.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2003

ANNUAL FINANCIAL REPORTING MODEL REGULATION (#205)

1. Project Description

The Model Rule Requiring Annual Audited Financial Reports has been revised to address the independent certified public accountant's consideration of the NAIC Financial Condition Examiners Handbook. The intention of the revision is to place more onus on the independent certified public accountant to consider the Examiners Handbook in completing financial statement audits of insurers. The revision affects only Section 9. Scope of Examination and Report of Independent Certified Public Accountant of the Model.

2. Group Responsible for Drafting Model and States Participating

The NAIC/AICPA Working Group of the Financial Condition (E) Committee originally developed and adopted this revision. The working group includes: Virginia (Chair), California, Delaware, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania and Texas.

3. Charge Authorizing Project

One of the 2003 charges of the working group is, "The NAIC/AICPA Working Group will establish subgroups for the specific areas of concern noted in the Use of CPA Workpapers Survey." One of the items noted in this survey was regulator concern regarding the independent certified public accountant's consideration of the Examiners Handbook.

4. General Description of Drafting Process

The drafting process was open as the NAIC/AICPA Working Group solicited comments from all interested parties, including interested regulators and industry representatives. The revision to the model was first discussed at an open meeting of the working group on March 9, 2003. At that time, the working group voted to expose the proposed revisions for comment. Only one comment letter was received during the exposure period. The revision to the model was adopted at an open meeting of the working group on June 23, 2003.

5. Significant Issues Raised

No significant issues were raised or discussed by the working group and/or interested parties. A representative from the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA) provided testimony during the June 23, 2003, meeting stating that the AICPA is supportive of initiatives to improve communication and understanding between auditors and financial examiners and that the AICPA is supportive of this revision.

6. Other Pertinent Information

The model is currently required as a Part A: Laws and Regulation standard of the Financial Regulation Standards and Accreditation Program. If adopted by the NAIC membership, the Financial Regulation Standards and Accreditation (F) Committee will consider the revision during the Spring 2004 National Meeting.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2001

ANNUAL FINANCIAL REPORTING MODEL REGULATION (#205)

1. Project Description

The purpose of this regulation is to improve a state's surveillance of the financial condition of insurers by requiring an annual examination by independent certified public accountants (CPA) of the financial statements reporting the financial position and the results of operations of insurers. This amendment prohibits a commissioner from recognizing a person or firm as a qualified independent certified public accountant that if the person or firm has either directly or indirectly entered into an agreement of indemnity or release from liability with respect to the audit of the insurer.

2. Group Responsible for Drafting the Act

The project was assigned to the NAIC/AICPA Working Group of the Financial Condition (E) Committee (working group). The members of the working group are: Doug Stolte, Chair (VA); Ramon Calderon (CA); Darryl Reese (DE); James Hanson (IL); Jim Armstrong (IA); Jaki Gardner (MN); J. Douglas Conley (MO); David Krumm (NE); Thomas Burke (NH); Jeff Angelo (NY); Mike Motil (OH); Neeraj Gupta (OR); Steve Johnson (PA) and Betty Patterson (TX).

3. Charge Authorizing the Project

2001 Charge: "The NAIC/AICPA working group will address financial solvency issues and respond to the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA) exposure drafts. This charge is ongoing."

4. General Description of the Drafting Process and Due Process

William Boyd of the National Association of Mutual Companies first raised the issue of CPAs including indemnification clauses in the engagement letters with insurers with the working group on December 4, 2000. The working group spent the first part of 2001 conducting an investigative review of engagement letters on file with different states and found many cases where CPAs were in fact including the clauses. In general, "indemnification" means an agreement of indemnity or a release from liability where the intent or effect is to shift or limit in any manner the potential liability of the person or firm for failure to adhere to applicable auditing or professional standards, whether or not resulting in part from knowing or other misrepresentations made by the insurer or its representatives.

The working group also discovered that the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) has specifically addressed the issue of indemnification and concluded that such clauses would lead the SEC to declare that the accountant could not be recognized as independent for the purpose of certifying the financial statements of public entities. The following is excerpted from SEC Financial Reporting Release § 602.02.i.i - Indemnification by Client:

> Inquiry was made as to whether an accountant who certifies financial statements included in a registration statement or annual report filed with the Commission under the Securities Act of the Exchange Act would be considered independent if he had entered into an indemnity agreement with the registrant. In the particular illustration cited, the board of directors of the registrant formally approved the filing of a registration statement with the Commission and agreed to indemnify and save harmless each and every accountant who certified any part of such statement "from any and all losses, claims, damages or liabilities arising out of such act or acts to which they or any of them may be subject under the Securities Act, as amended, or at "common law" other than for their willful misstatements or omissions".
> When an accountant and its client, directly or through an affiliate, have entered into an agreement of indemnity which seeks to assure to the accountant immunity from liability for its own negligent acts, whether of omission or commission, one of the major stimuli to objective and unbiased consideration of the problems encountered in a particular engagement is removed and greatly weakened. Such condition must frequently induce a departure from the standards of objectivity and impartiality which the concept of independence implies. In such difficult matters, for example, as the determination of the scope of audit necessary, existence of such an agreement may easily lead to the use of less extensive or thorough procedures than would otherwise be followed. In other cases, it may result in a failure to appraise with professional acumen the information disclosed by the examination. Consequently, the accountant cannot be recognized as independent for the purpose of certifying the financial statements of the corporation.

The working group released the proposed amendments to the model audit rule for comment on June 28, 2001. The working group held a hearing on December 10, 2001 and unanimously adopted the amendment. On December 11, 2001, the Financial Condition (E) Committee also unanimously adopted the amendments.

5. Discussion of Key Issues

The AICPA is in opposition to this change. The AICPA first voiced its resistance in 2000 and reinforced their position at the working group hearing as well as the Financial Condition (E) Committee meeting in December 2001. The AICPA's primary objection is based upon (1) the broad limitation on indemnification, (2) the concern that the NAIC/AICPA Working Group does not fully understand the relationship of indemnification for knowing management misrepresentations, the performance of an audit in accordance with Generally Accepted Auditing Standards (GAAS) and the liability of auditors when there has been knowing management misrepresentations, stating that such indemnification does not relieve the auditor of conducting and audit in accordance with GAAS, and (3) the fact that the provision for arbitration and mediation appear to be contrary to the intent of state legislators when arbitration laws were adopted.

The working group has studied this issue for one year and received an opinion from the NAIC Insolvency Counsel that such indemnification provisions would potentially negatively impact the statutory successor's position in litigation against the independent auditor. The working group also was unable to reconcile the SEC's official position on the issue with the AICPA's opposition. The working group is of the opinion that the regulations governing insurance companies should be at least as strong as those that govern public entities.

PRODUCER LICENSING MODEL ACT

(2) The business entity has designated a licensed producer responsible for the business entity's compliance with the insurance laws, rules and regulations of this state.

Drafting Note: Subsection B is optional and would apply only to those states that have a business entity license requirement.

C. The insurance commissioner may require any documents reasonably necessary to verify the information contained in an application.

D. Each insurer that sells, solicits or negotiates any form of limited line credit insurance shall provide to each individual whose duties will include selling, soliciting or negotiating limited line credit insurance a program of instruction that may be approved by the insurance commissioner.

Section 7. License

A. Unless denied licensure pursuant to Section 12, persons who have met the requirements of Sections 5 and 6 shall be issued an insurance producer license. An insurance producer may receive qualification for a license in one or more of the following lines of authority:

(1) Life—insurance coverage on human lives including benefits of endowment and annuities, and may include benefits in the event of death or dismemberment by accident and benefits for disability income.

(2) Accident and health or sickness—insurance coverage for sickness, bodily injury or accidental death and may include benefits for disability income.

(3) Property—insurance coverage for the direct or consequential loss or damage to property of every kind.

(4) Casualty—insurance coverage against legal liability, including that for death, injury or disability or damage to real or personal property.

(5) Variable life and variable annuity products—insurance coverage provided under variable life insurance contracts and variable annuities.

(6) Personal lines—property and casualty insurance coverage sold to individuals and families for primarily noncommercial purposes.

(7) Credit—limited line credit insurance.

(8) Any other line of insurance permitted under state laws or regulations.

B. An insurance producer license shall remain in effect unless revoked or suspended as long as the fee set forth in [insert appropriate reference to state law or regulation] is paid and education requirements for resident individual producers are met by the due date.

C. An individual insurance producer who allows his or her license to lapse may, within twelve (12) months from the due date of the renewal fee, reinstate the same license without the necessity of passing a written examination. However, a penalty in the amount of double the unpaid renewal fee shall be required for any renewal fee received after the due date.

D. A licensed insurance producer who is unable to comply with license renewal procedures due to military service or some other extenuating circumstance (e.g., a long-term medical disability) may request a waiver of those procedures. The producer may also request a waiver of any examination requirement or any other fine or sanction imposed for failure to comply with renewal procedures.

Drafting Note: References to license "renewal" should be deleted in those states that do not require license renewal.

E. The license shall contain the licensee's name, address, personal identification number, and the date of issuance, the lines of authority, the expiration date and any other information the insurance commissioner deems necessary.

F. Licensees shall inform the insurance commissioner by any means acceptable to the insurance commissioner of a change of address within thirty (30) days of the change. Failure to timely inform the insurance commissioner of a change in legal name or address shall result in a penalty pursuant to [insert appropriate reference to state law].

G. In order to assist in the performance of the insurance commissioner's duties, the insurance commissioner may contract with non-governmental entities, including the National Association of Insurance Commissioner (NAIC) or any affiliates or subsidiaries that the NAIC oversees, to perform any ministerial functions, including the collection of fees, related to producer licensing that the insurance commissioner and the non-governmental entity may deem appropriate.

Section 8. Nonresident Licensing

A. Unless denied licensure pursuant to Section 12, a nonresident person shall receive a nonresident producer license if:

(1) The person is currently licensed as a resident and in good standing in his or her home state;

(2) The person has submitted the proper request for licensure and has paid the fees required by [insert appropriate reference to state law or regulation];

(3) The person has submitted or transmitted to the insurance commissioner the application for licensure that the person submitted to his or her home state, or in lieu of the same, a completed Uniform Application; and

(4) The person's home state awards non-resident producer licenses to residents of this state on the same basis.

Drafting Note: In accordance with Public Law No. 106-102 (the "Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act") states should not require any additional attachments to the Uniform Application or impose any other conditions on applicants that exceed the information requested within the Uniform Application.

B. The insurance commissioner may verify the producer's licensing status through the Producer Database maintained by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, its affiliates or subsidiaries.

C. A nonresident producer who moves from one state to another state or a resident producer who moves from this state to another state shall file a change of address and provide certification from the new resident state within thirty (30) days of the change of legal residence. No fee or license application is required.

D. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, a person licensed as a surplus lines producer in his or her home state shall receive a nonresident surplus lines producer license pursuant to Subsection A of this section. Except as to Subsection A, nothing in this section otherwise amends or supercedes any provision of [refer to state excess and surplus lines statutes].

E. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, a person licensed as a limited line credit insurance or other type of limited lines producer in his or her home state shall receive a nonresident limited lines producer license, pursuant to Subsection A of this section, granting the same scope of authority as granted under the license issued by the producer's home state. For the purposes of Section 8E, limited line insurance is any authority granted by the home state which restricts the authority of the license to less than the total authority prescribed in the associated major lines pursuant to Section 7A(1) through (6).

Section 9. Exemption from Examination

A. An individual who applies for an insurance producer license in this state who was previously licensed for the same lines of authority in another state shall not be required to complete any prelicensing education or examination. This exemption is only available if the person is currently licensed in that state or if the application is received within ninety (90) days of the cancellation of the applicant's previous license and if the prior state issues a certification that, at the time of cancellation, the applicant was in good standing in that state or the state's Producer Database records, maintained by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, its affiliates or subsidiaries, indicate that the producer is or was licensed in good standing for the line of authority requested.

B. A person licensed as an insurance producer in another state who moves to this state shall make application within ninety (90) days of establishing legal residence to become a resident licensee pursuant to Section 6. No prelicensing education or examination shall be required of that person to obtain any line of authority previously held in the prior state except where the insurance commissioner determines otherwise by regulation.

Section 10. Assumed Names

An insurance producer doing business under any name other than the producer's legal name is required to notify the insurance commissioner prior to using the assumed name.

Section 11. Temporary Licensing

A. The insurance commissioner may issue a temporary insurance producer license for a period not to exceed one hundred eighty (180) days without requiring an examination if the insurance commissioner deems that the temporary license is necessary for the servicing of an insurance business in the following cases:

(1) To the surviving spouse or court-appointed personal representative of a licensed insurance producer who dies or becomes mentally or physically disabled to allow adequate time for the sale of the insurance business owned by the producer or for the recovery or return of the producer to the business or to provide for the training and licensing of new personnel to operate the producer's business;

(2) To a member or employee of a business entity licensed as an insurance producer, upon the death or disability of an individual designated in the business entity application or the license;

(3) To the designee of a licensed insurance producer entering active service in the armed forces of the United States of America; or

(4) In any other circumstance where the insurance commissioner deems that the public interest will best be served by the issuance of this license.

B. The insurance commissioner may by order limit the authority of any temporary licensee in any way deemed necessary to protect insureds and the public. The insurance commissioner may require the temporary licensee to have a suitable sponsor who is a licensed producer or insurer and who assumes responsibility for all acts of the temporary licensee and may impose other similar requirements designed to protect insureds and the public. The insurance commissioner may by order revoke a temporary license if the interest of insureds or the public are endangered. A temporary license may not continue after the owner or the personal representative disposes of the business.

Section 12. License Denial, Nonrenewal or Revocation

A. The insurance commissioner may place on probation, suspend, revoke or refuse to issue or renew an insurance producer's license or may levy a civil penalty in accordance with [insert appropriate reference to state law] or any combination of actions, for any one or more of the following causes:

(1) Providing incorrect, misleading, incomplete or materially untrue information in the license application;

(2) Violating any insurance laws, or violating any regulation, subpoena or order of the insurance commissioner or of another state's insurance commissioner;

(3) Obtaining or attempting to obtain a license through misrepresentation or fraud;

(4) Improperly withholding, misappropriating or converting any monies or properties received in the course of doing insurance business;

(5) Intentionally misrepresenting the terms of an actual or proposed insurance contract or application for insurance;

(6) Having been convicted of a felony;

(7) Having admitted or been found to have committed any insurance unfair trade practice or fraud;

(8) Using fraudulent, coercive, or dishonest practices, or demonstrating incompetence, untrustworthiness or financial irresponsibility in the conduct of business in this state or elsewhere;

(9) Having an insurance producer license, or its equivalent, denied, suspended or revoked in any other state, province, district or territory;

(10) Forging another's name to an application for insurance or to any document related to an insurance transaction;

(11) Improperly using notes or any other reference material to complete an examination for an insurance license;

(12) Knowingly accepting insurance business from an individual who is not licensed;

(13) Failing to comply with an administrative or court order imposing a child support obligation; or

(14) Failing to pay state income tax or comply with any administrative or court order directing payment of state income tax.

Drafting Note: Paragraph (14) is for those states that have a state income tax.

B. In the event that the action by the insurance commissioner is to nonrenew or to deny an application for a license, the insurance commissioner shall notify the applicant or licensee and advise, in writing, the applicant or licensee of the reason for the denial or nonrenewal of the applicant's or licensee's license. The applicant or licensee may make written demand upon the insurance commissioner within [insert appropriate time period from state's administrative procedure act] for a hearing before the insurance commissioner to determine the reasonableness of the insurance commissioner's action. The hearing shall be held within [insert time period from state law] and shall be held pursuant to [insert appropriate reference to state law].

C. The license of a business entity may be suspended, revoked or refused if the insurance commissioner finds, after hearing, that an individual licensee's violation was known or should have been known by one or more of the partners, officers or managers acting on behalf of the partnership or corporation and the violation was neither reported to the insurance commissioner nor corrective action taken.

D. In addition to or in lieu of any applicable denial, suspension or revocation of a license, a person may, after hearing, be subject to a civil fine according to [insert appropriate reference to state law].

E. The insurance commissioner shall retain the authority to enforce the provisions of and impose any penalty or remedy authorized by this Act and Title [insert appropriate reference to state law] against any person who is under investigation for or charged with a violation of this Act or Title [insert appropriate reference to state law] even if the person's license or registration has been surrendered or has lapsed by operation of law.

Section 13. Commissions

A. An insurance company or insurance producer shall not pay a commission, service fee, brokerage or other valuable consideration to a person for selling, soliciting or negotiating insurance in this state if that person is required to be licensed under this Act and is not so licensed.

B. A person shall not accept a commission, service fee, brokerage or other valuable consideration for selling, soliciting or negotiating insurance in this state if that person is required to be licensed under this Act and is not so licensed.

C. Renewal or other deferred commissions may be paid to a person for selling, soliciting or negotiating insurance in this state if the person was required to be licensed under this Act at the time of the sale, solicitation or negotiation and was so licensed at that time.

D. An insurer or insurance producer may pay or assign commissions, service fees, brokerages or other valuable consideration to an insurance agency or to persons who do not sell, solicit or negotiate insurance in this state, unless the payment would violate [insert appropriate reference to state law, i.e. citation to anti-rebating statute, if applicable].

Section 14. Appointments [Optional]

A. An insurance producer shall not act as an agent of an insurer unless the insurance producer becomes an appointed agent of that insurer. An insurance producer who is not acting as an agent of an insurer is not required to become appointed.

B. To appoint a producer as its agent, the appointing insurer shall file, in a format approved by the insurance commissioner, a notice of appointment within fifteen (15) days from the date the agency contract is executed or the first insurance application is submitted. An insurer may also elect to appoint a producer to all or some insurers within the insurer's holding company system or group by the filing of a single appointment request.

Drafting Note: The group appointment provision of Subsection B is only applicable in jurisdictions that have implemented an electronic appointment process.

C. [Optional] Upon receipt of the notice of appointment, the insurance commissioner shall verify within a reasonable time not to exceed thirty (30) days that the insurance producer is eligible for appointment. If the insurance producer is determined to be ineligible for appointment, the insurance commissioner shall notify the insurer within five (5) days of its determination.

D. An insurer shall pay an appointment fee, in the amount and method of payment set forth in [insert appropriate reference to state law or regulation], for each insurance producer appointed by the insurer.

E. [Optional] An insurer shall remit, in a manner prescribed by the insurance commissioner, a renewal appointment fee in the amount set forth in [insert appropriate reference to state law or regulation].

Drafting Note: This act designates as optional the section on appointments of producers by insurers. That designation recognizes that some states do not require the formal appointment of a producer before business can be conducted with an insurer or multiple insurers.

Section 15. Notification to Insurance Commissioner of Termination

A. Termination for Cause. An insurer or authorized representative of the insurer that terminates the appointment, employment, contract or other insurance business relationship with a producer shall notify the insurance commissioner within thirty (30) days following the effective date of the termination, using a format prescribed by the insurance commissioner, if the reason for termination is one of the reasons set forth in Section 12 or the insurer has knowledge the producer was found by a court, government body, or self-regulatory organization authorized by law to have engaged in any of the activities in Section 12. Upon the written request of the insurance commissioner, the insurer shall provide additional information, documents, records or other data pertaining to the termination or activity of the producer.

B. Termination Without Cause. An insurer or authorized representative of the insurer that terminates the appointment, employment, or contract with a producer for any reason not set forth in Section 12, shall notify the insurance commissioner within thirty (30) days following the effective date of the termination, using a format prescribed by the insurance commissioner. Upon written request of the insurance commissioner, the insurer shall provide additional information, documents, records or other data pertaining to the termination.

Drafting Note: Those states that do not require formal appointments may delete any reference to appointments in Subsections A and B above.

C. Ongoing Notification Requirement. The insurer or the authorized representative of the insurer shall promptly notify the insurance commissioner in a format acceptable to the insurance commissioner if, upon further review or investigation, the insurer discovers additional information that would have been reportable to the insurance commissioner in accordance with Subsection A had the insurer then known of its existence.

D. Copy of Notification to be Provided to Producer.

(1) Within fifteen (15) days after making the notification required by Subsections A, B and C, the insurer shall mail a copy of the notification to the producer at his or her last known address. If the producer is terminated for cause for any of the reasons listed in Section 12, the insurer shall provide a copy of the notification to the producer at his or her last known address by certified mail, return receipt requested, postage prepaid or by overnight delivery using a nationally recognized carrier.

(2) Within thirty (30) days after the producer has received the original or additional notification, the producer may file written comments concerning the substance of the notification with the insurance commissioner. The producer shall, by the same means, simultaneously send a copy of the comments to the reporting insurer, and the comments shall become a part of the insurance commissioner's file and accompany every copy of a report distributed or disclosed for any reason about the producer as permitted under Subsection F.

E. Immunities

(1) In the absence of actual malice, an insurer, the authorized representative of the insurer, a producer, the insurance commissioner, or an organization of which the insurance commissioner is a member and that compiles the information and makes it available to other insurance commissioners or regulatory or law enforcement agencies shall not be subject to civil liability, and a civil cause of action of any nature shall not arise against these entities or their respective agents or employees, as a result of any statement or information required by or provided pursuant to this section or any information relating to any statement that may be requested in writing by the insurance commissioner, from an insurer or producer; or a statement by a terminating insurer or producer to an insurer or producer limited solely and exclusively to whether a termination for cause under Subsection A was reported to the insurance commissioner, provided that the propriety of any termination for cause under Subsection A is certified in writing by an officer or authorized representative of the insurer or producer terminating the relationship.

(2) In any action brought against a person that may have immunity under Paragraph (1) for making any statement required by this section or providing any information relating to any statement that may be requested by the insurance commissioner, the party bringing the action shall plead specifically in any allegation that Paragraph (1) does not apply because the person making the statement or providing the information did so with actual malice.

(3) Paragraph (1) or (2) shall not abrogate or modify any existing statutory or common law privileges or immunities.

F. Confidentiality

(1) Any documents, materials or other information in the control or possession of the department of insurance that is furnished by an insurer, producer or an employee or agent thereof acting on behalf of the insurer or producer, or obtained by the insurance commissioner in an investigation pursuant to this section shall be confidential by law and privileged, shall not be subject to [insert open records, freedom of information, sunshine or other appropriate phrase], shall not be subject to subpoena, and shall not be subject to discovery or admissible in evidence in any private civil action. However, the insurance commissioner is authorized to use the documents, materials or other information in the furtherance of any regulatory or legal action brought as a part of the insurance commissioner's duties.

(2) Neither the insurance commissioner nor any person who received documents, materials or other information while acting under the authority of the insurance commissioner shall be permitted or required to testify in any private civil action concerning any confidential documents, materials, or information subject to Paragraph (1).

(3) In order to assist in the performance of the insurance commissioner's duties under this Act, the insurance commissioner:

(a) May share documents, materials or other information, including the confidential and privileged documents, materials or information subject to Paragraph (1), with other state, federal, and international regulatory agencies, with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, its affiliates or subsidiaries, and with state, federal, and international law enforcement authorities, provided that the recipient agrees to maintain the confidentiality and privileged status of the document, material or other information;

(b) May receive documents, materials or information, including otherwise confidential and privileged documents, materials or information, from the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, its affiliates or subsidiaries and from regulatory and law enforcement officials of other foreign or domestic jurisdictions, and shall maintain as confidential or privileged any document, material or information received with notice or the understanding that it is confidential or privileged under the laws of the jurisdiction that is the source of the document, material or information; and

(c) [OPTIONAL] May enter into agreements governing sharing and use of information consistent with this subsection.

Drafting Note: The language in Paragraph 3(a) assumes the recipient has the authority to protect the applicable confidentiality or privilege, but does not address the verification of that authority, which would presumably occur in the context of a broader information sharing agreement.

(4) No waiver of any applicable privilege or claim of confidentiality in the documents, materials, or information shall occur as a result of disclosure to the commissioner under this section or as a result of sharing as authorized in Paragraph (3).

(5) Nothing in this Act shall prohibit the insurance commissioner from releasing final, adjudicated actions including for cause terminations that are open to public inspection pursuant to [insert appropriate reference to state law] to a database or other clearinghouse service maintained by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, its affiliates or subsidiaries of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners.

G. Penalties for Failing to Report. An insurer, the authorized representative of the insurer, or producer that fails to report as required under the provisions of this section or that is found to have reported with actual malice by a court of competent jurisdiction may, after notice and hearing, have its license or certificate of authority suspended or revoked and may be fined in accordance with [insert appropriate reference to state law].

Section 16. Reciprocity

A. The insurance commissioner shall waive any requirements for a nonresident license applicant with a valid license from his or her home state, except the requirements imposed by Section 8 of this Act, if the applicant's home state awards nonresident licenses to residents of this state on the same basis.

B. A nonresident producer's satisfaction of his or her home state's continuing education requirements for licensed insurance producers shall constitute satisfaction of this state's continuing education requirements if the non-resident producer's home state recognizes the satisfaction of its continuing education requirements imposed upon producers from this state on the same basis.

Drafting Note: States are encouraged to eliminate any licensing and appointment retaliatory fees. In accordance with Public Law No. 106-102 (the "Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act") states should not require non-resident fees that are so disparate from the resident fees that they impose a barrier to entry. Such fees would be prohibited under Public Law 106-102.

Section 17. Reporting of Actions

A. A producer shall report to the insurance commissioner any administrative action taken against the producer in another jurisdiction or by another governmental agency in this state within thirty (30) days of the final disposition of the matter. This report shall include a copy of the order, consent to order or other relevant legal documents.

B. Within thirty (30) days of the initial pretrial hearing date, a producer shall report to the insurance commissioner any criminal prosecution of the producer taken in any jurisdiction. The report shall include a copy of the initial complaint filed, the order resulting from the hearing and any other relevant legal documents.

Section 18. Compensation Disclosure

A. (1) Where any insurance producer or any affiliate of the producer receives any compensation from the customer for the placement of insurance or represents the customer with respect to that placement, neither that producer nor the affiliate shall accept or receive any compensation from an insurer or other third party for that placement of insurance unless the producer has, prior to the customer's purchase of insurance:

(a) Obtained the customer's documented acknowledgment that such compensation will be received by the producer or affiliate; and

(b) Disclosed the amount of compensation from the insurer or other third party for that placement. If the amount of compensation is not known at the time of disclosure, the producer shall disclose the specific method for calculating the compensation and, if possible, a reasonable estimate of the amount.

(2) Paragraph (1) shall not apply to an insurance producer who:

(a) Does not receive compensation from the customer for the placement of insurance; and

(b) In connection with that placement of insurance represents an insurer that has appointed the producer; and

(c) Discloses to the customer prior to the purchase of insurance:

(i) That the insurance producer will receive compensation from an insurer in connection with that placement; or

(ii) That, in connection with that placement of insurance, the insurance producer represents the insurer and that the producer may provide services to the customer for the insurer.

Drafting Note: In states where no appointment is required, the phrase "that has contractually authorized the producer to act as its legal agent" may be substituted for "that has appointed the producer."

B. A person shall not be considered a "customer" for purposes of this section if the person is merely:

(1) A participant or beneficiary of an employee benefit plan; or

(2) Covered by a group or blanket insurance policy or group annuity contract sold, solicited or negotiated by the insurance producer or affiliate.

C. This section shall not apply to:

(1) A person licensed as an insurance producer who acts only as an intermediary between an insurer and the customer's producer, for example a managing general agent, a sales manager, or wholesale broker; or

(2) A reinsurance intermediary.

D. For purposes of this section:

(1) "Affiliate" means a person that controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with the producer.

(2) "Compensation from an insurer or other third party" means payments, commissions, fees, awards, overrides, bonuses, contingent commissions, loans, stock options, gifts, prizes or any other form of valuable consideration, whether or not payable pursuant to a written agreement.

(3) "Compensation from the customer" shall not include any fee or similar expense as provided in [insert reference to statutory provisions or regulations] or any fee or amount collected by or paid to the producer that does not exceed an amount established by the commissioner.

(4) "Documented acknowledgement" means the customer's written consent obtained prior to the customer's purchase of insurance. In the case of a purchase over the telephone or by electronic means for which written consent cannot reasonably be obtained, consent documented by the producer shall be acceptable.

E. This section shall take effect [insert date].

Drafting Note*:* States that are considering the licensing of business entities should reference Section 6B of the NAIC's Producer Licensing Model Act and the Uniform Application for Business Entity License/Registration, which address the licensing of a business entity acting as an insurance producer.

Section 19. Regulations

The insurance commissioner may, in accordance with [insert appropriate reference to state law], promulgate reasonable regulations as are necessary or proper to carry out the purposes of this Act.

Section 20. Severability

If any provisions of this Act, or the application of a provision to any person or circumstances, shall be held invalid, the remainder of the Act, and the application of the provision to persons or circumstances other than those to which it is held invalid, shall not be affected.

Section 21. Effective Date

This Act shall take effect [insert date].

Note: A minimum of six months to one year implementation time for proper notice of changes, fees and procedures is recommended.

PREVENTION OF ILLEGAL MULTIPLE EMPLOYER WELFARE ARRANGEMENTS (MEWAs) AND OTHER ILLEGAL HEALTH INSURERS MODEL REGULATION

Table of Contents

Section 1. Statement of Purpose

The purpose of this regulation is to prevent the operation of illegal health insurers, including illegal multiple employer welfare arrangements (MEWAs), in this state. This regulation states the law on this topic and establishes specific standards for persons and licensees who become aware of, or are asked to assist such an operation. This regulation is designed to require those persons and licensees to establish and follow responsible procedures to identify and report illegal health insurers. The department expects that compliance with this regulation will protect the public from entities offering fraudulent or otherwise illegal health care coverage.

Drafting Note: A state department adopting this regulation may wish to cite its statutory authority for adopting it. This regulation may be enacted under the authority of the NAIC Model Unauthorized Insurers Act. State statutes that are the equivalent to the following NAIC Model Acts may also provide authority to adopt some or all of the provisions of this regulation include:

A. Section 19 of the NAIC Producer Licensing Model Act;

B. Section 12 of the NAIC Unfair Trade Practices Act;

C. Section 8 of the NAIC Unfair Claims Settlement Practices Act;

D. Section 4B of the NAIC Third Party Administrator Statute;

E. Section 3 of the NAIC Model Law on Examinations;

F. NAIC Nonadmitted Insurance Model Act; or

G. Section 12 of the NAIC Insurance Fraud Prevention Model Act.

Section 2. Definitions

A. "Admitted insurer" means an insurer licensed to do an insurance business in this state [including an entity licensed as a multiple employer welfare arrangement ("licensed MEWA"), a health maintenance organization or nonprofit hospital or medical service corporation under the laws of this state].

Drafting Note: States that have a specific statutory licensing category "multiple employer welfare arrangements" (MEWAs) may wish to include the licensee within this definition. In addition, states that separately license health maintenance organizations or nonprofit hospital or medical service corporations should include these licensed entities within this definition.

B. "Arrangement" means a fund, trust, plan, program or other mechanism by which a person provides, or attempts to provide, health care benefits.

C. "Department" means the insurance department of this state.

D. "Employee leasing arrangement" means a labor leasing, staff leasing, employee leasing, professional employer organization, contract labor, extended employee staffing or supply, or other arrangement, under contract or otherwise, whereby one business or entity represents that it leases or provides its workers to another business or entity.

Drafting Note: Some states have a separate regulatory structure that authorizes some employee leasing arrangements to offer self-funded health benefit plans. Those states should take care to modify this regulation to reflect the applicable "professional employer organization" or "employee leasing" statutory structure

E. "Employee welfare benefit plan" or "health benefit plan" means a plan, fund or program which was heretofore or is hereafter established or maintained by an employer or by an employee organization, or by both, to the extent that the plan, fund or program was established or is maintained for the purpose of providing for its participants or their beneficiaries, through the purchase of insurance or otherwise, medical, surgical or hospital care or benefits, or benefits in the event of sickness, accident, disability, death or unemployment.

F. "Fully insured" means that for the health care benefits or coverage provided or offered by or through a health benefit plan or arrangement:

(1) An admitted insurer is directly obligated by contract to each participant to provide all of the coverage under the plan or arrangement; and

(2) The liability and responsibility of the admitted insurer to provide covered services or for payment of benefits is not contingent, and is directly to the individual employee, member or dependent.

G. "Insurer" means [insert reference to appropriate state law].

H. "Licensee" means a person that is, or that is required to be, licensed or registered under the laws of this state as a producer, third party administrator, insurer, employee leasing arrangement or preferred provider organization.

Drafting Note: A state should adjust the definition of "licensee" to reflect its licensing laws.

I. "MEWA contact" means the individual or position designated by the department to be the MEWA contact as identified on the department web site.

Drafting Note: Every state is strongly encouraged to have an individual who is trained and knowledgeable about the application of state laws to MEWAs serve as the designated MEWA contact. In the event that a state does not designate such an individual to serve as the MEWA contact, reference should be made to the Department of Insurance instead of to the MEWA contact. States are encouraged to identify a specific MEWA contact on their web sites and in their relevant publications.

. "Non-admitted insurer" means an insurer not licensed to do an insurance business in this state.

K. "Preferred provider organization" means an entity that engages in the business of offering a network of health care providers, whether or not on a risk basis, to employers, insurers or any other person who provides a health benefit plan.

L. "Producer" means a person required to be licensed under the laws of this state to sell, solicit or negotiate insurance.

M. "Professional employer organization" means an arrangement, under contract or otherwise, whereby one business or entity represents that it co-employs or leases workers to another business or entity for an on-going and extended, rather than a temporary or project-specific, relationship

Drafting Note: Some states have a separate regulatory structure that authorizes some professional employer organizations to self-fund health benefit plans. Those states should take care to modify this regulation to reflect that "professional employer organization" or "employee leasing" statutory structure

N. "Third party administrator" or "administrator" has the meaning provided under [insert reference to the state's third party administrator statute].

O. "Transacting of insurance" means [insert reference to the state equivalent of Section 3P of the NAIC Nonadmitted Insurance Model Act] and includes:

(1) Issuing a stop loss policy covering an employer located in this state. Stop loss policy coverage of an employer for claims incurred under the employer's self-funded health benefit plan is insurance, not reinsurance, regardless of whether the contract is described by the insurer as reinsurance;

(2) Issuing a stop loss policy to a trust or trustee, whether the trust or trustee is located in this state or otherwise, with an employer located in this state directly or indirectly the beneficiary of the trust;

(3) Agreeing to loan or advance funds to pay claims incurred under an employer's self-funded health benefit plan if the availability of funds to advance is significantly dependent on payment of contributions and the claims experience of two or more employers who have entered into similar loan or advance agreements; or

(4) Engaging in a risk distribution arrangement providing for compensation of loss through the provision of services, including an arrangement established through marketing or representations to consumers, without specification in a contract.

P. "Unauthorized health insurance" means:

(1) Health insurance offered by a non-admitted insurer except to the extent the laws of this state allow the coverage to be offered by an non-admitted insurer licensed in another state through an employer or group located out of state; and

(2) includes health care benefits or coverage offered by a professional employer organization or an employee leasing arrangement that is not:

(a) Fully insured by an admitted insurer; or

[(b) Licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of this state to offer a self-funded health benefit plan.]

Drafting Note: Some states have a separate regulatory structure that authorizes some professional employer organizations to self-fund health benefit plans. Those states should take care to include the optional bracketed language in this definition to reflect that statutory structure. The exception under Paragraph P (2) (b) is not intended to be adopted by states whose laws "register" or otherwise "authorize" employee leasing arrangements or professional employer organizations unless those laws also include specific authority to self-fund a health benefit plan. Also, many states have laws that, under limited circumstances, permit a non-admitted insurer to provide coverage to a resident employer by an out of state employer or participating in an out of state group. Those states should modify this definition to reflect those provisions.

(3) "Unauthorized health insurance" does not include:

(a) Health care benefits or coverage under an employee welfare benefit plan of the employees of two (2) or more employers (including one or more self-employed individuals), that is established or maintained under or pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement under the criteria provided under 29 CFR 2510.3-40.

(b) Health care benefits or coverage under an employee welfare benefit plan established or maintained by a rural electric cooperative or a rural telephone cooperative as defined under 29 U.S.C. §1002(40)(B).

(c) Health care benefits or coverage under an employee welfare benefit plan of the employees of two (2) or more employers but only if the employers are within the same control group so the plan is deemed to be a single employer plan under 29 U.S.C. §1002(40)(B).

(d) Health care benefits or coverage under a church plan as defined under 29 U.S.C §1002(33).

Section 3. Licensee Reporting Requirement

A. A licensee shall file a written report with the department MEWA contact when a licensee knows a product is, or is about to be, offered to the public in this state, and the licensee, based on the information known to the licensee, reasonably should know the product is unauthorized health insurance. Knowledge of a producer regarding an unrelated unauthorized health insurance arrangement is not imputed to licensed insurers represented by that producer.

B. Circumstances where a licensee knows that a product is, or is about to be, offered to the public in this state, include when the licensee knows that any person is:

(1) Recruiting producers to solicit or offer, or is soliciting or offering, a health benefit plan generally to the public in this state; or

(2) Seeking an administrator for, or is administering a health benefit plan that is intended to be offered generally to the public in this state.

C. Circumstances where a licensee reasonably should know that a product is unauthorized health insurance include, but are not limited to, the following:

(1) The licensee knows that the product is represented to be a self-funded plan and that it is offered widely to the multiple employers or generally to individuals.

(2) [The licensee knows that the product is a professional employer organization self-funded plan and that it is offered widely to multiple client employers.]

Drafting Note: Some states have a separate regulatory structure that authorizes some professional employer organizations to self-fund health benefit plans. Those states should take care to omit the optional bracketed language.

(3) The licensee knows that the plan is represented to be a self-funded plan established or maintained pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement and that the plan is offered widely to multiple employers, or generally to individuals, or both, through agents who are compensated on a commission or similar basis.

Drafting Note: Paragraph C is not intended to be a comprehensive list of possible illegal schemes. It includes only a few of the most common illegal arrangements.

D. (1) A report filed under this section is confidential and privileged from disclosure in response to a subpoena or otherwise under [insert statutory cite for authority to keep these reports confidential and privileged] and shall not be subject to discovery or admissible in evidence in any private action. Nothing in this regulation shall limit the commissioner's authority to use a report filed pursuant to this regulation in the furtherance of any legal or regulatory action that the commissioner, in the commissioner's sole discretion, determines to be necessary to further the purposes of this regulation.

(2) Nothing in this regulation shall prevent or be construed as preventing the commissioner from disclosing the contents of a report filed under this section to the insurance department of any other state or agency of the federal government at any time, or any other regulatory or law enforcement agency provided the agency or office receiving the report or matters relating thereto agrees to hold it confidential and in a manner consistent with this regulation. For reports filed under this section, [insert state law equivalent to Section 8 of the NAIC Insurance Fraud Prevention Act] applies.

E. A report filed under this Section is confidential and privileged from disclosure in response to a subpoena or otherwise under [insert statutory cite for authority to keep these reports confidential and privileged] except to the extent the commissioner determines disclosure is appropriate to accomplish a regulatory purpose.

F. [There is immunity from civil liability under Section [insert state law equivalent to Section 7 A of the NAIC Insurance Fraud Prevention Act].]

Drafting Note: The NAIC recommends that states give serious consideration to seeking statutory authority to retain MEWA contact reports as confidential and to seeking statutory immunity from civil liability related to filing a MEWA contact report, absent a showing of actual malice, prior to adopting this regulation. Many states may already have such provisions enacted as part of the NAIC Insurance Fraud Prevention Act or similar legislation. Those states should include the optional bracketed language. Those states should take care to clarify that their insurance fraud prevention acts do not, or are amended so as to not, prevent the sharing of the reports within the department. States are also encouraged to use the model MEWA contact form the NAIC ERISA Working Group plans to develop.

G. A licensee complies with this section if the licensee files the required report within thirty (30) days or a period reasonable under the circumstances, whichever is later.

Section 4. Responsibility to Exercise Due Diligence

A. Soliciting Producer

(1) A producer, prior to engaging in or assisting any person to engage in offering a health benefit plan to an employer or person located in this state, shall carry out appropriate due diligence to establish that the health benefit plan is not unauthorized health insurance, including those measures reasonably appropriate to establish:

(a) For any insurance coverage that is represented as issued relating to the health benefit plan:

(i) The insurer issued the policy;

(ii) The coverage is as represented;

(iii) The insurer is an admitted insurer in this state; and

(iv) The policy has been filed with, and approved by, the department or is exempt from filing requirements.

(b) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established or maintained pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement, the health benefit plan is established or maintained under or pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement under the criteria provided under 29 CFR 2510.3-40.

(c) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established or maintained by an employee leasing arrangement or professional employer organization, the health benefit plan is fully insured.

Drafting Note: Some states have a separate regulatory structure that authorizes some professional employer organizations to self-fund health benefit plans. Those states should take care to modify this section to reflect that statutory structure This does not include state laws that "register" or otherwise "authorize" employee leasing arrangements or professional employer organizations absent specific authority to self-fund a health benefit plan. However, Subparagraph (c) should be revised if and to the extent, state law authorizes an employee leasing arrangement to self-fund a health benefit plan.

(d) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established by a single employer, the health benefit plan is covering solely employees and their dependents, and the employer controls and directs the work of the employee.

Drafting Note: Some states have a separate regulatory structure that recognizes a fully insured health plan of an employee leasing arrangement or professional employer organization as a single employer plan for certain regulatory purposes. Such a state should review Subparagraph (d) to ensure it conforms to such a provision.

B. Stop loss policy producer

(1) A producer, prior to submitting an application for a stop loss policy to an insurer for a health benefit plan offered to employees, employee dependents, or a person located in this state, shall carry out appropriate due diligence to establish that the health benefit plan is not unauthorized health insurance, including measures reasonably appropriate to establish:

(a) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established or maintained pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement, the health benefit plan is established or maintained under or pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement under the criteria provided under 29 CFR 2510.3-40.

(b) The health benefit plan that is not offered by an employee leasing arrangement or professional employer organization to client employers.

Drafting Note: Some states have a separate regulatory structure that authorizes some employee leasing arrangements or professional employer organizations to self-fund health benefit plans. Those states should take care to modify this section to reflect that statutory structure. This does not include state laws that "register" or otherwise "authorize" employee leasing arrangements or professional employer organizations absent specific authority to self-fund a health benefit plan. However, Subparagraph (b) should be revised if and to the extent, state law authorizes an employee leasing arrangement to self-fund a health benefit plan.

(c) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established by a single employer, that the health benefit plan is covering solely employees, and dependents of employees, of the employer and the employer controls and directs the work of the employee.

C. Third Party Administrator

(1) A third party administrator, prior to entering into any administrative contract for a health benefit plan, and prior to assisting any person with administration of a health benefit plan, covering employees of an employer or a person located in this state, shall carry out appropriate due diligence to establish that the health benefit plan is not unauthorized health insurance, including those measures reasonably appropriate to establish:

(a) Through initial inquiry, contract provisions and measures to monitor and enforce compliance with the contract provisions, that for any insurance coverage that is represented as issued relating to the health benefit plan:

(i) The insurer issued the policy;

(ii) The coverage is as represented;

(iii) The insurer is an admitted insurer in this state; and

(iv) The policy has been filed with, and approved by, the department or is exempt from filing requirements;

(b) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established or maintained pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement, the health benefit plan is established or maintained under or pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement under the criteria provided under 29 CFR 2510.3-40.

(c) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established or maintained by an employee leasing arrangement or professional employer organization, the health benefit plan is fully insured.

Drafting Note: Some states have a separate regulatory structure that authorizes some professional employer organizations to self-fund health benefit plans. Those states should take care to modify this section to reflect that statutory structure This does not include state laws that "register" or otherwise "authorize" employee leasing arrangements or professional employer organizations absent specific authority to self-fund a health benefit plan. However, Subparagraph (c) should be revised if and to the extent, state law authorizes an employee leasing arrangement to self-fund a health benefit plan.

(d) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established by a single employer, that the health benefit plan is covering solely employees and their dependents, and the employer controls and directs the work of the employee.

D. Insurer

(1) An insurer, prior to issuing a stop loss policy for a health benefit plan covering employees, employee dependents, or individuals located in this state, shall carry out appropriate due diligence to establish that the health benefit plan is not unauthorized health insurance, including those measures reasonably appropriate to establish:

(a) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established or maintained pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement, the health benefit plan is established or maintained under or pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement under the criteria provided under 29 CFR 2510.3-40;

(b) The health benefit plan is not offered by an employee leasing arrangement or professional employer organization to client employers.

Drafting Note: Some states have a separate regulatory structure that authorizes some employee leasing arrangements or professional employer organizations to self-fund health benefit plans. Those states should take care to modify this section to reflect that statutory structure. This does not include state laws that "register" or otherwise "authorize" employee leasing arrangements or professional employer organizations absent specific authority to self-fund a health benefit plan. However, Subparagraph (b) should be revised if and to the extent, state law authorizes an employee leasing arrangement or professional employer organization to self-fund a health benefit plan.

(c) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established by a single employer, the health benefit plan is covering solely employees, and dependents of employees, of the employer and the employer controls and directs the work of the employee.

(2) An insurer shall not engage in the transacting of insurance by issuing a stop loss policy unless the insurer is an admitted insurer in this state and the stop loss policy form has been filed and approved by the department, or the form is exempt from filing. The transacting of insurance includes, but is not limited to:

(a) Issuing a stop loss policy covering an employer located in this state. Coverage of an employer for claims incurred under the employer's self-funded health benefit plan with a stop loss policy is insurance, not reinsurance, regardless of whether the contract is described by the insurer as reinsurance.

(b) Issuing a stop loss policy to a trust or trustee, whether the trust or trustee is located in this state or otherwise, when an employer located in this state is directly or indirectly the beneficiary of the trust.

(3) An insurer shall not engage in the transacting of insurance in this state by issuing a stop loss policy unless, prior to issuing a contract for the stop loss policy, the insurer discloses clearly and conspicuously to the employer, in writing:

(a) The employer is not covered for claims below the stop loss attachment point;

(b) A description of the attachment point, including the specific and aggregate attachment points; and

(c) The insurer provides no other coverage of the employer's retention.

E. Preferred provider organization

(1) A preferred provider organization, prior to entering into any contract with a person offering or providing a health benefit plan in this state, shall carry out appropriate due diligence to establish that the health benefit plan is not unauthorized health insurance, including those measures reasonably appropriate to establish:

(a) Through initial inquiry, contract provisions and measures to monitor and enforce compliance with the contract provisions, that for any insurance coverage that is represented as issued relating to the health benefit plan:

(i) The insurer issued the policy;

(ii) The coverage is as represented;

(iii) The insurer is an admitted insurer in this state; and

(iv) The policy has been filed with and approved by the department or is exempt from filing requirements;

(b) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established or maintained pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement, the health benefit plan is established or maintained under or pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement under the criteria provided under 29 CFR 2510.3-40;

(c) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established or maintained by an employee leasing arrangement or professional employer organization, the health benefit plan is fully insured.

Drafting Note: Some states have a separate regulatory structure that authorizes some professional employer organizations to self-fund health benefit plans. Those states should take care to modify this section to reflect that statutory structure This does not include state laws that "register" or otherwise "authorize" employee leasing arrangements or professional employer organizations absent specific authority to self-fund a health benefit plan. However, Subparagraph (c) should be revised if and to the extent, state law authorizes an employee leasing arrangement or professional employer organization to self-fund a health benefit plan.

(d) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established by a single employer, the health benefit plan is covering solely employees and dependents of employees, of the employer and the employer controls and directs the work of the employee.

F. (1) A licensee or other person who acts according to the written advice of the MEWA contact has a defense to any violation of this section if:

(a) The information provided by the licensee or other person to the MEWA contact, to the extent material to the MEWA contact's advice, is accurate and complete; and

(b) The information is provided by the licensee or other person to the MEWA contact in writing.

(2) For the purpose of this regulation, the department's published list of admitted insurers on its web site is deemed to be accurate. A licensee or other person has a defense to any allegation that a listed insurer is not an admitted insurer. Nothing in this subsection relieves a licensee or other person from conducting due diligence to determine whether an entity is in fact the same entity as a listed admitted insurer.

Drafting Note: A state insurance department adopting this regulation is expected to publish, on the internet, a regularly updated list of admitted insurers.

(3) A violation of this section is mitigated, and the department shall reduce or eliminate any sanction otherwise applicable, if a licensee or other person demonstrates all of the following:

(a) It maintained supervisory procedures and controls that complied with Section 5;

(b) The violation occurred despite the maintenance of those procedures and controls;

(c) It promptly reported the health benefit plan to the MEWA contact once the licensee or other person had actual knowledge that it was unauthorized health insurance; and

(d) It took prompt corrective action.

G. Nothing in this section requires a producer, third party administrator, insurer or preferred provider organization to conduct due diligence with respect to a health benefit plan that it is not assisting and with respect to which it does not engage in the transacting of insurance.

Drafting Note: This section requires producers, third party administrators, insurers, and preferred provider organization to exercise due diligence only to the extent that they assist or engage in the transacting of insurance relating to a health benefit plan. They are not required to investigate health benefit plans with respect to which they provide no services or transaction of insurance. For example, sale of a group life insurance policy does not require the selling producer or issuing agent to exercise due diligence as to the employer's health benefit plan.

Section 5. Supervisory Procedures and Controls

A. A producer, third party administrator, insurer, preferred provider organization or an agent of the same shall establish and maintain documented supervision procedures and controls that are reasonably designed to achieve compliance with this regulation.

B. The supervisory procedures shall include:

(1) Training;

(2) Internal controls;

(3) Periodic audits;

(4) Supervisory review; and

(5) Monitoring and enforcement of contractual provisions established under Section 4 C and E.

C. The extent of the supervisory procedures and controls a producer is required to maintain under this section may appropriately reflect the size and complexity of the producer's operations and the scope and nature of the producer's insurance activities.

Drafting Note: The NAIC encourages the national trade associations for health insurers, preferred provider organizations, third party administrators and insurance agents to develop compliance guidance, training and manuals to assist their members to implement supervisory procedures and controls. The NAIC ERISA Working Group is prepared to review the results of such an effort. State insurance departments are expected to give recognition to supervisory procedures and controls implemented by insurers, preferred provider organizations, third party administrators and insurance agents in accordance with guidance for effective programs developed by these trade organization. Companies also may seek review of their programs by their state insurance department.

Section 6. Licensing Education Requirements

A. A producer shall not be licensed in this state to sell health insurance unless the producer, prior to licensing, receives not less than one hour of education in:

(1) Identification of unauthorized health insurance; and

(2) The producer's responsibilities under this regulation.

Drafting Note: Subsection A would apply only to those states that have pre-licensing education requirements. The one-hour of education is intended to be included in, and not in addition to, the total pre-licensing requirement.

B. An insurer providing health insurance in this state shall require its listed producers to obtain not less that one hour of continuing education every four years covering:

(1) Identification of unauthorized health insurance; and

(2) The producer's responsibilities under this regulation.

Drafting Note: Subsection B should be adopted only by those states that have continuing education requirements. The one hour continuing education requirement should be included in the total hours required by the NAIC Producer Licensing Model Act.

C. A third party administrator, preferred provider organization or insurer shall include in its application for a license a brief summary of its procedures and controls required under Section 5 in the [insert reference to the relevant statutory application requirement such as a statutory requirement to include a business plan]. A license may be denied under [insert reference to relevant statutory licensing criteria such as "contrary to the public interest"] if the applicant fails to demonstrate that the applicant maintains the required procedures and controls.

Section 7. Penalties and Liability

A. Except as provided in Subsection B, a person that violates this regulation is subject to [insert reference to general license and penalty provisions under the state insurance code, including the provisions equivalent to the remedy and penalty section of the NAIC Nonadmitted Insurance Model Act].

Drafting Note: The regulation should include a cross reference to penalty provisions equivalent to those in Section 7 of the NAIC Nonadmitted Insurance Model Act, as well as the remedial provision under Section 4D of that Act.

B. A person who violates Section 3 of this regulation is subject to a penalty of a [forfeiture of up to $1000] for each violation.

Drafting Note: A state insurance department should insert an appropriate penalty under the sanctions provided under its laws. Generally, a less severe penalty is appropriate compared to those for other violations under this regulation.

Table of Contents

Section 1. Statement of Purpose

The purpose of this regulation is to prevent the operation of illegal health insurers, including illegal multiple employer welfare arrangements (MEWAs), in this state. This regulation states the law on this topic and establishes specific standards for persons and licensees who become aware of, or are asked to assist such an operation. This regulation is designed to require those persons and licensees to establish and follow responsible procedures to identify and report illegal health insurers. The department expects that compliance with this regulation will protect the public from entities offering fraudulent or otherwise illegal health care coverage.

Drafting Note: A state department adopting this regulation may wish to cite its statutory authority for adopting it. This regulation may be enacted under the authority of the NAIC Model Unauthorized Insurers Act. State statutes that are the equivalent to the following NAIC Model Acts may also provide authority to adopt some or all of the provisions of this regulation include:

A. Section 19 of the NAIC Producer Licensing Model Act;

B. Section 12 of the NAIC Unfair Trade Practices Act;

C. Section 8 of the NAIC Unfair Claims Settlement Practices Act;

D. Section 4B of the NAIC Third Party Administrator Statute;

E. Section 3 of the NAIC Model Law on Examinations;

F. NAIC Nonadmitted Insurance Model Act; or

G. Section 12 of the NAIC Insurance Fraud Prevention Model Act.

Section 2. Definitions

A. "Admitted insurer" means an insurer licensed to do an insurance business in this state [including an entity licensed as a multiple employer welfare arrangement ("licensed MEWA"), a health maintenance organization or nonprofit hospital or medical service corporation under the laws of this state].

Drafting Note: States that have a specific statutory licensing category "multiple employer welfare arrangements" (MEWAs) may wish to include the licensee within this definition. In addition, states that separately license health maintenance organizations or nonprofit hospital or medical service corporations should include these licensed entities within this definition.

B. "Arrangement" means a fund, trust, plan, program or other mechanism by which a person provides, or attempts to provide, health care benefits.

C. "Department" means the insurance department of this state.

D. "Employee leasing arrangement" means a labor leasing, staff leasing, employee leasing, professional employer organization, contract labor, extended employee staffing or supply, or other arrangement, under contract or otherwise, whereby one business or entity represents that it leases or provides its workers to another business or entity.

Drafting Note: Some states have a separate regulatory structure that authorizes some employee leasing arrangements to offer self-funded health benefit plans. Those states should take care to modify this regulation to reflect the applicable "professional employer organization" or "employee leasing" statutory structure.

E. "Employee welfare benefit plan" or "health benefit plan" means a plan, fund or program which was heretofore or is hereafter established or maintained by an employer or by an employee organization, or by both, to the extent that the plan, fund or program was established or is maintained for the purpose of providing for its participants or their beneficiaries, through the purchase of insurance or otherwise, medical, surgical or hospital care or benefits, or benefits in the event of sickness, accident, disability, death or unemployment.

F. "Fully insured" means that for the health care benefits or coverage provided or offered by or through a health benefit plan or arrangement:

(1) An admitted insurer is directly obligated by contract to each participant to provide all of the coverage under the plan or arrangement; and

(2) The liability and responsibility of the admitted insurer to provide covered services or for payment of benefits is not contingent, and is directly to the individual employee, member or dependent.

G. "Insurer" means [insert reference to appropriate state law].

H. "Licensee" means a person that is, or that is required to be, licensed or registered under the laws of this state as a producer, third party administrator, insurer, employee leasing arrangement or preferred provider organization.

Drafting Note: A state should adjust the definition of "licensee" to reflect its licensing laws.

I. "MEWA contact" means the individual or position designated by the department to be the MEWA contact as identified on the department web site.

Drafting Note: Every state is strongly encouraged to have an individual who is trained and knowledgeable about the application of state laws to MEWAs serve as the designated MEWA contact. In the event that a state does not designate such an individual to serve as the MEWA contact, reference should be made to the Department of Insurance instead of to the MEWA contact. States are encouraged to identify a specific MEWA contact on their web sites and in their relevant publications.

J. "Non-admitted insurer" means an insurer not licensed to do an insurance business in this state.

K. "Preferred provider organization" means an entity that engages in the business of offering a network of health care providers, whether or not on a risk basis, to employers, insurers or any other person who provides a health benefit plan.

L. "Producer" means a person required to be licensed under the laws of this state to sell, solicit or negotiate insurance.

M. "Professional employer organization" means an arrangement, under contract or otherwise, whereby one business or entity represents that it co-employs or leases workers to another business or entity for an on-going and extended, rather than a temporary or project-specific, relationship.

Drafting Note: Some states have a separate regulatory structure that authorizes some professional employer organizations to self-fund health benefit plans. Those states should take care to modify this regulation to reflect that "professional employer organization" or "employee leasing" statutory structure.

N. "Third party administrator" or "administrator" has the meaning provided under [insert reference to the state's third party administrator statute].

O. "Transacting of insurance" means [insert reference to the state equivalent of Section 3P of the NAIC Nonadmitted Insurance Model Act] and includes:

(1) Issuing a stop loss policy covering an employer located in this state. Stop loss policy coverage of an employer for claims incurred under the employer's self-funded health benefit plan is insurance, not reinsurance, regardless of whether the contract is described by the insurer as reinsurance;

(2) Issuing a stop loss policy to a trust or trustee, whether the trust or trustee is located in this state or otherwise, with an employer located in this state directly or indirectly the beneficiary of the trust;

(3) Agreeing to loan or advance funds to pay claims incurred under an employer's self-funded health benefit plan if the availability of funds to advance is significantly dependent on payment of contributions and the claims experience of two or more employers who have entered into similar loan or advance agreements; or

(4) Engaging in a risk distribution arrangement providing for compensation of loss through the provision of services, including an arrangement established through marketing or representations to consumers, without specification in a contract.

P. "Unauthorized health insurance" means:

(1) Health insurance offered by a non-admitted insurer except to the extent the laws of this state allow the coverage to be offered by an non-admitted insurer licensed in another state through an employer or group located out of state; and

(1) Includes health care benefits or coverage offered by a professional employer organization or an employee leasing arrangement that is not:

(a) Fully insured by an admitted insurer; or

[(b) Licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of this state to offer a self-funded health benefit plan.]

Drafting Note: Some states have a separate regulatory structure that authorizes some professional employer organizations to self-fund health benefit plans. Those states should take care to include the optional bracketed language in this definition to reflect that statutory structure. The exception under Paragraph P (2) (b) is not intended to be adopted by states whose laws "register" or otherwise "authorize" employee leasing arrangements or professional employer organizations unless those laws also include specific authority to self-fund a health benefit plan. Also, many states have laws that, under limited circumstances, permit a non-admitted insurer to provide coverage to a resident employer by an out of state employer or participating in an out of state group. Those states should modify this definition to reflect those provisions.

(2) "Unauthorized health insurance" does not include:

(a) Health care benefits or coverage under an employee welfare benefit plan of the employees of two (2) or more employers (including one or more self-employed individuals), that is established or maintained under or pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement under the criteria provided under 29 CFR 2510.3-40.

(b) Health care benefits or coverage under an employee welfare benefit plan established or maintained by a rural electric cooperative or a rural telephone cooperative as defined under 29 U.S.C. §1002(40)(B).

(c) Health care benefits or coverage under an employee welfare benefit plan of the employees of two (2) or more employers but only if the employers are within the same control group so the plan is deemed to be a single employer plan under 29 U.S.C. §1002(40)(B).

(d) Health care benefits or coverage under a church plan as defined under 29 U.S.C §1002(33).

Section 3. Licensee Reporting Requirement

A. A licensee shall file a written report with the department MEWA contact when a licensee knows a product is, or is about to be, offered to the public in this state, and the licensee, based on the information known to the licensee, reasonably should know the product is unauthorized health insurance. Knowledge of a producer regarding an unrelated unauthorized health insurance arrangement is not imputed to licensed insurers represented by that producer.

B. Circumstances where a licensee knows that a product is, or is about to be, offered to the public in this state, include when the licensee knows that any person is:

(1) Recruiting producers to solicit or offer, or is soliciting or offering, a health benefit plan generally to the public in this state; or

(2) Seeking an administrator for, or is administering a health benefit plan that is intended to be offered generally to the public in this state.

C. Circumstances where a licensee reasonably should know that a product is unauthorized health insurance include, but are not limited to, the following:

(1) The licensee knows that the product is represented to be a self-funded plan and that it is offered widely to the multiple employers or generally to individuals.

(2) [The licensee knows that the product is a professional employer organization self-funded plan and that it is offered widely to multiple client employers.]

Drafting Note: Some states have a separate regulatory structure that authorizes some professional employer organizations to self-fund health benefit plans. Those states should take care to omit the optional bracketed language.

(3) The licensee knows that the plan is represented to be a self-funded plan established or maintained pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement and that the plan is offered widely to multiple employers, or generally to individuals, or both, through agents who are compensated on a commission or similar basis.

Drafting Note: Paragraph C is not intended to be a comprehensive list of possible illegal schemes. It includes only a few of the most common illegal arrangements.

D. (1) A report filed under this section is confidential and privileged from disclosure in response to a subpoena or otherwise under [insert statutory cite for authority to keep these reports confidential and privileged] and shall not be subject to discovery or admissible in evidence in any private action. Nothing in this regulation shall limit the commissioner's authority to use a report filed pursuant to this regulation in the furtherance of any legal or regulatory action that the commissioner, in the commissioner's sole discretion, determines to be necessary to further the purposes of this regulation.

(2) Nothing in this regulation shall prevent or be construed as preventing the commissioner from disclosing the contents of a report filed under this section to the insurance department of any other state or agency of the federal government at any time, or any other regulatory or law enforcement agency provided the agency or office receiving the report or matters relating thereto agrees to hold it confidential and in a manner consistent with this regulation. For reports filed under this section, [insert state law equivalent to Section 8 of the NAIC Insurance Fraud Prevention Act] applies.

E. A report filed under this Section is confidential and privileged from disclosure in response to a subpoena or otherwise under [insert statutory cite for authority to keep these reports confidential and privileged] except to the extent the commissioner determines disclosure is appropriate to accomplish a regulatory purpose.

F. [There is immunity from civil liability under Section [insert state law equivalent to Section 7 A of the NAIC Insurance Fraud Prevention Act].]

Drafting Note: The NAIC recommends that states give serious consideration to seeking statutory authority to retain MEWA contact reports as confidential and to seeking statutory immunity from civil liability related to filing a MEWA contact report, absent a showing of actual malice, prior to adopting this regulation. Many states may already have such provisions enacted as part of the NAIC Insurance Fraud Prevention Act or similar legislation. Those states should include the optional bracketed language. Those states should take care to clarify that their insurance fraud prevention acts do not, or are amended so as to not, prevent the sharing of the reports within the department. States are also encouraged to use the model MEWA contact form the NAIC ERISA Working Group plans to develop.

G. A licensee complies with this section if the licensee files the required report within thirty (30) days or a period reasonable under the circumstances, whichever is later.

Section 4. Responsibility to Exercise Due Diligence

A. Soliciting Producer

(1) A producer, prior to engaging in or assisting any person to engage in offering a health benefit plan to an employer or person located in this state, shall carry out appropriate due diligence to establish that the health benefit plan is not unauthorized health insurance, including those measures reasonably appropriate to establish:

(a) For any insurance coverage that is represented as issued relating to the health benefit plan:

(i) The insurer issued the policy;

(ii) The coverage is as represented;

(iii) The insurer is an admitted insurer in this state; and

(iv) The policy has been filed with, and approved by, the department or is exempt from filing requirements.

(b) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established or maintained pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement, the health benefit plan is established or maintained under or pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement under the criteria provided under 29 CFR 2510.3-40.

(c) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established or maintained by an employee leasing arrangement or professional employer organization, the health benefit plan is fully insured.

Drafting Note: Some states have a separate regulatory structure that authorizes some professional employer organizations to self-fund health benefit plans. Those states should take care to modify this section to reflect that statutory structure. This does not include state laws that "register" or otherwise "authorize" employee leasing arrangements or professional employer organizations absent specific authority to self-fund a health benefit plan. However Subparagraph (c) should be revised if and to the extent state law authorizes an employee leasing arrangement to self-fund a health benefit plan.

(d) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established by a single employer, the health benefit plan is covering solely employees and their dependents, and the employer controls and directs the work of the employee.

Drafting Note: Some states have a separate regulatory structure that recognizes a fully insured health plan of an employee leasing arrangement or professional employer organization as a single employer plan for certain regulatory purposes. Such a state should review Subparagraph (d) to ensure it conforms to such a provision.

B. Stop loss policy producer

(1) A producer, prior to submitting an application for a stop loss policy to an insurer for a health benefit plan offered to employees, employee dependents, or a person located in this state, shall carry out appropriate due diligence to establish that the health benefit plan is not unauthorized health insurance, including measures reasonably appropriate to establish:

(a) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established or maintained pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement, the health benefit plan is established or maintained under or pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement under the criteria provided under 29 CFR 2510.3-40.

(b) The health benefit plan that is not offered by an employee leasing arrangement or professional employer organization to client employers.

Drafting Note: Some states have a separate regulatory structure that authorizes some employee leasing arrangements or professional employer organizations to self-fund health benefit plans. Those states should take care to modify this section to reflect that statutory structure. This does not include state laws that "register" or otherwise "authorize" employee leasing arrangements or professional employer organizations absent specific authority to self-fund a health benefit plan. However Subparagraph (b) should be revised if and to the extent state law authorizes an employee leasing arrangement to self-fund a health benefit plan.

(c) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established by a single employer, that the health benefit plan is covering solely employees, and dependents of employees, of the employer and the employer controls and directs the work of the employee.

C. Third Party Administrator

(1) A third party administrator, prior to entering into any administrative contract for a health benefit plan, and prior to assisting any person with administration of a health benefit plan, covering employees of an employer or a person located in this state, shall carry out appropriate due diligence to establish that the health benefit plan is not unauthorized health insurance, including those measures reasonably appropriate to establish:

(a) Through initial inquiry, contract provisions and measures to monitor and enforce compliance with the contract provisions, that for any insurance coverage that is represented as issued relating to the health benefit plan:

(i) The insurer issued the policy;

(ii) The coverage is as represented;

(iii) The insurer is an admitted insurer in this state; and

(iv) The policy has been filed with, and approved by, the department or is exempt from filing requirements;

(b) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established or maintained pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement, the health benefit plan is established or maintained under or pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement under the criteria provided under 29 CFR 2510.3-40.

(c) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established or maintained by an employee leasing arrangement or professional employer organization, the health benefit plan is fully insured.

Drafting Note: Some states have a separate regulatory structure that authorizes some professional employer organizations to self-fund health benefit plans. Those states should take care to modify this section to reflect that statutory structure. This does not include state laws that "register" or otherwise "authorize" employee leasing arrangements or professional employer organizations absent specific authority to self-fund a health benefit plan. However Subparagraph (c) should be revised if and to the extent state law authorizes an employee leasing arrangement to self-fund a health benefit plan.

(d) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established by a single employer, that the health benefit plan is covering solely employees and their dependents, and the employer controls and directs the work of the employee.

D. Insurer

(1) An insurer, prior to issuing a stop loss policy for a health benefit plan covering employees, employee dependents, or individuals located in this state, shall carry out appropriate due diligence to establish that the health benefit plan is not unauthorized health insurance, including those measures reasonably appropriate to establish:

(a) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established or maintained pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement, the health benefit plan is established or maintained under or pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement under the criteria provided under 29 CFR 2510.3-40;

(b) The health benefit plan is not offered by an employee leasing arrangement or professional employer organization to client employers .

Drafting Note: Some states have a separate regulatory structure that authorizes some employee leasing arrangements or professional employer organizations to self-fund health benefit plans. Those states should take care to modify this section to reflect that statutory structure. This does not include state laws that "register" or otherwise "authorize" employee leasing arrangements or professional employer organizations absent specific authority to self-fund a health benefit plan. However, Subparagraph (b) should be revised if and to the extent state law authorizes an employee leasing arrangement or professional employer organization to self-fund a health benefit plan.

(c) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established by a single employer, the health benefit plan is covering solely employees, and dependents of employees, of the employer and the employer controls and directs the work of the employee.

(2) An insurer shall not engage in the transacting of insurance by issuing a stop loss policy unless the insurer is an admitted insurer in this state and the stop loss policy form has been filed and approved by the department, or the form is exempt from filing. The transacting of insurance includes, but is not limited to:

(a) Issuing a stop loss policy covering an employer located in this state. Coverage of an employer for claims incurred under the employer's self-funded health benefit plan with a stop loss policy is insurance, not reinsurance, regardless of whether the contract is described by the insurer as reinsurance.

(b) Issuing a stop loss policy to a trust or trustee, whether the trust or trustee is located in this state or otherwise, when an employer located in this state is directly or indirectly the beneficiary of the trust.

(3) An insurer shall not engage in the transacting of insurance in this state by issuing a stop loss policy unless, prior to issuing a contract for the stop loss policy, the insurer discloses clearly and conspicuously to the employer, in writing:

(a) The employer is not covered for claims below the stop loss attachment point;

(b) A description of the attachment point, including the specific and aggregate attachment points; and

(c) The insurer provides no other coverage of the employer's retention.

E. Preferred provider organization

(1) A preferred provider organization, prior to entering into any contract with a person offering or providing a health benefit plan in this state, shall carry out appropriate due diligence to establish that the health benefit plan is not unauthorized health insurance, including those measures reasonably appropriate to establish:

(a) Through initial inquiry, contract provisions and measures to monitor and enforce compliance with the contract provisions, that for any insurance coverage that is represented as issued relating to the health benefit plan:

(i) The insurer issued the policy;

(ii) The coverage is as represented;

(iii) The insurer is an admitted insurer in this state; and

(iv) The policy has been filed with and approved by the department or is exempt from filing requirements;

(b) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established or maintained pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement, the health benefit plan is established or maintained under or pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement under the criteria provided under 29 CFR 2510.3-40;

(c) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established or maintained by an employee leasing arrangement or professional employer organization, the health benefit plan is fully insured.

Drafting Note: Some states have a separate regulatory structure that authorizes some professional employer organizations to self-fund health benefit plans. Those states should take care to modify this section to reflect that statutory structure. This does not include state laws that "register" or otherwise "authorize" employee leasing arrangements or professional employer organizations absent specific authority to self-fund a health benefit plan. However, Subparagraph (c) should be revised if and to the extent state law authorizes an employee leasing arrangement or professional employer organization to self-fund a health benefit plan.

(d) For any health benefit plan that is represented as established by a single employer, the health benefit plan is covering solely employees, and dependents of employees, of the employer and the employer controls and directs the work of the employee.

F. (1) A licensee or other person who acts according to the written advice of the MEWA contact has a defense to any violation of this section if:

(a) The information provided by the licensee or other person to the MEWA contact, to the extent material to the MEWA contact's advice, is accurate and complete; and

(b) The information is provided by the licensee or other person to the MEWA contact in writing.

(2) For the purpose of this regulation the department's published list of admitted insurers on its web site is deemed to be accurate. A licensee or other person has a defense to any allegation that a listed insurer is not an admitted insurer. Nothing in this subsection relieves a licensee or other person from conducting due diligence to determine whether an entity is in fact the same entity as a listed admitted insurer.

Drafting Note: A state insurance department adopting this regulation is expected to publish, on the internet, a regularly updated list of admitted insurers.

(3) A violation of this section is mitigated, and the department shall reduce or eliminate any sanction otherwise applicable, if a licensee or other person demonstrates all of the following:

(a) It maintained supervisory procedures and controls that complied with Section 5;

(b) The violation occurred despite the maintenance of those procedures and controls;

(c) It promptly reported the health benefit plan to the MEWA contact once the licensee or other person had actual knowledge that it was unauthorized health insurance; and

(d) It took prompt corrective action.

G. Nothing in this section requires a producer, third party administrator, insurer or preferred provider organization to conduct due diligence with respect to a health benefit plan that it is not assisting and with respect to which it does not engage in the transacting of insurance.

Drafting Note: This section requires producers, third party administrators, insurers, and preferred provider organization to exercise due diligence only to the extent that they assist or engage in the transacting of insurance relating to a health benefit plan. They are not required to investigate health benefit plans with respect to which they provide no services or transaction of insurance. For example, sale of a group life insurance policy does not require the selling producer or issuing agent to exercise due diligence as to the employer's health benefit plan.

Section 5. Supervisory Procedures and Controls

A. A producer, third party administrator, insurer, preferred provider organization or an agent of the same shall establish and maintain documented supervision procedures and controls that are reasonably designed to achieve compliance with this regulation.

B. The supervisory procedures shall include:

(1) Training;

(2) Internal controls;

(3) Periodic audits;

(4) Supervisory review; and

(5) Monitoring and enforcement of contractual provisions established under Section 4 C and E.

C. The extent of the supervisory procedures and controls a producer is required to maintain under this section may appropriately reflect the size and complexity of the producer's operations and the scope and nature of the producer's insurance activities.

Drafting Note: The NAIC encourages the national trade associations for health insurers, preferred provider organizations, third party administrators and insurance agents to develop compliance guidance, training and manuals to assist their members to implement supervisory procedures and controls. The NAIC ERISA Working Group is prepared to review the results of such an effort. State insurance departments are expected to give recognition to supervisory procedures and controls implemented by insurers, preferred provider organizations, third party administrators and insurance agents in accordance with guidance for effective programs developed by these trade organization. Companies also may seek review of their programs by their state insurance department.

Section 6. Licensing Education Requirements

A. A producer shall not be licensed in this state to sell health insurance unless the producer, prior to licensing, receives not less than one hour of education in:

(1) Identification of unauthorized health insurance; and

(2) The producer's responsibilities under this regulation.

Drafting Note: Subsection A would apply only to those states that have pre-licensing education requirements. The one-hour of education is intended to be included in, and not in addition to, the total pre-licensing requirement.

B. An insurer providing health insurance in this state shall require its listed producers to obtain not less that one hour of continuing education every four years covering:

(1) Identification of unauthorized health insurance; and

(2) The producer's responsibilities under this regulation.

Drafting Note: Subsection B should be adopted only by those states that have continuing education requirements. The one hour continuing education requirement should be included in the total hours required by the NAIC Producer Licensing Model Act.

C. A third party administrator, preferred provider organization or insurer shall include in its application for a license a brief summary of its procedures and controls required under Section 5 in the [insert reference to the relevant statutory application requirement such as a statutory requirement to include a business plan]. A license may be denied under [insert reference to relevant statutory licensing criteria such as "contrary to the public interest"] if the applicant fails to demonstrate that the applicant maintains the required procedures and controls.

Section 7. Penalties and Liability

A. Except as provided in Subsection B, a person that violates this regulation is subject to [insert reference to general license and penalty provisions under the state insurance code, including the provisions equivalent to the remedy and penalty section of the NAIC Nonadmitted Insurance Model Act].

Drafting Note: The regulation should include a cross reference to penalty provisions equivalent to those in Section 7 of the NAIC Nonadmitted Insurance Model Act, as well as the remedial provision under Section 4D of that Act.

B. A person who violates Section 3 of this regulation is subject to a penalty of a [forfeiture of up to $1000] for each violation.

Drafting Note: A state insurance department should insert an appropriate penalty under the sanctions provided under its laws. Generally a less severe penalty is appropriate compared to those for other violations under this regulation.

PROJECT HISTORY – 2006

PREVENTION OF ILLEGAL MULTIPLE EMPLOYER WELFARE ARRANGEMENTS (MEWAS) AND OTHER ILLEGAL INSURERS MODEL REGULATION (#220)

1. Project Description

A chair discussion draft of the Illegal MEWA Prevention Model Regulation was first circulated and comments were solicited at the 2004 Winter National Meeting. This new model regulation was intended to replace Model #220: Reporting Requirements for Licensees Seeking to do Business with Certain Unauthorized Multiple Employer Welfare Arrangements (MEWAs) Model Regulation. A public hearing was held at the 2005 Spring National Meeting in order to obtain additional information and comments from licensees who would be affected by this model regulation. A new draft dated June 9, 2005, that took into account the testimony and comments received at the public hearing, was distributed at the Summer National Meeting and released for comment. Comments were due August 15, 2005. A new draft dated December 4, 2005, that took into account the comments received, was distributed at the Winter National Meeting and released for comment. Comments on the December 4, 2005 draft were due January 17, 2006. A new draft dated February, that took into account the comments received, was distributed at the 2006 Spring National Meeting. The working group discussed the new draft and agreed to adopt the model, with minor amendments.

2. Group Responsible for Drafting Model and States Participating

The ERISA (B) Working Group was responsible for drafting the Model Act, chaired by Fred Nepple (WI). The following states were members of the Working Group: Arkansas, Colorado, District of Columbia, Florida, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington

3. Charge Authorizing Project

B Committee Charge: Review issues surrounding state regulation of insurance purchased by ERISA plans, and if appropriate, develop a model law on the subject.

4. Description of Drafting Process

2004 Winter National Meeting – A November 30, 2004 chair discussion draft titled Prevention of Illegal Multiple Employer Welfare Arrangements (MEWAs) and Other Illegal Health Insurers Model Regulation was distributed at the ERISA Working Group meeting. The working group decided to hold an informational public hearing at the 2005 Spring National Meeting.

2005 Spring National Meeting – A public hearing was held. The following individuals gave oral remarks at the hearing: Rick Ramsay representing America's Health Insurance Plans (AHIP); John Troy representing BlueCross BlueShield Association (BCBSA); D. Scott Asay from Employee Benefit Management Services, Inc. representing Society of Professional Benefit Administrators (SPBA); and Janet Trautwein representing the National Association of Health Underwriters (NAHU). Several interested parties submitted written comments in addition to or in lieu of testimony on the 11/30/04 discussion draft, including: William Schilling, National Association of Professional Employer Organizations (NAPEO); Fred Hunt, Society of Professional Benefit Administrators (SPBA); Gary Sanders, National Association of Insurance and Financial Advisors (NAIFA) and Association of Health Insurance Advisors (AHIA); Elizabeth Leight, Society of Professional Benefit Administrators (SPBA); D. Scott Asay, Employee Benefit Management Services, Inc. (EBMS); Janet Trautwein, National Association of Health Underwriters (NAHU); Karen Greenrose, American Association of Preferred Provider Organizations (AAPPO); David Starr, Church Alliance; and Mila Kofman, Georgetown University Institute for Health Care Research and Policy.

2005 Summer National Meeting: A new draft, which took into account the discussion and comments from the public hearing, was distributed and reviewed. Some amendments were suggested and agreed upon by the working group and a new draft dated June 9, 2005 was released and comments were requested by August 15, 2005.

2005 Fall National Meeting: Cancelled

2005 Winter National Meeting: A new draft, which took into account the discussion and comments from the public hearing, was distributed and reviewed. Some amendments were suggested and agreed upon by the working group and a new draft dated December 4, 2005, was distributed following the meeting. Comments on the December 4, 2005 draft were requested by January 17, 2006

2006 Spring National Meeting: A new draft dated February 2006, which took into account the discussion and comments on the December 4, 2005, draft, was distributed and reviewed. The working group agreed to adopt the model regulation, with minor amendments.

5. Significant Issues Raised

Interested parties wanted Section 3 to require reporting only when a licensee has actual knowledge of unauthorized insurance. Because actual knowledge is nearly impossible to prove in practice, the working group was of the opinion that there would be no realistic way to enforce any failure to report under the actual knowledge standard. Therefore, the working group decided to require reporting when a licensee knows or reasonably should know about unauthorized insurance.

A number of interested parties were concerned that, under the model regulation, a licensee might be legally liable if the information in the report under Section 3 turned out to be incorrect. The working group agreed that states should be encouraged to have laws in place that provide legal immunity to licensees as well as protect the confidentiality of information shared under this regulation prior to adopting the regulation. The working group, however, declined to insert language making state immunity and confidentiality laws a condition precedent to adopting the regulation.

The question was raised as to whether there was authority to impose the Section 4 due diligence requirements on preferred provider organizations (PPOs) in states that do not regulate PPOs. The working group was of the opinion that the states may want to consider whether they have the authority for the due diligence requirements of the regulation pursuant to the state law equivalent of the Non-Admitted Insurer Model Act, which imposes liability on any entity assisting in the unauthorized transaction of insurance.

Interested parties expressed concern that that the due diligence requirements under Section 4 were overly burdensome and were an attempt to have licensees do the work of the department of insurance by ferreting out unauthorized health insurance entities. The working group re-iterated that this is a regulation that adds detail to existing state requirements. Assisting in the unauthorized transaction of insurance is already prohibited. This regulation simply provides additional guidance as to how licensees can ensure that they are in compliance with the law.

A concern was raised that the due diligence requirements were not detailed enough for licensees to know exactly what they have to do to be in compliance. The working group was of the opinion that it is impossible to develop a definitive list as to what appropriate due diligence would be in every scenario. The exercise of good judgment is a necessary component of exercising due diligence and it cannot be legislated.

AUTHORIZATION FOR CRIMINAL HISTORY RECORD CHECK MODEL ACT

Table of Contents

Section 1. Purpose and Scope

The purpose of this Act is to set forth the requirements for states to obtain access to the Criminal Justice Information Services Division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) criminal history record information and secure information or reports from the Criminal Justice Information Services Division of the FBI.

The scope of this Act is to set forth the applicability of the criminal history record check to applicants for a home state insurance producer license.

Section 2. Definitions

When used in this Act:

A. "Applicant" means a natural person applying for any of the following:

(1) An initial home state license as an insurance producer;

(2) An additional line of authority under an existing home state insurance producer license where a criminal history record check has not been obtained; or

(3) A resident insurance producer license under change of home state provisions.

Drafting Note: This Act shall not apply to a person applying for renewal or continuation of a home state insurance producer license or a non-resident insurance producer license.

B. "Fingerprints" means an impression of the lines on the finger taken for the purpose of identification. The impression may be electronic or in ink converted to an electronic format.

C. "Insurance commissioner" or "commissioner" means the official in any state that is responsible for regulation of the business of insurance.

Drafting Note: Use the title of the chief insurance regulatory official wherever the term "Insurance commissioner" or "commissioner" appears.

D. "Insurance producer" means a natural person required to be licensed under the laws of this state to sell, solicit or negotiate insurance.

E. "Home State" means the District of Columbia and any state or territory of the United States in which an insurance producer maintains his or her principal place of residence or principal place of business and is licensed to act as an insurance producer.

Section 3. Authorization of the Insurance Commissioner

A. In order to make a determination of license eligibility, the commissioner is authorized to require fingerprints of applicants and submit such fingerprints and the fee required to perform the criminal history record checks to the state identification bureau (or state department of justice or other public state agency) and the FBI for state and national criminal history record checks.

Drafting Note: The FBI requires that fingerprints be submitted to the state Department of Law Enforcement, Public Safety or Criminal Justice for a check of state records before the fingerprints are submitted to the FBI for a criminal history record check. The FBI recommends all fingerprint submissions be in an electronic format. Public Law 92-544 requires specific parameters to submit fingerprints and obtain criminal history record information. The FBI has approved the language in Section 3A to authorize a state identification bureau to submit fingerprints on behalf of its applicants in conjunction with licensing and employment.

B. The commissioner shall require a criminal history record check on each applicant in accordance with this Act. The commissioner shall require each applicant to submit a full set of fingerprints (including a scanned file from a hard copy fingerprint) in order for the insurance commissioner to obtain and receive National Criminal History Records from the FBI Criminal Justice Information Services Division.

C. The insurance commissioner may contract for the collection and transmission of fingerprints authorized under this Act. If the commissioner does so, the commissioner may order the fee for collecting and transmitting fingerprints to be payable directly to the contractor by the applicant. The insurance commissioner may agree to a reasonable fingerprinting fee to be charged by the contractor.

D. The insurance commissioner is authorized to receive criminal history record information in lieu of the state identification bureau (or state department of justice or other public state agency) that submitted the fingerprints to the FBI.

Drafting Note: This provision does not permit the sharing of criminal history record information with the NAIC or other insurance commissioners as such sharing of information is prohibited by 28 CFR 20.33.

Section 4. Confidentiality

The commissioner shall treat and maintain an applicant's fingerprints and any criminal history record information obtained under the Act as confidential and shall apply security measures consistent with the Criminal Justice Information Services Division of the Federal Bureau Investigation standards for the electronic storage of fingerprints and necessary identifying information and limit the use of records solely to the purposes authorized in this Act. The fingerprints and any criminal history record information shall not be subject to subpoena, other than one issued in a criminal action or investigation, and shall be confidential by law and privileged, and shall not be subject to discovery or admissible in evidence in any private civil action.

Section 5. Regulations

The insurance commissioner may, in accordance with [insert appropriate reference to state law], promulgate regulations as are necessary for the administration of this Act.

Section 6. Effective Date

This Act shall take effect [insert date].

PROJECT HISTORY - 2006

AUTHORIZATION FOR CRIMINAL HISTORY RECORD CHECK MODEL ACT (#222)

1. Project Description

The Authorization for Criminal History Record Check Model Act provides the basic regulatory framework for the use of electronic fingerprints provided by a resident insurance producer. This model language was developed for states to adopt in order to obtain access to the Criminal Justice Information Services Division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) criminal history record information and secure information or reports from the Criminal Justice Information Services Division of the FBI.

2. Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Producer Licensing Working Group of the Market Regulation and Consumer Affairs (D) Committee was responsible for developing the model act. Laurie Wolf (ND) chaired the working group. The following states were members of the working group: Alaska, Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, District of Columbia, Florida, Hawaii, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

To help facilitate the drafting process, the Producer Licensing Working Group appointed the Fingerprint Subgroup. Linda Brunette (AK) chaired this subgroup. The subgroup was comprised of Arizona, California, Delaware, Florida, Idaho, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Nebraska, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, and Pennsylvania.

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The Market Regulation and Consumer Affairs (D) Committee charge for the Producer Licensing Working Group reads as follows, "Appoint a working group to develop and implement uniform standards, interpretations and treatment of producer licensees and licensing terminology; coordinate and consult with the National Insurance Producer Registry Board of Directors to develop and implement uniform producer licensing initiatives, with a primary emphasis on encouraging the use of electronic technology; develop a Uniform Adjuster Licensing Model Act; and monitor and respond to developments related to licensing reciprocity." The group first received the charge for the Authorization for Criminal History Background Check Model Act in March 2003.

4. Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated

The drafting process was open to comments and participation by all interested parties. Industry representatives participated fully in the process and discussion sessions. Drafts of the model were circulated for public comment. The process resulted in a total of fifteen drafts of the model.

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

Drafts of the model act were circulated for comment and posted on the NAIC Web site. The Producer Licensing (D) Working Group adopted the model act on Nov. 6, 2005. The Market Regulation & Consumer Affairs Committee held a meeting at the NAIC 2005 Winter National Meeting to receive comments and discuss the model. The Committee held another meeting via conference call on Jan. 20, 2006.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response)

Earlier versions of the model included provisions for the creation of an NAIC centralized fingerprint repository. The working group received numerous comments from industry groups opposing the need for a centralized repository and raised concerns about the confidential, sensitive nature of an individual's fingerprints being stored at the NAIC. The working group also received comments from the American Council of Life Insurers regarding NAIC control of the repository. All references to the NAIC fingerprint repository have been deleted from the model.

Earlier versions of the model included provisions as to when company officers and directors will be subject to the submission of fingerprints for background checks. All references to the fingerprinting of directors and officers have been eliminated.

Earlier versions of the model also included a fingerprint exemption for individuals who fulfilled the requirements of the United States Securities Exchange Commission Regulation 240.17(f)2 SEC rule 17f-2; 17CFR240.17f-2 and are currently licensed and in good standing with the National Association of Securities Dealers. This exemption has been eliminated from the model.

7. Any Other Important Information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard).

This model will allow states access to the Criminal Justice Information Services Division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) criminal history record information and secure information or reports from the Criminal Justice Information Services Division of the FBI.

Subsection 3A and 3B of the model must be enacted by a state exactly as written. The PLWG adopted the language in these sections after preliminary review and recommendations by the U.S. Department of Justice, who is the federal agency that provides comment on whether the proposed legislation is compliant with Public Law 92-544 and the parameters set forth by the FBI and the United States Department of Justice. Any changes to these sections would jeopardize approval by the U.S Department of Justice.

MANAGING GENERAL AGENTS ACT

Table of Contents

Section 1. Purpose and Scope

This Act may be cited as the Managing General Agents Act. This chapter governs the qualifications and procedures for resident and non-resident producers acquiring the status as a Managing General Agent.

Section 2. Definitions

As used in this Act:

A. "Actuary" means a person who is a member in good standing of the American Academy of Actuaries.

B. "Business entity" means a corporation, association, partnership, limited liability company, limited liability partnership or other legal entity.

C. "Insurer" means any person duly licensed in this state as an insurance company pursuant to [insert applicable licensing statute].

D. "Managing general agent" (MGA) means any person who:

(1) Manages all or part of the insurance business of an insurer (including the management of a separate division, department or underwriting office); and

(2) Acts as an agent for such insurer whether known as a managing general agent, manager or other similar term, who, with or without the authority, either separately or together with affiliates, produces, directly or indirectly, and underwrites an amount of gross direct written premium equal to or more than five percent (5%) of the policyholder surplus as reported in the last annual statement of the insurer in any one quarter or year together with the following activity related to the business produced adjusts or pays claims in excess of $10,000 per claim or negotiates reinsurance on behalf of the insurer.

Drafting Note: Individuals or agents calling themselves "managing general agents" may not necessarily fall under the provisions of this Act. In other words, if the individual or agent does not perform the activities set forth in Paragraphs (1) and (2) then, for purposes of the Act, the individual is not an MGA.

Drafting Note: Insert the proper title for the chief insurance regulatory official wherever the term "Commissioner" appears.

(3) Notwithstanding the above, the following persons shall not be considered MGAs for the purposes of this Act:

(a) An employee of the insurer;

(b) A U.S. Manager of the United States branch of an alien insurer;

(c) An underwriting manager which, pursuant to contract, manages all or part of the insurance operations of the insurer, is under common control with the insurer, subject to the holding company regulatory act, and whose compensation is not based on the volume of premiums written;

(d) The attorney-in-fact authorized by and acting for the subscribers of a reciprocal insurer or inter-insurance exchange under powers of attorney.

Drafting Note: A managing general agent does not fall within the definition of an "adjuster," or one "who negotiates reinsurance on behalf of the insurer" as stated in Paragraph (2).

E. "Person" means an individual or a business entity.

F. "Underwrite" means the authority to accept or reject risk on behalf of the insurer.

Drafting Note: If the enacting state has a third party administration (TPA) Act, it should be reviewed to eliminate any conflict.

Section 3. Licensure

A. No person shall act in the capacity of an MGA with respect to risks located in this state for an insurer licensed in this state unless such person is a licensed producer in this state.

B. No person shall act in the capacity of an MGA representing an insurer domiciled in this state with respect to risks located outside this state unless such person is licensed as a producer in this state (such license may be a nonresident license) pursuant to the provisions of this Act.

Section 4. Required Contract Provisions

No person acting in the capacity of an MGA shall place business with an insurer unless there is in force a written contract between the parties which sets forth the responsibilities of each party and where both parties share responsibility for a particular function, specifies the division of such responsibilities, and which contains the following minimum provisions:

A. The insurer may terminate the contract for cause upon written notice to the MGA. The insurer may suspend the underwriting authority of the MGA during the pendency of any dispute regarding the cause for termination.

Drafting Note: Nothing in the above subsection is intended to relieve the MGA or insurer of any other contractual obligation.

B. The MGA will render accounts to the insurer detailing all transactions and remit all funds due under the contract to the insurer on not less than a monthly basis.

C. All funds collected for the account of an insurer will be held by the MGA in a fiduciary capacity in an institution that is insured by the FDIC. This account shall be used for all payments on behalf of the insurer. The MGA may retain no more than three months estimated claims payments and allocated loss adjustment expenses.

D. Separate records of business written by the MGA will be maintained. The insurer shall have access and right to copy all accounts and records related to its business in a form usable by the insurer and the commissioner shall have access to all books, bank accounts and records of the MGA in a form usable to the commissioner. Such records shall be retained according to [cite appropriate record retention statute].

E. The contract may not be assigned in whole or part by the MGA.

F. (1) Appropriate underwriting guidelines including:

(a) The maximum annual premium volume;

(b) The basis of the rates to be charged;

(c) The types of risks which may be written;

(d) Maximum limits of liability;

(e) Applicable exclusions;

(f) Territorial limitations;

(g) Policy cancellation provisions; and

(h) The maximum policy period.

(2) The insurer shall have the right to cancel or non-renew any policy of insurance subject to the applicable laws and regulations [concerning the cancellation and non-renewal of insurance policies].

G. The insurer shall require the MGA to obtain and maintain a surety bond for the protection of the insurer. The bond amount shall be at least $100,000 or ten percent (10%) of the managing general agent's total annual written premium nationwide produced by the MGA for the insurer in the prior calendar year, but in no event greater than $500,000.

Drafting Note: It is contemplated that one bond per company represented would be required.

H. The insurer may require the MGA to maintain an errors and omissions policy.

I. If the contract permits the MGA to settle claims on behalf of the insurer:

(1) All claims must be reported to the company in a timely manner.

(2) A copy of the claim file will be sent to the insurer at its request or as soon as it becomes known that the claim:

(a) Has the potential to exceed an amount determined by the commissioner or exceeds the limit set by the company; whichever is less;

(b) Involves a coverage dispute;

(c) May exceed the MGA's claims settlement authority;

(d) Is open for more than six months; or

(e) Is closed by payment of an amount set by the commissioner or an amount set by the company, whichever is less.

(3) All claim files will be the joint property of the insurer and MGA. However, upon an order of liquidation of the insurer such files shall become the sole property of the insurer or its estate; the MGA shall have reasonable access to and the right to copy the files on a timely basis.

(4) Any settlement authority granted to the MGA may be terminated for cause upon the insurer's written notice to the MGA or upon the termination of the contract. The insurer may suspend the settlement authority during the pendency of any dispute regarding the cause for termination.

Drafting Note: Nothing in the above subsection is intended to relieve the MGA or insurer of any other contractual obligation.

J. Where electronic claims files are in existence, the contract must address the timely transmission of the data.

K. The MGA may use only advertising material pertaining to the business issued by an insurer that has been approved in writing by the insurer in advance of its use.

L. If the contract provides for a sharing of interim profits by the MGA, and the MGA has the authority to determine the amount of the interim profits by establishing loss reserves or controlling claim payments, or in any other manner, interim profits will not be paid to the MGA until one year after they are earned for property insurance business and five years after they are earned on casualty business and not until the profits have been verified pursuant to Section 5 of this Act.

M. The MGA shall not:

(1) Bind reinsurance or retrocessions on behalf of the insurer, except that the MGA may bind facultative reinsurance contracts pursuant to obligatory facultative agreements if the contract with the insurer contains reinsurance underwriting guidelines including, for both reinsurance assumed and ceded, a list of reinsurers with which such automatic agreements are in effect, the coverages and amounts or percentages that may be reinsured and commission schedules;

(2) Commit the insurer to participate in insurance or reinsurance syndicates;

(3) Appoint any producer without assuring that the producer is lawfully licensed to transact the type of insurance for which he is appointed;

(4) Without prior approval of the insurer, pay or commit the insurer to pay a claim over a specified amount, net of reinsurance, which shall not exceed one percent (1%) of the insurer's policyholder's surplus as of December 31 of the last completed calendar year;

(5) Collect any payment from a reinsurer or commit the insurer to any claim settlement with a reinsurer; without prior approval of the insurer. If prior approval is given, a report must be promptly forwarded to the insurer;

(6) Except as provided in Section 5G, permit its subproducer to serve on the insurer's board of directors;

(7) Jointly employ an individual who is employed with the insurer; or

(8) Appoint a sub-MGA.

Section 5. Duties of Insurers

A. The insurer shall have on file an independent audited annual financial statement or reports for the two (2) most recent fiscal years that prove that the MGA has a positive net worth. If the MGA has been in existence for less than two fiscal years, the MGA shall include financial statements or reports, certified by an officer of the MGA and prepared in accordance with GAAP, for any completed fiscal years, and for any month during the current fiscal year for which such financial statements or reports have been completed. An audited financial/annual report prepared on a consolidated basis must include a columnar consolidating or combining worksheet that shall be filed with the report and include the following: a) amounts shown on the consolidated audited financial report shall be shown on the worksheet; b) amounts for each entity shall be stated separately, and c) explanations of consolidating and eliminating entries shall be included.

Drafting Note: If the MGA has been in existence for less than two (2) fiscal years or has not qualified as an MGA for that period and otherwise does not have the required audited financial statements or reports, the MGA shall include financial statements or reports, certified by an officer of the MGA and prepared in accordance with GAAP, for any completed fiscal years, and for any month during the current fiscal year for which financial statements or reports have been completed.

B. If an MGA establishes loss reserves, the insurer shall annually obtain the opinion of an actuary attesting to the adequacy of loss reserves established for losses incurred and outstanding on business produced by the MGA. This is in addition to any other required loss reserve certification.

C. The insurer shall periodically (at least semi-annually) conduct an on-site review of the underwriting and claims processing operations of the MGA.

D. Binding authority for all reinsurance contracts or participation in insurance or reinsurance syndicates shall rest with an officer of the insurer, who shall not be affiliated with the MGA.

E. Within thirty (30) days of entering into or terminating a contract with an MGA, the insurer shall provide written notification to the commissioner. Notices entering into a contract with an MGA shall include a statement of duties which the applicant is expected to perform on behalf of the insurer, the lines of insurance for which the applicant is to be authorized to act, and any other information the commissioner may request.

F. An insurer shall review its books and records each quarter to determine if any producer as defined by Section 2D has become, by operation of Section 2D, a MGA as defined in that section. If the insurer determines that a producer has become a MGA pursuant to the above, the insurer shall promptly notify the producer and the commissioner of such determination and the insurer and producer must fully comply with the provisions of this Act within thirty (30) days.

G. An insurer shall not appoint to its board of directors an officer, director, employee, subproducer or controlling shareholder of its MGAs. This subsection shall not apply to relationships governed by the Insurance Holding Company Systems Regulatory Act or, if applicable, the Business Transacted with Producer Controlled Property/Casualty Insurer Act.

H. The insurer shall keep the bond required by Section 4G on file for review by any applicable commissioner.

Section 6. Examination Authority

The acts of the MGA are considered to be the acts of the insurer on whose behalf it is acting. An MGA may be examined as if it were the insurer.

Section 7. Penalties and Liabilities

A. If the commissioner determines that the MGA or any other person has not materially complied with this Act, or any regulation or Order promulgated thereunder, after notice and opportunity to be heard, the Commissioner may order:

(1) For each separate violation, a penalty in an amount not exceeding [insert amount];

(2) Revocation or suspension of the producer's license; and

(3) If it was found that because of such material non-compliance that the insurer has suffered any loss or damage, the Commissioner may maintain a civil action brought by or on behalf of the insurer and its policyholders and creditors for recovery of compensatory damages for the benefit of the insurer and its policyholders and creditors or other appropriate relief.

B. If an order of rehabilitation or liquidation of the insurer has been entered pursuant to [insert state's rehabilitation or liquidation statute], and the receiver appointed under that order determines that the MGA or any other person has not materially complied with this Act, or any regulation or order promulgated thereunder, and the insurer suffered any loss or damage therefrom, the receiver may maintain a civil action for recovery of damages or other appropriate sanctions for the benefit of the insurer.

Drafting Note: If state law does not otherwise provide, amend the bracketed citation in the preceding paragraph to include the rehabilitation or liquidation statute of any reciprocal state. This is intended to codify the standing of a receiver to maintain a civil action in a reciprocal state.

C. Nothing contained in this section shall affect the right of the commissioner to impose any other penalties provided for in the insurance law.

D. Nothing contained in this Act is intended to or shall in any manner limit or restrict the rights of policyholders, claimants and creditors.

Section 8. Rules and Regulations

The Commissioner of Insurance may adopt reasonable rules and regulations for the implementation and administration of the provisions of this Act.

Section 9. Effective Date

This Act shall take effect on [insert date]. No insurer may continue to utilize the services of an MGA on and after [insert date] unless such utilization is in compliance with this Act.

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. To perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

Who do I speak to if I have questions?

If you have questions or believe information related to a state should be updated, please contact Jennifer Neuerburg at jneuerburg@naic.org.

Disclaimer: This chart does not constitute a formal legal opinion by the NAIC staff on the provisions of state law and should not be relied upon as such. Nor does this state page reflect a determination as to whether a state meets any applicable accreditation standards. Every effort has been made to provide correct and accurate summaries to assist readers in locating useful information. Readers should consult state law for further details and for the most current information.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2002

MANAGING GENERAL AGENTS MODEL ACT (#225)

1. Project Description

The Managing General Agents Model Act provides the basic regulatory framework for monitoring producers who have been classified as Managing General Agents (MGAs). While the initial review of the model act was begun to help create a reciprocal licensing system for MGAs, regulators and interested parties recognized that MGAs, in most states, must first be licensed producers and would be afforded licensing reciprocity under the reciprocity provisions of the NAIC Producer Licensing Model Act. In addition to reviewing licensing reciprocity for MGAs, the working group revised the model act to clarify the definition of an MGA, modify the bond requirements for MGAs, and update the duties of an insurer.

2. Group Responsible for Drafting Model and States Participating

The Agent Licensing Working Group of the Market Conduct and Consumer Affairs (D) Committee was responsible for revising the model act. Gene Reed (DE) and Sam Meyer (SD) co-chaired the working group. The following states were members of the working group: Alabama, Alaska, Arizona California, Colorado, Connecticut, District of Columbia, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Texas, Virginia, Washington and Wisconsin.

To help facilitate the drafting process, the Agent Licensing Working Group appointed the Managing General Agents Model Act Subgroup. Gene Reed (DE) chaired this subgroup. The initial subgroup was comprised of Nebraska, South Dakota and Texas. As the drafting process proceeded all members of the Agent Licensing Working Group were invited to join the subgroup.

The MGA subgroup, the Agent Licensing working group and the Market Regulation & Consumer Affairs (D) Committee unanimously adopted the revisions to the model act.

3. Charge Authorizing Project

The D Committee had the following charge during 2001: Appoint a working group to complete the review of the existing NAIC Managing General Agents Model Act and Third Party Administrator Statute. Consider modifications to the models to recognize that there have been and will be changes that will impact the delivery systems of insurance products and that this changing environment will require flexibility in regulating the production of insurance through various methodologies and technologies. Report by the NAIC Fall National Meeting.

4. General Description of Drafting Process

The drafting process was very open as the working group and subgroup solicited comments from all interested parties, including interested regulators, funded consumer representatives and industry representatives. The working group and subgroup also solicited key concerns from interested parties and funded consumer representatives. All of the meetings and conference calls of the working group, subgroup and the Market Conduct and Consumer Affairs (D) Committee were open to all interested parties. All revised drafts of the paper were posted on the NAIC website and circulated for public comment. The working group and subgroup received and reviewed numerous comments from interested parties.

5. Significant Issues Raised

The definition of an MGA was modified to provide a claim settlement threshold of $10,000. The prior version of the model act provided each state insurance commissioner with the discretion to determine the claim settlement threshold amount. Greater uniformity regarding what producers fall within the classification of an MGA should be achieved through a uniform claim settlement threshold amount. A drafting note was added to the model act to clarify that some producers may consider themselves MGAs even though they do not legally meet the criteria of being an MGA and thus subject to additional regulatory oversight.

The bond requirement was modified to be a be a minimum of $100,000 or ten percent (10%) of the managing general agent's total annual written premium nationwide for each insurer for which it acts as an MGA for the prior calendar year, not to exceed $500,000 for each insurer. The bond shall be kept on file with each insurer with which the managing general agent has a contract.

The requirement for an insurer to maintain on file a financial examination of each MGA with which it does business was modified to coincide with the financial responsibility requirements of the recently revised Third Party Administrator Statute. The MGA model act now requires the insurer to have on file an independent audited annual financial statement or reports for the two (2) most recent fiscal years that prove that the MGA has a positive net worth. If the MGA has been in existence for less than two (2) fiscal years, the MGA shall include financial statements or reports, certified by an officer of the MGA and prepared in accordance with GAAP.

6. Other Pertinent Information

While there are a handful of states that issue a separate MGA license, the majority of states classify currently licensed producers as MGAs. Because of this, MGAs are already afforded licensing reciprocity under the reciprocity provisions of the NAIC Producer Licensing Model Act.

The revisions to the model act should help ensure states classify producers as MGAs in a uniform manner. In addition, the modifications to the bond requirements and financial responsibility requirements should help ensure greater regulatory oversight and financial stability of MGAs.

Drafting Note: Subsection J is optional and would apply only to those states that have a business entity license requirement.

(5) A person who settles subrogation claims between insurers.

Section 4. Application for License

A. A person applying for a public adjuster license shall make application to the commissioner on the appropriate uniform application or other application prescribed by the commissioner.

B. The applicant shall declare under penalty of perjury and under penalty of refusal, suspension or revocation of the license that the statements made in the application are true, correct and complete to the best of the applicant's knowledge and belief.

C. In order to make a determination of license eligibility, the insurance commissioner is authorized to require fingerprints of applicants and submit the fingerprints and the fee required to perform the criminal history record checks to the state identificationbureau (or state department of justice public state agency) and the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) for state and national criminal history record checks; the insurance commissioner shall require a criminal history record check on each applicant in accordance with this Act. The insurance commissioner shall require each applicant to submit a full set of fingerprints in order for the insurance commissioner to obtain and receive National Criminal History Records from the FBI Criminal Justice Information Services Division.

(1) The insurance commissioner may contract for the collection, transmission and resubmission of fingerprints required under this section. The insurance commissioner may agree to a reasonable fingerprinting fee to be charged by the contractor.

(2) The insurance commissioner may waive submission of fingerprints by any person that has previously furnished fingerprints and those fingerprints are on file with the Central Repository of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC), its affiliates or subsidiaries.

The purpose of such a centralized repository is to provide insurance commissioners with access to fingerprint records in order to perform criminal history record checks.

Drafting Note: The FBI requires that fingerprints be submitted to the state Department of Law Enforcement, Public Safety or Criminal Justice for a check of state records before the fingerprints are submitted to the FBI for a criminal history check. The FBI recommends all fingerprint submissions to be in an electronic format. The FBI has approved the language in Section 4 (C) to authorize a state identification bureau to submit fingerprints on behalf of its applicants in conjunction with licensing and employment.

Drafting Note: If the state has adopted the Producer Licensing Model Act, it may not be necessary to adopt this section. Rather, the state may want to amend its relevant insurance producer statute to include public adjusters.
Drafting Note: This provision does not permit the sharing of criminal history record information with the NAIC or other insurance commissioners as such sharing of information is prohibited by 28 CFR 20.33.

This exemption is only available if the application is received within twelve (12) months of the cancellation of the applicant's previous license in this state and if, at the time of cancellation, the applicant was in good standing in this state.

Drafting Note: If the state has adopted the Producer Licensing Model Act , it may not be necessary to adopt this section. Rather, the state may want to amend its relevant insurance producer statute to include public adjusters.

Section 8. Nonresident License Reciprocity

Drafting Note: Paragraph (14) is for those states that have a state income tax.

B. In the event that the action by the commissioner is to deny an application for or not renew a license, the commissioner shall notify the applicant or licensee and advise, in writing, the applicant or licensee of the reason for the non-renewal or denial of the applicant's or licensee's license. The applicant or licensee may make written demand upon the commissioner within [insert appropriate time period from state's administrative procedure act] for a hearing before the commissioner to determine the reasonableness of the commissioner's action. The hearing shall be held within [insert time period from state law] and shall be held pursuant to [insert appropriate reference to state law].

C. The license of a business entity may be suspended, revoked or refused if the commissioner finds, after hearing, that an individual licensee's violation was known or should have been known by one or more of the partners, officers or managers acting on behalf of the business entity and the violation was neither reported to the commissioner nor corrective action taken.

Drafting Note: If the state has adopted the Producer Licensing Model Act, it may not be necessary to adopt this section. The state may want to amend its relevant insurance producer statute to include public adjusters.

Section 12. Bond or Letter of Credit

Prior to issuance of a license as a public adjuster and for the duration of the license, the applicant shall secure evidence of financial responsibility in a format prescribed by the insurance commissioner through a security bond or irrevocable letter of credit:

A. A surety bond executed and issued by an insurer authorized to issue surety bonds in this state, which bond:

(1) Shall be in the minimum amount of $20,000;

(2) Shall be in favor of this state and shall specifically authorize recovery by the commissioner on behalf of any person in this state who sustained damages as the result of erroneous acts, failure to act, conviction of fraud, or conviction of unfair practices in his or her capacity as a public adjuster; and

(3) Shall not be terminated unless at least thirty (30) days' prior written notice will have been filed with the commissioner and given to the licensee.

A. An irrevocable letter of credit issued by a qualified financial institution, which letter of credit:

(1) Shall be in the minimum amount of $20,000;

(2) Shall be to an account to the commissioner and subject to lawful levy of execution on behalf of any person to whom the public adjuster has been found to be legally liable as the result of erroneous acts, failure to act, fraudulent acts, or unfair practices in his or her capacity as a public adjuster; and

(3) Shall not be terminated unless at least thirty (30) days' prior written notice will have been filed with the commissioner and given to the licensee.

C. The issuer of the evidence of financial responsibility shall notify the commissioner upon termination of the bond or letter of credit, unless otherwise directed by the commissioner.

D. The commissioner may ask for the evidence of financial responsibility at any time he or she deems relevant.

E. The authority to act as a public adjuster shall automatically terminate if the evidence of financial responsibility terminates or becomes impaired.

Section 13. Continuing Education

A. An individual, who holds a public adjuster license and who is not exempt under Subsection B of this section, shall satisfactorily complete a minimum of twenty-four (24) hours of continuing education courses, including ethics, reported on a biennial basis in conjunction with the license renewal cycle.

B. This section shall not apply to:

(1) Licensees not licensed for one full year prior to the end of the applicable continuing education biennium; or

(2) Licensees holding nonresident public adjuster licenses who have met the continuing education requirements of their home state and whose home state gives credit to residents of this state on the same basis.

C. Only continuing education courses approved by the commissioner shall be used to satisfy the continuing education requirement of Subsection A.

Section 14. Public Adjuster Fees

A. [Optional] A public adjuster may charge the insured a reasonable fee as determined by state law [insert appropriate reference to state law or regulation].

Drafting Note: This model designates Section 14A as optional. A majority of the states do not require a cap on fees of public adjusters.

B. A public adjuster shall not pay a commission, service fee or other valuable consideration to a person for investigating or settling claims in this state if that person is required to be licensed under this Act and is not so licensed.

C. A person shall not accept a commission, service fee or other valuable consideration for investigating or settling claims in this state if that person is required to be licensed under this Act and is not so licensed.

D. A public adjuster may pay or assign commission, service fees or other valuable consideration to persons who do not investigate or settle claims in this state, unless the payment would violate [insert appropriate reference to state law, i.e. citation to anti-rebating statute or sharing commission statute, if applicable].

E. [Optional] In the event of a catastrophic disaster, there shall be limits on catastrophic fees, no public adjuster shall charge, agree to or accept as compensation or reimbursement any payment, commission, fee, or other thing of value equal to more than ten percent (10%) of any insurance settlement or proceeds. No public adjuster shall require, demand or accept any fee, retainer, compensation, deposit, or other thing of value, prior to settlement of a claim.

Drafting Note: This model designates Section 14E, as optional. It is recommended that the states that establish catastrophic fees utilize the recommended language in this model.

Section 15. Contract Between Public Adjuster and Insured

A. Public adjusters shall ensure that all contracts for their services are in writing and contain the following terms:

(1) Legible full name of the adjuster signing the contract, as specified in Department of Insurance records;

(2) Permanent home state business address and phone number;

(3) Department of Insurance license number;

(4) Title of "Public Adjuster Contract";

(5) The insured's full name, street address, insurance company name and policy number, if known or upon notification;

(6) A description of the loss and its location, if applicable;

(7) Description of services to be provided to the insured;

(8) Signatures of the public adjuster and the insured;

(9) Date contract was signed by the public adjuster and date the contract was signed by the insured;

(10) Attestation language stating that the public adjuster is fully bonded pursuant to state law; and

(11) Full salary, fee, commission, compensation or other considerations the public adjuster is to receive for services.

B. The contract may specify that the public adjuster shall be named as a co-payee on an insurer's payment of a claim.

(1) If the compensation is based on a share of the insurance settlement, the exact percentage shall be specified.

(2) Initial expenses to be reimbursed to the public adjuster from the proceeds of the claim payment shall be specified by type, with dollar estimates set forth in the contract and with any additional expenses first approved by the insured.

(3) Compensation provisions in a public adjusting contract shall not be redacted in any copy of the contract provided to the commissioner. Such a redaction shall constitute an omission of material fact in violation of [insert reference to relevant state law].

C. If the insurer, not later than seventy-two (72) hours after the date on which the loss is reported to the insurer, either pays or commits in writing to pay to the insured the policy limit of the insurance policy, the public adjuster shall:

(1) Not receive a commission consisting of a percentage of the total amount paid by an insurer to resolve a claim;

(2) Inform the insured that loss recovery amount might not be increased by insurer; and

(3) Be entitled only to reasonable compensation from the insured for services provided by the public adjuster on behalf of the insured, based on the time spent on a claim and expenses incurred by the public adjuster, until the claim is paid or the insured receives a written commitment to pay from the insurer.

D. A public adjuster shall provide the insured a written disclosure concerning any direct or indirect financial interest that the public adjuster has with any other party who is involved in any aspect of the claim, other than the salary, fee, commission or other consideration established in the written contract with the insured, including but not limited to any ownership of, other than as a minority stockholder, or any compensation expected to be received from, any construction firm, salvage firm, building appraisal firm, motor vehicle repair shop, or any other firm which that provides estimates for work, or that performs any work, in conjunction with damages caused by the insured loss on which the public adjuster is engaged. The word "firm" shall include any corporation, partnership, association, joint-stock company or person.

E. A public adjuster contract may not contain any contract term that:

(1) Allows the public adjuster's percentage fee to be collected when money is due from an insurance company, but not paid, or that allows a public adjuster to collect the entire fee from the first check issued by an insurance company, rather than as percentage of each check issued by an insurance company;

(2) Requires the insured to authorize an insurance company to issue a check only in the name of the public adjuster;

(3) Imposes collection costs or late fees; or

(4) Precludes a public adjuster from pursuing civil remedies.

F. Prior to the signing of the contract the public adjuster shall provide the insured with a separate disclosure document regarding the claim process that states:

(1) Property insurance policies obligate the insured to present a claim to his or her insurance company for consideration. There are three (3) types of adjusters that could be involved in that process. The definitions of the three types are as follows:

(a) "Company adjuster" means the insurance adjusters who are employees of an insurance company. They represent the interest of the insurance company and are paid by the insurance company. They will not charge you a fee.

(b) "Independent adjuster" means the insurance adjusters who are hired on a contract basis by an insurance company to represent the insurance company's interest in the settlement of the claim. They are paid by your insurance company. They will not charge you a fee.

(c) "Public adjuster" means the insurance adjusters who do not work for any insurance company. They work for the insured to assist in the preparation, presentation and settlement of the claim. The insured hires them by signing a contract agreeing to pay them a fee or commission based on a percentage of the settlement, or other method of compensation.

(2) The insured is not required to hire a public adjuster to help the insured meet his or her obligations under the policy, but has the right to do so.

(3) The insured has the right to initiate direct communications with the insured's attorney, the insurer, the insurer's adjuster, and the insurer's attorney, or any other person regarding the settlement of the insured's claim.

(4) The public adjuster is not a representative or employee of the insurer.

(5) The salary, fee, commission or other consideration is the obligation of the insured, not the insurer.

G. The contracts shall be executed in duplicate to provide an original contract to the public adjuster, and an original contract to the insured. The public adjuster's original contract shall be available at all times for inspection without notice by the commissioner.

H. The public adjuster shall provide the insurer a notification letter, which has been signed by the insured, authorizing the public adjuster to represent the insured's interest.

I. The public adjuster shall give the insured written notice of the insured's right as provided in [cite the state consumer protection laws].

J. The insured has the right to rescind the contract within three (3) business days after the date the contract was signed. The rescission shall be in writing and mailed or delivered to the public adjuster at the address in the contract within the three (3) business day period.

K. If the insured exercises the right to rescind the contract, anything of value given by the insured under the contract will be returned to the insured within fifteen (15) business days following the receipt by the public adjuster of the cancellation notice.

Drafting Note: The details in this section should comply with your state's consumer protection contract rescission law.

Section 16. Escrow or Trust Accounts

A public adjuster who receives, accepts or holds any funds on behalf of an insured, towards the settlement of a claim for loss or damage, shall deposit the funds in a non-interest bearing escrow or trust account in a financial institution that is insured by an agency of the federal government in the public adjuster's home state or where the loss occurred.

Section 17. Record Retention

A. A public adjuster shall maintain a complete record of each transaction as a public adjuster. The records required by this section shall include the following:

(1) Name of the insured;

(2) Date, location and amount of the loss;

(3) Copy of the contract between the public adjuster and insured;

(4) Name of the insurer, amount, expiration date and number of each policy carried with respect to the loss;

(5) Itemized statement of the insured's recoveries;

(6) Itemized statement of all compensation received by the public adjuster, from any source whatsoever, in connection with the loss;

(7) A register of all monies received, deposited, disbursed, or withdrawn in connection with a transaction with an insured, including fees transfers and disbursements from a trust account and all transactions concerning all interest bearing accounts;

(8) Name of public adjuster who executed the contract;

(9) Name of the attorney representing the insured, if applicable, and the name of the claims representatives of the insurance company; and

(10) Evidence of financial responsibility in a format prescribed by the insurance commissioner.

B. Records shall be maintained for at least five (5) years after the termination of the transaction with an insured and shall be open to examination by the commissioner at all times.

C. Records submitted to the commissioner in accordance with this section that contain information identified in writing as proprietary by the public adjuster shall be treated as confidential by the commissioner and shall not be subject to [insert reference to open record laws] of this state.

Section 18. Standards of Conduct of Public Adjuster

A. A public adjuster is obligated, under his or her license, to serve with objectivity and complete loyalty the interest of his client alone; and to render to the insured such information, counsel and service, as within the knowledge, understanding and opinion in good faith of the licensee, as will best serve the insured's insurance claim needs and interest.

B. A public adjuster shall not solicit, or attempt to solicit, an insured during the progress of a loss-producing occurrence, as defined in the insured's insurance contract.

C. A public adjuster shall not permit an unlicensed employee or representative of the public adjuster to conduct business for which a license is required under this Act.

D. A public adjuster shall not have a direct or indirect financial interest in any aspect of the claim, other than the salary, fee, commission or other consideration established in the written contract with the insured, unless full written disclosure has been made to the insured as set forth in Section 15G .

E. A public adjuster shall not acquire any interest in salvage of property subject to the contract with the insured unless the public adjuster obtains written permission from the insured after settlement of the claim with the insurer as set forth in Section 15G.

F. The public adjuster shall abstain from referring or directing the insured to get needed repairs or services in connection with a loss from any person, unless disclosed to the insured:

(1) With whom the public adjuster has a financial interest; or

(2) From whom the public adjuster may receive direct or indirect compensation for the referral.

Drafting Note: Optional language for Subsection F: "Licensees may not solicit a client for employment between the hours of ___ pm and ___ am."

G. The public adjuster shall disclose to an insured if he or she has any interest or will be compensated by any construction firm, salvage firm, building appraisal firm, motor vehicle repair shop or any other firm that performs any work in conjunction with damages caused by the insured loss. The word "firm" shall include any corporation, partnership, association, joint-stock company or individual as set forth in Section 15A(4).

H. Any compensation or anything of value in connection with an insured's specific loss that will be received by a public adjuster shall be disclosed by the public adjuster to the insured in writing including the source and amount of any such compensation.

I. Public adjusters shall adhere to the following general ethical requirements:

(1) A public adjuster shall not undertake the adjustment of any claim if the public adjuster is not competent and knowledgeable as to the terms and conditions of the insurance coverage, or which otherwise exceeds the public adjuster's current expertise;

(2) A public adjuster shall not knowingly make any oral or written material misrepresentations or statements which are false or maliciously critical and intended to injure any person engaged in the business of insurance to any insured client or potential insured client;

(3) No public adjuster, while so licensed by the Department, may represent or act as a company adjuster, or independent adjuster on the same claim;

Drafting Note: If a state only allows licensure in one class of adjuster licensing, the adjuster may not represent another type of licensure in any circumstance.

(4) The contract shall not be construed to prevent an insured from pursuing any civil remedy after the three-business day revocation or cancellation period;

(5) A public adjuster shall not enter into a contract or accept a power of attorney that vests in the public adjuster the effective authority to choose the persons who shall perform repair work; and

(6) A public adjuster shall ensure that all contracts for the public adjuster's services are in writing and set forth all terms and conditions of the engagement.

J. A public adjuster may not agree to any loss settlement without the insured's knowledge and consent.

Section 19. Reporting of Actions

A. The public adjuster shall report to the commissioner any administrative action taken against the public adjuster in another jurisdiction or by another governmental agency in this state within thirty (30) days of the final disposition of the matter. This report shall include a copy of the order, consent to order, or other relevant legal documents.

B. Within thirty (30) days of the initial pretrial hearing date, the public adjuster shall report to the commissioner any criminal prosecution of the public adjuster taken in any jurisdiction. The report shall include a copy of the initial complaint filed, the order resulting from the hearing, and any other relevant legal documents.

Drafting Note: If the state has adopted the Producer Licensing Model Act , it may not be necessary to adopt this section. Rather, the state may want to amend its relevant insurance producer statute to include public adjusters.

Section 20. Regulations

The commissioner may, in accordance with [insert appropriate reference to state law], promulgate reasonable regulations as are necessary or proper to carry out the purposes of this Act.

Section 21. Severability

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. To perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

Who do I speak to if I have questions?

PROJECT HISTORY – 2005

PUBLIC ADJUSTER LICENSING MODEL ACT (#228)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

The Public Adjuster Licensing Model Act provides the basic regulatory framework for the qualifications and procedures for the licensing of Public Adjusters. The model statute specifies the duties of and restrictions on public adjusters, which include limiting their licensure to assisting insureds in first party claims.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Producer Licensing Working Group of the Market Regulation and Consumer Affairs (D) Committee was responsible for drafting the model act. Gene Reed (DE), Laurie Wolf (ND) and Jack Chaskey (NY) co-chaired the working group. The following states were members of the working group: Alaska, Arizona Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, District of Columbia, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, New Mexico, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

To help facilitate the drafting process, the Producer Licensing Working Group appointed the Uniform Adjuster Licensing Model Act Subgroup. Gene Reed (DE) and Treva Wright-Donnell (KY) co-chaired this subgroup. The subgroup was comprised of the following states: Alaska, District of Columbia, Illinois, Indiana, Louisiana, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Texas, and Utah.

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The charge for the Producer Licensing (D) Working Group reads as follows: "Appoint a working group to develop and implement uniform standards, interpretations and treatment of producer licensees and licensing terminology; coordinate and consult with the National Insurance Producer Registry Board of Directors to develop and implement uniform producer licensing initiatives, with a primary emphasis on encouraging the use of electronic technology; develop a Uniform Adjuster Licensing Model Act; and monitor and respond to developments related to licensing reciprocity." The group first received the charge for the Public Adjuster Model Act in March 2003.

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated

The drafting process was open to comments and participation by all interested parties. Representatives from the insurance producer industry participated fully in the process and discussion sessions. All revised drafts of the model were circulated for public comment. Comments were received on each draft of the model and considered by the subgroup in open conference calls and meetings. The subgroup received and reviewed numerous comments from interested parties. The process resulted in a total of 19 revised drafts.

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

Copies of every draft were posted on the NAIC website or distributed by e-mail along with the solicitation for public comment. The Producer Licensing (D) Working Group adopted this model on May 22, 2005.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response)

Industry representatives expressed concerns about the proposed cap on fees. In response, several surveys were distributed to the states to determine existing state caps on fees. Many states do not impose a fee limit; however, the states do have a fee limit preferred to have a fee limit established in the model. As a compromise, section 14 of the model act specifies "a public adjuster may charge the insured a reasonable fee as determined by state law." Additionally, the model act specifies that section 14 is optional.

The initial drafts of the model act included a section on Duties of Insurer, which included the insurer's duty to verify the licenses status of a public adjuster. Industry representatives indicated this requirement puts an undue burden upon the insurer. This section also included a mandate that the insurer issue all checks to the insured and public adjuster. It was later recognized that legitimate situations could arise in which the insurer issues a check to a party other than the insured and public adjuster outside of these two parties. In response, the subgroup agreed to remove this section from the model.

Finally, there was a proposed Apprentice Public Adjuster License section. A survey was conducted to determine what states had an apprentice program in place for adjusters. Based on state responses, the subgroup agreed to list this section as optional.

7. Any Other Important Information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard).

Pam Young from AIA brought up an issue after the model was adopted, relative language in section 15 of the PA Model Act. The language restricted the Insurers ability to contact the Insured, after a contract was executed between the Insured and the Public Adjuster. AIA proposed striking the language, the subcommittee chairs agreed that this restriction was not the groups intent. This change was vetted to Regulators, National Association of Public Insurance Adjusters (NAPIA), and American Association of Public Insurance Adjusters (AAPIA) who also agreed to striking the language.

> Section 15. Contract Between Public Adjuster and Insured (Page 14 of PA Model Act #19)
> F. (1) (c) (3) The insured has the right to initiate direct communications with the insured's attorney, the insurer, the insurer's adjuster, and the insurer's attorney, or any other person regarding the settlement of the insured's claim.

This model will assist industry in complying with the licensing requirements for public adjusters. The development of the model was based upon the NAIC's Producer Licensing Model Act.

Section 3. Licensing Requirements

A. A person shall not act in the capacity of a title insurance agent and a title insurer may not contract with any person to act in the capacity of a title insurance agent with respect to risks located in this state unless the person is a licensed title insurance agent in this state or possesses a license acceptable to the commissioner and issued by this state.

Drafting Note: Although a state agency other than the department of insurance might issue a limited license for one or more recognized agent functions, this does not imply a right of a licensed person to perform other agent functions unless lawfully licensed as a title insurance agent under the terms of this Act. For example, a state may wish to require licensing or registration of persons handling escrow accounts.

Drafting Note: States may want to expand this section to include competence, character, and integrity requirements; application procedures; fee requirements; procedures for withdrawal from the state and continuing education requirements. General state insurance licensing laws should also be considered and perhaps cross-referenced or incorporated into this subsection.

B. An individual employed by a licensed insurance agent to whom the agent delegates authority to act on that agent's behalf shall be either individually licensed or be named on the employing agent's license. Each person named on the license shall possess all qualifications determined by the commissioner to be appropriate. The commissioner may adopt rules, regulations, and requirements relating to licensing and practices of persons acting in the capacity of title insurance agents. These persons may include title insurance agents, employees of title insurance agents, and persons acting on behalf of title insurance agents. This subsection is not intended to include persons performing clerical functions.

C. (1) Every title insurance agent licensed in this state shall:

(a) Disclose on all correspondence that the agent is acting in a capacity as agent for a particular named underwriter; and

(b) Exclude or eliminate the word "insurer" or "underwriter" or similar term from its agency's name; and

(c) Provide, in a timely fashion, each title insurer with which it places business any information the title insurer requests in order to comply with reporting requirements of the commissioner.

(2) A title insurance agent licensed in this state prior to the effective date of this Act shall have ninety (90) days after the effective date of this Act to comply with the requirements of this subsection.

D. (1) The commissioner shall require the title insurance agent and any delegate performing the title search to maintain the following for the benefit of the title insurer in amounts commensurate with the agent's average exposure, under terms and conditions, and from insurers acceptable to the commissioner:

(a) An errors and omission policy which includes coverage for an agent's delegation of any agent functions; and

(b) Fidelity coverage if the agent handles escrow or security deposits.

(2) The commissioner may promulgate rules specifying acceptable alternatives to the preceding insurance requirements. The availability of closing or settlement protection shall not be construed to be an acceptable alternative to the requirements of this subsection.

E. (1) If the title insurance agent delegates the title search to a third party, such as an abstract company, the agent must first obtain proof that the third party:

(a) Is covered by or maintains the errors and omissions coverage required by Subsection D; and

(b) Is operating in compliance with rules and regulations established by the commissioner; and

(2) The third party shall provide the agent and the insurer with access to and the right to copy all accounts and records maintained by the third party with respect to business placed with the title insurer.

Section 4. Examination of Title Insurance Agents

The commissioner may, during normal business hours, examine, audit and inspect any and all books and records maintained by a title insurance agent under the provisions of this Act. However, if the title insurance agent is a depository institution, the commissioner shall have the power to examine and investigate the insurance activities of the depository in order to determine whether the depository institution has complied with the provisions of this Act. The commissioner shall notify the appropriate federal banking agency of the commissioner's intent to examine or investigate a depository institution and advise the appropriate federal banking agency of the suspected violations of state law, if any, prior to commencing the examination or investigation.

Drafting Note: This provision is intended to confer the authority to conduct examinations on an exception basis in the event of regulatory interest in a particular agency. States may wish to add a section requiring the regular periodic examination of agents and specifying the party conducting the examination and the party responsible for the cost of the examination. Such a section should include a hardship provision conferring authority on the commissioner to adopt rules reducing the frequency of periodic audits in the case of small agents. Further, in cases where the commissioner believes that access to the non-insurance related books and records of a depository institution is necessary, the commissioner must request this information from the functional regulator of the depository institution through the information-sharing agreements that currently exist.

Section 5. Prohibition of Rebate and Fee Splitting

A. A title insurance agent or other person shall not provide or receive, directly or indirectly, any consideration for the referral of title insurance business or escrow or other service provided by a title insurance agent. However, if the title insurance agent or other person is a depository institution, or an affiliate of a depository institution, the title insurance agent or other person may make a payment to its unlicensed employees for referrals so long as the unlicensed employee does not discuss specific insurance policy terms and conditions. Further, in the case of a referral of a customer of the depository institution, the unlicensed person may be compensated only if the compensation is a fixed dollar amount for each referral that does not depend on whether the customer purchases title insurance from the licensed title insurance agent. Furthermore, any person who accepts deposits from the public in an area where such transactions are routinely conducted in the depository institution may receive for each customer referral no more than a one-time, nominal fee of a fixed dollar amount for each referral that does not depend on whether the referral results in a transaction.

Drafting Note: The last sentence of this paragraph further limits the referral for customers of personal, family and household insurance products, such as title insurance sold to individuals or families, as a result of Section 305 of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act and the subsequent adoption of regulations by the federal banking regulators at 12 CFR 14.50, 208.85, 343.50 and 536.50. The language in the paragraph was drafted to be consistent with the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act and the federal regulations while maintaining the integrity of Section 104(d)(2)(B)(iv) and (v) of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act. Further, the NAIC crafted this language to be consistent with the provisions of Section 8 of the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA) in that it allows some exceptions specified in 12 USC 2607(c)(2).

[Optional Subsection B]

[B. A title insurance agent doing business in the same county as a title insurer or title insurance agent who may be in violation of the prohibitions or limitations of this section shall have a cause of action against the violating title insurer or title insurance agent or recipient and, upon establishing the existence of a violation, shall be entitled to injunctive relief as the court may deem necessary or desirable to prevent violations of this section in the future. In any action under this subsection, the court may award to the successful party the court costs of the action together with reasonable attorney fees.]

Drafting Note: "County" in the preceding subsection refers to counties, boroughs or parishes defined by the state.

Section 6. Controlled Business Provisions

A. Whenever the business to be written constitutes controlled business, prior to commencing the transaction, the title insurance agent shall ensure that its customer has been provided with disclosure of the existence of the controlled business arrangement and a written estimate of the charge or range of charges generally made for the title services provided by the agent.

B. The commissioner may establish rules for use by all title insurance agents in the recording and reporting of the agent's owners and of the agent's ownership interests in other persons or businesses and of material transactions between the parties.

C. The commissioner may require each title insurance agent to file on forms prescribed by the commissioner, reports setting forth the names and addresses of those persons, if any, that have a financial interest in the agent and who the agent knows or has reason to believe are producers of title insurance business or associates of producers.

[First Optional Subsection D]

D. Nothing in this act shall be construed as prohibiting controlled business arrangements in the provision of title insurance business so long as:

(1) The title insurance agent or party making a referral constituting controlled business, at or prior to the time of the referral, discloses the arrangement and, in connection with the referral, provides the person being referred with a written estimate of the charge or range of charges likely to be assessed and otherwise complies with the disclosure obligations of this section;

(2) The person being referred is not required to use a specified title insurance agent or insurer; and

(3) The only thing of value that is received by the title insurance agent or party making the referral, other than payments otherwise permitted, is a return on an ownership interest. For purposes of this subsection, the terms "required use" and "return on an ownership interest" shall have the meaning accorded to them under the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA), 12 U.S.C. § 2607, as amended and Regulation X, 24 C.F.R. § 3500 et seq.

Drafting Note: See drafting note following Third Optional Subsection D.

[Second Optional Subsection D]

[D. (1) A title insurance agent shall not accept an order for or issue a title insurance policy or guarantee or provide services to an applicant for title insurance or receive or retain any money in connection with a title insurance transaction, if:

(a) The title insurance agent knows or has reason to believe that the transaction will constitute controlled business; and

(b) When added to other controlled business written by the title insurance agent during the same calendar year, the aggregate controlled premiums written will exceed twenty percent (20%) of the title insurance agent's gross premiums written during the preceding calendar year. However, the twenty percent (20%) limitation shall be eighty percent (80%) in the first year after the effective date of this Act, sixty percent (60%) in the second calendar year after the effective date of this Act and forty percent (40%) in the third calendar year after the effective date of this Act.

(2) This provision does not apply if the title insurance agent is also a depository institution, or if the title insurance agent is affiliated with a depository institution.]

Drafting Note: See drafting note following third optional Subsection D.

[Third Optional Subsection D]

[D. (1) In addition to the requirements of Section 3D, the commissioner shall require the title insurance agent to maintain for the benefit of the title insurer, insured or the depositor, pursuant to terms and conditions to be prescribed by the commissioner, in amounts commensurate with the agent's average exposure and the volume and nature of its business, a sufficient net worth to ensure the agent's solvency and commitment to the purpose of being a bona-fide title insurance agent.

(2) In determining the precise amounts and terms and conditions of the above-described requirement, the commissioner may promulgate rules that:

(a) Specify acceptable alternatives to the preceding net worth requirements; and

(b) Exempt certain persons from complying with all or a portion of these requirements by virtue of their actual or expected volume of business (e.g., less than fifty (50) annual transactions or less than $5,000,000 in title insurance policies face value, or other amounts the commissioner may deem appropriate) or by virtue of individual circumstances that show that the requirements would pose an undue hardship on the title insurance agent and that the title insurance agent's conduct will be bona-fide and its services needed and desirable.

(3) The commissioner shall also require each title insurance agent to perform through its bona-fide employees the core title services listed below in order to receive compensation for the services it renders:

(a) The evaluation of a title search or abstract to determine the insurability of title;

(b) The clearance of underwriting objections; and

(c) Issuing and assuming responsibility for the issuance of the title insurance policy, and where customary, issuance of a title commitment.]

Drafting Note: Controlled title insurance business may or may not raise concerns and issues in a particular state and therefore, each state should decide whether and how to address this issue. The First, Second and Third Optional Subsections present three approaches. Their language should not be read to preclude other approaches or to suggest that any particular provision is necessarily desirable. Because in the Third Optional Subsection, the particular requirements that are appropriate are likely to vary from state to state, and possibly within areas of a single state, this provision is intended to permit the commissioner to set appropriate levels for net worth requirements with due regard for the prevailing circumstances and factors in each state or area.

Section 7. Favored Agent of Title Insurer

A title insurance agent shall not participate in any transaction in which it knows that a producer or other person requires, directly or indirectly, or through a trustee, director, officer, agent, employee or affiliate, as a condition, agreement or understanding to selling or furnishing any other person a loan, or loan extension, credit, sale, property, contract, lease or service, that the other person shall place a title insurance policy of any kind with particular title insurer or through particular title insurance agent.

Section 8. Required Provisions of Underwriting Contract with Title Insurer

A person, firm, association or corporation acting in the capacity of a title insurance agent shall not place business with a title insurer unless there is in force a written contract between the parties which sets forth the responsibilities of each party; and where both parties share responsibility for a particular function, specifies the division of such responsibilities; and which contains the following minimum provisions:

A. (1) The title insurer may terminate the contract upon written notice under the following circumstances:

(a) Fraud, insolvency, appointment of a receiver or conservator, bankruptcy, cancellation of the agent's license or permit to do business or the commencement of legal proceedings by the state of domicile of the agent, which if successful, would lead to cancellation of the agent's permit or license to do business;

(b) Material breach of any provision of the contract; or

(c) Notice of cancellation has been provided in accordance with contract termination requirements.

(2) Upon notice of termination, the agent shall immediately discontinue all underwriting. Nothing in this subsection is intended to relieve the title insurance agent or title insurer of any other contractual obligation.

B. The title insurance agent will render accounts to the title insurer detailing all transactions and remit all funds due under the contract to the title insurer by the earlier of the following:

(1) Forty-five (45) days after the end of the month of the effective date of the policy; or

(2) Within the time specified by the underwriting contract.

C. All funds collected for the account of a title insurer by a title insurance agent shall be held in a fiduciary capacity in a bank that is a qualified financial institution. A separate and exclusive account shall be established and maintained for each underwriter represented by the title insurance agent.

D. At the title insurer's request, the title insurance agent, its successor in interest, transferee, or receiver shall provide access to and the right to copy all escrow files and underwriting files involving a transaction in which a title insurance report or policy is or is to be issued.

Drafting Note: A possible conflict may exist in certain jurisdictions between the title insurance agent's fiduciary duty as the escrow holder to maintain the confidentiality of the information contained in the escrow files and the Section 8D requirement that the title insurance agent provide the title insurer access to and a right to copy the escrow files. If so, states may wish to adopt rules or regulations or establish requirements addressing the title insurance agent's need to recognize and address possible conflict.

E. Separate records of business written by the title insurance agent will be maintained for each title insurer. The title insurer shall have access to and a right to copy all accounts and records related to its business in a form acceptable to the title insurer. The commissioner shall have access to all books, bank accounts and records of the title insurance agent in a form usable to the commissioner. The records shall be retained according to Section [cite appropriate record retention statute] and Section 10 of this Act. However, if the title insurance agent is a depository institution, the commissioner shall only have access to the insurance-related books and records of that financial institution. In cases where the commissioner believes that access to the non-insurance related books and records of a depository institution is necessary, the commissioner must request this information from the functional regulator of the depository institution through the information-sharing agreements that currently exist.

F. The contract may not be assigned in whole or in part by the title insurance agent without the expressed written consent of the title insurer.

G. Appropriate guidelines, relating to:

(1) The basis of the rates to be charged;

(2) The types of risks which may be written;

(3) Maximum limits of liability;

(4) Territorial limitations;

(5) Title searches, and examinations; and

(6) Underwriting.

H. It shall be the duty of the title insurance agent to immediately report and forward to the insurer all title-related escrow claims and title claims reported to the agent by policyholders or another person. However, if the contract permits the title insurance agent to settle claims on behalf of the title insurer:

(1) A copy of the claim file shall be sent to the title insurer at its request or as soon as it becomes known that the claim:

(a) Has the potential to exceed an amount established by the title insurer;

(b) Involves a coverage dispute;

(c) May exceed the title insurance agent's claims settlement authority;

(d) Is open for more than six (6) months; or

(e) Is closed by payment exceeding an amount established by the title insurer;

(2) All title and title-related escrow claims files settled by the agent will be the property of the title insurer;

(3) Any settlement authority granted to the title insurance agent may be terminated immediately upon the title insurer's written notice to the title insurance agent or upon the termination of the contract. The title insurer may suspend the settlement authority during the pendency of a dispute regarding the cause for termination. Nothing in this paragraph is intended to relieve the title insurance agent or title insurer of any other contractual obligation.

I. Where electronic claims files are in existence, the contract must address the immediate transmission of the data.

J. The title insurance agent shall not:

(1) Bind reinsurance or retrocessions on behalf of the title insurer;

(2) Permit a director, officer, controlling shareholder or employee to serve on the title insurer's board of directors if the agent wrote one percent (1%) or more of the title insurer's direct premiums written during the previous calendar year, as shown on the title insurer's most recent annual statement on file with the commissioner. This subsection shall not apply to relationships governed by the Insurance Holding Company Act.

(3) Jointly employ an individual who is employed with the title insurer unless the title insurer and the title insurance agent are affiliated or otherwise under common control as defined by Section [insert reference to insurance holding company act]; or

(4) Appoint a title insurance sub-agent.

K. The contract shall include specific terms of an agent's compensation.

L. The title insurance agent shall maintain an inventory of all policy forms or policy numbers assigned to the agent by the title insurer.

Drafting Note: See parallel provision in Section 11.

M. For each title insurance agent under contract with the insurer, the title insurer shall have on file a statement of financial condition, of each title insurance agent as of the end of the previous calendar year setting forth an income statement of business done during the preceding year and a balance sheet showing the condition of its affairs as of the prior December 31st certified by the agent as being a true and accurate representation of the agent's financial condition. Attorneys actively engaged in the practice of law, other than that related to title insurance business, are exempt from the requirements of this paragraph.

N. The title insurance agent shall annually, concurrent with the renewal date of its contract, furnish the title insurer with proof that the agent is in compliance with Section 3 of this Act.

O. If the title insurance agent delegates the title search to a third party, such as an abstract company, the agent must first obtain proof that the third party is operating in compliance with rules and regulations established by the commissioner.

P. The title insurance agent shall provide the insurer with access and the right to copy all accounts and records maintained by the title insurance agent with respect to business placed with the title insurer.

Section 9. Policyholder Treatment

A. When constituting an offer to issue an owner's title insurance policy covering the resale of owner-occupied residential property, a title insurance report shall be furnished to the purchaser-mortgagor or its representative as soon as reasonably possible prior to closing. If the report cannot be delivered prior to the day of closing, the title insurer shall document the reasons for the delay. The report furnished to the purchaser-mortgagor shall incorporate the following statement on the first page in bold type:

Please read the exceptions and the terms shown or referred to herein carefully. The exceptions are meant to provide you with notice of matters which are not covered under the terms of the title insurance policy and should be carefully considered.

It is important to note that this form is not a written representation as to the condition of title and may not list all liens, defects, and encumbrances affecting title to the land.

B. A title insurance agent issuing a lender's title insurance policy in conjunction with a mortgage loan made simultaneously with the purchase of all or part of the real estate securing the loan, where no owner's title insurance policy has been requested, shall give written notice, on a form prescribed or approved by the commissioner, to the purchaser-mortgagor at the time the commitment is prepared. The notice shall explain that a lender's title insurance policy is to be issued protecting the mortgage-lender, and that the policy does not provide title insurance protection to the purchaser-mortgagor as the owner of the property being purchased. The notice shall explain what a title policy insures against and what possible exposures exist for the purchaser-mortgagor that could be insured against through the purchase of an owner's policy. The notice shall also explain that the purchaser-mortgagor may obtain an owner's title insurance policy protecting the property owner at a specified cost or approximate cost, if the proposed coverages or amount of insurance is not then known. A copy of the notice, signed by the purchaser-mortgagor, shall be retained in the relevant underwriting file at least five (5) years after the effective date of the policy.

Section 10. Conditions for Providing Escrow, Closing, or Settlement Services, and Maintaining Escrow and Security Deposit Accounts

A title insurance agent may operate as an escrow, security, settlement or closing agent, provided that:

A. All funds deposited with the title insurance agent in connection with an escrow, settlement, closing or security deposit shall be submitted for collection to or deposited in a separate fiduciary trust account or accounts in a qualified financial institution no later than the close of the next business day, in accordance with the following requirements:

(1) The funds shall be the property of the person or persons entitled to them under the provisions of the escrow, settlement, security deposit or closing agreement and shall be segregated for each depository by escrow, settlement, security deposit or closing in the records of the title insurance agent in a manner that permits the funds to be identified on an individual basis; and

(2) The funds shall be applied only in accordance with the terms of the individual instructions or agreements under which the funds were accepted.

B. Funds held in an escrow account shall be disbursed only pursuant to a written instruction or agreement specifying how and to whom such funds may be disbursed.

C. Funds held in a security deposit account shall be disbursed only pursuant to a written agreement specifying:

(1) What actions the indemnitor shall take to satisfy his or her obligation under the agreement;

(2) The duties of the title insurance agent with respect to disposition of the funds held, including a requirement to maintain evidence of the disposition of the title exception before any balance may be paid over to the depositing party or his or her designee; and

(3) Any other provisions the commissioner may require.

D. Any interest received on funds deposited in connection with any escrow, settlement, security deposit or closing shall be paid, net of administrative costs, to the depositing party, unless the instructions for the funds or a governing statute provides otherwise.

E. Disbursements may be made out of an escrow, settlement or closing account only if deposits in amounts at least equal to the disbursement have first been made directly relating to the transaction disbursed against and if the deposits are in one of the following forms:

(1) Cash;

(2) Wire transfers such that the funds are unconditionally received by the title insurance agent or the agent's depository;

(3) Checks, drafts, negotiable orders of withdrawal, money orders and any other item that has been finally paid before any disbursements;

(4) A depository check, including a certified check, governed by the provisions of the Federal Expedited Funds Availability Act, 12 U.S.C. § 4001, et seq.; or

(5) Credit transfers through the Automated Clearing House (ACH) which have been deemed available by the depository institution receiving the credits. The credits must conform to the operating rules set forth by the National Automated Clearing House Association (NACHA).

Drafting Note: States with an existing "good funds" statute should review it to determine if it is sufficient for application to title insurance business. If sufficient, Subsection E should be deleted and a cross-reference to the state good funds statute should be inserted. If the state good funds statute is insufficient, Subsection E should be retained and would be controlling for title insurance transactions.

F. The title insurance agent shall have an annual audit made of its escrow, settlement, closing and security deposit accounts, conducted by a certified public accountant on a calendar year basis at its expense within ninety (90) days after the close of the previous calendar year. The title insurance agent shall provide a copy of the audit report to each title insurance company which it represents. The commissioner may promulgate regulations setting forth the minimum threshold level at which an audit would be required, the standards of audit and the form of audit report required. Title insurance agents who are attorneys and who issue title insurance policies as part of their legal representation of clients are exempt from the requirements of this paragraph. However, the title insurer may, at its expense, conduct or cause to be conducted an annual audit of the escrow, settlement, closing and security deposit accounts of the attorney. Attorneys who are exclusively in the business of title insurance are not exempt from the requirements of this paragraph. The commissioner may also require the title insurance agent to provide a copy of its audit report to the commissioner.

G. If the title insurance agent is appointed by two (2) or more title insurers and maintains fiduciary trust accounts in connection with providing escrow, closing settlement services, the title insurance agent shall allow each title insurer reasonable access to the accounts and any or all of the supporting account information in order to ascertain the safety and security of the funds held by the title insurance agent.

H. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to prohibit the recording of documents prior to the time funds are available for disbursement with respect to a transaction, provided all parties consent to the transaction in writing.

I. Nothing in this section is intended to amend, alter, or supersede other sections of this Act, or the laws of this state or the United States, regarding an escrow holder's duties and obligations.

J. The commissioner may prescribe a standard agreement for escrow, settlement, closing or security deposit funds.

Section 11. Record Retention Requirements

The title insurance agent shall maintain sufficient records of its affairs, including its escrow operations and escrow trust accounts, so that the commissioner may adequately ensure that the title insurance agent is in compliance with all provisions of this Act. The commissioner may prescribe the specific record entries and documents to be kept, and the length of time for which the records must be maintained.

Drafting Note: States should ensure that their record-keeping requirements for the title insurance agency operations of depository institutions do not place the depository institutions in a position where they cannot comply with both the state requirements and the record-keeping requirements of the institution's primary functional regulator.

Section 12. Application of Other Insurance Code Sections to Title Insurance Agents

A title insurance agent shall be subject to all other applicable provisions of the insurance code unless specifically addressed by this Act and other state and federal law.

Section 13. Rules and Regulations

The commissioner may issue rules, regulations and orders necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act.

Section 14. Penalties and Liabilities

A. If the commissioner determines that the title insurance agent or any other person has violated this Act, or any regulation or order promulgated thereunder, after notice and opportunity to be heard, the commissioner may order:

(1) A penalty not exceeding $[insert amount] for each violation; and

(2) Revocation or suspension of the title insurance agent's license.

B. If an order of rehabilitation or liquidation of the insurer has been entered pursuant to [insert state's rehabilitation or liquidation statute], and the receiver appointed under that order determines that the title insurance agent or any other person has not complied with this Act, or any related regulation or order, and the insurer suffered any resulting loss or damage, the receiver may maintain a civil action for recovery of damages or other appropriate sanctions for the benefit of the insurer and its policyholders and creditors.

Drafting Note: If state law does not otherwise provide, amend the bracketed citation in the preceding paragraph to include the rehabilitation or liquidation statute of any reciprocal state. This is intended to codify the standing of a receiver to maintain a civil action in a reciprocal state.

C. Nothing contained in this section shall affect the right of the commissioner to impose any other penalties provided for in the insurance code.

Drafting Note: Each state should consider whether references to regulations or specific statutory chapters should replace "code" in this subsection.

D. Nothing contained in this Act is intended to or shall in any manner limit or restrict the rights of policyholders, claimants and creditors.

Section 15. Violations of the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA)

The commissioner or attorney general may bring an action in a court of competent jurisdiction to enjoin violations of RESPA, 12 U.S.C. Section 2607, as amended.

Section 16. Severability

If any provision of this Act, or the application of the provision to any person or circumstance shall be held invalid, the remainder of the Act, and the application of the provision to persons or circumstances other than those to which it is held invalid, shall not be affected.

Section 17. Effective Date

This Act shall be effective as of [insert date] and applies to all activities or agreements of the title insurance agent engaged in or entered into after the effective date. The title insurance agent shall amend all existing agreements to comply with Section 8 of this Act within sixty (60) days from its effective date.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2003

TITLE INSURANCE AGENT MODEL ACT (#230)

1. What issues was the project intended to address?

On Feb. 1, 2001, the Kansas Insurance Department issued an opinion letter related to a request from a financial holding company asking whether certain provision of Kansas law were preempted by the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (GLBA). The opinion advised that certain portions of a Kansas law related to its controlled business provisions were preempted. A controlled business statute is one that limits the amount of business an agent can receive from a single source. It essentially means that any portion of a title insurance agent's business written that was referred to it by a producer of title insurance business or by an associate of the producer, where the producer or associate, or both, have a financial interest in the title insurance agent. A similar matter was referred by the Tennessee Department of Commerce and Insurance to the Tennessee Attorney General. In a similar fashion, the Tennessee Attorney General issued an opinion that certain Tennessee controlled business provisions were preempted. Since both of these state laws were based on the NAIC Title Insurance Agents Model Act, the Kansas Insurance Department and the Tennessee Department of Commerce and Insurance brought the matter to the attention of the NAIC through its then Functional Regulation (G) Working Group. The subgroup was appointed and asked to look at the title agent model and the Title Insurer Model Act for compliance with the GLBA.

Subsequently, the charge to the subgroup was expanded to look at any necessary update to the title agent act and the title act. Interested parties were invited to tender suggestions for changes to either of the models.

2. What states participated in drafting the model?

The following states are currently members of the subgroup: Tennessee (chair), Arkansas, California, Illinois, Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Utah, and Washington.

3. What general procedure was followed in drafting the model? What efforts were made to assure that all interested parties were provided an opportunity to comment during the drafting process?

The efforts of the subgroup were closely coordinated with all interested parties. In addition to open sessions at the quarterly meetings of the NAIC, five conference calls were held since Dec. 2002 to discuss the various submissions and drafts of the models. Notice of those conference calls was posted on the NAIC's home page on the Internet and e-mailed to everyone that expressed an interest in the project. Written comments were received from the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, the McIntyre Law Firm on behalf of the American Bankers Insurance Association, the State of Utah and the American Land Title Association. Representatives of each organization along with several other interested parties participated in the meetings and conference calls. All meetings and conference calls were open to all participants.

4. What significant issues were raised during the drafting process, and how were those issues resolved?

Given the complexity of this topic and the myriad of discussions and opinions, it is impossible to put together a brief description that captures all of the issues raised and all of the detail underlying those issues. The reader is referred to the minutes of the subgroup for these details. This summary provides a broad overview and might omit various particulars of the project. However, the items below represent the major points of discussion:

A. Section 4 of the title agent act addresses the examination authority of the commissioner related to title insurance agents. It was amended to limit the commissioner's access to non-insurance books and records held by a depository institution. The model directs the commissioner to the information sharing agreements that have been entered into by most states and the OCC or other functional regulator when the title insurance agent is also a depository institution. These changes are similar to changes made last year to the NAIC's Unfair Trade Practices Act by the Functional Regulation Working Group.

B. Section 5A of the title agent act was amended to assure compliance with GLBA, regulations issued by federal banking regulators and Section 8 of the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA). It now allows payment of referral fees with express limitations provided in laws and regulations mentioned in the previous sentence. Similar modifications were made to the NAIC's Unfair Trade Practices Act last year.

C. The second optional Subsection D to Section 6 was amended so that it does not apply to depository institutions. This was the change that was required by the original charge regarding controlled business provisions. The subgroup believed that it was preferable to keep controlled business provisions for entities other than depository institutions because they are intended to be an essential element of solvency protection for title insurers.

D. Section 8E of the title agent act addresses the business records requirements for title insurance agents. It was amended to limit the commissioner's access to non-insurance books and records held by a depository institution that is also a title insurance agent. The model directs the commissioner to the information sharing agreements that have been entered into by most states and the OCC or other functional regulator when the title insurance agent is also a depository institution.

E. A drafting note was added to Section 11 of the title agent act to suggest that states take steps to ensure that their record-keeping requirements for the title insurance agency operations of depository institutions do not place the depository institutions in a position where they cannot comply with both the state requirements and the record-keeping requirements of the institution's primary functional regulator.

F. Section 12 of the title agent act was amended to refer to other state and federal laws that may apply.

5. What are the implications of this project for accreditation and codification?

Since this project does not principally deal with solvency monitoring, there is no impact for accreditation and codification. However, there was concern expressed by subgroup members that modification of the controlled business provision could restrict the states' ability to monitor the solvency of title insurers. The subgroup observed that concentration of risk was a significant element in many past title insurer failures. The drafters believe that, at least for depository institutions that also operate as title insurance agents, particular attention should be paid to such title insurance agents in relationship to their risk concentration.

INTEREST-INDEXED ANNUITY CONTRACTS MODEL REGULATION

Table of Contents

Section 1. Definitions

"Interest-indexed annuity contract" means an annuity contract where the interest credits are linked to an external reference.

Section 2. Scope

This regulation applies only to individual annuity contracts.

Drafting Note: This regulation currently addresses only the indexing of interest credits. Should products be developed which involve the indexing of other factors such as expenses, this regulation may require modification.

Section 3. Initial Filing Requirements

The following information shall be submitted in connection with any filing of interest-indexed annuity contracts. All such information received shall be treated confidentially to the extent permitted by law.

A. A description of how the interest credits are determined, including:

(1) A description of the index;

(2) A provision for a substitute method of crediting interest if the index is discontinued; a substitute must be approved by the insurance department;

(3) A formula showing the derivation of the crediting rate based on the value of the index;

(4) The frequency and timing of determining the crediting rate; and

(5) The allocation of interest credits, if more than one crediting rate applies to different portions of the contract value;

B. A description of the insurer's investment policy, including:

(1) The amount and type of assets currently held for interest-indexed annuity contracts;

(2) An opinion by the insurer's actuary that the investments are appropriate considering the index being used;

(3) The amount (distribution) and type of assets expected to be acquired in the future for these contracts;

(4) How the insurer plans to address the risk that a sufficient quantity of appropriate investments may not be available; and

(5) How the insurer plans to address any mismatch risk inherent in the contract;

C. If contracts are to be linked to an index for some specified period less than the time to the maturity date of the contract, the date of expiration of the period and any minimum guaranteed rates that apply thereafter; and

D. A description of any interest guarantee in addition to or in lieu of the index and a description of how the insurer plans to address the risk that the indexed interest rate may fall below the minimum guarantee.

Section 4. Additional Filing Requirements

To the extent permitted by law, any material submitted as a result of the following requirements will be treated confidentially.

A. Prior to implementation, a domestic insurer shall submit a description of any material change in investment policy or method of determining the interest credits. A change is considered to be material if it would affect the form or definition of the index or if it would significantly change the amount or type of assets held for interest-indexed annuity contracts.

B. Annually, an insurer shall submit a description of the amount and type of assets currently held by the insurer to support its interest-indexed annuity contracts.

C. Annually, an insurer shall submit a Statement of Actuarial Opinion by the insurer's actuary that the assets under interest-indexed annuity products are sufficient to cover the contractual obligations under the contracts. If the insurer is unable to issue such an opinion, additional assets shall be allocated to these products so that an opinion can be submitted.

Drafting Note: The American Academy of Actuaries is developing guidelines that will delineate the responsibilities of the actuary in signing a Statement of Actuarial Opinion. Section 6 contains a sample Statement of Actuarial Opinion which the Advisory Committee believes will satisfy its guidelines. If necessary, this regulation should be revised to conform with the Academy's guidelines.

Section 5. Valuation Requirements

A. In filing the above items, the insurer demonstrates its ability to meet its future contractual obligations.

B. In developing life insurance reserves for interest-indexed annuity contracts, the insurer shall be in compliance with the minimum requirements of the standard valuation law of this state. If the insurer does not issue an opinion as required in Section 4C of this regulation, the minimum reserves for interest-indexed annuity business will be 115 percent of the minimum reserves otherwise required.

C. In the calculation of reserves for interest-indexed annuity contracts, future guarantees will be determined by assuming that future interest crediting rates will be equal to the statutory valuation interest rate for the contracts as defined in the standard valuation law.

Section 6. Statement of Actuarial Opinion for Interest-Indexed Annuity Contracts

I, _____ , am _____
(name) (position or relationship to insurer)

for the XYZ Life Insurance Company (the insurer) in the state of _____.
(state of domicile of insurer)

I am a member of the American Academy of Actuaries [or if not, state other qualifications to sign annual statement actuarial opinions].

I have examined the interest-indexed annuity contracts of the insurer in force as of December 31, 19XX, encompassing ____ [number of] contracts and $_____ of reserves.

I have considered the provisions of the contracts. I have considered the characteristics of the identified assets and the investment policy adopted by the insurer as they affect future insurance and investment cash flows under the contracts and related assets. My examination included such tests and calculations as I considered necessary to form an opinion concerning the insurance and investment cash flows arising from the contracts and related assets.

I relied on the investment policy of the insurer and on projected investment cash flows as provided by _____, Chief Investment Officer of the Insurer.

Drafting Note: If the actuary does not choose to rely on an investment officer for the projected investment cash flows, this statement should be modified to show the extent of the actuary's reliance. If the actuary has not examined the underlying records, but has relied on listings and summaries of contracts in force, an appropriate statement of such reliance should be included here.

The tests were calculated under various assumptions as to future interest rates, and particular attention was given to those provisions and characteristics that might cause future insurance and investment cash flows to vary with changes in the level of prevailing interest rates.

In my opinion, the anticipated insurance and investment cash flows referred to above make good and sufficient provision for the contractual obligations of the insurer under these contracts.

CHARITABLE GIFT ANNUITIES MODEL ACT

Section 1. Scope

This Act applies to charitable gift annuities issued by charitable organizations as herein defined and shall be known as the Charitable Gift Annuities Act.

Section 2. Definitions

A. (1) "Charitable gift annuity" means a transfer of cash or other property by a donor to a charitable organization in return for an annuity payable over one or two lives, under which the actuarial value of the annuity is less than the value of the cash or other property transferred and the difference in value constitutes a charitable deduction for federal tax purposes.

(2) "Charitable gift annuity" does not include a charitable remainder trust or a charitable lead trust or other similar arrangement where the charitable organization does not issue an annuity and incur a financial obligation to guarantee annuity payments.

B. "Charitable organization" means an entity described by:

(1) Section 501(c)(3) Internal Revenue Code of 1986 [26 U.S.C. Section 501(c)(3)]; or

(2) Section 170(c), Internal Revenue Code of 1986 [26 U.S.C. Section 170(c)].

Section 3. Certificate of Authority

A. A charitable organization shall not receive transfer of property, conditioned upon its agreement to pay an annuity to the donor or other annuitant unless and until it has obtained from the commissioner a certificate of authority to issue charitable gift annuities.

B. A charitable organization shall file with the commissioner its application for a certificate of authority. The application shall be in form prescribed and furnished by the commissioner and shall be verified by two (2) of the applicant's officers. The application shall include or be accompanied by such proof as the commissioner may reasonably require that the applicant is qualified under this Act. At filing of the application the applicant shall pay to the commissioner the applicable filing fees as specified in [insert citation].

C. If after such investigation as the commissioner deems advisable, the commissioner finds that the applicant is in sound financial condition and is otherwise qualified, the commissioner shall issue to the applicant a certificate of authority. If the commissioner does not so find, the commissioner shall deny issuance of the certificate of authority and notify the applicant in writing stating the reasons for denial.

D. The certificate of authority of a charitable organization issued under this Act shall continue until suspended or revoked by the commissioner or terminated by the organization, subject to continuance each year by payment on or before March 1 of the continuance fee of $[insert amount] and filing of the annual report.

E. A person acting on behalf of a charitable organization to solicit the transfers of property in exchange for annuity payments shall not be required to be licensed; however, the person shall be authorized in writing by the charitable organization to act on its behalf. The charitable organization shall keep a file of current written authorizations.

Section 4. Surplus and Reserves

A. A charitable organization authorized by this Act shall maintain a segregated account for its charitable gift annuities. The assets of the account are not liable for any debts of the charitable organization other than those incurred pursuant to the issuance of charitable gift annuities. The assets of the account shall at least equal in amount the sum of the reserves on its outstanding annuities plus a surplus of ten percent (10%) of the reserves.

B. (1) Reserves on the outstanding annuities shall not be less than reserves calculated using:

(a) The Commissioner's Annuity Reserve Valuation Method as defined in the charitable organization's domestic state standard valuation law;

(b) Any mortality table permitted under the charitable organization's domestic state standard valuation law to be used in determining the minimum standard for the valuation of individual annuities issued during the same calendar year as the charitable gift annuity; and

(c) The maximum interest rate permitted under the charitable organization's domestic state standard valuation law to be used in determining the minimum standard for the valuation of individual annuities issued during the same calendar year as the charitable gift annuity.

(2) In determining the reserves, a deduction shall be made for any portion of the annuity risk that is reinsured by an authorized insurer or reinsurer. For this purpose, any annuity contract purchased from an authorized insurer or reinsurer by the charitable organization is considered to be "annuity risk reinsured."

C. The general assets of the charitable organization shall be liable for annuity agreements to the extent that the segregated account is inadequate.

Section 5. Investments

The segregated assets shall be invested in the same manner and subject to the same investment laws applicable to domestic life insurers found in [insert section].

Section 6. Annual Reports

A. A charitable organization authorized under this Act shall annually file a report verified by at least two (2) principal officers with the commissioner covering the preceding fiscal year. The report is due ninety (90) days after the close of the charity's fiscal year or at a later date approved by the commissioner.

B. The report shall be on forms prescribed by the commissioner and shall include:

(1) A financial statement of the organization, including its balance sheet and receipts and disbursements for the preceding year;

(2) Any material changes in the information;

(3) The number of gift annuity contracts issued during the year, the number of gift annuity contracts as of the end of the year and the number of gift annuity contracts that terminated during the year;

(4) The amount of annuity payments made during the year and the amounts transferred from the segregated account to the general account during the year; and

(5) Other information relating to the performance of the charitable gift annuity segment of the charitable organization necessary to enable the commissioner to:

(a) Issue certificates of authority;

(b) Ascertain maintenance of records;

(c) Evaluate solvency;

(d) Respond to consumer complaints; and

(e) Conduct hearings to determine compliance with this Act.

C. A copy of a report containing the information required in Subsection B that has been filed in the state of domicile of the charitable organization will be deemed to satisfy the requirement of this section. The commissioner shall have the authority to request additional information.

Section 7. Examination

Whenever the commissioner determines it to be expedient, the commissioner may make or cause to be made an examination of the assets and liabilities and other affairs of the charitable organization as they pertain to annuity agreements entered into pursuant to this Act. The commissioner shall keep information obtained in the course of examinations confidential until the examination is completed. The reasonable expenses incurred for an examination shall be paid by the charitable organization.

Section 8. Filing of Contracts

A. An authorized charitable organization shall file for information with the commissioner a copy of each form of agreement that it proposes to issue to donors in exchange for property transferred to the organization. {Within [insert number] days the commissioner shall approve or disapprove the proposed agreement forms and shall notify the charitable organization as soon as practicable.}

Drafting Note: Insert the bracketed material in prior approval states.

B. Each annuity agreement form shall include the following information:

(1) The value of the property to be transferred;

(2) The amount of the annuity to be paid to the donor or other annuitant;

(3) The manner in which and the intervals at which payment is to be made;

(4) The age and sex of the person or persons during whose life payment is to be made;

(5) The reasonable value as of the date of the agreement of the benefits created; and

(6) The date that payments are to begin.

Section 9. Disclosure

A. Before accepting the property transferred in exchange for the annuity agreement, the organization shall obtain a signed statement from a prospective donor acknowledging the following terms of the agreement:

(1) The value of the property transferred;

(2) The amount of the periodic annuity benefits to be paid;

(3) The manner in which and the intervals at which payment is to be made;

(4) The reasonable value as of the date of the agreement of the benefits created; and

(5) The date that payments are to begin.

B. In addition to the above disclosure, the charitable organization shall obtain a signed statement from a prospective donor acknowledging that he or she has been informed that payments made under a charitable gift annuity are backed solely by the full faith and credit of the organization, are not insured or guaranteed by an insurance company, are not protected by any insurance guaranty association, and are not backed in any way by the State of [insert state].

C. The requirements of Subsection A and B may be satisfied by an acknowledgment that is a part of the annuity agreement that is signed by the donor.

Section 10. Other Applicable Code Provisions

A. These provisions of the insurance code apply to the transactions covered by this Act:

(1) [insert citation to receivership law];

(2) [insert citation to laws on hazardous financial condition];

(3) [insert citation to laws governing unfair trade practices]; and

(4) [insert citation to laws governing investments].

B. The provisions of [insert reference to state guaranty association law] do not apply to charitable gift annuities.

Drafting Note: In order to ensure consistency and uniformity in state insurance laws, it is recommended that states adopting this model act also amend their state guaranty association statutes to comply with Section 5L(7) of the Life and Health Guaranty Association Model Act. That provision states that for the purpose of providing guaranty association protection to policy owners, insureds, beneficiaries, annuitants, payees and assignees, a "member insurer" shall not include "(a)n organization that has a certificate or license limited to the issuance of charitable gift annuities under [insert appropriate section of the state code.]"

Section 11. Severability

If any provision of this Act or the application of the provision to any circumstances is held invalid, the remainder of the Act or the application of the provision to other circumstances shall not be affected.

Section 12. Effective Date

This Act shall become effective [insert date] and shall apply to charitable gift annuities agreements entered into on or after the effective date.

Table of Contents

Section 1. Definitions

A. "Charitable gift annuity" means a transfer of cash or other property by a donor to a charitable organization in return for an annuity payable over one or two lives, under which the actuarial value of the annuity is less than the value of the cash or other property transferred and the difference in value constitutes a charitable deduction for federal tax purposes.

B. "Charitable organization" means an entity described by:

(1) Section 501(c)(3), Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (26 U.S.C. Section 501(c)(3)); or

(2) Section 170(c), Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (26 U.S.C. Section 170(c)).

C. "Qualified charitable gift annuity" means a charitable gift annuity described by Section 501(m)(5), Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (26 U.S.C. Section 501(m)(5)), and Section 514(c)(5), Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (26 U.S.C. Section 514(c)(5)), that is issued by a charitable organization that on the date of the annuity agreement:

(1) Has a minimum of $300,000 in unrestricted cash, cash equivalents, or publicly traded securities, exclusive of the assets funding the annuity agreement; and

(2) Has been in continuous operation for at least three (3) years or is a successor or affiliate of a charitable organization that has been in continuous operation for at least three (3) years.

Section 2. Charitable Gift Annuity Is Not Insurance

A. The issuance of a qualified charitable gift annuity does not constitute engaging in the business of insurance in this state.

B. A charitable gift annuity issued before [insert effective date of this statute] is a qualified charitable gift annuity for purposes of this Act, and the issuance of that charitable gift annuity does not constitute engaging in the business of insurance in this state.

Section 3. Notice to Donor

A. When entering into an agreement for a qualified charitable gift annuity, the charitable organization shall disclose to the donor in writing in the annuity agreement that a qualified charitable gift annuity is not insurance under the laws of this state and is not subject to regulation by the insurance commissioner or protected by an insurance guaranty association.

B. The notice provisions required by this section shall be in a separate paragraph in a print size no smaller than that employed in the annuity agreement generally.

Section 4. Notice to Department

A. A charitable organization that issues qualified charitable gift annuities shall notify the commissioner in writing by the later of ninety (90) days after the effective date of this Act or the date on which it enters into the organization's first qualified charitable gift annuity agreement. The notice shall:

(1) Be signed by an officer or director of the organization;

(2) Identify the organization; and

(3) Certify that:

(a) The organization is a charitable organization; and

(b) The annuities issued by the organization are qualified charitable gift annuities.

B. The organization shall not be required to submit additional information except to determine appropriate penalties that may be applicable under Section 5 of this Act.

Section. 5. Effect of Failure to Provide Required Notice

The failure of a charitable organization to comply with the notice requirements imposed under Section 3 or 4 of this Act does not prevent a charitable gift annuity that otherwise meets the requirements of this Act from constituting a qualified charitable gift annuity. The commissioner may enforce performance of the requirements of Sections 3 and 4 of this Act by sending a letter by certified mail, return receipt requested, demanding that the charitable organization comply with the requirements of Sections 3 and 4 of this Act. The commissioner may fine the charitable organization in an amount not to exceed $1,000 per qualified charitable gift annuity agreement issued until such time as the charitable organization complies with Sections 3 and 4 of this Act.

Section 6. Not Unfair or Deceptive Trade Practice

The issuance of a qualified charitable gift annuity does not constitute a violation of [insert reference to unfair trade practices law].

Section 7. Effective Date

This Act shall be effective [insert date].

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. To perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

Who do I speak to if I have questions?

If you have questions or believe information related to a state should be updated, please contact Jennifer Neuerburg at jneuerburg@naic.org.

Disclaimer: This chart does not constitute a formal legal opinion by the NAIC staff on the provisions of state law and should not be relied upon as such. Nor does this state page reflect a determination as to whether a state meets any applicable accreditation standards. Every effort has been made to provide correct and accurate summaries to assist readers in locating useful information. Readers should consult state law for further details and for the most current information.

ANNUITY DISCLOSURE MODEL REGULATION

Table of Contents

Section 1. Purpose

The purpose of this regulation is to provide standards for the disclosure of certain minimum information about annuity contracts to protect consumers and foster consumer education. The regulation specifies the minimum information which must be disclosed, the method for disclosing it and the use and content of illustrations, if used, in connection with the sale of annuity contracts. The goal of this regulation is to ensure that purchasers of annuity contracts understand certain basic features of annuity contracts.

Section 2. Authority

This regulation is issued based upon the authority granted the commissioner under Section [cite any enabling legislation and state law corresponding to Section 4 of the NAIC Unfair Trade Practices Act].

Section 3. Applicability and Scope

This regulation applies to all group and individual annuity contracts and certificates except:

A. Immediate and deferred annuities that contain no non-guaranteed elements;

B. (1) Annuities used to fund:

(a) An employee pension plan which is covered by the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA);

(b) A plan described by Sections 401(a), 401(k) or 403(b) of the Internal Revenue Code, where the plan, for purposes of ERISA, is established or maintained by an employer,

(c) A governmental or church plan defined in Section 414 or a deferred compensation plan of a state or local government or a tax exempt organization under Section 457 of the Internal Revenue Code; or

(d) A nonqualified deferred compensation arrangement established or maintained by an employer or plan sponsor.

(2) Notwithstanding Paragraph (1), the regulation shall apply to annuities used to fund a plan or arrangement that is funded solely by contributions an employee elects to make whether on a pre-tax or after-tax basis, and where the insurance company has been notified that plan participants may choose from among two (2) or more fixed annuity providers and there is a direct solicitation of an individual employee by a producer for the purchase of an annuity contract. As used in this subsection, direct solicitation shall not include any meeting held by a producer solely for the purpose of educating or enrolling employees in the plan or arrangement;

C. Non-registered variable annuities issued exclusively to an accredited investor or qualified purchaser as those terms are defined by the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. Section 77a et seq.), the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. Section 80a-1 et seq.), or the regulations promulgated under either of those acts, and offered for sale and sold in a transaction that is exempt from registration under the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. Section 77a et seq.).

D. (1) Transactions involving variable annuities and other registered products in compliance with Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) rules and Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) rules relating to disclosures and illustrations, provided that compliance with Section 5 shall be required after January 1, 2014, unless, or until such time as, the SEC has adopted a summary prospectus rule or FINRA has approved for use a simplified disclosure form applicable to variable annuities or other registered products.

(2) Notwithstanding Subsection D(1), the delivery of the Buyer's Guide is required in sales of variable annuities, and when appropriate, in sales of other registered products.

Drafting Note: The requirement to provide a Buyer's Guide would not be appropriate for contingent deferred annuities unless, or until such time as, the NAIC adopts a Buyer's Guide that specifically addresses contingent deferred annuities.

(3) Nothing in this subsection shall limit the commissioner's ability to enforce the provisions of this regulation or to require additional disclosure.

E. Structured settlement annuities;

F. [Charitable gift annuities; and]

G. [Funding agreements].

Drafting Note: States that regulate charitable gift annuities should exempt them from the requirements of this regulation. States that recognize or regulate funding agreements as annuities should exempt them from the requirements of this regulation.

Section 4. Definitions

For the purposes of this regulation:

A. "Buyer's Guide" means the National Association of Insurance Commissioner's approved Annuity Buyer's Guide.

B. ["Charitable gift annuity" means a transfer of cash or other property by a donor to a charitable organization in return for an annuity payable over one or two lives, under which the actuarial value of the annuity is less than the value of the cash or other property transferred and the difference in value constitutes a charitable deduction for federal tax purposes, but does not include a charitable remainder trust or a charitable lead trust or other similar arrangement where the charitable organization does not issue an annuity and incur a financial obligation to guarantee annuity payments.]

C. "Contract owner" means the owner named in the annuity contract or certificate holder in the case of a group annuity contract.

D. "Determinable elements" means elements that are derived from processes or methods that are guaranteed at issue and not subject to company discretion, but where the values or amounts cannot be determined until some point after issue. These elements include the premiums, credited interest rates (including any bonus), benefits, values, non-interest based credits, charges or elements of formulas used to determine any of these. These elements may be described as guaranteed but not determined at issue. An element is considered determinable if it was calculated from underlying determinable elements only, or from both determinable and guaranteed elements.

E. ["Funding agreement" means an agreement for an insurer to accept and accumulate funds and to make one or more payments at future dates in amounts that are not based on mortality or morbidity contingencies.]

F. "Generic name" means a short title descriptive of the annuity contract being applied for or illustrated such as "single premium deferred annuity."

G. "Guaranteed elements" means the premiums, credited interest rates (including any bonus), benefits, values, non-interest based credits, charges or elements of formulas used to determine any of these, that are guaranteed or have determinable elements at issue. An element is considered guaranteed if all of the underlying elements that go into its calculation are guaranteed.

H. "Illustration" means a personalized presentation or depiction prepared for and provided to an individual consumer that includes non-guaranteed elements of an annuity contract over a period of years.

I. "Market Value Adjustment" or "MVA" feature is a positive or negative adjustment that may be applied to the account value and/or cash value of the annuity upon withdrawal, surrender, contract annuitization or death benefit payment based on either the movement of an external index or on the company's current guaranteed interest rate being offered on new premiums or new rates for renewal periods, if that withdrawal, surrender, contract annuitization or death benefit payment occurs at a time other than on a specified guaranteed benefit date.

J. "Non-guaranteed elements" means the premiums, credited interest rates (including any bonus), benefits, values, dividends, non-interest based credits, charges or elements of formulas used to determine any of these, that are subject to company discretion and are not guaranteed at issue. An element is considered non-guaranteed if any of the underlying non-guaranteed elements are used in its calculation.

K. "Registered product" means an annuity contract or life insurance policy subject to the prospectus delivery requirements of the Securities Act of 1933.

Drafting Note: Registered products include, but are not limited to, contingent deferred annuities.

L. "Structured settlement annuity" means a "qualified funding asset" as defined in section 130(d) of the Internal Revenue Code or an annuity that would be a qualified funding asset under section 130(d) but for the fact that it is not owned by an assignee under a qualified assignment.

Section 5. Standards for the Disclosure Document and Buyer's Guide

A. (1) Where the application for an annuity contract is taken in a face-to-face meeting, the applicant shall at or before the time of application be given both the disclosure document described in Subsection B and the Buyer's Guide, if any.

(2) Where the application for an annuity contract is taken by means other than in a face-to-face meeting, the applicant shall be sent both the disclosure document and the Buyer's Guide no later than five (5) business days after the completed application is received by the insurer.

(a) With respect to an application received as a result of a direct solicitation through the mail:

(i) Providing a Buyer's Guide in a mailing inviting prospective applicants to apply for an annuity contract shall be deemed to satisfy the requirement that the Buyer's Guide be provided no later than five (5) business days after receipt of the application.

(ii) Providing a disclosure document in a mailing inviting a prospective applicant to apply for an annuity contract shall be deemed to satisfy the requirement that the disclosure document be provided no later than five (5) business days after receipt of the application.

(b) With respect to an application received via the Internet:

(i) Taking reasonable steps to make the Buyer's Guide available for viewing and printing on the insurer's website shall be deemed to satisfy the requirement that the Buyer's Guide be provided no later than five (5) business day of receipt of the application.

(ii) Taking reasonable steps to make the disclosure document available for viewing and printing on the insurer's website shall be deemed to satisfy the requirement that the disclosure document be provided no later than five (5) business days after receipt of the application.

(c) A solicitation for an annuity contract provided in other than a face-to-face meeting shall include a statement that the proposed applicant may contact the insurance department of the state for a free annuity Buyer's Guide. In lieu of the foregoing statement, an insurer may include a statement that the prospective applicant may contact the insurer for a free annuity Buyer's Guide.

(d) Where the Buyer's Guide and disclosure document are not provided at or before the time of application, a free look period of no less than fifteen (15) days shall be provided for the applicant to return the annuity contract without penalty. This free look shall run concurrently with any other free look provided under state law or regulation.

B. At a minimum, the following information shall be included in the disclosure document required to be provided under this regulation:

(1) The generic name of the contract, the company product name, if different, and form number, and the fact that it is an annuity;

(2) The insurer's legal name, physical address, website address and telephone number;

(3) A description of the contract and its benefits, emphasizing its long-term nature, including examples where appropriate:

(a) The guaranteed and non-guaranteed elements of the contract, and their limitations, if any, including for fixed indexed annuities, the elements used to determine the index-based interest, such as the participation rates, caps or spread, and an explanation of how they operate;

(b) An explanation of the initial crediting rate, or for fixed indexed annuities, an explanation of how the index-based interest is determined, specifying any bonus or introductory portion, the duration of the rate and the fact that rates may change from time to time and are not guaranteed;

(c) Periodic income options both on a guaranteed and non-guaranteed basis;

(d) Any value reductions caused by withdrawals from or surrender of the contract;

(e) How values in the contract can be accessed;

(f) The death benefit, if available and how it will be calculated;

(g) A summary of the federal tax status of the contract and any penalties applicable on withdrawal of values from the contract; and

(h) Impact of any rider, including, but not limited to, a guaranteed living benefit or long-term care rider;

(4) Specific dollar amount or percentage charges and fees shall be listed with an explanation of how they apply; and

(5) Information about the current guaranteed rate or indexed crediting rate formula, if applicable, for new contracts that contains a clear notice that the rate is subject to change.

C. Insurers shall define terms used in the disclosure statement in language that facilitates the understanding by a typical person within the segment of the public to which the disclosure statement is directed.

Section 6. Standards for Annuity Illustrations

A. An insurer or producer may elect to provide a consumer an illustration at any time, provided that the illustration is in compliance with this section and:

(1) Clearly labeled as an illustration;

(2) Includes a statement referring consumers to the disclosure document and Buyer's Guide provided to them at time of purchase for additional information about their annuity; and

(3) Is prepared by the insurer or third party using software that is authorized by the insurer prior to its use, provided that the insurer maintains a system of control over the use of illustrations.

B. An illustration furnished an applicant for a group annuity contract or contracts issued to a single applicant on multiple lives may be either an individual or composite illustration representative of the coverage on the lives of members of the group or the multiple lives covered.

C. The illustration shall not be provided unless accompanied by the disclosure document referenced in Section 5.

D. When using an illustration, the illustration shall not:

(1) Describe non-guaranteed elements in a manner that is misleading or has the capacity or tendency to mislead;

(2) State or imply that the payment or amount of non-guaranteed elements is guaranteed; or

(3) Be incomplete.

E. Costs and fees of any type shall be individually noted and explained.

F. An illustration shall conform to the following requirements:

(1) The illustration shall be labeled with the date on which it was prepared;

(2) Each page, including any explanatory notes or pages, shall be numbered and show its relationship to the total number of pages in the disclosure document (e.g., the fourth page of a seven-page disclosure document shall be labeled "page 4 of 7 pages");

(3) The assumed dates of premium receipt and benefit payout within a contract year shall be clearly identified;

(4) If the age of the proposed insured is shown as a component of the tabular detail, it shall be issue age plus the numbers of years the contract is assumed to have been in force;

(5) The assumed premium on which the illustrated benefits and values are based shall be clearly identified, including rider premium for any benefits being illustrated;

(6) Any charges for riders or other contract features assessed against the account value or the crediting rate shall be recognized in the illustrated values and shall be accompanied by a statement indicating the nature of the rider benefits or the contract features, and whether or not they are included in the illustration;

(7) Guaranteed death benefits and values available upon surrender, if any, for the illustrated contract premium shall be shown and clearly labeled guaranteed;

(8) Except as provided in Paragraph (22), the non-guaranteed elements underlying the non-guaranteed illustrated values shall be no more favorable than current non-guaranteed elements and shall not include any assumed future improvement of such elements. Additionally, non-guaranteed elements used in calculating non-guaranteed illustrated values at any future duration shall reflect any planned changes, including any planned changes that may occur after expiration of an initial guaranteed or bonus period;

(9) In determining the non-guaranteed illustrated values for a fixed indexed annuity, the index-based interest rate and account value shall be calculated for three different scenarios: one to reflect historical performance of the index for the most recent ten (10) calendar years; one to reflect the historical performance of the index for the continuous period of ten (10) calendar years out of the last twenty (20) calendar years that would result in the least index value growth (the "low scenario"); one to reflect the historical performance of the index for the continuous period of ten (10) calendar years out of the last twenty (20) calendar years that would result in the most index value growth (the "high scenario"). The following requirements apply:

(a) The most recent ten (10) calendar years and the last twenty (20) calendar years are defined to end on the prior December 31, except for illustrations prepared during the first three (3) months of the year, for which the end date of the calendar year period may be the December 31 prior to the last full calendar year;

(b) If any index utilized in determination of an account value has not been in existence for at least ten (10) calendar years, indexed returns for that index shall not be illustrated. If the fixed indexed annuity provides an option to allocate account value to more than one indexed or fixed declared rate account, and one or more of those indexes has not been in existence for at least ten (10) calendar years, the allocation to such indexed account(s) shall be assumed to be zero;

(c) If any index utilized in determination of an account value has been in existence for at least ten (10) calendar years but less than twenty (20) calendar years, the ten (10) calendar year periods that define the low and high scenarios shall be chosen from the exact number of years the index has been in existence;

(d) The non-guaranteed element(s), such as caps, spreads, participation rates or other interest crediting adjustments, used in calculating the non-guaranteed index-based interest rate shall be no more favorable than the corresponding current element(s);

(e) If a fixed indexed annuity provides an option to allocate the account value to more than one indexed or fixed declared rate account:

(i) The allocation used in the illustration shall be the same for all three scenarios; and

(ii) The ten (10) calendar year periods resulting in the least and greatest index growth periods shall be determined independently for each indexed account option.

(f) The geometric mean annual effective rate of the account value growth over the ten (10) calendar year period shall be shown for each scenario;

(g) If the most recent ten (10) calendar year historical period experience of the index is shorter than the number of years needed to fulfill the requirement of subsection H, the most recent ten (10) calendar year historical period experience of the index shall be used for each subsequent ten (10) calendar year period beyond the initial period for the purpose of calculating the account value for the remaining years of the illustration;

(h) The low and high scenarios: (i) need not show surrender values (if different than account values); (ii) shall not extend beyond ten (10) calendar years (and therefore are not subject to the requirements of subsection H beyond subsection H(1)(a)); and (iii) may be shown on a separate page. A graphical presentation shall also be included comparing the movement of the account value over the ten (10) calendar year period for the low scenario, the high scenario and the most recent ten (10) calendar year scenario; and

(i) The low and high scenarios should reflect the irregular nature of the index performance and should trigger every type of adjustment to the index-based interest rate under the contract. The effect of the adjustments should be clear; for example, additional columns showing how the adjustment applied may be included. If an adjustment to the index-based interest rate is not triggered in the illustration (because no historical values of the index in the required illustration range would have triggered it), the illustration shall so state;

(10) The guaranteed elements, if any, shall be shown before corresponding non-guaranteed elements and shall be specifically referred to on any page of an illustration that shows or describes only the non-guaranteed elements (e.g., "see page 1 for guaranteed elements");

(11) The account or accumulation value of a contract, if shown, shall be identified by the name this value is given in the contract being illustrated and shown in close proximity to the corresponding value available upon surrender;

(12) The value available upon surrender shall be identified by the name this value is given in the contract being illustrated and shall be the amount available to the contract owner in a lump sum after deduction of surrender charges, bonus forfeitures, contract loans, contract loan interest and application of any market value adjustment, as applicable;

(13) Illustrations may show contract benefits and values in graphic or chart form in addition to the tabular form;

(14) Any illustration of non-guaranteed elements shall be accompanied by a statement indicating that:

(a) The benefits and values are not guaranteed;

(b) The assumptions on which they are based are subject to change by the insurer; and

(c) Actual results may be higher or lower;

(15) Illustrations based on non-guaranteed credited interest and non-guaranteed annuity income rates shall contain equally prominent comparisons to guaranteed credited interest and guaranteed annuity income rates, including any guaranteed and non-guaranteed participation rates, caps or spreads for fixed indexed annuities;

(16) The annuity income rate illustrated shall not be greater than the current annuity income rate unless the contract guarantees are in fact more favorable;

(17) Illustrations shall be concise and easy to read;

(18) Key terms shall be defined and then used consistently throughout the illustration;

(19) Illustrations shall not depict values beyond the maximum annuitization age or date;

(20) Annuitization benefits shall be based on contract values that reflect surrender charges or any other adjustments, if applicable; and

(21) Illustrations shall show both annuity income rates per $1000.00 and the dollar amounts of the periodic income payable.

(22) For participating immediate and deferred income annuities:

(a) Illustrations may not assume any future improvement in the applicable dividend scale (or scales, if more than one dividend scale applies, such as for a flexible premium annuity);

(b) Illustrations must reflect the equitable apportionment of dividends, whether performance meets, exceeds or falls short of expectations;

(c) If the dividend scale is based on a portfolio rate method, the portfolio rate underlying the illustrated dividend scale shall not be assumed to increase;

(d) If the dividend scale is based on an investment cohort method, the illustrated dividend scale should assume that reinvestment rates grade to long-term interest rates, subject to the following conditions:

(i) Any assumptions as to future investment performance in the dividend formula must be consistent with assumptions that are reflected in the marketplace within the normal range of analyst forecasts and investor behavior; these assumptions may not be changed arbitrarily, notwithstanding changes in markets or economic conditions, and must be consistent with assumptions that the issuer uses with respect to other lines of business; and

(ii) The illustrated dividend scale should assume that reinvestment rates grade to long-term interest rates, based on U.S Treasury bonds. For the purposes of this grading, the assumed long-term rates should not exceed the rates calculated using the formula in subparagraph iii, below, based on the time to maturity or reinvestment (the "Tenor") of the investments supporting the cohort of policies.

(iii) Maximum long-term interest rates should be calculated for tenors of 3 months (or less), 5 years, 10 years and 20 years (or more), using U.S. Treasury rates. For each tenor, the maximum long-term interest rate will vary over time, based on historical interest rates as they emerge. The formula for the maximum long-term interest rate is the average of the median bond rate over the last 600 months and the average bond rate over the last 120 months, rounded to the nearest quarter of one percent (0.25%).

(iv) The maximum long-term interest rate for a tenor should be recalculated once per year, in January, using historical rates as of December 31 of the calendar year two years prior to the calendar year of the calculation date. The historical rate for each month is the rate reported for the last business day of the month.

(v) Grading to the maximum long-term interest rates should take place over:

(I) No less than 20 years from issue if U.S. Treasury rates as of the illustration date are below the long-term rates; or

(II) No more than 20 years from the issue if the U.S. Treasury rates as of the illustration date ate above the long-term rates.

(vi) When the 10-year U.S. Treasury rate is less than the 10-year maximum long-term interest rate, an additional illustrated dividend scale should be presented. This additional illustrated dividend scale shall satisfy the following conditions:

(I) Assume that reinvestment U.S. Treasury rates do not exceed the initial investment U.S. Treasury rates, and

(II) Illustrate dividends no less than half of the dividends illustrated under the current dividend scales.

(III) If (a) and (b) above are in conflict—i.e., if half of the current dividends are greater than would be permitted by Condition (a)—then the reinvestment U.S. Treasury rates should equal the initial investment U.S. Treasury rates.

(vii) The illustration should include a disclosure that is substantially similar to the following:

The illustrated current dividend scale is based on interest rates that are assumed to gradually [increase/decrease] from current interest rates to long-term interest rates, over a period of [twenty] years. By regulation, the long-term assumed interest rates cannot and do not exceed the rates listed in column (c) of the table below.

(viii) If the illustration contains an additional dividend scale pursuant to subparagraph (vi) above, then the illustration should also include a disclosure that is substantially similar to the following:

The additional illustrated dividend scale is based on interest rates that are assumed no to increase and do not exceed the interest rates in column (b) of the table below.

Tenor	Current Interest Rate	Long Term
	Treasury Rate as of 12/31/2016	Mean Reversed Treasury Rate
3 Month (or less)	0.51%	3.00%
5 Year	1.93%	4.50%
10 Year	2.45%	5.00%
20 Years (or more)	3.06%	5.50%

G. An annuity illustration shall include a narrative summary that includes the following unless provided at the same time in a disclosure document:

(1) A brief description of any contract features, riders or options, guaranteed and/or nonguaranteed, shown in the basic illustration and the impact they may have on the benefits and values of the contract;

(2) A brief description of any other optional benefits or features that are selected, but not shown in the illustration and the impact they have on the benefits and values of the contract;

(3) Identification and a brief definition of column headings and key terms used in the illustration;

(4) A statement containing in substance the following:

(a) For other than fixed indexed annuities:

This illustration assumes the annuity's current nonguaranteed elements will not change. It is likely that they will change and actual values will be higher or lower than those in this illustration but will not be less than the minimum guarantees.

The values in this illustration are not guarantees or even estimates of the amounts you can expect from your annuity. Please review the entire Disclosure Document and Buyer's Guide provided with your Annuity Contract for more detailed information;

(b) For fixed indexed annuities:

This illustration assumes the index will repeat historical performance and that the annuity's current non-guaranteed elements, such as caps, spreads, participation rates or other interest crediting adjustments, will not change. It is likely that the index will not repeat historical performance, the non-guaranteed elements will change, and actual values will be higher or lower than those in this illustration but will not be less than the minimum guarantees.

The values in this illustration are not guarantees or even estimates of the amounts you can expect from your annuity. Please review the entire Disclosure Document and Buyer's Guide provided with your Annuity Contract for more detailed information; and

(5) Additional explanations as follows:

(a) Minimum guarantees shall be clearly explained;

(b) The effect on contract values of contract surrender prior to maturity shall be explained;

(c) Any conditions on the payment of bonuses shall be explained;

(d) For annuities sold as an IRA, qualified plan or in another arrangement subject to the required minimum distribution (RMD) requirements of the Internal Revenue Code, the effect of RMDs on the contract values shall be explained;

(e) For annuities with recurring surrender charge schedules, a clear and concise explanation of what circumstances will cause the surrender charge to recur; and

(f) A brief description of the types of annuity income options available shall be explained, including:

(i) The earliest or only maturity date for annuitization (as the term is defined in the contract);

(ii) For contracts with an optional maturity date, the periodic income amount for at least one of the annuity income options available based on the guaranteed rates in the contract, at the later of age seventy (70) or ten (10) years after issue, but in no case later than the maximum annuitization age or date in the contract;

(iii) For contracts with a fixed maturity date, the periodic income amount for at least one of the annuity income options available, based on the guaranteed rates in the contract at the fixed maturity date; and

(iv) The periodic income amount based on the currently available periodic income rates for the annuity income option in item (ii) or item (iii), if desired.

H. Following the narrative summary, an illustration shall include a numeric summary which shall include at minimum, numeric values at the following durations:

(1) (a) First ten (10) contract years; or

(b) Surrender charge period if longer than ten (10) years, including any renewal surrender charge period(s);

(2) Every tenth contract year up to the later of thirty (30) years or age seventy (70); and

(3) (a) Required annuitization age; or

(b) Required annuitization date.

I. If the annuity contains a market value adjustment, hereafter MVA, the following provisions apply to the illustration:

(1) The MVA shall be referred to as such throughout the illustration;

(2) The narrative shall include an explanation, in simple terms, of the potential effect of the MVA on the value available upon surrender;

(3) The narrative shall include an explanation, in simple terms, of the potential effect of the MVA on the death benefit;

(4) A statement, containing in substance the following, shall be included:

When you make a withdrawal the amount you receive may be increased or decreased by a Market Value Adjustment (MVA). If interest rates on which the MVA is based go up after you buy your annuity, the MVA likely will decrease the amount you receive. If interest rates go down, the MVA will likely increase the amount you receive.

(5) Illustrations shall describe both the upside and the downside aspects of the contract features relating to the market value adjustment;

(6) The illustrative effect of the MVA shall be shown under at least one positive and one negative scenario. This demonstration shall appear on a separate page and be clearly labeled that it is information demonstrating the potential impact of a MVA;

(7) Actual MVA floors and ceilings as listed in the contract shall be illustrated; and

(8) If the MVA has significant characteristics not addressed by Paragraphs (1) – (6), the effect of such characteristics shall be shown in the illustration.

Drafting Note: Appendix A provides an example of an illustration of an annuity containing an MVA that addresses Paragraphs (1) – (6) above.

J. A narrative summary for a fixed indexed annuity illustration also shall include the following unless provided at the same time in a disclosure document:

(1) An explanation, in simple terms, of the elements used to determine the index-based interest, including but not limited to, the following elements:

(a) The Index(es) which will be used to determine the index-based interest;

(b) The Indexing Method – such as point-to-point, daily averaging, monthly averaging;

(c) The Index Term – the period over which indexed-based interest is calculated;

(d) The Participation Rate, if applicable;

(e) The Cap, if applicable; and

(f) The Spread, if applicable;

(2) The narrative shall include an explanation, in simple terms, of how index-based interest is credited in the indexed annuity;

(3) The narrative shall include a brief description of the frequency with which the company can re-set the elements used to determine the index-based credits, including the participation rate, the cap, and the spread, if applicable; and

(4) If the product allows the contract holder to make allocations to declared-rate segment, then the narrative shall include a brief description of:

(a) Any options to make allocations to a declared-rate segment, both for new premiums and for transfers from the indexed-based segments; and

(b) Differences in guarantees applicable to the declared-rate segment and the indexed-based segments.

K. A numeric summary for a fixed indexed annuity illustration shall include, at a minimum, the following elements:

(1) The assumed growth rate of the index in accordance with Subsection F(9);

(2) The assumed values for the participation rate, cap and spread, if applicable; and

(3) The assumed allocation between indexed-based segments and declared-rate segment, if applicable, in accordance with Subsection F(9).

L. If the contract is issued other than as applied for, a revised illustration conforming to the contract as issued shall be sent with the contract, except that non-substantive changes, including, but not limited to changes in the amount of expected initial or additional premiums and any changes in amounts of exchanges pursuant to Section 1035 of the Internal Revenue Code, rollovers or transfers, which do not alter the key benefits and features of the annuity as applied for will not require a revised illustration unless requested by the applicant.

Section 7. Report to Contract Owners

For annuities in the payout period that include non-guaranteed elements, and for deferred annuities in the accumulation period, the insurer shall provide each contract owner with a report, at least annually, on the status of the contract that contains at least the following information:

A. The beginning and end date of the current report period;

B. The accumulation and cash surrender value, if any, at the end of the previous report period and at the end of the current report period;

C. The total amounts, if any, that have been credited, charged to the contract value or paid during the current report period; and

D. The amount of outstanding loans, if any, as of the end of the current report period.

Section 8. Penalties

In addition to any other penalties provided by the laws of this state, an insurer or producer that violates a requirement of this regulation shall be guilty of a violation of Section [cite state's unfair trade practices act].

Section 9. Separability

If any provision of this regulation or its application to any person or circumstance is for any reason held to be invalid by any court of law, the remainder of the regulation and its application to other persons or circumstances shall not be affected.

Section 10. [Optional] Recordkeeping

A. Insurers or insurance producers shall maintain or be able to make available to the commissioner records of the information collected from the consumer and other information provided in the disclosure statement (including illustrations) for [insert number] years after the contract is delivered by the insurer. An insurer is permitted, but shall not be required, to maintain documentation on behalf of an insurance producer.

Drafting Note: States should review their current record retention laws and specify a time period that is consistent with those laws.

B. Records required to be maintained by this regulation may be maintained in paper, photographic, microprocess, magnetic, mechanical or electronic media or by any process that accurately reproduces the actual document.

Drafting Note: This section may be unnecessary in States that have a comprehensive recordkeeping law or regulation.

Section 11. Effective Date

This regulation shall become effective [insert effective date] and shall apply to contracts sold on or after the effective date.

Column Descriptions

(1) Ages shown are measured from the Annuitant's age at issue

(2) Premium Payments are assumed to be made at the beginning of the Contract Year shown

Values Based on Guaranteed Rates

(3) Interest Crediting Rates shown are annual rates; however, interest is credited daily. During the Initial Interest Guarantee Period, values developed from the Initial Premium Payment are illustrated using the Initial Guaranteed Interest Rate(s) declared by the insurance company, which include an additional first year only interest bonus credit of 0.75%. The interest rates will be guaranteed for the Initial Interest Guarantee Period, subject to an MVA. After the Initial Interest Guarantee Period, a new renewal interest rate will be declared annually, but can never be less than the Minimum Guaranteed Interest Rate shown.

(4) Account Value is the amount you have at the end of each year if you leave your money in the contract until you start receiving annuity payments. It is also the amount available upon the Annuitant's death if it occurs before annuity payments begin. The death benefit is not affected by surrender charges or the MVA.

(5) Cash Surrender Value Before MVA is the amount available at the end of each year if you surrender the contract (after deduction of any Surrender Charge) but before the application of any MVA. Surrender charges are applied to the Account Value according to the schedule below until the surrender charge period ends, which may be after the Initial Interest Guarantee Period has ended.

Years Measured from Premium Payment:	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8+
Surrender Charges:	8%	7%	6%	5%	4%	3%	2%	0%

(6) Minimum Cash Surrender Value After MVA is the minimum amount available at the end of each year if you surrender your contract before the end of five years, no matter what the MVA is. The minimum is set by law. The amount you receive may be higher or lower than the cash surrender value due to the application of the MVA, but never lower than this minimum. Otherwise the MVA works as follows: If the interest rate available on new contracts offered by the company is LOWER than your Initial Guaranteed Interest Rate, the MVA will INCREASE the amount you receive. If the interest rate available on new contracts offered by the company is HIGHER than your initial guaranteed interest rate, the MVA will DECREASE the amount you receive. Page 4 of this illustration provides additional information concerning the MVA.

Values Based on Assumption that Initial Guaranteed Rates Continue

(7) Interest Crediting Rates are the same as in Column (3) for the Initial Interest Guarantee Period. After the Initial Interest Guarantee Period, a new renewal interest rate will be declared annually. For the purposes of calculating the values in this column, it is assumed that the Initial Guaranteed Interest Rate (without the bonus) will continue as the new renewal interest rate in all years. The actual renewal interest rates are not subject to an MVA and will very likely NOT be the same as the illustrated renewal interest rates.

(8) Account Value is calculated the same way as column (4).

(9) Cash Surrender Value Before and After MVA is the Cash Surrender Value at the end of each year assuming that Initial Guaranteed Interest Rates continue, and that the continuing rates are the rates offered by the company on new contracts. In this case the MVA would be zero, and Cash Surrender Values before and after the MVA would be the same.

Important Note: This illustration assumes you will take no withdrawals from your annuity before you begin to receive periodic income payments. Withdrawals will reduce both the annuity Account Value and the Cash Surrender Value. You may make partial withdrawals of up to 10% of your account value each contract year without paying surrender charges. Excess withdrawals (above 10%) and full withdrawals will be subject to surrender charges.

This illustration assumes the annuity's current interest crediting rates will not change. It is likely that they will change and actual values may be higher or lower than those in the illustration.

The values in this illustration are not guarantees or even estimates of the amounts you can expect from your annuity. For more information, read the annuity disclosure and annuity buyer's guide.

MVA-adjusted Cash Surrender Values (CSVs) Under Sample Scenarios

The graphs below shows MVA-adjusted Cash Surrender Values (CSVs) during the first five years of the contract, as illustrated on page 2 ($100,000 single premium, a 5-year MVA Period) under two sample scenarios, as described below.

Graph #1 shows if the interest rate on new contracts is 3% LOWER than your Initial Guaranteed Interest Rate, the MVA will increase the amount you receive (green line). The pink line shows the Cash Surrender Values if the Initial Guaranteed Interest Rates continue (from Column (9) on Page 2).

Graph #2 shows if the interest rate on new contracts is 3% HIGHER than your Initial Guaranteed Interest Rate, the MVA will decrease the amount you receive, but not below the minimum set by law (Column (6) on Page 2), which in this scenario limits the decrease for the first 2 years (yellow line). The pink line shows the Cash Surrender Values if the Initial Guaranteed Interest Rates continue (from Column (9) on Page 2).

These graphs and the sample guaranteed interest rates on new contracts used are for demonstration purposes only and are not intended to be a projection of how guaranteed interest rates on new contracts are likely to behave.

ANNUITY DISCLOSURE MODEL REGULATION

The NAIC amended this model during the 2013 Fall National Meeting. These amendments were adopted as guidelines under the NAIC's model laws process. The December 2013 Guideline Amendments are highlighted in grey.

Table of Contents

Section 1. Purpose

The purpose of this regulation is to provide standards for the disclosure of certain minimum information about annuity contracts to protect consumers and foster consumer education. The regulation specifies the minimum information which must be disclosed, the method for disclosing it and the use and content of illustrations, if used, in connection with the sale of annuity contracts. The goal of this regulation is to ensure that purchasers of annuity contracts understand certain basic features of annuity contracts.

Section 2. Authority

This regulation is issued based upon the authority granted the commissioner under Section [cite any enabling legislation and state law corresponding to Section 4 of the NAIC Unfair Trade Practices Act].

Section 3. Applicability and Scope

This regulation applies to all group and individual annuity contracts and certificates except:

A. Immediate and deferred annuities that contain no non-guaranteed elements;

B. (1) Annuities used to fund:

(a) An employee pension plan which is covered by the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA);

(b) A plan described by Sections 401(a), 401(k) or 403(b) of the Internal Revenue Code, where the plan, for purposes of ERISA, is established or maintained by an employer,

(c) A governmental or church plan defined in Section 414 or a deferred compensation plan of a state or local government or a tax exempt organization under Section 457 of the Internal Revenue Code; or

(d) A nonqualified deferred compensation arrangement established or maintained by an employer or plan sponsor.

(2) Notwithstanding Paragraph (1), the regulation shall apply to annuities used to fund a plan or arrangement that is funded solely by contributions an employee elects to make whether on a pre-tax or after-tax basis, and where the insurance company has been notified that plan participants may choose from among two (2) or more fixed annuity providers and there is a direct solicitation of an individual employee by a producer for the purchase of an annuity contract. As used in this subsection, direct solicitation shall not include any meeting held by a producer solely for the purpose of educating or enrolling employees in the plan or arrangement;

C. Non-registered variable annuities issued exclusively to an accredited investor or qualified purchaser as those terms are defined by the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. Section 77a et seq.), the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. Section 80a-1 et seq.), or the regulations promulgated under either of those acts, and offered for sale and sold in a transaction that is exempt from registration under the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. Section 77a et seq.).

D. (1) Transactions involving variable annuities and other registered products in compliance with Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) rules and Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) rules relating to disclosures and illustrations, provided that compliance with Section 5 shall be required after January 1, 2014, unless, or until such time as, the SEC has adopted a summary prospectus rule or FINRA has approved for use a simplified disclosure form applicable to variable annuities or other registered products.

Drafting Note: States should be aware that the provision in paragraph (1) above requiring transactions involving variable annuities and other registered products to comply with the requirements of Section 5 of the regulation after Jan. 1, 2014 unless the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) adopts a summary prospectus rule or the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) approves for use a simplified disclosure form applicable to variable annuities or other registered products could be preempted by the National Securities Markets Improvement Act of 1996 (NSMIA). NSMIA prohibits the States from making laws establishing record-making or record-keeping requirements for broker-dealers. Given this, in adopting this regulation, States may want to omit the language in paragraph (1) above that eliminates the exemption for these transactions after Jan. 1, 2014 and, as a consequence, would require broker-dealers to comply with Section 5 of this regulation unless or until the SEC or FINRA takes the delineated action. States should consider only adopting the language from paragraph (1) above that exempts transactions involving variable annuities and other registered products in compliance with the SEC and FINRA rules relating to disclosures and illustrations from having to comply with the regulation.

(2) Notwithstanding Subsection D(1), the delivery of the Buyer's Guide is required in sales of variable annuities, and when appropriate, in sales of other registered products.

Drafting Note: The requirement to provide a Buyer's Guide would not be appropriate for contingent deferred annuities unless, or until such time as, the NAIC adopts a Buyer's Guide that specifically addresses contingent deferred annuities.

(3) Nothing in this subsection shall limit the commissioner's ability to enforce the provisions of this regulation or to require additional disclosure.

E. Structured settlement annuities;

F. [Charitable gift annuities; and]

G. [Funding agreements].

Drafting Note: States that regulate charitable gift annuities should exempt them from the requirements of this regulation. States that recognize or regulate funding agreements as annuities should exempt them from the requirements of this regulation.

Section 4. Definitions

For the purposes of this regulation:

A. "Buyer's Guide" means the National Association of Insurance Commissioner's approved Annuity Buyer's Guide.

B. ["Charitable gift annuity" means a transfer of cash or other property by a donor to a charitable organization in return for an annuity payable over one or two lives, under which the actuarial value of the annuity is less than the value of the cash or other property transferred and the difference in value constitutes a charitable deduction for federal tax purposes, but does not include a charitable remainder trust or a charitable lead trust or other similar arrangement where the charitable organization does not issue an annuity and incur a financial obligation to guarantee annuity payments.]

C. "Contract owner" means the owner named in the annuity contract or certificate holder in the case of a group annuity contract.

D. "Determinable elements" means elements that are derived from processes or methods that are guaranteed at issue and not subject to company discretion, but where the values or amounts cannot be determined until some point after issue. These elements include the premiums, credited interest rates (including any bonus), benefits, values, non-interest based credits, charges or elements of formulas used to determine any of these. These elements may be described as guaranteed but not determined at issue. An element is considered determinable if it was calculated from underlying determinable elements only, or from both determinable and guaranteed elements.

E. ["Funding agreement" means an agreement for an insurer to accept and accumulate funds and to make one or more payments at future dates in amounts that are not based on mortality or morbidity contingencies.]

F. "Generic name" means a short title descriptive of the annuity contract being applied for or illustrated such as "single premium deferred annuity."

G. "Guaranteed elements" means the premiums, credited interest rates (including any bonus), benefits, values, non-interest based credits, charges or elements of formulas used to determine any of these, that are guaranteed or have determinable elements at issue. An element is considered guaranteed if all of the underlying elements that go into its calculation are guaranteed.

H. "Illustration" means a personalized presentation or depiction prepared for and provided to an individual consumer that includes non-guaranteed elements of an annuity contract over a period of years.

I. "Market Value Adjustment" or "MVA" feature is a positive or negative adjustment that may be applied to the account value and/or cash value of the annuity upon withdrawal, surrender, contract annuitization or death benefit payment based on either the movement of an external index or on the company's current guaranteed interest rate being offered on new premiums or new rates for renewal periods, if that withdrawal, surrender, contract annuitization or death benefit payment occurs at a time other than on a specified guaranteed benefit date.

K. "Non-guaranteed elements" means the premiums, credited interest rates (including any bonus), benefits, values, dividends, non-interest based credits, charges or elements of formulas used to determine any of these, that are subject to company discretion and are not guaranteed at issue. An element is considered non-guaranteed if any of the underlying non-guaranteed elements are used in its calculation.

L. "Registered product" means an annuity contract or life insurance policy subject to the prospectus delivery requirements of the Securities Act of 1933.

Drafting Note: Registered products include, but are not limited to, contingent deferred annuities.

L. "Structured settlement annuity" means a "qualified funding asset" as defined in section 130(d) of the Internal Revenue Code or an annuity that would be a qualified funding asset under section 130(d) but for the fact that it is not owned by an assignee under a qualified assignment.

Section 5. Standards for the Disclosure Document and Buyer's Guide

A. (1) Where the application for an annuity contract is taken in a face-to-face meeting, the applicant shall at or before the time of application be given both the disclosure document described in Subsection B and the Buyer's Guide, if any.

(2) Where the application for an annuity contract is taken by means other than in a face-to-face meeting, the applicant shall be sent both the disclosure document and the Buyer's Guide no later than five (5) business days after the completed application is received by the insurer.

(a) With respect to an application received as a result of a direct solicitation through the mail:

(i) Providing a Buyer's Guide in a mailing inviting prospective applicants to apply for an annuity contract shall be deemed to satisfy the requirement that the Buyer's Guide be provided no later than five (5) business days after receipt of the application.

(ii) Providing a disclosure document in a mailing inviting a prospective applicant to apply for an annuity contract shall be deemed to satisfy the requirement that the disclosure document be provided no later than five (5) business days after receipt of the application.

(b) With respect to an application received via the Internet:

(i) Taking reasonable steps to make the Buyer's Guide available for viewing and printing on the insurer's website shall be deemed to satisfy the requirement that the Buyer's Guide be provided no later than five (5) business day of receipt of the application.

(ii) Taking reasonable steps to make the disclosure document available for viewing and printing on the insurer's website shall be deemed to satisfy the requirement that the disclosure document be provided no later than five (5) business days after receipt of the application.

(c) A solicitation for an annuity contract provided in other than a face-to-face meeting shall include a statement that the proposed applicant may contact the insurance department of the state for a free annuity Buyer's Guide. In lieu of the foregoing statement, an insurer may include a statement that the prospective applicant may contact the insurer for a free annuity Buyer's Guide.

(d) Where the Buyer's Guide and disclosure document are not provided at or before the time of application, a free look period of no less than fifteen (15) days shall be provided for the applicant to return the annuity contract without penalty. This free look shall run concurrently with any other free look provided under state law or regulation.

B. At a minimum, the following information shall be included in the disclosure document required to be provided under this regulation:

(1) The generic name of the contract, the company product name, if different, and form number, and the fact that it is an annuity;

(2) The insurer's legal name, physical address, website address and telephone number;

(3) A description of the contract and its benefits, emphasizing its long-term nature, including examples where appropriate:

(a) The guaranteed and non-guaranteed elements of the contract, and their limitations, if any, including for fixed indexed annuities, the elements used to determine the index-based interest, such as the participation rates, caps or spread, and an explanation of how they operate;

(b) An explanation of the initial crediting rate, or for fixed indexed annuities, an explanation of how the index-based interest is determined, specifying any bonus or introductory portion, the duration of the rate and the fact that rates may change from time to time and are not guaranteed;

(c) Periodic income options both on a guaranteed and non-guaranteed basis;

(d) Any value reductions caused by withdrawals from or surrender of the contract;

(e) How values in the contract can be accessed;

(f) The death benefit, if available and how it will be calculated;

(g) A summary of the federal tax status of the contract and any penalties applicable on withdrawal of values from the contract; and

(h) Impact of any rider, including, but not limited to, a guaranteed living benefit or long-term care rider;

(4) Specific dollar amount or percentage charges and fees shall be listed with an explanation of how they apply; and

(5) Information about the current guaranteed rate or indexed crediting rate formula, if applicable, for new contracts that contains a clear notice that the rate is subject to change.

C. Insurers shall define terms used in the disclosure statement in language that facilitates the understanding by a typical person within the segment of the public to which the disclosure statement is directed.

Section 6. Standards for Annuity Illustrations

A. An insurer or producer may elect to provide a consumer an illustration at any time, provided that the illustration is in compliance with this section and:

(1) Clearly labeled as an illustration;

(2) Includes a statement referring consumers to the disclosure document and Buyer's Guide provided to them at time of purchase for additional information about their annuity; and

(3) Is prepared by the insurer or third party using software that is authorized by the insurer prior to its use, provided that the insurer maintains a system of control over the use of illustrations.

B. An illustration furnished an applicant for a group annuity contract or contracts issued to a single applicant on multiple lives may be either an individual or composite illustration representative of the coverage on the lives of members of the group or the multiple lives covered.

C. The illustration shall not be provided unless accompanied by the disclosure document referenced in Section 5.

D. When using an illustration, the illustration shall not:

(1) Describe non-guaranteed elements in a manner that is misleading or has the capacity or tendency to mislead;

(2) State or imply that the payment or amount of non-guaranteed elements is guaranteed; or

(3) Be incomplete.

E. Costs and fees of any type shall be individually noted and explained.

F. An illustration shall conform to the following requirements:

(1) The illustration shall be labeled with the date on which it was prepared;

(2) Each page, including any explanatory notes or pages, shall be numbered and show its relationship to the total number of pages in the disclosure document (e.g., the fourth page of a seven-page disclosure document shall be labeled "page 4 of 7 pages");

(3) The assumed dates of premium receipt and benefit payout within a contract year shall be clearly identified;

(4) If the age of the proposed insured is shown as a component of the tabular detail, it shall be issue age plus the numbers of years the contract is assumed to have been in force;

(5) The assumed premium on which the illustrated benefits and values are based shall be clearly identified, including rider premium for any benefits being illustrated;

(6) Any charges for riders or other contract features assessed against the account value or the crediting rate shall be recognized in the illustrated values and shall be accompanied by a statement indicating the nature of the rider benefits or the contract features, and whether or not they are included in the illustration;

(7) Guaranteed death benefits and values available upon surrender, if any, for the illustrated contract premium shall be shown and clearly labeled guaranteed;

(8) The non-guaranteed elements underlying the non-guaranteed illustrated values shall be no more favorable than current non-guaranteed elements and shall not include any assumed future improvement of such elements. Additionally, non-guaranteed elements used in calculating non-guaranteed illustrated values at any future duration shall reflect any planned changes, including any planned changes that may occur after expiration of an initial guaranteed or bonus period;

(9) In determining the non-guaranteed illustrated values for a fixed indexed annuity, the index-based interest rate and account value shall be calculated for three different scenarios: one to reflect historical performance of the index for the most recent ten (10) calendar years; one to reflect the historical performance of the index for the continuous period of ten (10) calendar years out of the last twenty (20) calendar years that would result in the least index value growth (the "low scenario"); one to reflect the historical performance of the index for the continuous period of ten (10) calendar years out of the last twenty (20) calendar years that would result in the most index value growth (the "high scenario"). The following requirements apply:

(a) The most recent ten (10) calendar years and the last twenty (20) calendar years are defined to end on the prior December 31, except for illustrations prepared during the first three (3) months of the year, for which the end date of the calendar year period may be the December 31 prior to the last full calendar year;

(b) If any index utilized in determination of an account value has not been in existence for at least ten (10) calendar years, indexed returns for that index shall not be illustrated. If the fixed indexed annuity provides an option to allocate account value to more than one indexed or fixed declared rate account, and one or more of those indexes has not been in existence for at least ten (10) calendar years, the allocation to such indexed account(s) shall be assumed to be zero;

(c) If any index utilized in determination of an account value has been in existence for at least ten (10) calendar years but less than twenty (20) calendar years, the ten (10) calendar year periods that define the low and high scenarios shall be chosen from the exact number of years the index has been in existence;

(d) The non-guaranteed element(s), such as caps, spreads, participation rates or other interest crediting adjustments, used in calculating the non-guaranteed index-based interest rate shall be no more favorable than the corresponding current element(s);

(e) If a fixed indexed annuity provides an option to allocate the account value to more than one indexed or fixed declared rate account:

(i) The allocation used in the illustration shall be the same for all three scenarios; and

(ii) The ten (10) calendar year periods resulting in the least and greatest index growth periods shall be determined independently for each indexed account option.

(f) The geometric mean annual effective rate of the account value growth over the ten (10) calendar year period shall be shown for each scenario;

(g) If the most recent ten (10) calendar year historical period experience of the index is shorter than the number of years needed to fulfill the requirement of subsection H, the most recent ten (10) calendar year historical period experience of the index shall be used for each subsequent ten (10) calendar year period beyond the initial period for the purpose of calculating the account value for the remaining years of the illustration;

(h) The low and high scenarios: (i) need not show surrender values (if different than account values); (ii) shall not extend beyond ten (10) calendar years (and therefore are not subject to the requirements of subsection H beyond subsection H(1)(a)); and (iii) may be shown on a separate page. A graphical presentation shall also be included comparing the movement of the account value over the ten (10) calendar year period for the low scenario, the high scenario and the most recent ten (10) calendar year scenario; and

(i) The low and high scenarios should reflect the irregular nature of the index performance and should trigger every type of adjustment to the index-based interest rate under the contract. The effect of the adjustments should be clear; for example, additional columns showing how the adjustment applied may be included. If an adjustment to the index-based interest rate is not triggered in the illustration (because no historical values of the index in the required illustration range would have triggered it), the illustration shall so state;

(10) The guaranteed elements, if any, shall be shown before corresponding non-guaranteed elements and shall be specifically referred to on any page of an illustration that shows or describes only the non-guaranteed elements (e.g., "see page 1 for guaranteed elements");

(11) The account or accumulation value of a contract, if shown, shall be identified by the name this value is given in the contract being illustrated and shown in close proximity to the corresponding value available upon surrender;

(12) The value available upon surrender shall be identified by the name this value is given in the contract being illustrated and shall be the amount available to the contract owner in a lump sum after deduction of surrender charges, bonus forfeitures, contract loans, contract loan interest and application of any market value adjustment, as applicable;

(13) Illustrations may show contract benefits and values in graphic or chart form in addition to the tabular form;

(14) Any illustration of non-guaranteed elements shall be accompanied by a statement indicating that:

(a) The benefits and values are not guaranteed;

(b) The assumptions on which they are based are subject to change by the insurer; and

(c) Actual results may be higher or lower;

(15) Illustrations based on non-guaranteed credited interest and non-guaranteed annuity income rates shall contain equally prominent comparisons to guaranteed credited interest and guaranteed annuity income rates, including any guaranteed and non-guaranteed participation rates, caps or spreads for fixed indexed annuities;

(16) The annuity income rate illustrated shall not be greater than the current annuity income rate unless the contract guarantees are in fact more favorable;

(17) Illustrations shall be concise and easy to read;

(18) Key terms shall be defined and then used consistently throughout the illustration;

(19) Illustrations shall not depict values beyond the maximum annuitization age or date;

(20) Annuitization benefits shall be based on contract values that reflect surrender charges or any other adjustments, if applicable; and

(21) Illustrations shall show both annuity income rates per $1000.00 and the dollar amounts of the periodic income payable.

G. An annuity illustration shall include a narrative summary that includes the following unless provided at the same time in a disclosure document:

(1) A brief description of any contract features, riders or options, guaranteed and/or nonguaranteed, shown in the basic illustration and the impact they may have on the benefits and values of the contract;

(2) A brief description of any other optional benefits or features that are selected, but not shown in the illustration and the impact they have on the benefits and values of the contract;

(3) Identification and a brief definition of column headings and key terms used in the illustration;

(4) A statement containing in substance the following:

(a) For other than fixed indexed annuities:

This illustration assumes the annuity's current nonguaranteed elements will not change. It is likely that they will change and actual values will be higher or lower than those in this illustration but will not be less than the minimum guarantees.

The values in this illustration are not guarantees or even estimates of the amounts you can expect from your annuity. Please review the entire Disclosure Document and Buyer's Guide provided with your Annuity Contract for more detailed information;

(b) For fixed indexed annuities:

This illustration assumes the index will repeat historical performance and that the annuity's current non-guaranteed elements, such as caps, spreads, participation rates or other interest crediting adjustments, will not change. It is likely that the index will not repeat historical performance, the non-guaranteed elements will change, and actual values will be higher or lower than those in this illustration but will not be less than the minimum guarantees.

The values in this illustration are not guarantees or even estimates of the amounts you can expect from your annuity. Please review the entire Disclosure Document and Buyer's Guide provided with your Annuity Contract for more detailed information; and

(5) Additional explanations as follows:

(a) Minimum guarantees shall be clearly explained;

(b) The effect on contract values of contract surrender prior to maturity shall be explained;

(c) Any conditions on the payment of bonuses shall be explained;

(d) For annuities sold as an IRA, qualified plan or in another arrangement subject to the required minimum distribution (RMD) requirements of the Internal Revenue Code, the effect of RMDs on the contract values shall be explained;

(e) For annuities with recurring surrender charge schedules, a clear and concise explanation of what circumstances will cause the surrender charge to recur; and

(f) A brief description of the types of annuity income options available shall be explained, including:

(i) The earliest or only maturity date for annuitization (as the term is defined in the contract);

(ii) For contracts with an optional maturity date, the periodic income amount for at least one of the annuity income options available based on the guaranteed rates in the contract, at the later of age seventy (70) or ten (10) years after issue, but in no case later than the maximum annuitization age or date in the contract;

(iii) For contracts with a fixed maturity date, the periodic income amount for at least one of the annuity income options available, based on the guaranteed rates in the contract at the fixed maturity date; and

(iv) The periodic income amount based on the currently available periodic income rates for the annuity income option in item (ii) or item (iii), if desired.

H. Following the narrative summary, an illustration shall include a numeric summary which shall include at minimum, numeric values at the following durations:

(1) (a) First ten (10) contract years; or

(b) Surrender charge period if longer than ten (10) years, including any renewal surrender charge period(s);

(2) Every tenth contract year up to the later of thirty (30) years or age seventy (70); and

(3) (a) Required annuitization age; or

(b) Required annuitization date.

I. If the annuity contains a market value adjustment, hereafter MVA, the following provisions apply to the illustration:

(1) The MVA shall be referred to as such throughout the illustration;

(2) The narrative shall include an explanation, in simple terms, of the potential effect of the MVA on the value available upon surrender;

(3) The narrative shall include an explanation, in simple terms, of the potential effect of the MVA on the death benefit;

(4) A statement, containing in substance the following, shall be included:

When you make a withdrawal the amount you receive may be increased or decreased by a Market Value Adjustment (MVA). If interest rates on which the MVA is based go up after you buy your annuity, the MVA likely will decrease the amount you receive. If interest rates go down, the MVA will likely increase the amount you receive.

(5) Illustrations shall describe both the upside and the downside aspects of the contract features relating to the market value adjustment;

(6) The illustrative effect of the MVA shall be shown under at least one positive and one negative scenario. This demonstration shall appear on a separate page and be clearly labeled that it is information demonstrating the potential impact of a MVA;

(7) Actual MVA floors and ceilings as listed in the contract shall be illustrated; and

(8) If the MVA has significant characteristics not addressed by Paragraphs (1) – (6), the effect of such characteristics shall be shown in the illustration.

Drafting Note: Appendix A provides an example of an illustration of an annuity containing an MVA that addresses Paragraphs (1) – (6) above.

J. A narrative summary for a fixed indexed annuity illustration also shall include the following unless provided at the same time in a disclosure document:

(1) An explanation, in simple terms, of the elements used to determine the index-based interest, including but not limited to, the following elements:

(a) The Index(es) which will be used to determine the index-based interest;

(b) The Indexing Method – such as point-to-point, daily averaging, monthly averaging;

(c) The Index Term – the period over which indexed-based interest is calculated;

(d) The Participation Rate, if applicable;

(e) The Cap, if applicable; and

(f) The Spread, if applicable;

(2) The narrative shall include an explanation, in simple terms, of how index-based interest is credited in the indexed annuity;

(3) The narrative shall include a brief description of the frequency with which the company can re-set the elements used to determine the index-based credits, including the participation rate, the cap, and the spread, if applicable; and

(4) If the product allows the contract holder to make allocations to declared-rate segment, then the narrative shall include a brief description of:

(a) Any options to make allocations to a declared-rate segment, both for new premiums and for transfers from the indexed-based segments; and

(b) Differences in guarantees applicable to the declared-rate segment and the indexed-based segments.

K. A numeric summary for a fixed indexed annuity illustration shall include, at a minimum, the following elements:

(1) The assumed growth rate of the index in accordance with Subsection F(9);

(2) The assumed values for the participation rate, cap and spread, if applicable; and

(3) The assumed allocation between indexed-based segments and declared-rate segment, if applicable, in accordance with Subsection F(9).

L. If the contract is issued other than as applied for, a revised illustration conforming to the contract as issued shall be sent with the contract, except that non-substantive changes, including, but not limited to changes in the amount of expected initial or additional premiums and any changes in amounts of exchanges pursuant to Section 1035 of the Internal Revenue Code, rollovers or transfers, which do not alter the key benefits and features of the annuity as applied for will not require a revised illustration unless requested by the applicant.

Section 7. Report to Contract Owners

For annuities in the payout period that include non-guaranteed elements, and for deferred annuities in the accumulation period, the insurer shall provide each contract owner with a report, at least annually, on the status of the contract that contains at least the following information:

A. The beginning and end date of the current report period;

B. The accumulation and cash surrender value, if any, at the end of the previous report period and at the end of the current report period;

C. The total amounts, if any, that have been credited, charged to the contract value or paid during the current report period; and

D. The amount of outstanding loans, if any, as of the end of the current report period.

Section 8. Penalties

In addition to any other penalties provided by the laws of this state, an insurer or producer that violates a requirement of this regulation shall be guilty of a violation of Section [cite state's unfair trade practices act].

Section 9. Separability

If any provision of this regulation or its application to any person or circumstance is for any reason held to be invalid by any court of law, the remainder of the regulation and its application to other persons or circumstances shall not be affected.

Section 10. [Optional] Recordkeeping

A. Insurers or insurance producers shall maintain or be able to make available to the commissioner records of the information collected from the consumer and other information provided in the disclosure statement (including illustrations) for [insert number] years after the contract is delivered by the insurer. An insurer is permitted, but shall not be required, to maintain documentation on behalf of an insurance producer.

Drafting Note: States should review their current record retention laws and specify a time period that is consistent with those laws.

B. Records required to be maintained by this regulation may be maintained in paper, photographic, microprocess, magnetic, mechanical or electronic media or by any process that accurately reproduces the actual document.

Drafting Note: This section may be unnecessary in States that have a comprehensive recordkeeping law or regulation.

Section 11. Effective Date

This regulation shall become effective [insert effective date] and shall apply to contracts sold on or after the effective date.

Column Descriptions

(1) Ages shown are measured from the Annuitant's age at issue

(2) Premium Payments are assumed to be made at the beginning of the Contract Year shown

Values Based on Guaranteed Rates

(3) Interest Crediting Rates shown are annual rates; however, interest is credited daily. During the Initial Interest Guarantee Period, values developed from the Initial Premium Payment are illustrated using the Initial Guaranteed Interest Rate(s) declared by the insurance company, which include an additional first year only interest bonus credit of 0.75%. The interest rates will be guaranteed for the Initial Interest Guarantee Period, subject to an MVA. After the Initial Interest Guarantee Period, a new renewal interest rate will be declared annually, but can never be less than the Minimum Guaranteed Interest Rate shown.

(4) Account Value is the amount you have at the end of each year if you leave your money in the contract until you start receiving annuity payments. It is also the amount available upon the Annuitant's death if it occurs before annuity payments begin. The death benefit is not affected by surrender charges or the MVA.

(5) Cash Surrender Value Before MVA is the amount available at the end of each year if you surrender the contract (after deduction of any Surrender Charge) but before the application of any MVA. Surrender charges are applied to the Account Value according to the schedule below until the surrender charge period ends, which may be after the Initial Interest Guarantee Period has ended.

Years Measured from Premium Payment:	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8+
Surrender Charges:	8%	7%	6%	5%	4%	3%	2%	0%

(6) Minimum Cash Surrender Value After MVA is the minimum amount available at the end of each year if you surrender your contract before the end of five years, no matter what the MVA is. The minimum is set by law. The amount you receive may be higher or lower than the cash surrender value due to the application of the MVA, but never lower than this minimum. Otherwise the MVA works as follows: If the interest rate available on new contracts offered by the company is LOWER than your Initial Guaranteed Interest Rate, the MVA will INCREASE the amount you receive. If the interest rate available on new contracts offered by the company is HIGHER than your initial guaranteed interest rate, the MVA will DECREASE the amount you receive. Page 4 of this illustration provides additional information concerning the MVA.

Values Based on Assumption that Initial Guaranteed Rates Continue

(7) Interest Crediting Rates are the same as in Column (3) for the Initial Interest Guarantee Period. After the Initial Interest Guarantee Period, a new renewal interest rate will be declared annually. For the purposes of calculating the values in this column, it is assumed that the Initial Guaranteed Interest Rate (without the bonus) will continue as the new renewal interest rate in all years. The actual renewal interest rates are not subject to an MVA and will very likely NOT be the same as the illustrated renewal interest rates.

(8) Account Value is calculated the same way as column (4).

(9) Cash Surrender Value Before and After MVA is the Cash Surrender Value at the end of each year assuming that Initial Guaranteed Interest Rates continue, and that the continuing rates are the rates offered by the company on new contracts. In this case the MVA would be zero, and Cash Surrender Values before and after the MVA would be the same.

Important Note: This illustration assumes you will take no withdrawals from your annuity before you begin to receive periodic income payments. Withdrawals will reduce both the annuity Account Value and the Cash Surrender Value. You may make partial withdrawals of up to 10% of your account value each contract year without paying surrender charges. Excess withdrawals (above 10%) and full withdrawals will be subject to surrender charges.

This illustration assumes the annuity's current interest crediting rates will not change. It is likely that they will change and actual values may be higher or lower than those in the illustration.

The values in this illustration are not guarantees or even estimates of the amounts you can expect from your annuity. For more information, read the annuity disclosure and annuity buyer's guide.

MVA-adjusted Cash Surrender Values (CSVs) Under Sample Scenarios

The graphs below shows MVA-adjusted Cash Surrender Values (CSVs) during the first five years of the contract, as illustrated on page 2 ($100,000 single premium, a 5-year MVA Period) under two sample scenarios, as described below.

Graph #1 shows if the interest rate on new contracts is 3% LOWER than your Initial Guaranteed Interest Rate, the MVA will increase the amount you receive (green line). The pink line shows the Cash Surrender Values if the Initial Guaranteed Interest Rates continue (from Column (9) on Page 2).

Graph #2 shows if the interest rate on new contracts is 3% HIGHER than your Initial Guaranteed Interest Rate, the MVA will decrease the amount you receive, but not below the minimum set by law (Column (6) on Page 2), which in this scenario limits the decrease for the first 2 years (yellow line). The pink line shows the Cash Surrender Values if the Initial Guaranteed Interest Rates continue (from Column (9) on Page 2).

These graphs and the sample guaranteed interest rates on new contracts used are for demonstration purposes only and are not intended to be a projection of how guaranteed interest rates on new contracts are likely to behave.

ANNUITY DISCLOSURE MODEL REGULATION

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. To perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

Who do I speak to if I have questions?

If you have questions or believe information related to a state should be updated, please contact Jennifer Neuerburg at jneuerburg@naic.org.

Disclaimer: This chart does not constitute a formal legal opinion by the NAIC staff on the provisions of state law and should not be relied upon as such. Nor does this state page reflect a determination as to whether a state meets any applicable accreditation standards. Every effort has been made to provide correct and accurate summaries to assist readers in locating useful information. Readers should consult state law for further details and for the most current information.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2021

ANNUITY DISCLOSURE MODEL REGULATION (#245)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

The Annuity Disclosure Model Regulation (#245) was revised to address its application to participating income annuities.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Annuity Disclosure (A) Working Group of the Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee was responsible for drafting the revisions.

States Participating:

Mike Yanacheak, Chair	Iowa
Chris Struk	Florida
Julie Holmes and Craig VanAalst	Kansas
Adewole Odumade	Maryland
John Robinson	Minnesota
Frank Stone	Oklahoma
Sarah Neil/Matt Gendron	Rhode Island
Doug Danzeiser/Phil Reyna	Texas

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

In 2016, the Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee adopted a charge for the Annuity Disclosure (A) Working Group to: "Review and revise, as necessary, Section 6—Standards for Annuity Illustrations in the Annuity Disclosure Model Regulation (#245) to take into account the disclosures necessary to inform consumers in light of the product innovations currently in the marketplace."

At the 2017 Summer National Meeting, the Executive (EX) Committee and Plenary adopted a Request for NAIC Model Law Development "to revise Section 6—Standards for Illustrations in the Annuity Disclosure Model Regulation (#245) to address issues identified by the Working Group related to innovations of annuity products currently in the marketplace that are not addressed or addressed adequately in the current standards."

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated.

The Annuity Disclosure (A) Working Group met six times to discuss an issue identified under its charge: that the model prohibits the illustration of "non-guaranteed elements," which could be construed to include participating income annuities because of the formula used to calculate the dividend scale.

New York Life had been working with state insurance regulators since 2015 to develop language for inclusion in Model #245 to allow for the illustration of participating income annuities. The Working Group heard presentations explaining the issue and discussed a proposal forwarded by New York Life. The Working Group reviewed, discussed and revised the proposal. All drafts and comments were posted on the NAIC website. On March 2, 2018, the Working Group adopted draft revisions addressing participating income annuities.

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

The Annuity Disclosure (A) Working Group met Nov. 22, 2016; Dec. 14, 2017; March 9, 2017; April 13, 2017; Feb. 15 2018; March 2, 2018; and June 4, 2018. All drafts and comments were posted to the NAIC website. The Working Group adopted the revisions addressing participating income annuities on March 2, 2018, and the Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee adopted the revisions during the 2018 Summer National Meeting. These revisions were adopted and held by the Committee pending resolution of an additional issue that the Working Group identified. The Working Group did not end up making any additional revision to the model. During the 2021 Spring National Meeting, the Committee agreed to disband the Working Group once these revisions to Model #245 were considered by the Membership.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (e.g., items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response)

During its Feb. 15 meeting, the Working Group discussed concerns that the American Academy of Actuaries (Academy) raised with the participating income annuity proposal. The Academy was concerned that the proposal deviated from the current standard in its use of projected improvements and that it did not apply the change consistently across product types. New York Like explained that the proposal was purposefully narrow in scope to address a particular issue with a particular product; only participating income annuities include the potential for additional income in the form of dividends based on the divisible surplus of the company. New York Life also worked with Missouri to revise the proposal to include additional disclosures about future rate assumptions, and it included a requirement that consumers are shown an additional, more conservative illustrated scale when current interest rates are less than the long-term interest rates.

7. Any Other Important Information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard)

None.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2015

ANNUITY DISCLOSURE MODEL REGULATION (#245)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

The Annuity Disclosure Model Regulation (#245) was revised to clarify its application to contingent deferred annuities (CDAs) by:

- Adding a drafting note to clarify that the requirement to provide a Buyers Guide would not be appropriate for CDAs unless, or until such time as, the NAIC adopts a Buyers Guide that specifically addresses CDAs.

- Adding to Section 4. Definitions: Registered product means an annuity contract or life insurance policy subject to the prospectus delivery requirements of the Securities Act of 1933, with a drafting note stating that registered products include, but are not limited to, CDAs.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Contingent Deferred Annuity (A) Working Group of the Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee was responsible for drafting the revisions.

States Participating:

Ted Nickel, Chair	Wisconsin	Roger A. Sevigny/Keith Nyhan	New Hampshire
Robert Chester	Connecticut	Joseph Torti III/Elizabeth Dwyer	Rhode Island
Jim Mumford	Iowa	Michael Humphreys	Tennessee
Jason Lapham	Kansas	Tomasz Serbinowski	Utah
Bruce R. Ramge	Nebraska

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The project was authorized in 2012 by the following charge: Appoint a Contingent Deferred Annuity (A) Working Group to develop NAIC guidelines and/or model bulletin that can serve as a reference for states interested in modifying their annuity laws to clarify their applicability to contingent deferred annuities (CDAs) and, as part of this work, review existing NAIC model laws and regulations applicable to consumer protection issues associated with CDAs.

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated.

The revisions to the Annuity Disclosure Model Regulation (#245) were drafted by the Contingent Deferred Annuity (A) Working Group. The revisions, and comments received on them, were reviewed and discussed by the Working Group. All comments were posted on the NAIC website. The Working Group adopted a draft of proposed revisions at the 2014 Fall National Meeting, which was then forwarded to the Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee. The Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee also adopted the revisions at the 2014 Fall National Meeting.

All drafts were distributed to more than 100 interested parties and posted on the NAIC website. Numerous interested parties participated, including: the American Council of Life Insurers (ACLI); the National Association for Fixed Annuities (NAFA); the Insured Retirement Institute (IRI); the National Association of Insurance and Financial Advisors (NAIFA); Birny Birnbaum (Center for Economic Justice—CEJ); and the American Academy of Actuaries (Academy).

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

The Contingent Deferred Annuity (A) Working Group met at each national meeting and held interim meetings and interim conference calls beginning in June 2012 until adopting the revisions at the 2014 Fall National Meeting.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (e.g., items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response)

There were concerns that using the term "CDAs" when revising the model would be too limiting and that subsequent model revisions would be necessary to address every innovation in the industry. The language adopted seeks to address this concern by using broader language and using drafting notes to clarify that the terms are intended to include CDAs.

7. Any Other Important Information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard)

None

PROJECT HISTORY - 2011

ANNUITY DISCLOSURE MODEL REGULATION (#245)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

The following is a list of the major changes to the Annuity Disclosure Model Regulation (#245) adopted by the working group:

- The Buyer's Guide was separated from being an appendix to the model.
- The scope of the model was broadened to include variable annuities and other registered products to make its scope comparable to the Suitability in Annuity Transactions Model Regulation (#275). As in that model, this model also contains a safe harbor for SEC and FINRA approved disclosure documents, although it will disappear if the SEC and/or FINRA do not develop some shortened disclosure form for variable annuities by January 2013. Variable annuity illustrations are excluded from coverage because FINRA has extensive rules governing variable annuity illustrations. The safe harbor does not cover delivery of a Buyer's Guide for the sale of variable annuities so any sale of any kind of fixed deferred, indexed deferred or variable annuity requires that an Annuity Buyer's Guide be delivered.
- In the requirements for the disclosure document, provisions clarifying certain aspects of how indexed annuities should be disclosed were added. Clarifications of other sections were also made although no major substantive modifications were made to these provisions.
- An entirely new section entitled "Standards for Annuity Illustrations" was added. It includes the following major requirements.
    - It is a supplement to the disclosure document.
    - The use of an illustration is not mandatory either by the carrier or the producer and can be used for the initial sale or for subsequent contacts with the owner.
    - If it is used, it has to be prepared by the carrier or by a third party authorized by the carrier prior to its use and subject to a system of control by the carrier over its use.
    - It contains several limitations on the use of assumptions, terms, benefits, riders, etc. but the major limitation on the illustration of nonguaranteed values is the use of current conditions and not any assumed future conditions.
    - It contains several specific requirements and limitations relating to indexed annuity illustrations.
    - It contains several specific requirements and limitations relating to illustrations of annuities with market value adjustments.
    - It adds an optional section for recordkeeping similar to the Suitability in Annuity Transactions Model Regulation (#275).

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The project was authorized in 2008 by the following charge: Review and consider changes to the Annuity Disclosure Model Regulation (#245) to improve the disclosure of information provided for annuity products, both generally and specifically, and to provide insurers uniform guidance in developing disclosure information and documents and monitoring distribution thereof in order to better inform annuity consumers about the annuity product purchased and how it works. The Executive (EX) Committee approved the model law request for revising the Annuity Disclosure Model Regulation (#245) at the 2008 Fall National Meeting.

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated

The model was drafted by the Working Group. The revisions, and comments received on them, were reviewed and discussed by the Working Group. All comments were posted on the NAIC Web site. The Working Group adopted a draft of proposed revisions at the 2010 Fall National meeting on Oct. 18, 2010, which was then forwarded to the Committee.

All drafts were distributed to over 200 interested parties and posted on the NAIC Web site. Numerous interested parties participated, including industry representatives, such as the American Council of Life Insurers (ACLI), the National Association for Fixed Annuities (NAFA), and the Insured Retirement Institute (IRI); insurance producer representatives, such as the National Association for Insurance and Financial Advisors (NAIFA); consumer representatives, such as Brenda Cude (University of Georgia) and Karroll Kitt (University of Texas) and The Academy of Actuaries (AAA).

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

The Working Group has met at every National Meeting since 2008 Fall National Meeting and held intermittent conference calls. Since the 2010 Summer National Meeting, the Working Group was able to have 5 conference calls and make substantial progress in revising the model.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the drafting process and the group's response)

The industry supported regulatory oversight for annuity illustrations to assure a level playing field for companies and producers. The insurance industry, consumer representatives and the AAA all worked together on revising the model regulation.

7. Any Other Important Information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard).

None.

VARIABLE ANNUITY MODEL REGULATION

Table of Contents

Section 1. Authority

Pursuant to authority given by Section [insert applicable section] of the Insurance Laws of [insert state], the Insurance Commissioner, after due notice and publication and after affording interested persons opportunity to present written data, views and arguments, does hereby make and promulgate the following rules and regulations to be applicable to insurance companies delivering or issuing for delivery in this state variable annuities as defined in Section 2B, pursuant to Section [insert applicable section] of the insurance laws of this state.

Editor's Note: Insert the title of the chief insurance regulatory official wherever the term "commissioner" appears.

These regulations shall become effective [insert date].

Drafting Note: This section will obviously depend on the existing provisions under a given state's insurance code with respect to the method for adopting rules and regulations.

Section 2. Definitions

A. "Agent," as used in this regulation, means a person, corporation, partnership or other legal entity that under the laws of this state is licensed as a life insurance agent, solicitor, general agent or life insurance broker.

Drafting Note: States should make the necessary changes in terminology to conform with statutory language describing those persons eligible to be licensed to sell life insurance.

B. "Variable annuity," as used in this regulation, means a policy or contract that provides for annuity benefits that vary according to the investment experience of a separate account or accounts maintained by the insurer as to the policy or contract, as provided for in Section [insert applicable section] of the laws of this state.

Drafting Note: The objective is to define the contracts covered by the regulations to include all forms of annuity contracts where the benefits vary according to the investment experience of a separate account authorized by the enabling statute, including group and individual, variable accumulation and variable benefit, etc. Exclusion of particular kinds of contracts from sections of the regulation that may be inapplicable is handled in those sections.

Section 3. Qualification of Insurance Companies To Issue Variable Annuities

A. A company shall not deliver or issue for delivery variable annuities within this state unless it is licensed or organized to do a life insurance or annuity business in this state and the commissioner is satisfied that its condition or method of operation in connection with the issuance of these contracts will not render its operation hazardous to the public or its policyholders in this state. In this connection, the commissioner shall consider among other things:

(1) The history and financial condition of the company;

(2) The character, responsibility and fitness of the officers and directors of the company; and

(3) The law and regulation under which the company is authorized in the state of domicile to issue variable annuities.

B. If the company is a subsidiary of an admitted life insurance company, or affiliated with a company by common management or ownership, it may be deemed by the commissioner to have satisfied the provisions of Subsection A(2) if either it or the admitted life company satisfies the provisions of Subsection A(2). Companies licensed and having a satisfactory record of doing business in this state for a period of at least three (3) years may be deemed to have satisfied the commissioner with respect to Subsection A(2) above.

C. Before any company shall deliver or issue for delivery variable annuities within this state it shall submit to the commissioner:

(1) A general description of the kinds of variable annuities it intends to issue;

(2) If requested by the commissioner, a copy of the statutes and regulations of its state of domicile under which it is authorized to issue variable annuities; and

(3) If requested by the commissioner, biographical data with respect to officers and directors of the company on the NAIC uniform biographical data forms.

Drafting Note: Subsection C suggests the type of submission which might be appropriate to afford a basis for determining that a company meets the test in Subsection A(2). The NAIC biographical data regulation and forms appear in the 1967 Proceedings of the NAIC II 382-385 and 1974 Proceedings of the NAIC I 120-123.

Some state statutes provide seasoning requirements for the licensing of foreign life insurance companies; these statutes presumably will also apply to companies seeking to be licensed to sell variable annuities. The drafters do not believe that there is a need for seasoning requirements for companies writing variable annuities beyond those required for life companies generally. If, however, an additional seasoning requirement for companies writing variable annuities is considered desirable, such a requirement should be specifically provided by statute and the drafters recommend that the statute expressly require consideration of the experience of a parent or affiliated company. See Subsection B above.

If there are specific capital and surplus requirements for companies writing variable annuities these should be the same as those for life insurance companies generally. If stricter capital and surplus requirements are considered necessary, these should be specifically provided by statute and it is strongly recommended that the statute permit waiver of these requirements pursuant to regulations adopted by the commissioner. A provision to accomplish this purpose might read as follows:

> "The commissioner may waive any or all the requirements set forth in Section [insert applicable section] if by reasons of a company's capital structure, surplus, amount of business in force and plan of operations, it substantially conforms to these requirements, or, in the opinion of the commissioner, otherwise affords adequate protection to contractholders."

Section 4. Separate Account

A domestic company issuing variable annuities shall establish one or more separate accounts pursuant to Section [insert applicable section] of the insurance laws of this state, subject to the following provisions:

A. (1) Except as may be provided with respect to reserves for guaranteed benefits and funds referred to in Subsection A(2):

(a) Amounts allocated to a separate account and its accumulations may be invested and reinvested without regard to any requirements or limitations prescribed by the laws of this state governing the investments of life insurance companies; and

(b) The investments in the separate account or accounts shall not be taken into account in applying the investment limitations otherwise applicable to the investments of the company.

(2) Reserves for benefits guaranteed as to dollar amount and duration and funds guaranteed as to principal amount or stated rate of interest may be maintained in a separate account if a portion of the assets of the separate account at least equal to the reserve liability is invested in accordance with the laws and regulations of this state governing the investments of life insurance companies. That portion of the assets also shall not be taken into account in applying the investment limitations otherwise applicable to the investments of the company.

(3) With respect to seventy-five percent (75%) of the market value of the total assets in a separate account a company shall not purchase or otherwise acquire the securities of an issuer, other than securities issued or guaranteed as to principal or interest by the United States, if immediately after the purchase or acquisition the market value of the investment, together with prior investments of the separate account in the security taken at market, would exceed ten percent (10%) of the market value of the assets of the separate account. The commissioner, may waive this limitation if, in the opinion of the commissioner, the waiver will not render the operation of the separate account hazardous to the public or policyholders in this state.

(4) Unless otherwise permitted by law or approved by the commissioner, a company shall not purchase or otherwise acquire for its separate accounts the voting securities of an issuer if, as a result of the acquisition, the insurance company and its separate accounts, in the aggregate, will own more than ten percent (10%) of the total issued and outstanding voting securities of the issuer. This shall not apply with respect to securities held in separate accounts where the voting rights are exercisable only in accordance with instructions from persons having interest in the accounts.

(5) The limitations provided in Paragraphs (3) and (4) of this subsection shall not apply to investments with respect to a separate account in the securities of an investment company registered under the Investment Company Act of 1940, if the investments of the investment company comply in substance with Paragraphs (3) and (4).

Drafting Note: Virtually all statutes contain the broad language in Subsection A(1) permitting investments without regard to investment limitations with respect to life insurance companies. Subsection A(3) would impose a quantitative limitation to promote diversification and limit investment risk. It should be noted that while separate accounts registered under the 1940 Act will be subject to the 5% rule under that Act, there would appear to be sound reasons for permitting greater flexibility, up to 10%, with respect to separate accounts not subject to the 1940 Act. It is further provided that the commissioner may waive this limitation where it would not render the operation of the account hazardous.

Subsection A(4) would prohibit the acquisition by the separate account of the securities of an issuer if the acquisition would result in the ownership of more than 10% of the voting securities of the issuer, with the holdings by the company and all of its separate accounts aggregated, except when there is a pass-through of voting rights to contractholders.

Subsection A(6) is intended primarily to permit the operation of a separate account as a unit investment trust under the 1940 Act, with all of its assets being invested in the securities of a registered investment company. It should be noted, however, that the commissioner would retain indirect control since the exception from the application of Subsections A(3) and A(4) would not apply if the investments of the investment company did not comply with these subsections.

Basic authority for exemption from investment limitations, as well as the quantitative limitations in Subsections A(3) and A(4) and the exemption from these limitations in Subsection A(5), should probably be covered by statute.

B. Unless otherwise approved by the commissioner, assets allocated to a separate account shall be valued at their market value on the date of valuation, or if there is no readily available market, then as provided under the terms of the contract or the rules or other written agreement applicable to the separate account. Unless otherwise approved by the commissioner, the portion, if any, of the assets of the separate account equal to the company's reserve liability with regard to the benefits and funds referred to in Subsection A(2) shall be valued in accordance with the rules otherwise applicable to the company's assets.

Drafting Note: In the case of variable annuities involving a 1940 Act registered account and in many group contracts the procedure for valuing assets will be stated in rules of the separate accounts or in a separate applicable written agreement, and the regulation is drafted to permit this.

C. To the extent provided under the applicable contracts, that portion of the assets of a separate account equal to the reserves and other contract liabilities with respect to the account shall not be chargeable with liabilities arising out of any other business the company may conduct.

Drafting Note: To achieve effective insulation of certain assets held in separate accounts from claims of general creditors it is probably necessary, as a matter of general corporate law, that the insulation be specifically authorized by statute.

D. (1) Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, a company may:

(a) With respect to a separate account registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission as a unit investment trust, exercise voting rights in connection with securities of a regulated investment company registered under the Investment Company Act of 1940 and held in such separate accounts in accordance with instructions from persons having interests in such accounts ratably as determined by the company; or

(b) With respect to a separate account registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission as a management investment company, establish for the account a committee, board or other body, whose members may or may not be otherwise affiliated with the company and may be elected to membership by the vote of persons having interests in the account ratably as determined by the company. The committee, board or other body may have the power, exercisable alone or in conjunction with others, to manage the separate account and the investment of its assets.

(2) A company, committee, board or other body may make other provisions in respect to a separate account as may be deemed appropriate to facilitate compliance with requirements of any federal or state law now or hereafter in effect if the commissioner approves the provisions as not hazardous to the public or the company's policyholders in this state.

Drafting Note: Certain separate accounts are registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission under the Investment Company Act of 1940, and contractholders in these separate accounts must be given voting rights, principally in connection with the management of the assets of the account. Subsection D(1) is intended to provide for a separate account registered with the SEC as a unit investment trust, under which all of the assets of the account are invested in a separate mutual fund. In this connection, see also Subsection A(6). Subsection D(1) would permit a pass-through of voting rights in the shares of the underlying mutual fund to the contractholders.

Where a separate account is registered under the 1940 Act as a management investment company, the contractholders have the right to elect a committee with power to manage the account and invest its assets, as provided in Subsection D(2).

As with the insulation provision in Subsection C, it would probably be wise in most states to provide authority for the above regulation by statute, since many states require that the assets of an insurer may be managed by its board of directors.

E. (1) No sale, exchange or other transfer of assets may be made by a company between any of its separate accounts or between any other investment account and one or more of its separate accounts unless, in the case of a transfer into a separate account, the transfer is made solely to establish the account or to support the operation of the contracts with respect to the separate account to which the transfer is made, and unless the transfer, whether into or from a separate account, is made:

(a) By a transfer of cash; or

(b) By a transfer of securities having a valuation which could be readily determined in the marketplace, if that transfer of securities is approved by the commissioner.

(2) The commissioner may authorize other transfers among such accounts, if, in his opinion, such transfers would not be inequitable.

Drafting Note: This provision, common to many existing statutes and regulations, is intended to prevent unfair or discriminatory transfer among accounts. Regular cash flow should permit those transfers to and from the general account necessary to the operation of the variable annuity business to be made in cash.

F. The company shall maintain in each such separate account assets with a value at least equal to the reserves and other contract liabilities with respect to the account, except as may otherwise be approved by the commissioner.

Drafting Note: This section varies from a number of existing regulations that provide that assets shall be equal to reserves. The drafters agreed that a deficit should not be permitted, but that build-up of surplus within the separate account should not be prohibited as it would apparently be under the existing regulations referred to.

G. Rules under any provision of the insurance laws of this state or any regulation applicable to the officers and directors of insurance companies with respect to conflict of interest shall also apply to members of a separate accounts committee, board or other similar body. No officer or director of the company nor a member of the committee, board or body of a separate account shall receive directly or indirectly any commission or any other compensation with respect to the purchase or sale of assets of the separate account.

Section 5. Filing of Contracts

The filing requirements applicable to variable annuities shall be those filing requirements otherwise applicable under existing statutes and regulations of this state with respect to individual and group life insurance and annuity contract form filings, to the extent appropriate. Contract form filings shall also include a certification by a member of the American Academy of Actuaries as to the compliance with Section 7.

Section 6. Variable Annuity Contracts

A. A variable annuity providing benefits payable in variable amounts delivered or issued for delivery in this state shall contain a statement of the essential features of the procedures to be followed by the insurance company in determining the dollar amount of variable benefits. A contract, including a group contract and a certificate in evidence of variable benefits issued under the contract, shall state that the dollar amount will vary to reflect investment experience and shall contain on its first page a clear statement to the effect that the benefits of the contract are on a variable basis.

B. Illustrations of benefits payable under any variable annuity shall not include projections of past investment experience into the future or attempted predictions of future investment experience. Nothing contained herein is intended to prohibit use of hypothetical assumed rates of return to illustrate possible levels of benefits.

C. No individual variable annuity contract calling for the payment of periodic stipulated payments shall be delivered or issued for delivery in this state unless it contains in substance the following provision or provisions which in the opinion of the commissioner are more favorable to the holders of contracts:

(1) A provision that there shall be a grace period of thirty (30) days or of one month, within which any stipulated payment to the insurer falling due after the first may be made, during which grace period the contract shall continue in force. The contract may include a statement of the basis for determining the date as of which a payment received during the grace period shall be applied to produce the values arising under the contract; and

(2) A provision that, at any time within [insert number] years from the date of default, in making periodic stipulated payments to the insurer during the life of the annuitant and unless the cash surrender value has been paid, the contract may be reinstated upon payment to the insurer of overdue payments as required by contract, and of all indebtedness to the insurer on the contract, including interest. The contract may include a statement of the basis for determining the date as of which the amount to cover overdue payments and indebtedness shall be applied to produce the values arising under the contract.

Drafting Note: The drafters recommend inclusion of provisions dealing with grace and reinstatement only if the law of a particular state requires these for individual fixed dollar deferred annuities. Several companies issuing variable annuity contracts do not require contractholders to make periodic stipulated payments. If a contractholder ceases making payments he or she may resume doing so at any time. It is assumed that Subsection C(1) would be inapplicable to these contracts since the provisions described above would be regarded as more favorable to the contractholders than a 30-day grace period.

D. (1) A variable annuity contact delivered or issued for delivery in this state shall stipulate the investment increment factors to be used in computing the dollar amount of variable benefits or other variable contractual payments or values thereunder, and may guarantee that expense and mortality results shall not adversely affect the dollar amounts.

In the case of an individual variable annuity contract under which the expense and/or mortality results may adversely affect the dollar amount of benefits.

(a) The expense and mortality factors used in computing the dollar amount of variable benefits or other contractual payments or values shall be stipulated in the contract.

(b) Actual emerging expense and mortality results may be reflected in the dollar amount of benefits only through a mortality and expense charge that may vary only within a specified range indicated in the policy.

(2) In computing the dollar amount of variable benefits or other contractual payments or values under an individual variable annuity contract:

(a) The annual net investment increment assumption shall not exceed five percent (5%) except with the approval of the commissioner.

(b) To the extent that the level of benefits may be affected by future mortality results, the mortality factor shall be determined from the Annuity 2000 Mortality Table, or any modification of that table not having a lower life expectancy at any age, or any annuity mortality table adopted after 1996 by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners that is approved by the commissioner for this purpose.

(3) "Expense" as used in this subsection, may exclude some or all taxes, as stipulated in the contract.

E. The reserve liability for variable annuities shall be established pursuant to the requirements of Section [insert citation of Standard Valuation Law] in accordance with actuarial procedures that recognize the variable nature of the benefits provided and any mortality guarantees.

Section 7. Nonforfeiture Benefits

Drafting Note: This section should be included if the Standard Nonforfeiture Law for Individual Deferred Annuities has been adopted in this state.

A. This section shall not apply to any:

(1) Reinsurance;

(2) Group annuity contract purchases in connection with one or more retirement plans or plans of deferred compensation established or maintained by or for one or more employers (including partnerships or sole proprietorships), employee organizations, or any combination thereof, or other than plans providing individual retirement accounts or individual retirement annuities under Section 408 of the Internal Revenue Code, as now or hereafter amended;

(3) Premium deposit fund;

(4) Investment annuity;

(5) Immediate annuity;

(6) Deferred annuity contract after annuity payments have commenced;

(7) Reversionary annuity; or

(8) To any contract which is to be delivered outside this state through an agent or other representative of the company issuing the contract.

B. To the extent that a variable annuity contract provides benefits that do not vary in accordance with the investment performance of a separate account before the annuity commencement date, the contract shall contain provisions that satisfy the requirements of Section [insert citation to the Standard Nonforfeiture Law for Deferred Annuities] and shall not otherwise be subject to this section.

Drafting Note: For the purpose of demonstrating that the minimum nonforfeiture amounts under the fixed portion of the contract comply with the Standard Nonforfeiture Law for Deferred Annuities, the company should assume that 100% of the considerations are allocated to the fixed account. If the contract provides for transfers between the fixed and variable accounts, the transaction charge may not exceed the charge for transfers to another separate account or to another investment division within the same separate account, as determined in Subsection D of this section.

C. In the case of a contract issued on or after [insert operative date of this section which should be at least 18 months after adoption] no variable annuity contract, except as stated in Subsections A and B, shall be delivered or issued for delivery in this state unless it contains in substance the following provisions, or provisions which in the opinion of the commissioner are at least as favorable to the contractholder, upon cessation of payment of considerations under the contract:

(1) That upon cessation of payment of considerations under a contract, the company will grant a paid-up annuity benefit on a plan described in the contract that complies with Subsection G. The description will include a statement of the mortality table, if any, and guaranteed or assumed interest rates used in calculating annuity payments.

(2) If a contract provides for a lump sum settlement at maturity or at any other time, that upon surrender of the contract at or prior to the commencement of annuity payments, the company will pay in lieu of a paid-up annuity benefit a cash surrender benefit described in the contract that complies with Subsection H. The contract may provide that the company reserves the right, at its option, to defer the determination and payment of a cash surrender benefit for any period during which the New York Stock Exchange is closed for trading (except for normal holiday closing) or when the Securities and Exchange Commission has determined that a state of emergency exists that may make determination and payment impractical.

(3) A statement that a paid-up annuity, cash surrender or death benefits that may be available under the contract are not less than the minimum benefits required by any statute of the state in which the contract is delivered and an explanation of the manner in which benefits are altered by the existence of any additional amounts credited by the company to the contract, any indebtedness to the company on the contract or any prior withdrawals from or partial surrenders of the contract.

D. (1) The minimum values as specified in this section of paid-up annuity, cash surrender or death benefits available under a variable annuity contract shall be based upon nonforfeiture amounts meeting the requirements of this subsection.

(2) The minimum nonforfeiture amount at any time at or prior to the commencement of any annuity payments shall be equal to an accumulation up to that time at rates of interest equal to the net investment return (as hereinafter defined) of the net considerations (as defined in Subsection E) paid prior to that time, decreased by the sum of Paragraphs (a) through (d) below:

(a) Any prior withdrawals from or partial surrenders of the contract accumulated at rates of interest equal to the net investment return;

(b) An annual contract charge of $50, accumulated at rates of interest equal to the net investment return;

(c) Any premium tax paid by the company for the contract, accumulated at rates of interest equal to the net investment return; and

Drafting Note: The premium tax credit is only permitted if the tax is actually paid by the company. If the tax is paid and subsequently credited back to the company, such as upon early termination of the contract, the tax credit may not be taken.

(d) The amount of any indebtedness to the company on the contract, including interest due and accrued.

(3) "Net investment return" means that the rate of investment return to be credited to the variable annuity contract in accordance with the terms of the contract after deductions for tax charges, if any, and for asset charges either at a rate not in excess of that stated in the contract, or in the case of a contract issued by a nonprofit corporation under which the contractholder participates fully in the investment, mortality and expense experience of the account, in an amount not in excess of the actual expense not offset by other deductions. The net investment return to be credited to a contract shall be determined at least monthly.

E. The net considerations for a given contract year used to define the minimum nonforfeiture amount in Subsection D shall be an amount equal to eighty-seven and one-half percent (87.5%) of the gross considerations credited to the contract during that contract year.

F. Demonstration that a contract's nonforfeiture amounts comply with this section shall be based on the following assumptions:

(1) Values should be tested at the end of each of the first twenty (20) contract years;

(2) A net investment return of seven percent (7%) per year should be used;

(3) If the contract provides for transfers to another separate account or to another investment division within the same separate account, one transfer per contract year should be assumed;

(4) In determining the state premium tax applicable to the contract, the state of residence should be assumed to equal the state of delivery;

(5) With respect to contracts providing for periodic considerations, monthly considerations of $100 should be assumed for each of the first 240 months;

(6) With respect to contracts providing for a single consideration, a $10,000 single consideration should be assumed; and

G. Any paid-up annuity benefit available under a variable annuity contract shall be such that its present value on the annuity commencement date is at least equal to the minimum nonforfeiture amount on that date. The present value shall be computed using the mortality table, if any, and the guaranteed or assumed interest rates used in calculating the annuity payments.

H. For variable annuity contracts that provide cash surrender benefits, the cash surrender benefit at any time prior to the annuity commencement date shall not be less than the minimum nonforfeiture amount computed after the request for surrender is received by the company. The death benefit under such contracts shall be at least equal to the cash surrender benefit.

I. A variable annuity contract that does not provide cash surrender benefits or does not provide death benefits at least equal to the minimum nonforfeiture amount prior to the annuity commencement date shall include a statement in a prominent place in the contract that these benefits are not provided.

J. Notwithstanding the requirements of this section, a variable annuity contract may provide under the situations specified in Paragraph (1) or (2) of this subsection that the company, at its option, may cancel the annuity and pay the contractholder its accumulated value and by such payment be released of any further obligation under the contract:

(1) If, at the time the annuity becomes payable, the accumulated value is less than $2,000, or would provide an initial income of less than $20 per month; or

(2) If, prior to the time the annuity becomes payable under a periodic payment variable annuity contract, no considerations have been received under the contract for a period of two (2) full years and the total considerations paid prior to such period, reduced to reflect any partial withdrawals from or partial surrenders of the contract, and the accumulated value amount to less than $2,000.

K. For a variable annuity contract that provides, within the same contract by rider or supplemental contract provision, both annuity benefits and life insurance benefits that are in excess of the greater of cash surrender benefits or a return of the gross considerations with interest, the minimum nonforfeiture benefits shall be equal to the sum of the minimum nonforfeiture benefits for the annuity portion and the minimum nonforfeiture benefits, if any, for the life insurance portion computed as if each portion were a separate contract. Notwithstanding the provisions of SubsectionD of this section, additional benefits payable in the event of total and permanent disability, as reversionary annuity or deferred reversionary annuity benefits, or as other policy benefits additional to life insurance, endowment and annuity benefits, and considerations for all such additional benefits shall be disregarded in ascertaining the minimum nonforfeiture amounts, paid-up annuity, cash surrender and death benefits that may be required by this section. The inclusion of additional benefits shall not be required in any paid-up benefits, unless the additional benefits separately would require minimum nonforfeiture amounts, paid-up annuity, cash surrender and death benefits.

Section 8. Required Reports

A. A company issuing individual variable annuities shall mail to the contractholder at least once in each contract year after the first at his or her last address known to the company, a statement or statements reporting the investments held in the separate account. The company shall submit annually to the insurance commissioner a statement of business of its separate account or accounts in such form as may be prescribed by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners.

Drafting Note: The drafters intended to leave this language sufficiently flexible to apply in the event that the separate account statement is combined with the regular life annual statement blank.

B. A company issuing individual variable annuities shall mail to the contractholder at least once in each contract year after the first at his or her last address known to the company a statement reporting as of a date not more than four (4) months previous to the date of mailing. In the case of an annuity contract under which payments have not yet commenced, the statement shall contain:

(1) The number of accumulation units credited to the contract and the dollar value of a unit; or

(2) The value of the contractholder's account.

Section 9. Foreign Companies

If the law or regulation in the place of domicile of a foreign company provides a degree of protection to the policyholders and the public substantially equal to that provided by these regulations, the commissioner, to the extent deemed appropriate by the commissioner, may consider compliance with that law or regulation as compliance with these regulations.

Drafting Note: This blanket provision would permit a commissioner to waive any or all of these requirements applicable to foreign companies in cases where the quality of regulation in the state of domicile is such that he or she would have every reason to expect that the company would be adequately regulated.

Section 10. Qualifications of Agents for the Sale of Variable Annuities

A. (1) A person may not sell or offer for sale in this state any variable annuity contract unless the person is an agent and has filed with the commissioner, in a form satisfactory to the commissioner, evidence that the person holds any license or authorization that may be required for the solicitation or sale of variable annuity contracts by any federal or state securities law.

(2) Any examination administered by the Department for the purpose of determining the eligibility of any person for licensing as an agent shall, after the effective date of this regulation, include such questions concerning the history, purpose, regulation and sale of variable annuity contracts as the commissioner deems appropriate.

B. A person qualified in this state under this section to sell or offer to sell variable annuity contracts shall immediately report to the commissioner:

(1) Any suspension or revocation of his or her agent's license in any other state or territory of the United States;

(2) The imposition of any disciplinary sanction, including suspension or expulsion from membership, suspension, or revocation of or denial of registration, imposed upon him or her by any national securities exchange, or national securities association, or any federal, state or territorial agency with jurisdiction over securities or variable annuity contracts;

(3) Any judgment or injunction entered against him or her on the basis of conduct deemed to have involved fraud, deceit, misrepresentation or violation of any insurance or securities law or regulation.

C. The commissioner may reject an application or suspend or revoke or refuse to renew an agent's qualification under this section to sell or offer to sell variable annuity contracts upon any ground that would bar the applicant or agent from being licensed to sell other life insurance contracts in this state. The rules governing any proceeding relating to the suspension or revocation of an agent's license shall also govern any proceeding for suspension or revocation of an agent's qualification to sell or offer to sell variable annuity contracts.

VARIABLE ANNUITY MODEL REGULATION

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. To perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2006

VARIABLE ANNUITY MODEL REGULATION (#250)

1. Project Description

In late 2003, the Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee asked the Life and Health Actuarial Task Force to review the following models and make a recommendation as to whether they should be amended, deleted, or left unchanged the Model Variable Annuity Regulation and the Interest-Indexed Annuity Contracts Model Regulation. At that time, the Task Force also undertook a review of the Modified Guaranteed Annuity Model Regulation because of the many similarities between it and the other models.

These amendments to this model are primarily designed to achieve consistency with the revisions to the Standard Nonforfeiture Law for Individual Deferred Annuities. In addition, the Task Force also looked at differences between the variable annuity regulation and the modified guaranteed annuity model and the current requirements pertaining to variable annuity products in the Interstate Compact Standards. The "Significant Issues Raised" section contains a list of some differences that were identified between the compact standards and this model.

2. Group Responsible for Drafting Model and States Participating

The 2006 members of the Life and Health Actuarial Task Force were: New Mexico (Chair), Kansas (Vice-Chair), Alabama, Alaska, Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Florida, Kentucky, Minnesota, Nebraska, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina, Texas, and Utah.

3. General Description of Drafting Process

This project was discussed at several of the Task Force's quarterly meeting between March 2004 and March 2006. In addition, the Task Force held one conference call on this topic during each quarter over that period, except the third quarter of 2004 and the first quarters of 2005 and 2006. All quarterly meetings and conference calls were open to industry personnel. Notice of each conference call was posted on NAIC's Web site and e-mailed to approximately 300 interested parties, including representatives of the American Council of Life Insurers (ACLI).

4. Significant Issues Raised

1. The mortality table used was changed from the Annuity Mortality Table for 1949, Ultimate to the Annuity 2000 Mortality Table.

2. The minimum nonforfeiture amount computations were simplified and to account for amounts paid by the company in premium taxes.

3. The Interstate Compact Standards Pertaining to variable annuities contain this requirement pertaining to contracts with "bail-out" provisions:

   > If the contract provides for a benefit waiving surrender charges contingent on a declared interest rate, the company shall provide a certification that the owner will be provided a timely notification when the declared interest rate declines to a point at which the waiver of surrender charge benefit is available.

   The variable annuity model contains no such provision. The Task Force concluded that this is more a disclosure issue than an actuarial matter, and therefore was beyond the scope of its assignment.

4. The Standards contain this requirement pertaining to actuarial certifications:

   > Certification by a member of the American Academy of Actuaries as to the compliance with Section 7 of the NAIC Model Variable Annuity Regulation, model #250.

   The proposed changes to the model include a certification of compliance with the relevant standards.

5. Implications of this Project for Accreditation and Codification

Portions of the model are included in Appendix A-250 of the NAIC Accounting Practices and Procedures Manual.

MODIFIED GUARANTEED ANNUITY MODEL REGULATION

Table of Contents

Section 1. Purpose

The purpose of this regulation is to provide rules for a modified guaranteed annuity, a variable annuity whose assets are placed in a separate account.

Section 2. Authority

This rule is issued pursuant to the authority vested in the Commissioner of Insurance of the State of [insert state] under [insert cite to state's separate account law]. This rule will take effect on [insert date].

Section 3. Applicability and Scope

This regulation shall apply to:

A. The qualifications of agents who sell modified guaranteed annuity contracts in this state;

B. The qualification of insurers who issue these contracts;

C. The required contract form and provisions for issue of this coverage in this state; and

D. The manner in which separate account assets, supporting these issued contracts, are to be maintained and reported.

Section 4. Definitions

As used in this regulation, the following terms and phrases shall mean:

A. "Modified guaranteed annuity" means a deferred annuity contract, the underlying assets of which are held in a separate account, and the values of which are guaranteed if held for specified periods. The contract contains nonforfeiture values that are based upon a market-value adjustment formula if held for shorter periods.

This formula may or may not reflect the value of assets held in the separate account. The assets underlying the contract shall be in a separate account during the period or periods when the contract holder can surrender the contract.

B. "Interest credits" means all interest that is credited to the contract.

C. "Separate account" means a separate account established pursuant to Section [insert section], or pursuant to the corresponding section of the insurance laws of the state of domicile of a foreign or alien insurer.

D. "Commissioner" means the Insurance Commissioner of [insert state].

Section 5. Authority of Insurers

The following requirements apply to all insurers either seeking or having authority to issue modified guaranteed annuities in this state.

A. Licensing and Approval to do Business.

(1) No company shall deliver or issue for delivery modified guaranteed annuities within this state unless it is licensed or organized to do life insurance or annuity business in this state. The commissioner must be satisfied that its condition or method of operation in connection with the issuance of these contracts will not render its operation hazardous to the public or its policyholders in this state. The commissioner shall consider, among other things, the history and financial condition of the company; the character, responsibility and fitness of the officers and directors of the company; and the law and regulation under which the company is authorized in the state of domicile to issue these annuities.

(2) If the company is a subsidiary of an admitted life insurance company, or affiliated with such a company by common management or ownership, it may be deemed by the commissioner to have satisfied the provision of Paragraph (1) if either the subsidiary or the admitted life company satisfies the provisions of Paragraph (1). Companies licensed and having a satisfactory record of doing business in this state for a period of at least three (3) years may be deemed to have satisfied the commissioner with respect to Paragraph (1) above.

(3) Before a company shall deliver or issue for delivery modified guaranteed annuities within this state, it shall submit to the commissioner a general description of the kinds of annuities it intends to issue. If requested by the commissioner, the following shall be submitted:

(a) A copy of the statutes and regulations of its state of domicile under which it is authorized to issue modified guaranteed annuities; and

(b) Biographical data with respect to officers and directors of the company on the NAIC uniform biographical data forms.

B. Use of Sales Materials.

(1) An insurer authorized to sell modified guaranteed annuities in this state shall not use any sales material, advertising material or descriptive literature or other materials of any kind in connection with the sale of modified guaranteed annuities in this state that is false, misleading, deceptive or inaccurate.

(2) Illustrations of benefits payable under a modified guaranteed annuity shall not include projections of past investment experience into the future or attempted predictions of future investment experience; except that hypothetical assumed interest credits may be used to illustrate possible levels of benefits.

(3) Before an insurer shall deliver or issue for delivery a modified guaranteed annuity contract in this state, the commissioner may require the filing of a copy of any prospectus or other sales material to be used in connection with the marketing of the insurer's modified guaranteed annuity contract. The sales material shall clearly illustrate that there can be both upward and downward adjustments due to the application of the market value adjustment formula in determining nonforfeiture benefits.

C. Reports. An insurer authorized to transact the business of modified guaranteed annuities in this state shall submit to the commissioner:

(1) A separate account annual statement, which shall include the business of its modified guaranteed annuities; and

(2) Such additional information concerning its modified guaranteed annuity operations or separate accounts as the commissioner shall deem necessary.

D. Authority of Commissioner to Disapprove.

Any material required to be filed with and approved by the commissioner shall be subject to disapproval if at any time it is found by the commissioner not to comply with the standards established by this regulation.

Section 6. Filing of Contracts

The filing requirements applicable to modified guaranteed annuities shall be those filing requirements otherwise applicable under existing statutes and regulations of this state with respect to individual and group life insurance and annuity contract form filings, to the extent appropriate. Filings shall include a demonstration in a form satisfactory to the commissioner that the nonforfeiture provisions of the contracts comply with Section 7B of this regulation, as well as a certification by a member of the American Academy of Actuaries as to the compliance with Section 7B.

Section 7. Modified Guaranteed Annuity Contract Requirements

A. Mandatory Contract Benefit and Design Requirements.

(1) A modified guaranteed annuity contract delivered or issued for delivery in this state shall contain a statement of the essential features of the procedures to be followed by the insurance company in determining the dollar amount of nonforfeiture benefits.

(2) A modified guaranteed annuity contract calling for the payment of periodic stipulated payments shall not be delivered or issued for delivery in this state unless it contains in substance the following provisions:

(a) A provision that there shall be a grace period of thirty (30) days or one month during which the contract shall remain in force and, within which any payment due to the insurer other than the first may be made. The contract may include a statement of the basis for determining the date as of which any such payment received during the grace period shall be applied to produce the values under the contract.

(b) A provision that, at any time within one year from the date of default, the contract may be reinstated upon payment to the insurer of such overdue payments as required by the contract, and of all indebtedness to the insurer on the contract, including interest. Reinstatement may not occur if the cash value has been paid. The contract may include a statement of the basis for determining the date as of which the amount to cover the overdue payments and indebtedness shall be applied to produce the values under the contract.

(c) A provision that, to the extent set out in the contract, the portion of the assets of any separate account that equal the reserves and other contract liabilities of the account shall not be chargeable with liabilities arising out of any other business of the company.

(3) The market-value adjustment formula, used in determining nonforfeiture benefits, shall be stated in the contract and shall be applicable for both upward and downward adjustments. When a contract is filed, it shall be accompanied by an actuarial statement indicating the basis for the market-value adjustment formula and that the formula provides reasonable equity to both the contract holder and the insurance company.

Drafting Note: To achieve effective insulation of certain assets held in separate accounts from claims of general creditors it is probably necessary, as a matter of general corporate law, that the insulation be specifically authorized by statute.

B. Nonforfeiture Benefits.

(1) This section shall not apply to any of the following:

(a) Reinsurance;

(b) Group annuity contracts purchased in connection with one or more retirement plans or deferred compensation plans established or maintained by or for one or more employers (including partnerships or sole proprietorships), employee organizations, or any combination thereof, other than plans providing individual retirement accounts or individual retirement annuities under Section 408 of the Internal Revenue Code;

(c) Premium deposit fund;

(d) Investment annuity;

(e) Immediate annuity;

(f) Deferred annuity contract after annuity payments have commenced;

(g) Reversionary annuity; or

(h) Any contract which is to be delivered outside this state by an agent or other representative of the company issuing the contract.

(2) A modified guaranteed annuity contract shall not be delivered or issued for delivery in this state unless it contains in substance the following provisions:

(a) When premium payments cease under a contract, the insurer will grant a paid-up annuity benefit on a plan described in the contract that complies with Paragraph (7) of this subsection. The provision will include a statement of the mortality table, if any, and guaranteed or assumed interest rates used in calculating annuity payments.

(b) If a contract provides for a lump sum settlement at maturity or at any other time, upon surrender of the contract at or prior to the commencement of any annuity payments, the insurer will pay, in lieu of a paid-up annuity benefit, a cash surrender benefit as described in the contract that complies with Paragraph (8) of this subsection. The company may reserve the right to defer the payment of the cash surrender benefit for a period not to exceed six (6) months after demand therefore with surrender of the contract after making written request and receiving written approval of the commissioner.The request shall address the necessity and equitability to all policyholders of the deferral.

(3) The minimum values, as specified in this section, of any paid-up annuity, cash surrender or death benefits available under a modified guaranteed annuity contract shall be based upon nonforfeiture amounts meeting the requirements of this paragraph. The unadjusted minimum nonforfeiture amount on any date prior to the annuity commencement date shall be an amount equal to the net considerations (as specified in Paragraph (6) of this subsection) increased by the interest credits defined in Section 4 allocated to the net considerations, which amount shall be reduced to reflect the effect of Subparagraphs (a), (b), (c), and (d) below:

(a) Any prior withdrawls from or partial surrenders of the contract increased by the interest credits defined in Section 4;

(b) An annual contract charge of $50, increased by the interest credits defined in Section 4;

(c) Any premium tax paid by the company for the contract, increased by the interest credits defined in section 4; and

Drafting Note: The premium tax credit is only permitted if the tax is actually paid by the company. If the tax is paid and subsequently credited back to the company, such as upon early termination of the contract, the tax credit may not be taken.

(d) The amount of any indebtedness to the company on the contract, including interest due and accrued.

(4) Guaranteed interest credits in each year for any period of time for which interest credits are guaranteed shall be reasonably related to the average guaranteed interest credits over that period of time.

Drafting Note: The requirement that guaranteed interest credits be reasonably related to their average over any period is intended to preclude the use of patterns of interest credits that are not based on economic reality in order to manipulate unadjusted minimum nonforfeiture amounts.

(5) The minimum nonforfeiture amount shall be the unadjusted minimum nonforfeiture amount adjusted by the market-value adjustment formula contained in the contract.

(6) The net considerations for a given contract year used to define the minimum nonforfeiture amount in Paragraph (3) shall be an amount equal to eighty-seven and one-half percent (87.5%) of the gross considerations credited to the contract during that contract year.

(7) Any paid-up annuity benefit available under a modified guaranteed annuity contract shall be such that its present value on the annuity commencement date is at least equal to the minimum nonforfeiture amount on that date. The present value shall be computed using the mortality table, if any, and the guaranteed or assumed interest rates used in calculating the annuity payments.

(8) For modified guaranteed annuity contracts that provide cash surrender benefits, the cash surrender benefit at any time prior to the annuity commencement date shall not be less than the minimum nonforfeiture amount next computed after the request for surrender is received by the insurer. The death benefit under these contracts shall be at least equal to the cash surrender benefit.

(9) Any modified guaranteed annuity contract which does not provide cash surrender benefits, or does not provide death benefits at least equal to the minimum nonforfeiture amount prior to the annuity commencement date shall include a statement in a prominent place in the contract that these benefits are not provided.

(10) Despite the requirements of this section, a modified guaranteed annuity contract may provide under the situations specified in Subparagraph (a) or (b) below that the insurer, at its option, may cancel the annuity and pay the contract holder the larger of the unadjusted minimum nonforfeiture amount and the minimum nonforfeiture amount, and by this payment be released of any further obligation under the contract:

(a) If, at the time the annuity becomes payable, the larger of the unadjusted minimum nonforfeiture amount and the minimum nonforfeiture amount is less than $2,000, or would provide an income the initial amount of which is less than $20 per month; or

(b) If, prior to the time the annuity becomes payable under a periodic payment contract, no considerations have been received under the contract for a period of two (2) full years and both the total considerations paid prior to that period, reduced to reflect any partial withdrawals from or partial surrenders of the contract, and the larger of the unadjusted minimum nonforfeiture amount and the minimum nonforteiture amount is less than $2,000.

(11) For any modified guaranteed annuity contract which provides, within the same contract by rider or supplemental contract provision, both annuity benefits and life insurance benefits that are in excess of the greater of cash surrender benefits or a return of the gross considerations with interest, the minimum nonforfeiture benefits shall be equal to the sum of the minimum nonforfeiture benefits for the annuity portion and the minimum nonforfeiture benefits, if any, for the life insurance portion computed as if each portion were a separate contract. Despite the provisions of Paragraph (2) of this subsection, additional benefits payable in the event of total and permanent disability, as reversionary annuity or deferred reversionary annuity benefits, or as other policy benefits additional to life insurance, endowment, and annuity benefits, and considerations for all these additional benefits, shall be disregarded in ascertaining the minimum nonforfeiture amounts, paid-up annuity, cash surrender and death benefits that may be required by this section. The inclusion of these additional benefits shall not be required in any paid-up benefits, unless the additional benefits separately would require minimum nonforfeiture amounts, paid-up annuity, cash surrender and death benefits.

Drafting Note: This regulation is not intended to prevent the application of variable annuity regulations or the individual nonforfeiture laws if and to the extent that modified guaranteed annuity benefits are combined in the same contract with (1) variable annuity benefits that vary directly with the value of the assets in the separate account, and (2) traditional fixed annuity benefits, or (3) life insurance benefits.

C. The Application. The application for a modified guaranteed annuity shall prominently set forth language substantially stating that amounts payable under the contract are subject to a market value adjustment prior to a date or dates specified in the contract. The statement shall be placed immediately above the signature line.

Section 8. Reserve Liabilities

A. Reserve liabilities for modified guaranteed annuities shall be established in accordance with actuarial procedures that recognize:

(1) That assets of the separate account are based on market values;

(2) The variable nature of benefits provided; and

(3) Any mortality guarantees.

B. As a minimum, the separate account liability will equal the surrender value based upon the market value adjustment formula contained in the contract. If that liability is greater than the market value of the assets, a transfer of assets will be made into the separate account so that the market value of the assets at least equals that of the liabilities. Also, any additional reserve that is needed to cover future guaranteed benefits will also be set up by the valuation actuary.

C. The market value adjustment formula, the interest guarantees and the degree to which projected cash flow of assets and liabilities are matched must also be considered. Each year, the valuation actuary shall provide an opinion on whether the assets in the separate account are adequate to provide all future benefits that are guaranteed.

Section 9. Separate Accounts

The following requirements apply to the establishment and administration of modified guaranteed annuity separate accounts by a domestic insurer:

A. Establishment and Administration of Separate Accounts. A domestic insurer issuing modified guaranteed annuities shall establish one or more separate accounts pursuant to Section [insert section providing for separate accounts].

B. Amounts in the Separate Account. The insurer shall maintain in each separate account assets with a market or other value comporting to standards set out in Section [insert section] at least equal to the valuation reserves and other contract liabilities respecting such account.

C. Valuation of Separate Account Assets. Investments of the separate account shall be valued at their market value on the date of valuation, or at amortized cost if it approximates market value, or pursuant to standards contained in Section [insert section].

D. Investment Laws. Unless otherwise approved by the commissioner, separate accounts relating to modified guaranteed annuities will be subject to investment laws applicable to the insurer's general asset account.

Section 10. Reports to Policyholders

A company shall annually provide its contractholders with a report showing both the account value and the cash surrender value. The report should clearly indicate that the account value is prior to the application of any surrender charges or market value adjustment formula. It should also specify the surrender charge and market value adjustment used to determine the cash surrender value.

Section 11. Foreign Companies

If the law or regulation in the place of domicile of a foreign company provides a degree of protection to the policyholders and the public that is substantially similar to that provided by these regulations, the commissioner may consider compliance with the law or regulation as compliance with this rule to the extent deemed appropriate by him or her.

Section 12. Authorization of Agents

A person, corporation, partnership, or other legal entity may not sell or offer for sale in this state any modified guaranteed annuity contract unless licensed to sell variable annuities under the insurance laws of this state.

Section 13. Separability

If any provision of this regulation or its application to any person or circumstance is for any reason held to be invalid, the remainder of the regulation and the application of its provisions to other persons or circumstances shall not be affected.

PROJECT HISTORY – 2006

MODIFIED GUARANTEED ANNUITY MODEL REGULATION (#255)

1. Project Description

In late 2003, the Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee asked the Life and Health Actuarial Task Force to review the following models and make a recommendation as to whether they should be amended, deleted, or left unchanged the Model Variable Annuity Regulation and the Interest-Indexed Annuity Contracts Model Regulation. At that time, the Task Force also undertook a review of the Modified Guaranteed Annuity Model Regulation because of the many similarities between it and the other models.

These amendments to this model are primarily designed to achieve consistency with the revisions to the Standard Nonforfeiture Law for Individual Deferred Annuities. In addition, the Task Force also looked at differences between the variable annuity regulation and the modified guaranteed annuity model and the current requirements pertaining to variable annuity products in the Interstate Compact Standards. The "Significant Issues Raised" section contains a list of some differences that were identified between the compact standards and this model.

2. Group Responsible for Drafting Model and States Participating

The 2005 members of the Life and Health Actuarial Task Force are: New Mexico (Chair), Minnesota (Vice-Chair), Alabama, Alaska, Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Florida, Kansas, Nebraska, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Texas, Utah, and West Virginia.

3. General Description of Drafting Process

This project was discussed at several of the Task Force's quarterly meeting between March 2004 and December 2005. In addition, the Task Force held one conference call on this topic during each quarter over that period, except the third quarter of 2004 and the first quarter of 2005. All quarterly meetings and conference calls were open to industry personnel. Notice of each conference call was posted on NAIC's Web site and e-mailed to approximately 300 interested parties, including representatives of the American Council of Life Insurers (ACLI).

4. Significant Issues Raised

1. The Interstate Compact Standards Pertaining to variable annuities contain this requirement pertaining to contracts with "bail-out" provisions:

> If the contract provides for a benefit waiving surrender charges contingent on a declared interest rate, the company shall provide a certification that the owner will be provided a timely notification when the declared interest rate declines to a point at which the waiver of surrender charge benefit is available.

The modified guaranteed annuity model contains no such provision. The Task Force concluded that this is more a disclosure issue than an actuarial matter, and therefore was beyond the scope of its assignment.

2. The Standards contain this requirement pertaining to actuarial certifications:

> Certification by a member of the American Academy of Actuaries as to the compliance with Section 7 of the NAIC Model Variable Annuity Regulation, model #250.

The proposed changes to the model include a certification of compliance with the relevant nonforfeiture standards.

3. Section 3A(2) of the Standard Nonforfeiture Law for Individual Deferred Annuities contains this language: "The company may reserve the right to defer the payment of the cash surrender benefit for a period not to exceed six (6) months after demand therefor with surrender of the contract after making written request and receiving written approval of the commissioner. The request shall address the necessity and equitability to all policyholders of the deferral." The proposed change to the MGA incorporates this language.

5. Implications of this Project for Accreditation and Codification

Portions of the model are included in Appendix A-255 of the NAIC Accounting Practices and Procedures Manual.

VARIABLE CONTRACT MODEL LAW

Table of Contents

Section 1. Domestic Companies

A domestic life insurance company may establish one or more separate accounts, and may allocate amounts to it (including without limitation proceeds applied under optional modes of settlement or under dividend options) to provide for life insurance or annuities (and incidental benefits), payable in fixed or variable amounts or both, subject to the following:

A. The income, gains and losses, realized or unrealized, from assets allocated to a separate account shall be credited to or charged against the account, without regard to other income, gains or losses of the company.

B. Except as may be provided with respect to reserves for guaranteed benefits and funds referred to in Subsection C:

(1) Amounts allocated to a separate account and accumulations thereon may be invested and reinvested without regard to any requirements or limitations prescribed by the laws of this state governing the investments of life insurance companies; and

(2) The investments in the separate account or accounts shall not be taken into account in applying the investment limitations otherwise applicable to the investments of the company.

C. Except with the approval of the commissioner and under such conditions as to investments and other matters as the commissioner may prescribe, which shall recognize the guaranteed nature of the benefits provided, reserves for benefits guaranteed as to dollar amount and duration, and funds guaranteed as to principal amount or stated rate of interest shall not be maintained in a separate account.

Drafting Note: Wherever "commissioner" is referred to in this Act, "director" or "superintendent" should be substituted where applicable.

Drafting Note: It is intended that separate account investments except as to conditions imposed by the commissioner under Subsection C, should be exempt from the laws of the state governing the investments of life insurance companies. In some states it may be necessary to provide for the exemption by reference to the appropriate sections or to a particular article or chapter. Some states, however, may not want to provide an exemption from all investment laws applicable to domestic companies, but merely from some specific sections establishing requirements or restrictions on the quantity of investments, such as a limit on the amount of common stocks which may be held by the company. These states may want to require that separate account investments meet certain of the qualitative requirements of the investment laws. In this event, the exemption must refer to specific sections, which will have to be carefully selected. If certain qualitative restrictions are retained, it then may become necessary, in order to recognize the "unit investment trust" approach to variable contract business, to specifically provide that all of the assets of a separate account may be invested "in the shares of an open-end investment company or companies registered under the federal Investment Company Act of 1940."

D. Unless otherwise approved by the commissioner, assets allocated to a separate account shall be valued at their market value on the date of valuation, or if there is no readily available market, then as provided under the terms of the contract or the rules or other written agreement applicable to the separate account; provided that, unless otherwise approved by the commissioner, the portion, if any, of the assets of the separate account equal to the company's reserve liability with regard to the guaranteed benefits and funds referred to in Subsection C shall be valued in accordance with the rules otherwise applicable to the company's assets.

E. Amounts allocated to a separate account in the exercise of the power granted by this Act shall be owned by the company, and the company shall not be, nor hold itself out to be, a trustee with respect to these amounts. If and to the extent so provided under the applicable contracts, that portion of the assets of any such separate account equal to the reserves and other contract liabilities with respect to the account shall not be chargeable with liabilities arising out of any other business the company may conduct.

F. No sale, exchange or other transfer of assets may be made by a company between any of its separate accounts or between any other investment account and one or more of its separate accounts unless, in case of a transfer into a separate account, the transfer is made solely to establish the account or to support the operation of the contracts with respect to the separate account to which the transfer is made, and unless the transfer, whether into or from a separate account, is made by a transfer of cash or by a transfer of securities having a readily determinable market value, provided that the transfer of securities is approved by the commissioner. The commissioner may approve other transfers among the accounts if, in his or her opinion, the transfers would not be inequitable.

G. To the extent the company deems it necessary to comply with any applicable federal or state laws, the company, with respect to a separate account, including without limitation any separate account that is a management investment company or a unit investment trust, may provide for persons having an interest therein appropriate voting and other rights and special procedures for the conduct of the business of the account, including without limitation special rights and procedures relating to investment policy, investment advisory services, selection of independent public accountants, and the selection of a committee, the members of which need not be otherwise affiliated with the company, to manage the business of the account.

Drafting Note: Certain separate accounts are registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission under the Investment Company Act of 1940, and variable annuity contractholders in the separate accounts must be given voting rights, principally in connection with the management of the assets of the account. The foregoing provision is accordingly recommended since many states require that the assets of an insurer be managed by its Board of Directors.

Section 2. Contract Statement Required

A contract providing benefits payable in variable amounts delivered or issued for delivery in this state shall contain a statement of the essential features of the procedures to be followed by the insurance company in determining the dollar amount of the variable benefits. Any such contract under which the benefits vary to reflect investment experience, including a group contract and any certificate in evidence of variable benefits issued thereunder, shall state that the dollar amount will so vary and shall contain on its first page a statement to the effect that the benefits thereunder are on a variable basis.

Section 3. License Required

A. A company shall not deliver or issue for delivery within this state variable contracts unless it is licensed or organized to do a life insurance or annuity business in this state, and the commissioner is satisfied that its condition or method of operation in connection with the issuance of the contracts will not render its operation hazardous to the public or its policyholders in this state. In this connection, the commissioner shall consider among other things:

(1) The history and financial condition of the company;

(2) The character, responsibility and fitness of the officers and directors of the company; and

(3) The law and regulation under which the company is authorized in the state of domicile to issue variable contracts. The state of entry of an alien company shall be deemed its place of domicile for this purpose.

B. If the company is a subsidiary of an admitted life insurance company, or affiliated with such company through common management or ownership, it may be deemed by the commissioner to have met the provisions of this section if either it or the parent or the affiliated company meets the requirements.

Section 4. Power of Commissioner

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the commissioner shall have sole authority to regulate the issuance and sale of variable contracts, and to issue such reasonable rules and regulations as may be appropriate to carry out the purposes and provisions of this Act.

Section 5. Applicability

Except for Sections [insert applicable sections] of the Insurance Law in the case of a variable annuity contract and Sections [insert applicable sections] in the case of a variable life insurance policy and except as otherwise provided in this Act, all pertinent provisions of the Insurance Law shall apply to separate accounts and contracts relating thereto. Any individual variable life insurance contract, delivered or issued for delivery in this state shall contain grace, reinstatement and nonforfeiture provisions appropriate to such a contract.

Drafting Note: Wherever this Act refers to the "Insurance Law," any necessary changes in reference should be made to indicate the applicable statute or statutes.

The reserve liability for variable contracts shall be established in accordance with actuarial procedures that recognize the variable nature of the benefits provided and any mortality guarantees.

Drafting Note: Insert appropriate section numbers above to make inapplicable any provisions in the Insurance Law requiring (i) grace, reinstatement and nonforfeiture provisions for either annuity contracts or life insurance policies, (ii) policy loans, (iii) tables of installment payment of contract proceeds, (iv) that annuity contracts be participating, and (v) any other provisions relating to annuities or insurance which require either elimination or modification for variable contracts, such as any provision requiring that the policy stipulate the dollar amount of benefits under the policy. If the law of a particular state requires provisions dealing with grace, reinstatement or nonforfeiture in individual fixed-dollar deferred annuities, the second sentence of this section should be modified by inserting the words "or annuity" after the word "insurance." If the law of a particular state requires any such provision with respect to a group contract, a new sentence should be added specifying that the provision, appropriate to a variable group contract, shall be required.

Section 6. Effective Date

This Act shall take effect [insert date].

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. To perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

VARIABLE LIFE INSURANCE MODEL REGULATION

Table of Contents

Section 1. Authority

The following regulations applicable to variable life insurance policies are promulgated under the authority of Section [insert applicable section] of the Insurance Laws of [insert state], and are effective [insert date].

Section 2. Definitions

As used in this regulation:

A. "Affiliate" of an insurer means a person, directly or indirectly, controlling, controlled by, or under common control with the insurer; a person who regularly furnishes investment advice to the insurer with respect to its separate accounts for which a specific fee or commission is charged; or any director, officer, partner or employee of the insurer, controlling or controlled person, or person providing investment advice or any member of the immediate family of such person.

B. "Agent" means a person, corporation, partnership or other legal entity that is licensed by this state as a life insurance agent.

C. "Assumed investment rate" means the rate of investment return that would be required to be credited to a variable life insurance policy, after deduction of charges for taxes, investment expenses and mortality and expense guarantees to maintain the variable death benefit equal at all times to the amount of death benefit, other than incidental insurance benefits, which would be payable under the plan of insurance if the death benefit did not vary according to the investment experience of the separate account.

D. "Benefit base" means the amount to which the net investment return is applied.

E. "Commissioner" means the insurance commissioner of this state.

Editor's Note: Insert the title of the chief insurance regulatory official whenever the term "commissioner" appears.

F. "Control" (including the terms "controlling," "controlled by" and "under common control with") means the possession, direct or indirect, of the power to direct or cause the direction of the management and policies of a person, whether through the ownership of voting securities, by contract other than a commercial contract for goods or non-management services, or otherwise, unless the power is the result of an official position with or corporate office held by the person. Control shall be presumed to exist if a person, directly or indirectly, owns, controls, holds with the power to vote, or holds proxies representing more than ten percent (10%) of the voting securities of any other person. This presumption may be rebutted by a showing made to the satisfaction of the commissioner that control does not exist in fact. The commissioner may determine, after furnishing to all persons in interest notice and opportunity to be heard and making specific findings of fact to support such determination, that control exists in fact, notwithstanding the absence of a presumption to that effect.

G. "Flexible premium policy" means any variable life insurance policy other than a scheduled premium policy as specified in Subsection O of this section.

H. "General account" means all assets of the insurer other than assets in separate accounts established pursuant to Section [insert applicable section] of the insurance laws of this state or pursuant to the corresponding section of the insurance laws of the state of domicile of a foreign or alien insurer, whether or not for variable life insurance.

I. "Incidental insurance benefit" means all insurance benefits in a variable life insurance policy, other than the variable death benefit and the minimum death benefit, including but not limited to, accidental death and dismemberment benefits, disability benefits, guaranteed insurability options, family income or term riders.

J. "May" is permissive.

K. "Minimum death benefit" means the amount of the guaranteed death benefit, other than incidental insurance benefits, payable under a variable life insurance policy regardless of the investment performance of the separate account.

L. "Net investment return" means the rate of investment return in a separate account to be applied to the benefit base.

M. "Person" means an individual, corporation, partnership, association, trust or fund.

N. "Policy processing day" means the day on which charges authorized in the policy are deducted from the policy's cash value.

O. "Scheduled premium policy" means a variable life insurance policy under which both the amount and timing of premium payments are fixed by the insurer.

P. "Separate account" means a separate account established pursuant to Section [insert section] of the insurance laws of this state or pursuant to the corresponding section of the insurance laws of the state of domicile of a foreign or alien insurer.

Q. "Shall" is mandatory.

R. "Variable death benefit" means the amount of the death benefit, other than incidental insurance benefits, payable under a variable life insurance policy dependent on the investment performance of the separate account, which the insurer would have to pay in the absence of any minimum death benefit.

S. "Variable life insurance policy" means an individual policy that provides for life insurance the amount or duration of which varies according to the investment experience of any separate account or accounts established and maintained by the insurer as to the policy, pursuant to Section [insert applicable section] of the insurance laws of this state or pursuant to the corresponding section of the insurance laws of the state of domicile of a foreign or alien insurer.

Section 3. Qualification of Insurer to Issue Variable Life Insurance

The following requirements are applicable to all insurers either seeking authority to issue variable life insurance in this state or having authority to issue variable life insurance in this state.

A. Licensing and Approval to do Business in This State. An insurer shall not deliver or issue for delivery in this state any variable life insurance policies unless:

(1) The insurer is licensed or organized to do a life insurance business in this state;

(2) The insurer has obtained the written approval of the commissioner for the issuance of variable life insurance policies in this state. The commissioner shall grant written approval only after the commissioner has found that:

(a) The plan of operation for the issuance of variable life insurance policies is not unsound;

(b) The general character, reputation and experience of the management and those persons or firms proposed to supply consulting, investment, administrative or custodial services to the insurer are such as to reasonably assure competent operation of the variable life insurance business of the insurer in this state; and

(c) The present and foreseeable future financial condition of the insurer and its method of operation in connection with the issuance of such policies is not likely to render its operation hazardous to the public or its policyholders in this state. The commissioner shall consider, among other things:

(i) The history of operation and financial condition of the insurer;

(ii) The qualifications, fitness, character, responsibility, reputation and experience of the officers and directors and other management of the insurer and those persons or firms proposed to supply consulting, investment, administrative or custodial services to the insurer;

(iii) The applicable law and regulations under which the insurer is authorized in its state of domicile to issue variable life insurance policies. The state of entry of an alien insurer shall be deemed its state of domicile for this purpose; and

(iv) If the insurer is a subsidiary of, or is affiliated by common management or ownership with another company, its relationship to such other company and the degree to which the requesting insurer, as well as the other company, meets these standards.

B. Filing for Approval to do Business in This State. The commissioner may, at his discretion, require that an insurer, before it delivers or issues for delivery any variable life insurance policy in this state, file with the department the following information for the consideration of the commissioner in making the determination required by Subsection A(2) of this section:

(1) Copies of and a general description of the variable life insurance policies it intends to issue;

(2) A general description of the methods of operation of the variable life insurance business of the insurer, including methods of distribution of policies and the names of those persons or firms proposed to supply consulting, investment, administrative, custodial or distribution services to the insurer;

(3) With respect to any separate account maintained by an insurer for a variable life insurance policy, a statement of the investment policy the issuer intends to follow for the investment of the assets held in the separate account and a statement of procedures for changing the investment policy. The statement of investment policy shall include a description of the investment objectives intended for the separate account;

(4) A description of any investment advisory services contemplated as required by Section 6H;

(5) A copy of the statutes and regulations of the state of domicile of the insurer under which it is authorized to issue variable life insurance policies;

(6) Biographical data with respect to officers and directors of the insurer on the National Association of Insurance commissioners Uniform Biographical Data Form; and

(7) A statement of the insurer's actuary describing the mortality and expense risks which the insurer will bear under the policy.

C. Standards of Suitability. Every insurer seeking approval to enter into the variable life insurance business in this state shall establish and maintain a written statement specifying the standards of suitability to be used by the insurer. The standards of suitability shall specify that no recommendation shall be made to an applicant to purchase a variable life insurance policy and that no variable life insurance policy shall be issued in the absence of reasonable grounds to believe that the purchase of the policy is not unsuitable for the applicant on the basis of information furnished after reasonable inquiry of the applicant concerning the applicant's insurance and investment objectives, financial situation and needs, and any other information known to the insurer or the agent making the recommendation.

D. Use of Sales Materials. An insurer authorized to transact variable life insurance business in this state shall not use any sales material, advertising material or descriptive literature or other materials of any kind in connection with its variable life insurance business in this state which is false, misleading, deceptive or inaccurate. Variable life insurance sales material, advertising material and descriptive literature shall be subject to the additional requirements of [insert citation to the state life insurance advertising rules].

E. Requirements Applicable to Contractual Services. Any material contract between an insurer and suppliers of consulting, investment, administrative, sales, marketing, custodial or other services with respect to variable life insurance operations shall be in writing and provide that the supplier of such services shall furnish the commissioner with any information or reports in connection with the services which the commissioner may request in order to ascertain whether the variable life insurance operations of the insurer are being conducted in a manner consistent with these regulations, and any other applicable law or regulations.

F. Reports to the Commissioner.

(1) An insurer authorized to transact the business of variable life insurance in this state shall submit to the commissioner, in addition to any other materials that may be required by this regulation or any other applicable laws or regulations:

(a) An annual statement of the business of its separate account or accounts in such forms as may be prescribed by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners; and

(b) Prior to the use in this state any information furnished to applicants as provided for in Section 7; and

(c) Prior to the use in this state the form of any of the reports to policyholders as provided for in Section 9; and

(d) Such additional information concerning its variable life insurance operations or its separate accounts as the commissioner shall deem necessary.

(2) Any material submitted to the commissioner under this section shall be disapproved if it is found to be false, misleading, deceptive or inaccurate in any material respect and, if previously distributed, the commissioner shall require the distribution of amended material.

G. Authority of Commissioner to Disapprove. Any material required to be filed with and approved by the commissioner shall be subject to disapproval if at any time it is found by him or her not to comply with the standards established in this regulation.

Section 4. Insurance Policy Requirements

A. Policy Qualification. The commissioner shall not approve any variable life insurance form filed pursuant to this regulation unless it conforms to the requirements of this section.

B. Filing of Variable Life Insurance Policies. All variable life insurance policies, and all riders, endorsements, applications and other documents that are to be attached to be made a part of the policy and which relate to the variable nature of the policy, shall be filed with the commissioner and approved by him or her prior to delivery or issuance for delivery in this state.

(1) The procedures and requirements for filing and approval shall be, to the extent appropriate and not inconsistent with this regulation, the same as those otherwise applicable to other life insurance policies.

(2) The commissioner may approve variable life insurance policies and related forms with provisions the commissioner deems to be not less favorable to the policyholder and the beneficiary than those required by this regulation.

C. Mandatory Policy Benefit and Design Requirements. Variable life insurance policies delivered or issued for delivery in this state shall comply with the following minimum requirements.

(1) Mortality and expense risks shall be borne by the insurer. The mortality and expense charges shall be subject to the maximums stated in the contract.

(2) For scheduled premium policies, a minimum death benefit shall be provided in an amount at least equal to the initial face amount of the policy so long as premiums are duly paid (subject to the provisions of Subsection E of this section);

(3) The policy shall reflect the investment experience of one or more separate accounts established and maintained by the insurer. The insurer shall demonstrate that the reflection of investment experience in the variable life insurance policy is actuarially sound.

(4) Each variable life insurance policy shall be credited with the full amount of the net investment return applied to the benefit base.

(5) Any changes in variable death benefits of each variable life insurance policy shall be determined at least annually.

(6) The cash value of each variable life insurance policy shall be determined at least monthly. The method of computation of cash values and other nonforfeiture benefits, as described either in the policy or in a statement filed with the commissioner of the state in which the policy is delivered, or issued for delivery, shall be in accordance with actuarial procedures that recognize the variable nature of the policy. The method of computation shall be such that, if the net investment return credited to the policy at all times from the date of issue should be equal to the assumed investment rate with premiums and benefits determined accordingly under the terms of the policy, then the resulting cash values to the minimum values required by Section [insert applicable section of the standard nonforfeiture law of this state] for a general account policy with such premiums and benefits. The assumed investment rate shall not exceed the maximum interest rate permitted under the Standard Nonforfeiture Law of this state. If the policy does not contain an assumed investment rate this demonstration shall be based on the maximum interest rate permitted under the Standard Nonforfeiture Law. The method of computation may disregard incidental minimum guarantees as to the dollar amounts payable. Incidental minimum guarantees include, for example, but are not limited to, a guarantee that the amount payable at death or maturity shall be least equal to the amount that otherwise would have been payable if the net investment return credited to the policy at all times from the date of issue had been equal to the assumed investment rate.

(7) The computation of values required for each variable life insurance policy may be based upon such reasonable and necessary approximations as are acceptable to the commissioner.

D. Mandatory Policy Provisions. Every variable life insurance policy filed for approval in this state shall contain at least the following:

(1) The cover page or pages corresponding to the cover page of each policy shall contain:

(a) A prominent statement in either contrasting color or in bold-faced type that the amount or duration of death benefit may be variable or fixed under specified conditions;

(b) A prominent statement in either contrasting color or in bold-faced type that cash values may increase or decrease in accordance with the experience of the separate account subject to any specified minimum guarantees;

(c) A statement describing any minimum death benefit required pursuant to Subsection C (2) of this section;

(d) The method, or a reference to the policy provision which describes the method, for determining the amount of insurance payable at death;

(e) To the extent permitted by state law, a captioned provision that the policyholder may return the variable life insurance policy within ten (10) days of receipt of the policy by the policyholder and receive a refund equal to the sum of the difference between the premiums paid including any policy fees or other charges and the amounts allocated to any separate accounts under the policy and the value of the amounts allocated to any separate accounts under the policy, on the date the returned policy is received by the insurer or its agent. Until such time as state law authorizes the return of payments as calculated in the preceding sentence, the amount of the refund shall be the total of all premium payments for such policy.

(f) Such other items as are currently required for fixed benefit life insurance policies and which are not inconsistent with this regulation.

(2) (a) For scheduled premium policies, a provision for a grace period of not less than thirty-one (31) days from the premium due date which shall provide that when the premium is paid within the grace period, policy values will be the same, except for the deduction of any overdue premium, as if the premium were paid on or before the due date.

(b) For flexible premium policies, a provision for a grace period beginning on the policy processing day when the total charges authorized by the policy that are necessary to keep the policy in force until the next policy processing day exceed the amounts available under the policy to pay such charges in accordance with the terms of the policy. The grace period shall end on a date not less than sixty-one (61) days after the mailing date of the Report to Policyholders required by Section 9C.

(c) The death benefit payable during the grace period will equal the death benefit in effect immediately prior to such period less any overdue charges. If the policy processing days occur monthly, the insurer may require the payment of not more than three (3) times the charges that were due on the policy processing day on which the amounts available under the policy were insufficient to pay all charges authorized by the policy that are necessary to keep the policy in force until the next policy processing day.

(3) For scheduled premium policies, a provision that the policy will be reinstated at any time within two (2) years from the date of default upon the written application of the insured and evidence of insurability, including good health, satisfactory to the insurer, unless the cash surrender value has been paid or the period of extended insurance has expired, upon the payment of any outstanding indebtedness arising subsequent to the end of the grace period following the date of default together with accrued interest thereon to the date of reinstatement and payment of an amount not exceeding the greater of:

(a) All overdue premiums with interest at a rate not exceeding [insert number] percent per annum compounded annually and any indebtedness in effect at the end of the grace period following the date of default with interest at a rate not exceeding [insert number] percent per annum compounded annually; or

(b) 110 percent of the increase in cash value resulting from reinstatement plus all overdue premiums for incidental insurance benefits with interest at a rate not exceeding [insert number] percent per annum compounded annually.

(4) A full description of the benefit base and of the method of calculation and application of any factors used to adjust variable benefits under the policy;

(5) A provision designating the separate account to be used and stating that:

(a) The assets of the separate account shall be available to cover the liabilities of the general account of the insurer only to the extent that the assets of the separate account exceed the liabilities of the separate account arising under the variable life insurance policies supported by the separate account.

(b) The assets of the separate account shall be valued at least as often as any policy benefits vary but at least monthly.

(6) A provision specifying what documents constitute the entire insurance contract under state law;

(7) A designation of the officers who are empowered to make an agreement or representation on behalf of the insurer and an indication that statements by the insured, or on his or her behalf, shall be considered as representations and not warranties;

(8) An identification of the owner of the insurance contract;

(9) A provision setting forth conditions or requirements as to the designation, or change of designation, of a beneficiary and a provision for disbursement of benefits in the absence of a beneficiary designation;

(10) A statement of any conditions or requirements concerning the assignment of the policy;

(11) A description of any adjustments in policy values to be made in the event of misstatement of age or sex of the insured;

(12) A provision that the policy shall be incontestable by the insurer after it has been in force for two (2) years during the lifetime of the insured. However, any increase in the amount of the policy's death benefits subsequent to the policy issue date, which occurred upon a new application or request of the owner and was subject to satisfactory proof of the insured's insurability, shall be incontestable after the increase has been in force, during the lifetime of the insured, for two (2) years from the date of issue of increase;

(13) A provision stating that the investment policy of the separate account shall not be changed without the approval of the insurance commissioner of the state of domicile of the insurer, and that the approval process is on file with the commissioner of this state;

(14) A provision that payment of variable death benefits in excess of any minimum death benefits, cash values, policy loans or partial withdrawals (except when used to pay premiums) or partial surrenders may be deferred:

(a) For up to six (6) months from the date of request, if the payments are based on policy values which do not depend on the investment performance of the separate account; or

(b) Otherwise, for any period during which the New York Stock Exchange is closed for trading (except for normal holiday closing) or when the Securities and Exchange Commission has determined that a state of emergency exists which may make such payment impractical;

(15) If settlement options are provided, at least one option shall be provided on a fixed basis only;

(16) A description of the basis for computing the cash value and the surrender value under the policy shall be included;

(17) Premiums or charges for incidental insurance benefits shall be stated separately;

(18) Any other policy provision required by this regulation;

(19) Such other items as are currently required for fixed benefit life insurance policies and are not inconsistent with this regulation; and

(20) A provision for nonforfeiture insurance benefits. The insurer may establish a reasonable minimum cash value below which any nonforfeiture insurance options will not be available.

E. Policy Loan Provisions. Every variable life insurance policy, other than term insurance policies and pure endowment policies delivered or issued for delivery in this state shall contain provisions which are not less favorable to the policyholder than a provision for policy loans after the policy has been in force for [insert number] full years which provides the following:

(1) At least seventy-five percent (75%) of the policy's cash surrender value may be borrowed.

(2) The amount borrowed shall bear interest at a rate not to exceed that permitted by state insurance law.

(3) Any indebtedness shall be deducted from the proceeds payable on death.

(4) Any indebtedness shall be deducted from the cash surrender value upon surrender or in determining any nonforfeiture benefit.

(5) For scheduled premium policies, whenever the indebtedness exceeds the cash surrender value, the insurer shall give notice of any intent to cancel the policy if the excess indebtedness is not repaid within thirty-one (31) days after the date of mailing of notice. For flexible premium policies, whenever the total charges authorized by the policy that are necessary to keep the policy in force until the next following policy processing day exceed the amounts available under the policy to pay the charges, a report must be sent to the policyholder containing the information specified by Section 9C.

(6) The policy may provide that if, at any time, so long as premiums are duly paid, the variable death benefit is less than it would have been if no loan or withdrawal had ever been made, the policyholder may increase the variable death benefit up to what it would have been if there had been no loan or withdrawal by paying an amount not exceeding 110 percent of the corresponding increase in cash value and by furnishing such evidence of insurability as the insurer may request.

(7) The policy may specify a reasonable minimum amount that may be borrowed at any time but the minimum shall not apply to any automatic premium loan provision.

(8) No policy loan provision is required if the policy is under extended insurance nonforfeiture option.

(9) The policy loan provisions shall be constructed so that variable life insurance policyholders who have not exercised such provisions are not disadvantaged by the exercise thereof.

(10) Amounts paid to the policyholders upon the exercise of any policy loan provision shall be withdrawn from the separate account and shall be returned to the separate account upon repayment except that a stock insurer may provide the amounts for policy loans from the general account.

F. Other Policy Provisions. The following provision may in substance be included in a variable life insurance policy or related form delivered or issued for delivery in this state:

(1) An exclusion for suicide within [insert "two" or other number of years] years of the issue date of the policy; provided, however, that to the extent of the increased death benefits only, the policy may provide an exclusion for suicide within two (2) years of any increase in death benefits which result from an application of the owner subsequent to the policy issue date;

(2) Incidental insurance benefits may be offered on a fixed or variable basis;

(3) Policies issued on a participating basis shall offer to pay dividend amounts in cash. In addition, such policies may offer the following dividend options:

(a) The amount of the dividend may be credited against premium payments;

(b) The amount of the dividend may be applied to provide amounts of additional fixed or variable benefit life insurance;

(c) The amount of the dividend may be deposited in the general account at a specified minimum rate of interest;

(d) The amount of the dividend may be applied to provide paid-up amounts of fixed benefit one-year term insurance;

(e) The amount of the dividend may be deposited as a variable deposit in a separate account.

(4) A provision allowing the policyholder to elect in writing in the application for the policy or thereafter an automatic premium loan on a basis not less favorable than that required of policy loans under Subsection E of this section, except that a restriction that no more than two (2) consecutive premiums can be paid under this provision may be imposed;

(5) A provision allowing the policyholder to make partial withdrawals; and

(6) Any other policy provision approved by the commissioner.

Section 5. Reserve Liabilities For Variable Life Insurance

A. Reserve Liabilities Under Standard Valuation Law. Reserves liabilities for variable life insurance policies shall be established under [insert citation to the standard valuation law] in accordance with actuarial procedures that recognize the variable nature of the benefits provided and any mortality guarantees.

B. Reserve Liabilities for the Guaranteed Minimum Death Benefit. Reserve liabilities for the guaranteed minimum death benefit shall be the reserve needed to provide for the contingency of death occurring when the guaranteed minimum death benefit exceeds the death benefit that would be paid in the absence of the guarantee, and shall be maintained in the general account of the insurer and shall not be less than the greater of the following minimum reserves:

(1) The aggregate total of the term costs, if any, covering a period of one full year from the valuation date or, if less, covering the period provided for in the guarantee not otherwise provided for by the reserves held in the separate account, on each variable life insurance contract, assuming an immediate one-third depreciation in the current value of the assets in the separate account followed by a net investment return equal to the assumed investment rate; or

(2) The aggregate total of the "attained age level" reserves on each variable life insurance contract. The "attained age level" reserve on each variable life insurance contract shall not be less than zero and shall equal the "residue," as described in Subparagraph (a) below, of the prior year's "attained age level" reserve on the contract, with any such "residue," increased or decreased by a payment computed on an attained age basis as described in Subparagraph (b) below.

(a) The "residue" of the prior year's "attained age level" reserve on each variable life insurance contract shall not be less than zero and shall be determined by adding interest at the valuation interest rate to the prior year's reserve, deducting the tabular claims based on the "excess," if any, of the guaranteed minimum death benefit over the death benefit that would be payable in the absence of a guarantee, and dividing the net result by the tabular probability of survival. The "excess" referred to in the preceding sentence shall be based on the actual level of death benefits that would have been in effect during the preceding year in the absence of the guarantee, taking appropriate account of the reserve assumptions regarding the distribution of death claim payments over the year.

(b) The payment referred to in this paragraph shall be computed so that the present value of a level payment of that amount each year over the future period for which charges for this risk will be collected under the contract, is equal to (A) minus (B) minus (C), where (A) is the present value of the future guaranteed minimum death benefits, (B) is the present value of the future death benefits that would be payable in the absence of such guarantee, and (C) is any "residue," as described in Subparagraph (a), of the prior year's "attained age level" reserve on such variable life insurance contract. If no future charges for this risk will be collected under the contract, the payment shall equal (A) minus (B) minus (C). The amounts of the future death benefits referred to in (B) shall be computed assuming a net investment return of the separate account which may differ from the assumed investment rate or the valuation interest but in no event may exceed the maximum interest rate permitted for the valuation of life contracts.

(3) The valuation interest rate and mortality table used in computing the two minimum reserves described in Paragraph (1) and (2) of this subsection shall conform to permissible standards for the valuation of life insurance contracts. In determining such minimum reserves, the company may employ suitable approximations and estimates, including but not limited to groupings and averages.

C. Incidental Insurance Benefit. Reserve liabilities for all fixed incidental insurance benefits and any guarantees associated with variable incidental insurance benefits shallbe maintained in the general account and reserve liabilities for all variable aspects of the variable incidental insurance benefits shall be maintained in a separate account, in amounts determined in accordance with the actuarial procedures appropriate to the benefit.

Section 6. Separate Accounts

The following requirements apply to the establishment and administration of variable life insurance separate accounts by a domestic insurer:

A. Establishment and Administration of Separate Accounts. A domestic insurer issuing variable life insurance shall establish one or more separate accounts pursuant to Sections [insert appropriate sections] of the insurance laws of this state.

(1) If no law or other regulation provides for the custody of separate account assets and if the insurer is not the custodian of the separate account assets, all contracts for custody of these assets shall be in writing and the commissioner shall have authority to review and approve of both the terms of the contract and the proposed custodian prior to the transfer of custody.

(2) The insurer shall not without prior written approval of the commissioner employ in any material connection with the handling of separate account assets any person who:

(a) Within the last ten (10) years has been convicted of any felony or a misdemeanor arising out of such person's conduct involving embezzlement, fraudulent conversion, or misappropriation of funds or securities or involving violation of Sections 1341, 1342 or 1343 of Title 18, United States Code; or

(b) Within the last ten (10) years has been found by any state regulatory to have violated or has acknowledged violation of any provision of any state insurance law involving fraud, deceit or knowing misrepresentation; or

(c) Within the last ten (10) years has been found by federal or state regulatory authorities to have violated or has acknowledged violation of any provision of federal or state securities laws involving fraud, deceit or knowing misrepresentation.

(3) All persons with access to the cash, securities, or other assets of the separate account shall be under bond in the amount of not less than $[insert appropriate amount].

(4) The assets of separate accounts shall be valued at least as often as variable benefits are determined but in any event at least monthly.

B. Amounts in the Separate Account. The insurer shall maintain in each separate account assets with a value at least equal to the greater of the valuation reserves for the variable portion of the variable life insurance policies or the benefit base for these policies.

C. Investments by the Separate Account.

(1) No sale, exchange, or other transfer of assets may be made by an insurer or any of its affiliates between any of its separate accounts or between any other investment account and one or more of its separate accounts unless:

(a) In case of transfer into a separate account, the transfer is made solely to establish the account or to support the operation of the policies with respect to the separate account to which the transfer is made; and

(b) The transfer, whether into or from a separate account, is made by a transfer of cash; but other assets may be transferred if approved by the commissioner in advance.

(2) The separate account shall have sufficient net investment income and readily marketable assets to meet anticipated withdrawals under policies funded by the account.

D. Limitations on Ownership.

(1) A separate account shall not purchase or otherwise acquire the securities of an issuer, other than securities issued or guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States, if immediately after the purchase or acquisition the value of the investment, together with prior investments of the account in the security valued as required by these regulations, would exceed ten percent (10%) of the value of the assets of the separate account. The commissioner may waive this limitation in writing if the commissioner believes the waiver will not render the operation of the separate account hazardous to the public or the policyholders in this state.

(2) No separate account shall purchase or otherwise acquire the voting securities of any issuer if as a result of the acquisition the insurer and its separate accounts in the aggregate, will own more than ten percent (10%) of the total issued and outstanding voting securities of the issuer. The commissioner may waive this limitation in writing if he or she believes the waiver will not render the operation of the separate account hazardous to the public or the policyholders in this state or jeopardize the independent operation of the issuer of these securities.

(3) The percentage limitation specified in Paragraph (1) of this subsection shall not be construed to preclude the investment of the assets of separate accounts in shares of investment companies registered pursuant to the Investment Company Act of 1940 or other pools of investment assets if the investments and investment policies of such investment companies or asset pools comply substantially with the provisions of Subsection C of this section and other applicable portions of this regulation.

E. Valuation of Separate Account Assets. Investments of the separate account shall be valued at their market value on the date of valuation, or at amortized cost if it approximates market value.

F. Separate Account Investment Policy. The investment policy of a separate account operated by a domestic insurer filed under Section 3B(3) shall not be changed without first filing the change with the insurance commissioner.

(1) Any change filed pursuant to this section shall be effective sixty (60) days after the date it was filed with the commissioner, unless the commissioner notifies the insurer before the end of the sixty-day period of his or her disapproval of the proposed change. At any time the commissioner may, after notice and public hearing, disapprove any change that has become effective pursuant to this section.

(2) The commissioner may disapprove the change if he or she determines that the change would be detrimental to the interests of the policyholders participating in the separate accounts.

G. Charges Against Separate Account. The insurer shall disclose in writing, prior to or contemporaneously with delivery of the policy, all charges that may be made against the separate account, including, but not limited to, the following:

(1) Taxes or reserves for taxes attributable to investment gains and income of the separate account;

(2) Actual cost of reasonable brokerage fees and similar direct acquisition and sale costs incurred in the purchase or sale of separate account assets;

(3) Actuarially determined costs of insurance (tabular costs) and the release of separate account liabilities;

(4) Charges for administrative expenses and investment management expenses, including internal costs attributable to the investment management of assets of the separate account;

(5) A charge, at a rate specified in the policy, for mortality and expense guarantees;

(6) Any amounts in excess of those required to be held in the separate accounts; and

(7) Charges for incidental insurance benefits.

H. Standards of Conduct. Every insurer seeking approval to enter into the variable life insurance business in this state shall adopt by formal action of its board of directors a written statement specifying the standards of conduct of the insurer, its officers, directors, employees and affiliates with respect to the purchase or sale of investments of separate accounts. The standards of conduct shall be binding on the insurer and those to whom it refers. A code or codes of ethics meeting the requirements of Section 17j under the Investment Company Act of 1940 and its applicable rules and regulations shall satisfy the provisions of this section.

I. Conflicts of Interest. Rules under any provision of the insurance laws of this state or any regulation applicable to the officers and directors of insurance companies with respect to conflicts of interest shall also apply to members of any separate account's committee or other similar body.

J. Investment Advisory Services to a Separate Account.

(1) An insurer shall not enter into a contract under which any person undertakes, for a fee, to regularly furnish investment advice to such insurer with respect to its separate accounts maintained for variable life insurance policies unless:

(a) The person providing advice is registered as an investment adviser under the Investment Advice Act of 1940; or

(b) The person providing advice is an investment manager under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 with respect to the assets of each employee benefit plan allocated to the separate account; or

(c) The insurer has filed with the commissioner and continues to file annually the following information and statements concerning the proposed advisor:

(i) The name and form of organization, state of organization, and its principal place of business;

(ii) The names and addresses of its partners, officers, directors and persons performing similar functions or, if the investment advisory is an individual, of the individual;

(iii) A written standard of conduct complying in substance with the requirements of Subsection H of this section which has been adopted by the investment advisor and is applicable to the investment advisor, its officers, directors, and affiliates;

(iv) A statement provided by the proposed advisor as to whether the advisor or any person associated therewith:

(I) Has been convicted within ten (10) years of a felony or misdemeanor arising out of the person's conduct as an employee, salesman, officer or director of an insurance company, a banker, an insurance agent, a securities broker or an investment advisor involving embezzlement, fraudulent conversion or misappropriation of funds or securities, or involving the violation of Sections 1341, 1342, or 1343 of Title 18 of United States Code;

(II) Has been permanently or temporarily enjoined by an order, judgment or decree of a court of competent jurisdiction from acting as an investment advisor, underwriter, broker or dealer, or as an affiliated person or as an employee of an investment company, bank or insurance company, or from engaging in or continuing any conduct or practice in connection with any such activity;

(III) Has been found by federal or state regulatory authorities to have willfully violated or have acknowledged willful violation of any provision of federal or state securities laws or state insurance laws or of any rule or regulation under these laws; or

(IV) Has been censured, denied an investment advisor registration, had a registration as an investment advisor revoked or suspended, or been barred or suspended from being associated with an investment advisor by order of federal or state regulatory authorities; and

(d) The investment advisory contract shall be in writing and provide that it may be terminated by the insurer without penalty to the insurer or the separate account upon no more than sixty (60) days' written notice to the investment advisor.

(2) The commissioner may, after notice and opportunity for hearing, by order require the investment advisory contract to be terminated if the commissioner deems continued operation under the contract to be hazardous to the public or the insurer's policyholders.

Section 7. Information Furnished To Applicants

An insurer delivering or issuing for delivery in this state a variable life insurance policy shall deliver the following to the applicant for the policy, and obtain a written acknowledgment of receipt from the applicant coincident with or prior to the execution of the application. The requirements of this section shall be deemed to have been satisfied to the extent that a disclosure containing information required by this section is delivered, either in the form of a prospectus included in the requirements of the Securities Act of 1933 and which was declared effective by the Securities and Exchange Commission; or all information and reports required by the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 if the policies are exempted from the registration requirements of the Securities Act of 1933 pursuant to Section 3(a)(2) thereof.

A. A summary explanation, in non-technical terms, of the principal features of the policy, including a description of the manner in which the variable benefits will reflect the investment experience of the separate account and the factors that affect the variation. The explanation shall include notices of the provision required by Sections 4D(1)(e) and 4D(6);

B. A statement of the investment policy of the separate account, including:

(1) A description of the investment objectives intended for the separate account and the principal types of investments intended to be made; and

(2) Any restrictions or limitations on the manner in which the operations of the separate account are intended to be conducted;

C. A statement of the net investment return of the separate account for each of the last ten (10) years or such lesser period as the separate account has been in existence;

D. A statement of the charges levied against the separate account during the previous year;

E. A summary of the method to be used in valuing assets held by the separate account;

F. A summary of the federal income tax aspects of the policy applicable to the insured, the policyholder and the beneficiary; and

G. Illustrations of benefits payable under the variable life insurance contract. The illustrations shall be prepared by the insurer and shall not include projections of past investment experience into the future or attempted predictions of future investments experience, provided that nothing contained herein prohibits use of hypothetical assumed rates of return to illustrate possible levels of benefits if it is made clear that the assumed rates are hypothetical only.

Section 8. Applications

The application for a variable life insurance policy shall contain:

A. A prominent statement that the death benefit may be variable or fixed under specified conditions;

B. A prominent statement that cash values may increase or decrease in accordance with the experience of the separate account (subject to any specified minimum guarantees); and

C. Questions designed to elicit information that enables the insurer to determine the suitability of variable life insurance for the applicant.

Section 9. Reports to Policyholders

An insurer delivering or issuing for delivery in this state a variable life insurance policy shall mail to each variable life insurance policyholder at his or her last known address the following reports:

A. Within thirty (30) days after each anniversary of the policy, a statement or statements of the cash surrender value, death benefit, any partial withdrawal or policy loan, any interest charge, any optional payments allowed pursuant to Section 4E under the policy computed as of the policy anniversary date. However, the statement may be furnished within thirty (30) days after a specified date in each policy year so long as the information contained therein is computed as of a date not more than sixty (60) days prior to the mailing of the notice. This statement shall state that, in accordance with the investment experience of the separate account, the cash values and the variable death benefit may increase or decrease, and shall prominently identify any value described therein which may be recomputed prior to the next statement required by this section. If the policy guarantees that the variable death benefit on the next policy anniversary date will not be less than the variable death benefit specified in the statement, the statement shall be modified to so indicate. For flexible premium policies, the report shall contain a reconciliation of the change since the previous report in cash value and cash surrender value, if different, because of payments made (less deductions for expense charges), withdrawals, investment experience, insurance charges and any other charges made against the cash value. In addition, the report shall show the projected cash value and cash surrender value, if different, as of one year from the end of the period covered by the report assuming that planned periodic premiums, if any, are paid as scheduled; guaranteed costs of insurance are deducted; and the net return is equal to the guaranteed rate or, in the absence of a guaranteed rate, is not greater than zero. If the projected value is less than zero, a warning message shall be included that states that the policy may be in danger of terminating without value in the next twelve (12) months unless additional premium is paid.

B. Annually, a statement or statements including:

(1) A summary of the financial statement of the separate account based on the last annual statement filed with the commissioner;

(2) The net investment return of the separate account for the last year and, for each year after the first, a comparison of the investment rate of the separate account during the last year with the investment rate during prior years, up to a total of not less than five (5) years when available;

(3) A list of investments held by the separate account as of a date not earlier than the end of the last year for which an annual statement was filed with the commissioner;

(4) Any charges levied against the separate account during the previous year; and

(5) A statement of any change, since the last report, in the investment objective and orientation of the separate account, in any investment restriction or material quantitative or qualitative investment requirement applicable to the separate account or in the investment advisor of the separate account.

C. For flexible premium policies, a report shall be sent to the policyholder if the amounts available under the policy on any policy processing day to pay the charges authorized by the policy are less than the amount necessary to keep the policy in force until the next following policy processing day. The report shall indicate the minimum payment required under the terms of the policy to keep it in force and the length of the grace period for payment of the amount.

Section 10. Foreign Companies

If the law or regulation in the place of domicile of a foreign company provides a degree of protection to the policyholders and the public that is substantially similar to that provided by these regulations, the commissioner to the extent deemed appropriate by the commissioner in his or her discretion, may consider compliance with such law or regulation as compliance with these regulations.

Section 11. Qualifications Of Agents For The Sale Of Variable Life Insurance

A. Qualification to Sell Variable Life Insurance

(1) A person shall not sell or offer for sale in this state any variable life insurance policy unless the person is an agent and has filed with the commissioner, in a form satisfactory to the commissioner, evidence that the person holds a license or authorization that may be required for the solicitation or sale of variable life insurance.

(2) An examination administered by the Department for the purpose of determining the eligibility of a person for licensing as an agent shall, after the effective date of this regulation, include questions concerning the history, purpose, regulation and sale of variable life insurance as the commissioner deems appropriate.

B. Reports of Disciplinary Actions. A person qualified in this state under this Act to sell or offer to sell variable life insurance shall immediately report to the commissioner:

(1) Any suspension or revocation of the agent's license in any other state or territory of the United States;

(2) The imposition of any disciplinary sanction, including suspension or expulsion from membership, suspension or revocation of or denial of registration, imposed upon him or her by any national securities exchange, or national securities association, or any federal, state or territorial agency with jurisdiction over securities or variable life insurance; and

(3) Any judgment or injunction entered against him or her on the basis of conduct deemed to have involved fraud, deceit, misrepresentation or violation of any insurance or securities law or regulation.

C. Refusal to Qualify Agent to Sell Variable Life Insurance: Suspension, Revocation, or Nonrenewal of Qualification. The commissioner may reject an application or suspend or revoke or refuse to renew an agent's qualification under this Act to sell or offer to sell variable life insurance upon any ground that would bar the applicant or agent from being licensed to sell other life insurance contracts in this state. The rules governing a proceeding relating to the suspension or revocation of an agent's license shall also govern a proceeding for suspension or revocation of an agent's qualification to sell or offer to sell variable life insurance.

Section 12. Separability

If any provision of this regulation or its application to any person or circumstances is for any reason held to be invalid, the remainder of the regulation and the application of its provisions to other persons or circumstances shall not be affected.

COMMENTARY TO
VARIABLE LIFE INSURANCE MODEL REGULATION

Section 2. Definitions

Note: Each definition should be reviewed to assure that the definition corresponds to the actual language used by the statutes of the particular state. Additional definitions may be necessary.

Subsection A. Affiliate

Source: NAIC Model Holding Company Act Section lA, 1969 Proceedings of the NAIC II 739.

Comment: The circumstances in which a person becomes an affiliate must remain flexible, and depend on the particular facts of each case. However, a person would presumptively be affiliated if: (1) they owned more than 10 percent of the voting securities; (2) they furnished regular investment advice; (3) they were in control of, were controlled by, or were in common control with; or (4) were a director, employee, officer, partner of such a person or a member of that person's immediate family. It should be noted that a separate account in not a severable legal entity but rather is an integral part of the insurer. Therefore, it cannot be an affiliate of anyone.

The definition of an affiliate contains no percentage limitation. Therefore the definition of "control" (Section 2F) takes on added significance.

The definition of affiliate has been expanded from the NAIC Model Holding Company Act to include those persons (investment advisers, directors, partners, employees and relatives) who might obtain personal or corporate gain at the expense of variable life insurance policyholders. A finding of affiliation is significant because it (1) triggers the conflict of interest provisions (Section 6I), (2) imposes minimum standards of conduct (Section 6H), and (3) subjects the entire corporate structures of insurers to scrutiny by the commissioner relating to its variable life insurance operations (see Section 3A(2)(c)(iv) concerning those who would otherwise be non-affiliated persons).

The inherent close relationship of the insurer's general account and separate account, the nature of the insurer's obligation, and the ownership of separate account assets would have made application of the interested person concept (see 15 USC 80a-2(19) and 15 USC 80a-10(a)) not only inappropriate, but contradictory to the nature of variable life insurance. Because of the nature of an insurer's variable life insurance operations, the committee found no beneficial effect in requiring a separate account to have a management which was independent of the insurer. As a matter of fact, they expressly held the insurer's board responsible in a management context for all acts of the insurer involving its separate account. It was expected, however, that separate account operations would be carefully scrutinized (see, e.g., Section 6I).

Otherwise independent investment advisers who furnish regular investment advice are incorporated within the definition of affiliate in order to place protection against overreaching in general, and potential conflicts of interest within the scope of the regulation.

The definition purposely limits its application to those otherwise independent advisers who regularly furnish investment advice for which a specific fee is charged. This is done in order to avoid the possible construction that a broker who, as part of his normal brokerage commission gives incidental investment advice, would be an affiliate.

Subsection B. Agent

Note: Those states that have life insurance brokers or solicitors should modify the definition of agent to include them.

Comment: See NAIC Agents and Brokers Licensing Model Act Section 4A(2)(a)(1) as amended by the NAIC in December, 1973 consistent with the recommendation contained in 1973 Proceedings of the NAIC II 383.

C. Assumed Investment Rate

Comment: This is the hypothetical rate of investment return, after the enumerated deductions, specified by the insurer in defining the plan of insurance benefits. In a variable whole life policy, for example, it is the rate of investment return at which the variable death benefit (Section 2R) will at all times equal the initial death benefit. It is the rate of investment return at which nonforfeiture benefits must be tested for conformity with those required by the Standard Nonforfeiture Law (see Section 4C(6)).

A low assumed investment rate will increase the net premium while simultaneously increasing the likelihood that the net investment return will exceed the assumed investment rate. That is, for a given net premium, a low assumed investment rate would produce a lower initial face amount, but a greater probability that subsequent variable death benefits would increase. Thus, there may be sound actuarial and marketing reasons for a lower than average assumed investment rate. However, too low an assumed investment rate would make premiums uncompetitively high.

On the other hand, a high assumed investment rate would produce a higher initial face amount, but with a greatly reduced chance of subsequent increases in the death benefit. In addition, it should be noted that the higher the assumed investment rate, the more costly any initial face value guarantees will become to the insurer. The Subcommittee was concerned with the possibility that excessive assumed investment rates could be deceptive in suggesting unrealistic policyholder expectations, and could impinge adversely on the insurer's solvency. The fourth sentence of Section 4C(6), limiting this rate to the maximum rate permitted under the Standard Nonforfeiture law, was included to prevent this.

Subsection D. Benefit Base

Comment: Prior to the 1983 amendments, the model regulation defined benefit base as the "amount . . to which the difference between the net investment return and the assumed investment rate is applied in determining the variable benefits of the policy." In some of the early drafts of the model regulation, the Committee utilized the term "attributed fund." The term "benefit base" was substituted therefor as more descriptive and to specifically avoid the unintended connotation of individual policyholder proportionate ownership of identifiable assets being read by some into the term "attributed fund."

The 1983 amendments recognize that the benefit base of a flexible premium variable life insurance policy is the policy's cash value and that the concept of an assumed investment rate is not meaningful in the context of these products.

Thus, the definition of benefit base, as changed by the 1983 amendments, defines the amount for both flexible premium and scheduled premium policies. For this reason, for example, the 1983 amendments deleted the previous formulations which correlated the benefit base computation to the difference between the net investment return and the assumed investment rate. In addition, the cross-reference to Section 6B, which sets forth the benefit base computation, has been deleted to correspond to the deletion of the latter provision.

Subsection E. Commissioner

Note: Each state should modify the term "commissioner" so that it corresponds to the correct title of the insurance regulatory official in the state where this regulation is adopted.

Source: NAIC Health Maintenance Organization Model Act Section 2D, 1973 Proceedings of the NAIC I 205.

Subsection F. Control

Source: NAIC Model Holding Company Act Section lC, 1969 Proceedings of the NAIC II 739.

Comment: This section closely parallels its source, but the percentage of ownership before control would be presumed was slightly amended from "ten percent (10%)" to "more than ten percent (10%)." This was done to eliminate an internal inconsistency with Section 6D that allows ownership of up to 10% of the securities of any one issuer in funding the variable life insurance separate account.

The term control (and therefore affiliate) is defined in terms of the ability to direct or cause the direction of the management of another person whether or not through stock ownership. Thus, control can in fact be found regardless of the absence of a presumption of control. The criteria for making such a finding are clearly contained within the definition, to wit, the ability to direct management.

There is no reverse presumption of a lack of control when 10% or less is owned. Rather, the burden would still always be on the person claiming no control to demonstrate this to the commissioner.

The facts of each particular case in determining control must be judged on their own merits. It is for this reason that the model regulation attempts to preserve maximum flexibility for the commissioner in order not to bind him or her in the future to decisions which lack relevance to the actual facts of a particular case. Nonetheless, it would seem that the percentage of stock ownership in question, as well as the existence or nonexistence and size of any other organized factions of shareholders, would be relevant inquiries in determining control.

The finding of control would in turn automatically establish an affiliate relationship and trigger the conflict of interest (Section 6I) and standards of conduct (Section 6H) provisions of the regulation notwithstanding the absence of a presumption of control. The last sentence of this section would also allow the commissioner to determine that control of or by persons without voting securities exists in fact.

The question of notice and procedure is designed to be governed by the administrative law and procedure of the particular state in question. In most instances, this would be a question that would be handled by the state of domicile (see also comment to Section 3E).

Subsection G. Flexible Premium Policy

Comment: A flexible premium variable life insurance policy is defined by reference to a scheduled premium variable life insurance policy as defined in Section 2. The demarcation between scheduled and flexible premium policies is a fundamental underpinning of the 1983 amendments to the model regulation. The classification of a product as a flexible premium or scheduled premium policy is, for example, determinative of important distinctions in the applicability and scope of mandatory policy benefit and design requirements and mandatory policy provisions (see, e.g., Sections 4C(2), 4D(2) and 4D(3)).

Structurally, the model regulation defines a flexible premium variable life insurance policy broadly as any variable life insurance policy other than a scheduled premium policy as defined in Section 2. Accordingly, if either the amount or timing of premium payments under a variable life insurance policy is not fixed by the insurer (see Section 2), or if both amount and timing have not been so fixed, then the policy is a flexible premium variable life insurance policy within the scope of Subsection G.

Subsection H. General Account

Comment: The general account of an insurer may not be an account as such but rather consists of all the assets of the insurer that are available to satisfy its overall obligations. The general account does not include any separate account of the insurer. However, to the extent that a particular separate account's assets may exceed separate account liabilities, they are of course available to satisfy obligations of the general account (see Section 4D(5)(a)). Separate accounts include variable annuity and any other separate accounts permitted by law. The reference to separate accounts established pursuant to the laws of the promulgating state should be interpreted to include the equivalent authorizing section of the insurer's state of domicile.

Subsection I. Incidental Insurance Benefit

Comment: This definition is intended to include all those riders and policy benefits, other than the variable death benefit and associated nonforfeiture benefits and any minimum death benefit, that are sold as a part of or in conjunction with the variable life insurance policy. Benefits are within this definition regardless of whether they also may be sold to variable life insurance purchasers as separate policies or whether the premiums are separately stated or determined. For example, disability waiver of premium and guaranteed insurability options are not normally offered as a separate policy but are offered as a part of a permanent fixed benefit policy and would therefore be incidental insurance benefits to the variable life insurance policy. Accidental death benefits may be purchased as a separate policy but are also normally sold as part of a permanent fixed benefit life policy and would also be incidental insurance benefits to a variable life policy. Incidental insurance benefits would also include incidental minimum guarantees (see Section 4C(6)).

Prior to the 1983 amendments, the model regulation precluded an insurer from offering incidental insurance benefits on a variable basis. This restriction was clear from the text of the prior definition, which referred, in part, to fixed benefit term riders, and from the statement in the original commentary that incidental insurance benefits must be fixed. The deletion of the reference to fixed benefit term riders is designed to be indicative of the intention to permit insurers to offer variable incidental benefits.

Subsection K. Minimum Death Benefit

Comment: Reserves underlying any minimum death benefit guarantee must be maintained in the general account (see Section 5). The minimum death benefit guarantee, if any, is not what makes this product life insurance.

Subsection L. Net Investment Return

Comment: The 1983 amendments revised the definition of net investment return by deleting the clause that had specified the permissible deductions to be utilized in computing the net investment return. Prior to the 1983 amendments, Section 6G limited permissible deductions from the separate account to the categories that were specifically enumerated in that section. Section 6G was amended in 1983 to require the insurer to disclose all deductions that are made from the separate account. The categories of charges set out in Section 6G were retained as illustrative of the charges that must be disclosed; permissible charges, however, were no longer limited to the specified categories. The amendment to the definition of net investment return corresponds to the revisions in Section 6G.

Subsection M. Person

Source: NAIC Model Holding Company Act Section lF 1969 Proceedings of the NAIC II 740.

Comment: This section was intended to include all forms of business enterprise no matter what their organization. It includes affiliates, and if applicable, governmental entities. An insurer's separate account by itself could not be a person (see comment to Section 2A).

Subsection N. Policy Processing Day

Comment: The definition of policy processing day was added by the 1983 amendments. As explained more fully in the discussion of Sections 4 and 9, the policy processing day plays a central role in triggering the grace period for flexible premium variable life insurance policies and in measuring the length of the grace period once it is so activated (see Section 4D(2)(b) and Section 9C).

Subsection O. Scheduled Premium Policy

The definition of a scheduled premium policy was added by the 1983 amendments to the model regulation. It is intended to establish the perimeters of contemporary traditional variable life insurance policies. Specifically, a variable life insurance policy is classified as a scheduled premium policy if the insurer has established (or fixed) both the amount of required premium payments and the times at which they are to be paid. Typically, under a scheduled premium policy, if a premium is not paid in accordance with the schedule that has been fixed by the insurer, and if the non-payment of premium is not remedied within the applicable grace period, the policy lapses, triggering the operation of nonforfeiture options.

It should be noted that a policy would not necessarily be classified as a scheduled premium policy simply because the specifications page might set forth a planned premium (a concept characteristic of current universal life insurance policies). This is because the planned premium, in most cases, is set by the insured, not the insurer.

Subsection P. Separate Account

Comment: See comments to Section 2G. The blank space in this section should be completed with the section of the Variable Contract Law authorizing separate accounts. The reference to the law of the promulgating state authorizing the establishment of a separate account should be interpreted as including the equivalent in the insurer's state of domicile. Prior to the 1983 amendments, this definition limited separate accounts to those established for variable life insurance. In 1983, the limiting phrase for variable life insurance was deleted to dispel the inference, present by implication in the prior definition, that a separate account may be established solely for variable life insurance, and to afford insurers the flexibility to utilize the same separate account to fund a variety of products, e.g., both variable life insurance and variable annuities. This desired flexibility is reflected in amendments that were made in 1983 to other portions of the model regulation (see, e.g., Section 4D(5)(a)).

Subsection R. Variable Death Benefit

Comment: For scheduled premium policies, when the net investment return of the separate account (see Section 2L) is greater than the assumed investment rate (or the net investment return minus assumed investment rate is positive), the variable death benefit will reflect the full application of this difference (after the necessary adjustments for policy loans) to the benefit base under the terms and design of the policy, and the variable death benefit payable to the policyholder will to that extend exceed the initial face amount or minimum death benefit (see Section 4C(4)). Section 4C(3) provides that the policy shall reflect the full net investment experience of the separate account.

Conversely, when the net investment return under a scheduled premium policy is less than the assumed investment rate, the variable death benefit will decrease and, depending on past performance, may become less than the minimum death benefit. In this situation, of course, assuming premiums have been duly paid, the insurer will be obligated to pay the initial face amount of the policy (minimum death benefit). Thus, for scheduled premium policies, the insurer is always obligated to pay the greater of the minimum death benefit or the variable death benefit.

For scheduled premium policies, the variable death benefit, even when it is less than the minimum death benefit, is a useful figure to policyholders in conjunction with various hypothetical investment returns as a disclosure device for the purpose of cost and benefit comparison of policies. It can illustrate the level of performance required to return above the minimum death benefit as well as the receptivity of the variable death benefit to market fluctuations and therefore the significance of the minimum death benefit guarantee.

Prior to the 1983 amendments, the variable death benefit was defined as the amount of death benefit payable in the absence of the minimum death benefit. The 1983 amendments revised the definition of variable death benefit to refer to any minimum death benefit instead of the minimum death benefit. This revision corresponds to the model regulation's divergent approach to the minimum death benefit that an insurer must afford under scheduled premium and flexible premium variable life insurance policies. As amended in 1983, the model affords insurers considerable flexibility in formulating death benefit guarantees for flexible premium products, in that a flexible premium policy need not afford a death benefit in an amount at least equal to the initial face amount of the policy (compare Section 4C(2) with Section 4D(2)(b)). An unequivocal reference to the minimum death benefit in this Subsection R might have been inconsistent with this flexible approach. Accordingly, the substitute language was inserted, essentially as a conforming amendment.

Subsection S. Variable Life Insurance Policy

Source: This section is derived from the NAIC Model Variable Contract Regulation, Article II Sections 1, 2b, 1970 Proceedings of the NAIC II 1185.

Comment: Prior to the 1983 amendments, the definition of variable life insurance policy generally corresponded to the generic description in which benefits fluctuate with the separate account's investment experience.

The 1983 amendment was intended to clarify an interpretive question that could have arisen under the original definition. Specifically, the original definition's reference to "life insurance which varies" according to the investment experience of the separate account could have been construed to mandate that the amount of the death benefit under a variable life insurance policy vary to reflect investment experience. Such an interpretation would not necessarily be compatible with flexible premium variable life insurance product design. Under a flexible premium variable life insurance policy, insurance coverage would continue as long as the amounts available under the policy are sufficient to support deductions for the cost of insurance and other charges. Thus, it may be the duration of the insurance coverage, rather than the amount of the death benefit, which varies with investment experience. Accordingly, in 1983 the definition of variable life insurance policy was expanded to encompass "any individual policy which provides for life insurance the amount or duration of which varies" in accordance with investment experience.

The definition does for the present specifically limit variable life insurance to individual policies. A master contract and certificate of enrollment relationship would not be permitted.

The blank space in this section should be completed in the same manner as described in the comment to Subsection P.

Section 3. Qualifications of Insurer to Issue Variable Life Insurance

Subsection A. Licensing and Approval to do Business in This State

Source: Derived from the original NAIC Model Variable Contract Regulation (see 1968 Proceedings of the NAIC II 777).

Comment: In Paragraph (1) the word organized can be read domiciled. Therefore, the insurer must be either an admitted or a domestic life insurer in the state promulgating the regulation.

Prior to the 1983 amendments this section required that the state of domicile of the insurer provide for substantially similar regulation of permissible investments and changes in investment policy as a condition to receipt of approval by the commissioner. While it is anticipated that there will be significant uniformity in all phases of the model regulation, the requirement of substantially similar regulation of permissible investments and changes in investment policy was deleted in the 1983 amendments.

As discussed at greater length in connection with Section 6, the deleted requirement reflected the hope of the insurance industry and the state insurance regulators at the time the model was originally adopted that this provision and the provisions of Section 6 would be considered an adequate substitute for the federal securities law provisions regarding investment policy. The fact that variable life insurance was ultimately found to be subject to the federal securities laws substantially changes the assumptions on which the existing model's provisions regarding investment policy were based prior to the 1983 amendments. Not only is extensive disclosure of separate account investment policy required by the federal securities laws, but restrictive regulations and limitations are imposed with regard to investment policies of separate accounts and procedures for changing such policies.

Under Subsection A(2)(c)(iii) the insurer must demonstrate to the insurance department that the laws and regulations of its state of domicile are not likely to render its operation hazardous to the public or the policyholders in the state. This requirement establishes adequate protection of the public interest as the principal consideration and renders unnecessary the mischievous substantially similar requirement.

Paragraph (2) requires the insurer wishing to write variable life insurance to obtain the written approval of the insurance commissioner. It also includes the standards that the commissioner must apply and the considerations that must apply in making a determination of whether to grant or deny approval.

As an introduction to this requirement it is instructive to consider generally some of the concerns and approaches taken by the (C4) Subcommittee in developing this portion of the regulation.

The NAIC Model Variable Contract Law requires, in Section 3, that before a company can deliver or issue for delivery in any state a variable life contract, it must satisfy the commissioner that its condition or method of operation in connection with the issuance of such contracts will not render its operation hazardous to the public or its policyholders in this state. This requirement has been broken down primarily into the three paragraphs of Paragraph (2) and is not significantly different from the standard presently applied by insurance departments when considering a license application by a new company. However, there are a number of different factors to be considered by the departments before variable life authority should be granted:

i. Capital and surplus requirements. All states presently have capital and surplus requirements for admission of foreign life insurers. The Subcommittee found no persuasive reason why higher capital and surplus requirements should be necessary for authority to write variable life insurance so long as the present standards adequately measure the stability of the company. Of course, the insurer, regardless of minimum capital and surplus requirements, must still demonstrate to the commissioner's satisfaction that its plan of operation is not unsound (see Section 3A(2)(a)). The Subcommittee also recommended that each state reexamine its capital and surplus requirements to assure their adequacy for variable life insurance operations. Until more experience is obtained, it appears advisable that each company either has a minimum earned surplus, or, in the alternative, is willing to submit to close monitoring by the insurance department as to premiums written, investments and operating costs. To some extent, the earned surplus requirement may discourage entry of new firms into the variable life market. However, the monitoring approach offers an alternative. Any special reporting requirements might be lifted once the department is confident of its regulatory system as it relates to variable life and the condition of a particular company indicates that such a move is responsible.

ii. Repeated violation of insurance laws. There are many insurance laws and department regulations covering life insurance marketing. These laws and regulations, to the extent they are applicable and not inconsistent with the model variable life insurance regulation, will, of course, apply to variable life insurance. It can be anticipated that of the regulatory problems with variable life insurance, many will spring from its marketing side. Thus, a company's record in abiding by present life insurance marketing laws is crucial.

iii. Extra seasoning. The Subcommittee considered the desirability of recommending that companies seeking variable life insurance authority be required to have a longer history of operations than a company seeking fixed benefit life authority. However, they found no persuasive reasons to make such a recommendation. Nevertheless, they strongly recommend that company management be closely examined as required by Paragraphs (2)(b) and (c), and that the financial stability of the company be closely examined.

iv. Management qualities. It appears that most life insurers presently contemplating variable life insurance intend to invest the assets of the separate account in varied investments. Therefore, the Subcommittee recommends that each insurance department examine the investing experience, familiarity and expertise of the management of insurers requesting authority to write variable life insurance.

The commissioner is required to make the affirmative findings delineated Subparagraphs (a) to (c) in order to grant approval under Paragraph (2). If he or she does make these findings, the regulation requires the commissioner to give approval. However, in order to make the determination required, he or she should carefully consider the material required to be submitted by Section 3B as well as any other material that the commissioner deems relevant to the inquiries presupposed by the required findings of this section.

In order to grant approval under Paragraph 2(a) the commissioner must find that the insurer's plan of operation for the issuance of variable life insurance is not unsound.

There is no uniform consensus on what constitutes a plan of operation. A presentation to the commissioner pursuant to this section, however, should include a comprehensive examination of the reasonably expected impact of the insurer's proposed variable life insurance operations on the insurer, its policyholders within the state, and the general public. At a minimum it would seem to require a description of expected policy designs, the financial impact (including the impact on surplus), the insurer's proposed standards of suitability, standards of conduct (see Section 3C and Section 6H), and methods of operation (i.e., names of service companies, the nature of internal and adviser operations). Other information including sales projections may also be desirable. Since the need for approval to do business is continuous, this section implies a continuing obligation for the insurer to notify the commissioner when and if information that was relied upon in giving approval changes in any substantial degree (see also Section 6J). This would include key changes in either internal or external personnel.

In Paragraph (2)(a) the meaning of the words "not unsound" was intended to be flexible, and have a much broader interpretation than merely being actuarially sound. Rather, the term was intended to include a determination that the proposed plan is not fundamentally unfair or inequitable to any class of the insurer's policyholders or the general public. For example, a finding of unsoundness could result from a policy's design, benefit structure, possible impact on the insurer as a whole, or any other fact which indicates adverse impact on the public, including actuarial infirmity. This subparagraph contemplates a review of whether or not the plan is fundamentally fair and equitable to the public. An example of such unsoundness might be a policy design so inherently deceptive, unfair or confusing that even proper disclosure would not be likely to result in understanding by a prospective purchaser as to what he is buying.

Reference to the Unfair Trade Practices Act might be helpful in interpreting the term unsound in this context.

A separate account provides an accounting mechanism to measure the level of benefits the insurer owes to its variable life policyholders. In many cases assets of the insurer in addition to those underlying the separate account stand behind the insurer's obligation, including the assumption of mortality and expense risks and any guaranteed minimum death benefit. Consequently, state insurance regulators have the responsibility to examine closely the investment practice and management of the entire insurer and, where necessary, step in to protect the policyholders.

Paragraph (2)(a) could be utilized to require an insurer to participate in a guaranty fund to the extent of risks not assumed by the policyholders.

Paragraph (2)(b) requires the commissioner to examine the character and, in general, the qualifications of the management of both the insurer and those various organizations that are proposed to handle significant aspects of the insurer's methods of operation on a contractual basis.

Paragraph (2)(c), with the exception of Item (iv), is an expansion of portions of the original Model Variable Contracts Regulation. Thus, in addition to making the findings required by Subparagraphs (a) and (b), the commissioner must, after considering the information delineated by Items (i) through (iv) inclusive, be satisfied that the present and prospective financial condition of the insurer and method of operation will not be hazardous to the public.

The inquiry of Paragraph (2)(c) is basically one of financial soundness and the ability to satisfy all the obligations imposed on the insurer by variable life insurance operations. For example, one alternative requirement of Section 5 requires, under certain circumstances, reserves which anticipate an immediate one-third drop in the value of separate account assets. In order to satisfy the requirements of this section, the insurer must demonstrate that in a period of sharply declining values it has the surplus needed to meet these obligations without jeopardizing the public or any class of its policyholders. Thus the term policyholders means all policyholders of the insurer and not just variable life insurance policyholders.

Paragraph (2)(c)(i) is self-explanatory and relates to the previous discussion concerning seasoning, chronic insurance law violation, capital and surplus requirements and the willingness of the insurer to be subject to close insurance department monitoring.

While Paragraph (2)(c)(ii) may appear to repeat requirements contained in Paragraph (2)(b) of this section it should be noted that while Paragraph (2)(b) is itself a required finding of the commissioner, Paragraph (2)(c)(ii) is only one factor which must be considered in determining the prospective financial condition of the insurer. Of course, this item refers to both internal and external investment advisers, and the previous discussion relating to the relative investment expertise of insurers is clearly a consideration which should be made in this context (see also comment to Section 6A(1) relating to custody).

Under Paragraph (2)(c)(iii) the insurer must be able to demonstrate that the laws and regulations of its state of domicile are such as to protect the financial interests of the policyholders in the promulgating state. This item requires that the insurer seeking to do business in a state is under an obligation to convince the commissioner that the entire regulatory scheme of the insurer's domicile is not likely to be hazardous to the admitting state's policyholders.

Item (iv) obligates the commissioner to examine the possible effect of any affiliation by the insurer on the prospective financial condition of the insurer and the effect on the policyholders. As previously discussed, this aspect relates to management experience, the ability of the insurer to meet its obligations and the favorable or unfavorable experience that the insurance department has had with the insurer's corporate family in supervising compliance with applicable insurance laws and regulations. This section may also be useful in determining potential conflicts of interest.

Subsection B. Filing for Approval to do Business in This State

Source: Portions of this subsection are derived from the original NAIC Model Variable Contract Regulation (see 1969 Proceedings of the NAIC II 777).

Comment: This section permits the commissioner, at his or her discretion, to require filing with the insurance department of certain specified information before the insurer can deliver or issue for delivery a variable life insurance policy. Prior to the 1983 amendments; the section required that certain information be filed and permitted the commissioner to request other information. Under the section as currently drafted, if the information is already available to the department, or the commissioner feels that certain information is unnecessary, the commissioner can give the approval required by Subsection A without requiring the filing of that information by the insurer.

The 1983 amendments made two other significant changes in this section. A discussion of the methods of distribution of variable life insurance policies was added as a specified element of the description of methods of operation which the commissioner may require be filed pursuant to Paragraph (2). This change reflects the recognition that the methods of selling variable life insurance products may differ significantly from the methods of selling more traditional life insurance products and that commissioners may take a particular interest in these sales activities.

Paragraph (7) is new. As a result of the 1983 amendments, many of the traditional guarantees are no longer mandatory elements of variable life insurance policies (see Section 4C). This makes possible varied and innovative policy designs that allocate mortality and investment risks in ways not permitted under prior regulations. Under these circumstances, it is anticipated that commissioners may wish to obtain a statement from the insurer's actuary describing the mortality and expense risks that the insurer will bear under the policy.

Naturally, Subsection B, as well as Section 3F were not intended to be exclusive and these sections do not prohibit the commissioner from requiring additional relevant information that may be required to make determinations required by this regulation as well as other applicable laws and regulations. Subsection B implies a continuing obligation to amend as necessary any report made to the commissioner when the circumstances underlying the original report have changed.

Paragraph (1) relates to the findings under Section 3A(2)(a) and (c), as well as Section 4A.

Paragraph (2) relates to Section 3A(2)(a), (b), and (c)(ii) and (iv), as well as Section 3E and Section 6A and J.

Paragraph (3) relates to Section 3A(2) and Section 6F. A statement pursuant to this paragraph would include specific descriptions of the investment goals of the separate account (e.g., long term growth), the means by which these goals are to be met (e.g., primarily common stocks) and any internal investment restrictions (see Section 7B).

Paragraph (4) goes hand in hand with Paragraph (3) and relates to Section 3A(2).

Subsection C. Standards of Suitability

Source: Portions of this subsection are derived from the NAIC Model Regulation on Deceptive Practices Section 5(g), 1973 Proceedings of the NAIC II 542, Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) Rule 15b 10-3, and the holding in Anderson v. Knox, 297 F.2d 702 (9th Cir.), cert. denied, 370 U.S. 915 (1961).

Comment: This section imposes a duty on both the insurer and its agents to make a good faith, reasonable inquiry as to the facts and circumstances concerning a prospect's insurance and financial needs and to make no recommendation that a prospect purchase variable life insurance when such a purchase is not reasonably consistent with the information that is known or reasonably should be known to the insurer or agent. The substantive standard set forth is:

> that no recommendations shall be made to an applicant to purchase a variable life insurance policy and that no variable life insurance policy shall be issued in the absence of reasonable grounds to believe that the purchase of such policy is not unsuitable for such applicant on the basis of information furnished after reasonable inquiry of such applicant concerning the applicant's insurance and investment objectives, financial situation and needs, and any other information known to the insurer or to the agent making the recommendation.

Some of the factors which would presumably be considered are: age, earnings, marital status, number and age of dependents, the value of savings and other assets, and current life insurance program.

The substantive standard set forth above is derived from the federal securities laws. The genesis of the suitability doctrine is the ethical guidelines of the National Association of Securities Dealers (NASD). Article III, Section 2 of the NASD Rules of Fair Practice provides:

> In recommending to a customer the purchase, sale or exchange of any security a member shall have reasonable grounds for believing that the recommendation is suitable for such customer upon the basis of the facts, if any, disclosed by such customer as to his other security holdings and as to his financial situation and needs.

New York Stock Exchange Rule 405 and American Stock Exchange Rule 411 place suitability limitations upon the members of those exchanges. The SEC has adopted Rule 15b 10-3 under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (the 1934 Act) to govern the suitability of recommendations by brokers who are not members of the NASD.

The NASD rule has generally been used in disciplinary actions involving flagrantly unethical or illegal conduct, and no reported case has involved violation of Rule 15b 10-3. However, the SEC has frequently sought to enforce suitability by incorporating the concept into the fraud provisions of the federal securities laws, particularly Rule 10b-5 under the 1934 Act. The development of suitability as a fraud concept has, however, received its greatest impetus from the courts in cases not arising under the federal securities laws. For example, in Anderson v. Knox, 297 F.2d 702 (9th Cir.), cert. denied, 370 U.S. 915 (1961), the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit held that an insurance agent who had induced a client to purchase excessive amounts of bank financed insurance was liable for damages in common-law fraud because the policies were not suitable to the plaintiff's needs.

The 1983 amendments made changes in this section to achieve a more practical application of the suitability concept to sales of variable life insurance. While the concept originally set forth in this section was substantially similar to that utilized in the federal securities laws, the application of the concept was exaggerated as part of the effort to avoid SEC regulation of variable life insurance. For example, prior to the 1983 amendments, the section required that the insurer adopt the standards of suitability by formal action of its board of directors. This requirement of board adoption was found to be unprecedented in NAIC model insurance statutes and unnecessary to the application of the suitability concept to sales of variable life insurance. Similarly, the standards of suitability were "applicable to and binding on the insurer's officers, directors, employees, affiliates and agents with respect to the suitability of variable life insurance for the applicant." The potential for mischief of this broad requirement was considerable, raising, for example, the possibility of liability for violations of the suitability standards being imposed on individual officers, directors, employees or agents who never even knew of the transaction involved. These provisions were deleted in the 1983 amendments.

The duty to make a good faith reasonable inquiry must be stressed since an insurer or agent cannot continually seek to avoid the obligations imposed by this section by claiming that a prospect refused to divulge information sufficient to make a professional evaluation of the suitability of variable life insurance to particular circumstances.

At its June 1974 Meeting the NAIC adopted a staff report concerning this provision 1974 Proceedings of the NAIC II 540). This report emphasizes three basic areas of ideal suitability:

(1) needs perceived by the insured; (2) needs perceived by the agent; and (3) persistency. The report also included interpretive rules. It was adopted as an interpretive guide to this section and offers (p. 547) the following language as an informal consensus as to the meaning of suitability in the model variable life insurance regulation.

Definition.

"Suitability" means the likelihood that the purchase of variable life insurance is reasonably consistent with:

(1) The expressed insurance objectives and needs as perceived by the prospective insured;

(2) The reasonable objectives and needs of the prospective insured as determined objectively by a professional agent after a diligent reasonable inquiry into relevant financial, family and other background information concerning the prospective insured; and

(3) The potential that the prospective insured will persist with the policy for such a period of time that the insurer's acquisition costs are amortized over a reasonable period of time.

General Rules of Interpretation.

1. When variable life insurance meets characteristics (1) and (3) or (2) and (3), it is probably still "suitable" in most instances.

2. Variable life insurance is clearly "unsuitable" when it meets none of the three characteristics for a given prospect.

3. Variable life insurance is probably "unsuitable" in the absence of extraordinary factors when it does not meet characteristic (3).

4. Other situations must be judged on their individual facts.

In adopting the 1983 amendments, the NAIC recognized that the proliferation of variable life insurance product designs anticipated as a result of those amendments might make suitability, and particularly factors (1) and (2), even more important. On the other hand, it was understood that the possibility of more variable life insurance products designed to compete with investment oriented products of other financial institutions will make factor (3) less significant because policyholders will be more likely to move among competing financial institution products for reasons such as rate of return, tax considerations and economic conditions. As a result, persistency will be less and less relevant as a measure of suitability.

This section requires the insurer to formally adopt its suitability standards. Earlier drafts of this section specifically required that the insurer establish and file with the commissioner guidelines or profiles of applicants and situations in which variable life insurance would not generally be suitable. This specific requirement was deleted.

As to the potential legal implications of adopting standards of suitability, it is not unlikely in those jurisdictions where the doctrine of implied rights of action is accepted, that the theory would give rise to an enforceable obligation to the insured (see, e.g., Anderson v. Knox, 297 F.2d 702 (9th Cir. 1961)). Furthermore, it is probable that the commissioner would have the authority (either formal or informal) to reverse an unsuitable sale upon the request of the policyholder. This would be in addition to the full range of sanctions available to him.

It was the intention of the Subcommittee that the requirements of this subsection would not be applicable with respect to each individual employee involved in a noncontributory pension plan situation.

Prior to the 1983 amendments, the section included provisions pursuant to which lapse rates were to be utilized as indicators of suitability. These provisions were based upon the realization that suitability is a difficult area to police and the hope that lapse rates, by indicating persistency, would be an accurate yardstick for suitability. The 1983 amendments eliminated references to lapse rates as measures of suitability. With regard to conventional insurance policies, lapse rates, even those reflecting experience over a very long period of time, are suspect as an indicator of whether or not sales of insurance were suitable when made. Lapse rates are even less relevant to the suitability of sales of variable life insurance. Lapse rates are affected by a variety of factors, the most significant of which ordinarily is changes in the policyholder's perception of the attractiveness of the policy due to changes in the general economy and in the economic circumstances of the policyholder. In the case of variable life insurance, an additional important factor is the performance of the separate account relative to other financial alternatives. Because of the significance of these factors, the use of lapse rates as a measure of suitability was found to be inappropriate.

It should be noted that Section 8C requires that variable life insurance applications contain questions designed to elicit suitability information from applicants.

Subsection D. Use of Sales Materials

Comment: This subsection requires that the insurer may not use false, misleading, deceptive or inaccurate sales materials, advertising materials or descriptive literature.

The primary purpose of the section is to prevent the use of sales materials that will intentionally or unintentionally mislead the public as to what they are purchasing and how much it is costing them. It is within this context that the determination of what is "false, misleading, deceptive, or inaccurate" must be made. The section was intended to reach any material that is designed for ultimate presentation to a prospective purchaser in attempting to convince him to purchase variable life insurance. The comments to this section prior to the 1983 amendments indicate that the NAIC was concerned with reconciling SEC and NAIC policies with regard to advertising and sales materials. Therefore, this section required that all variable life insurance advertising and agent training materials be submitted to the commissioner. This was considered an interim measure only and was not intended to modify the commissioner's authority to regulate the dissemination of sales materials in the state.

At the time of the 1983 amendments, it was determined that mandatory filing of sales materials imposed an unnecessary burden on insurance departments. There was concern that approval of sales materials might be implied if materials were filed and the commissioner failed to act to prevent their use. Also, insurance departments wished to avoid the unnecessary cost and inconvenience of retention and storage of filed sales material.

Because the commissioner has the authority under state law to obtain all sales materials upon request (see, e.g., NAIC Rules Governing the Advertising of Life Insurance), it was determined that incorporation of that authority into this regulation would be adequate to permit the insurance department to police variable life insurance advertising.

The use of false or misleading sales material could give rise to the full extent of powers at the disposal of the commissioner. These would range from license revocations (for both the insurer and agents), fines and cease and desist orders, to informal disciplinary sanctions. Furthermore, the activities described would violate the state unfair trade practices acts. In addition, the commissioner as a practical matter probably possesses the power to rescind a sale based on a material misrepresentation. Common law fraud causes of action, as well as implied rights of action, also may exist depending on the law of each individual state.

Subsection E. Requirements Applicable to Contractual Services

Comment: This subsection was added to give the commissioner control over contracts for material variable life insurance services performed for the insurer by a third party. Since these material operations are functions which would normally be carried on by the insurer itself, and thus would be subject to the commissioner's direct control, the Subcommittee inserted this subsection in order to assure that the interests of the public and the policyholders would be protected. This subsection, therefore, indirectly regulates service companies through the regulation of service contracts under which a variable life insurer is to be obligated. The subsection requires the contract to be in writing and requires the service company to subject itself to examination and to furnish the commissioner with information sufficient to determine whether or not the service operations conducted for the insurer are consistent with the relevant portions of both the model regulation and other applicable laws and regulations.

The word material was inserted so that functions that were not relevant to the welfare of the policyholders or the public were not required to be covered by this subsection. Naturally, the question of materiality must ultimately be answered by the commissioner. However, the contracts referred to in this subsection were not intended to include traditional agency compensation agreements and normal reinsurance treaties.

Service company operations are a significant part of the insurer's plan of operation (Section 6A(2)(a)). Therefore, the insurer is under an obligation to notify the commissioner of any change. The commissioner was felt to possess the inherent power to terminate a service contract which he or she felt to be hazardous to the public or the insurer's policyholders.

It is impossible to speculate in the absence of actual facts as to what particular circumstances might give rise to control of an insurer by a service company. The Subcommittee intended that the commissioner should have flexibility in making this decision.

The performance of services in the absence of stock ownership would not by itself seem to constitute control, since this would not appear to give rise to the ability to direct the management of the insurer. That is, if a service company performed all or substantially all of the administrative functions associated with the variable life insurance contracts, advised the insurer as to regulatory requirements associated with the contracts, managed to investment company in which all or substantially all of the separate account's assets were invested, and reinsured all or substantially all of the risks under the variable contracts, it would not necessarily be in control. However, the furnishing of regular investment advice would give rise to an affiliation between the insurer and the service company pursuant to Section 2A.

Subsection F. Reports to the Commissioner

Source: Portions of this subsection are derived from the original Model Variable Contract Regulation (see 1968 Proceedings of the NAIC, II 777).

Comment: This subsection was not intended to include all of the material that must be filed or reported to the commissioner of each state in which the insurer is doing business. Additional sections separately impose specific requirements (see, e.g., Section 3C and D and Section 4B).

Furthermore, as provided in Paragraph (1)(d), the commissioner may require such additional information concerning an insurer's variable life insurance operations as he or she deems necessary.

Paragraph (1)(a) is not intended to imply that a separate account is a severable distinct entity.

Paragraph (2) requires the commissioner to disapprove the material filed under this subsection if he or she finds it to be materially false, misleading, deceptive or inaccurate, and further requires distribution of amended material. Naturally, this distribution would be to those who received the defective report; however, some flexibility was intended for the commissioner.

The filing of an amended report is not the limit of sanctions that could be imposed on the insurer for defective reports. Rather, the full range of sanctions at the disposal of the commissioner delineates the potential liability of the insurer. This could include, depending upon the seriousness of the violation involved, informal disciplinary proceedings all the way up to and including revocation of an insurer's license.

Since a substantial amount of the material required to be filed under this subsection must be filed prior to its distribution, the Subcommittee hoped to lessen the problem of purchase in reliance upon disapproved material.

Subsection G. Authority of Commissioner to Disapprove

Source: NAIC Model Variable Contract Regulation (see 1968 Proceedings of the NAIC II 777).

Comment: This subsection is similar to Section 3F(2) and the comments made there are applicable here.

This subsection was added to deal with any material which is required to be filed and approved by law or provisions of the regulation other than Section 3F.

Section 4. Insurance Policy Requirements

Subsection B. Filing of Variable Life Insurance Policies

Source: Portions of this subsection are derived from the original NAIC Model Variable Contract Regulation (1968 Proceedings of the NAIC II 777).

Comment: This subsection requires specimens of all variable life insurance policies, riders endorsements, applications, and other related documents that are to be attached to or made part of the policy to be filed with the commissioner and approved prior to the use of that form in a particular state.

Prior to the 1983 amendments, Subsection B required the commissioner to approve variable life insurance policies and other forms in writing prior to delivery in the state. The 1983 amendments deleted this requirement, thereby subjecting variable life insurance policies to the same rules and procedures governing approval of other forms of life insurance in the state.

It was felt that perpetuating a separate requirement of written approval for variable life insurance was anachronistic and unnecessary. In the years that have elapsed since the promulgation of the original model regulation, state insurance departments have developed increased familiarity with the variable life insurance product and its regulation. Moreover, the commissioner possesses significant control over the issuance of variable life insurance in the state by virtue of Section 3A(2), which requires that the commissioner scrutinize the insurer's plan of operation, financial condition and other factors prior to granting written approval for the issuance of variable life insurance in the state.

The term "related forms" in the introductory paragraph of this subsection does not include either information to applicants required by Section 7 or reports to policyholders provided for in Section 9. However, these are also subject to approval prior to use (see Section 3F and G).

Paragraph (2) gives the commissioner the authority to approve policies and forms which he or she deems to be not less favorable to the policyholder and beneficiary than those required by the model.

Paragraph (2) is intended to allow companies to include provisions more favorable to the insured. This may be desirable for the insurer in order to promote uniformity of policy forms. For example, assume that State X allowed a two-year suicide exclusion and State Y allowed a one-year exclusion. The one-year exclusion is more favorable to the policyholder. Thus, this paragraph would enable the commissioner of State X to approve a company's form which contained the more favorable one-year exclusion, thus permitting the insurer to have the same form in both states. The commissioner of State X could not, pursuant to the model, impose the one-year exclusion on the insurer.

The determination of when a benefit is more favorable can be a very subjective determination. For example, a one-year "free look" would be a benefit to those who chose to take advantage of it. Those who had no intention of ever exercising such a provision and would be forced to bear the extra cost involved would be unlikely to look at this change as a benefit. Thus, what may be a benefit for some would be merely an extra mandated cost for others. Flexibility by individual commissioners in this area was intended to be preserved.

Prior to 1983, Paragraph (3) provided an exemption from several policy design and policy form requirements for policies sold to qualified pension, profit sharing and retirement plans. Because of the enhanced overall flexibility in product design envisaged by the 1983 amendments, and because of the deletion or amendment of the sections of the prior model to which it refers, Paragraph (3) was deleted.

Subsection C. Mandatory Policy Benefit and Design Requirements

Comment: The 1983 amendments substantially revised Section 4 to afford insurers the necessary flexibility to offer flexible premium variable life insurance and variations on more traditional forms of variable life insurance. The amendments were premised upon the recognition that the strictures embodied in the original version of Section 4 were adopted in the context of a regulatory atmosphere that no longer prevails in an effort on the part of the NAIC to avert dual (i.e., federal and state) regulation of variable life insurance. The revisions also spring from the conviction that the restrictive criteria reflected in the original model were unnecessary impediments to the development of innovative flexible premium products. It was felt that these limitations could be relaxed without impairing the thoroughness and efficacy of state insurance regulation of flexible premium variable life insurance.

The requirement of lifetime insurance coverage which originally appeared in Paragraph (1) was inserted in an attempt to convince the SEC of the predominant insurance nature of variable life insurance and thereby to avoid dual regulation of the product. The evolution of the federal role in variable life insurance regulation has rendered this limitation anachronistic. The requirement that coverage be provided "for the lifetime of the insured" was deleted in 1983 as an unnecessary impediment to the development of innovative flexible premium product designs. In this regard, it should be noted that the commentary to the original model clearly reflects the NAIC Subcommittee's assumption that the "whole of life" limitation would be applicable for the time being only.

Paragraph (1) has been further revised to read as follows: "Mortality and expense risks shall be borne by the insurer. The mortality and expense charges shall be subject to the maximums stated in the contract." The purpose of this language is to indicate clearly that the insurer bears the mortality and expense risks under a variable life insurance policy. The charges for those risks cannot exceed the maximum which the insurer establishes in the policy.

Prior to 1983, Paragraph (2) provided that "[g]ross premiums for death benefits shall be a level amount for the duration of the premium payment period." This limitation resulted from the Committee's concern that it might be difficult for the public properly to understand the operation of variable premium–variable benefit policies and to evaluate the comparative cost of this type of product.

The registration of variable life insurance products with the SEC will help ensure thorough disclosure concerning the operation of these products and other varied policy designs. The enhanced familiarity and regulatory expertise that state insurance departments have developed with respect to variable life insurance will also aid in effectively protecting the public. In addition, it is noteworthy that traditional, fixed policies are not subject to any similar requirement.

Thus, the current regulatory structure has substantially weakened the original premise for this limitation. Accordingly, this restriction was deleted in 1983 to accommodate the flexibility in amount and timing of premium payments which is the cornerstone of the flexible premium variable life insurance product. The deletion will accommodate flexible premium products while permitting traditional forms of variable life insurance to continue to be written.

Reserve liabilities for any guaranteed minimum death benefit must be maintained in the general account (see Section 5B and C).

Prior to 1983, the model required that a variable life insurance policy provide a "minimum death benefit ... in an amount at least equal to the initial face amount of the policy so long as premiums are duly paid." The minimum death benefit contemplated by the original model was "an initial stated amount of death benefit," to be paid (assuming duly paid premiums) in the event that the stated amount exceeded the variable death benefit.

The Committee recognized that the minimum death benefit guarantee that the prior model Regulation mandated could not be required under a product design that is characterized by non-level premiums that are paid on an irregular basis. The minimum death benefit guarantee was premised on the assumption that the insurer would establish level periodic premiums that would have to be paid by the insured at the times specified by the insurer. As the commentary to the previous model regulation indicated, the minimum death benefit was required only so long as premiums were duly paid. In a flexible premium variable life policy, this required minimum death benefit may not be appropriate. The insured, not the insurer, controls the timing and the amount of each premium payment. In addition, in many of the anticipated policy designs, it will be the duration of the coverage, and not the amount that will vary. Accordingly, the minimum death benefit requirement was amended in 1983 to differentiate between the minimum death benefit that must be offered under scheduled premium policies, and the applicability of such a requirement to flexible premium policies. Under the amendment, the minimum death benefit guarantee contained in the original model is limited to scheduled premium variable life insurance policies. A minimum death benefit guarantee for flexible premium policies is addressed in the context of a new provision governing grace periods for flexible premium policies (see commentary to Section 4D(2)(b)).

The minimum death benefit under a scheduled premium policy is only required to be applicable so long as premiums are duly paid. This would include situations in which a policy was properly reinstated. Thus, assuming duly paid premiums, the death benefit payable at any time under a scheduled premium policy is the greater of the variable death benefit or the minimum death benefit adjusted by any policy loans, withdrawals or surrenders.

The model regulation does not require a minimum death benefit paid-up variable whole life insurance since the minimum death benefit guarantee under a scheduled premium policy is required only when premiums are duly paid. Early drafts of the model regulation required a minimum death benefit guarantee in this situation. However, it was determined that the cost of providing such a benefit was too great in relation to the corresponding benefit. This is because a relatively small decline in the value in the separate account portfolio could have a relatively great impact on the death benefit of a paid-up policy. Furthermore, such a guarantee on a reduced paid-up policy could expose the insurer to risks not present under the original policy. In fact, with variable life insurance it is not at all unlikely that the traditional reduced paid-up insurance could in reality be increased paid-up insurance. After a period of good investment performance, it is possible that the guaranteed death benefit under a reduced paid-up policy could exceed the initial death benefit guarantee, thereby exposing the insurer to an unanticipated risk and giving rise to solvency concerns. It became clear that the imposition of a required minimum in this instance would in all probability have meant that such a nonforfeiture option would merely not have been offered.

In the situation where participating policy dividends are used to purchase additional paid-up variable life insurance additions (Section 4F(3)(b), the amount payable on death was intended to be increased by the then current amount of death benefit provided by these dividend options. Thus, it would equal the greater of the minimum death benefit or the variable death benefit adjusted for indebtedness plus the current amount of additions. The minimum death benefit itself would not be applicable to Section 4F(3)(c) (see comments to Section 4F(3)(c))).

While "initial face amount" as utilized in Section 4C(2) is an undefined term, it should not be interpreted to include the amounts of any incidental insurance benefits.

See also comments to Section 2K.

The minimum multiples that appeared in the model regulation prior to 1983 attempted to establish a relationship between the amount of death benefit and gross annual premiums. The 1983 amendments deleted the minimum multiples as another vestige of the ultimately unsuccessful attempt to avert dual regulation of variable life insurance. The minimum multiples are absent from the variable life insurance regulations of several states,* suggesting that they are not a necessary ingredient of effective state regulation of variable life insurance. It was also recognized that there is no similar requirement applicable to traditional fixed life insurance policies. Thus, it was concluded that the minimum multiples are a significant but unnecessary impediment to the development of designs for flexible premium variable life insurance products.
* e.g., Georgia, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, New York, North Carolina, and Pennsylvania.

Prior to 1983, Subsection C(3) required that excess investment performance (either positive or negative) be applied only to provide policy benefits, and defined the only methods by which such application could be made. The effect of this paragraph was to limit policy designs to those that applied excess investment performance to provide adjustments to the amount of insurance, and further limited the types of insurance that could be offered. To temper the rigidity of this paragraph and its attendant inhibiting effect on the development of flexible premium variable life insurance product designs, the Committee deleted the requirement that investment experience be reflected in the variable death benefit. Thus, investment experience could, for example, be used to increase cash value or the duration of coverage.

In addition, the portion of this subsection that prescribed and delimited the manner in which excess investment performance was to be applied has been deleted. In lieu of these detailed requirements, the 1983 amendments substituted a less specific provision requiring the insurer to demonstrate to the commissioner "that the reflection of investment experience in the variable life insurance policy is actuarially sound." It is intended that this demonstration will pay particular attention to the manner in which the policy operates under both favorable and unfavorable investment conditions, and to the matching of current liabilities under the policy to the market value of assets.

Since the net investment return is a rate, the word "amount" in Paragraph (4) refers to the product of the net investment return times the benefit base.

Paragraph (5) requires death benefit determination to be at least annually. Paragraph (6) requires cash values to be determined at least monthly while Section 6A(4) (as well as Section 4D(5)(b)) requires underlying separate account assets to be valued at least as frequently as benefits are determined but in any event at least monthly. The comments to these sections refer to the Committee's thinking with regard to the frequency of the valuations covered thereby.

Sections 4C(6) and 4D(3)(b) in combination require all policy benefits to commence varying according to the terms of the policy not later than the next separate account valuation date after a maximum interval of one month from the effective date of the policy. Paragraph (5), therefore, would permit a policy design under which the first change in the variable death benefit may not occur until as late as the first policy anniversary and subsequent changes may occur as infrequently as each anniversary thereafter.

Depending on separate account investment experience, less frequent death benefit valuation can be advantageous or disadvantageous. Certainly benefits will not achieve a high level of dollar cost averaging. However, there is a possible advantage which might arise out of the certainty that for the next full valuation period (up to one year for death benefits) the entire risk of either adverse or favorable separate account performance is shifted to the insurer and benefits will be as stated on the last determination date. There may be a number of counterbalancing reasons why persons might not wish to purchase a policy in which death benefits were valued annually. The Committee, however, decided that prospective purchasers of variable life insurance should not be precluded from purchasing such policies as a matter of law.

Comment: Subsection C(6) requires cash values (nonforfeiture benefits) to be determined at least monthly.

Either the policy or a statement filed with the commissioner of the state in which the policy is to be delivered must describe the method of computation of such values. The method of computation is required to be in accordance with actuarial procedures that recognize the variable nature of the policy. It is expected that insurers will make every effort to describe the process in as simple a manner as possible. Naturally, if the insurer opts to file its statement with the commissioner, a technically oriented description would be more acceptable than would be the case if the same description were placed in the policy. An insurer choosing to file with the commissioner would be obligated to call the filing to the policyholders' attention in the policy. In any event a technical benefit base description, if not placed in the policy, must be filed separately with the commissioner (see Subsection 3A(2)). Furthermore, the filing route would not relieve the insurer from its obligation to disclose the operation of the policy in general terms (see Section 3C; Section 4D(1), 4D(4), and Section 7A).

The most important portion of this subsection requires that policy benefits be designed in such a manner that the Standard Nonforfeiture Law is satisfied with necessary modifications for variable benefits. The NAIC recommends that a guideline be developed to assist the states in administering the standard nonforfeiture law as it applies to flexible premium variable life insurance.

Prior to 1983, Section 4C(6) required that the method of computation of cash values and other non-forfeiture benefits rest in all cases on the assumption "that at all times during the life of the policy the full net investment return ... exactly equals the assumed interest rate." (commentary of NAIC Subcommittee). The 1983 amendment added a sentence to Section 4C(6) to embody the recognition that flexible premium variable life insurance products might not contain an assumed investment rate. In that event, it is contemplated that, in lieu of an assumed investment rate, the calculation is to be based upon the maximum interest rate permitted under the Standard Nonforfeiture Law.

Prior to 1983, the model regulation was designed to provide effective protection for variable life insurance policyholders against the possibility of an insurer's acquisition costs becoming too high with the resulting premium being unreasonable in relationship to the benefits provided. The approach reflected the conclusion that the only form of control that would provide meaningful safeguards to purchasers was one which was applicable to the total premium charged rather than to an artificial subdivision. The Committee considered and rejected any approach that attempted to regulate the expenses of the insurer since this would not necessarily affect the premiums charged the policyholder. This approach, in effect, required vastly increased nonforfeiture benefits if a premium that exceeds the conditional maximum was charged. This approach was chosen by the Committee rather than direct premium rate regulation—a concept alien to the life insurance industry in the United States. The Committee deleted this subsection in 1983 on the rationale that it is unnecessary to the regulation of variable life insurance by state insurance departments. Deletion was also supported by the fact that traditional fixed life insurance is not subject to any similar requirement.

Prior to 1983, the model regulation limited the deductions that could be made in determining net investment return to four of the categories of charges enumerated in Section 6G. The 1983 amendments modified Section 6G so that the specifically enumerated categories no longer limit permissible charges, but merely illustrate charges which must be disclosed in writing prior to or contemporaneously with delivery of the variable life insurance policy. Because Section 4 provisions were obsolete in view of the restructuring of Section 6, the Committee has deleted it.

Subsection D. Mandatory Policy Provisions

Source: Portions of Paragraph (1) are derived from the original Model Variable Contracts Regulation.

Comment: The primary purpose of this subsection is disclosure in order to assure that the policyholder is aware of the risks that both he and the insurer are assuming. This subsection requires that the mandated statements be prominently displayed on the cover page of the policy (see also Section 8).

Paragraphs (1)(a) and (1)(b) require that the cover page of the policy contain a prominent statement highlighting the variable nature of death benefits and cash values respectively. These paragraphs were revised in 1983 by deleting the requirement that these statements by set forth in type at least four points larger than the typesize used in the text of any provision on the page. The statements required by these paragraphs will be adequately distinguishable from the surrounding text since they must in any event be set forth either in contrasting color or boldface type.

The 1983 amendments also made several changes of an editorial nature in Subsection D(1). New matter was added in Paragraphs (1)(a) and (1)(c) to conform those paragraphs, respectively, to the amended definition of "variable life insurance policy" (Section 2S) and to the bifurcated approach to the minimum death benefit guarantee for scheduled premium and flexible premium policies (Section 4C(2) and Section 4D(2)(b)).

The "free look" provision incorporated in Paragraph (1)(e) was amended in two significant respects.

First, Paragraph (1)(e) as amended provides that the free-look right may be exercised only during the ten-day period following the policyholder's receipt of the policy; the 1983 amendment deleted the language in the model that provided, alternatively, that the policyholder could return the policy either within the foregoing 10-day period or within 45 days of the date of the execution of the application, whichever was later.

Second, the 1983 amendments changed the calculation of the amount that the insurer must refund upon return of the policy within the specified period. Specifically, to the extent permitted by state insurance law, the insurer is permitted to utilize a refund calculation similar to the method prevalent in computing free-look refunds for variable annuities. Thus, it is contemplated, in essence, that the amount to be refunded upon return of a variable life insurance policy during the prescribed 10-day period will equal the sum (determined as of the date on which the returned policy is received by the insurer or its agent) of (1) the amount designated as loading, plus (2) "value of the amounts allocated to any separate accounts under the policy," i.e., the cash value corresponding to the policy.

The 1983 amendments recognized that state insurance law may have to be amended to permit insurers to utilize the foregoing refund approach. Accordingly, Paragraph (1)(e) preserves the status quo—requiring the insurer to refund "the total of all premium payments for such policy"—until any necessary statutory amendments have been enacted.

The premise underlying the 1983 amendments to Paragraph (1)(e) was that the requirements of the former model were inequitable to insurers because their effect was to impose the entire investment risk on the insurer during the free-look period. By correlating the required refund to the value of the amounts allocated to the separate account, the 1983 amendments permit an insured to benefit from favorable investment performance during the free-look period. Conversely, the amount to be refunded will reflect the results of adverse investment performance during the prescribed period.

As already noted in discussing the minimum death benefit provisions, the 1983 amendments to the model regulation differentiate between the minimum death benefit that must be offered under scheduled premium and flexible premium policies. The required minimum death benefit for flexible premium variable life insurance is, in turn, closely intertwined with the grace period that must be afforded by such products. Paragraph (2) was accordingly amended in 1983 to achieve dual objectives: it demarcates the different grace periods and establishes the scope of the required minimum death benefit under a flexible premium product.

Prior to 1983, Paragraph (2) required that a variable life insurance policy afford "a grace period of not less than thirty-one (31) days from the premium due date..." This language applied the standard life insurance policy grace period to variable life insurance. Thus, it was contemplated that there would be no change in either variability or amount of benefits owing under the policy if premiums were paid within the grace period. Policy benefits were to be the same as if the premium were paid on the due date.

The 1983 amendments placed the thirty-one day grace period requirement in a separate paragraph and limited its applicability to scheduled premium policies. This was done because (1) the concept of a "premium due date" was thought to be inapposite to flexible premium policies and (2) a 31-day, "standard life insurance policy" grace period is consistent with the longer grace period that is typically required for current general account flexible premium policies.

Paragraph (2)(b), added by the 1983 amendments, requires a 61-day grace period for flexible premium variable life insurance policies, measured by reference to the "policy processing day" as defined in Section 2N. The 61-day grace period, akin to the grace period that must be provided under current universal life insurance policies in some states, begins to run on the "policy processing day when the total charges authorized by the policy that are necessary to keep the policy in force until the next policy processing day exceed the amounts available under the policy to pay such charges..." The policyholder report required by Section 9C will notify the policyholder that the amounts available under the policy are insufficient to keep the policy in force. The policyholder will thereby be afforded an opportunity to pay sufficient premiums to maintain the coverage in effect. Paragraph (2)(b) provides that the flexible premium policy grace period will terminate no sooner than sixty-one days after this warning notice is mailed.

The death benefit under a flexible premium variable life insurance policy will remain in force as long as sufficient amounts are available under the policy to support the deductions necessary to maintain the coverage in force. However, even if the amounts available are insufficient to carry the policy to the next policy processing day, Paragraph (2)(b) nonetheless mandates that an insurer provide a minimum death benefit during the grace period. The death benefit that must be paid is the death benefit that was in effect immediately prior to the grace period, less any overdue charges. Of course, nothing precludes an insurer from offering a greater minimum death benefit guarantee under a flexible premium variable life insurance policy.

Paragraph (3) is derived from the original Model Variable Contract Regulation. It was adopted from the normal fixed benefit life insurance reinstatement provision with modifications required by the nature of variable life insurance.

Paragraph (3) was amended in 1983 to limit the mandatory reinstatement privilege to scheduled premium variable life insurance policies. State insurance statutes typically require reinstatement only when (1) there has been a default in premium payments; (2) on default, the value of the policy has been applied automatically to the purchase of other insurance; and (3) other insurance is in force and the original policy has not been surrendered to the company and cancelled. Under a flexible premium variable life insurance policy, however, the concept of a default in premium payments is not meaningful; coverage remains in effect until the amounts available under the policy to support the coverage are depleted by deductions for charges in accordance with the policy's terms. Thus, it is not appropriate to require a mandatory reinstatement privilege for flexible premium policies; once the value of the policy has been fully consumed, there is nothing to reinstate. However, it should be noted that Paragraph (3) does not preclude an insurer from developing and offering a reinstatement privilege in the context of a flexible premium policy.

Just as with fixed benefit life insurance, evidence of insurability is required on reinstatement in order to protect against anti-selection. With death benefits and cash values subject to fluctuation, a fixed benefit type reinstatement would have offered an opportunity for speculation against the insurer. A policyholder could lapse his policy and, assuming he or she remained insurable, the policyholder could wait to see whether separate account performance resulted in increased or decreased benefits. If benefits decreased, he would not reinstate and could purchase a new policy. If benefits had increased, in the absence of Subparagraph (b), he or she would pay back merely the overdue premiums as interest.

While this might appear to be an attractive scenario, it would rarely be in either the policyholder's or the insurer's interest. The insured is always risking his or her insurability. More importantly, however, in lapsing and purchasing a new policy the policyholder would be paying policy acquisition costs again as well as reestablishing the suicide and incontestability clauses (see, e.g., NAIC Replacement of Life Insurance and Annuities Model Regulation, 1970 Proceedings of the NAIC I 345).

Reinstatement in the situation described above could also be costly to the insurer (and, in the case of an insurer issuing participating policies, other classes of policyholders). It imposes a significant investment risk. For example, in scheduled premium variable life insurance the allocation of premium to the separate account is made on a uniform basis independent of the date the premium is actually paid. Consequently, cash will have to be advanced from the general to the separate account to "purchase" the investments necessary to support the promised benefits. These advances create an investment risk for the insurer. If the premium is not paid by the policyholder, the advance from the general account must be reversed when the policy lapses, at which time the market may be depressed.

This, of course, is in addition to the normal risks of anti-selection and administrative costs of keeping the policy in suspended animation during the reinstatement period. In response to these problems, the model regulation conditions reinstatement on the payment of the greater of: (1) both overdue premiums and outstanding indebtedness at the maximum policy loan interest rate permitted by law in that state; or (2) 110% of the increase in cash surrender value resulting from the increase.

For discussion of the benefit base, see the comment to Section 4C(6). While the description of the benefit base is required elsewhere in different degrees of technicality (see e.g., Section 7A), the purpose of Paragraph (4) is to make it a contractual matter.

Paragraph (5) makes the identification of the separate account utilized a contractual matter. It was modified in 1983 by deleting Subparagraph (a), which required that the separate account be used to fund only variable life insurance benefits. This deletion was intended to afford insurers the flexibility to utilize the same separate account to fund several products, e.g., variable annuities in addition to variable life insurance. The commissioner's pervasive regulatory control over the separate account, the contents of variable life insurance policies, and the insurer's operations made it clear that continuation of this restriction was no longer essential in order to assure regulation of variable life insurance which will not be detrimental to the public or the policyholders of an insurer (see commentary to original model regulation).

Subparagraph (a) is derived from the original Model Variable Contracts Regulation, Article IV, Section 2. It has the effect of insulating the assets underlying separate account liabilities.

Prior to 1983, Paragraph (b) required that a variable life insurance policy contain a provision stating that "the policy and any papers attached thereto by the insurer, including the application if attached" comprised the "entire insurance contract under state law." This requirement was originally imposed to prevent the insurer from incorporating by reference in its policy, provisions which were contained in documents to which the insured had limited access. Paragraph (6) was amended in 1983 in response to the realization that the former language was, at best, too narrow and, at worst, misleading in that it might have been read to imply that the entire insurance contract was uniform from state to state. Accordingly, the paragraph was broadened to take account of possibly divergent statutory formulations of the documents which constitute the entire insurance contract.

This provision would not destroy a policyholder's rights as a third-party beneficiary of a contract made by the insurer for the policyholder's benefit assuming any such rights exist. The provision was designed to protect the policyholders from losing any rights, not to destroy rights arising outside the contract.

Paragraph (12) was amended in 1983 by adding a proviso to subject increases in the policy's death benefits subsequent to the policy issue date to a new 2-year contestability period. The new period of contestability applies only to the amount of the increase and only in those cases in which (1) the increased coverage is attributable to a new application or request by the owner, and (2) the insurer asked for satisfactory evidence of insurability. Thus, for example, the insurer would not be permitted to contest increased death benefits that have resulted from successful investment performance of the separate account, or from the exercise of a contractual right (e.g., a guaranteed purchase option) that was applied for, underwritten and approved at the time of original issue.

The deferral contemplated by Paragraph (14) might be necessary in times of financial difficulty when in the opinion of the insurance commissioner there might be a "run" on the insurer that would jeopardize the remaining policyholders. This might also exist in a liquidation, a situation in which the commissioner might allow death benefits, but not cash values, to be paid pending the liquidation process.

Insurers are exempted from the federal bankruptcy laws in order that liquidation can take place in a manner that will serve to protect the policyholders. This protection of all policyholders (variable and fixed) would be placed in severe jeopardy were the separate account given preferential treatment over the general account.

This provision is similar to one that is required in most states for fixed benefit life insurance in order to protect the policyholders in the instances described. This paragraph grew out of the depression economy. Although relatively few insurance companies failed during the depression, there was a concern that a run on insurance companies in a future depression could have very severe consequences not only on the insurers and their policyholders, but to the general economy (Gregg, Life and Health Insurance Handbook, 2nd edition, p. 1151).

Again, it is important to realize that a separate account is not a severable entity but rather an integral part of the insurer. A separate account alone could not operate a variable life insurance policy. A part of the reserve underlying a variable life insurance policy may be in the general, not the separate, account at any given time. Thus, a combination of the two may be required in order to pay benefits. Without the protection of this paragraph, the insurance commissioner might be in the position of being able to protect the policyholders in a liquidation only to the extent of the reserves in the general account.

This paragraph has particular importance to variable life insurance. Since the separate account's portfolio may consist of equity investments to a much larger extent than the general account's portfolio, determination of the proper amounts payable under a policy will be difficult during periods when the stock exchanges are closed.

The phrase "except when used to pay premiums" is intended to apply to the payment of premiums under an automatic premium loan provision as permitted in Section 4F(4) and not to any other situation.

Prior to 1983, Paragraph (15) required that every variable life insurance policy contain settlement options that shall be provided on a fixed basis only. The 1983 amendments provide that at least one settlement option must be provided on a fixed basis, but permit the insurer to provide variable settlement options.

A review of the commentary accompanying the prior version of Paragraph (15) reveals that the restriction to fixed basis settlement options was intended to ensure that no one would attempt to impose dual regulation as a result of variable settlement options. The federal role in the regulation of variable life insurance has, however, eliminated the justification for this limitation. In this connection, it should be noted that, in a memorandum dated September 9, 1976, the NAIC Counsel specifically noted that "[c]ontinuance of this provision in the event of dual SEC-state regulation would be unnecessary, and in that event its deletion is recommended." "Proposed Changes to the NAIC Model Variable Life Insurance Regulation" (September 9, 1976), Memorandum of Richard A. Hemmings, NAIC Counsel. The prior restriction imposed unnecessary costs on consumers; a policyholder or beneficiary desiring a variable settlement option was constrained to surrender the variable life insurance policy and purchase a separate variable product, incurring the costs associated with the surrender and replacement.

Prior to 1983, Paragraph (16) required that a variable life insurance policy contain a description of the basis for computing the cash surrender value under the policy and display the value in the format of a schedule of cash values. The function of these schedules was to set out the cash values under the policy at specified durations per $1,000 of variable death benefits then in force, regardless of investment performance. The schedules did not involve assumptions as to what the amount of variable death benefit or cash values would in fact be at the specified future durations.

The alternative cash value schedules that were set forth in Paragraph (16) were deleted in 1983 on the grounds that they might be, at best, meaningless, and, at worst, misleading in the context of flexible premium variable life policies characterized by nonguaranteed cash values that fluctuate in accordance with investment experience. In lieu of these alternative cash value schedules, the 1983 amendments made mandatory the furnishing of illustrations of benefits payable under variable life insurance policies.

As amended in 1983, Paragraph (16) required the insurer to describe the basis for computing the policy's cash value in addition to its cash surrender value. This requirement was added to provide the policyholder with useful information which juxtaposes the two amounts and thereby focuses the policyholder's attention on the costs, if any, associated with surrendering the policy.

Paragraph (17) was amended in 1983 to require that charges for incidental insurance benefits, in addition to premiums for the benefits, be separately stated. This language was added to indicate that while premiums for incidental death benefits could be paid directly by the policyholder, the cost of the benefits might also be deducted as charges from the separate account.

Prior to 1983, Paragraph (20) required that a variable life insurance policy afford at least one non-forfeiture benefit on a fixed basis from the due date of the premium in default, and prohibited an insurer from offering variable extended term insurance as a nonforfeiture benefit. The commentary accompanying the prior model regulation stated that the prohibition upon variable extended term insurance was being imposed "for the time being" only. Thus, it was apparently contemplated that the need for these restrictions would be reexamined.

The 1983 amendments respond to the clear incompatibility between these constraints and rudimentary design characteristics of flexible premium policies. The hallmark of flexible premium products is the latitude and discretion that the policyholder possesses over the amount and timing of premium payments. Thus, the concepts of a discrete, identifiable premium due date and of a premium in default—which are readily defined and easily applied in the context of fixed life insurance and traditional variable life products—are inadaptable to flexible premium products. Nonpayment of premiums under a flexible premium product would not necessarily result in termination of insurance coverage; instead, coverage continues until the charges necessary to keep the policy in force exceed the value of the amounts allocated to the separate accounts under the policy. In other words, if premium payments are discontinued, the duration of coverage would vary in accordance with investment performance.

The model's constraints upon the types of nonforfeiture insurance benefits that may be offered were deleted in 1983 because it was felt that they posed unnecessary obstacles to the evolving development of flexible premium products. Moreover, it was felt that sound state regulation of these products did not require that these strictures be retained.

The concluding language of Paragraph (20) allows an insurer to limit certain nonforfeiture benefits to a reasonable minimum amount. In other words, the regulation recognizes that costs associated in offering certain benefits in minute amounts may be unrelated to the size of the benefit. Therefore, it was thought unreasonable to require an insurer to absorb costs below a reasonable minimum benefit amount. The commissioner must ultimately approve of the reasonable minimum.

As amended, this provision, which was formerly included in Subsection E, is most appropriately classified as a mandatory policy provision, and therefore has been placed in Subsection D. This permits Subsection E to be devoted solely to policy loans.

Subsection E. Policy Loan Provisions

Comment: Prior to 1983, this subsection encompassed partial surrenders and partial withdrawals in addition to policy loans. In 1983, the Committee restructured Subsection E so that it addresses only policy loans. This was accomplished by deleting references to partial withdrawals and partial surrenders from Subsection E (see, e.g., former Paragraph (b)(10) and Paragraphs (9) and (10) as amended) and inserting instead, in Subsection F(5), a permissive provision that a variable life insurance policy may contain a provision allowing the policyholder to make partial withdrawals.

The original model regulation formulated the loan value by reference to the cash value of the policy. The 1983 amendments correlated the loan value to the cash surrender value of the policy to accomplish two principal objectives.

First, defining the loan value in terms of the cash surrender value conformed the model regulation to the insurance laws of most states. These statutes define the loan value as the cash surrender value and provide that when total indebtedness equals or exceeds the loan value, the policy may be terminated provided that at least thirty days' prior notice has been given to the policyholder.

Second, relating the loan value to the cash surrender value avoids disparate treatment of a policyholder who takes out a policy loan vis-a-vis a policyholder who surrenders the policy. Specifically, it was felt that if the original language were retained and a policyholder were permitted to borrow the full cash value of the policy, he or she could thereby circumvent imposition of a surrender charge and would be more favorably treated than a surrendering policyholder.

In 1983, the Committee added an exclusion for term insurance policies and pure endowment policies to the introductory language to Subsection E to make it clear that a policy loan provision is mandatory for all policy designs except term insurance and pure endowment policies. In addition, because of the unscheduled nature of premium payments characteristic of flexible premium products, it was felt that the previous introductory language which tied the availability of policy loans to payment of a specified number of full years' premiums was inapplicable. Accordingly, in 1983 this language was amended to provide that policy loans would be available after the policy has been in force for a specified period of time.

Paragraph (2) was amended in 1983 to replace the reference to a maximum permissible interest rate with language which would permit insurers to charge a variable interest rate on policy loans where permitted by state law.

Paragraph (5) requires that the insurer notify the policyholder of the insurer's intention to terminate the policy if excess indebtedness is not repaid within thirty-one days. Thus, rather than merely allowing the insurer to cancel the policy, this paragraph requires the insurer to allow the policyholder to repay immediately the excess indebtedness over the cash surrender value. The Committee fully recognized that this placed a substantial risk on the insurer during the thirty-one day period. Furthermore, the Committee was aware that in fluctuating markets the insurer could be forced to send frequent notices. However, this is the risk the insurer must take, and is one of the reasons for the 75% limitation of Paragraph (1).

Paragraph (5) was amended in 1983 to apply different notice requirements to scheduled and flexible premium policies. The 31-day notice of intention to cancel is triggered when the indebtedness exceeds the cash surrender value of the policy, rather than the policy's cash value. Finally, the word "any" was inserted in the clause "notice of any intent to cancel" (emphasis added) to make it clear that cancellation of the policy is not mandated by the regulation, but is to be at the option of the insurer.

Paragraph (6) was intended to allow, but not to require, the insurer to permit full restoration of benefits upon the repayment of 110% of the increase in cash value and the furnishing of evidence of insurability satisfactory to the insurer. The 110% repayment is inserted to discourage speculation against the insurer. Evidence of insurability is required to protect against anti-selection (see comment to Section 4D(3)).

Paragraph (7) is intended to prevent a policyholder from borrowing amounts that are so small as to generate high costs in administering the loan by the insurer with limited corresponding benefits to the policyholder. Of course, the commissioner must ultimately determine what will constitute a reasonable minimum amount.

Paragraphs (9) and (10) must be read together. They were inserted in order to attempt to solve problems which have long been associated with fixed benefit policy loans.

The NAIC model regulation does not specify any particular method of making policy loans. It does, however, specifically require in Paragraph (9) that the insurer shall construct policy loan provisions so that all policyholders (variable and fixed) of the insurer who have not exercised policy loan provisions are not disadvantaged by the exercise of loan provisions by other policyholders. There is no restriction as to how companies shall accomplish this result.

One method that is likely to be utilized requires the transfer of policyholder loans from the separate to the general account (again illustrating the constant interrelationship of the two) and blending of the different (variable and fixed) rates of net investment return earned by the policyholder taking the loan. As a result, only the variable life insurance policyholders actually taking policy loans receive a net investment return based on the policy loan rate on that portion. The return to nonborrowing policyholders (both variable and fixed) is unchanged. It was suggested by some, however, that loans should be required to be made from the insurer's general account because transfer of the loan amount from the separate account might, depending upon that account's investment performance, decrease the return to borrowing variable life insurance policyholders. This approach reflected little concern over the fact that such a provision would require the insurer's fixed benefit policyholders to subsidize the borrowing variable life policyholders, and, further, that the risk of poor return was no longer imposed on the borrowing policyholder, and was rejected for that reason.

This aforementioned approach, in effect, applies the difference between the net investment return based on the policy loan interest rate and the net investment return of the separate account against the policy loan indebtedness to adjust the benefits otherwise payable. Under this approach, the borrowing variable life policyholders will be credited with a net investment return based on the policy loan interest rate rather than the separate account net investment return for the purpose of calculating policy benefits. Thus, to the extent of the borrowing, variable life insurance policyholder have a policy which is totally insulated from both favorable and unfavorable separate account performance, and nonborrowing policyholders remain unaffected. Borrowing policyholders are affected only to the extend of their loans.

Subsection F. Other Policy Provisions

Source: Paragraphs (1), (4), and most of (3) are based on standard fixed benefit life insurance policy provisions.

Comment: The requirements of this subsection are optional. However, if provisions are made they must resemble in substance the mandates of this subsection. In 1983, Paragraph (3)(b) was amended to eliminate a requirement that certain forms of life insurance purchased under dividend options be paid-up. In addition, the amendment permitted forms of fixed benefit life insurance besides whole life. These changes were made to add needed flexibility to permissible dividend options.

Paragraph (1) allows a two-year suicide clause. Of course, the clause must be in conformity with applicable state law.

As amended in 1983, the suicide exclusion parallels the mandatory policy provision governing incontestability (Subsection D(12)). As with the incontestability clause, the new two-year period during which the insurer may deny liability for death resulting from suicide applies "to the extent of the increased death benefits only," i.e., only to the portion of the death benefit that resulted from a new application by the policyholder for the additional coverage. Because a misrepresentation of the insured's health is not necessary to contest liability under the suicide provision, the amendment to Paragraph (1) allows the insurer to deny liability for death resulting from suicide, within two years of the date of any increase, irrespective of whether or not evidence of insurability was supplied.

Paragraph (2) was amended in 1983 to afford insurers the flexibility to offer incidental insurance benefits on a basis other than fixed. See the discussion of the 1983 amendment to the definition of "incidental insurance benefit" in Section 2I.

Paragraph (4) allows an insurer to offer an automatic premium loan provision on an optional basis. The policyholder must elect its use in writing either in the application or later. If offered, the loan must be on a basis at least as favorable to the policyholder as Section 4E(1). The language that allows the imposition of a 2-premium limitation is for the policyholders' benefit in order to prevent a previously applied for automatic premium loan from destroying cash values without the policyholder being aware of this occurrence. If the policy holder renews his or her request for the automatic premium loan, the 2-premium period should commence running anew.

Paragraph (6) was added to the model regulation in 1983. Its intent is to make it clear that the permissive policy provisions specifically set forth in Subsection E do not, by implication, preclude the insurance commissioner, in his or her discretion, from approving other policy provisions submitted by the insurer.

Section 5. Reserve Liabilities for Variable Life Insurance

Comment: Subsection A refers to reserve liabilities arising from variable benefits and requires their being held in the separate account and determined on a basis consistent with the Standard Valuation Law.

The Standard Valuation Law is prospective in nature and requires a knowledge of future benefits. Since under variable life insurance future benefits are unknown, this subsection recognizes that the Standard Valuation Law cannot be applied without appropriate modifications. Thus, this subsection requires the application of the principles contained in the Standard Valuation Law in a manner that is actuarially consistent with the variable nature of the benefits provided.

Subsection B deals with the reserves for a minimum death benefit guarantee under a scheduled premium policy (see Section 2K and Section 4C(2)). This subsection was originally adopted by the Subcommittee in substance in December of 1972. It was modified in 1983 to limit it to scheduled premium policies. The following comments drawn from the Subcommittee's December 1972 report provide an explanation of this subsection:

> The purpose of the reserve for the minimum death benefit guarantee (MDBG) is to accumulate funds to provide for the contingency of death occurring when the guaranteed minimum death benefit exceeds the death benefit that would have been payable in the absence of such a guarantee. The amount payable under the minimum death benefit guarantee, as referred to below, means the excess of the minimum death benefit over the death benefit that would have been payable if there were not such a guarantee. The reserve for the minimum death benefit (MDBG reserve) means the reserve for that excess death benefit. The amount payable under the minimum death benefit guarantee tends to increase if the investment earnings on the assets of the separate account funding the contract are less than the assumed investment return for the contract and vice versa.

Taking into account the purpose of the MDBG and the nature of the minimum death benefit guarantee, the Subcommittee concluded that the acceptable MDBG reserve system should have the following characteristics:

1. The MDBG reserve should be held in the general account of the company so that it will be backed by the general assets of the company, most of which are debt obligations valued at amortized cost and, therefore, are of a fixed dollar nature. It would not be proper to hold the MDBG reserve in the separate account since the reserve would not be supported by fixed dollar assets but by assets that are moving in the opposite direction from the risk, i.e., value moving downward while the risk increases and vice versa.

2. The MDBG reserve should be adequate to cover, under all but the most extreme circumstances, the MDBG death claims for the next year, so that the regulatory authorities can be assured the company will not run into financial trouble from this source before the next annual statement is filed.

3. The MDBG reserve should react slowly but steadily to an extended period of poor investment experience of the separate account.

4. The MDBG reserve should not overact and cause unnecessary fluctuations in surplus by increasing too rapidly in a sharp market downswing. Also, the reserve should not decrease too rapidly in a sharp market upswing after a period of poor market experience.

The reserve should be subject to the same valuation standards with respect to mortality and interest as any other life insurance reserve, currently the 1958 CSO mortality table and a rate of interest not in excess of 3.5%, and should not be discounted by rates of withdrawal because of their uncertain nature and a great variation in rates between one company and another. Withdrawal rates are particularly uncertain for variable life insurance since no U.S. companies have yet written such insurance.

After extensively testing the operation of many proposed reserve systems against these criteria under various assumptions as to the investment performance of the separate account, the Subcommittee decided to recommend a 3-part MDBG reserve system, consisting of (1) an accumulation of amounts allocated by the insurer to the MDBG reserve, less actual MDBG claims paid, subject to a 2-part minimum equal to the greater of, (2) a one-year term reserve to assure coverage of next year's claims, and (3) a reserve designed to protect against an extended period of poor investment experience of the separate account.

The amounts allocated by the insurer to the first part of the reserve system depend upon the design characteristics of an insurer's variable life insurance contract, the insurer's judgment of the risk it has assumed, and its assessment of the possible impact on its surplus of future changes in the 2-part minimum.

The second part of the reserve system is a requirement that the reserve be sufficient to cover all MDBG claims of the following year if there is an immediate one-third depreciation in the value of the separate account assets.

The third part of the reserve system forces an insurer to gradually increase its reserve if this is necessary to cover MDBG claims arising from an extended period of poor investment performance. The technique used is to fund the cost of future MDBG claims by level payments over the future premium paying period of the contract.

The Subcommittee's proposal also provides that suitable approximations and estimates may be used to shorten the work of computing the reserve for the minimum death benefit guarantee.

The requirements for a reserve for the MDBG originally adopted by the NAIC (1973 Proceedings of the NAIC I 504) included a provision that amounts be regularly allocated by insurers to be accumulated to form a reserve which would be charged with any excess of actual death benefits paid over those which would have been paid in the absence of the MDBG. This requirement was subsequently deleted from the model regulation because of the difficulty of specifying the amounts to be regularly allocated since such amounts vary depending on factors such as the plan design and the assumed investment return. The Subcommittee felt that it would be better for companies to include in their plan of operation, a specification of the amounts to be regularly allocated for this purpose (see Section 3A(2)(a)). Only the second and third parts of the reserve system are retained in the present regulation.

Subsection C requires the application of the Standard Valuation Law to incidental insurance benefits. Reserves for the variable aspects of variable incidental insurance benefits shall be maintained in a separate account; reserves for any guarantee associated with the benefits shall be maintained in the general account.

Section 6. Separate Accounts

Subsection A. Establishment and Administration of Separate Accounts

Comment: Section 6 deals generally with separate account operations and the management of the insurer. Therefore, within the context below it was expected that conduct under this section would primarily be regulated by the state of domicile.

Totally aside from the model regulation, any matter which might pertain to the insurer's ability to perform its obligations within a particular state is always subject to the scrutiny and regulation of the commissioner of that state. Thus, the commissioner of any state can always change his or her regulations or bar an insurer from doing business in the state as well as invoking all other enforcement remedies available. However, as a general proposition, the internal management of the insurer is normally regulated by the state of domicile, and in the absence of unusual circumstances, this regulation is accepted by other states in which the insurer does business. In fact, this is the reason underlying Section 3A(2)(c) and 3B(5). In 1983, the introductory language to Subsection A was expanded to make clear that the domiciliary state has exclusive jurisdiction over the establishment of separate accounts and to clarify that a commissioner may not require foreign insurers to establish separate accounts in his or her state.

Subsection A relates to the creation of separate accounts. Paragraphs (1) to (3) relate to custodianship, bonding requirements and the background of persons associated with the material handling of separate account assets.

It is important to note in any discussion of these areas that the assets of the separate account are only significant with respect to solvency. Unlike a mutual fund in which the shareholder owns a proportionate share of the assets that exist, the variable life insurance policyholder owns the right to be paid benefits according to the contract, regardless of whether the assets underlying the policy actually exist. In this regard the commissioner's sole concern as to the existence of assets is limited to solvency. The insurer's obligation exists regardless of whether or not the assets have been stolen. Misconduct has no effect on the determination of benefits owed to the policyholders. Therefore, the interest of the commissioner with respect to misappropriation is exactly the same for fixed benefit and variable life insurance—namely, the ability to pay benefits under the policy.

Paragraph (1) relates to custody of separate account assets. The laws of some states are quite specific in this regard and were intended to govern over this provision. In the normal instance, the Subcommittee certainly expected that the insurer would maintain custody over its assets including those allocated to its separate account. In this context it was recognized that an insurer is never really acting as custodian of separate account assets.

Since a variable life insurance separate account is an integral part of the insurer, the insurer is acting as custodian (really owner) of its own assets, including those which it may have internally allocated to the separate account. Neither the separate account nor the variable life insurance policyholders own any assets. As a matter of fact, the Model Variable Contract Law Section 1E provides that "amounts allocated to a separate account in the exercise of the power granted by this Act shall be owned by the company, and the company shall not be, nor hold itself out to be, a trustee with respect to such amounts."

An affiliate of the insurer holding custody of the insurer's assets would not be the same thing as the insurer itself holding them. Clearly, assuming no contradictory requirement, the model regulation provides the commissioner of the state of domicile with the authority to review and approve the terms of a custodianship contract and the custodian itself. The standards to be reviewed would presumably be (1) safety of the assets; (2) cost; and (3) the absence of a conflict of interest which might be detrimental to the policyholder.

Paragraph (2) requires the prior written approval of the commissioner in order for an insurer to employ the persons described therein in any material capacity with the handling of assets allocated to the separate account. As noted earlier, this is primarily a solvency concern. However, because the assets underlying variable life insurance separate accounts are inherently liquid in nature, they are more easily converted and this subsection was felt to be desirable.

The term "material" as it is used in this subsection is designed to cover a person who is employed in a position which would enable misappropriation of funds. It was the Subcommittee's understanding at the time the model regulation was drafted that to consent to an injunction would be an acknowledgment of a violation and, therefore, approval would be required under this subsection. The prohibition of this subsection would not define a narrower class of persons that is covered under the Investment Company Act.

As previously discussed, since the operations of the separate account would generally be regulated only by the state of domicile, approval under this subsection would not necessarily have to be obtained in every jurisdiction in which a company proposed to sell variable life insurance. However, the provisions of Section 3A(2) would still be applicable.

Paragraph (3) refers to bonding requirements for persons with access to separate account assets. Since bonding is not uncommon in state insurance regulation, the Subcommittee determined to leave the particular amount to each particular state.

Paragraph (4) should be read in conjunction with Section 4C(5) and (6) as well as Section 4D(5)(b).

The model regulation allows annual death benefit determination and monthly cash value determination. However, each can be determined much more frequently (daily is a common variation). Allowing cash value determination which was less frequent than monthly combined with "backward" valuation (see comment to Section 4C(6)) would have exposed the insurer to great speculation risks and could affect solvency. Therefore, monthly cash value determination was required. Since it would be impossible to determine benefits without valuing assets, this provision merely restates the obvious in requiring asset valuation at least as frequently as benefits are determined.

Prior to 1983, a paragraph of Subsection A had required that an insurer desiring to establish more than one separate account for variable life insurance file with the commissioner a justification for the action and obtain the commissioner's approval for the establishment of each additional separate account. The paragraph also prohibited the creation of additional separate accounts for the purpose of avoiding lower maximum charges against the separate account. This paragraph was deleted in 1983 because separate accounts funding scheduled and flexible premium variable life insurance products will be registered with the SEC under the Investment Company Act, which regulates permissible charges against registered separate accounts.

In 1983, the Committee also eliminated a provision in Subsection A that provided that a separate account, exempt from regulation under Section 3(c)(11) of the 1940 Act because of the tax qualified status of the policies funded thereby, should not be used to fund other variable life insurance policies. This provision had originally been included in the model regulation in order to prohibit companies from jeopardizing the exempt status under the Investment Company Act of Section 3(c)(11) separate accounts by placing in those accounts assets from nonexempt policies. This provision was deleted to afford insurers the flexibility to decide whether there are economies or benefits to be gained from pooling 3(c)(11) assets with nonexempt assets in one separate account.

Similarly in 1983, the Committee determined to remove another provision in Subsection A that stated that except for separate accounts exempt pursuant to Section 3(c)(11) of the Investment Company Act, variable life insurance separate accounts should not be used for variable annuities or the investment of funds corresponding to dividend accumulations or other policyholder liabilities not involving life contingencies. This provision had originally been included in the model regulation to assure that insurers not jeopardize the partially exempt 1940 Act status of variable life insurance separate accounts by pooling them with assets funding variable annuities when variable annuity separate accounts were subject to full 1940 Act regulation. The Committee eliminated this provision in 1983 in order to give insurers the option of deciding whether it is more advantageous to pool the separate account fully subject to the 1940 Act, or, on the other hand, to maintain two separate accounts, one a 1940 Act regulated variable annuity separate account and the other a variable life insurance separate account that is partially exempt from the Investment Company Act.

Subsection B. Amounts in the Separate Account

Comment: The valuation reserves underlying the variable portion of the policy measure the amount of current liabilities arising from the obligation to pay future variable benefits. Thus, thissection requires corresponding assets to be maintained in the separate account for solvency reasons since the required reserve will fluctuate in direct response to changes in variable benefits (see Section 5A).

Assets at least equal to the benefit base must be maintained in the separate account in order to assure that sufficient excess investment return exists to provide the benefits required by Section 4C(3) and 4C(4). The reference to the "valuation reserves for the variable portion of the policy" is not intended to encompass reserves for fixed nonforfeiture benefits, reserves either for dividend accumulations or for dividends applied to purchase paid-up insurance, or reserves for fixed insurance benefits.

In 1983, the Committee eliminated portions of Subsection B defining benefit base and stipulating reserves because several provisions contained in other sections of the model regulation ensure that the benefit base for variable life insurance policies will be soundly defined and that benefits generated under the policies will be adequately reserved for. For example, Section 4C(3) requires that the policy reflect the separate account investment experience and that the investment experience be reflected in an actuarially sound manner. Section 4C(4) mandates that the full net investment return applied to the benefit base is credited to the policy. Section 4C(6) requires that the method for computing nonforfeiture benefits is consistent with Standard Nonforfeiture Law. Reserve liabilities for variable life insurance policies must be established under the Standard Valuation Law, pursuant to Section 5A.

Subsection C. Investments by the Separate Account

Source: Paragraph (1) is from the original Model Variable Contract Regulation.

Comment: For various reasons the Subcommittee was concerned about the valuation of separate account assets. First, these assets form the basis for most of the reserves underlying the policy's benefits. Proper valuation is essential to assure solvency. Second, the separate account serves as the measure by which investment performance and, therefore, ultimately policy benefits are determined. Consequently, the model regulation must balance sometimes competing concerns, e.g., assuring that the insurer does not artificially inflate the appearance of its investment performance by initially undervaluing its separate account assets (and thus the basis on which investment return is calculated) vis-a-vis the traditional insurance view of conservatively valuing assets in order to assure that the insurer can meet its obligations to the policyholders.

With variable life insurance this traditional concern assumes special significance because of the interrelationship between the separate account and the insurer's general account and the resultant possibility that the general account (and indirectly the insurer's fixed benefit policyholders) will be forced to backstop any significant under valuation to the extend of any initial face value guarantee. On the other hand, too high an initial valuation will tend to artificially deflate investment performance and, therefore, inadequately credit variable policy benefits. Thus, in establishing valuation requirements, the Subcommittee sought to balance these potentially competing concerns and to minimize the potential for insurer manipulation. The Subcommittee had to be sure that valuation methods were appropriate to the nature of variable life insurance and the need to protect all—not just variable—policyholders.

The provisions of Paragraph (1) are common to many existing statutes and regulations and are intended to prevent unfair or discriminatory transfer between accounts. Regular cash flow should permit those transfers to and from the general account necessary to the question of the insurer's variable life insurance business to be made in cash. The introductory language to this paragraph recognizes that the separate account is not a separate entity and is not an affiliate of the insurer. Therefore, the transactions covered by this subsection include those between: (1) the insurer's general assets and the separate account, (2) one separate account of the insurer to another, and (3) an affiliate of the insurer to either the insurer's general assets or a separate account.

Subparagraph (a) recognizes the need of seed money to establish a separate account of adequate minimum size and further the need for the constant periodic flow of cash in the form of the valuation net premium from the general account to the separate account to support the operation of policies (see also Section 6G).

Subparagraph (b) presumes that all transfers will be in cash. However, it permits transfers of assets other than cash if approved by the commissioner in advance. A transaction that is fair and equitable to both variable and fixed benefit policyholders is, of course, the standard that must be applied in determining approval. Naturally, assets transferred into the separate account must satisfy the requirements of Paragraph (2).

This subsection does not permit interest-bearing loans by the general account to the separate account to establish the latter. Section 4C(5) makes no provision for allocating separate account earnings to amortize any indebtedness.

In 1983, the Committee revised Paragraph (2) to establish a standard providing adequate safety and liquidity for separate accounts, while also affording investment flexibility. Paragraph (2) requires that the separate account maintain in its portfolio readily marketable assets and assets producing investment income such that the total of the assets and income are sufficient to meet anticipated withdrawals under policies funded by such separate account. In other words, to determine liquidity of the account, the net income from investment plus the aggregate amount of publicly traded securities, cash items and other readily marketable assets will be compared with anticipated withdrawals to meet obligations under the policies. In this way, the standard for liquidity focuses upon the entire separate account rather than individual assets in the separate account. The Committee also concluded not to prohibit specified types of investments by the separate account in view of the liquidity standard established in Paragraph (2), which determines liquidity by reference to the aggregate separate account rather than requiring that every separate account investment meet conservative liquidity standards. Moreover, since separate accounts funding scheduled and flexible premium products will be registered under the Investment Company Act, contract holders will be protected by that act and its regulations that prohibit certain specified forms of investments. The investment restrictions deleted from the model regulation, however, were more restrictive than those contained in the Investment Company Act. The Committee determined to eliminate these more restrictive limitations so that companies would have the flexibility to design products that can compete economically with alternative products offered by other financial service institutions that are not so limited. The NAIC recommends that a guideline be formulated as soon as possible to assist states in administering Section 6C(2).

Subsection D. Limitations on Ownership

Source: Paragraphs (1) and (2) are derived from the Model Variable Contract Regulation.

Comment: Paragraph (1) provides that separate accounts cannot purchase or otherwise acquire shares in any one issuer (other than the United States) if the acquisition would result in investments in that issuer exceeding 10% of the value of assets allocated to the separate account. This quantitative limitation is imposed to promote diversification and limit investment risk. The commissioner is given authority to waive this restriction in unusual circumstances where the waiver is found not to be hazardous to the public or the policyholders.

Paragraph (2) prohibits the acquisition of the securities of an issuer if the acquisition would result in the insurer's ownership of more than 10% of the voting securities of the issuer (see Section 2F.) As in Paragraph (1), the commissioner may waive this condition where such waiver is found not to be hazardous to the public or the policyholders. However, in addition, a waiver under this paragraph must also be based on an affirmative finding that the independent operation of the issuer will not be jeopardized. In this regard, coordination with the SEC may be desirable.

Paragraph (3) was inserted in order to assure that Paragraph (1) would not preclude investment in mutual fund shares, so long as the mutual fund complied with the investment restrictions of Section 6C and 6D as well as all other applicable portions of the regulation. In 1983, Paragraph (3) was expanded to make clear that Paragraph (1) was not intended to prevent separate accounts from acquiring interests in other pools in investment assets, such as interests in a pool of real estate assets, which may not be registered under the Investment Company Act. Any such investments would also have to substantially comply with the investment restrictions of Section 6C and other applicable provisions of the model regulation.

Subsection E. Valuation of Separate Account Assets

Comment: The Subcommittee was concerned with uniform portfolio valuation for a number of reasons.

A particular security may be held by separate accounts and by life company general accounts. It would appear unreasonable for the same security, held by several different variable life insurance separate accounts, to have different values. Only uniform valuation can avoid this result.

The insurance commissioners have a vital interest in the values given assets in the separate account because of the impact on the solvency of the general account caused by minimum guaranteed death benefits, if any. In fact, it can be argued that the commissioner's interest equals that of the variable life policyholders. Thus, it is important that the commissioner be satisfied with the values given the separate account assets.

Death benefits and cash values will depend to some degree on the investment performance of the separate account. Clearly in the absence of regulation a company could change its valuation procedures to alter the separate account investment results, either up or down.

Uniform valuation of separate account assets is required by the SEC under the Investment Company Act of 1940. That Act provides that portfolio securities for which market quotations are readily available shall be valued at current market value, and that other securities and assets shall be valued at "fair value" as determined in good faith by the board of directors of the investment company. The SEC has interpreted fair value to mean the value that would be received upon the current sale of a security or asset. These valuation principles, by assuring that valuation procedures reflect current market factors, eliminate the potential for understating or overstating the value of separate account assets.

In 1983, the Committee modified Subsection E to permit separate account asset to be valued at their amortized cost if it approximates market value. This change was initiated to allow valuation consistent with the current SEC position permitting conditional use of the amortized cost method of valuation. Under this valuation method, which seeks to attain a stable net asset value. a debt security is valued at its cost and interest to be earned on the security (plus any discount received or less any premium paid upon purchase) is accrued ratably over the remaining maturity of the security.

Subsection F. Separate Account Investment Policy

Comment: In 1983, Subsection F was modified to require that changes in separate account investment policy must be filed with the insurance commissioner of the domiciliary state before they become effective. Any changes in investment policy will be deemed automatically effective 60 days after the filing date with the commissioner, unless the commissioner informs the insurer of disapproval during that period because a change is viewed as detrimental to the interests of separate account policyholders. This provision, of course, would not preclude a commissioner from also considering the interests of other policyholders of the insurer. The provision simply seeks to make the interests of separate account policyholders the principal focus of the commissioner's consideration in evaluating changes in investment policy. The automatic effectiveness provided in this subsection extends to all proposed investment policy changes and is not limited to non-material changes. In revising Subsection F, the Committee intended to make clear that commissioners are not required formally to approve all investment policy changes that are filed. Under this provision, a commissioner retains the authority to disapprove, at any time, a change in investment policy that has become effective pursuant to the deemer provision of the section. Disapproval would be subject to the requirements of notice and public hearing.

In addition to the commissioner's scrutiny of proposed changes investment policy, the Investment Company Act of 1940 provides policyholders with the right to vote upon proposed changes in investment policy.

Certain regulations under the Investment Company Act, however, provide a conditional limited exemption from shareholder voting requirements to the extent that an insurance regulator requires, pursuant to insurance law or regulation, that the separate account make certain investments that would result in changes in the subclassification or investment policies of the separate account. A similar exemption is provided to the extent that changes in the investment policy of the separate account initiated by contract holders or the separate account committee are disapproved by the life insurer under limited circumstances, provided that the disapproval was reasonable and based upon a good faith determination.

Any changes in investment policy requiring policyholder approval under the Investment Company Act, as well as those excluded from shareholder vote pursuant to the limited exemptions mentioned above, must be disclosed in the proxy statement distributed to contract holders of the variable life insurance separate account. With this mechanism, the SEC also has an opportunity to review the adequacy of disclosure regarding proposed changes in separate account investment policy.

Through the combination of procedures required under Subsection F requirements proposed by the Investment Company Act of 1940, separate account policyholders are adequately protected against adverse changes in separate account investment policy. Any proposed changes are subject to: (i) disapproval of the insurance commissioner, either within 60 days of filing or subsequently following notice and hearing; (ii) shareholder vote, unless exempt under limited regulatory conditions; and, (iii) disclosure in proxy materials filed with the SEC which are distributed to policyholders and are subject to SEC review.

Prior to 1983, the subsection provided dissenting policyholders with the right to convert to a fixed benefit policy. This provision was included in furtherance of the goal of avoiding SEC regulation, as a substitute for the voting procedures required by federal securities laws. In view of the subsequent application of the securities laws to variable life insurance and the protection from detrimental investment changes afforded by requirements enumerated in the preceding paragraph, the 1983 amendments deleted the prior paragraph.

Subsection G. Charges Against Separate Account

Comment: Prior to 1983, Subsection G set forth a restricted list of charges permitted to be deducted from the separate account. Subsection G was amended in 1983 to require written disclosure of all charges that are made against the separate account, including, but not limited to, 7 specified categories. The requirements of this provision can be satisfied by disclosing these charges either in a policy delivered to contract holders or in a prospectus distributed prior to or at the same time as the policy. All charges must be disclosed in one document or the other. Consequently, a company may not selectively disclose a portion of the charges in the policy with the remainder appearing in the prospectus. A complete listing of all separate account charges must be disclosed in the policy or in the prospectus. It was determined that permissible charges against the separate account should not be limited to those specifically enumerated in order that future product design would not be unreasonably limited.

Paragraph (1) pertains to deductions from the separate account for taxes or reserves for taxes attributable to investment gains or income attributable to the separate account. This paragraph would require disclosure of such taxes or reserves.

Paragraph (2) requires disclosure of the actual cost of brokerage fees. The conflict of interest provisions of Article VI, Section 9, of Section 17 of the Investment Company Act of 1940 and the standards of conduct in Section 6H would be relevant to prevent the insurer or its affiliates from being unfairly benefited at the expense of the variable life insurance policyholders.

Paragraph (4) requires disclosure of charges against the separate account for administrative expenses and investment management expenses. It is important to note that the term "management" is much broader than the term "advisory" services which was intentionally not utilized. The expenses for investment management consist of all costs that are necessary to secure and transact the investment obligations of the insurer. It would include advisory services as well as other associated expenses. If, for example, an outside mutual fund were utilized, sales commission, printing fees, outside directors fees, registration fees, required reports, custodian fees, etc. would all be a cost of investment management and would be included in this paragraph.

In 1983, Paragraph (4) was expanded to specifically include charges for administrative expenses in the category of investment management expense charges. Also in 1983, specific limitations on investment management expenses as a percentage of average net asset value were eliminated from Paragraph (4). This change was incorporated because the Investment Company Act of 1940, under which scheduled and flexible premium policies would be registered, regulates amounts that can be charged for investment management expenses. That Act prohibits management fees against registered separate accounts organized as either management investment companies or unit investment trust, exceeding reasonable amounts prescribed by the SEC. In addition, regulations under the Investment Company Act require that administrative expenses paid to trustees or custodians for performing bookkeeping and other services be limited to amounts that are reasonable in relation to services rendered and expenses incurred, and the SEC retains jurisdiction regarding the fees. Further, Section 36(b) of the Investment Company Act provides that investment advisers to registered investment companies have a fiduciary duty with respect to the receipt of compensation for services, and provides an express cause of action for recovery of excessive management compensation. The SEC performs its oversight regarding-the reasonableness of investment management expenses and administrative expenses both when registrations are initially declared effective and when periodically updated.

Paragraph (5) was also modified in 1983 to eliminate any specific limitation on the amounts charged for mortality and expense guarantees. This revision occurred in the interest of regulatory consistency, because regulations under the Investment Company Act stipulate that mortality and expense risk charges must be disclosed in the prospectus and shall not be less than 50% of the maximum charge for risk assumption as disclosed in the prospectus and as provided for in the contract.

Subsection G was modified in 1983 to eliminate a prohibition against investment advisory charges against the separate account that would vary in accordance with the differences between the investment performance of the separate account and any index of securities, prices or other measure of investment performance. This change was initiated because in 1970 Congress amended the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 to permit registered investment advisors to contract a limited type of performance fee with registered investment companies. Performance fees, if any, will be presented in prospectus disclosure accompanying schedule and flexible premium policies and will be evaluated by contract holders pursuant to the voting procedures required under the Investment Company Act. Also, the SEC has oversight concerning performance fees in the course of reviewing initial and periodic disclosure materials.

Subsection H. Standards of Conduct

Comment: This subsection provides the minimum standards of duty and care that are owed by the insurer to the policyholders. They can be enforced by the commissioner through the full range of methods available. In addition, the insurer itself can enforce the standards as can an individual policyholder if an implied private right of action exists.

The standards of conduct would not be required to form part of the insurance contract pursuant to Section 4D(6), although an insurer might choose to include them in the policy.

Additional items might include expressions of the nature of the quasi-fiduciary duty of management to the policyholders and the obligations of good faith under which the insurer's management is bound to operate.

The Committee modified Subsection H in 1983 to provide that codes of ethics fulfilling the requirements of Section 17(j) under the Investment Company Act of 1940 would satisfy the obligations required by this Section pertaining to standards of conduct. Rule 17(j)-1 under the Investment Company Act of 1940 would satisfy the obligations required by this Section pertaining to standards of conduct. Rule 170-1 under the Investment Company Act, 17 CFR 270.170)-1, implements the requirements of Section 170(j) and provides guidance to investment companies as to the minimum standards of conduct appropriate for a persons who have access to information regarding the purchase and sale of portfolio securities by investment companies. The rule prohibits certain activities on the part of persons affiliated with registered investment companies and their investment advisers or principal underwriters. Significantly, the rule requires those types of entities to adopt a written code of ethics containing provisions reasonably necessary to prevent fraudulent trading by persons affiliated with investment companies and their investment advisers or principal underwriters. with respect to securities held or to be acquired by the investment company. In addition, Rule 170-1 requires specified persons with access to information concerning portfolio transactions to file a report with their respective investment company, investment adviser or principal underwriter regarding personal securities transactions, including date, price, nature of transaction and execution broker or bank. Through the required code of ethics, monitoring and reporting obligations, Rule 170-1 provides a significant deterrent against fraudulent, manipulative or deceptive practices in connection with investment company portfolio transactions.

The code of ethics required by Rule 17j-1 provides a comprehensive and meaningful benchmark in fulfillment of the obligations under Subsection H regarding appropriate standards of conduct with respect to the purchase or sale of separate account investments.

Subsection I. Conflicts of Interest

Comment: Subsection I is designed to incorporate by reference and apply all state conflicts of interest laws. As such, it should be broadly interpreted.

"A separate account committee or other similar body" was intended to include any form of internal management group responsible for the operation of the separate account. For example, if an insurer did not form a variable life insurance subsidiary but rather formed a new committee of its board of directors (similar, for example, to the executive committee) to make the more day-to-day type of variable life insurance management decisions, this would be the type of group to which the model regulation refers. The intention of this subsection was clearly not to permit the insurer's board of directors to delegate the ultimate management responsibility for separate account activities to any other group, such as the policyholders, or distinct separate account management. This was in recognition of the nature of the separate account's integrated relationship with the insurer as a whole.

Furthermore, this language was meant to preclude policyholder voting for the management of variable life insurance operations. Finally, this subsection was inserted to assure no misunderstanding that the conflict of interest provisions applied to any group associated with a separate account regardless of its description.

The model regulation contains no other reference to such a body. The responsibility of the board of directors to manage the insurer including its variable life insurance operations is much broader than only those acts treated in the conflicts of interest subsection. It is spelled out in detail in state insurance laws. This responsibility would include a quasi-fiduciary duty to act in the interest of the policyholders and in compliance with the standards of conduct.

In 1983, the Committee eliminated specific prohibitions that had previously existed under Subsection I because they duplicated parallel provisions contained under Section 17 of the Investment Company Act of 1940 and its rules relating to transactions with affiliated persons and underwriters. Since separate accounts funding scheduled or flexible premium policies will be registered under the Investment Company Act and subject to the SEC's jurisdiction, the interests of policyholders will be thoroughly and adequately regulated with respect to transactions involving potential conflicts of interests on the part of the separate account, the insurer or any affiliated persons.

The Investment Company Act defines the term "affiliated person" very broadly in the Investment Company Act for purposes of the prohibitions contained in Section 17. Section 17 prohibits an affiliated person or principal underwriter for an investment company from selling securities to, purchasing securities from, or borrowing money or property from the investment company or a company it controls. Section 17(d) also prohibits affiliated persons from engaging in joint transactions with an investment company without first having been granted an order of exemption from the SEC after the SEC has thoroughly scrutinized the transaction and evaluated the basis on which the parties participate. Section 17(e) also prohibits affiliated persons of investment companies from accepting any compensation in connection with the purchase or sale of any property to or for the investment company, except in the course of brokerage transactions. In those events, the broker is prohibited from receiving commissions exceeding usual and customary brokerage commissions or 2% of the sales price in connection with secondary distributions of securities, or 1% of the sale price of other securities.

Similar to a parallel provision eliminated from Subsection I in 1983, Section 17(b) provides a mechanism for registered companies to obtain exemption from the prohibitions of Section 17 for transactions that are reasonable and fair, and do not involve overreaching and that are consistent with the policy of the company as recited in its registration statement. Any such exemptive applications must be publicly noticed in the Federal Register and would permit interested persons, such as policyholders or state insurance commissioners, to request an administrative hearing on the matter.

Subsection J. Investment Advisory Services to a Separate Account

Comment: In most instances the Subcommittee anticipated that investment advice should be performed by the insurer internally in the same manner as fixed benefit life insurance. However, the Subcommittee was aware that a substantial number of insurers might wish to utilize investment advisory services either within or outside their corporate family—hence this subsection was inserted.

It should be noted that a separate account is not a "person" and cannot contract with an investment adviser. Consistent with this philosophy, this subsection has no application to an insurer's internal investment management. Naturally, the remainder of the regulation including the standards of conduct and conflicts of interest provisions are applicable in the internal management situation (see also comment to Section 6G).

An investment advisory contract must be in writing. The adviser must be either a registered investment adviser under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, or the insurer must file a statement in compliance with Paragraph (1)(c) of this subsection annually. This report, in effect, requires the adviser to adopt standards of conduct that are sufficient to satisfy Section 6H.

As noted above, while Paragraph (1)(c) is derived from the Investment Advisers Act, Subparagraph (c)(iv)(III) includes an additional statement of any insurance law or regulation violations.

Paragraph (1)(c) does not prohibit employment of persons noted in Subparagraph (c)(iv). However, the insurer would be placed under an extremely heavy burden to demonstrate no hazard to the public.

Paragraph (1)(d) requires an advisory contract to be in writing and terminable by the insurer without penalty on at most 60 days notice.

Under Paragraph (2), the commissioner has the authority after notice and the opportunity for hearing to compel termination of a contract which imperils the public or the policyholder of the insurer (either variable, fixed or both).

A change of investment advisers or the assignment of an advisory contract, would in all probability be a change in investment policy. As a change, it would have to be submitted to and approved by the commissioner pursuant to Section 6F. The continuing supervisory nature of Section 3A and 3B(2) would imply notification of the commissioner of a change in the plan of operation. Thus, the commissioner would have to be notified.

Section 7. Information Furnished to Applicants

Source: Subsections A and B are derived from the addendum to the original NAIC Model Variable Contracts Regulation.

Comment: This section was designed to provide information to a prospective purchaser concerning the operation and performance of a particular policy.

The question of what is adequate disclosure is quite subjective. The primary concern is, of course, that a prospect has enough information to make a reasonably informed judgment as to whether the purchase of a particular policy is consistent with the needs he or she perceives. Another important concern is that the prospective purchaser be able to compare premiums and benefits of various otherwise similar policies.

In view of this there is virtually no limit to the information which could be provided. This was revealed in the approximately 110,000 pages of data produced in the Hart Committee's inquiry into only a relatively small segment of cost comparison. Submerging the prospective purchaser with information can as a practical matter thwart the purpose of disclosure as well as failing to provide sufficient information. It was felt that at the time of sale the prospect would be overwhelmed with disclosure information required by both the states and the SEC. Therefore, an attempt was made to limit information to that which would perhaps be most understandable and relevant. For example, early drafts of the model regulation required disclosure of the percentage of premiums that made its way into the separate account. It was recognized that this figure was totally unrelated to benefits payable or the relative merits of a particular policy. Therefore, this proposal was deleted.

The question of proper "cost comparison" and disclosure, particularly with regard to variable life insurance, has never been adequately resolved. This complex issue is currently under study in connection with the proposed revision of the NAIC Life Insurance Disclosure (Solicitation) Model Regulation.

The model regulation provides in Section 3F(2) that any information furnished to applicants pursuant to Section 7 be furnished to the commissioner prior to its use in the state in question. Additionally, Section 3 requires a written acknowledgment of receipt by the applicant coincident with or prior to the execution of the application for a variable life insurance policy. The insurer is required to maintain the receipt at least until its examination in order to be able to prove compliance with this section, and probably for a longer period in order to protect itself against claims that the mandates of this section were ignored.

The commissioner will further have the market conduct portion of the examination system as well as the normal complaint mechanism to see that insurers are fulfilling their obligations pursuant to this section.

Failure to comply with this section would subject the insurer to the entire range of remedies available to the commissioner. Furthermore, rescission would presumably be available to the policyholder either as a personal equitable remedy or administratively through the commissioner.

Subsection A was intended to remain flexible and can be utilized to require proper disclosure of significant policy features. However, the commissioner may wish to amend this section to specifically require inclusion of these sections.

Subsection B refers to investment policy. Both the description of investment policy and the restrictions enumerated must, of course, comply with the regulations (see, e.g., Section 4D and E). It will be a significant factor in determining what constitutes a change or material change in investment policy since this description is what a policyholder was entitled to rely upon.

This statement should include, for example, such items as limitations on investments in particular industries as well as the expected diversification of investments allocated to the separate account.

With respect to Subsection C, the net investment referred to will not take into account policy loans if held as an asset of the separate account. It is recognized that the net investment return of the separate account is a figure that is extremely unlikely to apply to any single policy, because of differences in timing of transfers of net premiums and tabular costs of mortality, etc. This figure is intended to provide a useful indication of the general investment performance of the separate account, after deductions, for comparative purposes. It is anticipated that this figure will be shown in the NAIC annual statement and will be computed in accordance with instructions for completing the annual statement. This subsection, as well as Subsection E, does not preclude the use of figures that are not more than 16 months old. Applicants during the first 4 months of a calendar year cannot be expected to receive information for the calendar year just ended less than 4 months ago.

Prior to the 1983 amendments, the subsection required a statement describing, as an approximate percentage of an annual gross premium for each year and for the life of the policy, all commissions or other payments to be paid to all agents or other persons as a result of the proposed sale. This requirement was deleted in the 1983 amendments because it was felt that the disclosure was more likely to be misunderstood than helpful. The purpose of this disclosure was to show the interest of the agent in selling the particular product. However, because commission disclosure was not required for any other form of life insurance, the disclosure provided no basis of comparison between variable life policies and others. Also, as the commentary to the pre-1983 model regulation concedes, meaningful cost comparisons on the basis of commissions are impossible, even if the business methods of insurers were uniformly comparable. To further confuse matters, the pre-1983 model did not require disclosure of sales-related costs other than commissions and conceded that, for example, a direct mail insurer, which might have ample sales expenses but no commissions, would have a distinct advantage in this regard over an insurer doing business in the traditional agency method.

For these reasons, and because projections of this type of disclosure are difficult for flexible premium products, it was determined that it was appropriate to treat variable life insurance like other life insurance and dispense with the commission disclosure.

Prior to the 1983 amendments, the current Subsection D required a statement of the annual taxes, brokerage fees and similar costs, and the charges, expressed as an annual percentage, levied against the separate account during the previous year. The NAIC was concerned that this subsection permitted a negative inference that charges or deductions from the separate account other than those mentioned were not required to be disclosed. Therefore, Subsection D was simplified to require disclosure of all charges levied against the separate account during the previous year. These would include annual taxes, brokerage fees and all other charges.

Subsection F requires a discussion of all material federal income tax aspects of the policy to the insured, the policyholder, and the beneficiary. Prior to the 1983 amendments, only disclosure of the income tax liabilities was required. A discussion of the income tax liabilities will be subsumed in a more comprehensive discussion of the policy's tax aspects.

The subsection refers to the federal income tax aspects relative to persons insured, policyholders and beneficiaries in general and not to particular specific circumstances of each insured, etc. Opinions of counsel, if necessary in the absence of specific rulings, should be labeled accordingly.

Subsection G refers to illustrations of benefits payable under variable life insurance contracts. Prior to 1983, this section did not require the furnishing of illustrations, but merely regulated their format and content in the event they were furnished. However, since the 1983 amendments deleted the requirement that variable life insurance policies contain schedules of cash values (see comment to Section 4D(16)), the illustrations specified in this subsection were made mandatory, thereby ensuring that policyholders will receive an illustrative explanation of the way in which a policy operated under certain assumptions. The NAIC recommends that guidelines be developed as soon as possible to assist states in administering this provision and to address issues regarding guaranteed and non-guaranteed aspects of a variable life insurance policy. This subsection prohibits the projections of past investment performance into the future, or any predictions of future performance. However, past performance can be shown with appropriate caveats. The Subcommittee specifically requires all benefit illustrations to be prepared by the insurer in order that they take full responsibility and to preclude unfair, or inexact, off-the-cuff illustrations prepared at the point of sale. This subsection does require a clear identification of hypothetical rates and an indication that they are unrelated to actual performance. While no single commissioner would have the power to require uniformity in hypothetical rates of return nationwide, he or she certainly would require all the information provided to all applicants in his or her state to be identical, thereby as a practical matter allowing comparison.

Prior to the 1983 amendments, the subsection required a prominent statement in contrasting color or in bold-faced type at least 4 points larger than the type size of the largest type used in the text of any provision on the page, providing:

> "The purpose of this variable life insurance policy is to provide insurance protection for the named beneficiary.
> No claim is made that this variable life insurance policy is in any way similar or comparable to a systematic investment plan of a mutual fund."

These required disclosures were originally included in the regulation as part of the effort to assure that variable life insurance would be considered to be insurance not involving an investment company subject to SEC regulation. Because the insurance and securities aspects of products are now determined on the basis of the characteristics of each product, it was determined to delete these paragraphs. The first required statement is self-evident and the second statement may not be accurate in the context of certain policy designs.

Section 8. Applications

Comment: Subsections A and B should be read with reference to the comments to Section 4D(1)(a) and (b). Subsection C is referred to in the comment to Section 3C.

Section 9. Report to Policyholders

Comment: The paramount objective of Section 9 is to provide a policyholder with thorough disclosure concerning the operation of his or her variable life insurance policy and with current, reliable information concerning the status of insurance coverage. In accordance with this objective, the 1983 amendments to Section 9 expanded the information that must be included in an annual report in the case of flexible premium policies (Subsection A) and, in Section C, required insurers to provide policyholders of flexible premium policies with notice of impending expiration coverage. These amendments were both designed to alert the policyholder to the possible insufficiency of the amounts available under the policy to keep the policy in force and the corresponding need to make additional premium payments.

Subsection A. Long-range Warning Notice

Comment: In 1983, Subsection A was amended to provide the policyholder of a flexible premium variable life insurance policy with a long-range warning that his or her policy may terminate without value if additional premium is not paid. In addition to setting forth information concerning changes in the policy's cash value and cash surrender value during the preceding policy year, the expanded annual report must also contain a projection, based upon specified assumptions, of cash value and cash surrender value as of the next policy anniversary. If the projected value is less than zero, the annual report must include a warning message stating that the flexible premium policy "may be in danger of terminating without value in the next 12 months unless additional premium is paid." In order that the long-range warning notice is not misunderstood, insurers may wish to indicate that notification provided pursuant to this section is based on certain assumptions and is a projection, which should not be construed as a guarantee.

Subsection C. Notice of Impending Expiration of Coverage

Comment: Although the long-range warning notice required by Subsection A provides the policyholder with important information concerning the possibility that the amounts available under the policy will be insufficient to keep the policy in force, the model recognizes the need for an additional immediate notice if the amounts available under the policy are in fact insufficient to keep the policy in effect without payment of additional premium. Accordingly, as mentioned above in the commentary to Sections 2 and 4, Subsection C requires that the insurer send a report to the policyholder in the event that "the amounts available under the policy on any policy processing day to pay the charges authorized by the policy are less than the amount necessary to keep the policy in force until the next following policy processing day." The mailing of this report triggers the 61-day grace period for flexible premium policies (Section 4D(2)(b)). Subsection C requires that the report indicate the minimum payment required under the terms of the policy to keep it in force until the next following policy processing day. Thus, the policyholder is provided with prompt notice of the possible impending expiration of his or her coverage and of the correlative need to take immediate action to assure that the policy continues in effect. At the time the 1983 amendments were adopted, consideration was given to extending the Subsection C notice requirement to scheduled premium policies. Concern was expressed that future scheduled premium policy designs might be such that similar problems with the sufficiency of funds available to keep a policy in effect might result. Ultimately, Subsection C was not extended to scheduled premium policies because an insufficiency of funds resulting from a policy loan under a scheduled premium policy would trigger the 31-day notice provision of Section 4E(5). Only a scheduled premium policy that is actuarially unsound from the outset could otherwise present such a problem.

Other Aspects of Section 9

Comment: The 1983 amendments implemented several additional revisions to Section 9. In Subsection A, the requirement that the information contained in annual reports to policyholders be computed as of 45 days prior to mailing was changed to 60 days to be consistent with the corresponding time period under current SEC regulations. See 17 C.F.R. § 230.486. The portion of Subsection A that required the use of contrasting color or distinctive type to highlight the variable nature of the cash value and death benefit was deleted on the rationale that the principal function of a policyholder report, unlike a policy application, is to report information, and that Section 8 already requires that an applicant for a variable life insurance policy be provided with a prominent statement of this same information. In addition, requiring that printing be done in contrasting color imposes an unnecessary additional expense.

The required contents of the annual statement contemplated by Section 9B were also amended in 1983. First, Subsection B(2) was amended to permit an insurer, as a matter of state law, to furnish comparison of the investment rate of the separate account for more than a 5-year period. In addition, the requirement embodied in previous subsections (f) and (g) that the statement include information concerning the insurer's principal executive officer, directors, parent companies and 10% beneficial owners was deleted, on the rationale that this information will normally be provided to the policyholder pursuant to the federal securities laws. In addition, this information is not directly relevant to the more material information contained in the report concerning the policyholder's status with regard to his or her policy. Finally, a conforming amendment was made in Subsection B(4) to be consistent with the deletion of the limitations on the types of charges that may be levied against the separate account (see Section 6G and 7D).

Unlike Section 7, this section would not be satisfied by delivery of a document meeting the requirements of the Securities Act of 1933 or the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, but rather requires separate notice.

Subsection B(1) requires a summary of the financial statements of the separate account based on the annual statement last filed with the commissioner. In reality, the separate account not being an entity, has no financial statement. The assets allocated to the separate account form an integral part of the insurer's annual statement and a summary of that, including separate account information, is what is required by this subsection.

Section 10. Foreign Companies

Section 10 was added and the remaining articles renumbered by 1978 Proceedings of the NAIC I.

Section 11. Qualifications of Agents for the Sale of Variable Life Insurance

Source: Subsections A(1), B and C are derived from Article IX of the Model Variable Contracts Regulation.

Comment: The present division of regulatory authority over variable life insurance between the state insurance departments and the Securities and Exchange Commission has resulted in the potential dual licensing of salesmen. The states developed, for variable annuities, a special variable contract agent license which required licensing as a life insurance agent plus successful completion of a variable contracts exam given by the insurance department, plus ownership of a federal securities sales license. An alternative manner of obtaining the latter was successful completion of a federal securities examination administered by the insurance departments, developed by the NAIC, and approved by the SEC. A few years ago, the NAIC withdrew from participation in this examination procedure. Thus, at present, only a federal securities examination administered by a securities regulatory body will satisfy step 3 noted above.

Whether they are selling variable life insurance or competing against it, life insurance agents must know how variable contracts work and how they are regulated. In order to assure that they have the required knowledge, the Subcommittee believed all life agents and brokers should be examined on variable contracts just as they are examined on aspects of traditional life insurance and its regulation. The model regulation reflects this position, as does the NAIC Agents and Brokers' Licensing Model Act.

Subsection A(1) requires a person to be licensed as an agent in order to be eligible to sell variable life insurance to the public (see Section 2B). The person must provide satisfactory evidence that he or she holds any securities license that may be required for the sale of variable life insurance.

Subsection A(2) reflects the single life insurance agent licensing approach.

Subsection B requires that an agent report to the insurance commissioner any disciplinary actions against him or her by other insurance departments or by securities exchanges, associations or regulators. Upon receipt of such notification, the commissioner may find the agent ineligible for further licensing as a life insurance agent or unqualified as a variable contract agent, or the commissioner may investigate for similar violations by the agent in that state for which further disciplinary action or remedial action is needed (see Section 10C).

The difficulty with this scheme is the need for an independent source of information for the commissioners. Obviously, it is somewhat unrealistic to expect all agents to report disciplinary actions against themselves. With regard to disciplinary actions by insurance departments, an independent source is available through the monthly NAIC Agents List. The Subcommittee recommends that each state religiously report disciplinary actions through this system and utilize the resulting national monthly list.

Subsection C applies the rules and regulations applicable to fixed benefit licensing, revocations, suspensions, etc. to variable life insurance.

SUITABILITY IN ANNUITY TRANSACTIONS MODEL REGULATION

Table of Contents

Section 1. Purpose

A. The purpose of this regulation is to require producers, as defined in this regulation, to act in the best interest of the consumer when making a recommendation of an annuity and to require insurers to establish and maintain a system to supervise recommendations so that the insurance needs and financial objectives of consumers at the time of the transaction are effectively addressed.

B. Nothing herein shall be construed to create or imply a private cause of action for a violation of this regulation or to subject a producer to civil liability under the best interest standard of care outlined in Section 6 of this regulation or under standards governing the conduct of a fiduciary or a fiduciary relationship.

Drafting Note: The language of Subsection B comes from the NAIC Unfair Trade Practices Act (#880). If a state has adopted different language, it should be substituted for Subsection B.

Drafting Note: Section 989J of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2010 ("Dodd-Frank Act") specifically refers to this model regulation as the "Suitability in Annuity Transactions Model Regulation" (#275). Section 989J of the Dodd-Frank Act confirmed this exemption of certain annuities from the Securities Act of 1933 and confirmed state regulatory authority. This regulation is a successor regulation that exceeds the requirements of the 2010 model regulation.

Section 2. Scope

This regulation shall apply to any sale or recommendation of an annuity.

Section 3. Authority

This regulation is issued under the authority of [insert reference to enabling legislation].

Drafting Note: States may wish to use the Unfair Trade Practices Act (#880) as enabling legislation or may pass a law with specific authority to adopt this regulation.

Section 4. Exemptions

Unless otherwise specifically included, this regulation shall not apply to transactions involving:

A. Direct response solicitations where there is no recommendation based on information collected from the consumer pursuant to this regulation;

B. Contracts used to fund:

(1) An employee pension or welfare benefit plan that is covered by the Employee Retirement and Income Security Act (ERISA);

(2) A plan described by Sections 401(a), 401(k), 403(b), 408(k) or 408(p) of the Internal Revenue Code (IRC), as amended, if established or maintained by an employer;

(3) A government or church plan defined in section 414 of the IRC, a government or church welfare benefit plan, or a deferred compensation plan of a state or local government or tax-exempt organization under Section 457 of the IRC; or

(4) A nonqualified deferred compensation arrangement established or maintained by an employer or plan sponsor.

C. Settlements of or assumptions of liabilities associated with personal injury litigation or any dispute or claim resolution process; or

D. Formal prepaid funeral contracts.

Section 5. Definitions

A. "Annuity" means an annuity that is an insurance product under state law that is individually solicited, whether the product is classified as an individual or group annuity.

B. "Cash compensation" means any discount, concession, fee, service fee, commission, sales charge, loan, override, or cash benefit received by a producer in connection with the recommendation or sale of an annuity from an insurer, intermediary, or directly from the consumer.

C. "Consumer profile information" means information that is reasonably appropriate to determine whether a recommendation addresses the consumer's financial situation, insurance needs and financial objectives, including, at a minimum, the following:

(1) Age;

(2) Annual income;

(3) Financial situation and needs, including debts and other obligations;

(4) Financial experience;

(5) Insurance needs;

(6) Financial objectives;

(7) Intended use of the annuity;

(8) Financial time horizon;

(9) Existing assets or financial products, including investment, annuity and insurance holdings;

(10) Liquidity needs;

(11) Liquid net worth;

(12) Risk tolerance, including but not limited to, willingness to accept non-guaranteed elements in the annuity;

(13) Financial resources used to fund the annuity; and

(14) Tax status.

D. "Continuing education credit" or "CE credit" means one continuing education credit as defined in [insert reference in state law or regulations governing producer continuing education course approval].

E. "Continuing education provider" or "CE provider" means an individual or entity that is approved to offer continuing education courses pursuant to [insert reference in state law or regulations governing producer continuing education course approval].

F. "FINRA" means the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority or a succeeding agency.

G. "Insurer" means a company required to be licensed under the laws of this state to provide insurance products, including annuities.

H. "Intermediary" means an entity contracted directly with an insurer or with another entity contracted with an insurer to facilitate the sale of the insurer's annuities by producers.

I. (1) "Material conflict of interest" means a financial interest of the producer in the sale of an annuity that a reasonable person would expect to influence the impartiality of a recommendation.

(2) "Material conflict of interest" does not include cash compensation or non-cash compensation.

J. "Non-cash compensation" means any form of compensation that is not cash compensation, including, but not limited to, health insurance, office rent, office support and retirement benefits.

K. "Non-guaranteed elements" means the premiums, credited interest rates (including any bonus), benefits, values, dividends, non-interest based credits, charges or elements of formulas used to determine any of these, that are subject to company discretion and are not guaranteed at issue. An element is considered non-guaranteed if any of the underlying non-guaranteed elements are used in its calculation.

L. "Producer" means a person or entity required to be licensed under the laws of this state to sell, solicit or negotiate insurance, including annuities. For purposes of this regulation, "producer" includes an insurer where no producer is involved.

(2) Converted to reduced paid-up insurance, continued as extended term insurance, or otherwise reduced in value by the use of nonforfeiture benefits or other policy values;

(3) Amended so as to effect either a reduction in benefits or in the term for which coverage would otherwise remain in force or for which benefits would be paid;

(4) Reissued with any reduction in cash value; or

(5) Used in a financed purchase.

Drafting Note: The definition of "replacement" above is derived from the NAIC Life Insurance and Annuities Replacement Model Regulation (#613). If a state has a different definition for "replacement," the state should either insert the text of that definition in place of the definition above or modify the definition above to provide a cross-reference to the definition of "replacement" that is in state law or regulation.

O. "SEC" means the United States Securities and Exchange Commission.

Section 6. Duties of Insurers and Producers

A. Best Interest Obligations. A producer, when making a recommendation of an annuity, shall act in the best interest of the consumer under the circumstances known at the time the recommendation is made, without placing the producer's or the insurer's financial interest ahead of the consumer's interest. A producer has acted in the best interest of the consumer if they have satisfied the following obligations regarding care, disclosure, conflict of interest and documentation:

(1) (a) Care Obligation. The producer, in making a recommendation shall exercise reasonable diligence, care and skill to:

(i) Know the consumer's financial situation, insurance needs and financial objectives;

(ii) Understand the available recommendation options after making a reasonable inquiry into options available to the producer;

(iii) Have a reasonable basis to believe the recommended option effectively addresses the consumer's financial situation, insurance needs and financial objectives over the life of the product, as evaluated in light of the consumer profile information; and

(iv) Communicate the basis or bases of the recommendation.

(b) The requirements under Subparagraph (a) of this paragraph include making reasonable efforts to obtain consumer profile information from the consumer prior to the recommendation of an annuity.

(c) The requirements under Subparagraph (a) of this paragraph require a producer to consider the types of products the producer is authorized and licensed to recommend or sell that address the consumer's financial situation, insurance needs and financial objectives. This does not require analysis or consideration of any products outside the authority and license of the producer or other possible alternative products or strategies available in the market at the time of the recommendation. Producers shall be held to standards applicable to producers with similar authority and licensure.

(d) The requirements under this subsection do not create a fiduciary obligation or relationship and only create a regulatory obligation as established in this regulation.

(e) The consumer profile information, characteristics of the insurer, and product costs, rates, benefits and features are those factors generally relevant in making a determination whether an annuity effectively addresses the consumer's financial situation, insurance needs and financial objectives, but the level of importance of each factor under the care obligation of this paragraph may vary depending on the facts and circumstances of a particular case. However, each factor may not be considered in isolation.

(f) The requirements under Subparagraph (a) of this paragraph include having a reasonable basis to believe the consumer would benefit from certain features of the annuity, such as annuitization, death or living benefit or other insurance-related features.

(g) The requirements under Subparagraph (a) of this paragraph apply to the particular annuity as a whole and the underlying subaccounts to which funds are allocated at the time of purchase or exchange of an annuity, and riders and similar producer enhancements, if any.

(h) The requirements under Subparagraph (a) of this paragraph do not mean the annuity with the lowest one-time or multiple occurrence compensation structure shall necessarily be recommended.

(i) The requirements under Subparagraph (a) of this paragraph do not mean the producer has ongoing monitoring obligations under the care obligation under this paragraph, although such an obligation may be separately owed under the terms of a fiduciary, consulting, investment advising or financial planning agreement between the consumer and the producer.

(j) In the case of an exchange or replacement of an annuity, the producer shall consider the whole transaction, which includes taking into consideration whether:

(i) The consumer will incur a surrender charge, be subject to the commencement of a new surrender period, lose existing benefits, such as death, living or other contractual benefits, or be subject to increased fees, investment advisory fees or charges for riders and similar product enhancements;

(ii) The replacing product would substantially benefit the consumer in comparison to the replaced product over the life of the product; and

(iii) The consumer has had another annuity exchange or replacement and, in particular, an exchange or replacement within the preceding 60 months.

(k) Nothing in this regulation should be construed to require a producer to obtain any license other than a producer license with the appropriate line of authority to sell, solicit or negotiate insurance in this state, including but not limited to any securities license, in order to fulfill the duties and obligations contained in this regulation; provided the producer does not give advice or provide services that are otherwise subject to securities laws or engage in any other activity requiring other professional licenses.

(2) Disclosure obligation.

(a) Prior to the recommendation or sale of an annuity, the producer shall prominently disclose to the consumer on a form substantially similar to Appendix A:

(i) A description of the scope and terms of the relationship with the consumer and the role of the producer in the transaction;

(ii) An affirmative statement on whether the producer is licensed and authorized to sell the following products:

(I) Fixed annuities;

(II) Fixed indexed annuities;

(III) Variable annuities;

(IV) Life insurance;

(V) Mutual funds;

(VI) Stocks and bonds; and

(VII) Certificates of deposit;

(iii) An affirmative statement describing the insurers the producer is authorized, contracted (or appointed), or otherwise able to sell insurance products for, using the following descriptions:

(I) From one insurer;

(II) From two or more insurers; or

(III) From two or more insurers although primarily contracted with one insurer.

(iv) A description of the sources and types of cash compensation and non-cash compensation to be received by the producer, including whether the producer is to be compensated for the sale of a recommended annuity by commission as part of premium or other remuneration received from the insurer, intermediary or other producer or by fee as a result of a contract for advice or consulting services; and

(v) A notice of the consumer's right to request additional information regarding cash compensation described in Subparagraph (b) of this paragraph;

Drafting Note: If a state approves forms, a state should add language to Subparagraph (a) reflecting such approvals.

(b) Upon request of the consumer or the consumer's designated representative, the producer shall disclose:

(i) A reasonable estimate of the amount of cash compensation to be received by the producer, which may be stated as a range of amounts or percentages; and

(ii) Whether the cash compensation is a one-time or multiple occurrence amount, and if a multiple occurrence amount, the frequency and amount of the occurrence, which may be stated as a range of amounts or percentages; and

(c) Prior to or at the time of the recommendation or sale of an annuity, the producer shall have a reasonable basis to believe the consumer has been informed of various features of the annuity, such as the potential surrender period and surrender charge, potential tax penalty if the consumer sells, exchanges, surrenders or annuitizes the annuity, mortality and expense fees, investment advisory fees, any annual fees, potential charges for and features of riders or other options of the annuity, limitations on interest returns, potential changes in non-guaranteed elements of the annuity, insurance and investment components and market risk.

Drafting Note: If a state has adopted the NAIC Annuity Disclosure Model Regulation (#245), the state should insert an additional phrase in Subparagraph (c) above to explain that the requirements of this section are intended to supplement and not replace the disclosure requirements of the NAIC Annuity Disclosure Model Regulation (#245).

(3) Conflict of interest obligation. A producer shall identify and avoid or reasonably manage and disclose material conflicts of interest, including material conflicts of interest related to an ownership interest.

(4) Documentation obligation. A producer shall at the time of recommendation or sale:

(a) Make a written record of any recommendation and the basis for the recommendation subject to this regulation;

(b) Obtain a consumer signed statement on a form substantially similar to Appendix B documenting:

(i) A customer's refusal to provide the consumer profile information, if any; and

(ii) A customer's understanding of the ramifications of not providing his or her consumer profile information or providing insufficient consumer profile information; and

(c) Obtain a consumer signed statement on a form substantially similar to Appendix C acknowledging the annuity transaction is not recommended if a customer decides to enter into an annuity transaction that is not based on the producer's recommendation.

Drafting Note: If a state approves forms, a state should add language to Subparagraphs (b) and (c) of this paragraph reflecting such approvals.

(5) Application of the best interest obligation. Any requirement applicable to a producer under this subsection shall apply to every producer who has exercised material control or influence in the making of a recommendation and has received direct compensation as a result of the recommendation or sale, regardless of whether the producer has had any direct contact with the consumer. Activities such as providing or delivering marketing or educational materials, product wholesaling or other back office product support, and general supervision of a producer do not, in and of themselves, constitute material control or influence.

B. Transactions not based on a recommendation.

(1) Except as provided under Paragraph (2), a producer shall have no obligation to a consumer under Subsection A(1) related to any annuity transaction if:

(a) No recommendation is made;

(b) A recommendation was made and was later found to have been prepared based on materially inaccurate information provided by the consumer;

(c) A consumer refuses to provide relevant consumer profile information and the annuity transaction is not recommended; or

(d) A consumer decides to enter into an annuity transaction that is not based on a recommendation of the producer.

(2) An insurer's issuance of an annuity subject to Paragraph (1) shall be reasonable under all the circumstances actually known to the insurer at the time the annuity is issued.

C. Supervision system.

(1) Except as permitted under Subsection B, an insurer may not issue an annuity recommended to a consumer unless there is a reasonable basis to believe the annuity would effectively address the particular consumer's financial situation, insurance needs and financial objectives based on the consumer's consumer profile information.

(2) An insurer shall establish and maintain a supervision system that is reasonably designed to achieve the insurer's and its producers' compliance with this regulation, including, but not limited to, the following:

(a) The insurer shall establish and maintain reasonable procedures to inform its producers of the requirements of this regulation and shall incorporate the requirements of this regulation into relevant producer training manuals;

(b) The insurer shall establish and maintain standards for producer product training and shall establish and maintain reasonable procedures to require its producers to comply with the requirements of Section 7 of this regulation;

(c) The insurer shall provide product-specific training and training materials which explain all material features of its annuity products to its producers;

(d) The insurer shall establish and maintain procedures for the review of each recommendation prior to issuance of an annuity that are designed to ensure there is a reasonable basis to determine that the recommended annuity would effectively address the particular consumer's financial situation, insurance needs and financial objectives. Such review procedures may apply a screening system for the purpose of identifying selected transactions for additional review and may be accomplished electronically or through other means including, but not limited to, physical review. Such an electronic or other system may be designed to require additional review only of those transactions identified for additional review by the selection criteria;

(e) The insurer shall establish and maintain reasonable procedures to detect recommendations that are not in compliance with Subsections A, B, D and E. This may include, but is not limited to, confirmation of the consumer's consumer profile information, systematic customer surveys, producer and consumer interviews, confirmation letters, producer statements or attestations and programs of internal monitoring. Nothing in this subparagraph prevents an insurer from complying with this subparagraph by applying sampling procedures, or by confirming the consumer profile information or other required information under this section after issuance or delivery of the annuity;

(f) The insurer shall establish and maintain reasonable procedures to assess, prior to or upon issuance or delivery of an annuity, whether a producer has provided to the consumer the information required to be provided under this section;

(g) The insurer shall establish and maintain reasonable procedures to identify and address suspicious consumer refusals to provide consumer profile information;

(h) The insurer shall establish and maintain reasonable procedures to identify and eliminate any sales contests, sales quotas, bonuses, and non-cash compensation that are based on the sales of specific annuities within a limited period of time. The requirements of this subparagraph are not intended to prohibit the receipt of health insurance, office rent, office support, retirement benefits or other employee benefits by employees as long as those benefits are not based upon the volume of sales of a specific annuity within a limited period of time; and

Drafting Note: The intent of Subparagraph (h) is to prohibit sales contests, sales quotas, bonuses and non-cash compensation based on the sale of a particular product within a limited period of time, but not to prohibit general incentives regarding the sales of a company's products with no emphasis on any particular product.

(i) The insurer shall annually provide a written report to senior management, including to the senior manager responsible for audit functions, which details a review, with appropriate testing, reasonably designed to determine the effectiveness of the supervision system, the exceptions found, and corrective action taken or recommended, if any.

(3) (a) Nothing in this subsection restricts an insurer from contracting for performance of a function (including maintenance of procedures) required under this subsection. An insurer is responsible for taking appropriate corrective action and may be subject to sanctions and penalties pursuant to Section 8 of this regulation regardless of whether the insurer contracts for performance of a function and regardless of the insurer's compliance with Subparagraph (b) of this paragraph.

(b) An insurer's supervision system under this subsection shall include supervision of contractual performance under this subsection. This includes, but is not limited to, the following:

(i) Monitoring and, as appropriate, conducting audits to assure that the contracted function is properly performed; and

(ii) Annually obtaining a certification from a senior manager who has responsibility for the contracted function that the manager has a reasonable basis to represent, and does represent, that the function is properly performed.

(4) An insurer is not required to include in its system of supervision:

(a) A producer's recommendations to consumers of products other than the annuities offered by the insurer; or

(b) Consideration of or comparison to options available to the producer or compensation relating to those options other than annuities or other products offered by the insurer.

D. Prohibited Practices. Neither a producer nor an insurer shall dissuade, or attempt to dissuade, a consumer from:

(1) Truthfully responding to an insurer's request for confirmation of the consumer profile information;

(2) Filing a complaint; or

(3) Cooperating with the investigation of a complaint.

E. Safe harbor.

(1) Recommendations and sales of annuities made in compliance with comparable standards shall satisfy the requirements under this regulation. This subsection applies to all recommendations and sales of annuities made by financial professionals in compliance with business rules, controls and procedures that satisfy a comparable standard even if such standard would not otherwise apply to the product or recommendation at issue. However, nothing in this subsection shall limit the insurance commissioner's ability to investigate and enforce the provisions of this regulation.

Drafting Note: Non-compliance with comparable standards means that the recommendation or sale is subject to compliance with the requirements of this regulation.

(2) Nothing in Paragraph (1) shall limit the insurer's obligation to comply with Section 6C(1) of this regulation, although the insurer may base its analysis on information received from either the financial professional or the entity supervising the financial professional.

(3) For paragraph (1) to apply, an insurer shall:

(a) Monitor the relevant conduct of the financial professional seeking to rely on Paragraph (1) or the entity responsible for supervising the financial professional, such as the financial professional's broker-dealer or an investment adviser registered under federal [or state] securities laws using information collected in the normal course of an insurer's business; and

(b) Provide to the entity responsible for supervising the financial professional seeking to rely on Paragraph (1), such as the financial professional's broker-dealer or investment adviser registered under federal [or state] securities laws, information and reports that are reasonably appropriate to assist such entity to maintain its supervision system.

(4) For purposes of this subsection, "financial professional" means a producer that is regulated and acting as:

(a) A broker-dealer registered under federal [or state] securities laws or a registered representative of a broker-dealer;

(b) An investment adviser registered under federal [or state] securities laws or an investment adviser representative associated with the federal [or state] registered investment adviser; or

(c) A plan fiduciary under Section 3(21) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA) or fiduciary under Section 4975(e)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code (IRC) or any amendments or successor statutes thereto.

Drafting Note: The requirement that a producer be "regulated and acting" as a broker-dealer, a registered representative of a broker-dealer, an investment adviser, an investment adviser representative or a plan fiduciary means that a producer who is not explicitly acting in compliance with the relevant comparable standards, as specified in Paragraph (4) below, is not eligible for this safe harbor and is subject to compliance with the requirements of this regulation.

(5) For purposes of this subsection, "comparable standards" means:

(a) With respect to broker-dealers and registered representatives of broker-dealers, applicable SEC and FINRA rules pertaining to best interest obligations and supervision of annuity recommendations and sales, including, but not limited to, Regulation Best Interest and any amendments or successor regulations thereto;

(b) With respect to investment advisers registered under federal [or state] securities laws or investment adviser representatives, the fiduciary duties and all other requirements imposed on such investment advisers or investment adviser representatives by contract or under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 [or applicable state securities law], including but not limited to, the Form ADV and interpretations; and

Drafting Note: State-registered investment advisers in this safe harbor are included in brackets so that each individual state that implements this model regulation may determine whether to include the state-regulated investment advisers. Given the varying treatment of annuities, particularly variable annuities, under state law, the varying structures of state securities and insurance departments, and the varying levels of cooperation between the two agencies, this is a decision best made in each individual state.

(c) With respect to plan fiduciaries or fiduciaries, means the duties, obligations, prohibitions and all other requirements attendant to such status under ERISA or the IRC and any amendments or successor statutes thereto.

Section 7. Producer Training

A. A producer shall not solicit the sale of an annuity product unless the producer has adequate knowledge of the product to recommend the annuity and the producer is in compliance with the insurer's standards for product training. A producer may rely on insurer-provided product-specific training standards and materials to comply with this subsection.

B. (1) (a) A producer who engages in the sale of annuity products shall complete a one-time four (4) credit training course approved by the department of insurance and provided by the department of insurance-approved education provider.

(b) Producers who hold a life insurance line of authority on the effective date of this regulation and who desire to sell annuities shall complete the requirements of this subsection within six (6) months after the effective date of this regulation. Individuals who obtain a life insurance line of authority on or after the effective date of this regulation may not engage in the sale of annuities until the annuity training course required under this subsection has been completed.

(2) The minimum length of the training required under this subsection shall be sufficient to qualify for at least four (4) CE credits but may be longer.

(3) The training required under this subsection shall include information on the following topics:

(a) The types of annuities and various classifications of annuities;

(b) Identification of the parties to an annuity;

(c) How product specific annuity contract features affect consumers;

(d) The application of income taxation of qualified and non-qualified annuities;

(e) The primary uses of annuities; and

(f) Appropriate standard of conduct, sales practices, replacement and disclosure requirements.

(4) Providers of courses intended to comply with this subsection shall cover all topics listed in the prescribed outline and shall not present any marketing information or provide training on sales techniques or provide specific information about a particular insurer's products. Additional topics may be offered in conjunction with and in addition to the required outline.

(5) A provider of an annuity training course intended to comply with this subsection shall register as a CE provider in this state and comply with the rules and guidelines applicable to producer continuing education courses as set forth in [insert reference to state law or regulations governing producer continuing education course approval].

(6) A producer who has completed an annuity training course approved by the department of insurance prior to [insert effective date of amended regulation] shall, within six (6) months after [insert effective date of amended regulation], complete either:

(a) A new four (4) credit training course approved by the department of insurance after [insert effective date of amended regulation]; or

(b) An additional one-time one (1) credit training course approved by the department of insurance and provided by the department of insurance-approved education provider on appropriate sales practices, replacement and disclosure requirements under this amended regulation.

(7) Annuity training courses may be conducted and completed by classroom or self-study methods in accordance with [insert reference to state law or regulations governing producer continuing education course approval].

(8) Providers of annuity training shall comply with the reporting requirements and shall issue certificates of completion in accordance with [insert reference to state law or regulations governing producer continuing education course approval].

(9) The satisfaction of the training requirements of another state that are substantially similar to the provisions of this subsection shall be deemed to satisfy the training requirements of this subsection in this state.

(10) The satisfaction of the components of the training requirements of any course or courses with components substantially similar to the provisions of this subsection shall be deemed to satisfy the training requirements of this subsection in this state.

(11) An insurer shall verify that a producer has completed the annuity training course required under this subsection before allowing the producer to sell an annuity product for that insurer. An insurer may satisfy its responsibility under this subsection by obtaining certificates of completion of the training course or obtaining reports provided by commissioner-sponsored database systems or vendors or from a reasonably reliable commercial database vendor that has a reporting arrangement with approved insurance education providers.

Section 8. Compliance Mitigation; Penalties; Enforcement

A. An insurer is responsible for compliance with this regulation. If a violation occurs, either because of the action or inaction of the insurer or its producer, the commissioner may order:

(1) An insurer to take reasonably appropriate corrective action for any consumer harmed by a failure to comply with this regulation by the insurer, an entity contracted to perform the insurer's supervisory duties or by the producer;

(2) A general agency, independent agency or the producer to take reasonably appropriate corrective action for any consumer harmed by the producer's violation of this regulation; and

(3) Appropriate penalties and sanctions.

B. Any applicable penalty under [insert statutory citation] for a violation of this regulation may be reduced or eliminated [, according to a schedule adopted by the commissioner,] if corrective action for the consumer was taken promptly after a violation was discovered or the violation was not part of a pattern or practice.

Drafting Note: Subsection B above is intended to be consistent with the commissioner's discretionary authority to determine the appropriate penalty for a violation of this regulation. The language of Subsection B is not intended to require that a commissioner impose a penalty on an insurer for a single violation of this regulation if the commissioner has determined that such a penalty is not appropriate.

Drafting Note: A state that has authority to adopt a schedule of penalties may wish to include the words in brackets. In that case, "shall" should be substituted for "may" in the same sentence. States should consider inserting a reference to the NAIC Unfair Trade Practices Act (#880) or the state's statute that authorizes the commissioner to impose penalties and fines.

C. The authority to enforce compliance with this regulation is vested exclusively with the commissioner.

Section 9. Recordkeeping

A. Insurers, general agents, independent agencies and producers shall maintain or be able to make available to the commissioner records of the information collected from the consumer, disclosures made to the consumer, including summaries of oral disclosures, and other information used in making the recommendations that were the basis for insurance transactions for [insert number] years after the insurance transaction is completed by the insurer. An insurer is permitted, but shall not be required, to maintain documentation on behalf of a producer.

Drafting Note: States should review their current record retention laws and specify a time period that is consistent with those laws. For some states this time period may be five (5) years.

B. Records required to be maintained by this regulation may be maintained in paper, photographic, micro-process, magnetic, mechanical or electronic media or by any process that accurately reproduces the actual document.

Drafting Note: This section may be unnecessary in states that have a comprehensive recordkeeping law or regulation.

Section 10. Effective Date

The amendments to this regulation shall take effect [X] months after the date the regulation is adopted or on [insert date], whichever is later.

SUITABILITY IN ANNUITY TRANSACTIONS MODEL REGULATION

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. To perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

Who do I speak to if I have questions?

If you have questions or believe information related to a state should be updated, please contact Jennifer Neuerburg at jneuerburg@naic.org.

Disclaimer: This chart does not constitute a formal legal opinion by the NAIC staff on the provisions of state law and should not be relied upon as such. Nor does this state page reflect a determination as to whether a state meets any applicable accreditation standards. Every effort has been made to provide correct and accurate summaries to assist readers in locating useful information. Readers should consult state law for further details and for the most current information.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2020

SUITABILITY IN ANNUITY TRANSACTIONS MODEL REGULATION (#275)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

In 2017, the Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee established the Annuity Suitability (A) Working Group and charged the Working Group to review and revise, as necessary, the Suitability in Annuity Transactions Model Regulation (#275) and as part of that charge, consider how to promote greater uniformity across NAIC-member jurisdictions. The Committee adopted the charge and established the Working Group, in part, in response to the U.S. Department of Labor's (DOL) fiduciary rule, which was finalized in April 2016 but vacated in its entirety in March 2018. The DOL fiduciary rule would have expanded the scope of who is considered a fiduciary to federal Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA) retirement plans and individual retirement accounts (IRAs) to include a broader set of insurance agents, insurance brokers and insurers. Separately, the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) released a proposed rule package in May 2018, which included Regulation Best Interest (Reg BI). The SEC finalized Reg BI in June 2019. The final Reg BI establishes a best interest standard of conduct for broker-dealers beyond the existing suitability obligation. The new standard of conduct requires a broker-dealer when making a recommendation of any securities transaction or investment strategy involving securities to a retail customer to act in the best interest of the retail customer at the time a recommendation is made without placing the financial or other interest of the broker-dealer or associated persons ahead of the interest of the retail customers.

While acknowledging the SEC's and the DOL's role in the regulatory landscape and believing that consumers are better protected when, to the extent possible, there is harmonization of the regulations enforced by the states, the SEC and the DOL, the Working Group continued its work to draft revisions to Model #275 to establish a framework for an enhanced standard of conduct that is more than the model's current suitability standard but not a fiduciary standard.

In 2018, the Working Group held two two-day interim meetings—one in June in Kansas City, MO, and one in October in Chicago—to discuss drafts of proposed revisions to Model #275. Additionally, the Working Group held several conference calls and additional in-person meetings at each national meeting.

After the SEC finalized its Reg BI in June 2019, as directed by the Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee at the 2019 Spring National Meeting, the Working Group met soon after in mid-June during an in-person interim meeting in Columbus, OH, to level set and work toward its goal of fleshing out the meaning of "best interest" and incorporating a best interest standard of conduct into the Model #275 revisions. During its June meeting, the Working Group discussed and agreed on a framework for the model revisions to include a best interest standard and a path forward for completing its work as soon as possible.

Based on this framework, the Working Group developed a draft of proposed model revisions including a best interest standard of care a producer or insurer can meet if the producer or insurer satisfies the four obligations under this standard of care: 1) the care obligation; 2) disclosure obligation; 3) material conflict of interest obligation; and 4) documentation obligation. The Working Group exposed the draft for public comment until Sept. 30, 2019.

The Working Group met Oct. 8, Oct. 15, Oct. 29 and Nov. 5, 2019, via conference call to discuss the comments received. The Working Group received comments from many stakeholders, including industry, consumers and producers. More than 100 interested parties and state insurance regulators participated in each of the conference calls. The Working Group adopted the proposed revisions to Model #275 on Nov. 5, 2019, via conference call. The Working Group agreed that it had completed its work as directed by the Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee during the 2019 Spring National Meeting and forwarded the draft to the Committee for its consideration. The Committee chair exposed the draft for a public comment period ending Nov. 26, 2019. At the 2019 Fall National Meeting, the Committee discussed the comments received and made some revisions to the Working Group's draft of proposed revisions to Model #275. During this meeting, the Committee provided preliminary approval to the proposed Model #275 revisions. The Committee also directed the Working Group to discuss the comments received on the proposed appendices during a meeting following the 2019 Fall National Meeting. The Working Group met Dec. 19, 2019, via conference call to discuss the Nov. 26, 2019, comments received on the proposed appendices. During this meeting, the Working Group revised the appendices and forwarded its work to the Committee for its consideration. The Committee met Dec. 30, 2019, via conference call to consider adoption of the proposed revisions to Model #275. The Committee adopted the proposed revisions to Model #275 by a vote of 11 to 1.

The proposed revisions establish a best interest standard of conduct for producers and insurers. This new standard of conduct is more than the model's current suitability standard, but it is not a fiduciary standard. Under this new standard of conduct, when making a recommendation of an annuity, a producer or insurer shall act in the best interest of the consumer under the circumstances known at the time the recommendation is made, without placing the producer's or the insurer's financial interest ahead of the consumer's financial interest. To satisfy this best interest obligation, a producer or an insurer must satisfy the four obligations: 1) care; 2) disclosure; 3) conflict of interest; and 4) documentation. The proposed revisions also revise the model's current insurer supervision requirements, including a new supervision requirement for the insurer to establish and maintain reasonable procedures to identify and eliminate certain sales incentives that are based on sales of specific annuities within a limited period of time. The proposed revisions also expand the model's current safe harbor provisions to apply the safe harbor to any financial professional in compliance with business rules, controls and procedures that satisfy a comparable standard, such as Reg BI, to the model's new standard of conduct. The proposed revisions define a financial professional to include a producer that is regulated and acting as: 1) a broker-dealer; 2) an investment adviser; or 3) a plan fiduciary. The proposed revisions also include new appendices to provide guidance to producers and insurers in satisfying the new disclosure and documentation obligations.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Annuity Suitability (A) Working Group of the Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee drafted the proposed revisions to Model #275. The members of the Working Group were: Alabama, California, Delaware, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, Tennessee and Wisconsin. Idaho chaired the Working Group in 2017 and 2018, and Ohio chaired the Working Group in 2019. The Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee also discussed and drafted proposed revisions to Model #275 after the Working Group completed its work. The members of the Committee were: Alabama, Arizona, Delaware, District of Columbia, Idaho, Iowa, Louisiana, Nebraska, Nevada, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Puerto Rico, Tennessee and Wisconsin.

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee established the Annuity Suitability (A) Working Group in 2017 to carry out the charge below:

"Review and revise, as necessary, the Suitability in Annuity Transactions Model Regulation (#275) and consider how to promote greater uniformity across NAIC-member jurisdictions."

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc.; include any parties outside the members that participated)

Beginning in March 2017 and ending in December 2019, the Working Group reviewed and discussed all of the comments received as part of the drafting process. Numerous interested parties participated in the process. The interested parties represented all stakeholder groups, including consumers, insurers and producer representatives. Each draft of proposed revisions was posted to the Working Group's web page and the Committee's web page on the NAIC website. All comment letters received also were posted. The Working Group held open in-person interim meetings and met via conference call during the drafting process. The Working Group also met in person at each NAIC national meeting.

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

Beginning in March 2017 and ending in December 2019, the Working Group reviewed and discussed all of the comments received. Numerous interested parties participated in the drafting process. The interested parties represented all stakeholder groups, including consumers, insurers and producer representatives. Each draft of proposed revisions was posted to the Working Group's web page and the Committee's web page on the NAIC website. All comment letters received also were posted. The Working Group held open in-person interim meetings and met via conference call during the drafting process. The Working Group also met in person at each NAIC national meeting.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the drafting process and the group's response)

Several significant issues were raised throughout the drafting process. Those issues included: 1) expanding Model #275 to include investment-type life insurance products; 2) specifically applying the proposed revisions to in-force annuity products; 3) applying the proposed revisions to producers who may not have direct contact with the consumer, but participated in a material way to developing and making the recommendation purchase an annuity; and 4) including the drafting note stating that the proposed model revisions are a successor to the 2010 model revisions.

With respect to expanding Model #275 to include investment-type life insurance products, the Working Group discussed this issue during one of its first in-person interim meetings. The Working Group decided that given its charge to "review and revise, as necessary, the Suitability in Annuity Transactions Model Regulation (#275) and consider how to promote greater uniformity across NAIC-member jurisdictions," expanding Model #275 to include investment-type life insurance products was beyond the scope of its charge. The Working Group concluded that the Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee was the appropriate forum for raising and considering this issue.

Another significant issue discussed was whether the model revisions should specifically apply to in-force annuity contracts. The Working Group discussed this issue extensively during multiple meetings. It decided ultimately not to include language in the proposed revisions specifically applying to in-force annuity contracts. However, during these discussions, it was suggested that in certain situations, in making a recommendation, a producer or insurer would have to and would be expected to consider a consumer's existing insurance products, including annuities, to determine whether the recommended option effectively addresses the consumer's financial situation, insurance needs and financial objectives as part of satisfying the best interest standard of conduct.

The Working Group also extensively discussed whether the model revisions should apply to producers not having direct contact with a consumer, but exercised material control or influence in the making of the recommendation. The Working Group decided to add language applying the model revisions to such producers under certain circumstances. Specifically, in Section 6A(5), the model revisions provide that any requirement applicable to a producer under Section 6—Duties of Insurers and Producers applies to every producer who has exercised material control or influence in the making of a recommendation and has received direct compensation as a result of the recommendation or sale regardless of whether the producer has had any direct contact with the consumer.

Another issue the Working Group discussed was whether the revised model establishing the new best interest standard of conduct would be considered for purposes of Section 989J of the federal Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2010 (Dodd-Frank Act) a successor to the 2010 model revisions, which established the suitability standard of conduct. The proposed revisions include a drafting note in Section 1—Purpose expressly stating the proposed revisions are a successor to the 2010 model revisions. The Working Group deferred the issue to the NAIC Legal Division for additional research. The NAIC Legal Division did not expressly provide an opinion, but initial research found that with or without the Section 1 drafting note, the revised model most likely would be considered a successor to the 2010 model. The Working Group determined that this was a policy issue for the Committee, the Executive (EX) Committee and Plenary to decide. The model revisions, as adopted by the Committee, retain the proposed drafting note.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2015

SUITABILTY IN ANNUITY TRANSACTIONS MODEL REGULATION (#275)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

The Suitability in Annuity Transactions Model Regulation (#275) was revised to clarify its application to contingent deferred annuities (CDAs) by:

- Deleting references to variable and fixed and leaving the broader reference to "annuities" in Section 6H, which states that sales made in compliance with Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) requirements pertaining to suitability and supervision of annuity transactions shall satisfy the requirements under this regulation.

- Adding to Section 7. Producer Training the clarification that training include how product-specific annuity contract features affect consumers.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Contingent Deferred Annuity (A) Working Group of the Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee was responsible for drafting the revisions.

States Participating:

Ted Nickel, Chair	Wisconsin	Roger A. Sevigny/Keith Nyhan	New Hampshire
Robert Chester	Connecticut	Joseph Torti III/Elizabeth Dwyer	Rhode Island
Jim Mumford	Iowa	Michael Humphreys	Tennessee
Jason Lapham	Kansas	Tomasz Serbinowski	Utah
Bruce R. Ramge	Nebraska

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The project was authorized in 2012 by the following charge: Appoint a Contingent Deferred Annuity (A) Working Group to develop NAIC guidelines and/or model bulletin that can serve as a reference for states interested in modifying their annuity laws to clarify their applicability to contingent deferred annuities (CDAs) and, as part of this work, review existing NAIC model laws and regulations applicable to consumer protection issues associated with CDAs.

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated.

The revisions to the Suitability in Annuity Transactions Model Regulation (#275) were drafted by the Contingent Deferred Annuity (A) Working Group. The revisions, and comments received on them, were reviewed and discussed by the Working Group. All comments were posted on the NAIC website. The Working Group adopted a draft of proposed revisions at the 2014 Fall National Meeting, which was then forwarded to the Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee. The Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee also adopted the revisions at the 2014 Fall National Meeting.

All drafts were distributed to more than 100 interested parties and posted on the NAIC website. Numerous interested parties participated, including: the American Council of Life Insurers (ACLI); the National Association for Fixed Annuities (NAFA); the Insured Retirement Institute (IRI); the National Association for Insurance and Financial Advisors (NAIFA); Birny Birnbaum (Center for Economic Justice—CEJ); and the American Academy of Actuaries (Academy).

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

The Contingent Deferred Annuity (A) Working Group met at each national meeting and held interim meetings and interim conference calls beginning in June 2012 until adopting the revisions at the 2014 Fall National Meeting.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (e.g., items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response)

There were concerns that using the term "CDAs" when revising the model would be too limiting and that subsequent model revisions would be necessary to address every innovation in the industry. The language adopted seeks to address this concern by using broader language.

7. Any Other Important Information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard)

None

PROJECT HISTORY - 2010

SUITABILTY IN ANNUITY TRANSACTIONS MODEL REGULATION (#275)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

The revisions to the Suitability in Annuity Transactions Model Regulation (#275) make three core changes to the existing model: 1) clarify that the insurer is responsible for compliance with the model's requirements even if the insurer contracts out to a third party to perform those requirements; 2) require the review of all recommended annuity transactions in a manner the carrier considers appropriate to ensure compliance with this requirement to better protect consumers from unsuitable sales and abusive sales and marketing practices; and 3) establish general training and specific-product training for insurance producers to ensure the producer knows what he or she is selling.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Suitability of Annuity Sales (A) Working Group of the Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee was responsible for drafting the revisions.

States Participating:

Wisconsin, Chair	Missouri
Alabama	New Hampshire
Alaska	New Jersey
California	New York
Colorado	Ohio
Connecticut	Oregon
Florida	Tennessee
Iowa	Texas
Kansas	Utah
Minnesota	Vermont

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The project was authorized in 2008 by the following charge: review and consider changes to the Suitability in Annuity Transactions Model Regulation (#275) to improve the regulation of annuity sales and to provide insurers uniform guidance in developing agent training, supervision and monitoring standards in order to better protect annuity consumers from unsuitable sales and abusive sales and marketing practices. The Executive (EX) Committee approved the model law request for revising the Suitability of Annuity Transactions Model Regulation (#275) at the 2008 Summer National Meeting.

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated

The model was drafted by the Working Group. The revisions, and comments received on them, were reviewed and discussed by the Working Group. All comments were posted on the NAIC Web site. The Working Group adopted a draft of proposed revisions on Dec. 1, 2009, which was then forwarded to the Committee for its consideration at the 2009 Winter National Meeting. At that meeting, the Committee decided to reopen the draft for additional comments. After reviewing and considering these additional comments, the Committee unanimously adopted a revised draft on Dec. 21, 2009.

All drafts were distributed to over 200 interested parties and posted on the NAIC Web site. Numerous interested parties participated, including industry representatives, such as the American Council of Life Insurers (ACLI), the National Association for Fixed Annuities (NAFA), and the Insured Retirement Institute (IRI); life insurance companies, such as MetLife, Prudential, MassMutual and Nationwide; insurance producer representatives, such as the National Association for Insurance and Financial Advisors (NAIFA); consumer representatives, such the Center for Economic Justice (CEJ) and the Western Minnesota Legal Services; and others, such as the National Association of Independent Life Brokerage Agencies (NAILBA) and the Insurance Marketplace Standards Association (IMSA).

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

After the Committee established the Working Group in March 2008, the Working Group met at each NAIC quarterly meeting in 2008 and at the NAIC 2009 Spring, Summer and Fall National Meetings. The Working Group also held five conference calls. Comments were requested and received and considered throughout the drafting process. In addition, all of the drafts of the proposed revisions were posted on the NAIC Web site. The comments were also posted on the NAIC Web site.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the drafting process and the group's response)

There were a number of significant issues or items of controversy raised during the drafting process. These issues or items of controversy generally concerned the extent to which the revisions, given the different distribution channels insurers use to sell annuity products, should delineate the specific supervisory responsibilities and ultimate responsibility of insurers for ensuring suitable annuity sales even if they contract with a third party for the performance of their responsibilities under the model. In addition, an issue was raised concerning the necessity of revising the model regulation to address these issues rather than through the development of interpretative guidelines or a model bulletin. Some interested parties argued that because a large number of states have adopted the model, with many having done so in recent years, the model should not be revised and urged the Working Group to develop interpretative guidelines or a model bulletin that states could uniformly adopt. Some Working Group members argued that interpretative guidelines and model bulletins have no force of law and, as such, the model should be revised. After extensive discussions of this issue during several conference calls and several meetings, the Working Group voted to revise the model and focus on developing such revisions. Another issue arose concerning the type and scope of training that should be required of insurance producers. Most interested parties conceded that insurance producers should know what they are selling and that some form of training would be appropriate to ensure insurance producers selling annuity products know what they are selling. However, the manner in which such training should be provided was somewhat controversial. After discussion of this issue during several conference calls and at several meetings, the Working Group decided to include a section in the revised model requiring producer training that tracks Iowa's training requirements for indexed annuities and other states' training requirements for long-term care insurance partnership policies.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2003

SENIOR PROTECTION IN ANNUITY TRANSACTIONS
MODEL REGULATION (#275)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

In 2000, the NAIC adopted a white paper recommending the establishment of suitability standards for life insurance and annuities. Shortly thereafter a working group was appointed by the Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee to draft standards. The purpose of the model act and regulation developed by that working group was to regulate the activities of insurers and producers that make recommendations to consumers to purchase certain life insurance and annuity products to ensure that insurers and producers will make suitable recommendations based on relevant information obtained from the persons who purchase life insurance and annuity products.

2. Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The model act and regulation that resulted from the charge were drafted by the Suitability Working Group, which was chaired by Iowa, and included representatives from Louisiana (vice-chair), Illinois, Kansas, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, New Jersey, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Texas, and Vermont. The draft targeted to sales of annuities to seniors was developed by the A Committee, chaired by Utah, with the following states as members: Iowa, Alabama, California, District of Columbia, Florida, Kentucky, Louisiana, New Mexico, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma and South Carolina.

3. Project Authorized by what Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee was given a charge to draft a model in 2001. The charge was to draft of a model law and/or regulation regarding suitability of sales of life insurance and annuities. The Suitability Working Group that had drafted the white paper was asked to continue in service and draft the model.

4. A general description of the drafting process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated.

A model act and regulation were adopted by the working group and forwarded to the A Committee. That Committee did not support adoption of the model as it existed and further amendments were made at the A Committee. Because of the lack of support for a wide-reaching suitability standard, since none had existed before in most states, the Committee recommended a narrow model that addressed the area of most concern to regulators: the sale of annuities to seniors. The A Committee produced a new model in early 2003 and held open meetings and conference calls to solicit comments. The American Council of Life Insurers (ACLI), individual life insurance companies, consumer groups, the Financial Planning Association, the National Association of Insurance and Financial Advisors, The National Association of Securities Dealers (NASD), and others participated. The process resulted in this new model that was adopted at a conference call on July 21, 2003. The Executive Committee took up the model at a Sept. 3, 2003 conference call in response to a comment letter from the ACLI suggesting further amendments. The Executive Committee voted to add technical changes suggested by the ACLI to the draft.

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

The drafting process was open and the working group received comments from interested parties representing life insurance companies, consumer groups and producer groups, as well as from securities regulators. When the A Committee took on the drafting project, a hearing was held, comments solicited and an open meeting in Salt Lake City and several conference calls were held to discuss all concerns that were raised. Interested parties also submitted numerous drafting suggestions.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response)

There were many controversial items raised during the extensive drafting effort. The working group discussed whether to use the Unfair Trade Practices Act as authority for development of a regulation. Interested parties urged the working group to develop language specific to suitability of sales. This discussion also extended to whether to require a pattern of conduct, as in the Unfair Trade Practices Act, or whether a single violation was sufficient to invoke penalties. After a brief discussion on whether the Act might create a private cause of action, the working group adopted the position that had been taken during development of the Unfair Trade Practices Act and included specific language stating that this Act should not be construed to create a private cause of action. The working group noted that some states might already have the authority to adopt the regulation.

One of the most controversial issues was balancing the responsibilities of the insurers and the producers. The working group was convinced that the proper balance was to require responsibility for both. The working group draft required the insurer to have standards for suitable recommendations in place and a system designed to make sure that producers know and follow those standards. The producer had a responsibility to follow the standards set by the insurer. One significant addition to the draft made by the A Committee was to add standards for mitigation of penalties if the producer and insurer work to right any wrongs done to a consumer.

Determining what standards to use was also the topic of extensive discussion. Insurers requested more specific guidance on how their standards should look so that they were reasonably assured that they were adequate. Regulators discussed using membership in an organization such as the Insurance Marketplace Standards Association as a standard, but rejected that approach. They also considered using the NASD standards. The draft adopted by the working group contained some of those concepts to assist insurers that already had extensive suitability standards for their variable life producers, so that they would not have to maintain two parallel structures. The approach taken by the A Committee follows the NASD standards much more closely.

Extensive discussion took place on whether the model should cover all recommendations or just recommendations that result in a sale. Ultimately the drafters settled on a focus on recommendations that result in sales. They expressed concern that all recommendations be suitable but recognized the record-keeping burden that would be imposed by extending the model to cover all recommendations.

Once the model was narrowed to apply only to sales of annuities to seniors, many of the issues that previously had been controversial no longer applied, such as many of the exemptions included in the earlier draft. However one new issue was whether the rules should apply to all transactions involving an annuity, or just a transaction where an annuity was being purchased. The language settled on refers to a purchase or exchange of an annuity.

The life insurance industry raised concerns about the various distribution systems when variable products were included. They expressed concern that some of the standards would not work as well when an independent broker/dealer was involved. Modifications to the draft were made to address the different distribution systems.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2008

MODEL REGULATION ON THE USE OF SENIOR-SPECIFIC CERTIFICATIONS AND PROFESSIONAL DESIGNATIONS IN THE SALE OF LIFE INSURANCE AND ANNUITIES (#278)

1. Description of the project, issues addressed, etc.

Recently, states have become aware of an ever-growing issue and possible fraudulent marketing and sales activity related to the use of senior-specific certifications and professional designations in the sale of life insurance and annuities to seniors. Individuals often boast designations and credentials using terms such as "certified", "accredited", "retirement planner", "senior advisor" or "senior consultant" to convince people they have special expertise to help seniors choose investment strategies. This may not be true in some cases. This model regulation establishes standards for the use of senior-specific certifications and professional designations by insurance producers in the sale of life insurance and annuities to all consumers regardless of age.

2. Name of group responsible for draft the model and states participating:

Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee

States Participating during the drafting process:

New York, Chair
Alabama
California
Connecticut
District of Columbia
Florida
Iowa
Minnesota
Missouri
Nebraska
Tennessee
Utah
Wisconsin

3. Project authorized by what charge and date first given to the group:

The following charge was given in 2008:

Consider the development of a new model regulation on the use of senior-specific certifications and professional designations in connection with an offer, sale or purchase of life insurance or an annuity to seniors or the provision of advice to seniors in connection with an offer, sale or purchase of life insurance or annuity; and in developing the model regulation, the Committee may consult with the market regulation committee, as it considers appropriate.

4. A general description of the drafting process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated.

The Committee reviewed and discussed each draft and the comments submitted on each draft. Each draft was distributed to over 150 interested parties and posted on the NAIC Web site. Interested parties that commented on the drafts included industry groups such as the American Council of Life Insurers (ACLI) and the National Association of Insurance and Financial Advisors (NAIFA); the American College; the North American Securities Administrators Association (NASAA); and consumer groups, such as the Center for Economic Justice (CEJ) and AARP.

5. A general description of the due process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited.

The Committee reviewed and discussed an initial draft of the proposed model during the 2008 Summer National Meeting. The Committee discussed subsequent drafts during conference calls on June 25, 2008 and July 15, 2008. Prior to each conference call, a draft of the proposed model was circulated to interested parties for comment and posted on the NAIC Web site. All written comments received were discussed by the Committee. Interested parties were given the opportunity to comment during each conference call as well.

6. A discussion of the significant issues (items of some controversy) raised during the due process and the group's response.

One issue that arose during the drafting process concerned the scope of the proposed model—whether it should apply to all consumers or limited to seniors. The Committee decided that it was appropriate to protect consumers regardless of age. A similar issue arose as to whether the proposed model should be more broadly drafted to apply to all certifications and professional designations and not limited to senior-specific certifications and professional designations. After discussion, the Committee decided that the current problems in the market involved senior-specific certifications and professional designations. As such, the model should be narrowly drafted to apply to these types of certifications and professional designations.

Another issue arose concerning a provision in the proposed model that would carve out certain academic degrees and job titles from falling within its scope. Questions were also raised about whether academic degrees needed to be included. After discussion, the Committee decided to retain the provision with two changes. First, the Committee decided to delete the references to academic degrees. Second, the Committee decided to add language qualifying this carve out such that it would not apply to job titles that are used in a manner that would confuse or mislead a reasonable consumer.

Finally, an issue arose as to whether the proposed model should apply to insurers. After discussion, the Committee agreed to remove insurers from the scope of the proposed model. The Committee decided that insurance regulators have other regulatory tools to prevent insurers from engaging in the marketing practices targeted in the proposed model. As such, their inclusion in the proposed model was not necessary.

7. Any other important information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard).

None.

INVESTMENTS OF INSURERS MODEL ACT
(Defined Limits Version)

ARTICLE I. GENERAL PROVISIONS

ARTICLE II. LIFE AND HEALTH INSURERS

ARTICLE III. PROPERTY AND CASUALTY, FINANCIAL GUARANTY AND MORTGAGE GUARANTY INSURERS

Statement of Principles

The development of regulation of the investments of insurers requires an analysis of the complexities, uncertainties, competitive forces and frequent changes in the investment markets and in the insurance business, the diversity among insurers, and the need for a balance among risk, reward and liquidity of an insurer's investments. It also requires an analysis of how to safeguard the financial condition of domestic insurers and at the same time to permit domestic insurers to be competitive with insurer's domiciled in other states and with other financial industries that operate under different regulatory regimes.

Each state is urged to determine through independent study which methods are best suited to its needs and whether its existing regulatory structure may be improved by using provisions of model laws recommended by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) or existing regulatory structures in other states or industries.

This model law is not considered by the NAIC to exhaust regulatory methods to address the regulation of investments of insurers. Nor is this model law recommended by the NAIC to be used as a standard for the examination of insurers unless substantially similar provisions are found in the statutes and regulations of the state of domicile of the insurer.

ARTICLE I. GENERAL PROVISIONS

Section 1. Purpose and Scope

A. Purpose

The purpose of this Act is to protect the interests of insureds by promoting insurer solvency and financial strength. This will be accomplished through the application of investment standards that facilitate a reasonable balance of the following objectives:

(1) To preserve principal;

(2) To assure reasonable diversification as to type of investment, issuer and credit quality; and

(3) To allow insurers to allocate investments in a manner consistent with principles of prudent investment management to achieve an adequate return so that obligations to insureds are adequately met and financial strength is sufficient to cover reasonably foreseeable contingencies.

B. Scope

This Act shall apply only to investments and investment practices of domestic insurers and United States branches of alien insurers entered through this state. This Act shall not apply to separate accounts of an insurer except to the extent that the provisions of [see Drafting Note 2] so provide.

Drafting Note: This Act does not define the types of insurers subject to its provisions, leaving this to other sections of the code since state laws treat insurers writing various lines of insurance differently. For example, if an entity is authorized to operate as a health maintenance organization, the state may provide additional investment authority commensurate to operating as a health maintenance organization.

Drafting Note: Insert a cross-reference to the section of the code governing separate accounts that states when the provisions of this Act are applicable to investments in separate accounts, either aggregated with an insurer's general account investments or treated as if the assets in each separate account were all of an insurer's admitted assets. Except to the extent specifically provided in that section, this Act has no application to the investments of separate accounts. If the code does not so provide, then Section 1B must be amended to provide that this Act does not apply to separate accounts.

Section 2. Definitions

For purposes of this Act:

A. "Acceptable collateral" means:

(1) As to securities lending transactions, and for the purpose of calculating counterparty exposure amount, cash, cash equivalents, letters of credit, direct obligations of, or securities that are fully guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the government of the United States or any agency of the United States, or by the Federal National Mortgage Association or the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation, and as to lending foreign securities, sovereign debt rated 1 by the SVO;

(2) As to reverse repurchase transactions, cash, cash equivalents and direct obligations of, or securities that are fully guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the government of the United States or an agency of the United States, or by the Federal National Mortgage Association or the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation; and

(3) As to repurchase transactions, cash and cash equivalents.

B. "Acceptable private mortgage insurance" means insurance written by a private insurer protecting a mortgage lender against loss occasioned by a mortgage loan default and issued by a licensed mortgage insurance company, with an SVO 1 designation or a rating issued by a nationally recognized statistical rating organization equivalent to an SVO 1 designation, that covers losses to an eighty percent (80%) loan-to-value ratio.

C. "Accident and health insurance" means protection which provides payment of benefits for covered sickness or accidental injury, excluding credit insurance, disability insurance, accidental death and dismemberment insurance and long-term care insurance.

D. (2) As realization on collateral for an obligation;

(3) In connection with an otherwise qualified investment or investment practice, as interest on or a dividend or other distribution related to the investment or investment practice or in connection with the refinancing of the investment, in each case for no additional or only nominal consideration;

(4) Under a lawful and bona fide agreement of recapitalization or voluntary or involuntary reorganization in connection with an investment held by the insurer; or

(5) Under a bulk reinsurance, merger or consolidation transaction approved by the commissioner if the assets constitute admissible investments for the ceding, merged or consolidated companies.

D. An investment or portion of an investment acquired by an insurer under Subsection C of this section shall become a nonadmitted asset three (3) years (or five (5) years in the case of mortgage loans and real estate) from the date of its acquisition, unless within that period the investment has become a qualified investment under a section of this Act other than Subsection C of this section, but an investment acquired under an agreement of bulk reinsurance, merger or consolidation may be qualified for a longer period if so provided in the plan for reinsurance, merger or consolidation as approved by the commissioner. Upon application by the insurer and a showing that the nonadmission of an asset held under Subsection C of this section would materially injure the interests of the insurer, the commissioner may extend the period for admissibility for an additional reasonable period of time.

E. Except as provided in Subsections F and H of this section, an investment shall qualify under this Act if, on the date the insurer committed to acquire the investment or on the date of its acquisition, it would have qualified under this Act. For the purposes of determining limitations contained in this Act, an insurer shall give appropriate recognition to any commitments to acquire investments.

F. (1) An investment held as an admitted asset by an insurer on the effective date of this Act which qualified under [insert reference to state's prior code provisions on insurer investments] shall remain qualified as an admitted asset under this Act.

(2) Each specific transaction constituting an investment practice of the type described in this Act that was lawfully entered into by an insurer and was in effect on the effective date of this Act shall continue to be permitted under this Act until its expiration or termination under its terms.

G. Unless otherwise specified, an investment limitation computed on the basis of an insurer's admitted assets or capital and surplus shall relate to the amount required to be shown on the statutory balance sheet of the insurer most recently required to be filed with the commissioner. For purposes of computing any limitation based upon admitted assets, the insurer shall deduct from the amount of its admitted assets the amount of the liability recorded on its statutory balance sheet for:

(1) The return of acceptable collateral received in a repurchase transaction or a securities lending transaction;

(2) Cash received in a dollar roll transaction; and

(3) The amount reported as borrowed money in the most recently filed financial statement to the extent not included in Paragraphs (1) and (2) of this subsection.

H. An investment qualified, in whole or in part, for acquisition or holding as an admitted asset may be qualified or requalified at the time of acquisition or a later date, in whole or in part, under any other section, if the relevant conditions contained in the other section are satisfied at the time of qualification or requalification.

I. An insurer shall maintain documentation demonstrating that investments were acquired in accordance with this Act, and specifying the section of this Act under which they were acquired.

J. An insurer shall not enter into an agreement to purchase securities in advance of their issuance for resale to the public as part of a distribution of the securities by the issuer or otherwise guarantee the distribution, except that an insurer may acquire privately placed securities with registration rights.

K. Notwithstanding the provisions of this Act, the commissioner, for good cause, may order under the state's administrative procedures or equivalent, an insurer to nonadmit, limit, dispose of, withdraw from or discontinue an investment or investment practice. The authority of the commissioner under this subsection is in addition to any other authority of the commissioner.

L. Insurance futures and insurance futures options are not considered investments or investment practices for purposes of this Act.

Section 4. Authorization of Investments by the Board of Directors

A. An insurer's board of directors shall adopt a written plan for acquiring and holding investments and for engaging in investment practices that specifies guidelines as to the quality, maturity and diversification of investments and other specifications including investment strategies intended to assure that the investments and investment practices are appropriate for the business conducted by the insurer, its liquidity needs and its capital and surplus. The board shall review and assess the insurer's technical investment and administrative capabilities and expertise before adopting a written plan concerning an investment strategy or investment practice.

B. Investments acquired and held under this Act shall be acquired and held under the supervision and direction of the board of directors of the insurer. The board of directors shall evidence by formal resolution, at least annually, that it has determined whether all investments have been made in accordance with delegations, standards, limitations and investment objectives prescribed by the board or a committee of the board charged with the responsibility to direct its investments.

C. On no less than a quarterly basis, and more often if deemed appropriate, an insurer's board of directors or committee of the board of directors shall:

(1) Receive and review a summary report on the insurer's investment portfolio, its investment activities and investment practices engaged in under delegated authority, in order to determine whether the investment activity of the insurer is consistent with its written plan; and

(2) Review and revise, as appropriate, the written plan.

D. In discharging its duties under this section, the board of directors shall require that records of any authorizations or approvals, other documentation as the board may require and reports of any action taken under authority delegated under the plan referred to in Subsection A of this section shall be made available on a regular basis to the board of directors.

E. In discharging their duties under this section, the directors of an insurer shall perform their duties in good faith and with that degree of care that ordinarily prudent individuals in like positions would use under similar circumstances.

(ii) Completing those specific projects or activities of the partnership in which the insurer was a general partner as of the effective date of this Act that had been undertaken as of that date; or

(iii) Making capital improvements to property owned by the partnership on the effective date of this Act if the insurer was a general partner as of that date; or

(c) In accordance with Section 3C;

(2) This subsection shall not prohibit a subsidiary or other affiliate of the insurer from becoming a general partner; or

(2) Issuance to the insurer's officers, employees or agents in connection with a plan approved by the commissioner for converting a publicly held insurer into a privately held insurer under [insert reference to the section of the code providing for approval of a conversion plan] or in connection with other stock option and employee benefit plans; or

(3) This subsection does not permit an investment that is prohibited by Section 5.

(4) This subsection does not apply to a transaction between an insurer and any of its subsidiaries or affiliates that is entered into in compliance with the [insert reference to holding company law], other than a transaction between an insurer and its officer or director.

B. An insurer may make, without the prior written approval of the commissioner:

(1) Policy loans in accordance with the terms of the policy or contract and Section 19;

(2) Advances to officers or directors for expenses reasonably expected to be incurred in the ordinary course of the insurer's business or guarantees associated with credit or charge cards issued or credit extended for the purpose of financing these expenses;

(3) Loans secured by the principal residence of an existing or new officer of the insurer made in connection with the officer's relocation at the insurer's request, if the loans comply with the requirements of Section 15 or 28 and the terms and conditions otherwise are the same as those generally available from unaffiliated third parties;

An accident and health insurer shall not be subject to this section but shall be subject to the same aggregate limitation on equity interests as a property and casualty insurer under Section 26 and also to the provisions of Section 22 of this Act.

C. An insurer shall not acquire under this section any investments that the insurer may acquire under Section 15.

D. An insurer shall not short sell equity investments unless the insurer covers the short sale by owning the equity investment or an unrestricted right to the equity instrument exercisable within six (6) months of the short sale.

Section 14. Tangible Personal Property Under Lease

A. (1) Subject to the limitations of Section 10, an insurer may acquire tangible personal property or equity interests therein located or used wholly or in part within a domestic jurisdiction either directly or indirectly through limited partnership interests and general partnership interests not otherwise prohibited by Section 5D, joint ventures, stock of an investment subsidiary or membership interests in a limited liability company, trust certificates or other similar instruments.

(2) Investments acquired under Paragraph (1) of this subsection shall be eligible only if:

(a) The property is subject to a lease or other agreement with a person whose rated credit instruments in the amount of the purchase price of the personal property the insurer could then acquire under Section 11; and

(b) The lease or other agreement provides the insurer the right to receive rental, purchase or other fixed payments for the use or purchase of the property, and the aggregate value of the payments, together with the estimated residual value of the property at the end of its useful life and the estimated tax benefits to the insurer resulting from ownership of the property, shall be adequate to return the cost of the insurer's investment in the property, plus a return deemed adequate by the insurer.

B. The insurer shall compute the amount of each investment under this section on the basis of the out-of-pocket purchase price and applicable related expenses paid by the insurer for the investment, net of each borrowing made to finance the purchase price and expenses, to the extent the borrowing is without recourse to the insurer.

C. An insurer shall not acquire an investment under this section if, as a result of and after giving effect to the investment, the aggregate amount of all investments then held by the insurer under this section would exceed:

(1) Two percent (2%) of its admitted assets ; or

(2) One half of one percent (.5%) of its admitted assets as to any single item of tangible personal property.

D. For purposes of determining compliance with the limitations of Section 10, investments acquired by an insurer under this section shall be aggregated with those acquired under Section 11, and each lessee of the property under a lease referred to in this section shall be deemed the issuer of an obligation in the amount of the investment of the insurer in the property determined as provided in Subsection B of this section.

E. Nothing in this section is applicable to tangible personal property lease arrangements between an insurer and its subsidiaries and affiliates under a cost sharing arrangement or agreement permitted under [insert reference to holding company law].

Section 15. Mortgage Loans and Real Estate

A. Mortgage Loans

(l) Subject to the limitations of Section 10, an insurer may acquire, either directly, indirectly through limited partnership interests and general partnership interests not otherwise prohibited by Section 5D, joint ventures, stock of an investment subsidiary or membership interests in a limited liability company, trust certificates, or other similar instruments, obligations secured by mortgages on real estate situated within a domestic jurisdiction, but a mortgage loan which is secured by other than a first lien shall not be acquired unless the insurer is the holder of the first lien. The obligations held by the insurer and any obligations with an equal lien priority, shall not, at the time of acquisition of the obligation, exceed:

(a) Ninety percent (90%) of the fair market value of the real estate, if the mortgage loan is secured by a purchase money mortgage or like security received by the insurer upon disposition of the real estate;

(b) Eighty percent (80%) of the fair market value of the real estate, if the mortgage loan requires immediate scheduled payment in periodic installments of principal and interest, has an amortization period of thirty (30) years or less and periodic payments made no less frequently than annually. Each periodic payment shall be sufficient to assure that at all times the outstanding principal balance of the mortgage loan shall be not greater than the outstanding principal balance that would be outstanding under a mortgage loan with the same original principal balance, with the same interest rate and requiring equal payments of principal and interest with the same frequency over the same amortization period. Mortgage loans permitted under this subsection are permitted notwithstanding the fact that they provide for a payment of the principal balance prior to the end of the period of amortization of the loan. For residential mortgage loans, the eighty percent (80%) limitation may be increased to ninety-seven percent (97%) if acceptable private mortgage insurance has been obtained; or

(c) Seventy-five percent (75%) of the fair market value of the real estate for mortgage loans that do not meet the requirements of Subparagraphs (a) or (b) of this paragraph.

(2) For purposes of Paragraph (1) of this subsection, the amount of an obligation required to be included in the calculation of the loan-to-value ratio may be reduced to the extent the obligation is insured by the Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed by the Administrator of Veterans Affairs, or their successors.

(3) A mortgage loan that is held by an insurer under Section 3F or acquired under this section and is restructured in a manner that meets the requirements of a restructured mortgage loan in accordance with the NAIC Accounting Practices and Procedures Manual or successor publication shall continue to qualify as a mortgage loan under this Act.

(4) Subject to the limitations of Section 10, credit lease transactions that do not qualify for investment under Section 11 with the following characteristics shall be exempt from the provisions of Paragraph (1) of this subsection:

(a) The loan amortizes over the initial fixed lease term at least in an amount sufficient so that the loan balance at the end of the lease term does not exceed the original appraised value of the real estate ;

(b) The lease payments cover or exceed the total debt service over the life of the loan;

(c) A tenant or its affiliated entity whose rated credit instruments have a SVO 1 or 2 designation or a comparable rating from a nationally recognized statistical rating organization recognized by the SVO as a full faith and credit obligation to make the lease payments;

(d) The insurer holds or is the beneficial holder of a first lien mortgage on the real estate;

(e) The expenses of the real estate are passed through to the tenant, excluding exterior, structural, parking and heating, ventilation and air conditioning replacement expenses, unless annual escrow contributions, from cash flows derived from the lease payments, cover the expense shortfall; and

(f) There is a perfected assignment of the rents due pursuant to the lease to, or for the benefit of, the insurer.

B. Income Producing Real Estate

(1) An insurer may acquire, manage and dispose of real estate situated in a domestic jurisdiction either directly or indirectly through limited partnership interests and general partnership interests not otherwise prohibited by Section 5D, joint ventures, stock of an investment subsidiary or membership interests in a limited liability company, trust certificates, or other similar instruments. The real estate shall be income producing or intended for improvement or development for investment purposes under an existing program (in which case the real estate shall be deemed to be income producing).

(2) The real estate may be subject to mortgages, liens or other encumbrances, the amount of which shall, to the extent that the obligations secured by the mortgages, liens or encumbrances are without recourse to the insurer, be deducted from the amount of the investment of the insurer in the real estate for purposes of determining compliance with Subsections D(2) and D(3) of this section.

C. Real Estate for the Accommodation of Business

An insurer may acquire, manage, and dispose of real estate for the convenient accommodation of the insurer's (which may include its affiliates) business operations, including home office, branch office and field office operations.

(1) Real estate acquired under this subsection may include excess space for rent to others, if the excess space, valued at its fair market value, would otherwise be a permitted investment under Subsection B of this section and is so qualified by the insurer;

(2) The real estate acquired under this subsection may be subject to one or more mortgages, liens or other encumbrances, the amount of which shall, to the extent that the obligations secured by the mortgages, liens or encumbrances are without recourse to the insurer, be deducted from the amount of the investment of the insurer in the real estate for purposes of determining compliance with Subsection D(4) of this section; and

(3) For purposes of this subsection, business operations shall not include that portion of real estate used for the direct provision of health care services by an accident and health insurer for its insureds. An insurer may acquire real estate used for these purposes under Subsection B of this section.

D. Quantitative Limitations

(1) An insurer shall not acquire an investment under Subsection A of this section if, as a result of and after giving effect to the investment, the aggregate amount of all investments then held by the insurer under Subsection A of this section would exceed:

(a) One percent (1%) of its admitted assets in mortgage loans covering any one secured location;

(b) One quarter of one percent (.25%) of its admitted assets in construction loans covering any one secured location; or

(c) Two percent (2%) of its admitted assets in construction loans in the aggregate.

(2) An insurer shall not acquire an investment under Subsection B of this section if, as a result of and after giving effect to the investment and any outstanding guarantees made by the insurer in connection with the investment, the aggregate amount of investments then held by the insurer under Subsection B of this section plus the guarantees then outstanding would exceed:

(a) One percent (1%) of its admitted assets in one parcel or group of contiguous parcels of real estate, except that this limitation shall not apply to that portion of real estate used for the direct provision of health care services by an accident and health insurer for its insureds, such as hospitals, medical clinics, medical professional buildings or other health facilities used for the purpose of providing health services; or

(b) Fifteen percent (15%) of its admitted assets in the aggregate, but not more than five percent (5%) of its admitted assets as to properties that are to be improved or developed.

(3) An insurer shall not acquire an investment under Subsections A or B of this section if, as a result of and after giving effect to the investment and any guarantees made by the insurer in connection with the investment, the aggregate amount of all investments then held by the insurer under Subsections A and B of this section plus the guarantees then outstanding would exceed forty-five percent (45%) of its admitted assets. However, an insurer may exceed this limitation by no more than thirty percent (30%) of its admitted assets if:

(a) This increased amount is invested only in residential mortgage loans;

(b) The insurer has no more than ten percent (10%) of its admitted assets invested in mortgage loans other than residential mortgage loans;

(c) The loan-to-value ratio of each residential mortgage loan does not exceed sixty percent (60%) at the time the mortgage loan is qualified under this increased authority, and the fair market value is supported by an appraisal no more than two (2) years old, prepared by an independent appraiser;

(d) A single mortgage loan qualified under this increased authority shall not exceed one half of one percent (0.5%) of its admitted assets;

(e) The insurer files with the commissioner, and receives approval from the commissioner for, a plan that is designed to result in a portfolio of residential mortgage loans that is sufficiently geographically diversified; and

(f) The insurer agrees to file annually with the commissioner records that demonstrate that its portfolio of residential mortgage loans is geographically diversified in accordance with the plan.

(4) The limitations of Section 10 shall not apply to an insurer's acquisition of real estate under Subsection C of this section. An insurer shall not acquire real estate under Subsection C of this section if, as a result of and after giving effect to the acquisition, the aggregate amount of real estate then held by the insurer under Subsection C of this section would exceed ten percent (10%) of its admitted assets. With the permission of the commissioner, additional amounts of real estate may be acquired under Subsection C of this section.

Section 16. Securities Lending, Repurchase, Reverse Repurchase and Dollar Roll Transactions

An insurer may enter into securities lending, repurchase, reverse repurchase and dollar roll transactions with business entities, subject to the following requirements:

A. The insurer's board of directors shall adopt a written plan that is consistent with the requirements of the written plan in Section 4A that specifies guidelines and objectives to be followed, such as:

(1) A description of how cash received will be invested or used for general corporate purposes of the insurer;

(2) Operational procedures to manage interest rate risk, counterparty default risk, the conditions under which proceeds from repurchase transactions may be used in the ordinary course of business and the use of acceptable collateral in a manner that reflects the liquidity needs of the transaction; and

(3) The extent to which the insurer may engage in these transactions.

B. The insurer shall enter into a written agreement for all transactions authorized in this section other than dollar roll transactions. The written agreement shall require that each transaction terminate no more than one year from its inception or upon the earlier demand of the insurer. The agreement shall be with the business entity counterparty, but for securities lending transactions, the agreement may be with an agent acting on behalf of the insurer, if the agent is a qualified business entity, and if the agreement:

(1) Requires the agent to enter into separate agreements with each counterparty that are consistent with the requirements of this section; and

(2) Prohibits securities lending transactions under the agreement with the agent or its affiliates.

C. Cash received in a transaction under this section shall be invested in accordance with this Act and in a manner that recognizes the liquidity needs of the transaction or used by the insurer for its general corporate purposes. For so long as the transaction remains outstanding, the insurer, its agent or custodian shall maintain, as to acceptable collateral received in a transaction under this section, either physically or through the book entry systems of the Federal Reserve, Depository Trust Company, Participants Trust Company or other securities depositories approved by the commissioner:

(1) Possession of the acceptable collateral;

(2) A perfected security interest in the acceptable collateral; or

(3) In the case of a jurisdiction outside of the United States, title to, or rights of a secured creditor to, the acceptable collateral.

D. The limitations of Sections 10 and 17 shall not apply to the business entity counterparty exposure created by transactions under this section. For purposes of calculations made to determine compliance with this subsection, no effect will be given to the insurer's future obligation to resell securities, in the case of a reverse repurchase transaction, or to repurchase securities, in the case of a repurchase transaction. An insurer shall not enter into a transaction under this section if, as a result of and after giving effect to the transaction:

(1) The aggregate amount of securities then loaned, sold to or purchased from any one business entity counterparty under this section would exceed five percent (5%) of its admitted assets. In calculating the amount sold to or purchased from a business entity counterparty under repurchase or reverse repurchase transactions, effect may be given to netting provisions under a master written agreement; or

(2) The aggregate amount of all securities then loaned, sold to or purchased from all business entities under this section would exceed forty percent (40%) of its admitted assets.

E. In a securities lending transaction, the insurer shall receive acceptable collateral having a market value as of the transaction date at least equal to 102 percent of the market value of the securities loaned by the insurer in the transaction as of that date. If at any time the market value of the acceptable collateral is less than the market value of the loaned securities, the business entity counterparty shall be obligated to deliver additional acceptable collateral, the market value of which, together with the market value of all acceptable collateral then held in connection with the transaction, at least equals 102 percent of the market value of the loaned securities.

F. In a repurchase transaction, other than a dollar roll transaction, the insurer shall receive acceptable collateral having a market value as of the transaction date at least equal to ninety-five percent (95%) of the market value of the securities transferred by the insurer in the transaction as of that date. If at any time the market value of the acceptable collateral is less than ninety-five percent (95%) of the market value of the securities so transferred, the business entity counterparty shall be obligated to deliver additional acceptable collateral, the market value of which, together with the market value of all acceptable collateral then held in connection with the transaction, at least equals ninety-five percent (95%) of the market value of the transferred securities.

G. In a dollar roll transaction, the insurer shall receive cash in an amount at least equal to the market value of the securities transferred by the insurer in the transaction as of the transaction date.

H. In a reverse repurchase transaction, the insurer shall receive as acceptable collateral transferred securities having a market value at least equal to 102 percent of the purchase price paid by the insurer for the securities. If at any time the market value of the acceptable collateral is less than 100 percent of the purchase price paid by the insurer, the business entity counterparty shall be obligated to provide additional acceptable collateral, the market value of which, together with the market value of all acceptable collateral then held in connection with the transaction, at least equals 102 percent of the purchase price. Securities acquired by an insurer in a reverse repurchase transaction shall not be sold in a repurchase transaction, loaned in a securities lending transaction or otherwise pledged.

Drafting Note: Subsections E, F, and H of this section contain requirements that at the time of drafting this model act were contained in the Purposes and Procedures of the Investmeent Analysis Office. However, concomitant with the drafting of this model act, a separate task force was considering a revised publication which did not contain these requirements inasmuch as the SVO considered these requirements as accounting-type rules which were deemed not suitable to such a publication. Moreover, another working group was developing a draft of a revised accounting manual but had not considered proposing separate accounting guidance regarding these requirements. Instead, the accounting manual implicitly referred to the requirements stipulated in this model act. Pending the results of consideration of these requirements by the three groups, in concert, these requirements have been included in this model act. If after due consideration, these requirements are included in the revised accounting manual as representative of statutory accounting principles or, in the alternative, are inserted in the revised Purposes and Procedures of the Investment Analysis Office, then States may opt not to codify these requirements within their insurer investment code.

Section 17. Foreign Investments and Foreign Currency Exposure

A. Subject to the limitations of Section 10, an insurer may acquire foreign investments, or engage in investment practices with persons of or in foreign jurisdictions, of substantially the same types as those that an insurer is permitted to acquire under this Act, other than of the type permitted under Section 12, if, as a result and after giving effect to the investment:

(1) The aggregate amount of foreign investments then held by the insurer under this subsection does not exceed twenty percent (20%) of its admitted assets; and

(2) The aggregate amount of foreign investments then held by the insurer under this subsection in a single foreign jurisdiction does not exceed ten percent (10%) of its admitted assets as to a foreign jurisdiction that has a sovereign debt rating of SVO 1 or three percent (3%) of its admitted assets as to any other foreign jurisdiction.

B. Subject to the limitations of Section 10, an insurer may acquire investments, or engage in investment practices denominated in foreign currencies, whether or not they are foreign investments acquired under Subsection A of this section, or additional foreign currency exposure as a result of the termination or expiration of a hedging transaction with respect to investments denominated in a foreign currency, if:

(1) The aggregate amount of investments then held by the insurer under this subsection denominated in foreign currencies does not exceed ten percent (10%) of its admitted assets; and

(2) The aggregate amount of investments then held by the insurer under this subsection denominated in the foreign currency of a single foreign jurisdiction does not exceed ten percent (10%) of its admitted assets as to a foreign jurisdiction that has a sovereign debt rating of SVO 1 or three percent (3%) of its admitted assets as to any other foreign jurisdiction.

(3) However, an investment shall not be considered denominated in a foreign currency if the acquiring insurer enters into one or more contracts in transactions permitted under Section 18 and the business entity counterparty agrees under the contract or contracts to exchange all payments made on the foreign currency denominated investment for United States currency at a rate which effectively insulates the investment cash flows against future changes in currency exchange rates during the period the contract or contracts are in effect.

C. In addition to investments permitted under Subsections A and B of this section, an insurer that is authorized to do business in a foreign jurisdiction, and that has outstanding insurance, annuity or reinsurance contracts on lives or risks resident or located in that foreign jurisdiction and denominated in foreign currency of that jurisdiction, may acquire foreign investments respecting that foreign jurisdiction, and may acquire investments denominated in the currency of that jurisdiction, subject to the limitations of Section 10. However, investments made under this subsection in obligations of foreign governments, their political subdivisions and government sponsored enterprises shall not be subject to the limitations of Section 10 if those investments carry an SVO rating of 1 or 2. The aggregate amount of investments acquired by the insurer under this subsection shall not exceed the greater of:

(1) The amount the insurer is required by the law of the foreign jurisdiction to invest in the foreign jurisdiction; or

(2) One hundred fifteen percent (115%) of the amount of its reserves, net of reinsurance, and other obligations under the contracts on lives or risks resident or located in the foreign jurisdiction.

D. In addition to investments permitted under Subsections A and B of this section, an insurer that is not authorized to do business in a foreign jurisdiction, but which has outstanding insurance, annuity or reinsurance contracts on lives or risks resident or located in that foreign jurisdiction and denominated in foreign currency of that jurisdiction, may acquire foreign investments respecting that foreign jurisdiction, and may acquire investments denominated in the currency of that jurisdiction subject to the limitations of Section 10. However, investments made under this subsection in obligations of foreign governments, their political subdivisions and government sponsored enterprises shall not be subject to the limitations of Section 10 if those investments carry an SVO rating of 1 or 2. The aggregate amount of investments acquired by the insurer under this subsection shall not exceed 105 percent of the amount of its reserves, net of reinsurance, and other obligations under the contracts on lives or risks resident or located in the foreign jurisdiction.

E. Investments acquired under this section shall be aggregated with investments of the same types made under all other sections of this Act, and in a similar manner, for purposes of determining compliance with the limitations, if any, contained in the other sections. Investments in obligations of foreign governments, their political subdivisions and government sponsored enterprises of these persons, except for those exempted under Subsections C and D of this section, shall be subject to the limitations of Section 10.

Section 18. Derivative Transactions

An insurer may, directly or indirectly through an investment subsidiary, engage in derivative transactions under this section under the following conditions :

A. General Conditions

(1) An insurer may use derivative instruments under this section to engage in hedging transactions and certain income generation transactions, as these terms may be further defined in regulations promulgated by the commissioner.

(2) An insurer shall be able to demonstrate to the commissioner the intended hedging characteristics and the ongoing effectiveness of the derivative transaction or combination of the transactions through cash flow testing or other appropriate analyses.

B. Limitations on Hedging Transactions

An insurer may enter into hedging transactions under this section if, as a result of and after giving effect to the transaction:

(1) The aggregate statement value of options, caps, floors and warrants not attached to another financial instrument purchased and used in hedging transactions does not exceed seven and one half percent (7.5%) of its admitted assets;

(2) The aggregate statement value of options, caps and floors written in hedging transactions does not exceed three percent (3%) of its admitted assets; and

(3) The aggregate potential exposure of collars, swaps, forwards and futures used in hedging transactions does not exceed six and one-half percent (6.5%) of its admitted assets.

C. Limitations on Income Generation Transactions

An insurer may only enter into the following types of income generation transactions if as a result of and after giving effect to the transactions, the aggregate statement value of the fixed income assets that are subject to call or that generate the cash flows for payments under the caps or floors, plus the face value of fixed income securities underlying a derivative instrument subject to call, plus the amount of the purchase obligations under the puts, does not exceed ten percent (10%) of its admitted assets:

(1) Sales of covered call options on non-callable fixed income securities, callable fixed income securities if the option expires by its terms prior to the end of the noncallable period or derivative instruments based on fixed income securities;

(2) Sales of covered call options on equity securities, if the insurer holds in its portfolio, or can immediately acquire through the exercise of options, warrants or conversion rights already owned, the equity securities subject to call during the complete term of the call option sold;

(3) Sales of covered puts on investments that the insurer is permitted to acquire under this Act, if the insurer has escrowed, or entered into a custodian agreement segregating, cash or cash equivalents with a market value equal to the amount of its purchase obligations under the put during the complete term of the put option sold; or

(4) Sales of covered caps or floors, if the insurer holds in its portfolio the investments generating the cash flow to make the required payments under the caps or floors during the complete term that the cap or floor is outstanding.

D. Counterparty Exposure

An insurer shall include all counterparty exposure amounts in determining compliance with the limitations of Section 10.

E. Additional Transactions

Pursuant to regulations promulgated under Section 8, the commissioner may approve additional transactions involving the use of derivative instruments in excess of the limits of Subsection B of this section or for other risk management purposes under regulations promulgated by the commissioner, but replication transactions shall not be permitted for other than risk management purposes.

Section 19. Policy Loans

A life insurer may lend to a policyholder on the security of the cash surrender value of the policyholder's policy a sum not exceeding the legal reserve that the insurer is required to maintain on the policy.

Section 20. Additional Investment Authority

A. Solely for the purpose of acquiring investments that exceed the quantitative limitations of Sections 10 through 17, an insurer may acquire under this subsection an investment, or engage in investment practices described in Section 16, but an insurer shall not acquire an investment, or engage in investment practices described in Section 16, under this subsection if, as a result of and after giving effect to the transaction:

(1) The aggregate amount of investments then held by an insurer under this subsection would exceed three percent (3%) of its admitted assets; or

(2) The aggregate amount of investments as to one limitation in Sections 10 through 17 then held by the insurer under this subsection would exceed one percent (1%) of its admitted assets.

B. (1) In addition to the authority provided under Subsection A of this section, an insurer may acquire under this subsection an investment of any kind, or engage in investment practices described in Section 16, that are not specifically prohibited by this Act, without regard to the categories, conditions, standards or other limitations of Sections 10 through 17 if, as a result of and after giving effect to the transaction, the aggregate amount of investments then held under this subsection would not exceed the lesser of:

(a) Ten percent (10%) of its admitted assets; or

(b) Seventy-five percent (75%) of its capital and surplus.

(2) However, an insurer shall not acquire any investment or engage in any investment practice under this subsection if, as a result of and after giving effect to the transaction, the aggregate amount of all investments in any one person then held by the insurer under this subsection would exceed three percent (3%) of its admitted assets.

C. In addition to the investments acquired under Subsections A and B of this section, an insurer may acquire under this subsection an investment of any kind, or engage in investment practices described in Section 16, that are not specifically prohibited by this Act without regard to any limitations of Sections 10 through 17 if:

(1) The commissioner grants prior approval;

(2) The insurer demonstrates that its investments are being made in a prudent manner and that the additional amounts will be invested in a prudent manner; and

(3) As a result of and after giving effect to the transaction the aggregate amount of investments then held by the insurer under this subsection does not exceed the greater of:

(a) Twenty-five percent (25%) of its capital and surplus; or

(b) One hundred percent (100%) of capital and surplus less ten percent (10%) of its admitted assets.

D. An investment prohibited under Section 5, not permitted under Section 18 or additional derivative instruments acquired under Section 18 shall not be acquired under this section.

ARTICLE III. PROPERTY AND CASUALTY, FINANCIAL GUARANTY AND MORTGAGE GUARANTY INSURERS

Section 21. Applicability

This Article shall apply to the investments and investment practices of property and casualty, financial guaranty and mortgage guaranty insurers, subject to the provisions of Section 1B.

Section 22. Reserve Requirements

A. Reserve Requirements

(1) Subject to all other limitations and requirements of this Act, a property and casualty, financial guaranty, mortgage guaranty or accident and health insurer shall maintain an amount at least equal to one hundred percent (100%) of adjusted loss reserves and loss adjustment expense reserves, one hundred percent (100%) of adjusted unearned premium reserves and one hundred percent (100%) of statutorily required policy and contract reserves in:

(a) Cash and cash equivalents;

(b) High and medium grade investments that qualify under Sections 24 or 25;

(c) Equity interests that qualify under Section 26 and that are traded on a qualified exchange;

(d) Investments of the type set forth in Section 30 if the investments are rated in the highest generic rating category by a nationally recognized statistical rating organization recognized by the SVO for rating foreign jurisdictions and if any foreign currency exposure is effectively hedged through the maturity date of the investments;

(e) Qualifying investments of the type set forth in Subparagraphs (b), (c) or (d) of this paragraph that are acquired under Section 32;

(f) Interest and dividends receivable on qualifying investments of the type set forth in Subparagraphs (a) through (e) of this subsection; or

(g) Reinsurance recoverable on paid losses.

(2) Reserve Requirement Amount

(a) For purposes of determining the amount of assets to be maintained under this subsection, the calculation of adjusted loss reserves and loss adjustment expense reserves, adjusted unearned premium reserves and statutorily required policy and contract reserves shall be based on the amounts reported as of the most recent annual or quarterly statement date.

(b) Adjusted loss reserves and loss adjustment expense reserves shall be equal to the sum of the amounts derived from the following calculations:

(i) The result of each amount reported by the insurer as losses and loss adjustment expenses unpaid for each accident year for each individual line of business; multiplied by

(ii) The discount factor that is applicable to the line of business and accident year published by the Internal Revenue Service under Internal Revenue Code Section 846 (26 U.S.C. § 846), as amended, for the calendar year that corresponds to the most recent annual statement of the insurer; minus

(iii) Accrued retrospective premiums discounted by an average discount factor. The discount factor shall be calculated by dividing the losses and loss adjustment expenses unpaid after discounting (the product of Items (i) and (ii) in this subparagraph) by loss and loss adjustment expense reserves before discounting Item (i) of this subparagraph.

(iv) For purposes of these calculations, the losses and loss adjustment expenses unpaid shall be determined net of anticipated salvage and subrogation, and gross of any discount for the time value of money or tabular discount.

(c) Adjusted unearned premium reserves shall be equal to the result of the following calculation:

(i) The amount reported by the insurer as unearned premium reserves; minus

(ii) The admitted asset amounts reported by the insurer as:

(I) Premiums in and agents' balances in the course of collection, accident and health premiums due and unpaid and uncollected premiums for accident and health premiums;

(II) Premiums, agents' balances and installments booked but deferred and not yet due; and

(III) Bills receivable, taken for premium.

Drafting Note: The amounts to be subtracted are the amounts allowed to be reported as admitted assets on lines 9.1, 9.2 and 11 of page 2 of the Property and Casualty Annual Statement, line 15 of page 2 of the Life and Accident and Health Annual Statement, or line 9 of the Hospital Medical and Dental Service or Indemnity Corporations Annual Statement in accordance with the applicable Annual Statement Instructions and the applicable Accounting Practices and Procedures Manual of the NAIC and like amounts reported in quarterly statements.

(d) Statutorily required policy and contract reserves also shall include, in the case of a financial guaranty insurer, the amounts required by [cite sections of the code that require contingency reserves and any other reserves that are not covered by the terms "loss reserves," "loss adjustment expense reserves" and "unearned premium reserves" for financial guaranty insurers] and, in the case of a mortgage guaranty insurer, the amounts required by [cite sections of the code that require contingency reserves and any other reserves that are not covered by the terms "loss reserves," "loss adjustment expense reserves" and "unearned premium reserves" for mortgage guaranty insurers] and, in the case of an accident and health insurer, the amounts required by [cite sections of the code that require additional or contingency reserves and any other reserves that are not covered by the terms "loss reserves," "loss adjustment expense reserves" and "unearned premium reserves" for accident and health insurers].

B. Monitoring and Reporting

A property and casualty, financial guaranty, mortgage guaranty or accident and health insurer shall supplement its annual statement with a reconciliation and summary of its assets and reserve requirements as required in Subsection A of this section. A reconciliation and summary showing that an insurer's assets as required in Subsection A of this section are greater than or equal to its undiscounted reserves referred to in Subsection A of this section shall be sufficient to satisfy this requirement. Upon prior notification, the commissioner may require an insurer to submit such a reconciliation and summary with any quarterly statement filed during the calendar year.

Drafting Note: The supplement to the annual statement is not intended to be a new exhibit to the NAIC Annual Statement blank. This filing is a state specific filing required by those states adopting this Model Act. Upon adoption by a significant number of states, a change to the NAIC Annual Statement blank to incorporate this exhibit may be considered.

C. Notification Requirements and Mandatory Safeguards

If a property and casualty, financial guaranty, mortgage guaranty or accident and health insurer's assets and reserves do not comply with Subsection A of this section, the insurer shall notify the commissioner immediately of the amount by which the reserve requirements exceed the annual statement value of the qualifying assets, explain why the deficiency exists and within thirty (30) days of the date of the notice propose a plan of action to remedy the deficiency.

D. Authority of the Commissioner

(1) If the commissioner determines that an insurer is not in compliance with Subsection A of this section, the commissioner shall require the insurer to eliminate the condition causing the noncompliance within a specified time from the date the notice of the commissioner's requirement is mailed or delivered to the insurer.

(2) If an insurer fails to comply with the commissioner's requirement under Paragraph (1) of this subsection, the insurer is deemed to be in hazardous financial condition, and the commissioner shall take one or more of the actions authorized by law as to insurers in hazardous financial condition.

Section 23. General Five Percent Diversification, Medium and Lower Grade Investments and Canadian Investments

A. General Five Percent Diversification

(2) This five percent (5%) limitation shall not apply to the aggregate amounts insured by a single financial guaranty insurer with the highest generic rating issued by a nationally recognized statistical rating organization.

(3) Asset-backed securities shall not be subject to the limitations of paragraph (1) of this subsection, however an insurer shall not acquire an asset-backed security if, as a result of and after giving effect to the investment, the aggregate amount of asset-backed securities secured by or evidencing an interest in a single asset or single pool of assets held by a trust or other business entity, then held by the insurer would exceed five percent (5%) of its admitted assets.

B. Medium and Lower Grade Investments

E. Subject to the limitations of Section 23 in addition to those investments eligible under Subsections A, B, C and D of this section, an insurer may acquire rated credit instruments that are not foreign investments.

F. An insurer shall not acquire special rated credit instruments under this section if, as a result of and after giving effect to the investment, the aggregate amount of special rated credit instruments then held by the insurer would exceed five percent (5%) of its admitted assets.

Drafting Note: In states which have not adopted Secondary Mortgage Market Enhancement Act of 1984, as amended (SMMEA) override legislation, obligations of Federal National Mortgage Association, Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation, and other mortgage-backed or mortgage related securities as defined in Section 106 of Title I of SMMEA (15 U.S.C. § 77r-1) may be invested in to the same extent as allowed under Section 24A, whether or not they are rated credit instruments authorized in Section 24A. Appropriate changes to Section 24 or other Sections of this Act may be necessary.

Section 25. Insurer Investment Pools

A. An insurer may acquire investments in investment pools that:

(1) Invest only in:

(a) Obligations that are rated 1 or 2 by the SVO or have an equivalent of an SVO 1 or 2 rating (or, in the absence of a 1 or 2 rating or equivalent rating, the issuer has outstanding obligations with an SVO 1 or 2 or equivalent rating) by a nationally recognized statistical rating organization recognized by the SVO and have:

(i) A remaining maturity of 397 days or less or a put that entitles the holder to receive the principal amount of the obligation which put may be exercised through maturity at specified intervals not exceeding 397 days; or

(ii) A remaining maturity of three (3) years or less and a floating interest rate that resets no less frequently than quarterly on the basis of a current short-term index (federal funds, prime rate, treasury bills, London InterBank Offered Rate (LIBOR) or commercial paper) and is subject to no maximum limit, if the obligations do not have an interest rate that varies inversely to market interest rate changes;

(b) Government money market mutual funds; or

(c) Securities lending, repurchase and reverse repurchase transactions that meet all the requirements of Section 29, except the quantitative limitations of Section 29D; or

(2) Invest only in investments which an insurer may acquire under this Act, if the insurer's proportionate interest in the amount invested in these investments does not exceed the applicable limits of this Act.

B. For an investment in an investment pool to be qualified under this Act, the investment pool shall not:

(1) Acquire securities issued, assumed, guaranteed or insured by the insurer or an affiliate of the insurer;

(2) Borrow or incur any indebtedness for borrowed money, except for securities lending and repurchase transactions that meet the requirements of Section 29 except the quantitative limitations of Section 29D; or

(3) Permit the aggregate value of securities then loaned or sold to, purchased from or invested in any one business entity under this section to exceed ten percent (10%) of the total assets of the investment pool.

C. The limitations of Section 23A shall not apply to an insurer's investment in an investment pool, however an insurer shall not acquire an investment in an investment pool under this section if, as a result of and after giving effect to the investment, the aggregate amount of investments then held by the insurer under this section:

(1) In any one investment pool would exceed ten percent (10%) of its admitted assets;

(2) In all investment pools investing in investments permitted under Subsection A(2) of this section would exceed twenty-five percent (25%) of its admitted assets; or

(3) In all investment pools would exceed forty percent (40%) of its admitted assets.

D. For an investment in an investment pool to be qualified under this Act, the manager of the investment pool shall:

(1) Be organized under the laws of the United States or a state and designated as the pool manager in a pooling agreement;

(2) Be the insurer, an affiliated insurer or a business entity affiliated with the insurer, a qualified bank, a business entity registered under the Investment Advisors Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. §§ 80a-1 et seq.), as amended or, in the case of a reciprocal insurer or interinsurance exchange, its attorney-in-fact, or in the case of a United States branch of an alien insurer, its United States manager or affiliates or subsidiaries of its United States manager;

(3) Compile and maintain detailed accounting records setting forth:

(a) The cash receipts and disbursements reflecting each participant's proportionate investment in the investment pool;

(b) A complete description of all underlying assets of the investment pool (including amount, interest rate, maturity date (if any) and other appropriate designations); and

(c) Other records which, on a daily basis, allow third parties to verify each participant's investment in the investment pool; and

(4) Maintain the assets of the investment pool in one or more accounts, in the name of or on behalf of the investment pool, under a custody agreement with a qualified bank. The custody agreement shall:

(a) State and recognize the claims and rights of each participant;

(b) Acknowledge that the underlying assets of the investment pool are held solely for the benefit of each participant in proportion to the aggregate amount of its investments in the investment pool; and

(c) Contain an agreement that the underlying assets of the investment pool shall not be commingled with the general assets of the custodian qualified bank or any other person.

E. The pooling agreement for each investment pool shall be in writing and shall provide that:

(1) An insurer and its affiliated insurers or, in the case of an investment pool investing solely in investments permitted under Subsection A(1) of this section, the insurer and its subsidiaries, affiliates or any pension or profit sharing plan of the insurer, its subsidiaries and affiliates or, in the case of a United States branch of an alien insurer, affiliates or subsidiaries of its United States manager, shall, at all times, hold one hundred percent (100%) of the interests in the investment pool;

(2) The underlying assets of the investment pool shall not be commingled with the general assets of the pool manager or any other person;

(3) In proportion to the aggregate amount of each pool participant's interest in the investment pool:

(a) Each participant owns an undivided interest in the underlying assets of the investment pool; and

(b) The underlying assets of the investment pool are held solely for the benefit of each participant;

(4) A participant, or in the event of the participant's insolvency, bankruptcy or receivership, its trustee, receiver or other successor-in-interest, may withdraw all or any portion of its investment from the investment pool under the terms of the pooling agreement;

(5) Withdrawals may be made on demand without penalty or other assessment on any business day, but settlement of funds shall occur within a reasonable and customary period thereafter not to exceed five (5) business days. Distributions under this paragraph shall be calculated in each case net of all then applicable fees and expenses of the investment pool. The pooling agreement shall provide that the pool manager shall distribute to a participant, at the discretion of the pool manager:

(a) In cash, the then fair market value of the participant's pro rata share of each underlying asset of the investment pool;

(b) In kind, a pro rata share of each underlying asset; or

(c) In a combination of cash and in kind distributions, a pro rata share in each underlying asset; and

(6) The pool manager shall make the records of the investment pool available for inspection by the commissioner.

Section 26. Equity Interests

A. Subject to the limitations of Section 23, an insurer may acquire equity interests in business entities organized under the laws any domestic jurisdiction.

B. An insurer shall not acquire an investment under this section if, as a result of and after giving effect to the investment, the aggregate amount of investments then held by the insurer under this section would exceed the greater of twenty-five percent (25%) of its admitted assets or one hundred percent (100%) of its surplus as regards policyholders.

C. An insurer shall not acquire under this section any investments that the insurer may acquire under Section 28.

D. An insurer shall not short sell equity investments unless the insurer covers the short sale by owning the equity investment or an unrestricted right to the equity instrument exercisable within six (6) months of the short sale.

Section 27. Tangible Personal Property Under Lease

A. (1) Subject to the limitations of Section 23, an insurer may acquire tangible personal property or equity interests therein located or used wholly or in part within a domestic jurisdiction either directly or indirectly through limited partnership interests and general partnership interests not otherwise prohibited by Section 5D, joint ventures, stock of an investment subsidiary or membership interests in a limited liability company, trust certificates or other similar instruments.

(2) Investments acquired under Paragraph (1) of this subsection shall be eligible only if:

(a) The property is subject to a lease or other agreement with a person whose rated credit instruments in the amount of the purchase price of the personal property the insurer could then acquire under Section 24; and

(b) The lease or other agreement provides the insurer the right to receive rental, purchase or other fixed payments for the use or purchase of the property, and the aggregate value of the payments, together with the estimated residual value of the property at the end of its useful life and the estimated tax benefits to the insurer resulting from ownership of the property, shall be adequate to return the cost of the insurer's investment in the property, plus a return deemed adequate by the insurer.

B. The insurer shall compute the amount of each investment under this section on the basis of the out-of-pocket purchase price and applicable related expenses paid by the insurer for the investment, net of each borrowing made to finance the purchase price and expenses, to the extent the borrowing is without recourse to the insurer.

C. An insurer shall not acquire an investment under this section if, as a result of and after giving effect to the investment, the aggregate amount of all investments then held by the insurer under this section would exceed:

(1) Two percent (2%) of its admitted assets; or

(2) One half of one percent (.5%) of its admitted assets as to any single item of tangible personal property.

D. For purposes of determining compliance with the limitations of Section 23, investments acquired by an insurer under this section shall be aggregated with those acquired under Section 24, and each lessee of the property under a lease referred to in this section shall be deemed the issuer of an obligation in the amount of the investment of the insurer in the property determined as provided in Subsection B of this section.

E. Nothing in this section is applicable to tangible personal property lease arrangements between an insurer and its subsidiaries and affiliates under a cost sharing arrangement or agreement permitted under [insert reference to holding company law].

Section 28. Mortgage Loans and Real Estate

A. Mortgage Loans

(l) Subject to the limitations of Section 23, an insurer may acquire, either directly, indirectly through limited partnership interests and general partnership interests not otherwise prohibited by Section 5D, joint ventures, stock of an investment subsidiary or membership interests in a limited liability company, trust certificates, or other similar instruments, obligations secured by mortgages on real estate situated within a domestic jurisdiction, but a mortgage loan which is secured by other than a first lien shall not be acquired unless the insurer is the holder of the first lien. The obligations held by the insurer and any obligations with an equal lien priority, shall not, at the time of acquisition of the obligation, exceed:

(a) Ninety percent (90%) of the fair market value of the real estate, if the mortgage loan is secured by a purchase money mortgage or like security received by the insurer upon disposition of the real estate;

(b) Eighty percent (80%) of the fair market value of the real estate, if the mortgage loan requires immediate scheduled payment in periodic installments of principal and interest, has an amortization period of thirty (30) years or less and periodic payments made no less frequently than annually. Each periodic payment shall be sufficient to assure that at all times the outstanding principal balance of the mortgage loan shall be not greater than the outstanding principal balance which would be outstanding under a mortgage loan with the same original principal balance, with the same interest rate and requiring equal payments of principal and interest with the same frequency over the same amortization period. Mortgage loans permitted under this subsection are permitted notwithstanding the fact that they provide for a payment of the principal balance prior to the end of the period of amortization of the loan. For residential mortgage loans, the eighty percent (80%) limitation may be increased to ninety-seven percent (97%) if acceptable private mortgage insurance has been obtained; or

(c) Seventy-five percent (75%) of the fair market value of the real estate for mortgage loans that do not meet the requirements of Subparagraphs (a) or (b) of this paragraph.

(2) For purposes of Paragraph (1) of this subsection, the amount of an obligation required to be included in the calculation of the loan-to-value ratio may be reduced to the extent the obligation is insured by the Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed by the Administrator of Veterans Affairs, or their successors.

(3) A mortgage loan that is held by an insurer under Section 3F or acquired under this section and is restructured in a manner that meets the requirements of a restructured mortgage loan in accordance with the NAIC Accounting Practices and Procedures Manual or successor publication shall continue to qualify as a mortgage loan under this Act.

(4) Subject to the limitations of Section 23, credit lease transactions that do not qualify for investment under Section 24 with the following characteristics shall be exempt from the provisions of Paragraph (1) of this subsection:

(a) The loan amortizes over the initial fixed lease term at least in an amount sufficient so that the loan balance at the end of the lease term does not exceed the original appraised value of the real estate;

(b) The lease payments cover or exceed the total debt service over the life of the loan;

(c) A tenant or its affiliated entity whose rated credit instruments have a SVO 1 or 2 designation or a comparable rating from a nationally recognized statistical rating organization recognized by the SVO has a full faith and credit obligation to make the lease payments;

(d) The insurer holds or is the beneficial holder of a first lien mortgage on the real estate;

(e) The expenses of the real estate are passed through to the tenant, excluding exterior, structural, parking and heating, ventilation and air conditioning replacement expenses, unless annual escrow contributions, from cash flows derived from the lease payments, cover the expense shortfall; and

(f) There is a perfected assignment of the rents due pursuant to the lease to, or for the benefit of, the insurer.

B. Income Producing Real Estate

(1) An insurer may acquire, manage and dispose of real estate situated in a domestic jurisdiction either directly or indirectly through limited partnership interests and general partnership interests not otherwise prohibited by Section 5D, joint ventures, stock of an investment subsidiary or membership interests in a limited liability company, trust certificates, or other similar instruments. The real estate shall be income producing or intended for improvement or development for investment purposes under an existing program (in which case the real estate shall be deemed to be income producing).

(2) The real estate may be subject to mortgages, liens or other encumbrances, the amount of which shall, to the extent that the obligations secured by the mortgages, liens or encumbrances are without recourse to the insurer, be deducted from the amount of the investment of the insurer in the real estate for purposes of determining compliance with Subsections D(2) and D(3) of this section.

C. Real Estate for the Accommodation of Business

An insurer may acquire, manage, and dispose of real estate for the convenient accommodation of the insurer's (which may include its affiliates) business operations, including home office, branch office and field office operations.

(1) Real estate acquired under this subsection may include excess space for rent to others, if the excess space, valued at its fair market value, would otherwise be a permitted investment under Subsection B of this section and is so qualified by the insurer;

(2) The real estate acquired under this subsection may be subject to one or more mortgages, liens or other encumbrances, the amount of which shall, to the extent that the obligations secured by the mortgages, liens or encumbrances are without recourse to the insurer, be deducted from the amount of the investment of the insurer in the real estate for purposes of determining compliance with Subsection D(4) of this section; and

(3) For purposes of this subsection, business operations shall not include that portion of real estate used for the direct provision of health care services by an insurer whose insurance premiums and required statutory reserves for accident and health insurance constitute at least ninety-five percent (95%) of total premium considerations or total statutory required reserves, respectively. An insurer may acquire real estate used for these purposes under Subsection B of this section.

D. Quantitative Limitations

(1) An insurer shall not acquire an investment under Subsection A of this section if, as a result of and after giving effect to the investment, the aggregate amount of all investments then held by the insurer under Subsection A of this section would exceed:

(a) One percent (1%) of its admitted assets in mortgage loans covering any one secured location;

(b) One quarter of one percent (.25%) of its admitted assets in construction loans covering any one secured location; or

(c) One percent (1%) of its admitted assets in construction loans in the aggregate.

(2) An insurer shall not acquire an investment under Subsection B of this section if, as a result of and after giving effect to the investment and any outstanding guarantees made by the insurer in connection with the investment, the aggregate amount of investments then held by the insurer under Subsection B of this section plus the guarantees then outstanding would exceed:

(a) One percent (1%) of its admitted assets in any one parcel or group of contiguous parcels of real estate, except that this limitation shall not apply to that portion of real estate used for the direct provision of health care services by an insurer whose insurance premiums and required statutory reserves for accident and health insurance constitute at least ninety-five percent (95%) of total premium considerations or total statutory required reserves, respectively, such as hospitals, medical clinics, medical professional buildings or other health facilities used for the purpose of providing health services; or

(b) The lesser of ten percent (10%) of its admitted assets or forty percent (40%) of its surplus as regards policyholders in the aggregate, except for an insurer whose insurance premiums and required statutory reserves for accident and health insurance constitute at least ninety-five percent (95%) of total premium considerations or total statutory required reserves, respectively, this limitation shall be increased to fifteen percent (15%) of its admitted assets in the aggregate.

(3) An insurer shall not acquire an investment under Subsection A or B of this section if, as a result of and after giving effect to the investment and any guarantees it has made in connection with the investment, the aggregate amount of all investments then held by the insurer under Subsections A and B of this section plus the guarantees then outstanding would exceed twenty-five percent (25%) of its admitted assets.

(4) The limitations of Section 23 shall not apply to an insurer's acquisition of real estate under Subsection C of this section. An insurer shall not acquire real estate under Subsection C of this section if, as a result of and after giving effect to the acquisition, the aggregate amount of all real estate then held by the insurer under Subsection C of this section would exceed ten percent (10%) of its admitted assets. With the permission of the commissioner, additional amounts of real estate may be acquired under Subsection C of this section.

Section 29. Securities Lending, Repurchase, Reverse Repurchase and Dollar Roll Transactions

An insurer may enter into securities lending, repurchase, reverse repurchase and dollar roll transactions with business entities, subject to the following requirements:

A. The insurer's board of directors shall adopt a written plan that is consistent with the requirements of the written plan in Section 4A that specifies guidelines and objectives to be followed, such as:

(1) A description of how cash received will be invested or used for general corporate purposes of the insurer;

(2) Operational procedures to manage interest rate risk, counterparty default risk, the conditions under which proceeds from repurchase transactions may be used in the ordinary course of business and the use of acceptable collateral in a manner that reflects the liquidity needs of the transaction; and

(3) The extent to which the insurer may engage in these transactions.

B. The insurer shall enter into a written agreement for all transactions authorized in this section other than dollar roll transactions. The written agreement shall require that each transaction terminate no more than one year from its inception or upon the earlier demand of the insurer. The agreement shall be with the business entity counterparty, but for securities lending transactions, the agreement may be with an agent acting on behalf of the insurer, if the agent is a qualified business entity, and if the agreement:

(1) Requires the agent to enter into separate agreements with each counterparty that are consistent with the requirements of this section; and

(2) Prohibits securities lending transactions under the agreement with the agent or its affiliates.

C. Cash received in a transaction under this section shall be invested in accordance with this Act and in a manner that recognizes the liquidity needs of the transaction or used by the insurer for its general corporate purposes. For so long as the transaction remains outstanding, the insurer, its agent or custodian shall maintain, as to acceptable collateral received in a transaction under this section, either physically or through the book entry systems of the Federal Reserve, Depository Trust Company, Participants Trust Company or other securities depositories approved by the commissioner:

(1) Possession of the acceptable collateral;

(2) A perfected security interest in the acceptable collateral; or

(3) In the case of a jurisdiction outside of the United States, title to, or rights of a secured creditor to, the acceptable collateral.

D. The limitations of Sections 23 and 30 shall not apply to the business entity counterparty exposure created by transactions under this section. For purposes of calculations made to determine compliance with this subsection, no effect will be given to the insurer's future obligation to resell securities, in the case of a reverse repurchase transaction, or to repurchase securities, in the case of a repurchase transaction. An insurer shall not enter into a transaction under this section if, as a result of and after giving effect to the transaction:

(1) The aggregate amount of securities then loaned, sold to or purchased from any one business entity counterparty under this section would exceed five percent (5%) of its admitted assets. In calculating the amount sold to or purchased from a business entity counterparty under repurchase or reverse repurchase transactions, effect may be given to netting provisions under a master written agreement; or

(2) The aggregate amount of all securities then loaned, sold to or purchased from all business entities under this section would exceed forty percent (40%) of its admitted assets but the limitation of this subsection shall not apply to reverse repurchase transactions for so long as the borrowing is used to meet operational liquidity requirements resulting from an officially declared catastrophe and subject to a plan approved by the commissioner.

E. In a securities lending transaction, the insurer shall receive acceptable collateral having a market value as of the transaction date at least equal to 102 percent of the market value of the securities loaned by the insurer in the transaction as of that date. If at any time the market value of the acceptable collateral is less than the market value of the loaned securities, the business entity counterparty shall be obligated to deliver additional acceptable collateral, the market value of which, together with the market value of all acceptable collateral then held in connection with the transaction, at least equals 102 percent of the market value of the loaned securities.

F. In a repurchase transaction, (other than a dollar roll transaction), the insurer shall receive acceptable collateral having a market value as of the transaction date at least equal to ninety-five percent (95%) of the market value of the securities transferred by the insurer in the transaction as of that date. If at any time the market value of the acceptable collateral is less than ninety-five percent (95%) of the market value of the securities so transferred, the business entity counterparty shall be obligated to deliver additional acceptable collateral, the market value of which, together with the market value of all acceptable collateral then held in connection with the transaction, at least equals ninety-five percent (95%) of the market value of the transferred securities.

G. In a dollar roll transaction, the insurer shall receive cash in an amount at least equal to the market value of the securities transferred by the insurer in the transaction as of the transaction date.

H. In a reverse repurchase transaction, the insurer shall receive as acceptable collateral transferred securities having a market value at least equal to 102 percent of the purchase price paid by the insurer for the securities. If at any time the market value of the acceptable collateral is less than 100 percent of the purchase price paid by the insurer, the business entity counterparty shall be obligated to provide additional acceptable collateral, the market value of which, together with the market value of all acceptable collateral then held in connection with the transaction, at least equals 102 percent of the purchase price. Securities acquired by an insurer in a reverse repurchase transaction shall not be sold in a repurchase transaction, loaned in a securities lending transaction or otherwise pledged.

Drafting Note: Subsections E, F, and H of this section contain requirements that at the time of drafting this model act were contained in the Purposes and Procedures of the Investment Analysis Office. However, concomitant with the drafting of this model act, a separate task force was considering a revised publication which did not contain these requirements inasmuch as the SVO considered these requirements as accounting-type rules which were deemed not suitable to such a publication. Moreover, another third working group was developing a draft of a revised accounting manual but had not considered proposing separate accounting guidance regarding these requirements. Instead, the accounting manual implicitly referred to the requirements stipulated in this model act. Pending the results of consideration of these requirements by the three groups, in concert, these requirements have been included in this model act. If after due consideration, these requirements are included in the revised accounting manual as representative of statutory accounting principles or, in the alternative, are inserted in the revised Purposes and Procedures of the Investment Analysis Office, then States may opt not to codify these requirements within their insurer investment code.

Section 30. Foreign Investments and Foreign Currency Exposure

A. Subject to the limitations of Section 23, an insurer may acquire foreign investments, or engage in investment practices with persons of or in foreign jurisdictions, of substantially the same types as those that an insurer is permitted to acquire under this Act, other than of the type permitted under Section 25, if, as a result and after giving effect to the investment:

(1) The aggregate amount of foreign investments then held by the insurer under this subsection does not exceed twenty percent (20%) of its admitted assets; and

(2) The aggregate amount of foreign investments then held by the insurer under this subsection in a single foreign jurisdiction does not exceed ten percent (10%) of its admitted assets as to a foreign jurisdiction that has a sovereign debt rating of SVO 1 or five percent (5%) of its admitted assets as to any other foreign jurisdiction.

B. Subject to the limitations of Section 23, an insurer may acquire investments, or engage in investment practices denominated in foreign currencies, whether or not they are foreign investments acquired under Subsection A of this section, or additional foreign currency exposure as a result of the termination or expiration of a hedging transaction with respect to investments denominated in a foreign currency, if:

(1) The aggregate amount of investments then held by the insurer under this subsection denominated in foreign currencies does not exceed fifteen percent (15%) of its admitted assets; and

(2) The aggregate amount of investments then held by the insurer under this subsection denominated in the foreign currency of a single foreign jurisdiction does not exceed ten percent (10%) of its admitted as to a foreign jurisdiction that has a sovereign debt rating of SVO 1 or five percent (5%) of its admitted assets as to any other foreign jurisdiction.

(3) However, an investment shall not be considered denominated in a foreign currency if the acquiring insurer enters into one or more contracts in transactions permitted under Section 31 and the business entity counterparty agrees under the contract or contracts to exchange all payments made on the foreign currency denominated investment for United States currency at a rate which effectively insulates the investment cash flows against future changes in currency exchange rates during the period the contract or contracts are in effect.

C. In addition to investments permitted under Subsections A and B of this section, an insurer that is authorized to do business in a foreign jurisdiction, and that has outstanding insurance, annuity or reinsurance contracts on lives or risks resident or located in that foreign jurisdiction and denominated in foreign currency of that jurisdiction, may acquire foreign investments respecting that foreign jurisdiction, and may acquire investments denominated in the currency of that jurisdiction, subject to the limitations of Section 23. However, investments made under this subsection in obligations of foreign governments, their political subdivisions and government sponsored enterprises shall not be subject to the limitations of Section 23 if those investments carry an SVO rating of 1 or 2. The aggregate amount of investments acquired by the insurer under this subsection shall not exceed the greater of:

(1) The amount the insurer is required by law to invest in the foreign jurisdiction; or

(2) One hundred twenty-five percent (125%) of the amount of its reserves, net of reinsurance, and other obligations under the contracts.

D. In addition to investments permitted under Subsections A and B of this section, an insurer that is not authorized to do business in a foreign jurisdiction but which has outstanding insurance, annuity or reinsurance contracts on lives or risks resident or located in a foreign jurisdiction and denominated in foreign currency of that jurisdiction, may acquire foreign investments respecting that foreign jurisdiction, and may acquire investments denominated in the currency of that jurisdiction subject to the limitations set forth in Section 23. However, investments made under this subsection in obligations of foreign governments, their political subdivisions and government sponsored enterprises shall not be subject to the limitations of Section 23 if those investments carry an SVO rating of 1 or 2. The aggregate amount of investments acquired by the insurer under this subsection shall not exceed 105 percent of the amount of its reserves, net of reinsurance, and other obligations under the contracts on risks resident or located in the foreign jurisdiction.

E. Investments acquired under this section shall be aggregated with investments of the same types made under all other sections of this Act, and in a similar manner, for purposes of determining compliance with the limitations, if any, contained in the other sections. Investments in obligations of foreign governments, their political subdivisions and government sponsored enterprises of these persons, except for those exempted under Subsections C and D of this section, shall be subject to the limitations of Section 23.

Section 31. Derivative Transactions

An insurer may, directly or indirectly through an investment subsidiary, engage in derivative transactions under this section under the following conditions :

A. General Conditions

(1) An insurer may use derivative instruments under this section to engage in hedging transactions and certain income generation transactions, as these terms may be further defined in regulations promulgated by the commissioner.

(2) An insurer shall be able to demonstrate to the commissioner the intended hedging characteristics and the ongoing effectiveness of the derivative transaction or combination of transactions through cash flow testing or other appropriate analyses.

B. Limitations on Hedging Transactions

An insurer may enter into hedging transactions under this section if, as a result of and after giving effect to the transaction :

(1) The aggregate statement value of options, caps, floors and warrants not attached to another financial instrument purchased and used in hedging transactions does not exceed seven and one half percent (7.5%) of its admitted assets;

(2) The aggregate statement value of options, caps and floors written in hedging transactions does not exceed three percent (3%) of its admitted assets; and

(3) The aggregate potential exposure of collars, swaps, forwards and futures used in hedging transactions does not exceed six and one-half percent (6.5%) of its admitted assets.

C. Limitations on Income Generation Transactions

An insurer may only enter into the following types of income generation transactions if as a result of and after giving effect to the transactions, the aggregate statement value of the fixed income assets that are subject to call plus the face value of fixed income securities underlying a derivative instrument subject to call, plus the amount of the purchase obligations under the puts, does not exceed ten percent (10%) of its admitted assets:

(1) Sales of covered call options on non-callable fixed income securities, callable fixed income securities if the option expires by its terms prior to the end of the noncallable period or derivative instruments based on fixed income securities;

(2) Sales of covered call options on equity securities, if the insurer holds in its portfolio, or can immediately acquire through the exercise of options, warrants or conversion rights already owned, the equity securities subject to call during the complete term of the call option sold; or

(3) Sales of covered puts on investments that the insurer is permitted to acquire under this Act, if the insurer has escrowed, or entered into a custodian agreement segregating, cash or cash equivalents with a market value equal to the amount of its purchase obligations under the put during the complete term of the put option sold.

D. Counterparty Exposure

An insurer shall include all counterparty exposure amounts in determining compliance with the limitations of Section 23.

E. Additional Transactions

Pursuant to regulations promulgated under Section 8, the commissioner may approve additional transactions involving the use of derivative instruments in excess of the limits of Subsection B of this section or for other risk management purposes under regulations promulgated by the commissioner, but replication transactions shall not be permitted for other than risk management purposes.

Section 32. Additional Investment Authority

A. An insurer may acquire under this section investments, or engage in investment practices, of any kind that are not specifically prohibited by this Act, or engage in investment practices, without regard to any limitation in Sections 23 through 30, but an insurer shall not acquire an investment or engage in an investment practice under this section if, as a result of and after giving effect to the transaction, the aggregate amount of the investments then held by the insurer under this section would exceed the greater of:

(1) Its unrestricted surplus; or

(2) The lesser of:

(a) Ten percent (10%) of its admitted assets; or

(b) Fifty percent (50%) of its surplus as regards policyholders.

B. An insurer shall not acquire any investment or engage in any investment practice under Subsection A(2) of this section if, as a result of and after giving effect to the transaction the aggregate amount of all investments in any one person then held by the insurer under that subsection would exceed five percent (5%) of its admitted assets.

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. Table of Contents

Section 1. Authority

This regulation is adopted and promulgated by the Commissioner of Insurance pursuant to [insert citation to state law equivalent to Section 8 of the Investments of Insurers Model Act].

Section 2. Purpose

The purpose of this regulation is to set standards for the prudent use of derivative instruments in accordance with [insert citation to state law equivalent to Section 9 and 18 of the Investments of Insurers Model Act].

Section 3. Definitions

For the purposes of this regulation, the following definitions shall apply:

A. "Business entity" includes a sole proprietorship, corporation, limited liability company, association, partnership, joint stock company, joint venture, mutual fund, trust, joint tenancy or other similar form of business organization, whether for-profit or not-for-profit.

B. "Counterparty exposure amount" means:

(1) The net amount of credit risk attributable to a derivative instrument entered into with a business entity other than through a qualified exchange, qualified foreign exchange, or cleared through a qualified clearinghouse ("over-the-counter derivative instrument"). The amount of credit risk equals:

(a) The market value of the over-the-counter derivative instrument if the liquidation of the derivative instrument would result in a final cash payment to the insurance company; or

(b) Zero if the liquidation of the derivative instrument would not result in a final cash payment to the insurance company.

(2) If over-the-counter derivative instruments are entered into pursuant to a written master agreement which provides for netting of payments owed by the respective parties, and the domiciliary jurisdiction of the counterparty is either within the United States or if not within the United States, within a foreign jurisdiction listed in the Purposes and Procedures of the Securities Valuation Office as eligible for netting, the net amount of credit risk shall be the greater of zero or the net sum of:

(a) The market value of the over-the-counter derivative instruments entered into pursuant to the agreement, the liquidation of which would result in a final cash payment to the insurance company; and

(b) The market value of the over-the-counter derivative instruments entered into pursuant to the agreement, the liquidation of which would result in a final cash payment by the insurance company to the business entity.

(3) For open transactions, market value shall be determined at the end of the most recent quarter of the insurance company's fiscal year and shall be reduced by the market value of acceptable collateral held by the insurance company or placed in escrow by one or both parties.

C. (1) "Derivative instrument" means an agreement, option, instrument or a series or combination thereof:

(a) To make or take delivery of, or assume or relinquish, a specified amount of one or more underlying interests, or to make a cash settlement in lieu thereof; or

(b) That has a price, performance, value or cash flow based primarily upon the actual or expected price, level, performance, value or cash flow of one or more underlying interests.

(2) Derivative instruments include options, warrants, caps, floors, collars, swaps, forwards, futures and any other agreements, options or instruments substantially similar thereto or any series or combination thereof. Derivative instruments shall additionally include any agreements, options or instruments permitted under regulations adopted pursuant to [insert citation to state law equivalent to Section 8 of the Investments of Insurers Model Act]. Derivative instruments shall not include an investment authorized by [insert state law equivalent to Sections 11 through 17, 19 and 24 through 30 of the Investments of Insurers Model Act].

D. "Qualified clearinghouse" means a clearinghouse for, and subject to the rules of a qualified exchange or a qualified foreign exchange, which clearinghouse provides clearing services, including acting as a counterparty to each of the parties to a transaction such that the parties no longer have credit risk as to each other.

E. "Qualified exchange" means:

(1) A securities exchange registered as a national securities exchange, or a securities market regulated under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. §§ 78 et seq.), as amended;

(2) A board of trade or commodities exchange designated as a contract market by the Commodity Futures Trading Commission or any successor thereof;

(3) Private Offerings, Resales and Trading through Automated Linkages (PORTAL);

(4) A designated offshore securities market as defined in Securities Exchange Commission Regulation S, 17 C.F.R. Part 230, as amended; or

(5) A qualified foreign exchange.

F. "Qualified foreign exchange" means a foreign exchange, board of trade or contract market located outside the United States, its territories or possessions:

(1) That has received regulatory comparability relief pursuant to Commodity Futures Trading Commission Rule 30.10 (as set forth in Appendix C to Part 30 of the CFTC's Regulations, 17 C.F.R. Part 30);

(2) That is, or its members are, subject to the jurisdiction of a foreign futures authority that has received regulatory comparability relief pursuant to Commodity Futures Trading Commission Rule 30.10 (as set forth in Appendix C to Part 30 of the CFTC's Regulations, 17 C.F.R. Part 30) as to futures transactions in the jurisdiction where the exchange, board of trade or contract market is located; or

(3) Upon which foreign stock index futures contracts are listed that are the subject of no-action relief issued by the CFTC's Office of General Counsel, but an exchange, board of trade or contract market that qualifies as a "qualified foreign exchange" only under this paragraph shall only be a "qualified foreign exchange" as to foreign stock index futures contracts that are the subject of such no-action relief under this paragraph.

Section 4. Guidelines and Internal Control Procedures

A. Before engaging in a derivative transaction, an insurance company shall establish written guidelines, approved by the Commissioner, that shall be used for effecting and maintaining derivative transactions. The guidelines shall:

(1) Specify insurance company objectives for engaging in derivative transactions and derivative strategies and all applicable risk constraints, including credit risk limits;

B. An insurance company shall have a written methodology for determining whether a derivative instrument used for hedging has been effective.

C. An insurance company shall have written policies and procedures describing the credit risk management process and a credit risk management system for over-the-counter derivative transactions that measures credit risk exposure using the counterparty exposure amount.

D. An insurance company's board of directors shall, in accordance with [insert citation to state law equivalent of Section 4 of the Investments of Insurers Model Act]:

(4) Take action to correct any deficiencies in internal controls relative to derivative transactions.

Section 5. Commissioner Approval

Written documentation explaining the insurance company's internal guidelines and controls governing derivative transactions shall be submitted for approval to the Commissioner. The Commissioner shall have the authority to disapprove the guidelines and controls proposed by the company if the insurance company cannot demonstrate the proposed internal guidelines and controls would be adequate to manage the risks associated with the derivative transactions the insurance company intends to engage in.

Section 6. Documentation Requirements

An insurance company shall maintain documentation and records relating to each derivative transaction, such as:

A. The purpose or purposes of the transaction;

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. To perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

PROJECT HISTORY REPORT - 2009

DERIVATIVES INSTRUMENT MODEL REGULATION (#282)

1. Description of the project, issues addressed, etc.

The review of Model 282 was conducted at the request of senior NAIC staff to determine its continued relevance to the NAIC regulatory framework for investments. Senior NAIC staff placed the request for review on the agenda of the Valuation of Securities (E) Task Force in the winter of 2005. The Valuation of Securities (E) Task Force formed the Derivatives Market Study (E) Working Group and charged it with studying the derivatives market to determine whether the NAIC should consider changes in regulation and whether it should discard or revise and retain the Model Regulation. The Working Group concluded that:

- Credit derivatives are a large and growing portion of fixed income markets. Credit derivatives can be a suitable part of insurer investment strategies. Greater participation by insurers in this market is impeded by market infrastructure issues. Insurer participation in derivatives is likely to increase in proportion to improvements in infrastructure.

- The principal risk in credit derivative investment is credit risk. However, other risks arise primarily because credit derivative markets are at an earlier stage of development.

- Risks or issues specific to credit derivatives include:

    - Documentation – Trade documentation processing has not kept up with trade volume. Backlogs could exacerbate market disruptions. The Federal Reserve and trade associations appear to be addressing this issue.

    - Settlement – The outstanding volume of credit derivatives is often several times larger than the outstanding underlying securities available to settle default events. A more robust settlement framework is under development.

    - Legal – Case and statutory law pertaining to enforceability of credit derivative contracts are not as well established as for bonds and loans.

    - Complexity – Cash flow and risk characteristics of credit derivatives are complex. This poses training challenges for investment and risk management professionals and for examiners and regulators.

    - Counterparty concentration risk – One of fourteen large money center banks is a counterparty to most credit derivative contracts. Their net exposure to underlying entities is unknown and could become a performance issue upon occurrence of major credit events.

These considerations led the Working Group to recommend a complete revision in the NAIC approach to derivative investments. The revisions to the Model Regulation must be understood as part of this broader effort to modernize the NAIC regulatory framework for derivatives. The Working Group made the following recommendations and referrals:

- The Capital Adequacy (E) Task Force should consider allowing credit for derivative hedges that reduce an insurer's risk.

- Certain types of derivative transactions are not captured on NAIC Schedule DB, including derivative transactions by subsidiaries, risk transferred to an insurer via insurance contracts, default swaps written as surety bonds and others.

- NAIC derivative schedules require a complete revision to reduce the number of schedules, elicit information that is relevant and meaningful to regulators and to reflect current derivative practices.

- Derivatives, including credit default swaps, represent a significant portion of financial instruments available for insurers. Public policy and practical financial solvency monitoring procedures require uniform and robust state regulator oversight of this activity. Model Regulation 282 should be revised and retained as a national standard despite the seemingly limited number of states that have embraced the Model Regulation.

- Model Regulation 282 should be revised to require a derivative use plan that has been reviewed and approved by the Commissioner before the company is authorized to engage in derivatives transactions.

2. Name of group responsible for draft the model:

The Derivatives Market Study (E) Working Group of the Valuation of Securities (E) Task Force:

States Participating:
New York, Chair
California, Vice Chair
Connecticut
Delaware
Illinois
Minnesota
Virginia

3. Project authorized by what charge and date first given to the group:

The following charge was given to the Derivatives Market Study (E) Working Group in 2006:

The charge of the Derivatives Market Study (E) Working Group of the Valuation of Securities (E) Task Force is to provide an updated understanding of the derivatives marketplace in order to permit an assessment whether developments in the derivatives marketplace since the early 1990s requires changes in regulation. The findings of the Working Group will be disseminated, among others, to senior NAIC staff to permit a determination whether NAIC Model Regulation 282 should be discarded or revised and retained and if so, in what form.

The Working Group will consider current regulatory guidance for derivatives, hear testimony of participants and experts in the derivatives markets about the derivative market today, consider the activities of insurance companies in the derivatives market and conduct whatever other activities seem appropriate to it in the fulfillment of this charge.

4. A general description of the drafting process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated.

The amendments to the model act were drafted by the members of the Working Group in public hearings.

5. A general description of the due process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited.

The Working Group held a series of public meetings during which it took testimony from derivatives experts, federal regulators and industry. Speakers included J. P. Morgan Securities, the International Swaps and Derivatives Association (ISDA), TIAA-CREF, and the Office of Comptroller of the Currency (OCC). In a series of public hearings, the Working Group reviewed the existing NAIC framework for derivatives in which it discussed seeming shortcomings in the NAIC regulatory framework given the testimony it had heard about current derivative practices. It was in this time period that the Working Group identified the issues discussed in paragraph 1 above. It was only at the conclusion of this process that the Working Group turned to a consideration whether the Model Regulation should be revised and retained or discarded. New York led the effort to revise the Model Regulation making proposal for revisions in a series of public hearings and providing ample time for review comment by interested persons. It was during this time frame that the NAIC changed the process governing the amendment of model regulation, so the Working Group concluded its review and made its final recommendations to the Valuation of Securities (E) Task Force. The Task Force suspended work on the Model Regulation while it complied with the new NAIC model law procedure. At the conclusion of that process, the proposed revisions to the Model Regulation were again released for comment and a hearing heard during the NAIC 2009 Spring National Meeting to hear such comments. The Task Force adopted the revisions at the Spring National Meeting.

6. A discussion of the significant issues (items of some controversy) raised during the drafting process and the group's response.

There were two primary changes made to Model Regulation 282. The first was the addition of the requirement of a written derivative use plan that contained a statement of planned derivative activity, the relationship of planned activity to company operations, the policies and procedures that would govern the derivative activity and the command-and-control process that would be employed to manage the risks of derivative transactions. The second change was a requirement that the derivative use plan be reviewed and approved by the Commissioner before the insurer could engage in derivatives transactions.

The proposed prior approval standard was not universally accepted by the members. Some members were concerned that state insurance departments lack the resources to properly evaluate derivative use plans. Other states preferred a file and use standard because they felt it insulated them from legal claims of responsibility for the results of insurer results under derivative use plans. In response to these concerns, the SVO staff conducted legal research and a survey of the states. The legal research supported the view that insurance departments, already responsible for regulation, would be better served by evidence of proactive assessment of the appropriateness of an insurer's planned use of derivatives. The survey demonstrated that while the respondents were almost evenly split on which standard should be reflected in the Model Regulation, there was unanimous agreement that the prior approval standard was most consistent with professional responsibility and reflected best practices. The Valuation of Securities (E) Task Force concluded that the better regulatory response was to require the prior approval standard and that states lacking resources to properly review derivative use plan should rely on the expertise of the Securities Valuation Office for such assessment or prohibit the use of derivatives for companies in that state.

A second issue was in part policy and in part procedural. The policy issue centered on the amended model regulation process: was it a condition to national standard status for the members to be nearly unanimous in their commitment to adopt a model law or regulation? Only four states (CA, CT, IL and NY) could be identified as having adopted the Model Regulation. However, nineteen states had adopted the derivatives portion of the Investment of Insurers Model Regulation (Defined Limits Version). The Valuation of Securities (E) Task Force concluded that the Model Regulation should be retained as a national standard irrespective of the relative level of interest by the states, given the nature of derivative transactions and their potential impact on financial solvency of insurers.

7. Any other important information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard).

None.

INVESTMENTS OF INSURERS MODEL ACT
(Defined Standards Version)

Table of Contents

Statement of Principles

The development of regulation of the investments of insurers requires an analysis of the complexities, uncertainties, and competitive forces and frequent changes in the investment markets and in the insurance business, the diversity among insurers, and the need for a balance among risk, reward and liquidity of an insurer's investments. It also requires an analysis of how to safeguard the financial condition of domestic insurers and at the same time to permit domestic insurers to be competitive with insurers domiciled in other states and with other financial industries that operate under different regulatory regimes.

Each state is urged to determine through independent study which methods are best suited to its needs, and whether its existing regulatory structure may be improved by using provisions from either or both of the model laws recommended by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) or from existing regulatory structures in other states or industries. Two alternative model laws are recommended by the NAIC. These are:

A. Investments of Insurers Model Act (Defined Limits Version);

B. Investments of Insurers Model Act (Defined Standards Version).

These model laws are not considered by the NAIC to exhaust regulatory methods to address the regulation of investments of insurers. Nor are these model laws recommended by the NAIC to be used as standards for the examination of insurers unless substantially similar provisions are found in the statutes and regulations of the state of domicile of the insurer.

Drafting Note: States considering provisions in this model should also read the statement of principles and annotations prepared by the drafters to supplement and explain significant concepts in investment statutes.

Section 1. Purpose and Scope

A. The purpose of this Act is to protect and to further the interests of insureds, creditors and the general public by providing, with minimum interference with management initiative and judgment, prudent standards for the development and administration of insurer investment programs.

B. This Act and the regulations adopted to interpret and implement it apply to domestic insurers and U. S. branches of alien insurers entered through this state, except for insurers organized pursuant to [cite statutes applicable to exempted insurers].

Drafting Note: This Act does not define the types of insurers subject to its provisions, leaving this to other sections of the code since state laws treat insurers writing various lines of insurance differently. For example, if an entity is authorized to operate as a health maintenance organization, the state may provide different investment authority commensurate to operating as a health maintenance organization.

C. Separate accounts established in accordance with [cite statutes allowing the creation and maintenance of separate accounts] shall be evaluated separately pursuant to that section.

Section 2. Definitions

For purposes of this Act:

A. "Derivative instrument" means an item appropriately reported in schedule DB (derivative instruments) or schedule DC (insurance futures and insurance futures options) of an insurer's statutory financial statement (or successor schedules), pursuant to applicable annual statement instructions or statutory accounting guidelines.

B. "Derivative transaction" means a transaction involving the use of one or more derivative instruments.

C. "Income generation" means a derivative transaction involving the writing of covered options, caps or floors that is intended to generate income or enhance return.

D. "Lower grade investment" means a rated credit instrument or debt-like preferred stock rated 4, 5 or 6 by the Securities Valuation Office of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) or any successor office.

E. "Medium grade investment" means a rated credit instrument or debt-like preferred stock rated 3 by the Securities Valuation Office of the NAIC or any successor office.

F. "Minimum asset requirement" is the sum of an insurer's liabilities and its minimum financial security benchmark.

G. "Minimum financial security benchmark" is the amount an insurer is required to have under Section 3.

H. "Replication" means a derivative transaction involving one or more derivative instruments being used to modify the cash flow characteristics of one or more investments held by an insurer in a manner so that the aggregate cash flows of the derivative instruments and investments reproduce the cash flows of another investment having a higher risk-based capital charge than the risk-based capital charge of the original investments or investments.

I. "SVO listed mutual fund" means a money market mutual fund or short-term bond fund that is registered with the United States Securities and Exchange Commission under the Investment Company Act of 1940, and that has been determined by the NAIC's Securities Valuation Office to be eligible for special reserve and reporting treatment (other than as common stock).

Section 3. Minimum Financial Security Benchmark

A. Minimum Financial Security Benchmark.

(1) Unless otherwise established in accordance with Paragraphs (2) and (3) of this subsection, the amount of the minimum financial security benchmark for an insurer shall be the greater of:

(a) The authorized control level risk-based capital applicable to the insurer as set forth by [insert reference to the risk-based capital law] less the asset valuation reserve and voluntary investment reserves as defined under [insert reference to the risk-based capital law]; or

(b) The minimum capital or minimum surplus required by statute or regulation for maintenance of an insurer's certificate of authority.

(2) The commissioner may, in accordance with the factors in Subsection B(2) of this section, establish by order a minimum financial security benchmark to apply to a specific insurer provided it is not less than the amount determined by Paragraph (1) of this subsection.

(3) Except as provided in [cite applicable state laws consistent with drafting note following Section 1B], the commissioner may establish by regulation a minimum financial security benchmark that is a multiple of authorized control level risk-based capital to apply to any class of insurers provided the amount established by the regulation is not less than the amount determined in Paragraph (1) of this subsection.

B. The commissioner shall determine the amount of surplus that shall constitute an insurer's minimum financial security benchmark, as an amount that will provide reasonable security against contingencies affecting the insurer's financial position that are not fully covered by reserves or by reinsurance.

Drafting Note: Insert the title of the chief insurance regulatory officer whenever the term "commissioner" appears.

(1) Types of contingencies. The commissioner shall consider the risks of:

(a) Increases in the frequency or severity of losses beyond the levels contemplated by the rates charged;

(b) Increases in expenses beyond those contemplated by the rates charged;

(c) Decreases in the value of or the return on invested assets below those planned on;

(d) Changes in economic conditions that would make liquidity more important than contemplated and would force untimely sale of assets or prevent timely investments;

(e) Currency devaluation to which the insurer may be subject; and

(f) Any other contingencies the commissioner can identify that may affect the insurer's operations.

(2) Controlling factors. In making the determination under this subsection, the commissioner shall take into account the following factors:

(a) The most reliable information available as to the magnitude of the various risks under Paragraph (1) of this subsection;

(b) The extent to which the risks in Paragraph (1) of this subsection are independent of each other or are related, and whether any dependency is direct or inverse;

(c) The insurer's recent history of profits or losses;

(d) The extent to which the insurer has provided protection against the contingencies in other ways than the establishment of surplus; including redundancy of premiums, adjustability of contracts under their terms, investment valuation reserves whether voluntary or mandatory, appropriate reinsurance, the use of conservative actuarial assumptions to provide a margin of security, reserve adjustments in recognition of previous rate inadequacies, contingency or catastrophe reserves, diversification of assets and underwriting risks;

(e) Independent judgments of the soundness of the insurer's operations, as evidenced by the ratings of reliable professional financial reporting services; and

(f) Any other relevant factors.

Section 4. Authorized Investments

A. Subject to the provisions of this Act, an insurer may loan or invest its funds, and may buy, sell, hold title to, possess, occupy, pledge, convey, manage, protect, insure and deal with its investments, property and other assets to the same extent as any other person or corporation under the laws of this state and of the United States.

B. With respect to all of the insurer's investments, the board of directors of an insurer shall exercise the judgment and care, under the circumstances then prevailing, that persons of reasonable prudence, discretion and intelligence exercise in the management of a like enterprise, not in regard to speculating but in regard to the permanent disposition of their funds, considering the probable income as well as the probable safety of their capital. Investments shall be of sufficient value, liquidity and diversity to assure the insurer's ability to meet its outstanding obligations based on reasonable assumptions as to new business production for current lines of business. As part of its exercise of judgment and care, the board of directors shall take into account the prudence evaluation criteria of Section 5 of this Act.

C. The insurer shall establish and implement internal controls and procedures to assure compliance with investment policies and procedures to assure that:

(1) The insurer's investment staff and any consultants used are reputable and capable;

(2) A periodic evaluation and monitoring process occurs for assessing the effectiveness of investment policy and strategies;

(3) Management's performance is assessed in meeting the stated objectives within the investment policy; and

(4) Appropriate analyses are undertaken of the degree to which asset cash flows are adequate to meet liability cash flows under different economic environments. These analyses shall be conducted at least annually and make specific reference to economic conditions.

Section 5. Prudence Evaluation Criteria

The following factors shall be evaluated by the insurer and considered along with its business in determining whether an investment portfolio or investment policy is prudent; the commissioner shall consider the following factors prior to making a determination that an insurer's investment portfolio or investment policy is not prudent:

A. General economic conditions;

B. The possible effect of inflation or deflation;

C. The expected tax consequences of investment decisions or strategies;

D. The fairness and reasonableness of the terms of an investment considering its probable risk and reward characteristics and relationship to the investment portfolio as a whole;

E. The extent of the diversification of the insurer's investments among:

(1) Individual investments;

(2) Classes of investments;

(3) Industry concentrations;

(4) Dates of maturity; and

(5) Geographic areas;

F. The quality and liquidity of investments in affiliates;

G. The investment exposure to the following risks, quantified in a manner consistent with the insurer's acceptable risk level identified in Section 6H:

(1) Liquidity;

(2) Credit and default;

(3) Systemic (market);

(4) Interest rate;

(5) Call, prepayment and extension;

(6) Currency; and

(7) Foreign sovereign;

H. The amount of the insurer's assets, capital and surplus, premium writings, insurance in force, and other appropriate characteristics;

I. The amount and adequacy of the insurer's reported liabilities;

J. The relationship of the expected cash flows of the insurer's assets and liabilities, and the risk of adverse changes in the insurer's assets and liabilities;

K. The adequacy of the insurer's capital and surplus to secure the risks and liabilities of the insurer; and

L. Any other factors relevant to whether an investment is prudent.

Section 6. Insurer Investment Policy

In acquiring, investing, exchanging, holding, selling and managing investments, an insurer shall establish and follow a written investment policy that shall be reviewed and approved by the insurer's board of directors at least annually. The content and format of an insurer's investment policy are at the insurer's discretion, but shall include written guidelines appropriate to the insurer's business as to the following:

A. The general investment policy of the insurer containing policies, procedures and controls covering all aspects of the investing function;

B. Quantified goals and objectives regarding the composition of classes of investments, including maximum internal limits;

C. Periodic evaluation of the investment portfolio as to its risk and reward characteristics. This subsection shall not preclude an insurer from the use of "modern portfolio theory" to manage its investments;

Drafting Note: States may wish to consider whether it is necessary to include a definition of "modern portfolio theory" as used in Section 6C.

D. Professional standards for the individuals making day-to-day investment decisions to assure that investments are managed in an ethical and capable manner;

E. The types of investments to be made and those to be avoided, based on their risk and reward characteristics and the insurer's level of experience with the investments;

F. The relationship of classes of investments to the insurer's insurance products and liabilities;

G. The manner in which the insurer intends to implement Section 5; and

H. The level of risk (based on quantitative measures) appropriate for the insurer given the level of capitalization and expertise available to the insurer.

Section 7. Authorized Classes of Investments

The following classes of investments may be counted for the purposes specified in Section 11, whether they are made directly or as a participant in a partnership, joint venture or limited liability company:

A. Cash in the direct possession of the insurer or on deposit with a financial institution regulated by any federal or state agency of the United States;

B. Bonds, debt-like preferred stock and other evidences of indebtedness of governmental units in the United States or Canada, or the instrumentalities of the governmental units, or private business entities domiciled in the United States or Canada, including asset-backed securities and SVO listed mutual funds;

C. Loans secured by mortgages, trust deeds, or other security interests in real property located in the United States or Canada or secured by insurance against default issued by a government insurance corporation of the United States or Canada or by an insurer authorized to do business in this state;

D. Common stock or equity-like preferred stock or equity interests in any United States or Canadian business entity, or shares of mutual funds registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission of the United States under the Investment Company Act of 1940, other than SVO listed mutual funds;

E. Real property necessary for the convenient transaction of the insurer's business;

F. Real property, together with the fixtures, furniture, furnishings and equipment pertaining thereto in the United States or Canada, which produces or after suitable improvement can reasonably be expected to produce substantial income;

G. Loans, securities, or other investments of the types described in Subsections A to F of this section in countries other than the United States and Canada;

H. Bonds or other evidences of indebtedness of international development organizations of which the United States is a member;

I. Loans upon the security of the insurer's own policies in amounts that are adequately secured by the policies and that in no case exceed the surrender values of the policies;

J. Tangible personal property under contract of sale or lease under which contractual payments may reasonably be expected to return the principal of and provide earnings on the investment within its anticipated useful life;

K. Other investments the commissioner authorizes by regulation; and

L. Investments not otherwise permitted by this section, and not specifically prohibited by statute, to the extent of not more than five percent (5%) of the first $500,000,000 of the insurer's admitted assets plus ten percent (10%) of the insurer's admitted assets exceeding $500,000,000.

Drafting Note: This Act is silent with respect to an insurer's participation in partnerships as a general partner. States may consider limitations on an insurer's authority to act as a general partner due to the legal complexities attendant on this role. The language in Subsection D of this section in no way authorizes the insurer to act as a general partner.

Section 8. Limitations Generally Applicable

A. Class Limitations. For the purposes of Section 11, the following limitations on classes of investments apply:

(1) Investments authorized by Section 7B, and investments authorized by Section 7G that are of the types described in Section 7B;

(a) The aggregate amount of medium and lower grade investments, twenty percent (20%) of its admitted assets;

(b) The aggregate amount of lower grade investments, ten percent (10%) of its admitted assets;

(c) The aggregate amount of investments rated 5 or 6 by the SVO, five percent (5%) of its admitted assets;

(d) The aggregate amount of investments rated 6 by the SVO, one percent (1%) of its admitted assets; or

(e) The aggregate amount of medium and lower grade investments that receive as cash income less than the equivalent yield for Treasury issues with a comparative average life, one percent (1%) of its admitted assets.

(2) Investments authorized by Section 7C, forty-five percent (45%) of admitted assets in the case of life insurers and twenty-five percent (25%) of admitted assets in the case of non-life insurers;

(3) Investments authorized by Section 7D, other than subsidiaries of the types authorized under [cite applicable provisions of holding company law] twenty percent (20%) of admitted assets in the case of life insurers and twenty-five percent (25%) of admitted assets in the case of non-life insurers;

(4) Investments authorized by Section 7E, ten percent (10%) of admitted assets;

(5) Investments authorized by Section 7F, twenty percent (20%) of admitted assets in the case of life insurers, and ten percent (10%) of admitted assets in the case of non-life insurers;

(6) Investments authorized by Section 7G, twenty percent (20%) of admitted assets;

(7) Investments authorized by Section 7H, two percent (2%) of admitted assets; and

(8) Investments authorized by Section 7J, two percent (2%) of admitted assets.

B. Individual limitations. For purposes of determining compliance with Section 11, securities of a single issuer and its affiliates, other than the government of the United States and subsidiaries authorized under [cite applicable provisions of holding company law], shall not exceed three percent (3%) of admitted assets in the case of life insurers, and five percent (5%) in the case of non-life insurers. Investments in the voting securities of a depository institution, or any company that controls a depository institution, shall not exceed five percent (5%) of the insurer's admitted assets.

C. Investment subsidiaries. For purpose of determining compliance with the limitations of this section, the admitted portion of assets of subsidiaries under [cite applicable provisions of holding company law] shall be deemed to be owned directly by the insurer and any other investors in proportion to the market value or if there is no market, the reasonable value, of their interest in the subsidiaries.

D. Effect of quantity limitations. To the extent that investments exceed the limitations specified in Subsections A and B, the excess may be assigned to the investment class authorized in Section 7L, until that limit is exhausted.

E. Special rule for mutual funds, pooled investment vehicles and other investment companies. If the commissioner considers it desirable in order to get a proper evaluation of the investment portfolio of an insurer, the commissioner may require that investments in mutual funds, pooled investment vehicles or other investment companies be treated for purposes of this Act as if the investor owned directly its proportional share of the assets owned by the mutual fund, pooled investment vehicle or investment company.

F. Unless otherwise specified, an investment limitation computed on the basis of an insurer's admitted assets or capital and surplus shall relate to the amount required to be shown on the statutory balance sheet of the insurer most recently required to be filed with the commissioner.

Drafting Note: States may consider additional language intended to prevent the "grossing-up" of admitted assets and consequent evasion of this Act's investment limitations by requiring that the amount of admitted assets be reduced by the amount of the liability recorded on an insurer's statutory balance sheet for; the return of acceptable collateral received in a reverse repurchase transaction or a securities lending transaction, cash received in a dollar roll transaction, and other amounts reported as borrowed money in the most recently filed financial statement.

Drafting Note: Some states encourage domestic investment as a matter of public policy through premium tax or other incentives. States with such a public policy might consider expanded individual issuer limitations for state general obligations, if a preference for public-sector investment is desired.

Section 9. Protection Against Currency Fluctuations

An insurer doing business that requires it to make payment in different currencies shall have investments in securities in each of these currencies in an amount that independently of all other investments meets the requirements of this Act as applied separately to the insurer's obligations in each currency. The commissioner may by order exempt an insurer, or by regulation a class of insurers, from this requirement if the obligations in other currencies are small enough that no significant problem for financial solidity would be created by substantial fluctuations in relative currency values.

Section 10. Prohibited Investments

A. (1) An insurer shall not invest in investments that are prohibited for an insurer by statutes or regulations of this state.

(2) The use of a derivative instrument for replication, or for any purposes other than hedging or income generation, is prohibited.

B. A reasonable time, not in excess of 5 years, shall be allowed for disposal of a prohibited investment in hardship cases if the investment is demonstrated by the insurer to have been legal when made, or the result of a mistake made in good faith, or if the commissioner deems that the sale of the asset would be contrary to the interests of insureds, creditors, or the general public.

Drafting Note: Derivative instruments shall not be used for replication, or for any purposes other than hedging or income generation, until such time as the National Association of Insurance Commissioners adopts methods of disclosure, reserving for risk-based capital and asset valuation reserve, and assessing risks associated with these investments. At that time, the prohibition against the use of derivative instruments for replication shall sunset.

Drafting Note: This Act does not address an insurer's investments in or loans to officers or directors or their immediate families. States should consider the need for specific guidance for these types of investments and loans if they are not addressed in another part of the insurance code.

Section 11. Effect of Investment Restrictions

A. Invested assets may be counted toward satisfaction of the minimum asset requirement only so far as they are invested in compliance with this Act and applicable regulations promulgated and orders issued by the commissioner pursuant to this Act. Assets other than invested assets may be counted toward satisfaction of the minimum asset requirement at admitted annual statement value.

B. An investment held as an admitted asset by an insurer on the effective date of this Act which qualified under [insert reference to state′s prior code provisions on insurer investments] shall remain qualified as an admitted asset under this Act.

C. Assets acquired in the bona fide enforcement of creditors' rights or in bona fide workouts or settlements of disputed claims may be counted for the purposes of Subsection A for five (5) years after acquisition if real property and three (3) years if not real property, even if they could not otherwise be counted under this Act. The commissioner may allow reasonable extensions of these periods if replacement of the assets within the periods would not be possible without substantial loss.

D. If an insurer does not own, or is unable to apply toward compliance with this Act, an amount of assets equal to its minimum asset requirement, the commissioner may deem it to be financially hazardous under [insert reference to statute providing the lawful grounds for liquidation and rehabilitation].

Section 12. Reports and Replies

A. The commissioner may require any of the following from a person subject to regulation under this Act:

(1) Statements, reports, answers to questionnaires and other information, and evidence thereof, in whatever reasonable form the commissioner designates, and at such reasonable intervals as the commissioner chooses.

(2) Full explanation of the programming of any data storage or communication system in use.

(3) That information from any books, records, electronic data processing systems, computers or any other information storage system be made available to the commissioner at a reasonable time and in a reasonable manner.

B. The commissioner may prescribe forms for the reports under Subsection A and specify who shall execute or certify the reports. The forms for the reports required under Subsection A shall be consistent, so far as practicable, with those prescribed by other jurisdictions.

C. The commissioner may prescribe reasonable minimum standards and techniques of accounting and data handling to ensure that timely and reliable information will exist and will be available to the commissioner.

D. Any officer, manager or general agent of an insurer subject to this Act, any person controlling or having a contract under which the person has a right to control the insurer, whether exclusively or otherwise, or a person with executive authority over or in charge of any segment of the insurer's affairs, shall reply promptly in writing or in other reasonably designated form, to a written inquiry from the commissioner requesting a reply.

E. The commissioner may require that any communication made to the commissioner under this section be verified.

F. A communication to the commissioner, or to an expert or consultant retained by the commissioner, required by the provisions of this Act shall not subject the person making it to an action for damages for the communication in the absence of actual malice.

G. Notwithstanding the provisions of Subsection F, the commissioner may bring suit against any person providing information required under this Act that is not truthful and accurate.

Drafting Note: If a state's insurance code and regulations contain provisions substantially similar to this section, the state may consider deleting this section or replacing this section with language contained in other portions of its code.

Section 13. Retention of Experts

The commissioner may retain at the insurer's expense attorneys, actuaries, accountants and other experts not otherwise a part of the commissioner's staff as may be reasonably necessary to assist in reviewing the insurer's investments. Persons so retained shall be under the direction and control of the commissioner and shall act in a purely advisory capacity.

Section 14. Commissioner's Orders

A. If the commissioner determines that an insurer's investment practices do not meet the provisions of this Act, the commissioner may, after notification to the insurer of the commissioner's findings, order the insurer to make changes necessary to comply with the provisions of this Act.

B. If the commissioner determines that by reason of the financial condition, current investment practice, or current investment plan of an insurer, the interests of insureds, creditors or the general public are or may be endangered, the commissioner may impose reasonable additional restrictions upon the admissibility or valuation of investments or may impose restrictions on the investment practices of an insurer, including prohibition or divestment.

C. The commissioner may count toward satisfaction of the minimum asset requirement any assets in which an insurer is required to invest under the laws of a country other than the United States as a condition for doing business in that country if the commissioner finds that counting them does not endanger the interests of insureds, creditors or the general public.

D. If the commissioner is satisfied by evidence of the solidity of an insurer and the competence of management and its investment advisors, the commissioner, after a hearing, may by order adjust the class limitations in Section 8, for that insurer, to the extent that the commissioner is satisfied that the interests of insureds, creditors and the public of this state are sufficiently protected in other ways. Adjustments granted with respect to Section 8, in aggregate, are limited to an amount equal to ten percent (10%) of the insurer's liabilities.

Section 15. Administrative Hearings

A. An insurer aggrieved by an order or any other act or failure to act of the commissioner regarding compliance with this Act or regulations promulgated under this Act may request a hearing by following the procedures of [insert citation to statutes on requesting hearings before the commissioner].

B. The commissioner shall hold hearings under this section privately unless the insurer requests a public hearing, in which case the hearing shall be public.

Drafting Note: This section is written to permit insurers to request or participate in hearings whether the cause of aggrievement is direct or indirect. This section contemplates that a state's hearing officer or other authorized public official may apply administrative law to make appropriate determinations of a complainant's standing. If a state's administrative statutes or regulations with respect to hearings bar any standing to parties other than those directly aggrieved by an act or omission of the commissioner, then the word "directly" should be inserted in Section 15A after "insurer" and before "aggrieved."

Drafting Note: If a state does not confine hearing requests and participation to only those parties that are directly aggrieved by an act or omission of the commissioner, then consideration must be given to the procedures that will be employed to publicize the subject of pending hearings and adjudge the standing of each party at interest that is not directly, but only indirectly, aggrieved. To allow participation of indirectly aggrieved parties in closed proceedings without adequate publication and screening procedures is likely to bias proceedings in that only parties in favor with those directly at interest would have an opportunity to seek standing and redress. This model law is silent with respect to specific publication and screening requirements.

Section 16. Confidentiality of Information

The investment policy, or information related to the investment policy provided to the commissioner for review under this Act shall be considered confidential and shall not be a public record or subject to subpoena, except as [insert citations to statutes on filing financial statements with the commissioner, statutes on examinations, and statutes on rehabilitation and liquidation] may permit disclosure.

Section 17. Conflict of Laws and Other Standards

A. This Act shall prevail over any other statute except [cite state holding company law] purporting to authorize an insurer to make a particular investment if the other statute was enacted before [fill in effective date], and shall prevail over any statute enacted thereafter unless the latter negates the application of this section or of particular provisions in this Act by specifically designating them by number.

B. An insurer shall value its assets in accordance with the valuation standards of the NAIC to the extent those standards are consistent with the statutes of this state or regulations or orders of the commissioner.

Drafting Note: If a state's insurance code and regulations contain provisions substantially similar to this section, the state may consider deleting this section or replacing this section with language contained in other portions of its code.

Section 18. Regulations

A. The commissioner may, in accordance with [insert citation to administrative procedures act or other statutes concerning promulgation of regulations], promulgate regulations interpreting and implementing the provisions of this Act.

B. The commissioner may, in accordance with [insert citation to administrative procedures, act, or other statutes concerning promulgation of regulations], promulgate special investment restrictions as follows:

(1) The commissioner may by regulation prescribe for defined classes of insurers special procedural requirements including special reports, prior approval or subsequent disapproval of investments.

(2) The commissioner may by regulation prescribe substantive restrictions on investments of defined classes of insurers, including:

(a) Specification of classes of assets that may not be counted toward satisfaction of the minimum asset requirement even though they may be counted for unrestricted insurers;

(b) Specification of maximum amounts of assets that may be invested in a single investment, or an issue, a class or a group of classes of investments, expressed as percentages of total assets, capital, surplus, legal reserves or other variables;

(c) Prescription of qualitative tests for investments and conditions under which investments may be made, including requirements of specified ratings from investment advisory services, listing on specified stock exchanges, collateral, marketability, currency matching and the financial and legal status of the issuer and its earnings capacity.

C. If the commissioner is satisfied by evidence of the solidity of an insurer and the competence of management and its investment advisors, the commissioner, after a hearing, may by order grant an exemption to that insurer from any restriction under Subsection B of this section to the extent that the commissioner is satisfied that the interests of insureds, creditors and the general public of this state are protected in other ways.

ANNOTATIONS

INVESTMENTS OF INSURERS MODEL ACT
(Defined Standards Version)

Section 3

Annotation 1: This Act references certain capital standards, provides a framework in which these standards relate to the investment laws, and establishes consequences for failure to meet capital standards. To the extent an insurer's investment program is imprudent, the insurer is unsound.

The minimum financial security benchmark and the minimum asset requirement together form the cornerstone for this Act's approach. This approach represents an effort to solve the basic dilemma in regulating insurer investments: (1) that the investment staffs of most insurers are better equipped than the insurance department or the legislature to make decisions about the appropriate investment programs for themselves, and (2) that this is not true of all insurers. Managements of insurers are not equally wise, skilled or responsible. While many will agree that the expertise of an individual insurer with respect to setting its investment policy usually equals or exceeds that of regulators and legislators, many will also agree that allowing complete discretion on the part of an insurer would be an unsound means of protecting the public interest.

Setting a reasonable minimum financial security benchmark, and thus, a minimum asset requirement, for which a more stringent investment regulatory framework is used, allows a high level of company discretion for investments above the minimum asset requirement while still providing adequate regulatory protections for policyholders and claimants from adverse insurer financial results.

This section sets a minimum asset requirement under which invested assets counted toward satisfaction of the requirement must be invested according to the limitations and restrictions of this Act. Assets in excess of the minimum asset requirement would not be subject to these limitations and restrictions, except in qualified circumstances, and may be invested in accordance with the insurer's own written investment policy.

The key to this regulatory approach to investments, then, is the setting of the minimum financial security benchmark. States should consider the nature of the business, (e.g., property and casualty, life, health, financial guaranty, etc.) in looking at the factors for setting the minimum financial security benchmark. The various levels contained in the NAIC's risk-based capital models may be an appropriate standard for states to consider in setting the minimum financial security benchmark. In addition, from an enforcement and solvency regulation standpoint, it is important that the minimum financial security benchmark, and thus, the minimum asset requirement, be tied to the state's liquidation and rehabilitation laws. This means that an insurer failing to meet the minimum asset requirement would be considered in hazardous or potentially hazardous financial condition, allowing the commissioner to take appropriate regulatory action.

It is essential to describe three concepts for capital requirement in order to convey an understanding of this Act's approach.

1. The "minimum capital" (for stock corporations) and "minimum surplus" (for mutuals) are intended to provide solidity at the time a new corporation is launched, and for a reasonable time into the future, during the formative period. The amount needed depends on what the new insurer intends to do, and is fixed on the basis of the information given to the commissioner at the time of incorporation. This concept is included in this Act as Section 3A (1)(b).

   After formation, the financial needs of a company will change as it develops and expands its operations. A minimum capital or surplus fixed permanently at the time of incorporation is too static to satisfy developing needs. If the minimum capital or surplus were to accommodate all possible or imaginable developments, it would be so large that it would prevent all new incorporations.

2. The "minimum financial security benchmark" is designed to measure the minimum capital requirements of a going concern; it expands as the financial needs of the corporation expand, but it may also contract with them. It is the amount of surplus necessary to provide reasonable security against contingencies affecting the insurer's financial position that are not fully covered by reserves or by reinsurance. It is the lowest permissible figure, below which the insurer's operation could have to be considered so hazardous as to permit, but not require, delinquency proceedings. This concept is included as Section 3A (1)(a).
   The authorized control level risk-based capital may be seen by some states as being too small a margin of safety.

Some states may consider it advisable for an insurer at that point to have already initiated changes to its investment practices, or even to have been placed in liquidation or rehabilitation. Section 3A (3) offers a means to establish a higher standard for specific classes of insurers. Section 3A (2) permits the commissioner to establish a higher standard for a specific insurer by issuance of an order.

3. The "proper surplus" for a particular company's operation is a level for the determination of an insurer's board of directors, in consultation with management. Their viewpoint on the subject is constrained by the minimums imposed by other concepts of capital requirement. Desirable ratings from the principal rating agencies, for example, can be expected to require surplus in excess of the minimum financial security benchmark. "Proper surplus" does not require statutory definition.

Section 4

Annotation 2: This section is not intended to require strict matching of asset and liability cash flows nor to suggest that the insurer's investment staff or its investment consultants cannot undertake the required analysis of cash flows.

Annotation 3: For some insurers, such as farm mutuals, county mutuals, fraternals, etc., recognition of each of the factors might be confined to a written acknowledgment that one or two investment classes are the only classes appropriate for that company under a multitude of conditions. For a multistate or multinational company, a periodically revised, sophisticated appraisal of the economy and its effect on the company's operations, products and investments would be appropriate. The necessary degree of technical sophistication will legitimately vary based upon the type and size of the insurer.

Section 6

Annotation 4: The insurer's board of directors has the central responsibility for formulating and assuring implementation of the investment policy. The purpose of this section is to encourage the board of directors to define long-range objectives appropriate to the insurer, set a written investment policy consistent with these objectives, and make sure that management is following the plan. A good written investment policy promotes a clear understanding of objectives by both management and board, thereby preventing rash actions during inevitable periods of volatility. Most importantly, an investment policy can help an insurer to avoid running afoul of the law, or to jeopardize its policyholders' interests through poor investment choices. Regulatory review can assure that the investment plan document exists, and appears competent in its preparation.

Despite these potentially salutary effects, review of the investment plan is ill suited as the primary basis for regulatory enforcement. Indeed, this Act has no automatic filing requirement for an insurer's investment policy; rather, the commissioner may request it under Section 12 or may require automatic filing by a regulation promulgated under Section 18. As written, this Act does not contemplate formal approval of an insurer's investment policy by the commissioner.

The reason for this approach is that a plan, by its very nature, is strictly prospective. Regulatory enforcement must also consider actions and their results. An assessment of the prospective advisability of any insurer's written investment plan is subject to highly technical and academic argumentation. When an insurer's investment policy results in adverse financial trends, decisive action is needed, not ponderous symposia of investment theory before a court of law.

Section 7

Annotation 5: States could adopt an entirely different plan of investment categories based on an independently commissioned study, retain their existing investment categories, or seek guidance from the defined limits version of this Act. A state's history and indigenous industries may serve as useful considerations. For example, if oil exploration and refining have long been an important part of a given state's economy, and persons possessing the requisite knowledge and interest are thus more commonly found among residents of that state than throughout the nation at large, a special category for that investment may be worthy of consideration. Alternatively, a state may decide that its dependence on a particular industry is so substantial that it may wish to encourage its financial institutions to diversify, and accordingly, establish no preferential category.

Section 8

Annotation 6: States could adopt limitations based on an independently commissioned study, retain their existing limitations, or seek guidance from the defined limits version of this Act. Whatever authorized classes of investments or generally applicable limitations that a state chooses to adopt, the degree of financial strength exhibited by an insurer should have a direct bearing on its degree of investment freedom. Three points should be made to explain the value of these types of restrictions in the context of a defined standards investment law:

1. The ability to absorb investment risk varies inversely to the level of existing underwriting risk. The existence of restrictions of the type proposed for assets equal to liabilities plus a minimum surplus requirement will force a gradual transition to conservatism on the part of an insurer as its surplus position deteriorates. At the very least, this will check the worst excesses that can result from the well-known tendency of money-losing insurers to seek high-risk investment solutions to underwriting problems. It must be kept in mind that, while the risks of underwriting and investment closely relate to one another, the solutions to problems that can and do arise in either sphere of activity are mutually exclusive. Underwriting problems require underwriting solutions. Investment problems require investment solutions.

2. These limits exist for the regulator's guidance. Limits should not be set at the level one would willingly accord to the most skilled and most financially capable investor, but rather at the level at which the commissioner should be prompted to make an inquiry. There is a point at which responsible industry participants and the general public should want the commissioner's staff to make an inquiry about the activities of potentially irresponsible industry participants.

3. The proposed limits do not bar insurers with capital in excess of the minimum asset requirement from investing their discretionary capital as they please, subject to their own written investment policy.

Section 9

Annotation 7: This section recognizes that the ability to absorb investment risk varies inversely to the level of underwriting risk, and that this principle will generally apply to international operations as well as domestic operations.

If an insurer perceives that acceptable underwriting risks may be located in foreign nations with extremely unstable currencies and without suitable investment opportunities, the commissioner may waive requirements to hold the foreign-denominated securities that would otherwise be required through an order issued pursuant to Section 14B.

If alien requirements call for a larger investment in foreign-denominated assets than would otherwise count in satisfaction of the minimum asset requirement, Section 14C would authorize the commissioner to count these assets if doing so does not endanger the interests of insureds, creditors or the general public.

These exceptional circumstances do not undermine the principle that if an insurer has contracted to make payment in a given currency, it should have assets in that currency available to honor its obligations. Hedging will not normally be adequate in the case of significant, ongoing business commitments to a given alien insurance market.

Section 10

Annotation 8: Section 10B is a mechanism for the disposal of prohibited investments. It is not enough for a law merely to declare that certain investment practices or instruments are illegal. There must be a specific mechanism to effect a disposition or other resolution of the problem. Section 10B is one way, but not the only way, to respond to this necessity. For certain types of illegal investments or practices, a state might not want to include the hardship qualifications contemplated in this Act.

Section 11

Annotation 9: The crucial enforcement mechanism of this Act is that assets, which are not in compliance with this Act, do not count toward the minimum asset requirement. If an insurer does not meet the minimum asset requirement, then under Section 11D, the insurer may be deemed to be in financially hazardous condition, and the commissioner may commence delinquency proceedings against the insurer. The statutes enumerating the grounds for liquidation and rehabilitation should be modified to cross-reference to Section 11D if this Act is adopted by a state.

Section 12

Annotation 10: This Act does not specify sanctions that apply to concealment or falsification of records, or refusal to provide reports and replies (other than on the basis of one's rights under the constitution of the United States or of the constitution of this state). As the effectiveness of a discretion-based system depends upon the ability of the commissioner to acquire timely and accurate information, states should consider the need for appropriate sanctions applicable to violations of this section. For example, some state insurance codes provide, as an ultimate penalty, that concealment or falsification of records is one of the grounds for liquidation or rehabilitation.

Annotation 11: From time to time, persons, in following the law, will be called upon to make a report or reply that, answered with integrity, will place them in conflict with an insurer's board or management. It must be acknowledged that the limited immunity granted by this Act to persons making legally required communications or cooperating with an investigation would not fully protect persons from all possible forms of reprisal. This Act does not deal comprehensively with the question of legal immunities, or redress available to persons injured by unjustifiable reprisal. It is hoped that a broader consideration of these matters is to be found elsewhere within a state's laws. This Act concerns itself with providing a minimum level of protection from unjustifiable reprisals through the legal system. At a minimum, a person acting without malice should not be placed in legal jeopardy for complying with state law or cooperating with an investigation by governmental authorities.

Section 13

Annotation 12: The professional expertise and financial resources necessary to handle the review and investigation of most investment matters should be available through customary funding sources already in place. However, it is desirable that one option be to directly charge insurers to fund the cost of expert assistance on complex or highly technical investment questions that may arise in consequence of an insurer's investment plans or practices. It is difficult to anticipate the full extent of such special needs in the budget process. In addition, state governments often severely limit contingency funds in a conscientious effort to prevent waste. The funding mechanism for examinations is not necessarily sufficient, because it is not always feasible or desirable to call an examination when the matter at hand is limited in scope. Care should be taken to keep direct charges or other assessments made pursuant to this Act from being abused as blank checks, or as a form of ongoing taxation without explicit legislative approval.

Section 14

Annotation 13: Flexibility of response is critical to conscientious regulation of the insurance industry. Insurers vary by management quality, product mix, size, territory and reserving practices, to name only a few differences. A single set of standards cannot adequately encompass the investment requirements of every niche insurer in the industry, an industry filled with niche insurers. Regulations that do not consider this fragmentation of the industry will unduly restrict management initiative and judgment in certain lines of business, thereby raising the price and reducing the availability of insurance in certain lines.

Effective and ethical use of discretionary powers is essential to retain public confidence. The responsible regulator, much like the responsible insurance company executive, must keep the interests of insureds, creditors and the general public ever in mind. Even the most carefully designed investment laws will not protect the people of a state in which the regulators cannot or will not enforce the law.

The discretion provided to the commissioner in this Act is essential to permit regulation of an insurer's investments because of their complexities and uncertainties and because of competitive forces and changes in the insurance business and in the investment markets. This Act is not intended to be the sole source of the commissioner's regulatory authority, but is to be used in conjunction with and in harmony with the other regulatory tools available to the commissioner.

Section 16

Annotation 14: Transparency in financial and regulatory actions allows market and social forces to encourage both responsible insurance management and responsible insurance regulation. In addition, the hallmark of our free capital market is that few, if any, opportunities to establish a proprietary long-term competitive advantage can be found and preserved on an enduring basis. Accordingly, if a state has a strong open records law, care should be taken not to allow an overly broad construction of confidentiality beyond correspondence and communications of material that is clearly unique and proprietary. The investment policy of an insurer should be extended privileged status. However, mere reference, even detailed reference, to the subject of investment should not automatically result in classified status for the communication.

Section 17

Annotation 15: Well-designed laws are based upon careful consideration of the history of the jurisdiction to which they are intended to apply, and on an understanding of the legal climate in that jurisdiction. A state should not adopt this Act unless it has been adapted to meet the specific situation of the history, insurance industry, general economy, and legal precedents of the state. If a state's adoption of the regulatory approach suggested by this Act represents a significant departure from precedent, various conflicts of law are only to be expected despite the most diligent efforts to avoid them. This section suggests one way, but not the only way, of minimizing the impact of these situations.

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. INVESTMENTS OF INSURERS MODEL ACT (#283)
(Defined Standards Version)

Proposed amendments to the Investments of Insurers Model Act (Defined Standards Version) are before the Executive Committee at the 2001 Fall National Meeting to be considered for adoption. The amendments were adopted at the 2001 Summer National Meeting by the Financial Condition (E) Committee and were drafted by a subgroup of the Insurance Holding Company (E) Working Group.[1] The subgroup that drafted the amendments was chaired by Sara Waitt (TX). Other states that participated on the subgroup were Arkansas, California, Georgia, Illinois, New York, North Carolina and South Carolina. There was also substantial participation by insurance industry representatives in the drafting process. Representatives of the American Council of Life Insurance (ACLI), the American Insurance Association (AIA), individual insurance companies and law firms with insurance regulatory practices were regular participants in the subgroup meetings.

The specific charge to the working group arose out of the NAIC's initiative to address issues related to the implementation of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (GLBA) in November 1999. The working group was appointed in February 2000. and is co-chaired by Commissioners Gross (VA) and Montemayor (TX). The charge to the working group was to "consider the implications of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act on the state-based solvency monitoring structure, including holding companies, financial examinations, financial analysis and coordination among state insurance departments." The amendments are intended to bring the model act into conformity with specific provisions of GLBA. Following is a section-by-section explanation of the proposed amendments:

8B This section provides for a similar general limitation on investments in any one entity. Section 306 of GLBA provides that the state of domicile of the insurer may limit the investment in the voting securities of a depository institution or its affiliates to 5% of admitted assets. This section should be amended to incorporate the requirement imposed by GLBA.

The first draft of proposed amendments was exposed on November 15, 1000. Two additional drafts were issued. There were no contentious issues with respect to the proposed amendments.

[1] The Insurance Holding Company (E) Working Group was formerly the Financial Services Holding Company Analysis/Examination/Review (E) Working Group.

DISCLOSURE OF MATERIAL TRANSACTIONS MODEL ACT

Table of Contents

Section 1. Report

A. Every insurer domiciled in this state shall file a report with the commissioner disclosing material acquisitions and dispositions of assets or material nonrenewals, cancellations or revisions of ceded reinsurance agreements or material new ceded reinsurance agreements affecting in force life insurance business unless the acquisitions and dispositions of assets or material nonrenewals, cancellations or revisions of ceded reinsurance agreements or material new ceded reinsurance agreements affecting in force life insurance business have been submitted to the commissioner for review, approval or information purposes pursuant to other provisions of the insurance code, laws, regulations, or other requirements.

B. The report required in Subsection A is due within fifteen (15) days after the end of the calendar month in which any of the foregoing transactions occur.

C. One complete copy of the report, including any exhibits or other attachments, shall be filed with:

(1) The insurance department of the insurer's state of domicile; and

(2) The National Association of Insurance Commissioners.

Section 2. Acquisitions and Dispositions of Assets

A. Materiality.

No acquisitions or dispositions of assets need be reported pursuant to Section 1 if the acquisitions or dispositions are not material. For purposes of this Act, a material acquisition (or the aggregate of any series of related acquisitions during any thirty-day period) or disposition (or the aggregate of any series of related dispositions during any thirty-day period) is one that is non-recurring and not in the ordinary course of business and involves more than five percent (5%) of the reporting insurer's total admitted assets as reported in its most recent statutory statement filed with the insurance department of the insurer's state of domicile.

B. Scope.

(1) Asset acquisitions subject to this Act include every purchase, lease, exchange, merger, consolidation, succession or other acquisition other than the construction or development of real property by or for the reporting insurer or the acquisition of materials for such purpose.

(2) Asset dispositions subject to this Act include every sale, lease, exchange, merger, consolidation, mortgage, hypothecation, assignment (whether for the benefit of creditors or otherwise), abandonment, destruction or other disposition.

C. Information to be Reported.

(1) The following information is required to be disclosed in any report of a material acquisition or disposition of assets:

(a) Date of the transaction;

(b) Manner of acquisition or disposition;

(c) Description of the assets involved;

(d) Nature and amount of the consideration given or received;

(e) Purpose of, or reason for, the transaction;

(f) Manner by which the amount of consideration was determined;

(g) Gain or loss recognized or realized as a result of the transaction; and

(h) Names of the persons from whom the assets were acquired or to whom they were disposed.

(2) Insurers are required to report material acquisitions and dispositions on a non-consolidated basis unless the insurer is part of a consolidated group of insurers which utilizes a pooling arrangement or 100 percent reinsurance agreement that affects the solvency and integrity of the insurer's reserves and the insurer ceded substantially all of its direct and assumed business to the pool. An insurer is deemed to have ceded substantially all of its direct and assumed business to a pool if the insurer has less than $1,000,000 total direct plus assumed written premiums during a calendar year that are not subject to a pooling arrangement and the net income of the business not subject to the pooling arrangement represents less than five percent (5%) of the insurer's capital and surplus.

Section 3. Nonrenewals, Cancellations or Revisions of Ceded Reinsurance Agreements

A. Materiality and Scope.

(1) No nonrenewals, cancellations or revisions of ceded reinsurance agreements or new ceded reinsurance agreements affecting in force life insurance business need be reported pursuant to Section 1 if the nonrenewals, cancellations or revisions of ceded reinsurance agreements or new ceded reinsurance agreements affecting in force life insurance business are not material. For purposes of this Act, a material nonrenewal, cancellation or revision of a ceded reinsurance agreement or a material new ceded reinsurance agreement affecting in force life insurance business is one that affects:

(a) As respects property and casualty business, including accident and health business written by a property and casualty insurer:

(i) More than fifty percent (50%) of the insurer's total ceded written premium; or

(ii) More than fifty percent (50%) of the insurer's total ceded indemnity and loss adjustment reserves.

(b) As respects life, annuity, and accident and health business: more than fifty percent (50%) of the total reserve credit taken for business ceded, on an annualized basis, as indicated in the insurer's most recent annual statement.

(c) As respects either property and casualty or life, annuity, and accident and health business, either of the following events shall constitute a material revision which must be reported:

(i) An authorized reinsurer representing more than ten percent (10%) of a total cession is replaced by one or more unauthorized reinsurers; or

(ii) Previously established collateral requirements have been reduced or waived as respects one or more unauthorized reinsurers representing collectively more than ten percent (10%) of a total cession.

(2) However, no filing shall be required if:

(a) As respects property and casualty business, including accident and health business written by a property and casualty insurer: the insurer's total ceded written premium represents, on an annualized basis, less than ten percent (10%) of its total written premium for direct and assumed business, or

(b) As respects life, annuity, and accident and health business: the total reserve credit taken for business ceded represents, on an annualized basis, less than ten percent (10%) of the statutory reserve requirement prior to any cession.

B. Information to be reported.

(1) The following information is required to be disclosed in any report of a material nonrenewal, cancellation or revision of ceded reinsurance agreements or material new ceded reinsurance agreements affecting in force life insurance business:

(a) Effective date of the nonrenewal, cancellation, revision or new agreement;

(b) The description of the transaction with an identification of the initiator thereof;

(c) Purpose of, or reason for, the transaction; and

(d) If applicable, the identity of the replacement reinsurers.

(2) Insurers are required to report all material nonrenewals, cancellations or revisions of ceded reinsurance agreements or material new ceded reinsurance agreements affecting in force life insurance business on a non-consolidated basis unless the insurer is part of a consolidated group of insurers which utilizes a pooling arrangement or 100 percent reinsurance agreement that affects the solvency and integrity of the insurer's reserves and the insurer ceded substantially all of its direct and assumed business to the pool. An insurer is deemed to have ceded substantially all of its direct and assumed business to a pool if the insurer has less than $1,000,000 total direct plus assumed written premiums during a calendar year that are not subject to a pooling arrangement and the net income of the business not subject to the pooling arrangement represents less than five percent (5%) of the insurer's capital and surplus.

Section 4. Confidentiality

A. All reports obtained by or disclosed to the commissioner pursuant to this Act in the possession or control of the Department of Insurance, shall be confidential by law and privileged, shall not be subject to [insert open records, freedom of information, sunshine or other appropriate phrase], shall not be subject to subpoena, and shall not be subject to discovery or admissible in evidence in any private civil action without the prior written consent of the insurer to which it pertains. However, the commissioner is authorized to use the documents, materials or other information in the furtherance of any regulatory or legal action brought as a part of the commissioner's official duties.

B. After giving the insurer who would be affected notice and an opportunity to be heard, the commissioner may determine that the interest of policyholders, shareholders or the public will be served by publication of the information subject to Subsection A, in which event the commissioner may publish all or any part in the manner the commissioner may deem appropriate.

C. Neither the commissioner nor any person who received documents, materials or other information while acting under the authority of the commissioner shall be permitted or required to testify in any private civil action concerning any confidential documents, materials or information subject to Subsection A.

D. In order to assist in the performance of the commissioner's duties, the commissioner:

(1) May share documents, materials or other information, including the confidential and privileged documents, materials or information subject to Subsection A, with other state, federal and international regulatory agencies, with the NAIC and its affiliates and subsidiaries, and with state, federal and international law enforcement authorities, provided that the recipient agrees to maintain the confidentiality and privileged status of the document, material or other information;

(2) May receive documents, materials or information, including otherwise confidential and privileged documents, materials or information, from the NAIC and its affiliates and subsidiaries, and from regulatory and law enforcement officials of other foreign or domestic jurisdictions, and shall maintain as confidential or privileged any document, material or information received with notice or the understanding that it is confidential or privileged under the laws of the jurisdiction that is the source of the document, material or information; and

(3) [Optional provision] May enter into agreements governing sharing and use of information consistent with this subsection.

Drafting Note: The language in Subsection D(1) assumes the recipient has the authority to protect the applicable confidentiality or privilege, but does not address the verification of that authority, which would presumably occur in the context of a broader information sharing agreement.

E. No waiver of any applicable privilege or claim of confidentiality in the documents, materials or information shall occur as a result of disclosure to the commissioner under this section or as a result of sharing as authorized in Subsection D.

Section 5. Effective Date

This Act shall take effect on [insert date].

DISCLOSURE OF MATERIAL TRANSACTIONS MODEL ACT

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. To perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

Who do I speak to if I have questions?

PROTECTED CELL COMPANY MODEL ACT

Table of Contents

Section 1. Short Title

This Act may be cited as the "Protected Cell Company Act."

Section 2. Purpose

This Act is adopted to provide a basis for the creation of protected cells by a domestic insurer as one means of accessing alternative sources of capital and achieving the benefits of insurance securitization. Investors in fully funded insurance securitization transactions provide funds that are available to pay the insurer's insurance obligations or to repay the investors or both. The creation of protected cells is intended to be a means to achieve more efficiencies in conducting insurance securitizations.

Drafting Note: Under the terms of the typical debt instrument underlying an insurance securitization transaction, prepaid principal is repaid to the investor on a specified maturity date with interest, unless a trigger event occurs. The insurance securitization proceeds secure both the protected cell company's insurance obligations if a trigger event occurs, as well as the protected cell company's obligation to repay the insurance securitization investors if a trigger event does not occur. Insurance securitization transactions have been performed through alien companies in order to utilize efficiencies available to alien companies that are not currently available to domestic companies. This Act is adopted in order to create more efficiency in conducting insurance securitization, to allow domestic protected cell companies easier access to alternative sources of capital, and to promote the benefits of insurance securitization generally.

Section 3. Definitions

For the purposes of this Act, the following terms shall have the following meanings:

A. "Domestic insurer" means an insurer domiciled in the State of [insert state].

B. "Fair value" of an asset (or liability) means the amount at which that asset (or liability) could be bought (or incurred) or sold (or settled) in a current transaction between willing parties, that is, other than in a forced or liquidation sale. Quoted market prices in active markets are the best evidence of fair value and shall be used as the basis for the measurement, if available. If a quoted market price is available, the fair value is the product of the number of trading units times market price. If quoted market prices are not available, the estimate of fair value shall be based on the best information available. The estimate of fair value shall consider prices for similar assets and liabilities and the results of valuation techniques to the extent available in the circumstances. Examples of valuation techniques include the present value of estimated expected future cash flows using a discount rate commensurate with the risks involved, option-pricing models, matrix pricing, option-adjusted spread models, and fundamental analysis. Valuation techniques for measuring financial assets and liabilities and servicing assets and liabilities shall be consistent with the objective of measuring fair value. Those techniques shall incorporate assumptions that market participants would use in their estimates of values, future revenues, and future expenses, including assumptions about interest rates, default, prepayment, and volatility. In measuring financial liabilities and servicing liabilities at fair value by discounting estimated future cash flows, an objective is to use discount rates at which those liabilities could be settled in an arm's-length transaction. Estimates of expected future cash flows, if used to estimate fair value, shall be the best estimate based on reasonable and supportable assumptions and projections. All available evidence shall be considered in developing estimates of expected future cash flows. The weight given to the evidence shall be commensurate with the extent to which the evidence can
