(2) The insurer may elect a cash settlement based upon the actual cost, less any deductible provided in the policy, to purchase a comparable automobile including all applicable taxes, license fees and other fees incident to transfer of evidence of ownership of a comparable automobile. Such cost may be derived from:

(a) The cost of two or more comparable automobiles in the local market area when comparable automobiles are available or were available within the last ninety (90) days to consumers in the local market area; or

(b) The cost of two (2) or more comparable automobiles in areas proximate to the local market area, including the closest major metropolitan areas within or without the state, that are available or were available within the last ninety (90) days to consumers when comparable automobiles are not available in the local market area pursuant to Subparagraph (a); or

(c) One of two or more quotations obtained by the insurer from two or more licensed dealers located within the local market area when the cost of comparable automobiles are not available pursuant to (a) and (b) above; or

(d) Any source for determining statistically valid fair market values that meet all of the following criteria:

(i) The source shall give primary consideration to the values of vehicles in the local market area and may consider data on vehicles outside the area;

(ii) The source's database shall produce values for at least eighty-five percent (85%) of all makes and models for the last fifteen (15) model years taking into account the values of all major options for such vehicles; and

(iii) The source shall produce fair market values based on current data available from the area surrounding the location where the insured vehicle was principally garaged or a necessary expansion of parameters (such as time and area) to assure statistical validity.

(e) Right of Recourse—If the insurer is notified within thirty-five (35) days of the receipt of the claim draft that the insured cannot purchase a comparable vehicle for the market value, the company shall reopen its claim file and the following procedures shall apply:

(i) The company may locate a comparable vehicle by the same manufacturer, same year, similar body style and similar options and price range for the insured for the market value determined by the company at the time of settlement. Any such vehicle must be available through licensed dealers;

(ii) The company shall either pay the insured the difference between the market value before applicable deductions and the cost of the comparable vehicle of like kind and quality which the insured has located, or negotiate and effect the purchase of this vehicle for the insured;

(iii) The company may elect to offer a replacement in accordance with the provisions set forth in Section 8A(1); or

(iv) The company may conclude the loss settlement as provided for under the appraisal section of the insurance contract in force at the time of loss. This appraisal shall be considered as binding against both parties, but shall not preclude or waive any other rights either party has under the insurance contract or a common law.

The company is not required to take action under this subsection if its documentation to the insured at the time of settlement included written notification of the availability and location of a specified and comparable vehicle of the same manufacturer, same year, similar body style and similar options in as good or better condition as the total loss vehicle which could have been purchased for the market value determined by the company before applicable deductions. The documentation shall include the vehicle identification number.

(3) When a first party automobile total loss is settled on a basis which deviates from the methods described in Subsection A(1) and A(2) of this section, the deviation must be supported by documentation giving particulars of the automobile condition. Any deductions from the cost, including deduction for salvage, must be measurable, discernible, itemized and specified as to dollar amount and shall be appropriate in amount. The basis for the settlement shall be fully explained to the first party claimant.

B. Where liability and damages are reasonably clear, insurers shall not recommend that third party claimants make claim under their own policies solely to avoid paying claims under such insurer's policy.

C. Insurers shall not require a claimant to travel an unreasonable distance either to inspect a replacement automobile, to obtain a repair estimate or to have the automobile repaired at a specific repair shop.

D. Insurers shall, upon the claimant's request, include the first party claimant's deductible, if any, in subrogation demands. Subrogation recoveries shall be shared on a proportionate basis with the first party claimant, unless the deductible amount has been otherwise recovered. No deduction for expenses can be made from the deductible recovery unless an outside attorney is retained to collect such recovery. The deduction may then be for only a pro rata share of the allocated loss adjustment expense.

E. Vehicle Repairs. If partial losses are settled on the basis of a written estimate prepared by or for the insurer, the insurer shall supply the insured a copy of the estimate upon which the settlement is based. The estimate prepared by or for the insurer shall be reasonable, in accordance with applicable policy provisions, and of an amount which will allow for repairs to be made in a workmanlike manner. If the insured subsequently claims, based upon a written estimate which he obtains, that necessary repairs will exceed the written estimate prepared by or for the insurer, the insurer shall (1) pay the difference between the written estimate and a higher estimate obtained by the insured, or (2) promptly provide the insured with the name of at least one repair shop that will make the repairs for the amount of the written estimate. If the insurer designates only one or two such repairers, the insurer shall assure that the repairs are performed in a workmanlike manner. The insurer shall maintain documentation of all such communications.

F. When the amount claimed is reduced because of betterment or depreciation all information for such reduction shall be contained in the claim file. The deductions shall be itemized and specified as to dollar amount and shall be appropriate for the amount of deductions.

G. When the insurer elects to repair and designates a specific repair shop for automobile repairs, the insurer shall cause the damaged automobile to be restored to its condition prior to the loss at no additional cost to the claimant other than as stated in the policy and within a reasonable period of time.

H. Storage and Towing. The insurer shall provide reasonable notice to an insured prior to termination of payment for automobile storage charges and documentation of the denial as required by Section 4. Such insurer shall provide reasonable time for the insured to remove the vehicle from storage prior to the termination of payment. Unless the insurer has provided an insured with the name of a specific towing company prior to the insured's use of another towing company, the insurer shall pay any and all reasonable towing charges irrespective of the towing company used by the insured.

I. Betterment deductions are allowable only if the deductions:

(1) (a) Reflect a measurable decrease in market value attributable to the poorer condition of, or prior damage to, the vehicle;

(b) Reflect the general overall condition of the vehicle, considering its age, for either or both:

(i) The wear and tear or rust, limited to no more than a deduction of $1,000;

(ii) Missing parts, limited to no more of a deduction than the replacement costs of the part or parts.

(2) Any deductions set forth in (1)(a) or (b) above must be measurable, itemized, specified as to dollar amount and documented in the claim file.

(3) No insurer shall require the insured or claimant to supply parts for replacement.

J. Replacement Crash Parts

(1) Purpose

The purpose of this subsection is to set forth standards for the prompt, fair and equitable settlements applicable to automobile insurance with regard to the use of replacement crash parts. It is intended to regulate the use of replacement crash parts in automobile damage repairs which insurers pay for on their insured's vehicle. It also requires that all replacement crash parts, as defined in this section, be identified and be of the same quality as the original part.

(2) "Replacement crash part," for purposes of this regulation, means sheet metal or plastic parts which generally constitute the exterior of a motor vehicle, including inner and outer panels.

(3) Identification

All replacement crash parts, which are subject to this section and manufactured after the effective date of this section, shall carry sufficient permanent non-removable identification so as to identify its manufacturer. Such identification shall be accessible to the extent possible after installation.

(4) Like Kind and Quality

No insurer shall require the use of replacement crash parts in the repair of an automobile unless the replacement crash part is at least equal in kind and quality to the original part in terms of fit, quality and performance. Insurers specifying the use of replacement crash parts shall consider the cost of any modifications which may become necessary when making the repair.

Drafting Note: Subsection J incorporates the fundamental provisions of the NAIC 1987 "After Market Parts Model Regulation" and makes requirements applicable to all replacement crash parts. Adoption of this subsection is the recommended approach.

Section 9. Standards for Prompt, Fair and Equitable Settlements Applicable to Fire and Extended Coverage Type Policies with Replacement Cost Coverage

A. When the policy provides for the adjustment and settlement of first party losses based on replacement cost, the following shall apply:

(1) When a loss requires repair or replacement of an item or part, any consequential physical damage incurred in making such repair or replacement not otherwise excluded by the policy, shall be included in the loss. The insured shall not have to pay for betterment nor any other cost except for the applicable deductible.

(2) When a loss requires replacement of items and the replaced items do not match in quality, color or size, the insurer shall replace all items in the area so as to conform to a reasonably uniform appearance. This applies to interior and exterior losses. The insured shall not bear any cost over the applicable deductible, if any.

B. Actual Cash Value:

(1) When the insurance policy provides for the adjustment and settlement of losses on an actual cash value basis on residential fire and extended coverage, the insurer shall determine actual cash value as follows: replacement cost of property at time of loss less depreciation, if any. Upon the insured's request, the insurer shall provide a copy of the claim file worksheets detailing any and all deductions for depreciation.

(2) In cases in which the insured's interest is limited because the property has nominal or no economic value, or a value disproportionate to replacement cost less depreciation, the determination of actual cash value as set forth above is not required. In such cases, the insurer shall provide, upon the insured's request, a written explanation of the basis for limiting the amount of recovery along with the amount payable under the policy.

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. To perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

Who do I speak to if I have questions?

If you have questions or believe information related to a state should be updated, please contact Jennifer Neuerburg at jneuerburg@naic.org.

Disclaimer: This chart does not constitute a formal legal opinion by the NAIC staff on the provisions of state law and should not be relied upon as such. Nor does this state page reflect a determination as to whether a state meets any applicable accreditation standards. Every effort has been made to provide correct and accurate summaries to assist readers in locating useful information. Readers should consult state law for further details and for the most current information.

UNFAIR LIFE, ACCIDENT AND HEALTH CLAIMS SETTLEMENT PRACTICES MODEL REGULATION

Table of Contents

Section 1. Authority

This regulation is adopted under the authority of the Unfair Claims Settlement Practices Act.

Section 2. Purpose

The purpose of this regulation is to set forth minimum standards for the investigation and disposition of life, accident and health claims arising under policies or certificates issued pursuant to State law. It is not intended to cover claims involving workers' compensation insurance. The various provisions of this regulation are intended to define procedures and practices which constitute unfair claims practices. Nothing herein shall be construed to create or imply a private cause of action for violation of this regulation. This is merely a clarification of original intent and does not indicate of any change of position.

Drafting Note: Any jurisdiction choosing to provide for a private cause of action should consider a different statutory scheme. This regulation is inherently inconsistent with a private cause of action. The NAIC has separately promulgated an Unfair Property/Casualty Claims Settlement Practices Model Regulation.

Section 3. Definitions

All definitions contained in the Unfair Claims Settlement Practices Act (or Unfair Trade Practices Model Act) are hereby incorporated by reference. As otherwise used in this regulation:

A. "Agent" means any individual, corporation, association, partnership or other legal entity authorized to represent an insurer with respect to a claim;

B. "Beneficiary" means the party entitled to receive the proceeds or benefits occurring under the policy in lieu of the insured;

C. "Claim file" means any retrievable electronic file, paper file or combination of both;

D. "Claimant" means an insured, the beneficiary or legal representative of the insured, including a member of the insured's immediate family designated by the insured, making a claim under a policy;

E. "Days" means calendar days;

F. "Documentation" includes, but is not limited to, all pertinent communications, transactions, notes, work papers, claim forms, bills and explanation of benefits forms relative to the claim;

G. "Investigation" means all activities of an insurer directly or indirectly related to the determination of liabilities under coverages afforded by an insurance policy or insurance contract;

H. "Limited insurance representative" means an individual, partnership or corporation who is authorized by the Commissioner to solicit or negotiate certificates or policies for a particular line of insurance which the Commissioner may by regulation deem essential for the transaction of business in this State and which does not require the professional competency demanded for an insurance agent's or insurance broker's license.

I. "Notification of claim" means any notification, whether in writing or other means acceptable under the terms of an insurance policy to an insurer or its agent, by a claimant, which reasonably apprises the insurer of the facts pertinent to a claim;

J. "Proof of loss" means written proofs, such as claim forms, medical bills, medical authorizations or other reasonable evidence of the claim that is ordinarily required of all insureds or beneficiaries submitting the claims;

K. "Reasonable explanation" means information sufficient to enable the insured or beneficiary to compare the allowable benefits with policy provisions and determine whether proper payment has been made;

L. "Written communications" includes all correspondence, regardless of source or type that is materially related to the handling of the claim.

Section 4. Claims Practices

A. Every insurer, upon receiving due notification of a claim shall, within fifteen (15) days of the notification, provide necessary claim forms, instructions and reasonable assistance so the insured can properly comply with company requirements for filing a claim.

B. Upon receipt of proof of loss from a claimant, the insurer shall begin any necessary investigation of the claim within fifteen (15) days.

C. The insurer's standards for claims processing shall be such that notice of claim or proof of loss submitted against one policy issued by that insurer shall fulfill the insured's obligation under any and all similar policies issued by that insurer and specifically identified by the insured to the insurer to the same degree that the same form would be required under any similar policy. If additional information is required to fulfill the insured's obligation under similar policies, the insurer may request the additional information. When it is apparent to the insurer that additional benefits would be payable under an insured's policy upon additional proofs of loss, the insurer shall communicate to and cooperate with the insured in determining the extent of the insurer's additional liability.

D. The insurer shall affirm or deny liability on claims within a reasonable time and shall offer payment within thirty (30) days of affirmation of liability if the amount of the claim is determined and not in dispute. If portions of the claim are in dispute, the insurer shall tender payment for those portions that are not disputed within thirty (30) days.

E. With each claim payment, the insurer shall provide to the insured an Explanation of Benefits that shall include the name of the provider or services covered, dates of service, and a reasonable explanation of the computation of benefits.

F. An insurer may not impose a penalty upon any insured for noncompliance with insurer requirements for precertification unless such penalty is specifically and clearly set forth in the policy.

G. If a claim remains unresolved for thirty (30) days from the date proof of loss is received, the insurer shall provide the insured or, when applicable, the insured's beneficiary, with a reasonable written explanation for the delay. In credit, mortgage and assigned accident/health claims, the notice shall be provided to the debtor/insured or medical provider in addition to the insured. If the investigation remains incomplete, the insurer shall, forty-five (45) days from the date of initial notification and every forty-five (45) days thereafter, send to the claimant a letter setting forth the reasons additional time is needed for investigation.

H. The insurer shall acknowledge and respond within fifteen (15) days to any written communications relating to a pending claim.

I. When a claim is denied, written notice of denial shall be sent to the claimant within fifteen (15) days of the determination. The insurer shall reference the policy provision, condition or exclusion upon which the denial is based.

J. No insurer shall deny a claim upon information obtained in a telephone conversation or personal interview with any source unless the telephone conversation or personal interview is documented in the claim file.

K. Insurers offering cash settlements of first party long-term disability income claims, except in cases where there is a bona fide dispute as to the coverage for, or amount of, the disability, shall develop a present value calculation of future benefits (with probability corrections for mortality and morbidity) utilizing contingencies such as mortality, morbidity, and interest rate assumptions, etc. appropriate to the risk. A copy of the amount so calculated shall be given to the insured and signed by him/her at the time a settlement is entered into.

L. No insurer shall indicate to a first party claimant on a payment draft, check or in any accompanying letter that said payment is "final" or "a release" of any claim unless the policy limit has been paid or there has been a compromise settlement agreed to by the first party claimant and the insurer as to coverage and amount payable under the policy.

M. No insurer shall withhold any portion of any benefit payable as a result of a claim on the basis that the sum withheld is an adjustment or correction for an overpayment made on a prior claim arising under the same policy unless:

(1) The insurer has in its files clear, documented evidence of an overpayment and written authorization from the insured permitting the withholding procedure, or

(2) The insurer has in its files clear, documented evidence that:

(a) The overpayment was clearly erroneous under the provisions of the policy and if the overpayment is not the subject of a reasonable dispute as to facts;

(b) The error that resulted in the payment is not a mistake of the law;

(c) The insurer has notified the insured within six (6) months of the date of the error, except that in instances of error prompted by representations or nondisclosures of claimants or third parties, the insurer notified the insured within fifteen (15) days after the date the evidence of discovery of such error is included in its file. For the purpose of this rule, the date of the error shall be the day on which the draft for benefits is issued; and

(d) The notice stated clearly the nature of the error and the amount of the overpayment.

N. If, after an insurer rejects a claim, the claimant objects to such rejection, the insurer shall notify the claimant in writing that he or she may have the matter reviewed by the [insert state] Department of Insurance, [insert department address and telephone number].

Section 5. File and Record Documentation

Each insurer's claim files for policies or certificates are subject to examination by the Commissioner of Insurance or by his or her duly appointed designees. To aid in the examination:

A. The insurer shall maintain claim data that are accessible and retrievable for examination. An insurer shall be able to provide the claim number, line of coverage, date of loss and date of payment of the claim, date of denial or date closed without payment. This data shall be available for all open and closed files for the current year and the two (2) preceding years.

B. Detailed documentation shall be contained in each claim file in order to permit reconstruction of the insurer's activities relative to each claim.

C. Each document within the claim file shall be noted as to date received, date processed or date mailed.

D. For those insurers that do not maintain hard copy files, claim files must be accessible from Cathode Ray Tube (CRT) or micrographics and be capable of duplication to hard copy.

Drafting Note: States are encouraged to recognize the efficiencies of electronic or other type "paperless" file systems and are encouraged to accommodate all reasonable application of such systems.

MARKET CONDUCT RECORD RETENTION AND PRODUCTION MODEL REGULATION

Section 1. Authority

This regulation is promulgated pursuant to the authority granted by [cite state law equivalent to the NAIC Unfair Trade Practices Model Act or the NAIC Unfair Claims Settlement Practices Model Act or the state examination authority statute.] Nothing herein shall be construed to create or imply a private cause of action for violation of this Act.

Section 2. Purpose

This regulation implements [cite law enacting Section 4 of the NAIC Unfair Trade Practices Model Act or the NAIC Unfair Claims Settlement Practices Model Act or the state examination authority statute] regarding the retention and maintenance of records required for market conduct purposes as contained in Section 4 of this regulation.

Drafting Note: Regarding Sections 1 and 2, a state may wish to refer to other examination or rate and form filing laws for authority and purpose. In regard to the Unfair Trade Practices and Unfair Claims Settlement Practices Model Acts, states may have combined or separate acts.

Section 3. Definitions

All definitions contained in the Unfair Trade Practices Model Act are hereby incorporated by reference. In addition, for purposes of this regulation:

A. "Application and accompanying records" means any written or electronic application form, any enrollment form, any document or record thereof, used to add coverage under any existing policy, questionnaire, telephone interview form, paramedical interview form or any other document used to question or underwrite an applicant for any policy issued by an insurer or for any declination of coverage by an insurer.

B. "Claim file and accompanying records" means the file maintained so as to show clearly the inception, handling and disposition of each claim. The claim file shall be sufficiently clear and specific so that pertinent events and dates of these events can be reconstructed.

Drafting Note: States may have a definition of "claim file" in their administrative rules under the Unfair Claims Settlement Practices Act for property/casualty or life/accident and health.

C. "Commissioner" means the Commissioner of Insurance.

Drafting Note: Insert the title of the chief insurance regulatory official wherever the term "commissioner" appears.

D. "Complaint" means a written communication primarily expressing a grievance.

E. "Declination" or "declined underwriting file" means all written or electronic records concerning coverage for which an application has been completed and submitted to the insurer or its producer but the insurer has made a determination not to issue a policy or not to add additional coverage when requested.

Drafting Note: If this is a new requirement a state may want to consider allowing a phase-in period for companies to begin tracking this information.

F. "Examiner" means a market conduct examiner or any other examiner authorized or designated by the commissioner to conduct an examination pursuant to [insert citation to examination authority].

G. "Grievance" for health insurance purposes, means a written complaint submitted by or on behalf of a covered person regarding the:

(a) Availability, delivery or quality of health services, including a complaint regarding an adverse determination made pursuant to utilization review;

(b) Claims payment, handling or reimbursement for health care services; or

(c) Matters pertaining to the contractual relationship between a covered person and a health carrier.

H. "Inquiry" means a specific question, criticism or request made in writing to an insurer by an examiner.

I. "Related entity" shall include a person authorized to act on behalf of the insurer in connection with the business of insurance.

Drafting Note: A state may wish to add definitions for purposes of this regulation, if terminology is not defined in its existing Unfair Trade Practices Act.

Section 4. Records Required for Market Conduct Purposes

A. An insurer or related entity licensed to do business in this state shall maintain its books, records and documents in a manner so that the commissioner can readily ascertain during an examination the insurer's compliance with state insurance laws and rules and with the standards outlined in the NAIC Market Conduct Examiners Handbook, including, but not limited to, company operations and management, policyholder service, marketing, producer licensing, underwriting, rating, complaint/grievance handling, and claims practices.

B. For a health insurer, the insurer or related entity shall maintain its books, records, and documents in a manner so that the practices of the insurer regarding network adequacy, utilization review, quality assessment and improvement and provider credentialing may be ascertained during a market conduct examination.

C. These records shall be retained for the current year plus three (3) years.

D. The producer of record shall maintain a file for each policy sold, and the file shall contain all work papers and written communications in his or her possession pertaining to the policy documented therein. These records shall be retained for the current year plus three (3) years.

Drafting Note: Regarding the retention time period, states should review their current market conduct examination laws and specify a time period that is consistent with the commissioner's market conduct examination authority. For some states this time period may be five (5) years.

Drafting Note: There may be other statutory or regulatory requirements for records to be maintained that a state may wish to reference.

E. During an examination of the insurer, the insurer shall provide a copy of the written contract entered into with each third party vendor or service provider as requested by an examiner within the time frames set forth in Section 11 of this regulation.

Section 5. Policy Record File

A. A policy record file shall be maintained for each policy issued, and shall be maintained for the duration of the current policy term plus three (3) years, or for life insurance policies and annuity contracts, for the time the policy or contract is in force and three (3) years thereafter. Policy records shall be maintained so as to show clearly the policy period, basis for rating and any imposition of additional exclusions from or exceptions to coverage. If a policy is terminated, either by the insurer or the policyholder, documentation supporting the termination and account records indicating a return of premiums, if any, shall also be maintained. Policy records need not be segregated from the policy records of other states so long as the records are readily available to market conduct examiners as required under this regulation.

Drafting Note: States should review their market conduct examination laws and specify a time period that is consistent with the commissioners market conduct examination authority. For some states this time period may be five (5) years.

Drafting Note: There may be other statutory or regulatory requirements for records to be maintained that a state may wish to reference.

B. Policy records shall include the following:

(1) Any application and accompanying records for each contract. The application shall bear a clearly legible means by which an examiner can identify a producer involved in the transaction. The examiners shall be provided with information clearly identitifying the producer involved in the transaction.

(2) Any declaration pages (the initial page and any subsequent pages), the insurance contract, any certificates evidencing coverage under a group contract, any endorsements or riders associated with a policy, any termination notices, and any written or electronic correspondence to or from the insured pertaining to the coverage. If any of these records has already been filed with the commissioner, a separate copy of the record need not be maintained in the individual policy files to which the record pertains, provided it is clear from the insurer's other records or systems that the record applies to a particular policy and that any data contained in the record relating to the policy, as well as the actual policy issued to the insured, can be retrieved or recreated;

(3) Any binder; and

(4) Any guidelines, manuals or other information necessary for the reconstruction of the rating, underwriting, policy owner service and claims handling of the policy. The maintenance at the site of a market conduct examination of a single copy of each of the above shall satisfy this requirement. These types of records include, but are not limited to, the application, the policy form including any amendments or endorsements, rating manuals, underwriting rules, credit reports or scores, claims history reports, previous insurance coverage reports (e.g., MIB), questionnaires, internal reports, and underwriting and rating notes.

C. A declined underwriting file shall be maintained and shall include include an application, any documentation substantiating the decision to decline an issuance of a policy, any binder issued without the insurer issuing a policy, any documentation substantiating the decision not to add additional coverage when requested and, if required by law, any declination notification. Notes regarding requests for quotations that do not result in a completed application for coverage need not be maintained for purposes of this regulation. The insurer shall retain declined underwriting files for the current year plus three (3) years.

Section 6. Claim File

A. A claim file and accompanying records shall be maintained for the calendar year in which the claim is closed plus three (3) years. The claim file shall be maintained so as to show clearly the inception, handling and disposition of each claim. The claim files shall be sufficiently clear and specific so that pertinent events and dates of these events can be reconstructed. A claim file shall, at a minimum, include the following items:

Drafting Note: States should review their current market conduct examination laws and specify a time period that is consistent with the commissioner's market conduct examination authority. For some states this time period may be five (5) years.

Drafting Note: There may be other statutory or regulatory requirements for records to be maintained that a state may wish to reference.

(1) For property and casualty: the file or files containing the notice of claim, claim forms, proof of loss or other form of claim submission, settlement demands, accident reports, police reports, adjustors logs, claim investigation documentation, inspection reports, supporting bills, estimates and valuation worksheets, medical records, correspondence to and from insureds and claimants or their representatives, notes, contracts, declaration pages, certificates evidencing coverage under a group contract, endorsements or riders, work papers, any written communication, any documented or recorded telephone communication related to the handling of a claim, including the investigation, payment or denial of the claim, copies of claim checks or drafts, or check numbers and amounts, releases, all applicable notices, correspondence used for determining and concluding claim payments or denials, subrogation and salvage documentation, any other documentation created and maintained in a paper or electronic format, necessary to support claim handling activity, and any claim manuals or other information necessary for reviewing the claim.

(2) For life and annuity: the file or files containing the notice of claim, claim forms, proofs of loss, medical records, correspondence to and from insureds and claimants or their representatives, claim investigation documentation, claim handling logs, copies of checks or drafts, check numbers and amounts, releases, correspondence, all applicable notices, and correspondence used for determining and concluding claim payments or denials, any written communication, any documented or recorded telephone communication related to the handling of a claim, including the investigation, and any other documentation, maintained in a paper or electronic format, necessary to support claim handling activity.

(3) For health: the file or files containing the notice of claim, claim forms, medical records, bills, electronically submitted bills, proofs of loss, correspondence to and from insureds and claimants or their representatives, claim investigation documentation, health facility pre-admission certification or utilization review documentation, claim handling logs, copies of explanation of benefit statements, any written communication, any documented or recorded telephone communication related to the handling of a claim, including the investigation, copies of checks or drafts, or check numbers and amounts, releases, correspondence, all applicable notices, and correspondence used for determining and concluding claim payments or denials, and any other documentation, maintained in a paper or electronic format, necessary to support claim handling activity.

B. Where a particular document pertains to more than one file, insurers may satisfy the requirements of this section by making available, at the site of an examination, a single copy of each document.

C. Documents in a claim file received from an insured, the insured's agent, a claimant, the department or any other insurer shall bear the initial date of receipt by the insurer, date stamped in a legible form in ink, in an electronic format, or some other permanent manner. Unless the company provides the examiners with written procedures to the contrary, the earliest date indicated on a document will be considered the initial date of receipt.

D. If an insurer, as its regular business practice, places the responsibility for handling certain types of claims upon company personnel other than its claims personnel, the insurer need not duplicate its files for maintenance by claims personnel. These claims records shall be maintained as part of the records of the insurer's operations and shall be readily available to examiners.

Section 7. Licensing Records

Records to be maintained relating to the insurer's compliance with licensing requirements shall include the licensing records of each producer associated with the insurer. Licensing records shall be maintained so as to show clearly the licensing status of the producer at the time of solicitation, negotiation or procurement, as well as the dates of the appointments and terminations of each producer. A screenprint from the Producer Database (PDB) may serve to provide adequate proof only of a producer's current licensing status.

Drafting Note: States may want to amend this section to allow for the maintenance of a screen print from the state's website as meeting the requirements of this section.

Section 8. Complaint Records

The complaint records required to be maintained under Section [cite reference to Unfair Trade Practices Act; Regulation for Complaint Records; or other appropriate state statute] shall include a complaint log or register, or grievance log or register for health insurers, in addition to the actual written complaints. The complaint log or register shall show clearly the total number of complaints for the current year plus the immediately preceding three (3) years, the classification of each complaint by line of insurance and by complainant (i.e., insured, Department of Insurance, third party, etc.), the nature of each complaint, the insurer's disposition of each complaint, and the complaint number assigned by the Department of Insurance, if applicable. If the insurer maintains the file in a computer format, the reference in the complaint log or register for locating the documentation shall be an identifier such as the policy number or other code. The codes shall be provided to the examiners at the time of an examination.

Section 9. Format of Records

A. Any record required to be maintained by an insurer may be created and stored in the form of paper, photograph, magnetic, mechanical or electronic medium; or any process that accurately forms a durable reproduction of the record, so long as the record is capable of duplication to a hard copy that is as legible as the original document. Documents that are produced and sent to an insured by use of a template and an electronic mail list shall be considered to be sufficiently reproduced if the insurer can provide proof of mailing of the document and a copy of the template. Documents that require the signature of the insured or insurer's producer shall be maintained in any format listed above provided evidence of the signature is preserved in that format.

B. The maintenance of records in a computer-based format shall be archival in nature, so as to preclude the alteration of the record after the initial transfer to a computer format. Upon request of an examiner, all records shall be capable of duplication to a hard copy that is as legible as the original document. The records shall be maintained according to written procedures developed and adhered to by the insurer. The written procedures shall be made available to the commissioner during an examination.

C. Photographs, microfilms, or other image-processing reproductions of records shall be equivalent to the originals and may be certified as the same in actions or proceedings before the commissioner unless inconsistent with [insert citation to administrative procedures law].

Section 10. Location of Files

A. All records required to be maintained under this regulation shall be kept in a location that will allow the records to be produced for examination within the time period required. When, under normal circumstances, someone other than the insurer maintains a required record or type of record, the other person's responsibility to maintain the records shall be set forth in a written agreement, a copy of which shall be maintained by the insurer and shall be available to the examiners for purposes of examination.

B. If required by law or otherwise available, the insurer shall maintain disaster preparedness or disaster recovery procedures that include provisions for the maintenance or reconstruction of original or duplicate records at another location. These procedures shall be provided for review during the examination.

Section 11. Time Limits to Provide Records and to Respond to Examiners

A. Initial data requests should be submitted to a company at least thirty (30) days prior to the commencement of the on-site examination, desk audit or other form of review to provide ample time for the company to prepare the materials requested by the examining state. Subsections B and C below apply to requests for supplemental data and information not anticipated at the time of the initial request as specified in Subsection A.

B. As a means to facilitate the examination and to aid in the examination in accordance with [statute regarding examination authority] an insurer shall provide any requested document or written response to an inquiry submitted by an examiner within five (5) working days, or such other time period as mutually agreed upon by the examiner and the insurer. When the requested document or response is not produced by the insurer within the specified time period, a violation shall be deemed to have occurred unless the insurer can demonstrate to the satisfaction of the commissioner that the requested record cannot reasonably be provided within the specified time period of the request.

Drafting Note: States may want to consider extending the time period for when a response is due if that request consists of a data run, request for statistical information, or information that cannot logistically be obtained without additional time. The time allowed for such an extension must be a mutually agreed upon time period.

C. Additional records requested by the commissioner shall be made available for the examination upon the date specified by the Examiner in Charge.

Drafting Note: States are encouraged to refer to the guidelines of the Market Regulation and Consumer Affairs (D) Committee regarding market conduct examination uniformity standards. The standards include providing notification to a company of an examination with a sufficient amount of time provided for the company to prepare the materials requested by the examining state. Compliance with the lead times recommended by the uniformity standards will facilitate a company's ability to meet the record production times included in this regulation.

Drafting Note: The current version of the Uniformity Outline encourages a state to provide a company at least thirty (30) days notice for data calls prior to the initiation of an examination. While some states may not be able to comply with this recommendation given their current statutory requirements, all states are encouraged to provide a company with as much lead time as possible.

Section 12. Confidential Materials

Original records required to be provided during a market conduct examination shall be returned to the insurer following the examination. If the records relate to an inquiry made by an examiner copies of the records shall become a part of the work papers of the examination. [insert citation for examination authority statute or other state statute that addresses the issue of access to workpapers and their confidentiality] shall govern the public access to the work papers of the examination.

Section 13. Effective Date

This regulation shall become effective [insert date or length of time following promulgation].

MARKET CONDUCT RECORD RETENTION AND PRODUCTION MODEL REGULATION

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. To perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

Who do I speak to if I have questions?

If you have questions or believe information related to a state should be updated, please contact Jennifer Neuerburg at jneuerburg@naic.org.

Disclaimer: This chart does not constitute a formal legal opinion by the NAIC staff on the provisions of state law and should not be relied upon as such. Nor does this state page reflect a determination as to whether a state meets any applicable accreditation standards. Every effort has been made to provide correct and accurate summaries to assist readers in locating useful information. Readers should consult state law for further details and for the most current information.

STATE PAGE KEY:

MODEL ADOPTION: States that have citations identified in this column adopted the most recent version of the NAIC model in a substantially similar manner. This requires states to adopt the model in its entirety but does allow for variations in style and format. States that have adopted portions of the current NAIC model will be included in this column with an explanatory note.

PREVIOUS VERSION: States that have citations identified in this column (and nothing listed in the Model Adoption column) have enacted an older version of the model but have not adopted the most recent version of the NAIC model.

RELATED ACTIVITY: Examples of Related Activity include but are not limited to statutes or regulations addressing the same subject matter, or other administrative guidance such as bulletins and notices. States that have citations identified in this column (and nothing listed in the Model Adoption column) have not adopted the most recent version of the NAIC model in a substantially similar manner.

NO CURRENT ACTIVITY: No state activity on the topic as of the date of the most recent update. This includes states that have repealed legislation as well as states that have never adopted legislation.

PROJECT HISTORY – 2003

MARKET CONDUCT RECORD RETENTION AND PRODUCTION MODEL REGULATION (#910)

1. Project Description

The Market Conduct Record Retention and Production Model Regulation has been revised to address the electronic retention of records along with methods for retention using a variety of media forms. The model was previously titled Market Conduct Record Retention Model Regulation (#910). Since the model includes some standards related to the time frames to produce records, the term "production" was added to the title of this regulation.

2. Group Responsible for Drafting Model and States Participating

The Market Conduct Record Retention Working Group of the Market Regulation (D) Task Force was responsible for reviewing the model and overseeing its development. The working group includes: Missouri (Chair), Alabama, Arizona, Florida, Hawaii, Illinois, Kentucky, Maryland, Nebraska, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Texas, Utah, Virginia, Washington and Wisconsin.

3. Charge Authorizing Project

The 2003 charge of the working group is, "The Market Regulation Task Force shall review and update the NAIC Market Conduct Record Retention Model Regulation. Report by the NAIC 2003 Winter National Meeting." This charge or similar language was first authorized in March 2000.

4. General Description of Drafting Process

The drafting process was open as the Record Retention Working Group solicited comments from all interested parties, including interested regulators, funded consumer representatives and industry representatives. The working group produced 10 versions of the model before it was adopted by conference call on February 27, 2003. All of the meetings and conference calls of the working group were open to all interested parties. All revised drafts of the paper were posted on the NAIC Website and circulated for public comment. The working group received and reviewed numerous comments from interested parties and made substantive revisions to the model based on those comments.

5. Significant Issues Raised

The most significant issues raised and discussed by the working group and interested parties include (1) the definitions incorporated in the model and clarification of the intent to retain various types of comments; and (2); the time frame for the production of documents. The working group and interested parties developed mutually agreeable definitions. There continue to be concerns about the time frame for record production (5 days) but the working group determined a change to lengthen the time frame for production was not necessary. The primary rationale for not increasing the time frame concerns criticism that market conduct examinations are too lengthy and too costly. If the time frame for production of documents is increased, there will be an impact on the cost and length of examinations. In addition, the current emphasis to follow standard market regulatory guidelines as outlined by the Uniformity (D) Working Group supports a shorter time frame. The uniformity guidelines promote a minimum of 60 days advance notice to a company of the examination and the records required for the examiners. The working group believes the advance notice is sufficient to allow companies the ability to provide records within 5 days. If a company is unable to produce the records in the allotted time frame, the model provides for an extension request by the company.

The Executive Committee requested that this model be reconsidered by the Record Retention Model Working Group in light of concerns about potential conflicts in the model language with the requirements of the Uniformity (D) Working Group's uniformity outline. As a result, some changes were made to Section 11. This language was considered with input from interested parties, including the trade association that voiced the concerns about the potential conflict.

6. Other Pertinent Information

This model is another piece of the project to reform market regulatory activities. By adopting the regulation, states will provide details to companies for the retention of information for use by market regulators. In addition, the adoption of this model will promote further consistency by states in the market regulatory area.

IMPROPER TERMINATION PRACTICES MODEL ACT

Section 1. Purpose

The purpose of this Act is to protect policyholders from improper terminations of insurance coverage and to set forth standards for the regulation and disposition of terminations of policies or certificates of insurance. Nothing in this Act shall be construed to create or imply a private cause of action for violation of this Act except that a named insured may appeal the termination of the named insured's policy pursuant to Section 16.

Section 2. Scope

This Act shall apply to all insurers issuing or renewing in this state any policy or certificate of insurance as defined in Section 3I.

Section 3. Definitions

For the purposes of this Act:

A. "Cancellation" or "canceled" means the termination of a policy by an insurer prior to the expiration date of the policy.

B. "Concealed or misrepresented a material fact or circumstance" means falsification or omission of a material fact that, had the insurer known the truth, it would not have insured the risk; would not have issued the policy; would have charged a higher premium, other than an incidental amount, for insuring the risk; or would not have issued a policy in as large an amount or under the same terms.

Drafting Note: States may wish to include the words "intentionally or knowingly" in the first sentence before the word "concealed" and modify a similar provision in Section 9B(2).

C. "Improper termination" means a termination which violates any section of this Act or regulations promulgated thereunder.

D. "Insurer" means a person, reciprocal exchange, interinsurer, Lloyd's insurer, or other legal entity licensed to engage in the business of insurance in this state.

E. "Lapse" means a policy which expires by its own terms on the policy expiration date unless premiums are received by the insurer for succeeding policy periods on or before the policy expiration date.

F. "Nonpayment of premium" means failure of the named insured to discharge, when due, any obligations in connection with the payment of premium. "Premium" means the payment that is due for a policy. "Premium" includes audit premium due on the preceding policy and additional premium due on retrospectively rated policies, but does not include membership dues or other consideration required to be a member of an organization in order to be eligible for the policy.

G. "Nonrenewal" means the termination of a policy by an insurer at the expiration date of the policy.

H. "Policy delivered or issued for delivery in this state" shall include but not be limited to all binders of insurance, whether written or oral, and all applications bound for future delivery.

I. "Policy" or "certificate" means a contract of insurance, except allocated and unallocated annuities, life, accident and health, fidelity, suretyship, mortgage guaranty, boiler and machinery, reinsurance, umbrella if the underlying coverages have been terminated, ocean marine policies, dealers policies written as inland marine insurance under the Nationwide Inland Marine Definition and contracts of insurance procured pursuant to the excess and surplus lines laws of this state. For purposes of this Act, "policy" or "certificate" does not include contracts issued to a commercial insured having:

(1) Total insured property values of $5 million or more;

(2) Total annual gross revenues of $10 million or more; or

(3) Total annual premiums in excess of $25,000 written under a single policy.

Drafting Note: States may wish to include a provision allowing the commissioner to adjust these amounts annually by regulation to reflect changes in the Consumer Price Index (CPI).

Drafting Note: States that have worker's compensation laws addressing terminations may wish to exempt worker's compensation from this Act. States may wish to exclude other coverages from the provisions of this model, including insurance on accounts receivable.

J. "Producer" means a person who solicits, negotiates, effects, procures, delivers, renews, continues or binds policies of insurance to which this Act applies on risks residing, located or to be performed in this state.

K. "Renewal" or "to renew" means the issuance and delivery by an insurer of a policy for the same or similar coverage superseding at the end of the policy period a policy previously issued and delivered by the same insurer or the issuance and delivery of a certificate or notice extending the term of a policy beyond its policy period or term. A policy shall not be considered "renewed" if the insurer imposes a substantial increase in deductibles or a substantial reduction in coverage at renewal.

L. "Rescission" or "rescinded" means the unilateral action by an insurer to declare an insurance contract void from its inception as though it never existed.

M. "Residual market mechanism" means an arrangement, either expressly authorized or mandated by law, involving participation by insurers in the equitable apportionment among them of insurance which may be afforded applicants who are unable to obtain insurance through the voluntary market.

N. "Termination" or "terminated" means any practice or act by an insurer which has the effect of discontinuing an insurance policy including cancellation, nonrenewal, and rescission.

Section 4. Termination Provisions

A. A policy shall not be delivered or issued for delivery in this state unless it contains provisions setting out the manner in which the policy may be terminated.

B. If a policy or certificate is used as evidence of financial responsibility for a license or permit, and a statute or regulation requires that notice of termination of the policy or certificate be provided to the government agency that issued the license or permit, the time period for advance notice of the termination shall be the longer of the time period required by this Act or the time period required by the statute or regulation that establishes the financial responsibility requirement.

Drafting Note: Some states prohibit revealing the existence of arson or fraud investigations to persons who are targets of these investigations. In these states, it may be appropriate to modify the requirement that the termination notices required by this Act provide specific reasons for termination if there is information available for review by the commissioner alleging that the insured contributed to the loss by arson or fraud. The state may wish to allow a more general reason for the termination to be given in these situations.

Drafting Note: A state may require that the termination notices required by this Act also be provided in a language other than English where appropriate.

Section 5. Unfair Discrimination in Termination Provisions

A. An insurer shall not terminate a policy because of the insured's race, color, creed, national origin, ancestry, gender, sexual orientation or marital status.

B. An insurer shall not terminate a policy because of the insured's age or disability, or because of the geographic location or age of the insured risk, unless the action is the result of the application of sound underwriting and actuarial principles related to actual or reasonably anticipated loss experience.

Section 6. Termination of Lines of Insurance

An insurer shall not terminate all or substantially all of a line of the insurer's business for the purpose of withdrawing from a market in this state without notifying the commissioner of the action, as well as the reasons for the action, at least one year before the termination of any policy due to the withdrawal is effective, unless the insurer has filed a plan of action for the orderly cessation of the insurer's business within a shorter time period and received approval from the commissioner.

Section 7. Rescission

Nothing in this Act limits an insurer's right to rescind a policy if an insured or an applicant for insurance has intentionally or knowingly concealed or misrepresented a material fact or circumstance concerning the risk assumed by the insurer. However, a policy or policy renewal shall not be rescinded after the policy has been in effect for 180 days or one policy period, whichever is greater.

Section 8. Notice of Cancellation

A. A notice of cancellation shall not be effective unless mailed or delivered by the insurer to the first named insured's last known address. The information contained on the notice of cancellation shall also be either mailed, delivered or electronically transmitted to the producer of record's last known address. The insurer shall maintain proof of mailing of the notice to the first named insured's last known address.

B. All notices of cancellation of insurance shall be mailed or delivered at least thirty (30) days prior to the effective date of cancellation during the first sixty (60) days of coverage. After the coverage has been effective for sixty-one (61) days or more, or if the policy is a renewal, all notices shall be mailed or delivered at least forty-five (45) days prior to the effective date of cancellation. However, where cancellation is for one of the reasons permitted in Sections 9B or 9C, at least ten (10) days notice of cancellation shall be given. All notices shall clearly state the specific reason or reasons for cancellation.

Section 9. Cancellation—Reasons

A. After a policy has been in effect for sixty (60) days or more, or if the policy is a renewal, it may be canceled with forty-five (45) days notice, for one or more of the following reasons:

(1) An insured violated any terms or conditions of the policy to the detriment of the insurer;

(2) The risk originally accepted has increased, and, if the increased risk had been present at the time the policy was originally issued, the insurer would have increased the premium originally charged, other than an incidental amount, or declined to issue the policy;

(3) A determination by the commissioner that continuation of the policy would threaten the financial solvency of the insurer;

(4) A determination by the commissioner that the continuation of the policy could place the insurer in violation of the insurance laws of this state; or

(5) The failure to repair or rehabilitate an insured property or relevant portion thereof within a reasonable period of time as required in Section 10.

B. After a policy has been in effect for sixty (60) days or more, or if the policy is a renewal, it may be canceled with ten (10) days notice, for one or more of the following reasons:

(1) Nonpayment of premium;

(2) The policy was obtained because an insured concealed or misrepresented a material fact or circumstance;

(3) With regard to a policy of automobile insurance, the driver's license of any insured or any driver who lives with the insured or who customarily uses a covered vehicle has been suspended or revoked or is under a suspension or revocation for moving violations at any time during the twelve-month period immediately preceding the notice of cancellation; or

Drafting Note: States with named driver exclusion laws or provisions may wish to include a similar provision in this subsection.

(4) Fraud in the submission of a claim.

Drafting Note: If there are provisions in other statutes setting forth other prohibited reasons for cancellation and a state wishes to continue those other prohibited reasons, reference to those provisions should be made in this subsection so that cancellations based on these other prohibited reasons will be subject to the procedures of this Act.

C. In addition to the reasons stated in Sections 9B(1), (2) and (4), a property insurance policy, or a policy renewal, may be canceled with ten (10) days notice if the insured property is found to have one or more of the following conditions:

(1) Permanent repairs have not commenced within sixty (60) days after satisfactory adjustment of a loss, unless the delay is beyond the insured's control or the failure to repair does not increase the risk assumed;

(2) Buildings that have been unoccupied sixty (60) consecutive days, or vacant thirty (30) consecutive days, except buildings that have a seasonal occupancy, buildings that are actively advertised as "for rent," or buildings that are undergoing construction, repair or reconstruction, and are properly secured against unauthorized entry;

(3) Buildings on which, because of their physical condition, there is an outstanding order to vacate or an outstanding demolition order; or that have been declared unsafe in accordance with applicable law; or

(4) The risk originally accepted has increased to the degree that it would have increased the premium charged, other than an incidental amount, or affected the insurer's decision to issue the policy.

D. During the first sixty (60) days of a policy, the policy shall not be canceled for the reason that the insured has made a valid claim.

Section 10. Time for Repairs or Rehabilitation Prior to Cancellation

Notwithstanding Section 9, after a property insurance policy covering property that is capable of being repaired or rehabilitated has been in effect for sixty-one (61) days or more, except in the situation of a constructive total loss, an insurer shall not give notice of cancellation based on the condition of the property without allowing the first named insured a reasonable period of time in which to repair defects in the insured property or relevant portion of the property. The repair or rehabilitative efforts shall be in compliance with applicable local building codes. The notice of need for repair or rehabilitation shall be from the insurer and shall be itemized and specific with regard to the defect to be repaired and the time period in which to complete the repairs. The notice may be sent to the first named insured at any time during the policy term.

Section 11. Refund of Premium Upon Cancellation

A. A policy shall not be canceled on other than a pro-rata basis unless the policy form provides for another basis.

B. A producer shall not recommend, suggest or advise the insured to request cancellation of any policy, if the request will cause the policy to be canceled on other than a pro-rata basis, unless the producer first advises the insured in writing of the additional cost of the cancellation.

Section 12. Notice of Renewal or Nonrenewal

A. At least forty-five (45) days before the end of the policy term, an insurer shall mail or deliver to the last known address of the first named insured a renewal policy, an offer to renew the current policy or a notice of nonrenewal. The information in the renewal policy, the offer to renew or the notice of nonrenewal shall be mailed, delivered or transmitted electronically to the producer of record's last known address. Proof of mailing or delivery to the first named insured's last known address shall be maintained by the insurer.

(1) A notice of nonrenewal shall clearly state the specific reason or reasons for the nonrenewal.

(2) An offer to renew the policy shall state the renewal premium and the date the premium is due. The renewal premium shall be based on the known exposure as of the date of the offer to renew. The premium on the renewal policy may be subsequently amended to reflect any change in exposure not considered in the offer to renew.

(3) If the renewal premium is not received by the due date or the policy expiration date, whichever is later, the policy lapses.

B. If an insurer fails to comply with the notice requirements of this section, the policy shall be extended on the same terms and conditions for another policy term or until the effective date of similar insurance procured by the insured, whichever is earlier. The insurer may make continued coverage contingent upon the payment of premium.

C. Any policy with a policy period or term of less than six (6) months or any policy with no fixed expiration date shall be considered as if written for successive policy periods or terms of six (6) months for the purpose of any nonrenewal or renewal notice required by this Act.

D. Renewal of a policy does not constitute a waiver or estoppel with respect to grounds for cancellation that existed before the effective date of the renewal.

E. A written binder of insurance issued for a term of sixty (60) days or less, which contains on its face a specific inception and expiration date and which has been furnished to the insured, shall not be subject to the nonrenewal requirements of this Act.

F. An insurer shall not fail to renew a policy that has been in effect for at least five (5) years unless:

(1) The nonrenewal is based on at least one of the reasons set forth in Section 9 of this Act; or

(2) A notice of nonrenewal is mailed or delivered to the last known address of the first named insured at least ninety (90) days before the end of the policy term, subject to all other provisions in this Section.

Section 13. Liability of Insurers or Producers Regarding Statements Made in Notices or Information

A. For a communication giving notice of or specifying the reasons for a termination or for any statement made in connection with an attempt to discover or verify the existence of conditions that would be a reason for a termination under this Act, there shall be no liability on the part of and no cause of action shall arise against:

(1) An insurer or its authorized representatives, producers or employees;

(2) A licensed insurance producer or broker; or

(3) A person furnishing information to an insurer as to reasons for a termination or declination.

B. Subsection A of this section shall not apply to statements not made in good faith.

Section 14. Notice to Insured as to Eligibility for Residual Market Mechanism Coverage

A. If a policy is canceled for a reason other than nonpayment of premium or is nonrenewed, and similar coverage is available through a residual market mechanism in this state, the insurer shall notify the first named insured of the insured's possible eligibility for insurance from the residual market mechanism.

B. The notice required by Subsection A of this section shall accompany or be included in the notice of cancellation or nonrenewal.

C. If the residual market mechanism limits its operations to a geographic area or areas within this state, the notice required by Subsection A of this section shall not be required if the risk is not located in the geographic area or areas served by the residual market mechanism.

Section 15. Notice; Right to Appeal

Insurers shall include a statement prominently displayed in bold-face type on all notices of termination advising the insured of the insured's right to appeal the termination to the commissioner.

Section 16. Improper Termination—Appeal

A. A policy that has been canceled for one or more of the reasons permitted by Section 9A or nonrenewed may be appealed by the named insured by giving written notice to the commissioner at least twenty-five (25) days prior to the effective date of the termination. The notice shall clearly state the reason or reasons for the appeal.

B. A policy that has been canceled for one or more of the reasons permitted by Section 9B or 9C may be appealed by the named insured by giving written notice to the commissioner prior to the effective date of the cancellation. The notice shall clearly state the reason or reasons for the appeal.

C. If a named insured timely appeals the termination of a policy, coverage under that policy shall remain in effect until the effective date specified in the order entered by the commissioner in the matter, pursuant to Section 16E or 16F. Coverage shall only remain in effect, however, so long as the named insured pays the premium due on the policy.

D. The commissioner may decide not to hold a hearing if the commissioner determines:

(1) The appeal was not made in good faith;

(2) There is no violation of the Act even if the facts alleged by the named insured to support the appeal are true; or

(3) The notice of termination, on its face, does not comply with the provisions of the Act.

E. If the commissioner does not hold a hearing, the commissioner shall issue a written order within ten (10) days after receipt of the named insured's appeal that decides the matter.

F. If the commissioner decides to hold a hearing, the hearing shall be held within twenty (20) days after receipt of the named insured's appeal. The commissioner shall give the parties at least ten (10) days notice of the hearing. Within twenty (20) days after the conclusion of the hearing, the commissioner shall issue a written order that decides the matter.

G. When the commissioner issues a written order that decides an appeal, if the commissioner finds for the named insured, the commissioner shall order the insurer to rescind its notice of termination. If the commissioner finds for the insurer, the commissioner shall order that the termination be effective:

(1) Twenty (20) days from the date of the order, when the policy was canceled for one of the reasons permitted by Section 9A or nonrenewed; or

(2) Ten (10) days from the date of the order when the policy was canceled for one of the reasons permitted by Sections 9B or 9C.

H. Costs of the hearing may be assessed against the losing party but shall not exceed $50.

Section 17. Proof of Mailing

A. Unless expressly otherwise provided, a notice of termination required to be given to a person by this Act may be given by mailing notice, postage prepaid, addressed to the person to be notified, at the person's last known address.

B. Where proof of mailing of notice to a person is required, the following constitute proof of mailing:

(1) A true copy of the notice mailed which may be a physical duplicate of the original notice reproduced through photocopy, carbon copy or generation from electronic records;

(2) A declaration made under penalty of perjury (as defined in Section [insert section] of the Code) attesting to the accuracy of the copy; and

(3) One of the following evidencing that notice was mailed:

(a) A declaration made under penalty of perjury (as defined in Section [insert section] of the Code) or an affidavit (as defined in Section [insert section] of the Code) executed by the person who deposited the notice into the mail, setting forth the date notice was mailed and the name and last known address of the person to whom notice was mailed;

(b) A document or list of mailed letters setting forth the date notice was mailed and the name and last known address of the person to whom notice was mailed, accompanied by either a declaration made under penalty of perjury (as defined in Section [insert section] of the Code) or an affidavit (as defined in Section [insert section] of the Code) executed by the person who deposited the notice into the mail, attesting to the accuracy of the document;

(c) A United States Certificate of Mailing (U. S. Post Office Form 3817 or 3877) for the notice mailed;

(d) A United States Postal Service certified mailing receipt, signed by or on behalf of the person to whom the notice is addressed; or

(e) An evidence of receipt by or on behalf of the person to whom the notice is addressed from a reputable mail delivery service.

Section 18. Improper Termination Practice—Definition; Hearing

A. It is an improper termination practice for any insurer to commit any acts in violation of this Act that are:

(1) Committed flagrantly and in conscious disregard of this Act or any rules promulgated under this Act; or

(2) Committed with such frequency as to indicate a general business practice to engage in that type of conduct.

B. Whenever the commissioner finds that an insurer doing business in this state is engaging in any improper termination practice as defined in Section 18A and that a hearing on the matter would be in the public interest, the commissioner shall issue and serve upon the insurer a notice of hearing, which shall contain a statement of charges, a location for the hearing, and a hearing date that shall be not less than ten (10) days nor more than twenty (20) days from the date of the notice.

Section 19. Improper Termination Practice—Penalty

A. If, after a hearing pursuant to Section 18 of this Act, the commissioner finds that the insurer has engaged in an improper termination practice, the commissioner shall reduce the findings to writing and shall issue and cause to be served upon the insurer charged with the violation, a copy of the findings and an order requiring the insurer to cease and desist from engaging in the act or practice and the commissioner may, at the commissioner's discretion, order one or both of the following:

(1) Payment of a civil penalty of not more than $1,000 for each violation, but not to exceed an aggregate civil penalty of $100,000, unless the violation was committed flagrantly and in conscious disregard of this Act, in which case the civil penalty shall not be more than $25,000 for each violation not to exceed an aggregate civil penalty of $250,000; or

(2) Suspension or revocation of the insurer's license if the insurer knew or reasonably should have known that it was in violation of this Act.

Section 20. Separability Provision

If any provision of this Act, or the application of the provision to any person or circumstances, shall be held invalid, the remainder of the Act, and the application of the provision to person or circumstances other than those as to which it is held invalid, shall not be affected.

IMPROPER TERMINATION PRACTICES MODEL ACT

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. To perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

Who do I speak to if I have questions?

If you have questions or believe information related to a state should be updated, please contact Jennifer Neuerburg at jneuerburg@naic.org.

Disclaimer: This chart does not constitute a formal legal opinion by the NAIC staff on the provisions of state law and should not be relied upon as such. Nor does this state page reflect a determination as to whether a state meets any applicable accreditation standards. Every effort has been made to provide correct and accurate summaries to assist readers in locating useful information. Readers should consult state law for further details and for the most current information.

STATE PAGE KEY:

MODEL ADOPTION: States that have citations identified in this column adopted the most recent version of the NAIC model in a substantially similar manner. This requires states to adopt the model in its entirety but does allow for variations in style and format. States that have adopted portions of the current NAIC model will be included in this column with an explanatory note.

PREVIOUS VERSION: States that have citations identified in this column (and nothing listed in the Model Adoption column) have enacted an older version of the model but have not adopted the most recent version of the NAIC model.

RELATED ACTIVITY: Examples of Related Activity include but are not limited to statutes or regulations addressing the same subject matter, or other administrative guidance such as bulletins and notices. States that have citations identified in this column (and nothing listed in the Model Adoption column) have not adopted the most recent version of the NAIC model in a substantially similar manner.

NO CURRENT ACTIVITY: No state activity on the topic as of the date of the most recent update. This includes states that have repealed legislation as well as states that have never adopted legislation.

HOME SERVICE DISCLOSURE MODEL ACT

Table of Contents

Section 1. Purpose

The purpose of this model Act is to establish rules that ensure meaningful information is provided to the purchasers of insurance policies distributed through the home service distribution system.

Section 2. Definitions

As used in this Act:

A. "Home service distribution system" means a system in which insurance products are marketed, sold or serviced by agents in person in the home or business of the insured, owner or premium payor in assigned territories and that may be identified as "debits," and

(1) The policies are issued on a monthly or more frequent premium payment basis; and

(2) Agents are charged with the responsibilities of servicing the debit, which may include the collection of premium payments in the home or designated location on a monthly or more frequent basis, along with other services normally rendered.

B. "Small face amount life insurance policy" means an insurance policy with a face amount of $15,000 or less.

Drafting Note: The face amount specified in Subsection B should not prohibit states from using a different monetary face amount. Each state should review and consider using a face amount that is consistent with the average face amount for policies distributed through the home service distribution system in the state.

Section 3. General Disclosure Requirements

A. In accordance with the disclosure simplification standards set forth in Section 8, at the time an insurance policy is issued through the home service distribution system, the insurer shall disclose at the time the policy is issued:

(1) Whether the policyholder is allowed to change the method of premium payment and any conditions for that change;

(2) Whether or not at a subsequent date a policyholder may combine multiple policies from the same insurance company, its affiliates and subsidiaries into one policy in order to provide like or enhanced coverage at a comparable or reduced premium to eliminate duplicate administrative costs associated with each policy;

(a) If the option is available, whether a policyholder will be subject to underwriting when combining multiple policies into one policy; and

(b) If the option is available, whether a policyholder will be subject to a new contestable period, waiting periods, etc., when combining multiple policies into one policy.

B. In accordance with the disclosure simplification standards set forth in Section 8, an insurer issuing a small face amount life policy through the home service distribution system shall provide the disclosure included in Appendix A if at any point in time over the term of the policy the cumulative premiums paid may exceed the face amount of the policy at that point in time. The required disclosure shall be provided to the policy owner or certificate holder no later than at the time the policy or certificate is delivered. The disclosure shall not be attached to the policy, but may be delivered with the policy.

(1) If, for a particular policy form, the cumulative premiums may exceed the face for some demographic or benefit combination but not for all combinations, the insurer may choose to either:

(a) Provide the disclosure only in those circumstances where the premiums may exceed the face amount; or

(b) Provide the disclosure for all demographic and benefit combinations.

(2) Cumulative premiums shall include premiums paid for riders. However, the face amount shall not include the benefit attributable to the riders.

(3) If an illustration has been provided that meets the requirements of [insert reference to state equivalent to the Life Insurance Illustrations Model Regulation], the disclosure requirements of Subsection B are deemed to have been met.

C. In accordance with the policy simplification standards set forth in Section 8, at the time a fire insurance policy is issued through the home service distribution system, the insurer shall disclose:

(1) Whether the amount of insurance coverage is based on the market value of the property insured. If not, the fire insurance policy shall disclose that it may not cover the full amount of the loss;

(2) Whether the policy will pay for a loss that is not caused by fire; and

(3) Whether the policy provides any liability coverage.

Section 4. Disclosure of Payment Methods

In accordance with the disclosure simplification standards set forth in Section 8, at the time an insurance policy is issued through the home service distribution system, the insurer shall disclose:

A. What premium savings may be realized by a different method or less frequent mode of premium payment;

B. That premiums are still due and payable by the person responsible for premium payments even when an agent does not collect the premiums;

C. The mailing address for payment of premiums to the company; and

D. When premium payments are made in cash or in person, that the consumer is entitled to receive a receipt for premium payments.

Section 5. Evidence of Payment

For every premium collected on a policy of property, casualty, life or disability insurance marketed, sold or serviced through the home service distribution system in this state, the agent, solicitor or broker, or any employee acting on the agent, solicitor or broker's behalf, collecting or receiving the premium in person shall:

A. Maintain and furnish to the policyholder a receipt indicating payment of premiums, which shall provide the payer with clearly understandable, written evidence of payment at the time the premium is collected. At a minimum it shall clearly show:

(1) The name of the payer;

(2) The name of insured under each policy covered by the premium;

(3) Amount paid;

(4) The date paid;

(5) The date paid-to-status of the policy;

(6) The policy number;

(7) The face amount and type of policy for which the payment will be credited;

(8) The signature of the agent;

(9) The agent's printed name and unique identification number; and

(10) The name, complete address and phone number of the insurer; and

B. Remit to the insurer's home office, applicable district office, or deposit in a fiduciary account the premium collected on behalf of the policyholder within ten (10) days of receipt from the premium payer or policy owner. In the event that the insurer utilizes an accounting system based on a monthly list bill, all premiums collected shall be credited from the date of collection. The premium shall be fully applied to that particular account.

Section 6. Proof of Policy Delivery

If an insurance policy marketed, sold or serviced through the home service distribution system is delivered by an agent, solicitor or broker, or an employee acting on the agent, solicitor or broker's behalf, a receipt shall be signed by the purchaser and the agent acknowledging delivery to the purchaser of the policy or contract and the disclosures required by this Act. The receipt shall contain the name of the purchaser, the policy or contract number, the amount of the initial premium payment and the date the delivery was completed. A policy shall be deemed to have been received six (6) months after the date of issuance if the insured has paid premiums pursuant to the contract. All delivery receipts required by this section shall be retained by the company for not less than three (3) years following delivery and shall be available for inspection upon request of the commissioner.

Section 7. Company Duties

Each insurer engaged in the home service distribution system in this state shall make available to the insurance commissioner for review:

A. Established written procedures to audit agencies engaged in the home service system of distribution of policies in this state; and

B. Proof of audits conducted periodically that reasonably ensure that the premium payer's premium recording item or records accurately reflect the premium due date and premium paid-to-status of the policy or policies purchased.

Section 8. Minimum Disclosure Language Simplification Standards

A. All policy forms shall be approved by the insurance commissioner before they are delivered or issued for delivery in this state.

B. All disclosure forms shall comply with state readability standards. It is presumed the disclosure form of Appendix A complies with the state readability standards.

Drafting Note: If a state does not have readability standards, a state may want to consider using the Flesch "reading ease" test (Rudolph Flesch, the Art of Readable Writing 1949, as revised 1974). While the Flesch reading ease test is the basic test set forth in this drafting note, it is recognized that other tests are also in wide use and should be permitted to be used. Two sources in particular can provide guidance in this area. The first is the National Literacy Secretariat of Canada and the second is Plain Language Action Network (PLAN). Both of these sources can be accessed through a U.S. government website: http://www.plainlanguage.gov

The National Literacy Secretariat provides direction on modern plain language ideas for the presentation of content that include, for instance, the following:

- Use simple, familiar, everyday words;
- Avoid unnecessary words (e.g., use "about" rather than "with regard to");
- Avoid using jargon;
- Avoid or explain technical words;
- Don't change verbs into nouns;
- Avoid chains of nouns;
- Be consistent in your choice of words;
- Use acronyms carefully;
- Write in clear and simple sentences;
- Don't overload sentences;
- Use active sentences;
- Keep sentences short;
- Keep sentences simple;
- Avoid ambiguity in your sentences;
- Avoid double negatives;
- Divide material into short sections; and
- Limit each paragraph to one topic.

The Plain Language Action Network was formed following the issuance of a June 1, 1998 "Presidential Memorandum on Plain Language." It is intended to provide assistance to writers in government about communications with the public. In addition to content advice, the PLAN website contains specific guidelines regarding layout and typography that comply with commonly understood plain language principles. For instance, PLAN provides guidelines for the margin, spacing, and heading parameters and for the use of upper and lower case, fonts, shading, and bullets.

C. A document will comply with the Flesch reading ease test if:

(1) The text achieves a minimum score of 40 on the Flesch reading ease test or an equivalent score on any other comparable test as provided in Subsection D of this section;

(2) It is printed in not less than ten-point type, one-point leaded; and Drafting Note: This paragraph is not intended to include minor instructions concerning the preparation of a disclosure.

(3) The style, arrangement and overall appearance of the disclosure form give no undue prominence to any portion of the text of the disclosure form.

D. For the purposes of this Act, a Flesch reading ease test score shall be measured by the following method:

(1) For disclosure forms containing 10,000 words or less of text, the entire form shall be analyzed. For disclosure forms containing more than 10,000 words, the readability of two 200 word samples per page may be analyzed instead of the entire form. The samples shall be separated by at least 20 printed lines.

(2) The number of words and sentences in the text shall be counted and the total number of words divided by the total number of sentences. The figure obtained shall be multiplied by a factor of 1.015.

(3) The total number of syllables shall be counted and divided by the total number of words. The figure obtained shall be multiplied by a factor of 84.6.

(4) The sum of the figures computed under (2) and (3) subtracted from 206.835 equals the Flesch reading ease score for the policy form.

(5) For purposes of Paragraph (2), (3), and (4) of this subsection, the following procedures shall be used:

(a) A contraction, hyphenated word, or numbers and letters, when separated by spaces, shall be counted as one word;

(b) A unit of words ending with a period, semicolon or colon, but excluding headings and captions, shall be counted as a sentence; and

(c) A syllable means a unit of spoken language consisting of one or more letters of a word as divided by an accepted dictionary. Where the dictionary shows two or more equally acceptable pronunciations of a word, the pronunciation containing fewer syllables may be used.

E. Filings subject to this Act shall be accompanied by a certificate signed by an officer of the insurer stating that it meets the minimum reading ease score on the test used or stating that the score is lower than the minimum required. To confirm the accuracy of any certification, the commissioner may require the submission of further information to verify the certification in question. The certificate does not need to be signed for the disclosure form of Appendix A or accompany the disclosure form of Appendix A. It is presumed the disclosure form of Appendix A complies with the state readability standards.

Section 9. Separability

If any provision of this Act or its application to any person or circumstance is for any reason held to be invalid by any court of law, the remainder of the Act and its application to other persons or circumstances shall not be affected.

Section 10. Effective Date

This Act shall become effective [insert appropriate date] and shall apply to insurance policies distributed through the home service distribution system on or after the effective date.

Appendix A

Important Information About Your Policy

The premiums you'll pay for your policy may be more than the amount of your coverage (the face amount). You can find both the face amount and the annual premium in your policy. Look for the page labeled [use the label the company uses for that information, such as "Statement of Policy Cost and Benefit Information"].

- Usually, you can figure out how many years it will take until the premiums paid will be greater than the face amount. For an estimate, divide the face amount by the annual premium. Several factors may affect how many years this might take for your policy. These include not paying premiums when due, taking out a policy loan, surrendering your policy for cash, policy riders, payment of dividends, if any, and changes in the face amount.

- Many factors will affect how much your life insurance costs. Some are your age and health, the face amount of the policy, and the cost of a policy rider. You may be able to pay less for your insurance if you answer health questions. You may also pay less if you pay your premiums less often.

Ask your insurance agent or your insurance company if you have any questions about your premiums, your coverage, or anything else about your policy.

If You Change Your Mind ...

- You can get a full refund of premiums you've paid if you return your policy and cancel your coverage. You must do this within the number of days stated on your policy's front page. To return the policy for a full refund, send it back to the agent or the company.

- If you stop paying premiums or cancel your policy after the time that a full refund is available, you have specific rights. Ask your insurance agent or your insurance company about your rights.

Contact Information

If you have questions about your insurance policy, ask your agent or your company. If your agent isn't available, contact your insurance company at [provide telephone number (including toll-free number if available), address and website (if available)].

HOME SERVICE DISCLOSURE MODEL ACT

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. To perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

Who do I speak to if I have questions?

If you have questions or believe information related to a state should be updated, please contact Jennifer Neuerburg at jneuerburg@naic.org.

Disclaimer: This chart does not constitute a formal legal opinion by the NAIC staff on the provisions of state law and should not be relied upon as such. Nor does this state page reflect a determination as to whether a state meets any applicable accreditation standards. Every effort has been made to provide correct and accurate summaries to assist readers in locating useful information. Readers should consult state law for further details and for the most current information.

STATE PAGE KEY:

MODEL ADOPTION: States that have citations identified in this column adopted the most recent version of the NAIC model in a substantially similar manner. This requires states to adopt the model in its entirety but does allow for variations in style and format. States that have adopted portions of the current NAIC model will be included in this column with an explanatory note.

PREVIOUS VERSION: States that have citations identified in this column (and nothing listed in the Model Adoption column) have enacted an older version of the model but have not adopted the most recent version of the NAIC model.

RELATED ACTIVITY: Examples of Related Activity include but are not limited to statutes or regulations addressing the same subject matter, or other administrative guidance such as bulletins and notices. States that have citations identified in this column (and nothing listed in the Model Adoption column) have not adopted the most recent version of the NAIC model in a substantially similar manner.

NO CURRENT ACTIVITY: No state activity on the topic as of the date of the most recent update. This includes states that have repealed legislation as well as states that have never adopted legislation.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2002

HOME SERVICE DISCLOSURE MODEL ACT (#920)

1. Project Description

The Home Service Disclosure Model Act provides recommendations for disclosures that should be made to applicants when soliciting insurance through a home service distribution system The recommendation to develop a model for disclosures was made as a result of a review of the NAIC white paper titled, "The Sales and Marketing Practices, Auditing and Accounting Procedures and Products of the Insurers Utilizing the Home Service System."

2. Group Responsible for Drafting Model and States Participating

The Home Service Working Group of the Market Conduct and Consumer Affairs (D) Committee was responsible for drafting the model. Alabama and Kentucky co-chaired the working group. The following states were members of the working group: Delaware, District of Columbia, Florida, Louisiana, and Missouri. The Small Face Amount Working Group made some amendments the model. The members of that working group are, South Carolina, Chair, Arkansas, Co-Chair, Alabama, California, Delaware, District of Columbia, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Texas, Utah, and Virginia.

The Small Face Amount Working Group of the Life Insurance & Annuities (A) Committee reviewed the model act to make sure the disclosure provisions of the model were compatible with the disclosures developed for small face amount policies contained in the Disclosure for Small Face Amount life Insurance Polices Model Act. The following states were members of the Small Face Amount Working Group: South Carolina, Chair, Arkansas, Co-Chair, Alabama, California, Delaware, District of Columbia, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Texas, Utah, and Virginia.

3. Charge Authorizing Project

The charge of the Home Service (D) Working Group was, "to finalize the review of existing state laws that contain disclosure requirements for products distributed through the Home Service system and, based on this review and in consideration of the prior recommendations set forth in the NAIC White Paper "The Sales and Marketing Practices, Auditing and Accounting Procedures and Products of the Insurers Utilizing the Home Service System," to develop a model act which would provide meaningful information to the purchasers of products distributed through the Home Service system."

After the model was completed, the NAIC Executive Committee forwarded the model to the Small Face Amount Working Group of the A Committee to make sure the disclosure provisions of the model were compatible with the disclosures being developed for small face amount policies.

4. General Description of Drafting Process

The Home Service Working Group solicited comments from all interested parties, including interested regulators, funded consumer representatives and industry representatives. The working group also solicited key concerns from interested parties and collected information from states that have enacted statutes, rules, or regulations requiring disclosures in the home service distribution system. The working group received and reviewed numerous comments from interested parties.

The Small Face Amount Working Group modified the Home Service Disclosure Model Act make the disclosure provisions of the model compatible with the disclosures contained in the Disclosure for Small Face Amount life Insurance Polices Model Act. The Small Face Amount Working Group solicited comments from all interested parties, including interested regulators, funded consumer representatives and industry representatives. The working group received and reviewed numerous comments from interested parties on each draft of the model, which was posted on the NAIC website and attached to the minutes of the meetings.

5. Significant Issues Raised by the Home Service Working Group

The most significant issues raised and discussed by the Home Service Working Group and interested parties include: (1) the definition of home service; and (2); the definition of small amount life insurance policy. The positions of industry representatives, consumer representatives and regulators were considered while developing the model act. In addition, there were lengthy discussions about the dollar amount used in the definition of small amount life insurance policy. The working group originally included $25,000 in the definition and later reduced this amount to $15,000. The interested parties raised no objections to including the same disclosure document for home service policies as used for small face amount policies. Consumer representatives saw this as a great improvement to simply requiring a disclosure.

6. Significant Issues Raised by the Small Face Amount Working Group

The Home Service Model Act adopted by the D Committee required insurers to specify a date certain/expected date when the total premium paid on an insurance policy would exceed the death benefit. The Small Face Amount Working Group deleted this requirement to make the Home Service Model Act consistent with the Disclosure for Small Face Amount life Insurance Polices Model Act. While the Disclosure for Small Face Amount Life Insurance Polices Model Act requires the insurer to disclose that premiums paid on a policy may exceed the death benefit of the policy the model act does not require the insurer to specify a date certain/expected date when the total premium paid will exceed the death benefit. Interested parties indicated that requiring the disclosure of a date certain/expected date would require extensive computer programming.

Section 8 of the Home Service Disclosure Model Act specifies minimum disclosure simplification standards with which all disclosure forms used by insurers must comply. The Small Face Amount Working Group added the disclosure form developed for small face amount life insurance policies to the Home Service Disclosure Model Act. Section 8 of the Home Service Disclosure Model Act was modified to include a presumption that the disclosure form complies with the minimum disclosure simplification standards of Section 8.

AMERICAN HEALTH BENEFIT EXCHANGE MODEL ACT

Table of Contents

Section 1. Title

This Act shall be known and may be cited as the American Health Benefit Exchange Act.

Section 2. Purpose and Intent

The purpose of this Act is to provide for the establishment of an American Health Benefit Exchange to facilitate the purchase and sale of qualified health plans in the individual market in this state and to provide for the establishment of a Small Business Health Options Program (SHOP Exchange) to assist qualified small employers in this state in facilitating the enrollment of their employees in qualified health plans offered in the small group market. The intent of the Exchange is to reduce the number of uninsured, provide a transparent marketplace and consumer education and assist individuals with access to programs, premium assistance tax credits and cost-sharing reductions.

Drafting Note: States expanding the definition of "qualified employer" to include large employers, as permitted beginning in 2017 under the federal Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (Public Law 111-148), as amended by the federal Health Care and Education Reconciliation Act of 2010 (Public Law 111-152) (Federal Act), should remove the references to "small" employers and the "small" group market.

Section 3. Definitions

For purposes of this Act:

A. "Commissioner" means the Commissioner of Insurance.

Drafting Note: Use the title of the chief insurance regulatory official wherever the term "commissioner" appears. If the jurisdiction of certain health carriers, such as health maintenance organizations, lies with some state agency other than the insurance department, or if there is dual regulation, a state should add language referencing that agency to ensure the appropriate coordination of responsibilities.

B. "Educated health care consumer" means an individual who is knowledgeable about the health care system, and has background or experience in making informed decisions regarding health, medical and scientific matters.

C. "Exchange" means the [insert name of State Exchange] established pursuant to section 4 of this Act.

D. "Federal Act" means the federal Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (Public Law 111-148), as amended by the federal Health Care and Education Reconciliation Act of 2010 (Public Law 111-152), and any amendments thereto, or regulations or guidance issued under, those Acts.

E. (1) "Health benefit plan" means a policy, contract, certificate or agreement offered or issued by a health carrier to provide, deliver, arrange for, pay for or reimburse any of the costs of health care services.

Drafting Note: The Federal Act uses the terms "health plan" and "health insurance coverage." "Health benefit plan," as defined above, is intended to be consistent with the definition of "health insurance coverage" contained in Title XXVII of the Public Health Service Act, as enacted by the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA) and amended by the Federal Act.

(2) "Health benefit plan" does not include:

(a) Coverage only for accident, or disability income insurance, or any combination thereof;

(b) Coverage issued as a supplement to liability insurance;

(c) Liability insurance, including general liability insurance and automobile liability insurance;

(d) Workers' compensation or similar insurance;

(e) Automobile medical payment insurance;

(f) Credit-only insurance;

(g) Coverage for on-site medical clinics; or

(h) Other similar insurance coverage, specified in federal regulations issued pursuant to Pub. L. No. 104-191, under which benefits for health care services are secondary or incidental to other insurance benefits.

(3) "Health benefit plan" does not include the following benefits if they are provided under a separate policy, certificate or contract of insurance or are otherwise not an integral part of the plan:

(a) Limited scope dental or vision benefits;

(b) Benefits for long-term care, nursing home care, home health care, community-based care, or any combination thereof; or

(c) Other similar, limited benefits specified in federal regulations issued pursuant to Pub. L. No. 104-191.

(4) "Health benefit plan" does not include the following benefits if the benefits are provided under a separate policy, certificate or contract of insurance, there is no coordination between the provision of the benefits and any exclusion of benefits under any group health plan maintained by the same plan sponsor, and the benefits are paid with respect to an event without regard to whether benefits are provided with respect to such an event under any group health plan maintained by the same plan sponsor:

(a) Coverage only for a specified disease or illness; or

(b) Hospital indemnity or other fixed indemnity insurance.

(5) "Health benefit plan" does not include the following if offered as a separate policy, certificate or contract of insurance:

(a) Medicare supplemental health insurance as defined under section 1882(g)(1) of the Social Security Act;

(b) Coverage supplemental to the coverage provided under chapter 55 of title 10, United States Code (Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS)); or

(c) Similar supplemental coverage provided to coverage under a group health plan.

F. "Health carrier" or "carrier" means an entity subject to the insurance laws and regulations of this state, or subject to the jurisdiction of the commissioner, that contracts or offers to contract to provide, deliver, arrange for, pay for, or reimburse any of the costs of health care services, including a sickness and accident insurance company, a health maintenance organization, a nonprofit hospital and health service corporation, or any other entity providing a plan of health insurance, health benefits or health services.

G. "Qualified dental plan" means a limited scope dental plan that has been certified in accordance with section 7E of this Act.

H. "Qualified employer" means a small employer that elects to make its full-time employees eligible for one or more qualified health plans offered through the SHOP Exchange, and at the option of the employer, some or all of its part-time employees, provided that the employer:

(1) Has its principal place of business in this state and elects to provide coverage through the SHOP Exchange to all of its eligible employees, wherever employed; or

(2) Elects to provide coverage through the SHOP Exchange to all of its eligible employees who are principally employed in this state.

Drafting Note: Beginning in 2017, the Federal Act permits States to expand eligibility for Exchange participation beyond small employers. States that do so should amend subsection H accordingly.

I. "Qualified health plan" means a health benefit plan that has in effect a certification that the plan meets the criteria for certification described in section 1311(c) of the Federal Act and section 7 of this Act.

J. "Qualified individual" means an individual, including a minor, who:

(1) Is seeking to enroll in a qualified health plan offered to individuals through the Exchange;

(2) Resides in this state;

(3) At the time of enrollment, is not incarcerated, other than incarceration pending the disposition of charges; and

(4) Is, and is reasonably expected to be, for the entire period for which enrollment is sought, a citizen or national of the United States or an alien lawfully present in the United States.

K. "Secretary" means the Secretary of the federal Department of Health and Human Services.

L. "SHOP Exchange" means the Small Business Health Options Program established under section 6 of this Act.

M. (1) "Small employer" means an employer that employed an average of not more than 100 employees during the preceding calendar year.

Drafting Note: The Federal Act permits States to define "small employers" as employers with one to 50 employees for plan years beginning before Jan. 1, 2016.

(2) For purposes of this subsection:

(a) All persons treated as a single employer under subsection (b), (c), (m) or (o) of section 414 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 shall be treated as a single employer;

(b) An employer and any predecessor employer shall be treated as a single employer;

(c) All employees shall be counted, including part-time employees and employees who are not eligible for coverage through the employer;

Drafting Note: This issue is discussed in HHS Bulletin 99-03 (Group Size Issues Under Title XXVII of the Public Health Service Act). States with different legal standards for counting employer size should review their definitions for consistency with federal law and substitute their existing definitions when appropriate. States should also consider the adverse selection issues that arise if different definitions of "small employer" are used within the Exchange and outside the Exchange.

(d) If an employer was not in existence throughout the preceding calendar year, the determination of whether that employer is a small employer shall be based on the average number of employees that is reasonably expected that employer will employ on business days in the current calendar year; and

(e) An employer that makes enrollment in qualified health plans available to its employees through the SHOP Exchange, and would cease to be a small employer by reason of an increase in the number of its employees, shall continue to be treated as a small employer for purposes of this Act as long as it continuously makes enrollment through the SHOP Exchange available to its employees.

Section 4. Establishment of Exchange

A. The [insert official title of the Exchange] is hereby established as a [insert description and governance provisions here, either establishing the Exchange as a governmental agency or establishing the Exchange as a nonprofit entity].

Drafting Note: States have different options to consider when establishing the Exchange. This Act does not include any specific option for governance. Section 1311(d) of the Federal Act, requires that any Exchange established must be a governmental agency or nonprofit entity. As such, the Exchange could be located at a new or existing State agency. Some possible advantages to having the Exchange within a State agency include having a direct link to the State administration and a more direct ability to coordinate with other key State agencies, such as the State Medicaid agency and the State insurance department. Some possible disadvantages include the risk of the Exchange's decision-making and operations being politicized and the possible difficulty for the Exchange to be nimble in hiring and contracting practices, given most States' personnel and procurement rules. The Exchange could also be established as an independent public agency, or a quasi-governmental agency, with an appointed board or commission responsible for decision-making and day-to-day operations. Some possible advantages to establishing the Exchange as an independent public agency, or a quasi-governmental agency, include possible exemption from State personnel and procurement laws and more independence from existing State agencies, which could result in less of a possibility of the Exchange being politicized. The Exchange's enabling legislation would specify how the Board members would be appointed, including its size, composition and terms. The Board would also select the Exchange's Executive Director. Some possible disadvantages include the possible difficulty for the Exchange to coordinate health care purchasing strategies and initiatives with key State agencies, such as the State Medicaid agency and the State insurance department and their employees because the Exchange would not be located at a State agency (unless those decisions are subject to the approval of a State official, such as the State insurance commissioner or the Governor). The Exchange also could be established by creating a non-profit entity. This means that most likely it would not be directly accountable to State government or subject to State government oversight nor would it most likely be subject to State personnel and procurement laws. Some possible advantages of establishing the Exchange as a non-profit include flexibility in decision making and less of a chance for those decisions being politicized and some possible disadvantages include isolation from State policymakers and key State agency staff and the potential for decreased public accountability. In addition, States can establish an Exchange using a combination of the options described above. The NAIC, through the Exchanges (B) Subgroup, intends to review the options for governance above and others related to establishing Exchanges and develop an issues paper on the topic to assist States in this area.

Drafting Note: States should be aware that when establishing the Exchange they will have to include additional sections in this Act relating to governance and operations, including sections that set out:

- The appointment process, powers, duties and other responsibilities of any board, committee or other entity that will have day-to-day responsibility for carrying out the duties and responsibilities of the Exchange, as provided in this Act;
- Authority and procedures for hiring staff and procurement resources; and
- Responsibilities of State agencies coordinating activities with the Exchange.

Drafting Note: States should be aware that section 1311(f) of the Federal Act permits States, with the approval of the Secretary of the federal Department of Health and Human Services, to establish regional or interstate Exchanges. This Act does not specify how to establish these Exchanges or how they would operate. The NAIC, through the Exchanges (B) Subgroup, intends to review those issues and others related to establishing regional or interstate exchanges and develop an issues paper on the topic to assist those states that wish to establish such exchanges. States participating in interstate Exchanges or establishing regional Exchanges should modify the relevant portions of this Act accordingly.

Drafting Note: Depending on how a State establishes its Exchange, a State may need to consider whether the Exchange should be exempt from the State's insurance producer or consultant licensing requirements or whether the Exchange or its employees need to obtain such a license.

B. The Exchange shall:

(1) Facilitate the purchase and sale of qualified health plans;

(2) Provide for the establishment of a SHOP Exchange to assist qualified small employers in this state in facilitating the enrollment of their employees in qualified health plans; and

(3) Meet the requirements of this Act and any regulations implemented under this Act.

C. The Exchange may contract with an eligible entity for any of its functions described in this Act. An eligible entity includes, but is not limited to, the [insert name of State Medicaid agency] or an entity that has experience in individual and small group health insurance, benefit administration or other experience relevant to the responsibilities to be assumed by the entity, but a health carrier or an affiliate of a health carrier is not an eligible entity.

Drafting Note: States should be aware that the Federal Act does not refer to "affiliate" as referenced in subsection C above. Section 1311(f)(3)(B) of the Federal Act, as related to a health insurance issuer, defines "eligible entity" as a person: 1) incorporated under, and subject to the laws of, one or more States; 2) has demonstrated experience on a State or regional basis in the individual and small group health insurance markets and in benefits coverage; and 3) that is not a health insurance issuer or that is treated under subsection (a) or (b) of section 52 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 as a member of the same controlled group of corporations (or under common control with) as a health insurance issuer.

D. The Exchange may enter into information-sharing agreements with federal and State agencies and other State Exchanges to carry out its responsibilities under this Act provided such agreements include adequate protections with respect to the confidentiality of the information to be shared and comply with all State and federal laws and regulations.

Section 5. General Requirements

A. The Exchange shall make qualified health plans available to qualified individuals and qualified employers beginning with effective dates on or before January 1, 2014.

B. (1) The Exchange shall not make available any health benefit plan that is not a qualified health plan.

(2) The Exchange shall allow a health carrier to offer a plan that provides limited scope dental benefits meeting the requirements of section 9832(c)(2)(A) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 through the Exchange, either separately or in conjunction with a qualified health plan, if the plan provides pediatric dental benefits meeting the requirements of section 1302(b)(1)(J) of the Federal Act.

C. Neither the Exchange nor a carrier offering health benefit plans through the Exchange may charge an individual a fee or penalty for termination of coverage if the individual enrolls in another type of minimum essential coverage because the individual has become newly eligible for that coverage or because the individual's employer-sponsored coverage has become affordable under the standards of section 36B(c)(2)(C) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

Section 6. Duties of Exchange

Drafting Note: The provisions in this section are the minimum requirements of the Federal Act. States are encouraged to consider assigning additional duties, consistent with the Federal Act, to the extent appropriate to the State's market conditions and policy goals. The NAIC, through the Exchanges (B) Subgroup, intends to develop an issues paper on the topic to assist States in evaluating options in this area.

The Exchange shall:

A. Implement procedures for the certification, recertification and decertification, consistent with guidelines developed by the Secretary under section 1311(c) of the Federal Act and section 7 of this Act, of health benefit plans as qualified health plans;

B. Provide for the operation of a toll-free telephone hotline to respond to requests for assistance;

C. Provide for enrollment periods, as provided under section 1311(c)(6) of the Federal Act;

D. Maintain an Internet website through which enrollees and prospective enrollees of qualified health plans may obtain standardized comparative information on such plans;

E. Assign a rating to each qualified health plan offered through the Exchange in accordance with the criteria developed by the Secretary under section 1311(c)(3) of the Federal Act, and determine each qualified health plan's level of coverage in accordance with regulations issued by the Secretary under section 1302(d)(2)(A) of the Federal Act;

F. Use a standardized format for presenting health benefit options in the Exchange, including the use of the uniform outline of coverage established under section 2715 of the PHSA;

G. In accordance with section 1413 of the Federal Act, inform individuals of eligibility requirements for the Medicaid program under title XIX of the Social Security Act, the Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP) under title XXI of the Social Security Act or any applicable State or local public program and if through screening of the application by the Exchange, the Exchange determines that any individual is eligible for any such program, enroll that individual in that program;

H. Establish and make available by electronic means a calculator to determine the actual cost of coverage after application of any premium tax credit under section 36B of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and any cost-sharing reduction under section 1402 of the Federal Act;

I. Establish a SHOP Exchange through which qualified employers may access coverage for their employees, which shall enable any qualified employer to specify a level of coverage so that any of its employees may enroll in any qualified health plan offered through the SHOP Exchange at the specified level of coverage;

Drafting Note: States may elect to operate a unified Exchange by merging the SHOP Exchange and the Exchange for individual coverage, but only if the Exchange has adequate resources to assist these individuals and employers. States that do so will need to reconcile the eligibility rules for participation, which are currently based on residence for individual coverage and based on employment for coverage through the SHOP Exchange.

J. Subject to section 1411 of the Federal Act, grant a certification attesting that, for purposes of the individual responsibility penalty under section 5000A of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, an individual is exempt from the individual responsibility requirement or from the penalty imposed by that section because:

(1) There is no affordable qualified health plan available through the Exchange, or the individual's employer, covering the individual; or

(2) The individual meets the requirements for any other such exemption from the individual responsibility requirement or penalty;

K. Transfer to the federal Secretary of the Treasury the following:

(1) A list of the individuals who are issued a certification under subsection J, including the name and taxpayer identification number of each individual;

(2) The name and taxpayer identification number of each individual who was an employee of an employer but who was determined to be eligible for the premium tax credit under section 36B of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 because:

(a) The employer did not provide minimum essential coverage; or

(b) The employer provided the minimum essential coverage, but it was determined under section 36B(c)(2)(C) of the Internal Revenue Code to either be unaffordable to the employee or not provide the required minimum actuarial value; and

(3) The name and taxpayer identification number of:

(a) Each individual who notifies the Exchange under section 1411(b)(4) of the Federal Act that he or she has changed employers; and

(b) Each individual who ceases coverage under a qualified health plan during a plan year and the effective date of that cessation;

L. Provide to each employer the name of each employee of the employer described in subsection K(2) who ceases coverage under a qualified health plan during a plan year and the effective date of the cessation;

M. Perform duties required of the Exchange by the Secretary or the Secretary of the Treasury related to determining eligibility for premium tax credits, reduced cost-sharing or individual responsibility requirement exemptions;

N. Select entities qualified to serve as Navigators in accordance with section 1311(i) of the Federal Act, and standards developed by the Secretary, and award grants to enable Navigators to:

(1) Conduct public education activities to raise awareness of the availability of qualified health plans;

(2) Distribute fair and impartial information concerning enrollment in qualified health plans, and the availability of premium tax credits under section 36B of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and cost-sharing reductions under section 1402 of the Federal Act;

(3) Facilitate enrollment in qualified health plans;

(4) Provide referrals to any applicable office of health insurance consumer assistance or health insurance ombudsman established under section 2793 of the Public Health Service Act (PHSA), or any other appropriate State agency or agencies, for any enrollee with a grievance, complaint or question regarding their health benefit plan, coverage or a determination under that plan or coverage; and

(5) Provide information in a manner that is culturally and linguistically appropriate to the needs of the population being served by the Exchange;

O. Review the rate of premium growth within the Exchange and outside the Exchange, and consider the information in developing recommendations on whether to continue limiting qualified employer status to small employers;

P. Credit the amount of any free choice voucher to the monthly premium of the plan in which a qualified employee is enrolled, in accordance with section 10108 of the Federal Act, and collect the amount credited from the offering employer;

Q. Consult with stakeholders relevant to carrying out the activities required under this Act, including, but not limited to:

(1) Educated health care consumers who are enrollees in qualified health plans;

(2) Individuals and entities with experience in facilitating enrollment in qualified health plans;

(3) Representatives of small businesses and self-employed individuals;

(4) The [insert name of State Medicaid office]; and

(5) Advocates for enrolling hard to reach populations; and

R. Meet the following financial integrity requirements:

(1) Keep an accurate accounting of all activities, receipts and expenditures and annually submits to the Secretary, the Governor, the commissioner and the Legislature a report concerning such accountings;

(2) Fully cooperate with any investigation conducted by the Secretary pursuant to the Secretary's authority under the Federal Act and allow the Secretary, in coordination with the Inspector General of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, to:

(a) Investigate the affairs of the Exchange;

(b) Examine the properties and records of the Exchange; and

(c) Require periodic reports in relation to the activities undertaken by the Exchange; and

(3) In carrying out its activities under this Act, not use any funds intended for the administrative and operational expenses of the Exchange for staff retreats, promotional giveaways, excessive executive compensation or promotion of federal or State legislative and regulatory modifications.

Drafting Note: States should consider revising the language above to ensure that the commissioner, consistent with the provisions of the State insurance code and regulations, is given specific authority to investigate the affairs of the Exchange, examine the properties and records of the Exchange and require the Exchange to provide periodic reporting to the commissioner in relation to the activities undertaken by the Exchange under this Act, as may be appropriate given the structure and governance of the Exchange.

Section 7. Health Benefit Plan Certification

A. The Exchange may certify a health benefit plan as a qualified health plan if:

(1) The plan provides the essential health benefits package described in section 1302(a) of the Federal Act, except that the plan is not required to provide essential benefits that duplicate the minimum benefits of qualified dental plans, as provided in subsection E, if:

(a) The Exchange has determined that at least one qualified dental plan is available to supplement the plan's coverage; and

(b) The carrier makes prominent disclosure at the time it offers the plan, in a form approved by the Exchange, that the plan does not provide the full range of essential pediatric benefits, and that qualified dental plans providing those benefits and other dental benefits not covered by the plan are offered through the Exchange;

(2) The premium rates and contract language have been approved by the commissioner;

Drafting Note: States should modify the language in paragraph (2) above for consistency with their State law and regulations governing rate and form review and approval.

(3) The plan provides at least a bronze level of coverage, as determined pursuant to section 6E of this Act unless the plan is certified as a qualified catastrophic plan, meets the requirements of the Federal Act for catastrophic plans, and will only be offered to individuals eligible for catastrophic coverage;

(4) The plan's cost-sharing requirements do not exceed the limits established under section 1302(c)(1) of the Federal Act, and if the plan is offered through the SHOP Exchange, the plan's deductible does not exceed the limits established under section 1302(c)(2) of the Federal Act;

(5) The health carrier offering the plan:

(a) Is licensed and in good standing to offer health insurance coverage in this state;

(b) Offers at least one qualified health plan in the silver level and at least one plan in the gold level through each component of the Exchange in which the carrier participates, where "component" refers to the SHOP Exchange and the Exchange for individual coverage;

(c) Charges the same premium rate for each qualified health plan without regard to whether the plan is offered through the Exchange and without regard to whether the plan is offered directly from the carrier or through an insurance producer;

Drafting Note: States whose licensing laws do not use the term "producer" should substitute the appropriate terminology.

(d) Does not charge any cancellation fees or penalties in violation of section 5C of this Act; and

(e) Complies with the regulations developed by the Secretary under section 1311(d) of the Federal Act and such other requirements as the Exchange may establish;

(6) The plan meets the requirements of certification as promulgated by regulation pursuant to section 9 of this Act and by the Secretary under section 1311(c) of the Federal Act, which include, but are not limited to, minimum standards in the areas of marketing practices, network adequacy, essential community providers in underserved areas, accreditation, quality improvement, uniform enrollment forms and descriptions of coverage and information on quality measures for health benefit plan performance; and Drafting Note: As states consider certification standards, they should consider factors such as consumer choice and additional costs, in light of the value to enrollees provided by the proposed standards, when evaluating whether or not to include requirements above the minimum standards under section 1311(c)(1).

(7) The Exchange determines that making the plan available through the Exchange is in the interest of qualified individuals and qualified employers in this state.

Drafting Note: States should consider whether the Exchange should delegate all or part of plan certification function to the commissioner pursuant to the commissioner's rate and form review responsibilities.

B. The Exchange shall not exclude a health benefit plan:

(1) On the basis that the plan is a fee-for-service plan;

(2) Through the imposition of premium price controls by the Exchange; or

(3) On the basis that the health benefit plan provides treatments necessary to prevent patients' deaths in circumstances the Exchange determines are inappropriate or too costly.

C. The Exchange shall require each health carrier seeking certification of a plan as a qualified health plan to:

(1) Submit a justification for any premium increase before implementation of that increase. The carrier shall prominently post the information on its Internet website. The Exchange shall take this information, along with the information and the recommendations provided to the Exchange by the commissioner under section 2794(b) of the PHSA, into consideration when determining whether to allow the carrier to make plans available through the Exchange;

Drafting Note: States with additional rate filing requirements should review the language in paragraph (1) above to ensure that it does not conflict with other applicable State law.

(2) (a) Make available to the public, in the format described in subparagraph (b) of this paragraph, and submit to the Exchange, the Secretary, and the commissioner, accurate and timely disclosure of the following:

(i) Claims payment policies and practices;

(ii) Periodic financial disclosures;

(iii) Data on enrollment;

(iv) Data on disenrollment;

(v) Data on the number of claims that are denied;

(vi) Data on rating practices;

(vii) Information on cost-sharing and payments with respect to any out-of-network coverage;

(viii) Information on enrollee and participant rights under title I of the Federal Act; and

(ix) Other information as determined appropriate by the Secretary; and

(b) The information required in subparagraph (a) of this paragraph shall be provided in plain language, as that term is defined in section 1311(e)(3)(B) of the Federal Act; and

(3) Permit individuals to learn, in a timely manner upon the request of the individual, the amount of cost-sharing, including deductibles, copayments, and coinsurance, under the individual's plan or coverage that the individual would be responsible for paying with respect to the furnishing of a specific item or service by a participating provider. At a minimum, this information shall be made available to the individual through an Internet website and through other means for individuals without access to the Internet.

D. The Exchange shall not exempt any health carrier seeking certification of a qualified health plan, regardless of the type or size of the carrier, from State licensure or solvency requirements and shall apply the criteria of this section in a manner that assures a level playing field between or among health carriers participating in the Exchange.

E. (1) The provisions of this Act that are applicable to qualified health plans shall also apply to the extent relevant to qualified dental plans except as modified in accordance with the provisions of paragraphs (2), (3) and (4) of this subsection or by regulations adopted by the Exchange;

(2) The carrier shall be licensed to offer dental coverage, but need not be licensed to offer other health benefits;

Drafting Note: States that do not provide for a limited scope license should review the language above and either not include it or modify it for consistency with applicable State law and regulations.

(3) The plan shall be limited to dental and oral health benefits, without substantially duplicating the benefits typically offered by health benefit plans without dental coverage and shall include, at a minimum, the essential pediatric dental benefits prescribed by the Secretary pursuant to section 1302(b)(1)(J) of the Federal Act, and such other dental benefits as the Exchange or the Secretary may specify by regulation; and

(4) Carriers may jointly offer a comprehensive plan through the Exchange in which the dental benefits are provided by a carrier through a qualified dental plan and the other benefits are provided by a carrier through a qualified health plan, provided that the plans are priced separately and are also made available for purchase separately at the same price.

Section 8. Funding; Publication of Costs

A. The Exchange may charge assessments or user fees to health carriers or otherwise may generate funding necessary to support its operations provided under this Act.

Drafting Note: As provided in section 1311(d)(5)(A) of the Federal Act, in establishing an Exchange under this Act, the State must ensure that the Exchange is self-sustaining by January 1, 2015.

B. The Exchange shall publish the average costs of licensing, regulatory fees and any other payments required by the Exchange, and the administrative costs of the Exchange, on an Internet website to educate consumers on such costs. This information shall include information on monies lost to waste, fraud and abuse.

Section 9. Regulations

The Exchange may promulgate regulations to implement the provisions of this Act. Regulations promulgated under this section shall not conflict with or prevent the application of regulations promulgated by the Secretary under the Federal Act.

Drafting Note: States that do not establish the Exchange in a governmental agency with rulemaking authority should substitute the agency responsible for the administration or oversight of the Exchange. As appropriate, the commissioner should be granted rulemaking authority to promulgate regulations to implement the provisions of this Act within the scope of the commissioner's authority, as provided under State law or regulations.

Section 10. Relation to Other Laws

Nothing in this Act, and no action taken by the Exchange pursuant to this Act, shall be construed to preempt or supersede the authority of the commissioner to regulate the business of insurance with in this state. Except as expressly provided to the contrary in this Act, all health carriers offering qualified health plans in this state shall comply fully with all applicable health insurance laws of this State and regulations adopted and orders issued by the commissioner.

Drafting Note: States should be aware that section 1311(d)(3)(A) of the Federal Act states that the Exchange "may make available a qualified health plan notwithstanding any provision of law that may require benefits other than the essential health benefits specified under section 1302(b) of the Federal Act," unless the State elects, pursuant to Section 1311(d)(3)(B) of the Federal Act, to require additional benefits and to make payments to or on behalf of enrollees to defray the cost of the additional benefits. Thus, if a State has benefit mandates that exceed the federal essential health benefit requirements, States may choose either to: 1) establish a mechanism under which qualified health plans may lawfully be offered through the Exchange without being required to provide benefits in addition to the federally designated essential benefits; or 2) establish a mechanism for evaluating and defraying the costs of the additional benefits. For States choosing to require additional benefits and defray the cost, it is recommended that the costs of the additional benefits be measured on a "net cost" basis to the extent permitted by federal law or regulations or guidance, considering both the costs of the service and any associated savings, based on an evidence-based methodology to determine the net cost, if any, of each additional benefit, and the value of the benefit to the State's residents. States also should be aware of the potential conflicts and opportunities for adverse selection created by having inconsistent benefits inside an Exchange and outside an Exchange.

Section 11. Effective Date

This Act shall be effective [insert date].

AMERICAN HEALTH BENEFIT EXCHANGE MODEL ACT

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. To perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

Who do I speak to if I have questions?

If you have questions or believe information related to a state should be updated, please contact Jennifer Neuerburg at jneuerburg@naic.org.

Disclaimer: This chart does not constitute a formal legal opinion by the NAIC staff on the provisions of state law and should not be relied upon as such. Nor does this state page reflect a determination as to whether a state meets any applicable accreditation standards. Every effort has been made to provide correct and accurate summaries to assist readers in locating useful information. Readers should consult state law for further details and for the most current information.

AMERICAN HEALTH BENEFIT EXCHANGE MODEL ACT

STATE PAGE KEY:

MODEL ADOPTION: States that have citations identified in this column adopted the most recent version of the NAIC model in a substantially similar manner. This requires states to adopt the model in its entirety but does allow for variations in style and format. States that have adopted portions of the current NAIC model will be included in this column with an explanatory note.

PREVIOUS VERSION: States that have citations identified in this column (and nothing listed in the Model Adoption column) have enacted an older version of the model but have not adopted the most recent version of the NAIC model.

RELATED ACTIVITY: Examples of Related Activity include but are not limited to statutes or regulations addressing the same subject matter, or other administrative guidance such as bulletins and notices. States that have citations identified in this column (and nothing listed in the Model Adoption column) have not adopted the most recent version of the NAIC model in a substantially similar manner.

NO CURRENT ACTIVITY: No state activity on the topic as of the date of the most recent update. This includes states that have repealed legislation as well as states that have never adopted legislation.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2010

AMERICAN HEALTH BENEFIT EXCHANGE MODEL ACT (#929)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

In March, following the NAIC Spring National Meeting, the NAIC established the Exchanges Subgroup under the Health Insurance and Managed Care Committee in light of the provisions of section 1321 of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (PPACA). Section 1321 of PPACA provides that the Secretary of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, in consultation with the NAIC and its members and with health insurance issuers, consumer organizations, and such other individuals as the Secretary selects in a manner designed to ensure balanced representation among interested parties, issue regulations setting standards for: 1) the establishment and operation of Exchanges, including SHOP Exchanges; 2) the offering of qualified health plan through the Exchanges; 3) the establishment of the reinsurance and risk adjustment program; and 4) such other requirements as the Secretary determines appropriate.

As provided in section 1311(b) of PPACA, if a state elects to establish an exchange, the exchange must be established and operational no later than Jan. 1, 2014. Section 1321 of PPACA requires the Secretary of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services to make a determination on or before Jan. 1, 2013, on whether any state that elects to establish an exchange has taken the actions the Secretary considers necessary to have the exchange operational by Jan. 1, 2014.

At the NAIC Summer National Meeting, in August, to assist those states electing to establish an exchange, the Exchanges Subgroup decided to develop a model act that would reflect the minimum essential provisions of PPACA for establishing an exchange. The model act was adopted by the Exchanges Subgroup and the Health Insurance and Managed Care Committee in mid-November. It outlines the essential duties and functions of an exchange as provided in section 1311 of PPACA. The model act does not include provisions where PPACA provides state flexibility, such as in the structure and operation of an exchange. The Exchanges Subgroup anticipates developing issue briefs for some of those possible provisions, including governance, funding, role of navigators/insurance producers, regional exchanges, and eligibility and enrollment. The issue briefs would highlight issues that states should consider, but not make any specific recommendations.

Major provisions in the model act include:

- Placeholder language for establishing the exchange as a governmental agency, nonprofit entity or a combination of both (Section 4).
- Language that reflects the minimum duties of an exchange as outlined in section 1311 of PPACA, such as implementing procedures for certifying, recertifying and decertifying heath benefit plans as qualified health plans, establishing a SHOP exchange and selecting entities qualified to serve as Navigators (Section 6).
- Provisions for certifying a health benefit plan as a qualified health plan and provisions for qualified dental plans (Section 7).
- Provisions for funding the exchange after Jan. 1, 2015 (Section 8).
- Provisions providing rule-making authority for the exchange (Section 9)
- Provisions related to other laws, particularly as related to section 1311(d)(3) of PPACA related to the exchange making available qualified health plans notwithstanding any of provision of law that may require benefits other than essential health benefits unless the state elects to require additional benefits and to make payments to or on behalf of enrollees to defray the cost of the additional benefits (Section 10).

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Exchanges Subgroup drafted the model act. The members of the Subgroup are: Kansas, Co-Lead Regulator and Illinois, Co-Lead Regulator, Alaska, California, District of Columbia, Florida, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Montana, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and West Virginia.

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The Exchanges Subgroup of the Health Insurance and Managed Care Committee was established by the NAIC and the Health Insurance and Managed Care Committee as a result of section 1321 of PPACA. Section 1321 of the PPACA provides that the Secretary of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, in consultation with the NAIC and its members and with health insurance issuers, consumer organizations, and such other individuals as the Secretary selects in a manner designed to ensure balanced representation among interested parties, issue regulations setting standards for: 1) the establishment and operation of Exchanges, including SHOP Exchanges; 2) the offering of qualified health plan through the Exchanges; 3) the establishment of the reinsurance and risk adjustment program; and 4) such other requirements as the Secretary determines appropriate. At the Summer National Meeting, the Exchanges Subgroup decided to develop a model act that would reflect the minimum essential provisions of PPACA for establishing an exchange.

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated

The model act was drafted by the Exchanges Subgroup. The Subgroup held face to face meetings at the Summer National Meeting and the Fall National Meeting and conference calls Nov. 9 and 15 to discuss each draft and the comments received. All drafts and comments were posted on the Subgroup's page on the NAIC internet website.

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

The Exchanges Subgroup held face to face meetings at the Summer National Meeting and the Fall National Meeting and conference calls Nov. 9 and 15 to discuss each draft and the comments received. All drafts and comments were posted on the Subgroup's page on the NAIC internet website.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response)

There were no significant issues or items of controversy. However, many of the interested parties, who commented on each draft, and some regulators wanted the Subgroup to go beyond having the model act reflect the basic essential requirements in PPACA for establishing an exchange. They wanted the Subgroup to develop for inclusion in the model act provisions for those areas where PPACA provides states with flexibility, such as governance. Given the varying state health insurance market conditions and policy concerns, the Subgroup decided that it would be more appropriate to develop issue briefs on these topics.

7. Any Other Important Information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard).

As used in this regulation:

A. "Claim" means the same as in subsection 2A of the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law.

B. "Claim identifier" means the unique alphanumeric sequence assigned to a claim by the reporting entity as required by subsection 5A(1) of the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law.

C. "Claimant" means the same as in subsection 2B of the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law.

D. "Closed claim" means the same as in subsection 2C of the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law.

E. "Commissioner" means the same as in subsection 2D of the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law.

F. "Companion claims" means the same as in subsection 2E of the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law.

G. "Defense and cost containment expenses" means expenses paid or incurred for defense, litigation and cost containment services. The amounts reported for an insuring entity's or self-insurer's employees should include overhead, just as an outside firm's charges would include.

(1) Defense and cost containment expenses include:

(a) Surveillance expenses;

(b) Fixed amounts for cost containment expenses;

(c) Litigation management expenses;

(d) Fees or salaries for appraisers, private investigators, hearing representatives, reinspectors and fraud investigators, if working in defense of a claim, and fees or salaries for rehabilitation nurses, if such cost is not included in losses;

(e) Attorney fees incurred owing to a duty to defend, even when other coverage does not exist; and

(f) The cost of engaging experts.

(2) Defense and cost containment expenses do not include:

(a) Fees of adjusters and settling agents (but not if engaged in a contentious defense);

(b) Attorney fees incurred in the determination of coverage, including litigation between the insuring entity and the policyholder; and

(c) Fees or salaries for appraisers, private investigators, hearing representatives, reinspectors and fraud investigators, if working in the capacity of an adjuster.

H. "Economic damages" means the same as in subsection 2F of the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law.

I. "Excess insuring entity" means an insuring entity that provides insurance coverage above the limits of primary insurance or a self-insured retention.

J. "Facility" means the same as in subsection 2G of the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law.

K. "Incident" means an alleged medical error or omission or a series of related errors or omissions leading to allegations of harm. A single incident may span multiple years and involve numerous named defendants.

L. "Incident identifier" means the unique alphanumeric sequence assigned by the reporting entity to a series of closed claims that result from a single incident or related series of incidents of medical malpractice, as required by subsection 5A(2) of the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law.

M. "Insuring entity" means the same as in subsection 2I of the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law.

N. "Medical malpractice" means the same as in subsection 2J of the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law.

O. "Noneconomic damages" means the same as in subsection 2K of the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law.

P. "Primary insuring entity" means the insuring entity that originates the primary layer of insurance coverage. A self-insurer is not considered to be a primary insuring entity.

Q. "Provider" means the same as in subsection 2H of the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law.

R. "Reporting entity" means any person or entity required to report data under Section 4 of the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law.

S. "Self-insurer" means the same as in subsection 2L of the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law.

T. "User ID" is a permanent alphanumeric sequence assigned by the commissioner to each insuring entity, self-insurer, facility or provider that reports data.

Section 3. Applicability and Scope

This regulation is intended to implement this state's medical professional liability closed claim reporting requirements in a manner that is consistent with the NAIC Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law. It applies to all reporting entities as defined in subsection 2R of this regulation.

Section 4. Claims Required to Be Reported

A. The types of closed medical professional liability claims that must be reported to the commissioner include:

(1) Claims closed with an indemnity payment;

(2) Claims closed with paid defense and cost containment expenses; and

(3) Claims closed with both indemnity payments and paid defense and cost containment expenses.

B. If a self-insurer, facility or provider waives copayments, forgives bills or deductibles, or makes other similar accommodations to a client, it is not a claim under subsection 2A of the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law. Reporting entities are not required to report these types of accommodations to the commissioner.

C. A claim is closed on the date the reporting entity takes final administrative action to close the claim. Final administrative action occurs after the reporting entity:

(1) Issues the final payment to the claimant in the form of a check, draft, or electronic funds transfer;

(2) Pays all outstanding bills for defense and cost containment expenses; and

(3) If applicable, receives all indemnity and defense and cost containment expense payment data needed for reporting from a facility, provider or excess insuring entity.

D. If a closed claim is reopened to update data, the reporting entity must report the updated data to the commissioner after it updates and closes the claim file.

Section 5. Assignment of Claim and Incident Identifiers

A. The reporting entity must assign a different claim identifier to each closed claim report.

(1) The commissioner will combine the reporting entity's user ID with the claim identifier to create a unique record identifier for each claim.

(2) The commissioner may use the record identifier to trace the claim for auditing purposes.

B. If a claimant makes claims against more than one facility or provider insured by an insuring entity or self-insurer, the insuring entity or self-insurer must report each claim separately and include an incident identifier.

Section 6. Responsibility for Reporting Data

A. Except as provided by subsections B through F of this section, primary insuring entities are principally responsible for reporting closed claim data required under the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law.

(1) The primary insuring entity must report the total amounts paid to settle the claim, including any indemnity or defense and cost containment expense payments made by:

(a) An insured facility or provider;

(b) An excess insuring entity; or

(c) Any other person or entity on behalf of the facility or provider.

(2) Facilities or providers insured by the primary insuring entity must cooperate and assist the primary insuring entity in the reporting process.

(3) If a primary insuring entity and one or more excess insuring entities combine to pay a claim:

(a) The primary insuring entity must report all paid indemnity and defense and cost containment expenses; and

(b) The excess insuring entity must cooperate and assist the primary insuring entity in the reporting process.

B. If an excess insuring entity insures a self-insurer and makes indemnity payments or incurs defense and cost containment expenses, the excess insuring entity is principally responsible to report the required closed claim data.

(1) Self-insurers must report all claim payments and defense and cost containment expenses to the excess insuring entity for reporting purposes; and

(2) The excess insuring entity must report data on behalf of itself and the self-insurer.

(3) An excess insuring entity is not responsible to report closed claim data reported by a primary insuring entity under subsection 6A of this Guideline.

C. If a closed claim payment falls wholly within its self-insured retention, the self-insurer must report the required closed claim data.

D. A self-insurer may designate itself to be the principal reporting entity and report closed claim data on behalf of itself and any excess insuring entity. If the self-insurer designates itself to be the principal reporting entity, the self-insurer must:

(1) Notify the commissioner in writing of this arrangement;

(2) Report the required closed claim data on behalf of itself and the excess insuring entity; and

(3) Accept responsibility for compliance with the requirements of subsection 4A of the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law.

E. A facility or provider is responsible to report the required closed claim data if:

(1) There is no insurance coverage available from an insuring entity or self-insurer to defend or pay the claim; or

(2) The insuring entity or self-insurer fails to report the required closed claim data.

F. An insuring entity or self-insurer may designate a third party to report closed claim data. In this case the insuring entity or self-insurer must:

(1) Obtain a user ID from the commissioner;

(2) Designate the third party as the entity that will report closed claim data on its behalf;

(3) Manage the activities of the third party with respect to the insuring entity's or self-insurer's closed claim data; and

(4) Retain responsibility for all closed claim data submitted by the third party.

Section 7. Reporting of Specific Data Elements

A. Policy limits—When reporting the policy limits of the medical professional liability insurance policy covering the claim, reporting entities must report the following, if applicable:

(1) Primary policy limit, per occurrence (a self-insured retention is not a primary policy limit);

(2) Annual limit of primary policy;

(3) Excess policy limit, per occurrence;

(4) Annual limit of excess policy;

(5) Available primary policy limit; and

(6) Available excess policy limit.

B. Medical specialty—When reporting medical specialties, reporting entities must use the Field of Licensure Codes and Medical Specialty Codes published by the National Practitioner Data Bank.

C. Type of health care facility—When reporting the type of health care facility, the reporting entity must use the Type of Organization Codes published by the National Practitioner Data Bank (NPDB). Public facilities, such as prisons and universities, must review the NPDB Type of Organization Codes and enter the most similar classification.

D. Primary location within a facility—When reporting the primary location within a facility where the incident occurred, the reporting entity must use the incident locations published by the Physician Insurers Association of America in conjunction with its data-sharing project. The reporting entity must report one of these locations:

(1) Catheterization lab;

(2) Critical care unit;

(3) Dispensary;

(4) Emergency department;

(5) Labor and delivery room;

(6) Laboratory;

(7) Nursery;

(8) Operating room;

(9) Outpatient department;

(10) Patient room;

(11) Pharmacy;

(12) Physical therapy department;

(13) Radiation therapy department;

(14) Radiology department;

(15) Recovery room;

(16) Rehabilitation center;

(17) Special procedure room;

(18) Location other than an inpatient facility:

(a) Clinical support center, such as a laboratory or radiology center;

(b) Office;

(c) Walk-in clinic; or

(d) Other;

(19) Other department in hospital;

(20) Unknown; and

(21) Other.

E. County—When reporting the county in which the incident occurred, the reporting entity must report based on the location of the facility where the incident occurred. If more than one alleged medical error led to the claim, the reporting entity must choose the location where the alleged medical error leading most directly to the injury occurred. In the event that an alleged medical error occurs outside this state, but the claim is made in this state, a closed claim report must be filed in this state and the county shown as "Location out of state."

F. Severity of injury—when reporting the severity of injury, the reporting entity must use the National Practitioner Data Bank severity scale. This scale shows the medical outcome for temporary and permanent injuries.

(1) Temporary injuries include:

(a) Emotional injury only, such as fright, where no physical damage occurred;

(b) Insignificant injury, such as lacerations, contusions, minor scars or rash, where no delay in recovery occurs;

(c) Minor injury, such as infection, fracture set improperly or a fall in the hospital, where recovery is complete but delayed; and

(d) Major injury, such as burns, surgical material left, drug side effect or brain damage, where recovery is complete but delayed.

(2) Permanent injuries include:

(a) Minor injury, such as loss of fingers or loss or damage to organs, where the injury is not disabling;

(b) Significant injury, such as deafness, loss of limb, loss of eye or loss of one kidney or lung;

(c) Major injury, such as paraplegia, blindness, loss of two limbs or brain damage;

(d) Grave injury, such as quadriplegia, severe brain damage, life-long care or fatal prognosis; and

(e) Death.

(3) If several injuries are involved, the reporting entity should report the most severe injury.

G. Dates—All dates required by subsection 5I of the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law must be reported. When reporting the date of notice to the insuring entity, self-insurer, facility or provider, the reporting entity must report the date on which:

(1) The insured notifies the primary insuring entity or self-insurer of a claim if insurance coverage is available; or

(2) The claimant notifies the facility or provider of a claim if insurance coverage is not available.

H. Claim disposition—when reporting the method of claim disposition, the reporting entity must describe the method of claim disposition using one of the following descriptions:

(1) Claim is abandoned by the claimant.

(2) Claim is settled by the parties.

(3) Claim is disposed of by a court when the court issues a:

(a) Directed verdict for the plaintiff;

(b) Directed verdict for the defendant;

(c) Judgment notwithstanding verdict for the plaintiff (judgment for the defendant);

(d) Judgment notwithstanding verdict for the defendant (judgment for the plaintiff);

(e) Involuntary dismissal;

(f) Judgment for the plaintiff;

(g) Judgment for the defendant;

(h) Judgment for the plaintiff after appeal; or

(i) Judgment for the defendant after appeal.

(4) Claim is settled by an alternative dispute resolution process, whether resolved by:

(a) Arbitration;

(b) Mediation;

(c) Private judging or private trial; or

(d) Other type of alternative dispute resolution process.

I. Timing of disposition—when reporting the timing of the claim disposition, the reporting entity must report whether the claim is settled:

(1) Before requesting arbitration, mediation, or private trial;

(2) Before trial, arbitration or mediation;

(3) During trial, arbitration or mediation;

(4) After trial or hearing, but before judgment or award;

(5) After judgment or decision, but before appeal;

(6) During an appeal;

(7) After an appeal; or

(8) During review panel or non-binding arbitration.

J. Indemnity payments and defense and cost containment expenses:

(1) When reporting indemnity payments, the reporting entity must report payments on a gross basis and provide the total amount paid to the claimant to settle the claim. The reporting entity must not deduct the value of offsets or recoverables, such as:

(a) Reimbursement by the insured for a deductible;

(b) Reimbursement by a reinsurer or excess insuring entity; or

(c) Anticipated subrogation recoveries.

(2) When indemnity payments exceed the facility's or provider's policy limits, the reporting entity must report the total amount paid by all parties on behalf of the insured, including:

(a) The amount paid by all the insuring entities. The actual amount paid may be higher or lower than the policy limit, depending on the settlement agreement.

(b) Additional payments in excess of policy limits made by the insured facility or provider to the claimant.

(3) Subrogation between insuring entities or self-insurers may occur if there is a dispute over which entity should respond to a lawsuit. If an insuring entity or self-insurer receives a subrogation payment, it must report subrogation proceeds and any defense and cost containment expenses paid to obtain those proceeds. If necessary, the reporting entity may reopen the claim to report this information.

(4) Structured settlements:

(a) If a claim is paid with a structured settlement agreement, the reporting entity must report the lump-sum payment for the purchase of the annuity.

(b) If a claim is paid with a combination of a lump-sum payment to the claimant and a structured settlement, the reporting entity must report the sum of both payments.

(5) If more than one claim is filed with a reporting entity due to an incident of medical malpractice, the reporting entity must report companion claim payments in this manner:

(a) Indemnity payments and defense and cost containment expenses paid to defend and settle each claim must be reported separately for each facility or provider.

(b) If indemnity payments are based on a trial verdict, the reporting entity must use the apportionment resulting from the verdict.

(c) If indemnity payments are not based on a trial verdict, the reporting entity must allocate indemnity payments among facilities and providers based on an assessment of comparative fault.

(d) The reporting entity must allocate defense and cost containment expense payments based on the extent to which each facility or provider benefited from the defense services.

(e) The reporting entity is responsible for assigning incident identifiers only for its own claims.

(6) When reporting defense and cost containment expenses, the reporting entity must report:

(a) Defense and cost containment expenses paid for defense counsel, including both in-house and outside counsel;

(b) Defense and cost containment expenses paid for experts, including both in-house and outside experts;

(c) All other defense and cost containment expenses; and

(d) Total defense and cost containment expenses.

(7) When an insuring entity or self-insurer uses company employees, including professional medical staff and in-house legal counsel, to defend claims, the reporting entity:

(a) Must include in defense and cost containment expenses the salary, benefits and an allocation of overhead for those employees; and

(b) May use average salaries and the results of time studies when calculating these defense and cost containment expenses.

K. Estimation of economic and noneconomic damages:

(1) If indemnity payments are the amounts awarded by a court for economic and noneconomic damages, respectively, the reporting entity must report those amounts.

(2) Otherwise, if a reporting entity makes indemnity payments to a claimant, the reporting entity must report the portion of the indemnity payments related to economic damages and the portion of the indemnity payments related to noneconomic damages based on documented evidence obtained during the claim resolution process. Reporting entities may not determine these amounts using a fixed formula, such as fifty percent of total paid indemnity.

(3) The total indemnity payments must be equal to the sum of the reporting entity's best estimate of indemnity payments related to economic damages and the reporting entity's best estimate of indemnity payments related to noneconomic damages, and neither estimate may exceed the total indemnity payment.

L. Trials—Information about defendants other than the insured should be to the best of the reporting entity's knowledge at the time the claim was closed:

(1) If a trial was started, the reporting entity must report:

(a) Whether the trial was by a judge alone or by a judge and jury; and

(b) The total number of defendants, including those it insures and any other defendants.

(2) If the trial resulted in a verdict, the reporting entity must report the total number of defendants found liable.

(3) If there was a verdict and at least one defendant was found liable, the reporting entity must report:

(a) The total verdict against all defendants (this amount should reflect the award without applying any damages caps, remittiturs, additurs, interest, or other adjustments);

(b) The percentage of fault, if any, assigned to the plaintiff;

(c) The percentage of fault assigned to the reporting entity's insured;

(d) Whether liability was joint and several, or separate;

(e) A breakdown of the total verdict into the following damages categories: economic compensatory damages, noneconomic compensatory damages, and punitive damages;

(f) The amount, if any, of pre-judgment interest awarded by the court;

(g) The amount, if any, by which the court reduced the verdict as a result of caps on damages or interest; and remittitur, or any other reason;

(h) The amount, if any, by which the court increased the verdict as a result of additur; and

(i) The total judgment awarded by the court.

Drafting Note: A state's decision to include or exclude some or all of the data elements listed in Subsection 7L may be affected by the state's Freedom of Information Act or by the confidentiality provisions used in the state's enactment of the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law.

PART B
MECHANISM FOR REPORTING AND COLLECTION OF DATA

If it is feasible, the commissioner will establish a web-based reporting site to be used by reporting entities to report the required closed claim data.

The state's data reporting and collection system should include controls that prevent the entry of data that are invalid or internally inconsistent. The system should be designed to meet the needs of various types of reporting entities, many of which have not been accustomed to reporting any kind of information to the commissioner.

The commissioner should also consider the feasibility of providing for electronic transfer of batch data from reporting entities that report a substantial number of claims each year, provided that these reporting entities can incorporate into their data collection and reporting processes business rules that ensure the accuracy of the reported data.

To promote efficiency of reporting and quality of data, the commissioner will, to the extent that it is feasible, make the operation and format of the state's data reporting and collection system consistent with those of other states. In order to facilitate uniformity among states, the commissioner is encouraged to share with other states any information that can be made available regarding the design and operation of the state's system.

PART C
INSURANCE DEPARTMENT OUTREACH EFFORTS

The commissioner is responsible for collecting data from entities that are not traditionally regulated by insurance departments. To ensure timely compliance with the reporting law, the commissioner should engage in outreach and training initiatives. These are some of the groups that typically must be contacted during the outreach effort.

Sector Lobbyists
State medical associations
State hospital associations
Health care organizations, such as health maintenance organizations
Medical professional liability insurers
Nursing home associations
Surplus lines association
Risk retention group associations

Other State Agencies
Risk management agencies
University and college medical centers that provide medical services
Correctional agencies that provide medical services to inmates
Health agencies that provide public health services

Local Government
Some cities and counties provide medical services to the public or inmates residing in local correctional facilities.

Risk Management Associations
Some states have risk management associations related to health care risk management issues.

The organizations listed above can help the commissioner make reporting entities aware of the state's closed claim reporting requirements. Training programs presented by insurance department staff and accessible to members of these organizations are likely to improve the timeliness and quality of the closed claim data submitted by reporting entities.

PART D
COMPILING, VERIFYING, AND RELEASING DATA

Part D of this guideline is intended to assist state regulators in compiling claims data pursuant to the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law. It is designed to promote uniformity and to ensure that data can be seamlessly aggregated across states.

The commissioner has a responsibility to ensure that the data collected are complete and accurate, to analyze the data using sound statistical methods, and to provide summary reports and data analyses for the legislature and the public.

Before data are summarized and analyzed, the commissioner should check the reasonableness of the data collected and work with reporting entities to ensure that any needed corrections are made.

As early as practical each year, the commissioner should:

(a) Summarize and analyze the data submitted on claims closed in preceding years, using sound statistical methods; and

(b) Issue a report including the data, the analysis, and any conclusions that are drawn. This report should be made available to the public on the commissioner's website.

To the extent that data are confidential, the commissioner must protect the data in a manner consistent with provisions used in the state's adoption of Section 6 of the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law. If the data are not confidential, the commissioner should make the data publicly available on a website in a standard format, within a reasonable period (not to exceed one year) after the year to which the claim report relates. In addition, it is recommended that each state develop formal data verification procedures to ensure that data are as accurate and complete as possible. Data verification methods are discussed below. Lastly, for states that desire to make data available to researchers or other interested parties, methods of minimizing the risk of disclosure of confidential or sensitive information are presented.

I. Data verification

In recent years, data verification processes have evolved into highly sophisticated, rigorous, and organized systems for ensuring the integrity and accuracy of data. A variety of data problems can introduce serious statistical biases and distortions into any subsequent analysis. All states should develop formal processes to ensure that data are as accurate and complete as possible. Some of the following material is taken from the NAIC's Market Regulation Handbook, which provides a good overview of data verification issues.

The most frequently used data verification procedures are related to completeness, validity, internal consistency, missing records, and reasonability. If a data problem cannot be remedied, procedures should be adopted to minimize the risk of statistical bias.

Completeness

Data should be as complete as possible. Underreporting can introduce significant biases into an analysis of claims data, particularly if a state lacks corresponding exposure and premium data. Without procedures to ensure completeness, it may be difficult to differentiate between meaningful patterns and reporting errors.

To ensure completeness of the data reported by insurers, medical professional liability claims should be reconciled with control totals, if available. All states can obtain statewide data from the "state page" of the financial annual statement, including aggregate annual premiums written and earned, losses paid and incurred, and additional expense items. In addition, insurers report the number of paid claims on Supplement A to Schedule T. Unfortunately, due to different accounting standards, amounts reported on the financial annual statement may not closely reconcile with the individual-level claims data. For example, the number of paid claims on the annual statement may include payments made on claims closed on prior years. However, very large discrepancies between amounts should be noted, and states should contact insurers to provide a satisfactory explanation for such discrepancies. In at least some instances, underreporting can be detected, even though the method is imperfect.

Attached to this guideline as Appendix 1 is a reconciliation form that could be used to reconcile closed claim data to Schedule T. It is suggested that the form be completed in its entirety by the insurer and reviewed by the state insurance department, which would follow up as needed.

Analogous data for some reporting entities do not exist in most states. For example, most state insurance departments will have only limited information about self-insured entities. States should carefully review their surveillance and enforcement authority with respect to all relevant entities to ensure full compliance with reporting requirements.

Validity

Data fields should be systematically checked to determine that all values are valid and that all codes used correspond to the reporting specifications. To the extent that it's possible, the state's mechanism for collecting closed claim data should be designed to prevent the entry of invalid data. Validity is generally determined in a prima facie sense: values are wrong "on their face" in that the true value cannot logically be as reported. For example, if codes are used, data that include codes that are not specified on the reporting protocols are simply "wrong," and must be recoded. Other examples include reported policy limits below legally required minimums, or payments for non-economic damages that exceed statutory caps.

Internal consistency

States should identify ways to ensure that each data record is internally consistent, such that values reported in different data fields are not logically contradictory. To the extent that it's possible, the state's mechanism for collecting closed claim data should be designed to prevent the entry of data that are internally inconsistent. Similar to validity, inconsistency is determined on a prima facie basis: a data record is internally inconsistent when two or more values cannot logically be simultaneously correct. For example, if in a data record the reporting entity's best estimate of indemnity payments related to economic damages exceeds the total indemnity payments, the necessary conclusion is that one or both of these values are incorrect.

Missing Data Elements (including values coded as "unknown")

Missing data elements can potentially cause analyses to be biased. Bias will occur if the relevant characteristics of the subset of items for which the information is missing differ on average from the overall population. Since both the likelihood and degree of such potential differences are generally unknown, potential bias cannot be ruled out in a non-arbitrary way.

Ideally, no relevant data elements should be missing, though some small amount is often tolerated in many data quality control systems. States should develop procedures that specify the tolerable percentage of missing data.

Reasonability

Reasonability standards are relatively subjective compared to the other verification standards identified in this section. Reasonability checks identify anomalous data values that deviate significantly from averages, or "what one would expect to see." Reasonability checks can be performed by examining the upper and lower extreme values for each data element, and comparing these values to the average value for the entire dataset. In addition, values within a single record should be compared to identify anomalous relationships. Values that appear unreasonable should be investigated to determine that they are correct. For example, a claim payment of $5,000,000 on an injury with a severity level of 1 (emotional only) ought to be verified. While not strictly invalid, such a discrepancy is anomalous to such an extent as to merit further investigation.

II. Confidentiality

The Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law affords states significant flexibility with respect to whether, and in what form, data may be made available to the public. Closed claim databases have proven to be an important resource for legislators, insurance commissioners, and others who seek to understand the dynamics of medical professional liability insurance markets and related public policy issues. In deciding what information to make available, each state must abide by any constraints imposed by its own laws, including its Freedom of Information Act and the confidentiality provisions used in the state's enactment of the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law. Each state must also balance the potential benefits of making data available against the confidentiality interests of individual claimants, providers, and facilities.

There is a continuum of disclosure options, ranging from full public disclosure of all collected information to the disclosure of only aggregate information. Full disclosure of all information (including individual identifiers) maximizes the availability of information to the public but does not protect the confidentiality interests of claimants, providers, and facilities. The disclosure of only aggregate information maximizes the protection of the privacy interests of claimants, providers, and facilities but limits the utility of the collected data because it precludes analysis by the public. Intermediate solutions balance these interests against one another by releasing enough information to allow the data to be used effectively but not releasing so much as to create an undue risk to claimant, provider, and facility confidentiality.

States that have already created closed claim databases have opted for a range of disclosure strategies. Texas makes claim-level information available on a website in electronic format but redacts certain information, such as patient and provider names. Florida provides physician names and specialties, so that one can determine whether a particular provider has been subject to claims. Texas provides information on jury verdicts and payouts; Florida provides information only on payouts. Missouri makes available to the public individual claims data scrubbed of direct identifiers. In addition, the public data must conform to federal statistical standards that minimize disclosure risk, or the risk that identities could be inferred either directly or in conjunction with other publicly available information. Massachusetts provides information on a public website on malpractice payouts involving particular named physicians during the previous decade but does not identify claimants. Other states, including Ohio, Oklahoma, and Washington, make available only aggregate data. (The states mentioned in this paragraph are only examples; there are other states with medical professional liability closed claim databases.)

The federal government maintains a National Practitioner Data Bank ("NPDB") that contains information on closed claims and disciplinary sanctions against physicians. The NPDB makes public detailed claim-level information in electronic format but redacts patient and provider names. Hospitals, professional societies, and state medical disciplinary boards can obtain provider-specific information. The NPDB does not collect information regarding jury verdicts.

To assist individual states, this section provides three broad options designed to produce data that are analytically useful while at the same time minimizing the probability that sensitive information will be disclosed. Of greatest concern to most states is what statisticians call "disclosure risk," or the risk that the data released could enable end-users to identify individuals or entities involved in a malpractice action. These privacy concerns should be weighed against potential benefits of public data, such as enabling independent analyses or replicating results – two hallmarks of the scientific method.

The alternatives presented here are:

1. Release of individual-level "anonymized" data, in which certain characteristics associated with particular individuals or entities are either scrubbed from the data or released in more general form.

2. Release of individual-level data for limited use, subject to a confidentiality agreement.

3. Release of the data at levels of aggregation that minimize disclosure risk. This third alternative conforms to guidelines governing most federal agencies in possession of sensitive data.

Option 1: Release of individual-level records

Individual-level records can be released in a way that makes it unlikely, if not impossible, that individual identities can be inferred. In general, demographic characteristics, such as age, should be released in general categories. (For medical malpractice it is important to be able to identify baby cases and also to link the data to other data sources, for which common age cutoffs are 18 and 65. So the categories might be <1, 1-5, 6-10, 11-17, 18-24, 25-29, 30-34, . . ., 60-64, 65-69, etc.) In addition, care should be taken to ensure that no data records correspond too closely to unique circumstances of a case, whereby an individual could combine the data with other publicly available information in such a way as to ascertain an identity with some degree of certainty. For example, a dataset containing only a single claim against a neurosurgeon for an injury occurring on a given date within a specified geographic location may allow one to easily identify the practitioner. The following guidelines are intended as suggestions for states that wish to preserve anonymity while releasing data in its most usable form.

a. References to small geographic units should be suppressed, though such data may be released in aggregate form as described on option 3. For individual claims records, geographic units may be denoted with a more general identifier. For example, the county of injury might be replaced with a new field that represents regions in a state composed of multiple counties.

b. Injury, lawsuit, settlement or trial dates might be disclosed by providing only the month and year rather than the exact day. Alternatively, the timing of events can be disclosed using "number of days from injury to report" and "number of days from report to close" in conjunction with the incident year, notice year, suit year, final indemnity payment year and close year.

c. The specific identify of the reporting entity may be kept confidential in individual records. However, variables describing the type of reporting entity (such as insurer, self-insured, etc.) may be released without significant disclosure risk if there are a sufficient number of such entities providing medical professional liability coverage in a state.

d. Data records that specify fairly unique characteristics of events or individuals should be suppressed, or aggregated into broader categories. For example, states might want to consider suppression of records that identify a particular medical specialty unless there are a minimum of four additional claims during an annual period against practitioners of the same medical specialty for each identifiable unit of geography. For cases failing to meet this rule, specialties may be aggregated into a new, more general specialty code to attain the minimum five records.

e. It is preferable to aggregate information – as in the county or specialty examples above – or to suppress particular fields, such as a county or specialist field, than to suppress all of the information about a particular claim. Suppressing claims entirely will distort the whole dataset, even for research for which the county or specialty was not relevant or was of secondary importance.

Option 2: Release of individual-level data, subject to a confidentiality agreement

For data fields that could result in inadvertent release of confidential information about individual claimants, providers, or facilities, additional detail could be provided only to reputable persons who sign a confidentiality agreement. This option could provide a compromise between those who favor broader public access to information, those who recognize the value of providing data for research purposes, and those who are concerned with inadvertent release of data that could be traced back to a particular claimant, provider, or facility.

Attached to this guideline as Appendix 2 is a sample confidentiality form that could be used. This form is derived from the one used by the state of Florida for access to patient-level data on hospital admissions and outcomes. The agreement has a defined term (currently one year), but Florida generally grants extensions to allow for research that exceeds this period.

Option 3: Release of aggregate data

The Federal Committee on Statistical Methodology, under the authority of the Office of Management and Budget, has developed general guidelines to preserve the confidentiality of information collected by numerous federal agencies. These rules govern the properties that publicly released data must possess to minimize the possibility that a user could, either directly or indirectly in conjunction with other public information:

1. Discover the identity of individuals or entities;

2. Infer with some precision the value of some attribute (for example, a person's income).

The standards can be found in Federal Committee on Statistical Methodology, Office of Management and Budget, Statistical Policy Working Paper 22 (Revised 2005) – Report on Statistical Disclosure Limitation Methodology. As of August 2008, this paper is available on the internet at:

http://www.fcsm.gov/working-papers/spwp22.html

The most common rule type governs the statistical properties of data cells in aggregate data. The most straightforward guideline is the threshold rule, which is simply the requirement that a minimum number of observations appear within a data cell. Obviously, a cell count of 1 possesses a high disclosure risk. For example, assume the release of a record in which exactly one medical malpractice payment was made in 2007 on behalf of a neurosurgeon practicing in a sparsely populated county. Very likely, the individual could be identified from other publicly available information, since only a single neurosurgeon may practice in a given county.

A data cell consisting of only two observations would also pose a high risk of revealing private information. Assume that two payments were made on behalf of two physicians by two different insurers, and the data are released in aggregate. In this instance, each insurer could identify the payment amount of the other insurer simply by subtracting their payment from the total.

Obviously, the more individuals that make up the aggregate figure, the safer are the identities and of each. It is not uncommon for federal agencies to release data cells consisting of as few as three observations. A threshold of five or more may be used if the data are particularly sensitive. The threshold rule is usually supplemented by additional rules that afford greater privacy protections.

For data consisting of magnitudes (income, malpractice payments, etc.), it is likely that some cells will be highly skewed toward high-end values (incomes or malpractice payments greater than $1 million, say). Highly skewed distributions pose a high risk that an individual could identify the highest values with a reasonable degree of certainty. A cell consisting of the sum of one very large payment and several much smaller payments would itself constitute a reasonable high-end estimate of the largest value. Knowledge of the highest value case could also permit an identification of the individual associated with the case. For example, one could search court records within a county for all cases with payouts of between $1 million and $2 million. As such, the Committee on Statistical Methodology has urged government agencies to adopt at least some following "sensitivity rules" in addition to any threshold criterion.

(n,k) rule (also called the "dominance rule") – this rule is designed to limit access to data cells in which one or two high value observations contribute a substantial portion to the overall cell total, as in the example above. The rule is violated if some number of observations (n) exceeds (k) percent of the cell total. Commonly, n is assigned a value of one or two.

P-Percent Rule (or the "p-percent estimation equivocation level") – This rule contemplates a "coalition" of individuals (c) pooling knowledge to estimate the largest contributor to a cell total.[1] Such individuals could be physicians represented in a cell, their insurers, or plaintiff attorneys that have knowledge of cases represented in a cell. For example, if a single law firm represented two of three cases that comprise a cell total, the firm could easily identify the value of the third contributor by simply subtracting their two cases from the total.

The rule makes the rather generous assumption that, based solely on general knowledge, estimates can be made to within 100% of the true value of each observation that comprises a cell total. In cases where "general knowledge" is less reliable, the rule will afford significantly greater confidentiality protections.

To limit the ability of coalitions to pool information to reliably estimate the value of subcomponents of a total, the p-percent rule constrains the percent distribution across cases that make up the total.
Specifically, the rule states that any estimates derived from the data should be imprecise (or not come within p percent of the actual value). The limiting case is where the second and third largest contributors to a cell pool knowledge to estimate the largest contributor.

While the mathematical derivation and proofs of the rule are somewhat complex, the rule itself is not. It simply specifies that the sum of the remaining contributors to a cell total (everyone but the three largest contributors) must be larger than p percent of the largest observation:

$$\sum_{i=c+2}^{N} x_i \geq \frac{p}{100} \times x_1$$

c+2 represents all observations but the largest three;

N is the total number of observations in a data cell;

X_i = the value being tested, such as claim payment amounts; and p represents a percentage less than 100 to be determined by the commissioner.

In practice, the rule means that anyone with knowledge of the second and third largest observations will be able to estimate the highest value only with p-percent accuracy.

[1] It has been shown mathematically that if the value of the largest contributor cannot be estimated with accuracy, then no other subcomponent of a total can be estimated.

pq rule – This rule is derived from the p-percent rule, but assumes that a potential "coalition" could have greater knowledge than assumed in the p-percent rule. That is, the pq rule assumes that estimates of true values could be made that are much more precise than "within 100% of the true value." This rule is not in general use, nor is it recommended by the Committee on Statistical Methodology. As such, it is not further discussed here. More information can be obtained from the working paper cited above.

The parameters in each of the above rules (c, p, n, etc) are specified by each agency on a case-by-case basis. Importantly, the committee recommends that the values that an agency adopts not be made public, since knowledge of the parameters can aid end-users in making various estimates.

Cells that fail a test can be collapsed into other observations. For example, data at the county level can be combined with other counties or aggregated at some other higher level of geography.

The following table is derived from the Statistical Working Paper 22, and describes the practices of various federal agencies with respect to the public release of sensitive information.

Agency	Threshold – minimum number for each data cell	Other threshold rules
Department of Agriculture – Economic Research Service	3	(n,k) rule –No single observation can represent more than 60% of a given cell total (see explanation of the (n,k) rule above. In this case, (n,k) = (1,0.6)
Department of Agriculture – National Agricultural Statistics Service	3	(n,k) rule, the parameter values are administratively determined and vary
Department of Commerce – Bureau of Economic Analysis	N/A	p-percent rule, value of p is administratively determined and varies across datasets
Bureau of the Census	Threshold varies, though the most common rule is that a cell must represent a minimum of 3 individuals from separate households	p-percent rule; value of p is not published Some (sampled or micro-) data is not released on a geographic unit with a population of less than 100,000; and the most detailed micro-data are released only if sampled from a population of at least 250,000

Agency	Threshold – minimum number for each data cell	Other threshold rules
Department of Education: National Center for Education Statistics (NCES)	3	Data is matched with all publicly available data sources. If potential matches can be narrowed down to as few as two institutions, data is not disclosed Values are coded in ranges (for example, income between $50,000 – $75,000) Values are top- and bottom- coded to prevent identification of outliers
Department of Energy	N/A - cells with too few observations are suppressed for accuracy reasons rather than for confidentiality (suppressed when standard error > 50%)	pq rule – values of p and q are not published
National Center for Health Statistics	n=5	(n,k) rule, parameters aren't published
Department of Justice: Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS)	n=10	The BJS does not use any of the additional rules specified above. They do take additional measures to enhance the anonymity of the data, such as publishing values in ranges
Department of Labor: Bureau of Labor Statistics	Value of n is not released to the public	(n,k) rule, parameters not published
Department of Transportation: Bureau of Transportation Statistics	No agency-wide rule; established on a case-by-case basis	No agency-wide rule; established on a case-by-case basis
Department of the Treasury: IRS, Statistics of Income Division	n=3 for data aggregated at the state level or larger geography; n=10 for data aggregated at sub-state levels	N/A
National Science Foundation	Does not generally rely on a threshold rule	Either (n,k) rule or the p-percent rule
Social Security Administration	n=3 at state level, n=10 at county level

III. Internal Policies and Procedures

If data are confidential, each department should adopt reasonable policies and procedures to limit unauthorized access to files. Most agencies with sensitive files limit access to departmental employees who have a reasonable business- or job-related purpose to do so.

IV. Sharing data with other state insurance departments

Confidentiality concerns should not deter interstate data sharing. All states are signatories to the NAIC's global confidentiality agreement. This agreement ensures that a recipient state will treat data according to the originating state's legal standards and rules. In essence, the legal disclosure provisions of the originating state "travel with the data."

PART E
CODEBOOK

Each claim represents each named individual or entity alleged to have contributed to an injury, and from whom compensation was sought. All data elements for each claim pertain to the named individual or entity on whose behalf the claim is filed. For example, the injury date should reflect the date that the individual or entity is alleged to have contributed to an injury, regardless of whether other parties are alleged to have also contributed to the injury at different times and places. Close dates should reflect the date on which a claim was closed for the individual or entity, regardless of whether other parties negotiate independent settlements at different times.

Coding of data may not be necessary or appropriate at every step of the process. For example, if a state uses a web-based reporting site, drop-down boxes may be more user-friendly than a requirement that the reporting entity convert the data to codes before entering it. (Caution: the default value for any drop-down box should be "not reported" rather than a reportable value.) On the other hand, if a state is receiving batch data transferred electronically from reporting entities, the codes in this guideline provide an appropriate format for data reporting. For sharing raw data with other state insurance departments, coding is necessary in order to provide data that can be aggregated across states.

Reporting Universe

As used in the Medical Professional Liability Closed Claim Reporting Model Law, a claim consists of a demand for payment to compensate injuries sustained during the course of medical treatment. As defined in the model law, a claim generally consists of a single claimant seeking compensation from a single provider or facility. Allegations against additional providers or facilities with respect to the same injury or injuries should be reported as separate companion claims and assigned the same incident identifier.

General guidelines are:

- Do not report a "medical misadventure" or poor clinical outcome unless an injured party has made a demand for payment or has made specific allegations against a particular provider or facility.
- All medical treatment associated with single provider or facility that is related to single injury or set of related injuries should be treated as a single claim. The same plaintiff could be associated with multiple claims in instances where the injuries are associated with unrelated medical conditions and treatments.
- Each defendant or insured should be treated as a separate (but related) claim.
- Multiple claimants pursuing compensation for the same series of injuries should be treated as a single claim. For example, if both a mother and father file for damages on behalf of an injured child, all defense costs and indemnity payments should be combined and filed as a single claim.
- Multiple injured parties involved in single incident or series of incidents should be treated as a single claim, as in instances where both mother and child are injured during childbirth. However, multiple injuries sustained by unrelated individuals, as is the case with most class-action lawsuits, should be treated as separate claims.
- Claims involving cases of mistaken identity, such as allegations against a provider or facility that had no relationship to an injured party, should not be reported.

Item Descriptions and Tables of Codes

Item 1: Entity ID Code

A unique identifier assigned by the commissioner for each reporting entity. Where applicable, a reporting entity's five-digit NAIC code may be used as a component of the identifier.

Item 2: Entity Name

Full legal name of the insuring or reporting entity.

Item 3: Claim Identifier

Each reporting entity should assign a unique identifier for each claim. This identifier should consist of a unique sequence of letters and / or numbers. Once an identifier has been assigned, it should not be repeated for any future claim. One claim record should be reported for each name individual or entity formally alleged to have contributed to an injury or grievance, and from whom a malpractice payment is being sought. Note that the claim identifier need not be the company's internal claim identifier.

Item 4: Incident Identifier

Each reporting entity should assign a unique numeric identifier for each incident or occurrence. An occurrence is an event or series of events leading to an allegation of malpractice, and which may involve allegations against multiple individuals and entities. An occurrence is defined causally, and may or may not be constrained in time. For example, multiple failures to diagnose a given illness may occur over a period of years. Such a series of events would be considered a single occurrence. Each claim submitted for providers involved in a single occurrence should be assigned the same incident identifier.

Item 5: Per occurrence policy limits, primary coverage

The maximum amount a primary insurer will pay for a single malpractice claim under the terms of the policy.

Item 6: Annual policy limits, primary coverage

The maximum amount a primary insurer will annually pay under the terms of a policy for one or more malpractice claims. The reported policy limit should reflect all policies in effect for a given claim (see above).

Item 7: Per occurrence policy limits, all excess coverage combined

The combined maximum amount all excess insurers will pay for a single malpractice claim under the terms of the policy. Policy limits should reflect the cumulative limits of all policies other than the primary coverage in effect for a given claim. For example, if a policy was issued with a $1 million limit, and an additional excess policy had a $5 million limit, a total limit of $6 million should be reported.

Item 8: Annual policy limits, all excess coverage combined

The combined maximum amount all excess insurers will annually pay under the terms of their respective policies or contracts. The reported policy limit should reflect all excess policies in effect for a given claim (see above).

Item 9: Policy limits available, primary coverage.

Policy limits available for the claim being reported under the insured's primary coverage.

Item 10: Policy limits available, excess coverage.

Policy limits available for the claim being reported under the insured's excess coverage.

Item 11: NPDB Occupation / Field of Licensure Code

Item 16: NPDB Allegation Code

Instructions

1. Select the code that is most descriptive of the alleged error or omission.

Example 1: Select "wrong dosage administered" (324) for dosage errors rather than the more generic "improper performance" (306).

Example 2: Select "delay in treatment of identified fetal distress" (203) if appropriate, rather than "delay in performance" (201).

More generic categories should be used only when a specific category that adequately describes the allegation does not exist.

2. This is taxonomy of allegations made by the claimants. If the claimant alleges that an infection is the result of a surgery, select the code failure to use aseptic technique, even if there is no specific known, proven, or identified performance failure.

3. Identify the most accurate code.

Example 1: Do not conflate codes such as a failure to treat fetal distress (104) with a failure to identify fetal distress (103) with delay in treatment of fetal distress (203).

Example 2: Do not conflate a failure to order appropriate medication (107) with instances in which the wrong medication is ordered (329).

4. Select the most causally relevant code. If numerous errors are alleged to have contributed to an injury, identify the first error that was necessary to occur to have produced the sequence of actions ultimately leading to an adverse outcome. For example, if an illness is misdiagnosed, and the misdiagnosis leads to the prescription of improper medication, the "cause" of the injury is the initial misdiagnosis. The initial action is the first "necessary" but not necessarily "sufficient" condition that ultimately led to harm. In the absence of this initial event (misdiagnosis), the most proximate cause of harm (improper prescription) would not have occurred.

NPDB Allegation Codes
Failure to Take Appropriate Action
100	Failure to use aseptic technique
101	Failure to diagnose Excludes* misdiagnoses (323), and delay in diagnosis (200). Use code only to indicate instances of a conclusion that no condition worthy of follow-up or treatment existed, when it in fact did exist.
102	Failure to delay case when indicated
103	Failure to identify fetal distress
104	Failure to treat fetal distress
105	Failure to medicate
106	Failure to monitor

NPDB Allegation Codes
719	Vicarious liability
720	Wrong life/birth
899	Cannot be determined from available records.
999	Allegation not otherwise classified

Item 17: City where injury occurred

Full name of the city in which the injury is alleged to have occurred. The city should correspond to the location of the alleged error or omission identified on item 14. If the injury did not occur in a city, leave blank.

Item 18: County where injury occurred

Full name of the county in which the injury is alleged to have occurred. The county should correspond to the location of the alleged error or omission identified on item 14.

Item 19: County FIPS Code

Five-digit Federal Information Processing Standard Code (FIPS) for the county in which the injury occurred. Do not omit leading zeros (001, 023, etc.). The FIPS code consists of the two-digit state code plus the three-digit county code (i.e. 26001). If the injury occurred outside of the United States, enter '99999.'

Item 20: Gender of injured person. Use M or F.

Item 21: Age of injured person at the date of injury.

Item 22: Severity of injury code

Code	Severity Description	Examples
Temporary Injuries (Codes 1-4)
1	Emotional injury	Fright, no physical injury
2	Insignificant	Lacerations, contusions, minor scars or rash, no delay in recovery
3	Minor	Infection, fracture set improperly, fall in hospital. Recovery is delayed but complete
4	Major	Burns, surgical material left, drug side effect or brain injury. Recover is delayed but complete
Permanent Injuries
5	Minor	Loss of fingers, loss or damage to minor organs. Injury is not disabling
6	Significant	Deafness, loss of limb, loss of eye, loss of one kidney or lung
7	Major	Paraplegia, blindness, loss of two limbs, or brain damage
8	Grave	Quadriplegia, severe brain damage, life-long care or fatal prognosis
9	Death

Item 23: Date of injury

Report the date of the earliest alleged error or omission that was the first necessary if not sufficient cause of the alleged medical injury. This date should correspond to the error or omission code identified on item 14.

Item 24: Date claim was reported

The date that an insurer received a formal demand for payment for injuries arising out of alleged medical negligence. If no insurance coverage is available, use the date that the medical provider or facility received such notice.

Item 25: Date of lawsuit

The date a lawsuit was filed for this claim.

Item 26: Date claim was closed

The date of final disposition or settlement of a claim. Payments for defense costs or indemnity may occur after the date of closure (as in a structured settlement).

Item 27: Date of final indemnity payment

The date of the final indemnity payment, if applicable. If the final payment is scheduled for a future date, provide this date as best as can be determined when the claim is closed.

Item 28: Claim Disposition Code

Claim Disposition Codes
Code	Description
1	Claim is abandoned by the claimant.
2	Claim is settled by the parties.
Claims disposed of by a court
3a	Directed verdict for the plaintiff
3b	Directed verdict for the defendant
3c	Judgment notwithstanding verdict for the plaintiff (judgment for the defendant)
3d	Judgment notwithstanding verdict for the defendant (judgment for the plaintiff)
3e	Involuntary dismissal
3f	Judgment for the plaintiff
3g	Judgment for the defendant
3h	Judgment for the plaintiff after appeal
3i	Judgment for the defendant after appeal
Claims settled by an alternative dispute resolution process
4a	Arbitration
4b	Mediation
4c	Private judging or private trial
4d	Other type of alternative dispute resolution process

Item 29: Timing of Disposition Code

Timing of Disposition
1	Before filing suit or requesting arbitration or a mediation hearing
2	Before trial, arbitration or mediation
3	During trial, arbitration or mediation
4	After trial or hearing, but before judgment or award
5	After judgment or decision, but before appeal
6	During an appeal
7	After an appeal; or
8	During review panel or non-binding arbitration

Item 30: Indemnity paid by reporting entity

The amount of indemnity paid by the insurer reporting the claim, exclusive of any other amounts paid by any other insurer or party.

Note on items 31 and 32: Economic and noneconomic portions of total indemnity paid by all parties.

Amounts entered into items 31 and 32 should reasonably reflect available documentation obtained during the course of adjudicating a claim regarding actual economic costs incurred by the injured party due to the alleged medical negligence. Economic damages should reflect the reporting entity's best estimate of current and future lost wages, current and future medical costs, and any other pecuniary costs arising from the alleged act of malpractice. Arbitrarily apportioning economic and non-economic damages 50%-50% or via some other heuristic rule is not acceptable.

For costs that are not documented, each reporting entity should develop a reasonable methodology for imputing values. For example, lost life-time wages of a minor who lacks any employment history may be estimated via generally accepted econometric or actuarial methods that would be accepted in a court of law.

Noneconomic damages should not exceed any tort limitations such as damage caps that exist in the relevant jurisdiction. Within such constraints, noneconomic damages should bear a reasonable relationship to the nature and severity of the injury in terms of limitations on major life activities formerly enjoyed by the injured party, physical pain and suffering, loss of consortium, psychological or mental consequences of the injury, and any other reasonable non-pecuniary losses. Reporting entities should be prepared to document and justify allocation methodologies upon request of the insurance commissioner. If the sum of estimated economic and non-economic damages exceeds total indemnity, the amounts of both categories of indemnity should be reduced by a proportionate amount.

Item 31: Economic Indemnity

Portion of total indemnity designed to compensation an injured party for pecuniary losses, such as lost wages and medical costs attributable to the iatrogenic injury.

Item 32: Non-economic indemnity

Portion of the total indemnity designed to compensate an injured party for other than pecuniary losses, such as pain and suffering, diminished quality of life, or loss of consortium.

Defense and cost containment expenses should include overhead costs allocated to each claim. Such overhead costs include salaries, benefits, and other fixed costs.

Item 33: Defense and Cost Containment Expense for Legal Counsel

The portion of defense costs associated with legal counsel, including both in-house and outside counsel.

Item 34: Defense and Cost Containment Expense for Experts

The portion of defense costs associated with experts, including both in-house and outside experts.

Item 35: Defense and Cost Containment Expense Other than Legal Counsel of Experts

The remaining portion of defense and cost containment expenses not included in items 45 and 46.

Item 36: Total Defense and Cost Containment Expense

The sum of items 33, 34, and 35.

The following items should be completed only if a claim was brought to trial.

Item 37: Trial Type

If trial was started, indicate whether it was a bench trial (B) or jury trial (J).

Item 38: Number of liable defendants

If the trial resulted in a verdict, report the number of defendants that were found liable.

Item 39: Unadjusted Verdict

The amount of the total verdict for all defendants, prior to any adjustments due to damage caps, remittiturs, additurs, interest, of other adjustments.

Item 40: Plaintiff Fault

The percentage of fault assigned to the plaintiff.

Item 41: Insured Fault

The percentage of fault assigned to the reporting entity's insured.

Item 42: Liability Doctrine

Indicate whether liability governed by the doctrine of joint and several liability (J) or whether liability was separate (S).

Item 43: Verdict for Economic Damages

The amount of the verdict that was awarded based on economic damages.

Item 44: Verdict for Non-economic Damages

The amount of the verdict that was awarded based on non-economic damages.

Item 45: Verdict for Punitive Damages

The amount of the verdict consisting of punitive damages.

Item 46: Interest

The amount of pre-judgment interest awarded.

Item 47: Verdict Reduction

The amount by which the verdict was reduced because of damage caps, remittitur, or any other reason.

Item 48: Verdict Augmentation

The amount by which the verdict was increased as a result of additur.

Item 49: Final Verdict

Total judgment award by court after all adjustments to verdict.

LIMITED DATA SET DATA USE AGREEMENT

This agreement is by and between the [state insurance department], hereinafter referred to as the Commissioner, and _____, hereinafter referred to as Requester.

This agreement addresses the conditions under which the Commissioner will disclose and Requester will obtain and use the limited data set specified herein. Requester agrees to abide by the provisions of this agreement in the use of the limited data set obtained from the Commissioner.

1. Description of Data. The following limited data set may be disclosed or used pursuant to this agreement:

2. Purpose of Agreement. Requester represents and, in furnishing the limited data set specified in this agreement, the Commissioner relies upon such representation that the limited data set will be used solely for the following purpose(s):

3. Point of Contact. The Commissioner designates the following individual as the Commissioner's point of contact for this agreement:

   Name of Point of Contact

   Street address

   City/ State/ Zip code

   _____ _____
   Phone number Fax

   E-mail

   All correspondence regarding this agreement, including, but not limited to, notification of change of custodianship, uses or disclosures of the limited data set not provided for by this agreement, disposition of the limited data set, and termination of this agreement, shall be addressed to the point of contact.

4. Custodial Responsibility. Requester names the following individual custodian of the designated record set on behalf of the Requester:

Name of custodian

Name of company or organization

Street address

City/ State/ Zip code

_____ __ _____
Phone number Fax

The custodian shall be responsible for the observance of all conditions of use and for the establishment and maintenance of safeguards as specified in this agreement to prevent unauthorized use. Requester shall notify the Commissioner in writing within fifteen (15) days of any change of custodianship. Notification of change of custodianship shall be delivered by certified mail, return receipt requested, or in person with proof of delivery.

5. Permissible Uses and Disclosures. Requester shall not use or further disclose the limited data set specified in this agreement except as permitted by this agreement or as required by federal law. Requester shall establish appropriate administrative, technical, and physical safeguards to protect the confidentiality of and to prevent unauthorized use or access to the limited data set.

Requester shall not release or allow the release of the limited data set specified in this agreement to any persons or entities other than as permitted by this agreement.

Requester shall restrict disclosure of the limited data set to the minimum number of individuals who require the information in order to perform the functions of this agreement. Requester shall instruct individuals to whom the limited data set is disclosed of all obligations under this agreement and shall require the individuals to maintain those obligations.

Requester shall secure the limited data set when the data is not under the direct and immediate control of an authorized individual performing the functions of this agreement.

Requester shall not attempt to use the limited data set to track or link an individual's data, determine real or likely identities, gain information about an individual, or contact an individual.

Requester shall make a good faith effort to identify any use or disclosure of the limited data set not provided for by this agreement. Requester shall notify the Commissioner by certified mail, return receipt requested, or in person with proof of delivery within seventy-two (72) hours of discovery of any use or disclosure of the limited data set not provided for by this agreement of which Requester is aware. If applicable, the Requester shall return any record or records that become identified to the Commissioner by certified mail, return receipt requested, or in person with proof of delivery within seventy-two (72) hours of identification. All other copies of an identified record including a modified, hybrid or merged record shall be immediately destroyed.

A violation of this section shall constitute a material breach of this agreement.

6. Disclosure to Agents. Requester shall ensure that any agents of Requester, including, but not limited to, a contractor or subcontractor, to whom Requester provides the limited data set specified in this agreement agree to the same terms, conditions, and restrictions that apply to Requester with respect to the limited data set.

7. Release of Statistical and Research Results. Subject to the conditions of this agreement, aggregated statistical tabulations and research results derived from the limited data set specified in this agreement may be released or published; however, statistical tabulations or research results that may reveal information about an individual's record or lead to the identification of individuals shall not be published or released.

8. Penalties. Requester acknowledges that failure to abide by the terms of this agreement may subject Requester to penalties for wrongful disclosure of protected health information under federal law. Requester shall inform all persons with authorized access to the limited data set specified in this agreement of the penalties for wrongful disclosure of protected health information.

9. Indemnification. Requester agrees to indemnify, defend, and hold harmless the Commissioner from any or all claims and losses accruing to any person, organization, or other legal entity as a result of violation of this agreement by Requester or agents of Requester to the extent permitted by federal and state law.

10. Disposition of Data. Requester may retain the limited data set specified in this agreement until _____, hereinafter referred to as the retention date. Unless otherwise agreed to in writing, Requester shall destroy the limited data set and any information derived from its contents, including all copies, modified data, or hybrid or merged databases containing the limited data set, upon the retention date. Requester shall provide the Commissioner with written confirmation of the destruction of the limited data set information. If both parties agree in writing to amend the retention date, Requester shall extend the protections of this agreement and maintain the confidentiality of the limited data set until the amended retention date.

11. Term of Agreement. This agreement shall be effective upon execution by both parties and shall remain in effect until _____or until terminated by one of the parties. The Commissioner may, by no less than twenty-four (24) hours written notice to Requester, terminate this agreement upon material breach of this agreement. This agreement may be terminated by either party without cause upon thirty (30) days written notice. Notice of termination shall be delivered by certified mail, return receipt requested, or in person with proof of delivery.

The terms of this agreement may not be waived, altered, modified, or amended except by written agreement of both parties.

This agreement supersedes any and all agreements between the parties with respect to the use of the limited data set specified in this agreement.

In witness whereof, the Commissioner and Requester have caused this agreement to be signed and delivered by their duly authorized representatives as of the date set forth below.

GUIDELINE FOR IMPLEMENTATION OF MEDICAL PROFESSIONAL LIABILITY CLOSED CLAIM REPORTING

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC guideline. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in to find a citation; to perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

Who do I speak to if I have questions?

If you have questions or believe information related to a state should be updated, please contact Jennifer Neuerburg at jneuerburg@naic.org.

Disclaimer: This chart does not constitute a formal legal opinion by the NAIC staff on the provisions of state law and should not be relied upon as such. Nor does this state page reflect a determination as to whether a state meets any applicable accreditation standards. Every effort has been made to provide correct and accurate summaries to assist readers in locating useful information. Readers should consult state law for further details and for the most current information.

REGISTRATION AND REGULATION OF THIRD PARTY ADMINISTRATORS (TPAs)

(An NAIC Guideline)

This Guideline, offered in two versions, is a revision of the Third Party Administrator Statute, which was first adopted by the NAIC as a model law in 1977 and which had been most recently amended in 2001. Version 1 of the Guideline expands the scope of the prior model by adding workers' compensation and stop-loss coverages. Version 2 of the Guideline omits workers' compensation, which makes it similar in scope to the prior model, with the difference being in those states where stop-loss insurance was defined as liability insurance and not as health insurance.

A state's best use of the Guideline will depend on whether it currently has a TPA law and/or whether it wants to have a TPA law that extends to the handling of workers' compensation claims:

- For a state that wishes to enact a TPA law that extends to workers' compensation, Version 1 should be an excellent starting point. Study the language carefully to make whatever amendments may be necessary on account of state-specific issues with workers' compensation, agent licensing and adjuster licensing statutes. The adjuster licensing statutes will probably require an especially careful examination to have a good "mesh" and to avoid duplicative requirements, while workers' compensation statutes will need to be studied to determine whether the provisions of this document regarding the rights of employers to involve themselves in claims handling or disputes are in agreement. While part of a possible response to conflicts could be to change adjuster licensing or workers' compensation laws to match this document, it is not the purpose of the Guideline to call for changes to other statutes. Although drafting notes will provide assistance in this regard, one should not skim over sections without drafting notes. There are more state-to-state differences than can be easily summarized by drafting notes.

- A state that already has a TPA law, but that wants to extend it to workers' compensation, will also find Version 1 to be an excellent reference. The advice for such a state is again to review this document carefully, looking to see where it differs from the state's current law and carefully noting where the changes proposed in this document may conflict with the state's other statutes.

- A state with or without a current TPA law, that wants to have a TPA law that does not extend to workers' compensation, is advised to consider Version 2. Version 2 is essentially the same as Version 1, but with provisions and language related to workers' compensation removed. This law still includes stop-loss and other refinements made to the previous NAIC model. Admittedly, the motivation for a state to make changes to its existing laws is likely to depend on whether it has identified a reason that it needs to "fix" its current laws. Absent the identification of any practical problems, states may assign a lower priority to the improvements contained in this document.

In addition to numerous editorial changes, some of the substantive changes to what was previously in the 2001 NAIC model law are as follow:

(a) The language of the 2001 model required individuals adjusting life and health claims to be licensed as TPAs, even though it is clear that it was never the intent of the drafters or the states that adopted the model to implement a licensure requirement for employees of TPAs or insurers adjusting life and health claims. In addition, the licensing provisions in the 2001 model allowed an individual to become licensed to act as a full-fledged TPA. While the Guideline has language to allow previously licensed individuals to be "grandfathered," it provides that only business entities can be newly licensed as TPAs. As a practical matter, licensure requirements are not cleanly met by an individual.

(b) The 2001 model exempted licensed insurers operating as TPAs from all requirements of the Act. The Guidelines maintain this exemption for lines other than workers' compensation. For workers' compensation, while Version 1 exempts insurers from licensure requirements and from audit and reporting requirements when they handle workers' compensation claims for an employer that is not their policyholder, it subjects such insurer/TPAs to many other operational requirements of the Act for workers' compensation.

(c) The Guideline adds cease & desist orders to those actions available to the commissioner and also addresses concerns that the 2001 model may have been deficient with regard to due process.

(d) The Guideline extends the life & health scope of the 2001 model to so-called "stop-loss" insurance. This may be viewed a clarification in states where stop-loss is already considered to be health insurance and cannot be written as liability insurance, but it will be a modest expansion in other states.

(e) Version 1 extends the scope of the 2001 model to workers' compensation insurance. One should note, however, that various provisions of the model applying to life & health are not uniformly extended to workers' compensation. There is an extensive new section dealing with workers' compensation contracts between insurers and TPAs, and between TPAs and insured employers.

(f) Version 1 will not allow a TPA to agree with an employer to have the employer adjust its own workers' compensation claims, and an employer cannot avoid this prohibition by simply licensing an affiliated business entity as a TPA in order to handle its own workers' compensation claims.

(g) Version 1 exempts payments made by employers to TPAs for handling workers' compensation claims under a large deductible contract from premium taxes.

(h) The account-related provisions in the 2001 model were substantially revised. Most notably, the Guideline deletes the requirement that accounts administered by the TPA must be in the name of the insurance company, as long as claims trust funds held by the TPA are not commingled with premium trust funds.

THIRD PARTY ADMINISTRATOR ACT
(NAIC Guideline Version 1)

Drafting Note: This "version 1" guideline includes workers' compensation, while the "version 2" guideline excludes workers' compensation. A state that intends to adopt a TPA law should start with the version that is appropriate for its needs.

Table of Contents

Section 1. Definitions

For purposes of this Act:

A. "Affiliate or affiliated" means a person who directly or indirectly through one or more intermediaries, controls or is controlled by, or is under common control with, another specified person.

B. "Business entity" means a corporation, association, partnership, limited liability company or other legal entity.

Drafting Note: Many laws use very broad definitions of "entity" that include individuals. Provisions of this Act referring to business entities are specifically intended to exclude individuals, as the full scope of TPA responsibilities and requirements are not well-suited to licensure of an individual. In addition, an overbroad definition of entity or "business entity" could result in individuals working for TPAs being required to be individually licensed as TPAs.

C. "Collateral" means funds, letters of credit or any item with economic value owned by the payor but held by an insurer or TPA in case it needs to be used to fulfill premium or loss reimbursement obligations in accordance with a contract between the insurer or TPA and the payor. "Collateral" shall include anticipated loss prepayments made prior to the payment of losses, pursuant to arrangements where reimbursement is not due until after losses have been paid.

D. "Commissioner" means the Commissioner of Insurance of this state.

E. "Control" (including the terms "controlled by" and "under common control with") means the possession, direct or indirect, of the power to direct or cause the direction of the management and policies of a person, whether through the ownership of voting securities, by contract other than a commercial contract for goods or nonmanagement services, or otherwise, unless the power is the result of an official position with or corporate office held by the person. Control shall be presumed to exist if any person, directly or indirectly, owns, controls, holds with the power to vote, or holds proxies representing, ten percent (10%) or more of the voting securities of any other person. This presumption may be rebutted by a showing made in the manner provided by [insert appropriate reference to state law regulating holding companies] that control does not exist in fact. The commissioner may determine, after furnishing all persons in interest notice and opportunity to be heard and making specific findings of fact to support the determination that control exists in fact, notwithstanding the absence of a presumption to that effect.

F. "GAAP" means United States generally accepted accounting principles consistently applied.

G. "Home state" means the United States jurisdiction that has adopted this Act or a substantially similar law governing TPAs and that has granted the TPA a home state TPA license.

H. "Insurer" means an entity licensed in a United States jurisdiction to provide life, annuity, health or stop-loss coverage as an insurance company, health maintenance organization, fraternal benefit society or prepaid hospital or medical care plan.

Drafting Note: States that license multiple employer welfare arrangements (MEWAs) or workers' compensation self-insurance groups, or that authorize employee leasing companies or professional employer organizations (PEOs) to provide employee welfare benefits on a self-funded basis, will want to include these entities in the list of entities that are included in the definition of insurer for purposes of this Act, but only to the extent of their license or authorization. It is not the intention of this drafting note to include employee leasing companies or PEOs authorized to self-insure workers' compensation within the definition of "insurer." Rather, this Act contemplates that such an entity, when authorized as a workers' compensation self-insurer, will be considered to be a "workers' compensation self-insurer," which is a term that is already defined under this Act.

I. "Insurance producer" means a person required to be licensed under the laws of this state to sell, solicit or negotiate insurance.

Drafting Note: States that use different terminology such as "agent" and/or "broker" should make appropriate adjustments to this language. In states that do not license business entities as insurance producers, use the following definition:

I. "Insurance producer" means a person required to be licensed under the laws of this state to sell, solicit or negotiate insurance, and also includes a business entity whose primary activities are the sales, solicitation and negotiation of insurance.

J. "Master services agreement" means a written agreement between an insurer and a TPA that specifies standards for the handling of workers' compensation claims and the handling of funds belonging to the insurer or policyholder in connection therewith.

K. "Nonresident TPA" means a TPA whose home state is any jurisdiction other than this state.

L. "Payor" means an insurer, a workers' compensation self-insurer, or an employer administering its employee benefit plan or the employee benefit plan of an affiliated employer under common management and control.

M. "Person" means an individual or a business entity.

N. "Stop-loss insurance" means insurance protecting an employer or other person responsible for an otherwise self-insured health or life benefit plan against obligations under the plan, but "stop-loss insurance" does not include reinsurance written for an insurance company.

Drafting Note: The inclusion of the stop-loss definition and the inclusion of stop-loss throughout this law are not necessary in states where stop-loss is clearly stipulated to be health insurance and cannot be interpreted to be liability insurance or some other form of insurance. In such states, references to stop-loss may be deleted or – if retained – viewed as a clarification (as stop-loss is considered to be liability insurance in some states).

O. "Third party administrator" or "TPA" means a person who directly or indirectly underwrites, collects charges, collateral or premiums from, or adjusts or settles claims on residents of this state, in connection with life, annuity, health, stop-loss or workers' compensation coverage, except that a person shall not be considered a TPA if that person's only actions that would otherwise cause it to be considered a TPA are among the following:

(1) A person working for a TPA to the extent that the person's activities are subject to the supervision and control of the TPA;

(2) An employer administering its employee benefit plan or the employee benefit plan of an affiliated employer under common management and control, except that workers' compensation shall not be considered as an "employee benefit plan;"

(3) The administration of a bona fide employee benefit plan established by an employer or an employee organization, or both, for which the insurance laws of this state are preempted pursuant to the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as the act existed on [an appropriate recent date should be selected];

(4) A workers' compensation self-insurer that has been approved by [agency responsible for the approval of workers' compensation self-insurance] or an employer otherwise authorized by law to administer its workers' compensation obligations to its employees or co-employees, while administering workers' compensation benefits for its employees or co-employees;

(5) A union administering a benefit plan on behalf of its members;

(6) An insurer administering insurance coverage for its policyholders, subscribers or certificate holders, or those of an affiliated insurer under common management and control;

(7) An insurer directly or indirectly underwriting, collecting charges, collateral or premiums from, or adjusting or settling claims for life, annuity, health or stop-loss insurance on behalf of a client that is not a policyholder, subscriber or certificate holder, and that has its United States headquarters or principal location of business in a jurisdiction in which the insurer is licensed to write that coverage;

(8) An insurer directly or indirectly underwriting, collecting charges, collateral or premiums, or adjusting or settling claims for life, annuity, health or stop-loss insurance, provided that the insurer is licensed in this state to write that line of insurance coverage;

(9) An insurance producer selling insurance or engaged in related activities within the scope of the producer's license, except that this shall not include the adjusting or settling of workers' compensation claims;

(10) A creditor acting on behalf of its debtors with respect to insurance covering a debt between the creditor and its debtors;

(11) A trust and its trustees and agents acting pursuant to such trust established in conformity with 29 U.S.C. Section 186;

(12) A trust exempt from taxation under Section 501(a) of the Internal Revenue Code and its trustees acting pursuant to such trust, or a custodian and the custodian's agents acting pursuant to a custodian account which meets the requirements of Section 401(f) of the Internal Revenue Code;

(13) A credit union or a financial institution that is subject to supervision or examination by federal or state banking authorities, or a mortgage lender, when collecting or remitting premiums to licensed insurance producers or to limited lines producers or authorized payors in connection with loan payments;

(14) A credit card issuing company advancing or collecting insurance premiums or charges from its credit card holders who have authorized collection;

(15) An individual adjusting or settling claims in the normal course of that individual's practice or employment as an attorney at law and who does not collect charges or premiums in connection with insurance coverage;

(16) A person licensed as a managing general agent in this state when acting within the scope of that license; or

(17) A business entity licensed pursuant to [insert statutory reference] to adjust workers' compensation loss claims, but only if that entity does not receive or manage funds from employers or other persons whose workers' compensation claims are being adjusted and does not manage or control related funds of the payor that is ultimately responsible for the claims.

Drafting Note: The above exception to the definition of "third party administrator" and "TPA" should be included if the state licenses adjusting firms to handle workers' compensation or other claims that would fall under the scope of this act. The drafting shown is for a state that licenses firms to adjust workers' compensation claims, but not other types of claims subject to this act. If the state also licenses firms to adjust life, health or stop-loss claims, then this wording should be amended accordingly. If the state licenses individuals but not business entities to adjust claims, the state should consider whether to include an exemption for business entities that do not handle client funds and whose only TPA activities are claims adjustment performed by licensed adjusters.

(18) A business entity that is affiliated with a licensed insurer while acting as a TPA for the direct and assumed insurance business of an affiliated insurer;

(19) A person providing network access services or the re-pricing of charges of participating providers for medical care rendered persons covered under workers' compensation, including related case management or credentialing services, as long as such person does not manage or control related funds of the payor that is ultimately responsible for the workers' compensation claims, and as long as such person does not engage in advising or determining whether a workers' injury is eligible for workers' compensation coverage.

P. "Underwrites" or "underwriting" means, but is not limited to, the acceptance of employer or individual applications for coverage of individuals and the overall planning and coordination of a benefits program.

Q. "Uniform Application" means the current version of the NAIC Uniform Application for Third Party Administrators.

R. "Workers' compensation" means a government-mandated or authorized system of medical and disability benefits applying to workers and their dependents or other beneficiaries, and which arise from on-the-job injuries or disease. Workers' compensation does not include indemnification of an employer under excess workers' compensation policies, when that employer has been approved by the responsible government agency to self-insure its responsibility to provide benefits.

S. "Workers' compensation self-insurer" means an employer or co-employer approved by [agency responsible for the approval of workers' compensation self-insurance] or otherwise authorized by law to assume primary financial responsibility for the payment of workers' compensation benefits to its employees or co-employees, instead of transferring this primary financial responsibility to an insurer in exchange for an insurance premium, whether the payment of such benefits is administered by the employer, co-employer or a TPA.

Section 2. Licensing Necessary

A. No person shall act as a TPA in this state unless that person is licensed as a TPA pursuant to this Act or unless the TPA is exempted from this Act's licensing requirement pursuant to subsection B of this section or subsections G or H of section 15 of this Act. This prohibition shall not apply to a person while employed by, or when operating under contract to, a TPA that is licensed pursuant to this Act, or exempted from this Act's licensing requirements pursuant to subsection B of this section or subsections G or H of section 15 of this Act. The authority granted to a TPA pursuant to this Act does not exempt its employees from the licensing requirements of [reference to adjuster licensing act].

Drafting Note: The last sentence of the preceding subsection should be deleted in states that do not require the licensing of adjusters for any of the lines of insurance falling within the scope of this Act.

B. An insurer that also operates as a TPA for workers' compensation in this state shall be exempt from sections 13 through 16 of this Act if it is licensed to write workers' compensation insurance in this state.

Section 3. Workers' Compensation; Agreement with an Affiliated TPA

If an agreement between a TPA and an insurer would result in the expectation that more than thirty percent of the workers' compensation claim costs to be adjusted by the TPA in this state would be for employees or co-employees of the TPA or its affiliates, then the TPA and the insurer must submit the agreement to the [agency responsible for the approval of workers' compensation self-insurance] for prior approval and the agreement may not take effect until it has been approved. In considering the proposed agreement for approval or disapproval, the [agency responsible for the approval of workers' compensation self-insurance] shall apply the same standards that are applied to consider approval of the claims-handling activities of workers' compensation self-insurers in this state. To determine the expectation of claim costs, the TPA and the insurer shall use the [rates or loss costs] published by the state's designated workers' compensation advisory organization.

Drafting Note: The reference in the last sentence of this paragraph should be fitted to the state's workers' compensation rate regulatory structure.

Section 4. Payment to a TPA

If an insurer utilizes the services of a TPA, any premiums or charges for insurance paid to the TPA by or on behalf of the insured party, or any collateral furnished to the TPA by or on behalf of the insured party, shall be deemed to have been received by the insurer, and the return of collateral or the payment of return premiums or claim payments forwarded by the insurer to the TPA shall not be deemed to have been paid to the insured party or claimant until the payments are received by the insured party or claimant. Nothing in this section limits any right of the insurer against the TPA resulting from the failure of the TPA to make payments to the insurer, insured parties or claimants.

Section 5. Maintenance of Information

A. A TPA shall maintain and make available to the payor complete books and records of all transactions performed on behalf of the payor. The books and records shall be maintained in accordance with prudent standards of insurance record keeping and shall be maintained for a period of not less than five (5) years from the date of their creation.

B. The commissioner shall have access to books and records maintained by a TPA for the purposes of examination, audit and inspection. Any documents, materials or other information in the possession or control of the commissioner that are furnished by a TPA, payor, insurance producer or an employee or agent thereof acting on behalf of the TPA, payor or insurance producer, or obtained by the commissioner in an investigation shall be confidential by law and privileged, shall not be subject to [insert open records, freedom of information, sunshine or other appropriate phrase], shall not be not subject to subpoena, and shall not be subject to discovery or admissible in evidence in any private civil action. However, the commissioner is authorized to use such documents, materials or other information in the furtherance of any regulatory or legal action brought as a part of the commissioner's official duties.

C. Neither the commissioner nor any person who receives documents, materials or other information while acting under the authority of the commissioner shall be permitted or required to testify in any private civil action concerning confidential documents, materials, or information subject to Subsection B of this section.

D. In order to assist in the performance of his or her duties, the commissioner:

(1) May share documents, materials or other information, including the confidential and privileged documents, materials or information subject to Subsection B of this section, with other state, federal and international regulatory agencies, with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, its affiliates or subsidiaries and with state, federal and international law enforcement authorities, provided that the recipient agrees to maintain the confidentiality and privileged status of the document, material or other information;

(2) May receive documents, materials or information, including otherwise confidential and privileged documents, materials or information, from the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, its affiliates or subsidiaries, and from regulatory and law enforcement officials of other foreign or domestic jurisdictions, and shall maintain as confidential or privileged any document, material or information received with notice or the understanding that it is confidential or privileged under the laws of the jurisdiction that is the source of the document, material or information; and

(3) [OPTIONAL] May enter into agreements governing sharing and use of information consistent with this subsection.

Drafting Note: The language in Subsection D(1) assumes the recipient has the authority to protect the applicable confidentiality or privilege, but does not address the verification of that authority, which would presumably occur in the context of a broader information sharing agreement.

E. No waiver of any applicable privilege or claim of confidentiality in the documents, materials or information shall occur as a result of disclosure to the commissioner under this section or as a result of sharing as authorized in Subsection D of this section.

F. Nothing in this Act shall prohibit the commissioner from releasing final, adjudicated actions including for cause terminations that are open to public inspection pursuant to [insert appropriate reference to state law] to a database or other clearinghouse service maintained by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, its affiliates or subsidiaries.

G. Notwithstanding any contractual agreements between the payor and the TPA that operate to the contrary, the TPA shall retain the right to sufficient continuing access to books and records to permit the TPA to fulfill all of its contractual obligations to insured parties, claimants, and the payor.

H. In the event the payor or the TPA cancel their agreement; notwithstanding the provisions of Subsection A of this section, the TPA may, by written agreement with the payor, transfer all records to a new TPA rather than retain them for five (5) years. In such cases, the new TPA shall acknowledge, in writing, that it is responsible for retaining the records of the prior TPA as required in Subsection A of this section.

Section 6. Approval of Advertising

A TPA that advertises on behalf of its client may only use advertising that has been approved in writing by the client in advance of its use. A TPA that mentions any current or former client in its advertising must obtain the client's prior written consent.

Section 7. Responsibilities of the Payor and TPA

A. No TPA shall act as such without a written agreement between the TPA and the payor. A copy of the agreement shall be retained by the TPA for the duration of the agreement and for five (5) years thereafter. The agreement shall contain all provisions required by this section, except insofar as the TPA does not perform all of the functions referenced in this section.

B. A payor that utilizes the services of a TPA shall retain responsibility for the benefits, premium rates, collateral and reimbursement procedures, underwriting criteria and claims payment procedures applicable to the coverage and for securing reinsurance or stop-loss insurance, if any. The rules pertaining to these matters, to the extent that they are relevant to the duties of the TPA, shall be agreed to in writing by the payor and the TPA.

C. An insurer utilizing the services of a TPA is responsible for the acts of the TPA and is responsible for providing the TPA's books and records relevant to the insurer to the commissioner upon request.

D. The written agreement between the TPA and the payor shall provide that communications between the TPA and claimants shall avoid deceptive statements with regard to the responsibilities of the TPA, payor and any insurer with regard to claims or premiums.

(1) If the TPA is also an insurer, then communications with claimants shall be designed to avoid the impression that coverage provided for the claimants is pursuant to insurance written by the insurer or an affiliated insurer.

(2) For workers' compensation coverage, if the TPA is employed by an insurer or by a large deductible policyholder, then communications with claimants shall be designed to avoid the impression that coverage provided to the claimants is pursuant to self-insurance by an employer or other entity, even when the amounts payable by the employer or other entity are a function of the claims paid on its behalf.

E. In the event of a dispute between the payor and the TPA regarding which of them is to fulfill a lawful obligation with respect to a policy, certificate or claim subject to the written agreement, the payor shall fulfill such obligation.

F. For workers' compensation, the TPA shall establish and maintain means for the payor to identify a responsible person with the TPA when the payor is contacted by a claimant or a representative of a claimant, or by the insurance department or industrial commission. Upon request, the payor shall provide this information to a claimant, a representative of a claimant, or to the insurance department or industrial commission.

G. The payor has the duty to provide for competent administration of its programs administered by a TPA and within the scope of this Act.

H. When a TPA administers benefits in connection with life, annuity, health and employee benefit stop-loss coverage for more than one hundred (100) certificate holders, subscribers, claimants or policyholders on behalf of an insurer, the insurer shall, at least semiannually, conduct a review of the operations of the TPA. At least one such review shall include an on-site audit of the operations of the TPA. The cost of such reviews or audits shall be borne by the insurer and not reimbursed by the TPA. The requirements of this subsection shall not apply when the TPA and the insurer are affiliated.

Section 8. Premium Collection and Payment of Claims

A. All insurance charges, premiums, collateral and loss reimbursements collected by a TPA on behalf of or for a payor, the return of premiums or collateral received from a payor, and any funds held by the TPA for the payment of claims, shall be held by the TPA in a fiduciary capacity. Funds shall be immediately remitted to the person entitled to them or shall be deposited promptly in a fiduciary account established and maintained by the TPA in a federally insured financial institution. The TPA shall render a periodic accounting to the payor detailing all transactions performed by the TPA pertaining to the business of the payor, and the written agreement between the payor and the TPA shall include the specifications of this reporting.

B. The TPA shall keep copies of all records of any fiduciary account maintained or controlled by the TPA, and, upon request of a payor, shall furnish the payor with copies of the records pertaining to the deposits and withdrawals made on behalf of the payor. If funds deposited in a fiduciary account have been collected on behalf of or for more than one payor, or for the payment of claims associated with more than one policy, the TPA shall keep records clearly recording the deposits in and withdrawals from the account on behalf of each payor and relating to each policyholder.

C. The TPA shall not pay any claim by withdrawals from a fiduciary account in which premiums or charges, other than collateral or loss reimbursements for workers' compensation, are deposited. Withdrawals from a fiduciary account shall be made as provided in the written agreement between the TPA and the payor, and only for the following purposes:

(1) Remittance to a payor entitled to remittance;

(2) Deposit in an account maintained in the name of the payor;

(3) Transfer to and deposit in a claims-paying account, with claims to be paid as provided in Subsection D of this section;

(4) Payment to a group policyholder for remittance to the payor entitled to such remittance;

(5) Payment to the TPA of its earned commissions, fees or charges;

(6) Remittance of return premium to the person or persons entitled to such return premium; and

(7) Payment to other service providers as authorized by the payor.

D. All claims paid by the TPA from funds collected on behalf of or for a payor shall be paid only as authorized by the payor. Payments from an account maintained or controlled by the TPA for purposes including the payment of claims may be made only for the following purposes:

(1) Payment of valid claims;

(2) Payment of expenses associated with claims handling to the TPA or to other service providers approved by the payor;

(3) Remittance to the payor, or transfer to a successor TPA as directed by the payor, for the purpose of paying claims and associated expenses; and

(4) Return of funds held as collateral or prepayment, to the person entitled to those funds, upon a determination by the payor that those funds are no longer necessary to secure or facilitate the payment of claims and associated expenses.

Section 9. Compensation to the TPA

A. A TPA shall not enter into an agreement or understanding with a payor or, with regard to workers' compensation, a payor, employer or co-employer in which the effect is to make the amount of the TPA's commissions, fees, or charges contingent upon savings effected in the payment of losses covered by the payor's obligations. This provision shall not prohibit a TPA from receiving performance-based compensation for providing hospital or other auditing services, from providing managed care or related services, or from being compensated for subrogation expenses.

B. A payor shall not enter into an agreement with a TPA in violation of this section.

C. This section shall not prevent the compensation of a TPA from being based on premiums or charges collected or the number of claims paid or processed.

Section 10. Disclosure of Charges and Fees

A. When a TPA collects funds, the reason for collection of each item shall be identified to the insured party and each item shall be shown separately from any premium. Additional charges may not be made for services to the extent the services have been already paid for by the payor.

B. The TPA shall disclose to the payor all charges, fees and commissions that the TPA receives arising from services it provides for the payor, including any fees or commissions paid by payors providing reinsurance or stop-loss insurance.

Section 11. Workers' Compensation; Agreements and Communication between Employers, TPAs and Insurers

No TPA shall enter into any agreement with any employer or co-employer, except a workers' compensation self-insurer, for the adjustment or handling of workers' compensation claims for its employees or co-employees that are residents of this state, or accept compensation of any kind for the adjustment or handling of workers' compensation claims for employees or co-employees that are residents of this state, unless it has a master services agreement applying to such claims with the insurer responsible for the payment of claims attributable to the employer or co-employer. This section does not apply when the employer or co-employer is an insurer.

A. The following provisions apply to master services agreements:

(1) The insurer may have more than one master services agreement with a given TPA, but it must be unambiguous which master services agreement applies for a given claim.

(2) The provisions of this Act shall prevail in the case of any conflicts between it and the master services agreement.

(3) The provisions of the master services agreement shall prevail in the case of any conflicts between it and a contract or agreement between the TPA and the employer or co-employer.

(4) The provisions of this Act shall prevail in the case of any conflicts between it and the contract or agreement between the TPA and the employer or co-employer.

(5) The master services agreement shall address any conversion of collateral held by the TPA on behalf of the insurer and shall address other details of funds management.

(6) If the TPA receives funds directly from the employer or co-employer for claims or claims handling expense, then the master services agreement must provide for uninterrupted claims handling in the event that the employer or co-employer stops paying the TPA for any reason.

(7) Each insurer and TPA must maintain copies of all master services agreements to which they are a party. These agreements shall be made available for inspection by the insurance department or the industrial commission upon request, but these agreements shall be treated as proprietary and this availability shall not be used to disclose an agreement to a third party without the permission of all parties to the agreement.

(8) The insurer may terminate the obligation and the ability of the TPA to settle claims on its behalf for an employer or co-employer at any time upon advance notice to the TPA and to the employer or co-employer.

(9) The master services agreement must make provisions for statistical reporting as required by law or regulation, and must make provision for statistical reporting and records management in the event of termination of the TPA's responsibility for the handling of an employer or co-employer, or in the event of termination of the master services agreement.

B. Subject to other provisions of this Act, contracts or agreements between a TPA and an employer or co-employer relating to workers' compensation for the employer's or co-employer's employees or co-employees may have the TPA paid or paid in part by the employer or co-employer. The following provisions apply to such funds and to reimbursements made through the conversion of collateral held by an TPA relating to a employer or co-employer:

(1) When a TPA enters into a contract or agreement with an employer or co-employer relating to workers' compensation for the employer's or co-employer' employees, the TPA shall disclose to the employer or co-employer any charges, fees or commissions that it receives as compensation for such work from any insurer.

(2) The master services agreement may authorize the TPA to handle receipts and payments on behalf of the insurer relating to premium, collateral, and reimbursement for loss payments and expenses arising out of the adjusting of claims.

(3) Payments by the employer or co-employer to the TPA for its claims adjusting services under a large deductible policy, if made directly to the TPA and not by the insurer to the TPA, and if the insurer does not assume a risk that such payments may be higher than an expected amount, do not need to be reported by the insurer as premium on its Annual Statement. All other payments, other than collateral, made by the employer or co-employer to a TPA relating to coverage under a large deductible policy must be reported by the TPA to the insurer and reported by the insurer as premium on its Annual Statement. For purposes of this section, a large deductible policy is considered to be any workers' compensation deductible policy approved by the Commissioner with a per-accident deductible of no less than one hundred thousand dollars and, if applicable, an aggregate deductible of no less than two hundred fifty thousand dollars, provided that both such deductibles must be retained by the employer or co-employer and not insured or reinsured in any fashion by any insurer not affiliated with the employer or co-employer.

Drafting Note: The definition of large deductible in Subsection B(2) should be made consistent with the minimum standards for large deductible approval otherwise contemplated in state law.

(4) Any payments made by the employer or co-employer to the TPA, that are not collateral and are not reimbursement for claims or claim adjusting expenses, and are attributable to workers' compensation for employees or co-employee that are residents of this state, shall be reported by the insurer as premium on its Annual Statement. For purposes of this paragraph, conversion of collateral to satisfy an obligation of the employer or co-employer shall be considered a payment.

C. The TPA must retain copies of all contracts, agreements and amendments thereto between the TPA and an employer or co-employer relating to claims covered by the insurer under a statutory workers' compensation policy. Upon request, the TPA must promptly provide the insurer with a copy of any contract, agreement or amendment thereto between the TPA and an employer or co-employer relating to claims covered by the insurer under a statutory workers' compensation policy. The insurer and the TPA shall make all such agreements in their possession available for inspection by the insurance department or the industrial commission upon request, but these agreements shall be treated as proprietary and this availability shall not be used to disclose an agreement to a third party without the permission of all parties to the agreement.

D. If provision for such cancellation is contained in the insurance policy, an insurer may cancel the policy for nonpayment if the employer fails to pay the TPA for services relating to claims that are the ultimate responsibility of the insurer. The endorsement addressing the use of the TPA and the employer's or co-employer's obligation to pay the TPA may provide that the employer or co-employer is also obligated to pay the insurer for any amounts that the insurer pays the TPA should the employer or co-employer not pay the TPA on a timely basis.

E. No contract between an employer and a TPA may provide or allow administration of claims by the employer or co-employer unless self-administration of claims by the employer or co-employer has either been approved by the [agency responsible for approval of workers' compensation self-insurance] or the employer or co-employer is otherwise authorized by law to administer its own claims in this state.

F. No contract or agreement between an employer and a TPA or an insurer may give the employer the right to deny a claim. If an employer recommends that a TPA deny a claim, then the TPA may do so if such action is consistent with the claims handling standards provided by the insurer.

Drafting Note: Subsection F should be amended as necessary in those states that give the employer specific rights to dispute or deny workers' compensation claims. The section is not intended to reduce the rights of the employer to less than it would otherwise have under state law.

G. An insurer shall not permit a TPA to delegate authority to an employer or co-employer in violation of this section.

H. A contract or an agreement between an employer and a TPA may give the employer the right to have amounts paid that otherwise may be disputed by the insurer or the TPA. In the event that a contract or agreement has this provision, the insurer must be given a copy of the contract or advised of the existence of these provisions on a timely basis after the contract or agreement is entered into or amended to include a provision of this nature, except when the insurer has already given the TPA or the policyholder written permission for this arrangement. This subsection shall not be interpreted, however, to give this right to an employer absent a provision in the contract or agreement between it and the TPA, and it shall not be interpreted as meaning that the insurer that has not already given permission cannot refuse to accept such provisions within a reasonable time after their receipt by the insurer.

I. When a contract or agreement exists between the TPA and the employer, there must be an endorsement attached to each related statutory workers' compensation policy to indicate the existence of that contract or agreement. If applicable, the endorsement must recognize the obligations of the policyholder to pay the TPA. If applicable, this endorsement must recognize the obligation of the employer or co-employer to reimburse the insurer if the insurer pays the TPA to assure continued claims services in the event of the employer's or co-employer's failure to pay. In addition, the endorsement shall provide that, in the event that the insurer terminates the TPA's role in handling claims for the employer, the employer or co-employer shall have the ability to cancel the policy without a short rate penalty if it replaces its insurance with another insurer, but using the same TPA.

Section 12. Delivery of Materials to Covered Individuals

Any policies, certificates, booklets, termination notices or other written communications delivered by the payor to the TPA for delivery to insured parties or covered individuals shall be delivered by the TPA promptly after receipt of instructions from the payor to deliver them.

Section 13. Home State TPA License

A. If a TPA is incorporated in this state or this state is its principal place of business within the United States, then the TPA may designate this state as its home state and apply to this state for licensure as a TPA. If neither the state in which a TPA is incorporated nor the state that is its principal place of business have adopted this Act or a substantially similar law governing TPAs, and if the TPA has not designated any other state that has adopted this Act or a substantially similar law governing TPAs as its home state, then the TPA may apply for licensure to this state as its home state.

B. A TPA applying to this state as its home state shall apply for licensure using the Uniform Application and designate an individual as the TPA's contact person for department communications.

Drafting Note: The contact person requirement in subsection B and the related part of the notification requirement in subsection J are recommended options for those states with computer systems or licensing and filing procedures for which the designation of a "responsible person" is necessary.

C. If a TPA designates this state as its home state because neither its state of incorporation nor the state that is its principal place of business within the United States have adopted this Act or a substantially similar law governing TPAs, but if one or both of these other jurisdictions have licensed the TPA, then the commissioner may consult with that state or states and may give due consideration to any relevant findings made by that state or states in order to avoid an unnecessarily duplicative review of the application.

D. The Uniform Application shall include or be accompanied by the following information and documents:

(1) All basic organizational documents of the applicant, including any articles of incorporation, articles of association, partnership agreement, trade name certificate, trust agreement, shareholder agreement and other applicable documents and all amendments to such documents;

(2) The bylaws, rules, regulations or similar documents regulating the internal affairs of the applicant;

(3) NAIC Biographical Affidavit for the individuals who are responsible for the conduct of affairs of the applicant; including all members of the board of directors, board of trustees, executive committee or other governing board or committee; the principal officers in the case of a corporation or the partners or members in the case of a partnership, association or limited liability company; any shareholders or member holding directly or indirectly ten percent (10%) or more of the voting stock, voting securities or voting interest of the applicant; and any other person who exercises control or influence over the affairs of the applicant;

(4) Audited annual financial statements or reports for the two (2) most recent fiscal years that prove that the applicant has a positive net worth. If the applicant has been in existence for less than two (2) fiscal years, the Uniform Application shall include financial statements or reports, certified by an officer of the applicant and prepared in accordance with GAAP, for any completed fiscal years, and for any month during the current fiscal year for which such financial statements or reports have been completed. An audited financial/annual report prepared on a consolidated basis shall include a columnar consolidating or combining worksheet that shall be filed with the report and include the following: a) amounts shown on the consolidated audited financial report shall be shown on the worksheet; b) amounts for each entity shall be stated separately, and c) explanations of consolidating and eliminating entries shall be included. The applicant shall also include such other information as the commissioner may require to review the current financial condition of the applicant.

(5) A statement describing the business plan including information on staffing levels and activities proposed in this state and nationwide. The plan shall provide details setting forth the applicant's capability for providing a sufficient number of experienced and qualified personnel in the areas of claims processing, record keeping and underwriting; and

(6) Such other pertinent information as may be required by the commissioner.

E. A TPA licensed or applying for licensure under this section shall make available for inspection by the commissioner copies of all contracts with payors or other persons utilizing the services of the TPA.

F. A TPA licensed or applying for licensure under this section shall produce its accounts, records and files for examination, and make its officers available to give information with respect to its affairs, as often as reasonably required by the commissioner.

G. The commissioner may refuse to issue a license if the commissioner determines that the TPA or any individual responsible for the conduct of affairs of the TPA is not competent, trustworthy, financially responsible or of good personal and business reputation, or has had an insurance or a TPA certificate of authority or license denied or revoked for cause by any jurisdiction, or if the commissioner determines that any of the grounds set forth in Section 15 of this Act exists with respect to the TPA.

H. A license issued under this section shall remain valid, unless surrendered, suspended or revoked by the commissioner, for so long as the TPA continues in business in this state and remains in compliance with this Act.

I. An individual may not qualify for licensure under this section, except that an individual previously licensed as a TPA with this state as its home state shall retain that license, unless surrendered, suspended or revoked by the commissioner, for so long as the TPA continues in business in this state and remains in substantial compliance with this Act.

Drafting Note: The "grandfather" provision in Subsection I addresses situations where states amending their TPA Act may already have individuals licensed under their current TPA law. The old TPA model allowed (and ostensibly required) individuals fulfilling TPA functions to be licensed as TPAs. It was never the intent of the previous drafting to require that every individual employed by a TPA to be individually licensed, although it arguably may have been intended that an individual could form a TPA without incorporating and get a license for that operation. This subsection can be removed in states that have an existing TPA law, but where all current licensees qualify as "business entities." States that are newly adopting a TPA law can also delete this subsection, as no entity could have previously held a license as a TPA.

J. A TPA licensed or applying for licensure under this section shall notify the commissioner within thirty days of any material change in its ownership, control, contact person for the TPA or other fact or circumstance affecting its qualification for a license in this state. The commissioner shall report any such changes to (insert name of the appropriate electronic database).

K. A TPA licensed or applying for a license under this section that administers or will administer governmental or church self-insured plans in this state or any other state shall maintain a surety bond for the use and benefit of the commissioner and the insurance regulatory authority of any additional state in which the TPA is authorized to conduct business and cover individuals and persons who have remitted premiums or insurance charges or other monies to the TPA in the course of the TPA's business in the greater of the following amounts:

(1) $100,000; or

(2) Ten percent (10%) of the aggregate total amount of self-funded coverage under church plans or governmental plans handled in this state and all additional states in which the TPA is authorized to conduct business.

Section 14. Registration Requirement

A person who is not required to be licensed as a TPA under this Act and who directly or indirectly underwrites, collects charges or premiums from, or adjusts or settles claims on residents of this state, only in connection with life, annuity or health coverage provided by a self-funded plan other than a governmental or church plan, shall register with the commissioner annually, verifying its status as herein described. This section shall not apply to an insurer or to an individual performing these actions as an employee of an insurer. This section shall also not apply to a person performing these actions under contract to or as an employee of a TPA.

Section 15. Nonresident TPA License

A. Unless a TPA has obtained a license in this state under Section 13, any TPA who performs TPA duties in this state shall obtain a nonresident TPA license in accordance with this section by filing with the commissioner the Uniform Application, accompanied by a letter of certification. In lieu of requiring a TPA to file a letter of certification with the Uniform Application, the commissioner may verify the nonresident TPA's home state certificate of authority or license status through an electronic database maintained by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, its affiliates or subsidiaries.

B. A TPA shall not be eligible for a nonresident TPA license under this section if it does not hold a home state certificate of authority or license in a state that has adopted this Act or that applies substantially similar provisions as are contained in this Act to that TPA. If the Act in the TPA's home state does not extend to stop-loss and workers' compensation insurance, but if the home state otherwise applies substantially similar provisions as are contained in this Act to that TPA, then that omission shall not operate to disqualify the TPA from receiving a Nonresident TPA license in this state.

C. Except as provided in Subsection B of this section and in section 17, the commissioner shall issue a nonresident TPA license to the TPA promptly upon receipt of a complete application.

D. Unless notified by the commissioner that the commissioner is able to verify the nonresident TPA's home state certificate of authority or license status through an electronic database maintained by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, its affiliates or subsidiaries, each nonresident TPA shall annually file a statement that its home state TPA certificate of authority or license remains in force and has not been revoked or suspended by its home state during the preceding year.

E. At the time of filing the statement required under Subsection D of this section or, if the commissioner has notified the nonresident TPA that the commissioner is able to verify the nonresident TPA's home state certificate of authority or license status through an electronic database, on an annual date determined by the commissioner, the nonresident TPA shall pay a filing fee as required by the commissioner.

Drafting Note: The filing of the statement or time set for payment of the fee should be after September 1 so that it follows the nonresident TPA's annual renewal of its home state certificate of authority or license.

F. A TPA licensed or applying for licensure under this section shall produce its accounts, records and files for examination, and make its officers available to give information with respect to its affairs, as often as reasonably required by the commissioner.

G. A nonresident TPA licensed in its home state is not required to hold a nonresident TPA license in this state if the TPA's duties in this state are limited to the administration of group policies or plans of insurance and no more than one hundred (100) certificate holders for all such plans reside in this state.

H. A nonresident TPA licensed in its home state is not required to hold a nonresident TPA license in this state if the TPA's duties in this state are limited to the administration of workers' compensation claims and the TPA administers less than twenty-five workers' compensation claims per calendar year in this state. This exemption shall continue to apply to a nonresident TPA exempted by this subsection until ninety days after the date that it has had twenty-five claims reported to it during a calendar year by employees whose claimed injury or disease arose from employment in this state. A TPA with a current nonresident TPA license shall be eligible for this exemption at its next renewal date following a calendar year in which it has had less than twenty-five claims reported to it during that calendar year by employees whose claimed injury or disease arose from employment in this state. The exemption described in this subsection shall not apply, however, to a TPA with a client that is an employer principally based in this state, or that has a professional employer organization as a client that is responsible for the workers' compensation obligations of a client that is principally located in this state.

Section 16. Annual Report and Filing Fee

A. Each TPA licensed under Section 13 shall file an annual report for the preceding calendar year with the commissioner on or before July 1 of each year, or within such extension of time as the commissioner for good cause may grant. The annual report shall include an audited financial statement performed by an independent certified public accountant. An audited financial/annual report prepared on a consolidated basis shall include a columnar consolidating or combining worksheet that shall be filed with the report and include the following: a) amounts shown on the consolidated audited financial report shall be shown on the worksheet; b) amounts for each entity shall be stated separately, and c) explanations of consolidating and eliminating entries shall be included. The report shall be in the form and contain such matters as the commissioner prescribes and shall be verified by at least two (2) officers of the TPA.

B. The annual report shall include the complete names and addresses of all payors with which the TPA had agreements during the preceding fiscal year.

C. At the time of filing its annual report, the TPA shall pay a filing fee as required by the commissioner.

D. The commissioner shall review the most recently filed annual report of each TPA on or before September 1 of each year. Upon completion of its review, the commissioner shall either:

(1) Issue a certification to the TPA that the annual report shows that the TPA has a positive net worth as evidenced by audited financial statements and is currently licensed and in good standing, or noting any deficiencies found in that annual report and financial statements; or

(2) Update any electronic database maintained by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, its affiliates or subsidiaries, indicating that the annual report shows that the TPA has a positive net worth as evidenced by audited financial statements and complies with existing law, or noting any deficiencies found in the annual report.

Section 17. Grounds for Denial, Suspension or Revocation of Licensure

A. The commissioner shall, deny, suspend or revoke the license of a TPA, or shall issue a cease and desist order should the TPA not have a license if, after notice and opportunity for hearing, the commissioner finds that the TPA:

(1) Is in an unsound financial condition;

(2) Is using such methods or practices in the conduct of its business so as to render its further transaction of business in this state hazardous or injurious to insured persons or the public; or

(3) Has failed to pay any judgment rendered against it in this state within sixty (60) days after the judgment has become final.

B. The commissioner may deny, suspend or revoke the license of a TPA, or may issue a cease and desist order should the TPA not have a license if, after notice and opportunity for hearing, the commissioner finds that the TPA:

(1) Has violated any lawful rule or order of the commissioner or any provision of the insurance laws of this state;

(2) Has refused to be examined or to produce its accounts, records and files for examination, or if any individual responsible for the conduct of affairs of the TPA, including members of the board of directors, board of trustees, executive committee or other governing board or committee; the principal officers in the case of a corporation or the partners or members in the case of a partnership, association or limited liability company; any shareholder or member holding directly or indirectly ten percent (10%) or more of the voting stock, voting securities or voting interest of the TPA; and any other person who exercises control or influence over the affairs of the TPA; has refused to give information with respect to its affairs or has refused to perform any other legal obligation as to an examination, when required by the commissioner;

(3) Has, without just cause, refused to pay proper claims or perform services arising under its contracts or has, without just cause, caused covered individuals to accept less than the amount due them or caused covered individuals to employ attorneys or bring suit against the TPA or a payor which it represents to secure full payment or settlement of such claims;

(4) Is required pursuant to this Act to have a license and fails at any time to meet any qualification for which issuance of a license could have been refused had the failure then existed and been known to the commissioner, unless the commissioner issued a license with knowledge of the ground for disqualification and had the authority to waive it;

(5) If any of the individuals responsible for the conduct of its affairs, including members of the board of directors, board of trustees, executive committee or other governing board or committee; the principal officers in the case of a corporation or the partners or members in the case of a partnership, association or limited liability company; any shareholder or member holding directly or indirectly ten percent (10%) or more of its voting stock, voting securities or voting interest; and any other person who exercises control or influence over its affairs; has been convicted of, or has entered a plea of guilty or nolo contendere to, a felony without regard to whether adjudication was withheld;

(6) Is under suspension or revocation in another state; or

(7) Has failed to file a timely annual report pursuant to Section 16, if a resident TPA, or a timely statement and filing fee, as applicable, pursuant to Sections 15D and E, if a nonresident TPA. This requirement does not apply to a TPA that is an insurer exempted pursuant to Section 2B.

C. (1) The commissioner, in his or her discretion, without advance notice, and before a hearing, may issue an order immediately suspending the license of a TPA, or may issue a cease and desist order should the TPA not have a license, if the commissioner finds that one or more of the following circumstances exist:

(a) The TPA is insolvent or impaired;

(b) A proceeding for receivership, conservatorship, rehabilitation or other delinquency proceeding regarding the TPA has been commenced in any state; or

(c) The financial condition or business practices of the TPA otherwise pose an imminent threat to the public health, safety or welfare of the residents of this state.

(2) At the time an order has been issued by the commissioner in accordance with Paragraph (1) of this subsection, the commissioner shall serve notice to the TPA that the TPA may request a hearing within ten business days after the receipt of the order. If a hearing is requested, the commissioner shall schedule a hearing within ten business days after receipt of the request. If a hearing is not requested and the commissioner orders none, the order shall remain in effect until modified or vacated by the commissioner.

D. If the commissioner finds that one or more grounds exist for the suspension or revocation of a license issued under this part, or for a cease and desist order, the commissioner may, in lieu of or in addition to the suspension, revocation or cease and desist order, impose a fine upon the TPA.

Drafting Note: States with disciplinary provisions of general applicability for regulated insurance entities may wish to incorporate such provisions by reference and should revise the provisions of this section to the extent inconsistent with the state's general statutory scheme.

Section 18. Effective Date

Drafting Note: If a TPA act was already in effect, but is now being amended to include workers' compensation and stop-loss insurance, it will be necessary to include a prospective effective date for this extension that does not affect the applicability of the Act to other types of coverage.

THIRD PARTY ADMINISTRATOR ACT
(NAIC Guideline Version 2)

Drafting Note: This "version 2" guideline excludes workers' compensation, while the "version 1" guideline includes workers' compensation. A state that intends to adopt a TPA law should start with the version that is appropriate for its needs.

Table of Contents

Section 1. Definitions

For purposes of this Act:

A. "Affiliate or affiliated" means a person who directly or indirectly through one or more intermediaries, controls or is controlled by, or is under common control with, another specified person.

B. "Business entity" means a corporation, association, partnership, limited liability company or other legal entity.

Drafting Note: Many laws use very broad definitions of "entity" that include individuals. Provisions of this Act referring to business entities are specifically intended to exclude individuals, as the full scope of TPA responsibilities and requirements are not well-suited to licensure of an individual. In addition, an overbroad definition of entity or "business entity" could result in individuals working for TPAs being required to be individually licensed as TPAs.

C. "Collateral" means funds, letters of credit or any item with economic value owned by the payor but held by an insurer or TPA in case it needs to be used to fulfill premium or loss reimbursement obligations in accordance with a contract between the insurer or TPA and the payor. "Collateral" shall include anticipated loss prepayments made prior to the payment of losses, pursuant to arrangements where reimbursement is not due until after losses have been paid.

D. "Commissioner" means the Commissioner of Insurance of this state.

E. "Control" (including the terms "controlled by" and "under common control with") means the possession, direct or indirect, of the power to direct or cause the direction of the management and policies of a person, whether through the ownership of voting securities, by contract other than a commercial contract for goods or nonmanagement services, or otherwise, unless the power is the result of an official position with or corporate office held by the person. Control shall be presumed to exist if any person, directly or indirectly, owns, controls, holds with the power to vote, or holds proxies representing, ten percent (10%) or more of the voting securities of any other person. This presumption may be rebutted by a showing made in the manner provided by [insert appropriate reference to state law regulating holding companies] that control does not exist in fact. The commissioner may determine, after furnishing all persons in interest notice and opportunity to be heard and making specific findings of fact to support the determination that control exists in fact, notwithstanding the absence of a presumption to that effect.

F. "GAAP" means United States generally accepted accounting principles consistently applied.

G. "Home state" means the United States jurisdiction that has adopted this Act or a substantially similar law governing TPAs and that has granted the TPA a home state TPA license.

H. "Insurer" means an entity licensed in a United States jurisdiction to provide life, annuity, health or stop-loss coverage as an insurance company, health maintenance organization, fraternal benefit society or prepaid hospital or medical care plan.

Drafting Note: States that license multiple employer welfare arrangements (MEWAs) or that authorize employee leasing companies or professional employer organizations (PEOs) to provide employee welfare benefits on a self-funded basis, will want to include these entities in the list of entities that are included in the definition of insurer for purposes of this Act, but only to the extent of their license or authorization.

I. "Insurance producer" means a person required to be licensed under the laws of this state to sell, solicit or negotiate insurance.

Drafting Note: States that use different terminology such as "agent" and/or "broker" should make appropriate adjustments to this language. In states that do not license business entities as insurance producers, use the following definition:

[I. "Insurance producer" means a person required to be licensed under the laws of this state to sell, solicit or negotiate insurance, and also includes a business entity whose primary activities are the sales, solicitation and negotiation of insurance.]

J. "Nonresident TPA" means a TPA whose home state is any jurisdiction other than this state.

K. "Payor" means an insurer or an employer administering its employee benefit plan or the employee benefit plan of an affiliated employer under common management and control.

L. "Person" means an individual or a business entity.

M. "Stop-loss insurance" means insurance protecting an employer or other person responsible for an otherwise self-insured health or life benefit plan against obligations under the plan, but "stop-loss insurance" does not include reinsurance written for an insurance company.

Drafting Note: The inclusion of the stop-loss definition and the inclusion of stop-loss throughout this law are not necessary in states where stop-loss is clearly stipulated to be health insurance and cannot be interpreted to be liability insurance or some other form of insurance. In such states, references to stop-loss may be deleted or – if retained – viewed as a clarification (as stop-loss is considered to be liability insurance in some states).

N. "Third party administrator" or "TPA" means a person who directly or indirectly underwrites, collects charges, collateral or premiums from, or adjusts or settles claims on residents of this state, in connection with life, annuity, health or stop-loss coverage, except that a person shall not be considered a TPA if that person's only actions that would otherwise cause it to be considered a TPA are among the following:

(1) A person working for a TPA to the extent that the person's activities are subject to the supervision and control of the TPA;

(2) An employer administering its employee benefit plan or the employee benefit plan of an affiliated employer under common management and control;

(3) The administration of a bona fide employee benefit plan established by an employer or an employee organization, or both, for which the insurance laws of this state are preempted pursuant to the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as the act existed on [an appropriate recent date should be selected];

(4) A union administering a benefit plan on behalf of its members;

(5) An insurer administering insurance coverage for its policyholders, subscribers or certificate holders, or those of an affiliated insurer under common management and control;

(6) An insurer directly or indirectly underwriting, collecting charges, collateral or premiums from, or adjusting or settling claims on behalf of a client that is not a policyholder, subscriber or certificate holder, and that has its United States headquarters or principal location of business in a jurisdiction in which the insurer is licensed to write that coverage;

(7) An insurer directly or indirectly underwriting, collecting charges, collateral or premiums, or adjusting or settling claims, provided that the insurer is licensed in this state to write that line of insurance coverage;

(8) An insurance producer selling insurance or engaged in related activities within the scope of the producer's license;

(9) A creditor acting on behalf of its debtors with respect to insurance covering a debt between the creditor and its debtors;

(10) A trust and its trustees and agents acting pursuant to such trust established in conformity with 29 U.S.C. Section 186;

(11) A trust exempt from taxation under Section 501(a) of the Internal Revenue Code and its trustees acting pursuant to such trust, or a custodian and the custodian's agents acting pursuant to a custodian account which meets the requirements of Section 401(f) of the Internal Revenue Code;

(12) A credit union or a financial institution that is subject to supervision or examination by federal or state banking authorities, or a mortgage lender, when collecting or remitting premiums to licensed insurance producers or to limited lines producers or authorized payors in connection with loan payments;

(13) A credit card issuing company advancing or collecting insurance premiums or charges from its credit card holders who have authorized collection;

(14) An individual adjusting or settling claims in the normal course of that individual's practice or employment as an attorney at law and who does not collect charges or premiums in connection with insurance coverage;

(15) A person licensed as a managing general agent in this state when acting within the scope of that license; or

(16) A business entity that is affiliated with a licensed insurer while acting as a TPA for the direct and assumed insurance business of an affiliated insurer;

O. "Underwrites" or "underwriting" means, but is not limited to, the acceptance of employer or individual applications for coverage of individuals and the overall planning and coordination of a benefits program.

P. "Uniform Application" means the current version of the NAIC Uniform Application for Third Party Administrators.

Section 2. Licensing Necessary

No person shall act as a TPA in this state unless that person is licensed as a TPA pursuant to this Act or unless the TPA is exempted from this Act's licensing requirement pursuant to subsection G of section 13 of this Act. This prohibition shall not apply to a person while employed by, or when operating under contract to, a TPA that is licensed pursuant to this Act, or exempted from this Act's licensing requirements pursuant to subsection G of section 13 of this Act.

Section 3. Payment to a TPA

If an insurer utilizes the services of a TPA, any premiums or charges for insurance paid to the TPA by or on behalf of the insured party, or any collateral furnished to the TPA by or on behalf of the insured party, shall be deemed to have been received by the insurer, and the return of collateral or the payment of return premiums or claim payments forwarded by the insurer to the TPA shall not be deemed to have been paid to the insured party or claimant until the payments are received by the insured party or claimant. Nothing in this section limits any right of the insurer against the TPA resulting from the failure of the TPA to make payments to the insurer, insured parties or claimants.

Section 4. Maintenance of Information

A. A TPA shall maintain and make available to the payor complete books and records of all transactions performed on behalf of the payor. The books and records shall be maintained in accordance with prudent standards of insurance record keeping and shall be maintained for a period of not less than five (5) years from the date of their creation.

B. The commissioner shall have access to books and records maintained by a TPA for the purposes of examination, audit and inspection. Any documents, materials or other information in the possession or control of the commissioner that are furnished by a TPA, payor, insurance producer or an employee or agent thereof acting on behalf of the TPA, payor or insurance producer, or obtained by the commissioner in an investigation shall be confidential by law and privileged, shall not be subject to [insert open records, freedom of information, sunshine or other appropriate phrase], shall not be not subject to subpoena, and shall not be subject to discovery or admissible in evidence in any private civil action. However, the commissioner is authorized to use such documents, materials or other information in the furtherance of any regulatory or legal action brought as a part of the commissioner's official duties.

C. Neither the commissioner nor any person who receives documents, materials or other information while acting under the authority of the commissioner shall be permitted or required to testify in any private civil action concerning confidential documents, materials, or information subject to Subsection B of this section.

D. In order to assist in the performance of his or her duties, the commissioner:

(1) May share documents, materials or other information, including the confidential and privileged documents, materials or information subject to Subsection B of this section, with other state, federal and international regulatory agencies, with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, its affiliates or subsidiaries and with state, federal and international law enforcement authorities, provided that the recipient agrees to maintain the confidentiality and privileged status of the document, material or other information;

(2) May receive documents, materials or information, including otherwise confidential and privileged documents, materials or information, from the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, its affiliates or subsidiaries, and from regulatory and law enforcement officials of other foreign or domestic jurisdictions, and shall maintain as confidential or privileged any document, material or information received with notice or the understanding that it is confidential or privileged under the laws of the jurisdiction that is the source of the document, material or information; and

(3) [OPTIONAL] May enter into agreements governing sharing and use of information consistent with this subsection.

Drafting Note: The language in Subsection D(1) assumes the recipient has the authority to protect the applicable confidentiality or privilege, but does not address the verification of that authority, which would presumably occur in the context of a broader information sharing agreement.

E. No waiver of any applicable privilege or claim of confidentiality in the documents, materials or information shall occur as a result of disclosure to the commissioner under this section or as a result of sharing as authorized in Subsection D of this section.

F. Nothing in this Act shall prohibit the commissioner from releasing final, adjudicated actions including for cause terminations that are open to public inspection pursuant to [insert appropriate reference to state law] to a database or other clearinghouse service maintained by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, its affiliates or subsidiaries.

G. Notwithstanding any contractual agreements between the payor and the TPA that operate to the contrary, the TPA shall retain the right to sufficient continuing access to books and records to permit the TPA to fulfill all of its contractual obligations to insured parties, claimants, and the payor.

H. In the event the payor or the TPA cancel their agreement; notwithstanding the provisions of Subsection A of this section, the TPA may, by written agreement with the payor, transfer all records to a new TPA rather than retain them for five (5) years. In such cases, the new TPA shall acknowledge, in writing, that it is responsible for retaining the records of the prior TPA as required in Subsection A of this section.

Section 5. Approval of Advertising

A TPA that advertises on behalf of its client may only use advertising that has been approved in writing by the client in advance of its use. A TPA that mentions any current or former client in its advertising must obtain the client's prior written consent.

Section 6. Responsibilities of the Payor and TPA

A. No TPA shall act as such without a written agreement between the TPA and the payor. A copy of the agreement shall be retained by the TPA for the duration of the agreement and for five (5) years thereafter. The agreement shall contain all provisions required by this section, except insofar as the TPA does not perform all of the functions referenced in this section.

B. A payor that utilizes the services of a TPA shall retain responsibility for the benefits, premium rates, collateral and reimbursement procedures, underwriting criteria and claims payment procedures applicable to the coverage and for securing reinsurance or stop-loss insurance, if any. The rules pertaining to these matters, to the extent that they are relevant to the duties of the TPA, shall be agreed to in writing by the payor and the TPA.

C. An insurer utilizing the services of a TPA is responsible for the acts of the TPA and is responsible for providing the TPA's books and records relevant to the insurer to the commissioner upon request.

D. The written agreement between the TPA and the payor shall provide that communications between the TPA and claimants shall avoid deceptive statements with regard to the responsibilities of the TPA, payor and any insurer with regard to claims or premiums.

E. In the event of a dispute between the payor and the TPA regarding which of them is to fulfill a lawful obligation with respect to a policy, certificate or claim subject to the written agreement, the payor shall fulfill such obligation.

F. The payor has the duty to provide for competent administration of its programs administered by a TPA and within the scope of this Act.

G. When a TPA administers benefits in connection with life, annuity, health and employee benefit stop-loss coverage for more than one hundred (100) certificate holders, subscribers, claimants or policyholders on behalf of an insurer, the insurer shall, at least semiannually, conduct a review of the operations of the TPA. At least one such review shall include an on-site audit of the operations of the TPA. The cost of such reviews or audits shall be borne by the insurer and not reimbursed by the TPA. The requirements of this subsection shall not apply when the TPA and the insurer are affiliated.

Section 7. Premium Collection and Payment of Claims

A. All insurance charges, premiums, collateral and loss reimbursements collected by a TPA on behalf of or for a payor, the return of premiums or collateral received from a payor, and any funds held by the TPA for the payment of claims, shall be held by the TPA in a fiduciary capacity. Funds shall be immediately remitted to the person entitled to them or shall be deposited promptly in a fiduciary account established and maintained by the TPA in a federally insured financial institution. The TPA shall render a periodic accounting to the payor detailing all transactions performed by the TPA pertaining to the business of the payor, and the written agreement between the payor and the TPA shall include the specifications of this reporting.

B. The TPA shall keep copies of all records of any fiduciary account maintained or controlled by the TPA, and, upon request of a payor, shall furnish the payor with copies of the records pertaining to the deposits and withdrawals made on behalf of the payor. If funds deposited in a fiduciary account have been collected on behalf of or for more than one payor, or for the payment of claims associated with more than one policy, the TPA shall keep records clearly recording the deposits in and withdrawals from the account on behalf of each payor and relating to each policyholder.

C. The TPA shall not pay any claim by withdrawals from a fiduciary account in which premiums or charges are deposited. Withdrawals from a fiduciary account shall be made as provided in the written agreement between the TPA and the payor, and only for the following purposes:

(1) Remittance to a payor entitled to remittance;

(2) Deposit in an account maintained in the name of the payor;

(3) Transfer to and deposit in a claims-paying account, with claims to be paid as provided in Subsection D of this section;

(4) Payment to a group policyholder for remittance to the payor entitled to such remittance;

(5) Payment to the TPA of its earned commissions, fees or charges;

(6) Remittance of return premium to the person or persons entitled to such return premium; and

(7) Payment to other service providers as authorized by the payor.

D. All claims paid by the TPA from funds collected on behalf of or for a payor shall be paid only as authorized by the payor. Payments from an account maintained or controlled by the TPA for purposes including the payment of claims may be made only for the following purposes:

(1) Payment of valid claims;

(2) Payment of expenses associated with claims handling to the TPA or to other service providers approved by the payor;

(3) Remittance to the payor, or transfer to a successor TPA as directed by the payor, for the purpose of paying claims and associated expenses; and

(4) Return of funds held as collateral or prepayment, to the person entitled to those funds, upon a determination by the payor that those funds are no longer necessary to secure or facilitate the payment of claims and associated expenses.

Section 8. Compensation to the TPA

A. A TPA shall not enter into an agreement or understanding with a payor in which the effect is to make the amount of the TPA's commissions, fees, or charges contingent upon savings effected in the payment of losses covered by the payor's obligations. This provision shall not prohibit a TPA from receiving performance-based compensation for providing hospital or other auditing services, from providing managed care or related services, or from being compensated for subrogation expenses.

B. A payor shall not enter into an agreement with a TPA in violation of this section.

C. This section shall not prevent the compensation of a TPA from being based on premiums or charges collected or the number of claims paid or processed.

Section 9. Disclosure of Charges and Fees

A. When a TPA collects funds, the reason for collection of each item shall be identified to the insured party and each item shall be shown separately from any premium. Additional charges may not be made for services to the extent the services have been already paid for by the payor.

B. The TPA shall disclose to the payor all charges, fees and commissions that the TPA receives arising from services it provides for the payor, including any fees or commissions paid by payors providing reinsurance or stop-loss insurance.

Section 10. Delivery of Materials to Covered Individuals

Any policies, certificates, booklets, termination notices or other written communications delivered by the payor to the TPA for delivery to insured parties or covered individuals shall be delivered by the TPA promptly after receipt of instructions from the payor to deliver them.

Section 11. Home State TPA License

A. If a TPA is incorporated in this state or this state is its principal place of business within the United States, then the TPA may designate this state as its home state and apply to this state for licensure as a TPA. If neither the state in which a TPA is incorporated nor the state that is its principal place of business have adopted this Act or a substantially similar law governing TPAs, and if the TPA has not designated any other state that has adopted this Act or a substantially similar law governing TPAs as its home state, then the TPA may apply for licensure to this state as its home state.

B. A TPA applying to this state as its home state shall apply for licensure using the Uniform Application and designate an individual as the TPA's contact person for department communications.

Drafting Note: The contact person requirement in subsection B and the related part of the notification requirement in subsection J are recommended options for those states with computer systems or licensing and filing procedures for which the designation of a "responsible person" is necessary.

C. If a TPA designates this state as its home state because neither its state of incorporation nor the state that is its principal place of business within the United States have adopted this Act or a substantially similar law governing TPAs, but if one or both of these other jurisdictions have licensed the TPA, then the commissioner may consult with that state or states and may give due consideration to any relevant findings made by that state or states in order to avoid an unnecessarily duplicative review of the application.

D. The Uniform Application shall include or be accompanied by the following information and documents:

(1) All basic organizational documents of the applicant, including any articles of incorporation, articles of association, partnership agreement, trade name certificate, trust agreement, shareholder agreement and other applicable documents and all amendments to such documents;

(2) The bylaws, rules, regulations or similar documents regulating the internal affairs of the applicant;

(2) NAIC Biographical Affidavit for the individuals who are responsible for the conduct of affairs of the applicant; including all members of the board of directors, board of trustees, executive committee or other governing board or committee; the principal officers in the case of a corporation or the partners or members in the case of a partnership, association or limited liability company; any shareholders or member holding directly or indirectly ten percent (10%) or more of the voting stock, voting securities or voting interest of the applicant; and any other person who exercises control or influence over the affairs of the applicant;

(4) Audited annual financial statements or reports for the two (2) most recent fiscal years that prove that the applicant has a positive net worth. If the applicant has been in existence for less than two (2) fiscal years, the Uniform Application shall include financial statements or reports, certified by an officer of the applicant and prepared in accordance with GAAP, for any completed fiscal years, and for any month during the current fiscal year for which such financial statements or reports have been completed. An audited financial/annual report prepared on a consolidated basis shall include a columnar consolidating or combining worksheet that shall be filed with the report and include the following: a) amounts shown on the consolidated audited financial report shall be shown on the worksheet; b) amounts for each entity shall be stated separately, and c) explanations of consolidating and eliminating entries shall be included. The applicant shall also include such other information as the commissioner may require to review the current financial condition of the applicant.

(5) A statement describing the business plan including information on staffing levels and activities proposed in this state and nationwide. The plan shall provide details setting forth the applicant's capability for providing a sufficient number of experienced and qualified personnel in the areas of claims processing, record keeping and underwriting; and

(6) Such other pertinent information as may be required by the commissioner.

E. A TPA licensed or applying for licensure under this section shall make available for inspection by the commissioner copies of all contracts with payors or other persons utilizing the services of the TPA.

F. A TPA licensed or applying for licensure under this section shall produce its accounts, records and files for examination, and make its officers available to give information with respect to its affairs, as often as reasonably required by the commissioner.

G. The commissioner may refuse to issue a license if the commissioner determines that the TPA or any individual responsible for the conduct of affairs of the TPA is not competent, trustworthy, financially responsible or of good personal and business reputation, or has had an insurance or a TPA certificate of authority or license denied or revoked for cause by any jurisdiction, or if the commissioner determines that any of the grounds set forth in Section 15 of this Act exists with respect to the TPA.

H. A license issued under this section shall remain valid, unless surrendered, suspended or revoked by the commissioner, for so long as the TPA continues in business in this state and remains in compliance with this Act.

I. An individual may not qualify for licensure under this section, except that an individual previously licensed as a TPA with this state as its home state shall retain that license, unless surrendered, suspended or revoked by the commissioner, for so long as the TPA continues in business in this state and remains in substantial compliance with this Act.

Drafting Note: The "grandfather" provision in Subsection I addresses situations where states amending their TPA Act may already have individuals licensed under their current TPA law. The old TPA model allowed (and ostensibly required) individuals fulfilling TPA functions to be licensed as TPAs. It was never the intent of the previous drafting to require that every individual employed by a TPA to be individually licensed, although it arguably may have been intended that an individual could form a TPA without incorporating and get a license for that operation. This subsection can be removed in states that have an existing TPA law, but where all current licensees qualify as "business entities." States that are newly adopting a TPA law can also delete this subsection, as no entity could have previously held a license as a TPA.

J. A TPA licensed or applying for licensure under this section shall notify the commissioner within thirty days of any material change in its ownership, control, contact person for the TPA or other fact or circumstance affecting its qualification for a license in this state. The commissioner shall report any such changes to (insert name of the appropriate electronic database).

K. A TPA licensed or applying for a license under this section that administers or will administer governmental or church self-insured plans in this state or any other state shall maintain a surety bond for the use and benefit of the commissioner and the insurance regulatory authority of any additional state in which the TPA is authorized to conduct business and cover individuals and persons who have remitted premiums or insurance charges or other monies to the TPA in the course of the TPA's business in the greater of the following amounts:

(1) $100,000; or

(2) Ten percent (10%) of the aggregate total amount of self-funded coverage under church plans or governmental plans handled in this state and all additional states in which the TPA is authorized to conduct business.

Section 12. Registration Requirement

A person who is not required to be licensed as a TPA under this Act and who directly or indirectly underwrites, collects charges or premiums from, or adjusts or settles claims on residents of this state, only in connection with life, annuity or health coverage provided by a self-funded plan other than a governmental or church plan, shall register with the commissioner annually, verifying its status as herein described. This section shall not apply to an insurer or to an individual performing these actions as an employee of an insurer. This section shall also not apply to a person performing these actions under contract to or as an employee of a TPA.

Section 13. Nonresident TPA License

A. Unless a TPA has obtained a license in this state under Section 11, any TPA who performs TPA duties in this state shall obtain a nonresident TPA license in accordance with this section by filing with the commissioner the Uniform Application, accompanied by a letter of certification. In lieu of requiring a TPA to file a letter of certification with the Uniform Application, the commissioner may verify the nonresident TPA's home state certificate of authority or license status through an electronic database maintained by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, its affiliates or subsidiaries.

B. A TPA shall not be eligible for a nonresident TPA license under this section if it does not hold a home state certificate of authority or license in a state that has adopted this Act or that applies substantially similar provisions as are contained in this Act to that TPA. If the Act in the TPA's home state does not extend to stop-loss insurance, but if the home state otherwise applies substantially similar provisions as are contained in this Act to that TPA, then that omission shall not operate to disqualify the TPA from receiving a nonresident TPA license in this state.

C. Except as provided in Subsection B of this section and in section 15, the commissioner shall issue a nonresident TPA license to the TPA promptly upon receipt of a complete application.

D. Unless notified by the commissioner that the commissioner is able to verify the nonresident TPA's home state certificate of authority or license status through an electronic database maintained by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, its affiliates or subsidiaries, each nonresident TPA shall annually file a statement that its home state TPA certificate of authority or license remains in force and has not been revoked or suspended by its home state during the preceding year.

E. At the time of filing the statement required under Subsection D of this section or, if the commissioner has notified the nonresident TPA that the commissioner is able to verify the nonresident TPA's home state certificate of authority or license status through an electronic database, on an annual date determined by the commissioner, the nonresident TPA shall pay a filing fee as required by the commissioner.

Drafting Note: The filing of the statement or time set for payment of the fee should be after September 1 so that it follows the nonresident TPA's annual renewal of its home state certificate of authority or license.

F. A TPA licensed or applying for licensure under this section shall produce its accounts, records and files for examination, and make its officers available to give information with respect to its affairs, as often as reasonably required by the commissioner.

G. A nonresident TPA licensed in its home state is not required to hold a nonresident TPA license in this state if the TPA's duties in this state are limited to the administration of group policies or plans of insurance and no more than one hundred (100) certificate holders for all such plans reside in this state.

Section 14. Annual Report and Filing Fee

A. Each TPA licensed under Section 11 shall file an annual report for the preceding calendar year with the commissioner on or before July 1 of each year, or within such extension of time as the commissioner for good cause may grant. The annual report shall include an audited financial statement performed by an independent certified public accountant. An audited financial/annual report prepared on a consolidated basis shall include a columnar consolidating or combining worksheet that shall be filed with the report and include the following: a) amounts shown on the consolidated audited financial report shall be shown on the worksheet; b) amounts for each entity shall be stated separately, and c) explanations of consolidating and eliminating entries shall be included. The report shall be in the form and contain such matters as the commissioner prescribes and shall be verified by at least two (2) officers of the TPA.

B. The annual report shall include the complete names and addresses of all payors with which the TPA had agreements during the preceding fiscal year.

C. At the time of filing its annual report, the TPA shall pay a filing fee as required by the commissioner.

D. The commissioner shall review the most recently filed annual report of each TPA on or before September 1 of each year. Upon completion of its review, the commissioner shall either:

(1) Issue a certification to the TPA that the annual report shows that the TPA has a positive net worth as evidenced by audited financial statements and is currently licensed and in good standing, or noting any deficiencies found in that annual report and financial statements; or

(2) Update any electronic database maintained by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, its affiliates or subsidiaries, indicating that the annual report shows that the TPA has a positive net worth as evidenced by audited financial statements and complies with existing law, or noting any deficiencies found in the annual report.

Section 15. Grounds for Denial, Suspension or Revocation of Licensure

A. The commissioner shall, deny, suspend or revoke the license of a TPA, or shall issue a cease and desist order should the TPA not have a license if, after notice and opportunity for hearing, the commissioner finds that the TPA:

(1) Is in an unsound financial condition;

(2) Is using such methods or practices in the conduct of its business so as to render its further transaction of business in this state hazardous or injurious to insured persons or the public; or

(3) Has failed to pay any judgment rendered against it in this state within sixty (60) days after the judgment has become final.

B. The commissioner may deny, suspend or revoke the license of a TPA, or may issue a cease and desist order should the TPA not have a license if, after notice and opportunity for hearing, the commissioner finds that the TPA:

(1) Has violated any lawful rule or order of the commissioner or any provision of the insurance laws of this state;

(2) Has refused to be examined or to produce its accounts, records and files for examination, or if any individual responsible for the conduct of affairs of the TPA, including members of the board of directors, board of trustees, executive committee or other governing board or committee; the principal officers in the case of a corporation or the partners or members in the case of a partnership, association or limited liability company; any shareholder or member holding directly or indirectly ten percent (10%) or more of the voting stock, voting securities or voting interest of the TPA; and any other person who exercises control or influence over the affairs of the TPA; has refused to give information with respect to its affairs or has refused to perform any other legal obligation as to an examination, when required by the commissioner;

(3) Has, without just cause, refused to pay proper claims or perform services arising under its contracts or has, without just cause, caused covered individuals to accept less than the amount due them or caused covered individuals to employ attorneys or bring suit against the TPA or a payor which it represents to secure full payment or settlement of such claims;

(4) Is required pursuant to this Act to have a license and fails at any time to meet any qualification for which issuance of a license could have been refused had the failure then existed and been known to the commissioner, unless the commissioner issued a license with knowledge of the ground for disqualification and had the authority to waive it;

(5) If any of the individuals responsible for the conduct of its affairs, including members of the board of directors, board of trustees, executive committee or other governing board or committee; the principal officers in the case of a corporation or the partners or members in the case of a partnership, association or limited liability company; any shareholder or member holding directly or indirectly ten percent (10%) or more of its voting stock, voting securities or voting interest; and any other person who exercises control or influence over its affairs; has been convicted of, or has entered a plea of guilty or nolo contendere to, a felony without regard to whether adjudication was withheld;

(6) Is under suspension or revocation in another state; or

(7) Has failed to file a timely annual report pursuant to Section 14, if a resident TPA, or a timely statement and filing fee, as applicable, pursuant to Sections 13D and E, if a nonresident TPA.

C. (1) The commissioner, in his or her discretion, without advance notice, and before a hearing, may issue an order immediately suspending the license of a TPA, or may issue a cease and desist order should the TPA not have a license, if the commissioner finds that one or more of the following circumstances exist:

(a) The TPA is insolvent or impaired;

(b) A proceeding for receivership, conservatorship, rehabilitation or other delinquency proceeding regarding the TPA has been commenced in any state; or

(c) The financial condition or business practices of the TPA otherwise pose an imminent threat to the public health, safety or welfare of the residents of this state.

(2) At the time an order has been issued by the commissioner in accordance with Paragraph (1) of this subsection, the commissioner shall serve notice to the TPA that the TPA may request a hearing within ten business days after the receipt of the order. If a hearing is requested, the commissioner shall schedule a hearing within ten business days after receipt of the request. If a hearing is not requested and the commissioner orders none, the order shall remain in effect until modified or vacated by the commissioner.

D. If the commissioner finds that one or more grounds exist for the suspension or revocation of a license issued under this part, or for a cease and desist order, the commissioner may, in lieu of or in addition to the suspension, revocation or cease and desist order, impose a fine upon the TPA.

Drafting Note: States with disciplinary provisions of general applicability for regulated insurance entities may wish to incorporate such provisions by reference and should revise the provisions of this section to the extent inconsistent with the state's general statutory scheme.

Section 16. Effective Date

Drafting Note: If a TPA act was already in effect, but is now being amended to include stop-loss insurance, it will be necessary to include a prospective effective date for this extension that does not affect the applicability of the Act to other types of coverage.

(An NAIC Guideline)

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC model. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered. The NAIC Legal Division has reviewed each state's activity in this area and has determined whether the citation most appropriately fits in the Model Adoption column, Previous Version column, or Related Activity column based on the definitions listed in the key below. The NAIC's interpretation may or may not be shared by the individual states or by interested readers.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in, and depending on which column the citation falls under, you will know whether the NAIC Legal Division has deemed a state's law to be adoption of a model or not. To perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

Who do I speak to if I have questions?

If you have questions or believe information related to a state should be updated, please contact Jennifer Neuerburg at jneuerburg@naic.org.

Disclaimer: This chart does not constitute a formal legal opinion by the NAIC staff on the provisions of state law and should not be relied upon as such. Nor does this state page reflect a determination as to whether a state meets any applicable accreditation standards. Every effort has been made to provide correct and accurate summaries to assist readers in locating useful information. Readers should consult state law for further details and for the most current information.

PROJECT HISTORY – 2011

GUIDELINE FOR REGISTRATION AND REGULATION OF THIRD PARTY ADMINISTRATORS (TPAs) (#1090)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

The Workers' Compensation (C) Task Force was charged in 2006 with expanding the scope of the NAIC's TPA Model Act to include workers' compensation. The nearly five year drafting effort was complex and involved substantial input from regulators familiar with producer licensing concerns.

The final guideline, offered in two versions, is a revision of the Third Party Administrator Statute, which was first adopted by the NAIC as a model law in 1977 and which had been most recently amended in 2001. Version 1 of the Guideline expands the scope of the prior model by adding workers' compensation and stop-loss coverages. Version 2 of the Guideline omits workers' compensation, which makes it similar in scope to the prior model, with the difference being in those states where stop-loss insurance was defined as liability insurance and not as health insurance.

In addition to numerous editorial changes, some of the substantive changes to what was previously in the 2001 NAIC model law are as follows:

(a) The language of the 2001 model required individuals adjusting life and health claims to be licensed as TPAs, even though it is clear that it was never the intent of the drafters or the states that adopted the model to implement a licensure requirement for employees of TPAs or insurers adjusting life and health claims. In addition, the licensing provisions in the 2001 model allowed an individual to become licensed to act as a full-fledged TPA. While the Guideline has language to allow previously licensed individuals to be "grandfathered," it provides that only business entities can be newly licensed as TPAs. As a practical matter, licensure requirements are not cleanly met by an individual.

(b) The 2001 model exempted licensed insurers operating as TPAs from all requirements of the Act. The Guidelines maintain this exemption for lines other than workers' compensation. For workers' compensation, while Version 1 exempts insurers from licensure requirements and from audit and reporting requirements when they handle workers' compensation claims for an employer that is not their policyholder, it subjects such insurer/TPAs to many other operational requirements of the Act for workers' compensation.

(c) The Guideline adds cease & desist orders to those actions available to the commissioner and also addresses concerns that the 2001 model may have been deficient with regard to due process.

(d) The Guideline extends the life & health scope of the 2001 model to so-called "stop-loss" insurance. This may be viewed a clarification in states where stop-loss is already considered to be health insurance and cannot be written as liability insurance, but it will be a modest expansion in other states.

(e) Version 1 extends the scope of the 2001 model to workers' compensation insurance. One should note, however, that various provisions of the model applying to life & health are not uniformly extended to workers' compensation. There is an extensive new section dealing with workers' compensation contracts between insurers and TPAs, and between TPAs and insured employers.

(f) Version 1 will not allow a TPA to agree with an employer to have the employer adjust its own workers' compensation claims, and an employer cannot avoid this prohibition by simply licensing an affiliated business entity as a TPA in order to handle its own workers' compensation claims.

(g) Version 1 exempts payments made by employers to TPAs for handling workers' compensation claims under a large deductible contract from premium taxes.

The account-related provisions in the 2001 model were substantially revised. Most notably, the Guideline deletes the requirement that accounts administered by the TPA must be in the name of the insurance company, as long as claims trust funds held by the TPA are not commingled with premium trust funds.

A state's best use of the Guideline will depend on whether it currently has a TPA law and/or whether it wants to have a TPA law that extends to the handling of workers' compensation claims:

- For a state that wishes to enact a TPA law that extends to workers' compensation, Version 1 should be an excellent starting point. Study the language carefully to make whatever amendments may be necessary on account of state-specific issues with workers' compensation, agent licensing and adjuster licensing statutes. The adjuster licensing statutes will probably require an especially careful examination to have a good "mesh" and to avoid duplicative requirements, while workers' compensation statutes will need to be studied to determine whether the provisions of this document regarding the rights of employers to involve themselves in claims handling or disputes are in agreement. While part of a possible response to conflicts could be to change adjuster licensing or workers' compensation laws to match this document, it is not the purpose of the Guideline to call for changes to other statutes. Although drafting notes will provide assistance in this regard, one should not skim over sections without drafting notes. There are more state-to-state differences than can be easily summarized by drafting notes.

- A state that already has a TPA law, but that wants to extend it to workers' compensation, will also find Version 1 to be an excellent reference. The advice for such a state is again to review this document carefully, looking to see where it differs from the state's current law and carefully noting where the changes proposed in this document may conflict with the state's other statutes.
- A state with or without a current TPA law, that wants to have a TPA law that does not extend to workers' compensation, is advised to consider Version 2. Version 2 is essentially the same as Version 1, but with provisions and language related to workers' compensation removed. This law still includes stop-loss and other refinements made to the previous NAIC model. Admittedly, the motivation for a state to make changes to its existing laws is likely to depend on whether it has identified a reason that it needs to "fix" its current laws. Absent the identification of any practical problems, states may assign a lower priority to the improvements contained in this document.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Large Deductible Study Implementation (C) Working Group of the Workers' Compensation (C) Task Force was the primary author of the draft Guidelines. After the Large Deductible (C) Working Group completed its revisions to the guidelines, it formally referred the recommended changes to the Producer Licensing (EX) Task Force for consideration. The Producer Licensing (EX) Task Force had no changes at the 2011 Spring National Meeting and has recommended adoption of the Guideline by the Property and Casualty (C) Committee and Executive Committee.

2006 CHARGES- (Adopted by Plenary on 3/5/06)

WORKERS' COMPENSATION (C) TASK FORCE

- Appoint a Large Deductible Study Implementation Working Group to assure that the NAIC charges presented in the Findings and Recommendations of the Workers' Compensation Large Deductible Study are properly completed.
- Consider amending the NAIC model law Third-Party Administrator Act to extend it to workers' compensation claims.

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated

The Large Deductible Study Implementation (C) Working Group drafted the Guideline by meeting via conference call and in person for nearly four and a half years. After the Large Deductible (C) Working Group completed its revisions to the guidelines and received feedback from the Regulatory Framework (B) Task Force, it formally referred the recommended changes to the Producer Licensing (EX) Task Force for consideration.

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

The drafting was complex. Not only did it require numerous amendments to an already complex statute, drafters encountered places where the original NAIC model could be improved. As a result, the changes include a number of improvements to the prior law, regardless of whether an extension to workers' compensation is desired.

The Subgroup met via conference call on nearly a monthly basis. Current revisions of the Guideline, along with appropriate supplementary materials, were kept on the Subgroup's webpage. Comments were solicited as revisions occurred and these also were posted on the webpage. All parties were invited on the monthly conference calls and kept apprised of the most recent changes to the draft Guideline. Numerous drafts of the Guideline were created until the Subgroup finalized the Guideline in March 2010.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response)

- The definition of "Home State"-There was considerable debate over the state that would have jurisdiction over TPAs that were doing business in more than one state. Task force members sought to create a law that would ensure that only one jurisdiction would have the authority to regulate the TPA.

- Exemption for Business Entities Performing TPA Work for an Affiliated Insurance Company. There was discussion regarding whether these types of entities should be exempted from the law because the affiliated company would already be subject to regulation. The group finally adopted wording which read: "The insurer is responsible for the acts of the administrator and is responsible for providing all the administrator's books and records to the insurance commissioner, upon a request from the insurance commissioner."

7. Any Other Important Information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard).

PROJECT HISTORY - 2001

THIRD PARTY ADMINISTRATOR STATUTE (#90)

1. Project Description

The Third Party Administrator Statue provides the basic regulatory framework for the licensing of Third Party Administrators (TPAs). The model statute was revised to create a more efficient and streamlined licensing framework. The key revisions focused on licensing reciprocity and the creation of a Uniform Application for TPAs.

2. Group Responsible for Drafting Model and States Participating

The Agent Licensing Working Group of the Market Conduct and Consumer Affairs (D) Committee was responsible for revising the model statute. Gene Reed (DE) and Sam Meyer (SD) co-chaired the working group. The following states were members of the working group: Alabama, Alaska, Arizona California, Colorado, Connecticut, District of Columbia, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Texas, Virginia, Washington and Wisconsin.

To help facilitate the drafting process, the Agent Licensing Working Group appointed the Third Party Administrator Statute Subgroup. Sue Stead (OH) chaired this subgroup. The initial subgroup was comprised of the District of Columbia, Kentucky and Michigan. As the drafting process proceeded all members of the Agent Licensing Working Group were invited to join the subgroup.

3. Charge Authorizing Project

The D Committee had the following charge during 2001: Appoint a working group to complete the review of the existing NAIC Managing General Agents Model Act and Third Party Administrator Statute. Consider modifications to the models to recognize that there have been and will be changes that will impact the delivery systems of insurance products and that this changing environment will require flexibility in regulating the production of insurance through various methodologies and technologies. Report by the NAIC Fall National Meeting.

4. General Description of Drafting Process

The drafting process was very open as the working group and subgroup solicited comments from all interested parties, including interested regulators, funded consumer representatives and industry representatives. The working group and subgroup also solicited key concerns from interested parties and funded consumer representatives. All of the meetings and conference calls of the working group, subgroup and the Market Conduct and Consumer Affairs (D) Committee were open to all interested parties. All revised drafts of the paper were posted on the NAIC website and circulated for public comment. The working group and subgroup received and reviewed numerous comments from interested parties.

5. Significant Issues Raised

The most significant revision was the adoption of a new section addressing non-resident licensing for TPAs and the creation of a new Uniform Application for Third Party Administrators. While a TPA must obtain a license in each state in which it operates, the model statute clarifies that the home state of TPA is principally responsible for regulating the TPA and determining the good standing of the TPA. The Uniform Application for TPAs may be used for both resident and non-resident licensing and the issuance of new and renewal licenses.

The model statute was revised to require the filing of a Biographical Affidavit and audited financial statements with the home state of the TPA. In addition, each TPA must file an annual report with its home state so the home state regulator of the TPA may make a proper determination regarding the positive net worth and good standing of the TPA.

With input from the ERISA Working Group, the Third Party Administrator Subgroup and the Agent Licensing Working Group concluded the state registration requirement for self-funded ERISA plans is a minimal requirement, is peripheral to an employee benefit plan, and would not lead to preemption of a state law because of the state law impermissibly "relating to" an ERISA plan. At the same time, additional modifications were added to the model statute to ensure a state law based upon the model statute would not impermissibly "relate to" an ERISA plan and be preempted.

There were numerous discussions regarding bond requirements for TPAs. The Third Party Administrator Subgroup and the Agent Licensing Working Group incorporated the following bond requirement for self-funded or governmental plans: "An administrator licensed or applying for a home state certificate of authority/license that administers or will administer governmental or church self-insured plans in its home state or any other state shall maintain a surety bond for the use and benefit of the home state commissioner and the insurance regulatory authority of any additional state in which the administrator is authorized to conduct business and cover individuals and persons who have remitted premiums or insurance charges or other monies to the administrator in the course of the administrator's business in the greater of the following amounts: (1) $100,000; or (2) ten percent (10%) of the aggregate total amount of self-funded coverage under church plans or governmental plans handled in the administrator's home state and all additional states in which the administrator is authorized to conduct business."

Finally, there were significant discussions regarding an exemption from licensure for associations. An exemption for associations was not incorporated into the model statute. Interested parties with a vested interest in this issue may submit a white paper outlining the issues surrounding the association exemption. The Agent Licensing Working Group will receive the white paper as a general comment but is not currently planning to use the white paper as a basis for an official NAIC white paper on the issue.

6. Other Pertinent Information

The creation of a more efficient and reciprocal licensing framework for TPAs coincides with the broader uniform and reciprocal licensing initiatives of the NAIC.

INDEPENDENT ADJUSTER LICENSING GUIDELINE

Table of Contents

Section 1. Purpose and Scope

This Guideline governs the qualifications and procedures for licensing independent adjusters. It specifies the duties of and restrictions on independent adjusters.

Drafting Note: It is recommended that any statute or regulation inconsistent with this Guideline be repealed or amended.

Section 2. Definitions

A. "Apprentice independent adjuster" means one who is qualified in all respects as an independent adjuster except as to experience, education and/or training.

B. "Business entity" means a corporation, association, partnership, limited liability company, limited liability partnership, or other legal entity.

C. "Catastrophe" means an event that results in large numbers of deaths or injuries; causes extensive damage or destruction of facilities that provide and sustain human needs; produces an overwhelming demand on state and local response resources and mechanisms; causes a severe long-term effect on general economic activity; or severely affects state, local and private sector capabilities to begin and sustain response activities. A catastrophe shall be declared by the Governor of the state, district, or territory in which the catastrophe occurred.

Drafting Note: Some states may need to expand the authority to include the insurance commissioner or other eligible governmental or regulatory body, if they are authorized to declare a catastrophe.

D. "Fingerprints" for the purposes of this Guideline, means an impression of the lines on the finger taken for purpose of identification.

Drafting Note: States that require fingerprinting would incorporate this Section, states that do not require fingerprinting need to determine if this would apply.

E. "Home state" means the District of Columbia and any state or territory of the United States in which an independent adjuster maintains his, her or its principal place of residence or business and is licensed to act as a resident independent adjuster. If the resident state does not license independent adjusters for the line of authority sought, the independent adjuster shall designate as his, her or its home state any state in which the independent adjuster is licensed and in good standing.

F. "Independent adjuster" means a person who:

(1) Is an individual, a business entity, an independent contractor, or an employee of a contractor, who contracts for compensation with insurers or self-insurers;

(2) One whom the insurer's or self-insurer's tax treatment of the individual is consistent with that of an independent contractor rather than as an employee, as defined in the Internal Revenue Code, United States Code, Title 26, Subtitle C; and

(3) Investigates, negotiates or settles property, casualty or workers' compensation claims for insurers or for self-insurers.

G. "Individual" means a natural person.

H. "Insurer" means (insert reference to appropriate section of state law).

I. "Person" means an individual or business entity.

J. "Uniform Individual Application" means the current version of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) Uniform Individual Application for resident and nonresident individuals.

K. "Uniform Business Entity Application" means the current version of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) Uniform Business Entity Application for resident and nonresident business entities.

Drafting Note: Subsection K is optional and only applies to those states that have a business entity license requirement.

Drafting Note: If any term is similarly defined in a relevant section of the state's insurance code, do not include the definition of the term in this Guideline or, in the alternative, reference the statute: "[term] is defined in [insert appropriate reference to state law or regulation]."

Section 3. License Required

A person shall not act or hold himself out as an independent adjuster in this state unless the person is licensed as an independent adjuster in accordance with this Guideline, or is exempt from licensure as an independent adjuster under this Guideline.

Section 4. Exceptions to License Requirement

The definition of independent adjuster shall not be deemed to include, and a license as an independent adjuster shall not be required of the following:

A. Attorneys-at-law admitted to practice in this state, when acting in their professional capacity as an attorney;

B. A person employed solely to obtain facts surrounding a claim or to furnish technical assistance to a licensed independent adjuster;

C. An individual who is employed to investigate suspected fraudulent insurance claims but who does not adjust losses or determine claims payments;

D. A person who solely performs executive, administrative, managerial or clerical duties or any combination thereof and who does not investigate, negotiate or settle claims with policyholders, claimants or their legal representative;

E. A licensed health care provider or its employee who provides managed care services so longs as the services do not include the determination of compensability;

F. A managed care organization or any of its employees or an employee of any organization providing managed care services so long as the services do not include the determination of compensability;

G. A person who settles only reinsurance or subrogation claims;

H. An officer, director, manager or employee of an authorized insurer, surplus lines insurer, a risk retention group, or an attorney-in-fact of a reciprocal insurer;

I. A U.S. Manager of the United States branch of an alien insurer;

J. A person who investigates, negotiates or settles life, accident and health, annuity, or disability insurance claims;

K. An individual employee, under a self-insured arrangement, who adjust claims on behalf of their employer;

L. A licensed insurance producer, attorney-in-fact of a reciprocal insurer or managing general agent of the insurer to whom claim authority has been granted by the insurer;

M. A person authorized to adjust workers' compensation or disability claims under the authority of a third party administrator (TPA) license pursuant to [insert applicable licensing statute].

Drafting Note: This Guideline is drafted to eliminate redundant licensure requirements with respect to the activities engaged in by a licensee. If licensed as an independent adjuster, third party administrator or similar business entity, licensees should not be required to obtain separate independent adjuster licenses, provided that the types of claims adjusted do not include life, health, annuity, or disability insurance claims.

Section 5. Temporary Licensure or Registration for Emergency Independent Adjusters

A. In the event of a declared catastrophe, an insurer shall notify the insurance commissioner via an application for temporary emergency licensure, or registration if temporary emergency licensure is not statutorily required, of each individual, not already licensed in the state where the catastrophe has been declared, that will act as an emergency independent adjuster on behalf of the insurer. The insurance commissioner shall establish standards and procedures to allow for the temporary emergency licensure or registration of an emergency independent adjuster in this state.

B. A person who is otherwise qualified to adjust claims, but not already licensed in this state where the catastrophe has been declared, may act as an emergency independent adjuster and adjust claims, if, within five days of deployment to adjust claims arising from the declared catastrophe, the insurer notifies the commissioner by providing the following information in a format prescribed by the insurance commissioner:

(1) Name of the individual;

(2) Social security number of individual;

(3) Name of insurer the independent adjuster will represent;

(4) Effective date of the contract between the insurer and independent adjuster;

(5) Catastrophe or loss control number;

(6) Catastrophe event name; and

(7) Other information the insurance commissioner deems necessary.

Drafting Note: The participating states, by rule, should clarify the state's meaning and application of "qualify" as used Section 5B.

C. An emergency independent adjuster's license or registration shall remain in force for a period not to exceed 90 days, unless extended by the insurance commissioner.

Drafting Note: The fee for emergency independent adjuster application for licensure or registration shall be in an amount determined by the insurance commissioner and shall be due and payable at the time of application for licensure or registration.

Drafting Note: The insurance commissioner may provide additional provisions that would trigger licensure or registration of an emergency independent adjuster.

Section 6. Application for License

A. An individual applying for a resident independent adjuster license shall make application to the insurance commissioner on the appropriate NAIC Uniform Individual Application in a format prescribed by the insurance commissioner and declare under penalty of suspension, revocation or refusal of the license that the statements made in the application are true, correct and complete to the best of the individual's knowledge and belief. Before approving the application, the insurance commissioner shall find that the individual:

(1) Is at least eighteen (18) years of age;

(2) Is eligible to designate this state as his or her home state;

(3) Is trustworthy, reliable and of good reputation, evidence of which shall be determined by the insurance commissioner;

(4) Has not committed any act that is a ground for probation, suspension, revocation or refusal of an independent adjuster's license as set forth in Section 12;

(5) Has completed a prelicensing course of study for the line(s) of authority for which the person has applied, where required by the insurance commissioner; and

(6) Has successfully passed the examination for the line(s) of authority for which the person has applied;

(7) Has paid the fees set forth in [insert appropriate reference to state law or regulation.

B. A business entity applying for a resident independent adjuster license shall make application to the insurance commissioner on the appropriate NAIC Uniform Business Entity Application in a format prescribed by the insurance commissioner and declare under penalty of suspension, revocation or refusal of the license that the statements made in the application are true, correct and complete to the best of the business entity's knowledge and belief. Before approving the application, the insurance commissioner shall find that the business entity:

(1) Is eligible to designate this state as its home state;

(2) Has designated a licensed independent adjuster responsible for the business entities compliance with the insurance laws, rules and regulations of this state;

(3) Has not committed an act that is a ground for probation, suspension, revocation or refusal of an independent adjuster's license as set forth in Section 12; and

(4) Has paid the fees set forth in [insert appropriate reference to state law or regulation].

Drafting Note: This Section is optional and applies only to those states that have a business entity requirement.

Drafting Note: Employee of the authoritized affiliate insurer may be considered under this exemption with the Commissioner's consent.

C. In order to make a determination of license eligibility, the insurance commissioner is authorized to require fingerprints of applicants and to submit the fingerprints and the fee required to perform the criminal history record checks to the state identification bureau (or state department of justice public state agency) and the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) for state and national criminal history record checks.

Drafting Note: The FBI requires that fingerprints be submitted to the state Department of Law Enforcement, Public Safety or Criminal Justice for a check of state records before the fingerprints are submitted to the FBI for a criminal history record check. The FBI recommends all fingerprint submissions be in an electronic format. Public Law 92-544 requires specific parameters to submit fingerprints and obtain criminal history record information. The FBI has approved the language in Section 6C to authorize a state identification bureau to submit fingerprints on behalf of its applicants in conjunction with licensing and employment.

D. The insurance commissioner shall require a criminal history record check on each applicant in accordance with this Guideline. The insurance commissioner shall require each applicant to submit a full set of fingerprints (including a scanned file from a hard copy fingerprint) in order for the insurance commissioner to obtain and receive national criminal history records from the FBI Criminal Justice Information Services Division.

E. The insurance commissioner may contract for the collection and transmission of fingerprints authorized under this Guideline. If the insurance commissioner does so, the insurance commissioner may order the fee for collecting and transmitting fingerprints to be payable directly to the contractor by the applicant. The insurance commissioner may agree to a reasonable fingerprinting fee to be charged by the contractor.

F. The insurance commissioner shall treat and maintain an applicant's fingerprints and any criminal history record information obtained under this Guideline as confidential and shall apply security measures consistent with the Criminal Justice Information Services Division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation standards for the electronic storage of fingerprints and necessary identifying information and limit the use of records solely to the purposes authorized in this Guideline. The fingerprints and any criminal history record information shall not be subject to subpoena, other than one issued in a criminal action or investigation, and shall be confidential.

G. The insurance commissioner is authorized to receive criminal history record information from another government agency in lieu of the state identification bureau (or state department of justice or other public state agency) that submitted the fingerprints to the FBI.

Drafting Note: If the state has adopted fingerprint requirements for other classes of licenses, it may not necessary to adopt this language. This provision does not permit the sharing of criminal history record information with the NAIC or other insurance commissioners as such sharing of information is prohibited by 28 CFR 20.33.

H. The insurance commissioner may require any documents reasonably necessary to verify the information contained in the application.

Section 7. License

A. Unless denied licensure pursuant to Section 12, persons who have met the requirements of Sections 6 and 8 shall be issued an independent adjuster license. An independent adjuster may qualify for a license in one or more of the following lines of authority:

(1) Property and Casualty; or

(2) Workers Compensation; or

(3) Crop.

B. Any person holding a license pursuant to this provision shall not be required to hold any other independent adjuster, insurance or self-insurance administrator license in this state pursuant to [insert applicable TPA law cross reference] or any other provision, including, but not limited to, licenses by the [Workers Compensation Commissions, the Department of Labor or other applicable cross reference] provided that he, she or it does not Guideline as an independent adjuster with respect to life, health or annuity insurance, other than disability insurance.

Drafting Note: This Guideline is drafted to eliminate redundant licensure requirements with respect to the activities engaged in by the licensee. If licensed as an independent adjuster, third party administrator or similar business entity additional licenses should not be required provided that the type of claims adjusted do not include life, health, or annuity insurance claims, other than disability claims.

C. An independent adjuster license shall remain in effect unless probated, suspended, revoked or refused as long as the request for renewal and fee set forth in [insert appropriate reference to state law or regulation] is paid and all other requirements for license renewal are met by the due date, otherwise the license expires.

D. An independent adjuster whose license expires may, within twelve (12) months of the renewal date, be reissued an independent adjuster license upon receipt of the renewal request, as prescribed by the insurance commissioner. However, a penalty in the amount of double the unpaid renewal fee shall be required to reissue the expired license.

E. An independent adjuster who is unable to comply with license renewal procedures and requirements due to military service, long-term medical disability or some other extenuating circumstance may request a waiver of same and a waiver of any examination requirement, fine or other sanction imposed for failure to comply with renewal procedures.

Drafting Note: Some states may not contain expiration date or reissue a license that has been discontinued for nonrenewal.

F. An independent adjuster shall be subject to [cite state's Unfair Claims Settlement Act and state's Trade Practices and Fraud sections of the Insurance Code].

G. The independent adjuster shall inform the insurance commissioner by any means acceptable of any change in resident or business address(es) for the home state or in legal name, within thirty (30) days of the change.

H. The license shall contain the licensee's name, address, personal identification number, the date of issuance and expiration and any other information the insurance commissioner deems necessary.

I. In order to assist in the performance of the insurance commissioner's duties, the insurance commissioner may contract with non-governmental entities, including the NAIC, its affiliates or subsidiaries, to perform any ministerial functions, including the collection of fees and data, related to licensing that the insurance commissioner may deem appropriate.

Section 8. Examination

A. An individual applying for an independent adjuster license under this Guideline shall pass a written examination unless exempt pursuant to Section 9. The examination shall test the knowledge of the individual concerning, the lines of authority for which application is made, the duties and responsibilities of an independent adjuster and the insurance laws and regulations of this state. Examinations required by this Section shall be developed and conducted under rules and regulations prescribed by the insurance commissioner.

B. The insurance commissioner may make arrangements, including contracting with an outside testing service, for administering examinations and collecting the nonrefundable fee set forth in [insert appropriate reference to state law or regulation].

C. Each individual applying for an examination shall remit a non-refundable fee as prescribed by the insurance commissioner as set forth in [insert appropriate reference to state law or regulation].

D. An individual who fails to appear for the examination as scheduled or fails to pass the examination shall reapply for an examination and remit all required fees and forms before being rescheduled for another examination.

Drafting Note: A state may wish to prescribe by regulation limitations on the frequency of application for examination in addition to other prelicensing requirements.

Drafting Note: If the state has adopted the Producer Licensing Model Act, it may not be necessary to adopt this section. Rather, the state may want to amend its relevant insurance producer statute to include independent adjusters.

Section 9. Exemptions from Examination

A. An individual who applies for an independent adjuster license in this state who is or was licensed in another state for the same line(s) of authority based on an independent adjuster examination shall not be required to complete any prelicensing education or examination. This exemption is only available if the person is currently licensed in another state or if that state license has expired and the application is received by this state within ninety (90) days of expiration. The applicant must provide certification from the other state that the applicant's license is currently in good standing or was in good standing at the time of expiration or certification from the other state that its Producer Database records, maintained by the NAIC, its affiliates or subsidiaries, indicate that the applicant or their company is or was licensed in good standing. The certification must be of a license with the same line of authority for which the individual has applied;

B. A person licensed as an independent adjuster in another state based on an independent adjuster examination who establishes legal residency in this state shall make application within ninety (90) days to become a resident independent adjuster licensee pursuant to Section 6, with the exception that no prelicensing education or examination shall be required of this person;

C. An individual who applies for an apprentice independent adjuster license, pursuant to Section 11, and who adjust claims in that capacity, shall not be required to take and successfully complete the independent adjuster examination.

Drafting Note: If the state does not adopt Section 11, Apprentice Independent Adjuster License, then 9C should be removed as an exemption from examination.

Drafting Note: If the state has adopted the Producer Licensing Model Act, it may not be necessary to adopt this Section. Rather, the state may want to amend its relevant insurance producer statute to include independent adjusters.

Section 10. Nonresident License

A. Unless refused licensure pursuant to Section 12, a nonresident person shall receive a nonresident independent adjuster license if:

(1) The person is currently licensed in good standing as an independent adjuster in his, her, or its resident or home state;

(2) The person has submitted the proper request for licensure, has paid the fees required by [insert appropriate reference to state law or regulation];

(3) The person has submitted or transmitted to the insurance commissioner the appropriate completed application for licensure; and

(4) The person's designated home state awards nonresident independent adjuster licenses to persons of this state on the same basis.

B. The insurance commissioner may verify the independent adjuster's licensing status through any appropriate database, including the Producer Database maintained by the NAIC, its affiliates or subsidiaries, or may request certification of good standing as described in Section 9A of this Guideline.

C. As a condition to the continuation of a nonresident independent adjuster license, the licensee shall maintain a resident independent adjuster license in his, her or its home state. The nonresident independent adjuster license issued under this Section shall terminate and be surrendered immediately to the insurance commissioner if the resident independent adjuster license terminates for any reason, unless the termination is due to the independent adjuster being issued a new resident independent adjuster license in his, her or its new home state. The new state resident independent adjuster license must have reciprocity with the licensing nonresident state(s) otherwise the nonresident independent adjuster license(s) will terminate. Notice of resident independent adjuster license termination must be given to any state(s) that issued a nonresident independent adjuster license. Notice must be given within thirty (30) days of the termination date; if terminated for change in resident home state then the notice must include both the previous and current address. Maintaining a resident independent adjuster license is required for the nonresident independent adjuster license(s) to remain valid.

Drafting Note: If the state has adopted the Producer Licensing Model Act, it may not be necessary to adopt this Section. Rather, the state may want to amend its relevant insurance producer statute to include independent adjusters.

Drafting Note: In accordance with Public Law No. 106-102 (the "Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act") states should not require any additional attachments to the Uniform Application or impose any other conditions on applicants that exceed the information requested within the Uniform Application.

Section 11. Apprentice Independent Adjuster License [Optional]

A. The apprentice independent adjuster license is an optional license to facilitate the experience, education and/or training necessary to ensure reasonable competency of the responsibilities and duties of an independent adjuster as defined in this Guideline.

B. An individual applying for a resident apprentice independent adjuster license shall make application to the insurance commissioner on the appropriate NAIC Uniform Individual Application in a format prescribed by the insurance commissioner and declare under penalty of suspension, revocation or refusal of the license that the statements made in the application are true, correct and complete to the best of the individual's knowledge and belief. Before approving the application, the insurance commissioner shall find that the individual:

(1) Is at least eighteen (18) years of age;

(2) Is a resident of this state and has designated this state as his or her home state;

(3) Has a business or mailing address in this state for acceptance of service of process;

(4) Has not committed any act that is a ground for probation, suspension, revocation or denial of licensure as set forth in Section 12;

(5) Is trustworthy, reliable and of good reputation, evidence of which may be determined by the insurance commissioner;

(6) Has paid the fees set forth in [insert appropriate reference to state law or regulation].

C. The apprentice independent adjuster license shall be subject to the following terms and conditions:

(1) Accompanying the apprentice adjuster application shall be an attestation, from a licensed independent adjuster with the same line(s) of authority for which the apprentice has applied, certifying that the apprentice will be subject to training, direction and control by the licensed independent adjuster and further certifying that the licensed independent adjuster assumes responsibility for the actions of the apprentice in the apprentice's capacity as an independent adjuster;

(2) The apprentice independent adjuster is only authorized to adjust claims in the state that has issued the apprentice independent adjuster license;

(3) The apprentice licensee is restricted to participation in the investigation, settlement and negotiation of claims subject to the review and final determination of the claim by the supervising licensed independent adjuster;

(4) Compensation of an apprentice independent adjuster shall be on a salaried or hourly basis only;

(5) The apprentice independent adjuster shall not be required to take and successfully complete the independent adjuster examination pursuant to Section 8, to adjust claims as an apprentice independent adjuster. However, at any time during the apprenticeship the apprentice independent adjuster may choose to take the examination required by Section 8. If the individual takes and successfully completes the independent adjuster exam the apprentice independent adjuster license shall automatically terminate and an independent adjuster license shall be issued to that individual in place thereof;

(6) The apprentice independent adjuster license is for a period not to exceed twelve (12) months and is nonrenewable; and

(7) The licensee shall be subject to probation, suspension, revocation, or refusal pursuant to Section 12 of this Guideline.

D. The licensed independent adjuster responsible for the apprentice independent adjuster, as stated in Section 11(C)(1), shall only supervise [insert appropriate reference to state law or regulation].

Section 12. License Denial, Non-Renewal, or Revocation

A. The insurance commissioner may place on probation, suspend, revoke, or refuse to issue or renew an independent adjuster's license or may levy a civil penalty in accordance with [insert appropriate reference to state law] or any combination of the above actions for any one or more of the following causes:

(1) Providing incorrect, misleading, incomplete or materially untrue information in the license application;

(2) Violating any insurance laws, regulations, subpoena or order of the insurance commissioner or of another state's insurance commissioner;

(3) Obtaining or attempting to obtain a license through misrepresentation or fraud;

(4) Improperly withholding, misappropriating, or converting any monies or properties received in the course of doing insurance business;

(5) Intentionally misrepresenting the terms of an actual or proposed insurance contract or application for insurance;

(6) Having been convicted of a felony;

(7) Having admitted or been found to have committed any insurance unfair trade practice or fraud;

(8) Using fraudulent, coercive or dishonest practices, or demonstrating incompetence, untrustworthiness or financial irresponsibility, in the conduct of insurance business in this state or elsewhere;

(9) Having an insurance license, or its equivalent, probated, suspended, revoked or refused in any other state, province, district, or territory;

(10) Forging another's name to any document related to an insurance transaction;

(11) Cheating, including improperly using notes or any other reference material, to complete an examination for an insurance license;

(12) Failing to comply with an administrative or court order imposing a child support obligation; or

(13) Failing to pay state income tax or comply with any administrative or court order directing payment of state income tax which remains unpaid.

Drafting Note: Paragraph (13) is for those states that have a state income tax.

B. In the event that the action by the insurance commissioner is to refuse application for licensure or renewal of an existing license, the insurance commissioner shall notify the applicant or licensee in writing, advising of the reason for the refusal. The applicant or licensee may make written demand upon the insurance commissioner within [insert appropriate time period from state's Administrative Procedure Act] for a hearing before the insurance commissioner to determine the reasonableness of the refusal. The hearing shall be held within [insert time period from state law] and shall be held pursuant to [insert appropriate reference to state law].

C. The license of a business entity may be probated, suspended, revoked, or refused if the insurance commissioner finds, after a hearing, that its designated individual licensee's violation occurred while acting on behalf of or representing the business entity and that the violation was known or should have been known by one or more of the business entity's partners, officers or managers and that the violation was neither reported to the insurance commissioner nor was corrective action taken.

D. In addition to or in lieu of any applicable probation, suspension, revocation or refusal, a person may, after a hearing, additionally be subject to a civil fine according to [insert appropriate reference to state law].

E. The insurance commissioner shall retain the authority to enforce the provisions of and impose any penalty or remedy authorized by this Guideline and Title [insert appropriate reference to state law] against any person who is under investigation for or charged with a violation of this Guideline or Title [insert appropriate reference to state law] even if the person's license or registration has been surrendered or has expired by operation of law.

Section 13. Continuing Education

A. An individual, who holds an independent adjuster license and who is not exempt under Subsection B of this Section, shall satisfactorily complete a minimum of twenty-four (24) hours of continuing education courses, of which three (3) hours must be in ethics, reported to the insurance commissioner on a biennial basis in conjunction with their license renewal cycle.

B. This Section shall not apply to:

(1) Licensees not licensed for one (1) full year prior to the end of the applicable continuing education biennium; or

(2) Licensees holding nonresident independent adjuster licenses who have met the continuing education requirements of their designated home state.

Section 14. Record Retention

An independent adjuster shall maintain a copy of each contract between the independent adjuster and the insurer or self-insurer and comply with the record retention policy as agreed to in that contract.

Section 15. Standards of Conduct of Independent Adjusters [Optional]

A. An independent adjuster shall be honest and fair in all communications with the insured, the insurer and the public;

B. An independent adjuster shall give policyholders and claimants prompt, knowledgeable service and courteous, fair and objective treatment at all times;

C. An independent adjuster shall not give legal advice, and shall not deal directly with any policyholder or claimant who is represented by legal counsel without the consent of the legal counsel involved;

D. An independent adjuster shall comply with all local, state and federal privacy and information security laws, if applicable;

E. An independent adjuster shall identify himself as an independent adjuster and, if applicable, identify his employer when dealing with any policyholder or claimant; and

F. An independent adjuster shall not have any financial interest in any adjustment or acquire for himself or any person any interest or title in salvage, without first receiving written authority from the principal.

Section 16. Reporting of Actions

A. The independent adjuster shall report to the insurance commissioner any administrative action taken against the independent adjuster in another jurisdiction or by another governmental agency in this state within thirty (30) days of the final disposition of the matter. This report shall include a copy of the order, consent order and any other relevant legal documents.

B. The independent adjuster shall report to the insurance commissioner any criminal action taken against the independent adjuster in this or any jurisdiction within thirty (30) days of the final disposition of the criminal matter. The report shall include a copy of the initial complaint filed, the final order issued by the court, and any other relevant legal documents.

Drafting Note: If the state has adopted the Producer Licensing Model Act, it may not be necessary to adopt this Section. Rather, the state may want to amend its relevant insurance producer statute to include independent adjusters.

Section 17. Regulations

The insurance commissioner may, in accordance with [insert appropriate reference to state law], promulgate reasonable regulations as are necessary or proper to carry out the purposes of this Guideline.

Section 18. Severability

If any provisions of this Guideline, or the application of a provision to any person or circumstances, shall be held invalid, the remainder of the Guideline, and the application of the provision to persons or circumstances other than those to which it is held invalid, shall not be affected.

Section 19. Effective Date

This Guideline shall take effect [insert date].

Note: A minimum of six months to one year implementation time for proper notice of changes, fees and procures is recommended.

PROJECT HISTORY – 2008

INDEPENDENT ADJUSTER LICENSING GUIDELINE (#1224)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

The Independent Adjuster Licensing Guideline provides uniform resident licensing standards among the states, while allowing a properly licensed independent adjuster, through reciprocity, to become licensed in many states as dictated by insurer needs. The purpose of the Guideline is to govern the qualifications and procedures for licensing independent adjusters and to specify the duties of and restrictions on the independent adjuster. Without uniform regulation of independent adjusters among the states the insured consumer may not be sufficiently served and protected.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Producer Licensing Working Group of the Market Regulation and Consumer Affairs (D) Committee was responsible for drafting the Guideline. Laurie Wolf (ND) was chair of the working group until 2008. Anne Marie Narcini (NJ) became chair of the working group in 2009. Treva Wright-Donnell (KY) acted as vice-chair of the working group during the development of the guideline. The following states were members of the working group: Alaska, Alabama, Arizona Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, District of Columbia, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Puerto Rico, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

To help facilitate the drafting process, the Producer Licensing Working Group appointed the Independent Adjuster Licensing Guideline Subgroup. Treva Wright-Donnell (KY) chaired this subgroup, Gene Reed (DE) acted as vice-chair. The subgroup was comprised of the following states: Alaska, California, Florida, Louisiana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, and Oklahoma.

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The charge for the Producer Licensing (D) Working Group reads as follows: "Appoint a Producer Licensing Working Group to develop and implement uniform standards, interpretations and treatment of producer and adjuster licensees and licensing terminology; coordinate and consult with the National Insurance Producer Registry Board of Directors to develop and implement uniform producer licensing initiatives, with a primary emphasis on encouraging the use of electronic technology; and monitor and respond to developments related to licensing reciprocity".

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated

The drafting process was open to comments and participation by all interested parties. Representatives from the insurance producer industry participated fully in the process and discussion sessions. All revised drafts of the guideline were circulated for public comment. Comments were received on each draft of the guideline and considered by the subgroup in open conference calls and meetings. The subgroup received and reviewed numerous comments from interested parties. The process resulted in a total of 16 revised drafts.

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

Copies of every draft were posted on the NAIC website or distributed by e-mail along with the solicitation for public comment. The Producer Licensing (D) Working Group adopted this model on April 21, 2008.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response)

State regulators and industry representatives expressed concerns about the definition of Independent Adjuster. In response, several comments were received from states and industry to determine the best language. The final result ended as a three-part definition to cover all areas of concern.

Each draft from the initial to the final have included discussions regarding the definition of a "home state" included in Sections 2 - Definitions, Section 3 - License Required, and Section 5 - Temporary Licensure or Registration for Emergency Independent Adjusters. The discussion originated due to states that do not require an adjuster license and the inability for an applicant to designate a home state if no license is offered. A survey was conducted to determine what states license adjusters. Based on the survey responses and language provided from industry and state departments the definition of home state was modified to allow an adjuster to designate a home state.

7. Any Other Important Information (e.g., designated home state)

The American Association of Independent Claims Professionals (AAICP) brought up an issue concerning section 6 of the guideline after the guideline was adopted. According to the AAICP, the language would require an adjuster would be required to have a business or mailing address in the nonresident "designated home state." Based upon these concerns, the working group removed Section 6A(3) and Section 6B(2) and added the following drafting note: "Employee of the authorized affiliate insurer may be considered under this exemption with the commissioners consent".

NOTICE OF PROTECTION
PROVIDED BY [STATE] LIFE AND HEALTH INSURANCE GUARANTY ASSOCIATION

This notice provides a brief summary of the [STATE] Life and Health Insurance Guaranty Association (Association) and the protection it provides for policyholders. This safety net was created under [STATE] law, which determines who and what is covered and the amounts of coverage.

The Association was established to provide protection in the unlikely event that your life, annuity or health insurance company becomes financially unable to meet its obligations and is taken over by its insurance department. If this should happen, the Association will typically arrange to continue coverage and pay claims, in accordance with [STATE] law, with funding from assessments paid by other insurance companies. (For purposes of this notice, the terms "insurance company" and "insurer" include health maintenance organizations (HMOs).)

The basic protections provided by the Association are:

- Life Insurance
  - [$___,000] in death benefits
  - [$___,000] in cash surrender and withdrawal values
- Health Insurance
  - [$___,000] for health benefit plans (see definition below)
  - [$___,000] in disability [income] insurance benefits
  - [$___,000] in long-term care insurance benefits
  - [$___,000] in other types of health insurance benefits
- Annuities
  - [$___,000] in the present value of annuity benefits, including net cash surrender and net cash withdrawal values

The maximum amount of protection for each individual, regardless of the number of policies or contracts, is [$___,000]. Special rules may apply with regard to health benefit plans.

"Health benefit plan" is defined in [insert citation to applicable guaranty association statute] and generally includes hospital or medical expense policies, contracts or certificates, or HMO subscriber contracts that provide comprehensive forms of coverage for hospitalization or medical services, but excludes policies that provide coverages for limited benefits (such as dental-only or vision-only insurance), Medicare Supplement insurance, disability income insurance and long-term care insurance (LTCI).

Note: Certain policies and contracts may not be covered or fully covered. For example, coverage does not extend to any portion(s) of a policy or contract that the insurer does not guarantee, such as certain investment additions to the account value of a variable life insurance policy or a variable annuity contract. There are also various residency requirements and other limitations under [STATE] law.

Benefits provided by a long-term care (LTC) rider to a life insurance policy or annuity contract shall be considered the same type of benefits as the base life insurance policy or annuity contract to which it relates.

To learn more about the above protections, [as well as protections relating to group contracts or retirement plans,] please visit the Association's website at [www._____], or contact:

Insurance companies and agents are not allowed by [STATE] law to use the existence of the Association or its coverage to encourage you to purchase any form of insurance or HMO coverage. When selecting an insurance company, you should not rely on Association coverage. If there is any inconsistency between this notice and [STATE] law, then [STATE] law will control.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2018

NOTICE OF PROTECTION PROVIDED BY [STATE] LIFE AND HEALTH INSURANCE GUARANTY ASSOCIATION GUIDELINE #1525)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

The Executive (EX) Committee and Plenary adopted amendments to the Life and Health Insurance Guaranty Association Model Act (#520) on Dec. 21, 2017, that address assessments for long-term care insurance (LTCI) insolvencies, the addition of health maintenance organizations (HMOs) as members of the guaranty association, and certain guaranty association coverages and limitations.

On Aug. 5, 2018, the Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force received a request from the American Council of Life Insurers (ACLI) for proposed revisions to the Notice of Protection Provided by [State] Life and Health Insurance Guaranty Association (#1525) to incorporate changes that conform to the adopted revisions to Model #520. The revisions to Guideline #1525 include references to HMOs, health benefit plans and LTCI riders.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Guideline and States Participating

The Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force is responsible for Guideline #1525. The 2018 members of the Task Force are: New Jersey (Chair); District of Columbia (Co-Vice Chair), Texas (Co-Vice Chair), Alaska, American Samoa, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Hawaii, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Utah, Virginia, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

The amendments to Guideline #1525 were drafted jointly by the ACLI, the National Organization of Life and Health Guaranty Associations (NOLHGA) and certain health insurers.

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force is charged with addressing any issues that affect receivership laws, including amendments to models and guidelines. The request to amend Guideline #1525 was first considered by the Task Force on Aug. 5, 2018.

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process and Due Process

The Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force discussed the proposal on Aug. 5, 2018, at the NAIC Summer National Meeting. The Task Force exposed the proposed amendments for a 30-day public comment period ending Sept. 5, 2018. No comments were received. The Task Force adopted the amendments on Oct. 1, 2018.

The Financial Condition (E) Committee adopted the amendments on October 31, 2018.

5. A Discussion of the Significant Issues

None.

6. Any Other Important Information

None.

GUIDELINE FOR STAY ON TERMINATION OF NETTING AGREEMENTS AND QUALIFIED FINANCIAL CONTRACTS

Drafting Note: State receivership and insolvency laws may permit a contractual right to cause the termination, liquidation, acceleration or close-out obligations with respect to any netting agreement or qualified financial contract (QFC) with an insurer because of the insolvency, financial condition or default of the insurer, or the commencement of a formal delinquency proceeding. These laws are based upon similar provisions contained in the federal bankruptcy code and the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (FDIA). The FDIA also provides for a twenty-four-hour stay to allow for the transfer of QFCs by the receiver to another entity rather than permitting the immediate termination and netting of the QFC. 12 U.S.C. § 1821(e)(9)-(12). States that permit the termination and netting of QFCs may want to consider adopting a similar stay provision following the appointment of a receiver.

States that consider the enactment of a stay should take into account the relevant federal rules. In 2017 the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System (the Federal Reserve), the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (the FDIC) and the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (the OCC) each adopted final rules and accompanying interpretive guidance (Final Rules) setting forth limitations to be placed on parties to certain financial contracts exercising insolvency-related default rights against their counterparties that have been designated as a global systemically important banking organization (GSIB).[1] The Final Rules include the definition of master netting agreement that allows netting even though termination of the transaction in the event of an insolvency may be subject to a "stay" under several defined resolution regimes including Title II of Dodd Frank, the FDIA, as well as comparable foreign resolution regimes. Notwithstanding NAIC's request for inclusion, stays under the state insurance receivership regime (State Receivership Stays) were not included as an exemption within the definition. Therefore, unless the Final Rules are amended to recognize State Receivership Stays, if a state implements a stay as contemplated by the Guideline, insurers would find themselves disadvantaged, potentially resulting in additional costs and/or collateral requirements given the regulatory treatment for contracts that do not meet requirements for QFCs. Therefore, if a state is considering implementation of this Guideline, consideration should be given to whether the rules of the Federal Reserve, FDIC and OCC have been amended to recognize State Receivership Stays. For example, a state could adopt a stay that would be effective if and when the Final Rules recognize State Receivership Stays.

The following statutory language is not an amendment to the NAIC receivership models, but is intended as a Guideline for use by those states seeking to require a stay with respect to the termination of a netting agreement or QFC of an insurer in insolvency:

Stay on Termination of Netting Agreements and Qualified Financial Contracts

A person who is a party to a netting agreement or qualified financial contract under [cite to applicable state law addressing qualified financial agreements] with an insurer that is the subject of an insolvency proceeding may not exercise any right that the person has to terminate, liquidate, accelerate or close-out the obligations with respect to the contract by reason of the insolvency, financial condition or default of the insurer, or by the commencement of a formal delinquency proceeding,

(1) Until 5:00 p.m. (eastern time) on the business day following the date of appointment of a receiver; or

(2) After the person has received notice that the contract has been transferred pursuant to [cite applicable state law addressing transfer of qualified financial contracts].

PROJECT HISTORY - 2019

GUIDELINE FOR STAY ON TERMINATION OF NETTING AGREEMENTS AND QUALIFIED FINANCIAL CONTRACTS (#1556)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

In 2017 the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System (the Federal Reserve), the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (the FDIC) and the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (the OCC) each adopted final rules and accompanying interpretive guidance (Final Rules) setting forth limitations to be placed on parties to certain financial contracts exercising insolvency-related default rights against their counterparties that have been designated as a global systemically important banking organization (GSIB).[1] The Final Rules include the definition of master netting agreement that allows netting even though termination of the transaction in the event of an insolvency may be subject to a "stay" under several defined resolution regimes including Title II of Dodd Frank, the FDIA, as well as comparable foreign resolution regimes.

Notwithstanding NAIC's request for inclusion through a formal comment letter and subsequent discussions, stays under the state insurance receivership regime (State Receivership Stays) were not included as an exemption within the definition. Therefore, unless the Final Rules are amended to recognize State Receivership Stays, if a state implements a stay as contemplated by the Guideline for Stay on Termination of Netting Agreements and Qualified Financial Contracts (Guideline #1556), insurers would find themselves disadvantaged, potentially resulting in additional costs and/or collateral requirements given the regulatory treatment for contracts that do not meet requirements for qualified financial contracts (QFCs).

On Dec. 2, 2017, the Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force received a referral from the Financial Stability (EX) Task Force that included three tasks, one of which was to "evaluate whether there are any current misalignments between federal and state laws that could be an obstacle to achieving effective and orderly recovery and resolutions for U.S. insurance groups (e.g., federal rule recognizing importance of temporary stays on the termination of master netting agreements for QFCs that does not recognize the utility and import of state-based stays in state receivership proceedings).

The RITF assigned the task of evaluating these issues to a drafting group, who evaluated the impact of the federal rule recognizing temporary stays on terminating master netting agreements for QFCs. The regulators held discussions with federal banking authorities regarding the handling of QFCs in banking resolutions to assess the utility of a stay on terminations in insurance receiverships.

To address the conflict with the federal rule, the drafting group proposed amendments to the drafting note of Guideline #1556 explaining the above issue. Therefore, if a state is considering implementation of Guideline #1556, consideration should be given to whether the rules of the Federal Reserve, FDIC and OCC have been amended to recognize State Receivership Stays. For example, a state could adopt a stay that would be effective if and when the Final Rules recognize State Receivership Stays.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Guideline and States Participating

The Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force is responsible for Guideline #1556. The 2019 members of the Task Force are: Texas (Chair); District of Columbia (Co-Vice Chair), Alaska, American Samoa, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Jersey, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Utah, Virginia, and Washington.

The amendments to Guideline #1556 were drafted by the Task Force's drafting group. The drafting group was comprised of Texas (Lead), Colorado, Connecticut, District of Columbia, Illinois, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, New Mexico, Pennsylvania. Washington, and Wisconsin.

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force is charged with addressing any issues that affect receivership laws, including amendments to models and guidelines. The request to address misalignments with federal rules was first considered by the Task Force on March 25, 2018, at the NAIC 2018 Spring National Meeting, when a work plan to address the Financial Stability (EX) Task Force's referral and formation of drafting groups were discussed.

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process and Due Process

The drafting group of the Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force discussed the proposed amendments on a conference call on March 14, 2019, which included twenty interested parties.

The Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force discussed the proposed amendments in open session on April 7, 2019, at the NAIC Spring National Meeting. The Task Force exposed the proposed amendments for a 30-day public comment period ending May 7, 2019. One comment was received supporting the need for Federal rule changes. No changes were made to the Guideline #1556.

The Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force adopted the amendments on Aug. 4, 2019, at the NAIC Summer National Meeting.

The Financial Condition (E) Committee adopted the amendments on October 31, 2019.

The NAIC Executive (EX) Committee and Plenary adopted the amendments on [DATE TBD].

PROJECT HISTORY - 2013

GUIDELINE FOR STAY ON TERMINATION OF NETTING AGREEMENTS AND QUALIFIED FINANCIAL CONTRACTS (#1556)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

In 2011, the Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force (Task Force) recognized that the current economic environment had changed since the Insurer Receivership Model Act (#555) (commonly referred to as IRMA) Section 711 was revised in 2005. The Task Force began a research project to assess IRMA Section 711 with respect to the impact on receiverships of any netting agreement or qualified financial contract (QFC). The urgency of such research increased with the requirement under the federal Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act (Dodd-Frank Act) to shift standardized derivatives contracts to centralized clearinghouses. The implications of IRMA Section 711 are to: (1) allow immediate netting of offsetting positions between counterparties; and (2) immediate access to collateral pledged against the netted position. The IRMA Section 711 (E) Subgroup was formed in 2011 by the Task Force and charged to:

- Provide Task Force members with a better understanding of the purpose, operational mechanics and implications of Insurer Receivership Model Act (#555) (commonly referred to as IRMA) Section 711.
- Assist Task Force members in understanding any policy issues associated with IRMA Section 711 or with the absence of IRMA Section 711.
- Provide receivership-focused input on regulatory issues associated with qualified financial contracts.

In 2012, the Subgroup conducted its research of IRMA Section 711, which included surveys to regulators and interested parties on research topics and presentations from industry experts on: (1) the use, regulation and reporting of QFCs, such as derivatives; (2) technical interpretation of the language in IRMA Section 711; and (3) non-insurance insolvencies (i.e., banking) under Section 711-like provisions.

During the Subgroup's research, it determined that state receivership and insolvency laws may permit a contractual right to cause the termination, liquidation, acceleration or closeout of obligations with respect to any netting agreement or QFC with an insurer because of the insolvency, financial condition or default of the insurer, or the commencement of a formal delinquency proceeding. These laws are based upon similar provisions contained in the federal bankruptcy code and the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (FDIA). The Subgroup noted that the FDIA also provides for a 24-hour stay to allow for the transfer of QFCs by the receiver to another entity, rather than permitting the immediate termination and netting of the QFC [12 U.S.C. § 1821(e)(9)–(12)]. Currently, state laws do not include a similar 24-hour stay provision.

Included in the recommendations from the Subgroup's research was that the states that permit the termination and netting of QFCs might want to consider adopting a stay provision similar to the FDIA with respect to the termination of a netting agreement or QFC of an insurer in insolvency. The stay provision would give the receiver 24 hours to transfer a contract before termination.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force was charged by the Financial Condition (E) Committee with drafting a new model guideline. The Task Force delegated the drafting of the guideline to the IRMA Section 711 (E) Subgroup. The 2012 members of the IRMA Section 711 (E) Subgroup that drafted the model guideline were: Illinois (Chair), California, Delaware, Florida, Ohio and Texas. The Subgroup was renamed in November 2012 to the Federal Home Loan Bank Legislation (E) Subgroup. Indiana and Missouri joined the Subgroup in 2013. The eight-member Subgroup adopted the model guideline Feb. 8, 2013.

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

On a May 7, 2012, conference call vote, the Financial Condition (E) Committee unanimously agreed to request that the Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force develop a model guideline for the purpose of recommending to NAIC-member jurisdictions that the 24-hour stay provision be included when the state implements IRMA Section 711. On a May 14, 2012, e-vote, the Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force delegated the drafting of the model guideline to the IRMA Section 711 (E) Subgroup.

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process and Due Process

- The stay provision was discussed on open conference calls of the Subgroup held Jan. 26, 2012, and Feb. 27, 2012.
- The Subgroup made recommendations as a result of its research, including a recommendation to draft the model guideline. The recommendations were exposed for public comment from Feb. 14, 2012, until Feb. 23, 2012. One comment letter was received from the industry indicating support for the Subgroup's recommendations.
- The stay provision was discussed on an open conference call of Financial Condition (E) Committee held May 7, 2012, during which the Committee approved the recommendation to draft a model guideline.
- An open conference call of the Subgroup was held Dec. 10, 2012, to discuss the draft.
- The draft model guideline was released for public comment from Dec. 10, 2012, until Jan. 24, 2013. No comments were received.
- An open conference call of the Subgroup was held Feb. 8, 2013, where the Subgroup adopted the model guideline.
- The Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force and the Financial Condition (E) Committee adopted the model guideline at the Spring National Meeting during meetings held April 7, 2013, and April 8, 2013, respectively.

5. A Discussion of the Significant Issues

The following topics of the model guideline were discussed with regulators and interested parties:

Uniformity with Federal Law

The Subgroup noted that the FDIA provides for a 24-hour stay to allow for the transfer of QFCs by the receiver to another entity rather than permitting the immediate termination and netting of the QFC [12 U.S.C. § 1821(e)(9)–(12)].

GUIDELINE FOR PAYMENT OF INTEREST TO RECEIVER ON OVERDUE REINSURANCE RECOVERABLES

Drafting Note: The Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force examined concerns for the timing and collection of reinsurance recoverables held by insurers in receivership. In 2009, a survey was conducted with receivers regarding the status of reinsurance recoverables held by insurers in receivership. The Receivership Reinsurance Recoverables (E) Working Group was given the charge to review the survey responses and recommend possible solutions that potentially address those concerns. On March 27, 2011, the Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force adopted the memorandum - Draft of Solutions Identified to Address Concerns for the Timing and Collection of Reinsurance Recoverables Held by Insurers in Receivership. The memorandum suggested a solution with respect to Interest on Overdue Payments, which is intended to bring leverage against reinsurers by requiring them to pay interest applicable to delayed payments. The Guideline is intended for use by receivers in instances where a reinsurer unjustifiably denies payment after such time as a claim under its reinsurance agreements has been shown to be properly due and owed. The following statutory language is not an amendment to the NAIC receivership models and is not intended to affect other rights and responsibilities under receivership law, but is intended as a Guideline for use by those states seeking to permit a receiver to collect the payment of interest on overdue reinsurance recoverables:

Payment of Interest on Overdue Reinsurance Recoverables

If a reinsurer does not pay the amount billed by the receiver for a valid claim within 90 days after the billing date, interest on the billed amount will begin to accrue at the statutory legal rate provided in Subsection [fill in state reference], except that all or a portion of the interest may be waived as part of an arbitration proceeding or by the receivership court.

(1) For purposes of this section, the term "valid claim" shall mean a claim that has been allowed by the liquidator, rehabilitator, receiver or conservator.

(2) If requested by the reinsurer, a hearing shall be held to determine whether a claim is a valid claim. If a court determines that the claim is a valid claim, then the reinsurer shall be liable for interest, court costs and costs of recovery for the receiver from the date that the request for payment was first made by the receiver.

(3) Interest will be payable by the reinsurer to the receiver under this section regardless of whether the reinsurance contract expressly permits payment of interest.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2014

MODEL GUIDELINE FOR PAYMENT OF INTEREST TO RECEIVER ON OVERDUE REINSURANCE RECOVERABLES (#1600)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

During 2010 and 2011, the Receivership Reinsurance Recoverables (E) Working Group, at the direction of the Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force, reviewed and drafted possible solutions to address concerns for the timing and collection of reinsurance recoverables held by insurers in receivership.

The Working Group reviewed suggestions and decided on possible solutions. One of the solutions the Working Group recommended is to require interest on overdue reinsurance payments. This solution is intended to bring leverage against reinsurers by requiring them to pay interest applicable to delayed payments with uniform language across states.

On March 27, 2011, the Working Group issued a memorandum to the Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force, and on June 8, 2011, the Task Force sent a referral to the Reinsurance (E) Task Force recommending it consider the uniform reinsurance contract language in the Credit for Reinsurance Model Law (#785) to address interest on overdue payments in receivership.

On Sept. 19, 2011, the Financial Condition (E) Committee received a separate referral from the Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force requesting assistance with the recommended solution from the adopted March 27 memorandum regarding the enforcement of the collection of undisputed balances. The Committee requested that the Reinsurance (E) Task Force study issues regarding regulatory support for the collection of undisputed reinsurance recoverable balances held by ceding insurance companies in receivership and consider any appropriate NAIC action.

On Feb. 27, 2012, the Reinsurance (E) Task Force issued a report to the Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force stating it received and discussed requests from Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force during an interim meeting on July 11, 2011, during the process of considering revisions to the Credit for Reinsurance Model Law (#785) and Credit for Reinsurance Model Regulation (#786). With regard to the proposed reinsurance contract language to address interest on overdue payments, following discussion with regulators and interested parties, the Reinsurance (E) Task Force determined that a mandatory contract clause within the Model #785 or Model #786 would not be the appropriate mechanism to address this item. The members generally agreed with the intent of the proposed solution; however, the general consensus was that this item might be more appropriately addressed within a state's laws regarding insolvency or general civil procedure. In addition, discussion suggested that further consideration might be necessary with respect to certain aspects of this proposed solution, e.g., definition of the term "valid claim." As such, the Reinsurance (E) Task Force did not implement this clause within Model #785 or Model #786.

On March 4, 2012, the Reinsurance (E) Task Force reconstituted the Receivership Reinsurance Recoverables (E) Working Group with the charge to study and provide a recommendation for the issue of requiring interest on overdue reinsurance payments in receivership.

On Sept. 18, 2012, the Working Group held a conference call, at the conclusion of which it considered drafting a Guideline.

During 2013, NAIC staff conducted surveys of states to gather more information about existing state laws as they pertain to reinsurance payments in receivership. NAIC staff reviewed state survey results; the Insurer Receivership Model Act (#555), with a focus on section 504-Powers of the Liquidator, and 611-Reinsurer's Liability; and the language of the Model Acts preceding Model #555—Insurers Rehabilitation and Liquidation Model Act and the Insurers Supervision, Rehabilitation and Liquidation Model Act. Based on this review, a proposed Guideline was drafted for discussion.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Working Group was responsible for drafting the Guideline. The 2013-2014 members of the Working Group that drafted the Guideline were: Delaware (Chair), Illinois, Indiana, Pennsylvania, and Texas. The five-member Working Group adopted the Guideline Aug. 16, 2014.

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The Working Group, at the direction of the Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force, was reconstituted March 4, 2012, and charged to study and provide a recommendation for the issue of requiring interest on overdue reinsurance payments in receivership.

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process and Due Process

- The Guideline was discussed at open meetings of the Working Group held Dec. 15, 2013; Mar. 29, 2014; and Aug. 16, 2014.
- The Guideline was exposed for public comment from Dec. 15, 2013– Feb. 14, 2014. The exposure was distributed to members, interested regulators and interested parties of both the Working Group and the Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force and posted to the NAIC website. Comment letters were received from California, New Jersey, the Reinsurance Association of America (RAA) and Stillman Consulting Services (SCS). The letters were discussed on Mar. 29, 2014, and the RAA was asked to draft additional revisions to the Guideline's drafting note to clarify the Guideline's intent.
- The draft Guideline was released for public comment a second time from July 1, 2014– July. 21, 2014, with the RAA's proposed edits to the drafting note. The exposure was distributed to members, interested regulators and interested parties of both the Working Group and the Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force, and posted to the NAIC website. Comments were received from California, Utah and Washington, and were discussed Aug. 16, 2014.
- The Working Group adopted the Guideline on Aug. 16, 2014.
- The Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force adopted the Guideline Aug. 17, 2014.
- The Financial Condition (E) Committee adopted the Guideline Aug. 18, 2014.

5. A Discussion of the Significant Issues

The following topics of the Guideline were discussed with regulators and interested parties:

- It was noted during drafting that the simplicity of the Guideline's language was intentional and is designed to fit into each state's existing receivership laws.
- It was also noted during discussions that each state's implementation of such a provision is important. As stated in the Guideline's drafting note, the Guideline is intended for use by receivers in instances where a reinsurer unjustifiably denies payment after such time as a claim under its reinsurance agreements has been shown to be properly due and owed. The Guideline is not an amendment to the NAIC receivership models and is not intended to affect other rights and responsibilities under receivership law, but is intended as a Guideline for use by those states seeking to permit a receiver to collect the payment of interest on overdue reinsurance recoverable. If it is used as intended, the Guideline could be helpful in cases where there is an uncooperative reinsurer.

FINANCIAL GUARANTY INSURANCE GUIDELINE

Table of Contents

Section 1. Definitions

A. As used in this article:

(1) "Financial guaranty insurance" means a surety bond, an insurance policy or, when issued by an insurer or any person doing an insurance business as defined in Section [insert section], an indemnity contract and any guaranty similar to the foregoing types, under which loss is payable upon proof of occurrence of financial loss to an insured claimant, obligee or indemnitee as a result of any of the following events:

(a) Failure of any obligor on or issuer of any debt instrument or other monetary obligation (including equity securities guarantied under a surety bond, insurance policy or indemnity contract) to pay when due [to be paid by the obligor or scheduled at the time insured to be received by the holder of the obligation], principal, interest, premium, dividend or purchase price of or on, or other amounts due or payable with respect to, the instrument or obligation, when the failure is the result of a financial default or insolvency or, provided that such payment source is investment grade, any other failure to make payment, regardless of whether the obligation is incurred directly or as guarantor by or on behalf of another obligor that has also defaulted;

(b) Changes in the levels of interest rates, whether short or long term, or the differential in interest rates between various markets or products;

(c) Changes in the rate of exchange of currency;

Drafting Note: This provision was not enacted in the New York and California financial guaranty insurance laws, since such risks are viewed as political risk insurance, rather than financial guaranty insurance.

(d) Changes in the value of specific assets or commodities, financial or commodity indices, or price levels in general; or

(e) Other events which the commissioner determines are substantially similar to any of the foregoing.

(2) Notwithstanding Paragraph one (1) of this subsection, "financial guaranty insurance" shall not include:

(a) Insurance of any loss resulting from any event described in Subsection A(1) of this section, if the loss is payable only upon the occurrence of any of the following, as specified in a surety bond, insurance policy or indemnity contract:

(i) A fortuitous physical event;

(ii) A failure of or deficiency in the operation of equipment; or

(iii) An inability to extract or recover a natural resource;

(b) An individual or schedule public official bond;

(c) A contract bond, including bid, payment or maintenance bond, or a performance bond where the bond is guarantying the execution of a contract other than a contract of indebtedness or other monetary obligation;

(d) A bond required or permitted in connection with judicial, probate, bankruptcy or equity proceedings, including appeal, injunction, waiver, probate, open estate and life tenant bonds, and bonds otherwise by law allowed including bonds accepted by state or municipal authorities in lieu of deposits as security for the performance of insurance contracts;

(e) A bond running to the federal, state, county, municipal government or other political subdivision, as a condition precedent to granting of a license to engage in a particular business or of a permit to exercise a particular privilege;

(f) An indemnity bond running to a governmental unit, railroad or charitable organization, or a lost security or utility payment bond;

(g) A lease, purchase and sale or concessionaire surety bond; provided that the obligation of the insurer shall not exceed a period of five (5) years, and the bond is not issued directly or indirectly in connection with the sale of securities, a pooling of financial assets or a credit default swap as defined by Section 1(I) of this article;

(h) A bond guaranteeing the performance of a contract of indebtedness or other monetary obligation where: (i) the aggregate gross principal, interest and other monetary indebtedness or other monetary obligations of any obligor, whose obligations are guaranteed by the insurer, under all bonds issued to that obligor pursuant to this subparagraph do not exceed $10,000,000 and; (ii) the bond is not issued directly or indirectly in connection with the sale of securities, a pooling of financial assets or a credit default swap as defined in Section 1(I) of this article; and (iii) the bond by its terms terminates upon any sale or other transfer of the insured obligation in connection with the sale of securities, a pooling of financial assets or a credit default swap as defined in Section 1(I) of this article;

(i) A depository bond that insures deposits in financial institutions to the extent of the excess cover over the amount insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation;

(j) A bond, which shall not exceed a period of greater than five (5) years, that guarantees the payment of a premium, deductible, or self-insured retention to an insurer issuing a workers' compensation or liability policy;

(k) Fidelity insurance authorized by Section [insert section];

(l) Credit unemployment insurance, meaning insurance on a debtor in connection with a specific loan or other credit transaction, to provide payments to a creditor in the event of unemployment of the debtor for the installments or other periodic payments becoming due while a debtor is unemployed;

Drafting Note: Subparagraph (l) is to be used by states which do not authorize credit unemployment insurance as a separate line of business but do permit this line to be written.

(m) Credit insurance, meaning insurance indemnifying manufacturers, merchants or educational institutions extending credit against loss or damage resulting from nonpayment of debts owed to them for goods or services provided in the normal course of their business;

Drafting Note: Subparagraph (m) is to be used by states which do not authorize credit insurance as a separate line of business but do permit this line to be written.

(n) Guaranteed investment contracts issued by life insurance companies which provide that the life insurer itself will make specified payments in exchange for specific premiums or contributions;

(o) Residual value insurance authorized by Section [insert section];

(p) Mortgage guaranty insurance authorized by Section [insert section];

(q) Indemnity contracts or similar guarantees, to the extent that they are not otherwise limited or proscribed by this chapter,

(i) In which a life insurer or an insurer subject to Section [ ] guarantees its obligations or indebtedness or the obligations or indebtedness of a subsidiary (as defined in Section [insert section]) other than a financial guaranty insurance corporation; provided that:

(I) To the extent that any such obligations or indebtedness are backed by specific assets, the assets must at all times be owned by the insurer or the subsidiary; and

(II) In the case of the guaranty of the obligations or indebtedness of the subsidiary that are not backed by specific assets of the insurer, the guaranty terminates once the subsidiary ceases to be a subsidiary; or

(ii) In which a life insurer guarantees obligations or indebtedness (including the obligation to substitute assets where appropriate) with respect to specific assets acquired by a life insurer in the course of normal investment activities and not for the purpose of resale with credit enhancement, or guarantees obligations or indebtedness acquired by its subsidiary, provided that the assets acquired pursuant to this item (ii) have been:

(I) Acquired by a special purpose entity, whose sole purpose is to acquire specific assets of the life insurer or the subsidiary and issue securities or participation certificates backed by such assets; or

(II) Sold to an independent third party; or

(iii) In which a life insurer guarantees obligations or indebtedness of an employee or insurance agent of the life insurer;

(r) Guarantees of higher education loans, unless written by a financial guaranty insurance corporation;

(s) Guarantees of insurance contracts, except for:

(i) Guarantees of performance of a contract insuring against physical damage to property in favor of mortgagees or other loss payees named in such contract when issued by a surety insurer or an authorized reinsurer;

Drafting Note: Subparagraph (i) is to be used by states which have a provision comparable to Section 1114 of the New York Insurance Law authorizing a surety insurer to guaranty insurance contracts.

(ii) Financial guaranty insurance policies insuring guaranteed investment contracts issued by life insurers, provided that:

(I) The obligations under such contracts are not dependent on the continuance of human life;

(II) The financial guaranty insurance policies do not guaranty death benefits provided by such contracts;

(III) The obligations insured by the financial guaranty insurance policies are investment grade based on the rating of the life insurers or, in the case of separate account guaranteed investment contracts, based on the ratings of such separate accounts;

(IV) The financial guaranty insurance policies shall not condition or delay payment of a claim with respect to such contracts upon the insured or beneficiary making a claim on the contracts with any insurance guaranty fund under this chapter or of any other jurisdiction; and

(V) The financial guaranty insurance policies provide that if, prior to payment by the insurer under the financial guaranty insurance policies, the guaranty fund has paid a claim under such contracts for an amount that, when added to the amount payable under the financial guaranty insurance policies, would exceed the amount owed under such contracts. The financial guaranty insurer shall pay the portion of the amount payable in excess of the contract amounts to the guaranty fund instead of to the beneficiary under such contracts; or

(t) Any other form of insurance covering risks which the commissioner determines to be substantially similar to any of the foregoing.

B. “Affiliate” means a person which, directly or indirectly, owns at least ten (10) but less than fifty percent (50%) of the financial guaranty insurance corporation or which is at least ten percent (10%) but less than fifty percent (50%), directly or indirectly, owned by a financial guaranty insurance corporation.

C. "Aggregate net liability" means the aggregate amount of insured unpaid principal, interest and other monetary payments, if any, of guarantied obligations insured or assumed, less reinsurance ceded and less collateral.

D. "Asset-backed securities" mean:

(1) Securities or other financial obligations of an issuer provided that:

(a) The issuer is a special purpose corporation, trust or other entity, or (provided that the securities or other financial obligations constitute an insurable risk) is a bank, trust company or other financial institution, deposits in which are insured by the Bank Insurance Fund or the Savings Insurance Fund (or any successor thereto); and

(2) A pool of assets:

(a) Has been conveyed, pledged or otherwise transferred to or is otherwise owned or acquired by the issuer;

(b) That backs the securities or other financial obligations issued; and

(c) Where no asset in such pool, other than an asset directly payable by, guaranteed by, or backed by the full faith and credit of the United States government or that otherwise qualifies as collateral under Paragraph One (1) or Two (2) of subsection (F) of this section, has a value exceeding twenty percent (20%) of the pool's aggregate value; or

(3) A pool of credit default swaps or credit default swaps referencing a pool of obligations, provided that:

(a) The swap counterparty whose obligations are insured under the credit default swap is a special purpose corporation, special purpose trust or other special purpose legal entity;

(b) No reference obligation in such pool, other than an obligation directly payable by, guaranteed by or backed by the full faith and credit of the United States government or that otherwise qualifies as collateral under Paragraph Two (2) of Subsection (F) of this section, has a notional amount exceeding ten percent (10%) of the pool's aggregate notional amount; and

(c) The insurer has the benefit of a deductible or other first loss credit protection against claims under its insurance policy.

E. "Average annual debt service" means the amount of insured unpaid principal and interest on an obligation multiplied by the number of insured obligations (assuming that each obligation represents a $1,000 par value), divided by the amount equal to the aggregate life of all these obligations (assuming that each obligation represents a $1,000 par value). This definition, expressed as a formula in regard to bonds, is as follows:

$$\text{Average Annual Debt Service} = \frac{\text{Total Debt Service} \times \text{Number of Bonds}}{\text{Bond Years}}$$

$$\text{Total Debt Service} = \text{Insured Unpaid Principal} + \text{Interest}$$

$$\text{Number of Bonds} = \frac{\text{Total Insured Principal}}{$1{,}000}$$

$$\text{Bond Years} = \text{Number of Bonds} \times \text{Term in Years}$$

Term in Years = Term to maturity based on scheduled amortization or, in the absence of a scheduled amortization in the case of asset-backed securities or other obligations lacking a scheduled amortization, expected amortization, in each case determined as of the date of issuance of the insurance policy based upon the amortization assumptions employed in pricing the insured obligations or otherwise used by the insurer to determine aggregate net liability.

F. "Collateral" means:

(1) Cash; or

(2) The cash flow from specific obligations which are not callable and scheduled to be received based on expected prepayment speed on or prior to the date of scheduled debt service (including scheduled redemptions or prepayments) on the insured obligation provided that (i) such specific obligations are directly payable by, guaranteed by, or backed by the full faith and credit of the United States government; (ii) in the case of insured obligations denominated or payable in foreign currency as permitted under Paragraph (B) of Section Four (4) of this article, such specific obligations are directly payable by, guaranteed by, or backed by the full faith and credit of such foreign government or the central bank thereof; or (iii) such specific obligations are insured by the same insurer that insures the obligations being collateralized, and the cash flows from such specific obligations are sufficient to cover the insured scheduled payments on the obligations being collateralized; or

(3) The market value of investment grade securities obligations, other than securities obligations evidencing an interest in the project or projects financed with the proceeds of the insured obligations, in an amount not to exceed the principal amount of the insured obligation.

(4) The face amount of each letter of credit that:

(a) Is irrevocable;

(b) Provides for payment under the letter of credit in lieu of or as reimbursement to the insurer for payment required under a financial guaranty insurance policy;

(c) Is issued, presentable and payable either:

(i) At an office of the letter of credit issuer in the United States; or

(ii) At an office of the letter of credit issuer located in the jurisdiction in which the trustee or paying agent for the insured obligation is located;

(d) Contains a statement that either:

(i) Identifies the insurer and any successor by operation of law, including any liquidator, rehabilitator, receiver, or conservator as the beneficiary; or

(ii) Identifies the trustee or the paying agent for the insured obligation as the beneficiary;

(e) Contains a statement to the effect that the obligation of the letter of credit issuer under the letter of credit is an individual obligation of such issuer and is in no way contingent upon reimbursement with respect thereto;

(f) Contains an issue date and a date of expiration;

(g) Either:

(i) Has a term at least as long as the shorter of the term of the insured obligation or the term of the financial guaranty policy; or

(ii) Provides that the letter of credit shall not expire without thirty (30) days prior written notice to the beneficiary and allows for drawing under the letter of credit in the event that, prior to expiration, the letter of credit is not renewed or extended or a substitute letter of credit or alternate collateral meeting the requirements of this subsection is not provided;

(h) States that it is governed by the laws of the state of [insert state] or by the 1983 or 1993 Revision of the Uniform Customs and Practice for Documentary Credits of the International Chamber of Commerce (Publication 400 or 500) or any successor Revision if approved by the commissioner, and contains a provision for an extension of time, of not less than thirty (30) days after resumption of business, to draw against the letter of credit in the event that one or more of the occurrences described in Article 19 of Publication 400 or 500 occurs; and

(i) Is issued by a bank, trust company, or savings and loan association that:

(i) Is organized and existing under the laws of the United States or any state thereof or, in the case of a non-domestic financial institution, has a branch or agency office licensed under the laws of the United States or any state thereof and is domiciled in a member country of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development having a sovereign rating in one of the top two (2) generic lettered rating classifications by a securities rating agency acceptable to the commissioner;

(ii) Has (or is the principal operating subsidiary of a financial institution holding company that has) a long-term debt rating of at least investment grade; and

(iii) Is not a parent, subsidiary or affiliate of the trustee or paying agent, if any, with respect to the insured obligation if such trustee or paying agent is the named beneficiary of the letter of credit; or

(5) The amount of credit protection available to the insurer (or its nominee) under each credit default swap that:

(a) May not be amended without the consent of the insurer and may only be terminated:

(i) At the option of the insurer;

(ii) At the option of the counterparty to the insurer, or its nominee, if the credit default swap provides for the payment of a termination amount equal to the replacement cost of the terminated credit default swap determined with reference to standard documentation of the International Swap and Derivatives Association, Inc. or otherwise acceptable to the commissioner; or

(iii) At the discretion of the commissioner acting as a rehabilitator, liquidator or receiver of the insurer upon payment by or on behalf of the insurer of any termination amount due from the insurer.

(b) Provides for payment under all instances in which payment under a financial guaranty insurance policy is required, except that payment under the credit default swap may be on a first loss, excess of loss or other non-pro-rata basis and may apply on an aggregate basis to more than one policy;

(c) Is provided by:

(i) A counterparty whose obligations under the credit default swap are insured by a financial guaranty insurance corporation licensed under this article or guaranteed by a financial institution referred to in Items (ii) and (iii) of this subparagraph;

(ii) A financial institution satisfying the requirements of Items (i) through (iii) of subparagraph (i) of Paragraph Four (4) of this subsection; provided that

(I) Obligations of such financial institution on parity with its obligations under the credit default swap are investment grade and

(II) If such financial institution is not organized under, or acting through a branch or agency office licensed under, the laws of the United States or any state thereof, then such financial institution is required to collateralize the replacement cost of the credit default swap in the event that it shall fail to maintain such rating; or

(iii) Any other financial institution that the commissioner determines to be substantially similar to any of the foregoing.

Collateral must be deposited with the insurer, held in trust by a trustee or custodian acceptable to the commissioner for the benefit of the insurer, or held in trust pursuant to the bond indenture or other trust arrangement for the benefit of security holders in the form of funds for the payment of insured obligations, sinking funds or other reserves which may be used for the payment of insured obligations and trustee and other administrative fees on a first priority basis established and continually maintained pursuant to the bond indenture or other trust arrangement by a trustee acceptable to the commissioner. The commissioner may promulgate regulations to limit the amount of collateral provided by obligations, letters of credit, or credit default swaps or to limit the amount of collateral provided by any single issuer, bank, or counterparty as provided for in this section.

G. "Commercial real estate" means income producing real property other than residential property consisting of less than five (5) units.

H. “Contingency reserve” means an additional liability reserve established to protect policyholders against the effects of adverse economic cycles or other unforeseen circumstances.

I. "Credit default swap" means an agreement referencing the credit derivative definitions published from time to time by the International Swap and Derivatives Association, Inc. or otherwise acceptable to the commissioner, pursuant to which a party agrees to compensate another party in the event of a payment default by, insolvency of, or other adverse credit event in respect of an issuer of a specified security or other obligation, provided that such agreement does not constitute an insurance contract and the making of such credit default swap does not constitute the doing of an insurance business.

J. “Financial guaranty insurance corporation” or “corporation” means an insurer licensed to transact the business of financial guaranty insurance in this state.

K. “Governmental unit” means the United States of America, Canada, a member country of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development having a sovereign rating in one of the top two generic lettered rating classifications by a securities rating agency acceptable to the commissioner, state, territory or possession of the United States of America, the District of Columbia, a province of Canada, a municipality, or a political subdivision of any of the foregoing, or any public agency or instrumentality thereof.

L. "Excess spread" means, with respect to any insured issue of asset-backed securities, the excess of (a) the scheduled cash flow on the underlying assets that is reasonably projected to be available, over the term of the insured securities after payment of the expenses associated with the insured issue, to make debt service payments on the insured securities over (b) the scheduled debt service requirements on the insured securities, provided that such excess is held in the same manner as collateral is required to be held under Subsection (F) of this section.

M. (1) "Consumer debt obligations" guarantees means financial guaranty insurance that indemnifies a purchaser or lender against loss or damage resulting from defaults on a pool of debts owed for extensions of credit (including in respect of installment purchase agreements and leases) to individuals, provided in the normal course of the purchaser's or lender's business, provided that

(a) Such pool meets the requirements of Paragraph Two (2) of Subsection (D) of this section; and

(b) Such pool has been determined to be investment grade.

(2) Policies providing this coverage shall contain a provision that all coverage under the policies terminates upon sale or transfer of the underlying consumer debt obligation to any transferee that is not an insured of the financial guaranty insurance corporation under a similar policy.

N. “Industrial development bond” means any security, or other instrument, other than a utility first mortgage obligation, under which a payment obligation is created, issued by or on behalf of a governmental unit to finance a project serving a private industrial, commercial or manufacturing purpose and not payable or guarantied by a governmental unit.

O. "Insurable risk" means, with respect to asset-backed securities, as defined in Subsection (D) of this section, that such obligation on an uninsured basis has been determined to be not less than investment grade based solely on the pool of assets backing the insured obligation or securing the insurer, without consideration of the creditworthiness of the issuer.

P. “Investment grade” means that

(1) The obligation or parity obligation of the same issuer has been determined to be in one of the top four generic lettered rating classifications by a securities rating agency acceptable to the commissioner;

(2) The obligation or parity obligation of the same issuer has been identified in writing by the rating agency to be of investment grade quality; or

(3) If the obligation or parity obligation of the same issuer has not been submitted to any such rating agency, the obligation is determined to be investment grade (as indicated by a rating in Category 1 or 2) by the Securities Valuation Office of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners.

Q. "Municipal bonds" means municipal obligation bonds and special revenue bonds.

R. "Municipal obligation bond" means any security or other instrument, including a lease payable or guaranteed by the United States or another national government that qualifies as a governmental unit or any agency, department or instrumentality thereof, or by a state or an equivalent political subdivision of another national government that qualifies as a governmental unit, but not a lease of any other governmental unit, under which a payment obligation is created, issued by or on behalf of or payable or guaranteed by a governmental unit or issued by a special purpose corporation, special purpose trust or other special purpose legal entity to finance a project serving a substantial public purpose, and which is:

(1) (a) Payable from tax revenues, but not tax allocations, within the jurisdiction of such governmental unit;

(b) Payable or guaranteed by the United States or another national government that qualifies as a governmental unit, or any agency, department or instrumentality thereof, or by a housing agency of a state or an equivalent subdivision of another national government that qualifies as a governmental unit;

(c) Payable from rates or charges (but not tolls) levied or collected in respect of a non-nuclear utility project, public transportation facility (other than an airport facility) or public higher education facility; or

(d) Payable from future appropriations with respect to lease obligations.

(2) Provided that, in the case of obligations of a special purpose corporation, special purpose trust or other special purpose legal entity:

(a) Such obligations are investment grade at the time of issuance;

(b) Such obligations are payable from sources enumerated in subparagraph (a), (b), (c) or (d) of paragraph one (1) of this subsection; and

(c) The project being financed, or the tolls, tariffs, usage fees or other similar rates or charges for its use are subject to regulation or oversight by a governmental unit.

S. "Reinsurance" means cessions qualifying for credit under Section 6 (VI) of this Act.

T. "Special revenue bond" means any security, or other instrument under which a payment obligation is created, issued by or on behalf of, or payable or guaranteed by a governmental unit to finance a project serving a substantial public purpose and not payable from any of the sources enumerated in Subsection R of this section, or securities which are the functional equivalent of the foregoing issued by a not-for-profit corporation or a special purpose corporation, special purpose trust or other special purpose legal entity, provided that, in the case of obligations of a special purpose corporation, special purpose trust or other special purpose legal entity:

(1) Such obligations are investment grade at the time of issuance;

(2) Such obligations are not payable from the sources enumerated in subparagraph (a), (b), (c) or (d) of paragraph one (1) of subsection (R) of this section; and

(3) The project being financed, or the tolls, tariffs, usage fees or other similar rates or charges for its use are subject to regulation or oversight by a governmental unit.

U. "Utility first mortgage obligation" means any obligation of an issuer secured by a first priority mortgage on utility property owned by or leased to an investor-owned or cooperative-owned utility company and located in the United States, Canada, or a member country of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development having a sovereign rating in one of the top two (2) generic lettered rating classifications by a securities rating agency acceptable to the commissioner, provided that the utility or utility property or the usage fees or other similar utility rates or charges are subject to regulation or oversight by a governmental unit.

Section 2. Organization; Financial Requirements

A. A financial guaranty insurance corporation may be organized and licensed in the manner prescribed in Section [insert section] and a foreign insurer may be licensed in the manner prescribed in Section [insert section], except as modified by the following provisions:

(1) A corporation organized for the purpose of transacting financial guaranty insurance may, subject to all the applicable provisions of this chapter, be licensed to transact only the following additional kinds of insurance:

(a) Residual value insurance, as authorized by Section [insert section];

(b) Surety insurance, as authorized by Section [insert section]; and

(c) Credit insurance, as authorized by Section [insert section].

(2) A corporation may only assume those lines of insurance for which it is licensed to write direct business.

(3) Prior to the issuance of a license, unless a plan of operation has been previously approved by the commissioner, a corporation shall submit for the approval of the commissioner a plan of operation detailing the types and projected diversification of guarantees that will be issued, the underwriting procedures that will be followed, managerial oversight methods, investment policies and such other matters as may be prescribed by the commissioner.

(4) A financial guaranty insurance corporation's investments in any one entity insured by that corporation shall not exceed four percent (4%) of its admitted assets at last year-end, except that this limit shall not apply to investments payable or guaranteed by a United States governmental unit or [insert state] if such investments payable or guaranteed by the United States governmental unit or [insert state] shall be rated in one of the top two (2) generic lettered rating classifications by a securities rating agency acceptable to the commissioner.

(5) In addition to any transaction that an insurer [may effect and maintain under any other provision of this chapter], a financial guaranty insurance corporation may effect and maintain transactions in:

(a) Contracts for the future delivery or receipt of the currency of a foreign country;

(b) Interest rate options;

(c) Credit default swaps under which the insurer is acquiring credit protection; and

(d) Other products included in the plan referred to in Clause (vii) of this subparagraph, in each case meeting the following requirements:

(i) The transaction is used for the purpose of limiting risk of loss under financial guaranty insurance policies or reinsurance contracts covering such policies due to fluctuations in interest rates or currency exchange rates or, in the case of credit default swaps, financial default, insolvency or other credit events;

(ii) The transaction shall not exceed a duration of twelve (12) months beyond the term of such policies or reinsurance contracts;

(iii) The amount of foreign currencies to be purchased under the transaction shall not exceed the amount guaranteed under such policies or reinsurance contracts that is denominated in foreign currency;

(iv) The amount that is subject to interest rate hedging transactions does not exceed the amount guaranteed under such policies or reinsurance contracts that is subject to the risk of interest rate fluctuations;

(v) The counterparty to such transaction has, or is the principal operating subsidiary of a holding company that has, a long term unsecured debt rating or claims-paying ability rating that is at least investment grade;

(vi) The transaction is not conducted for arbitrage purposes; and

(vii) The transaction is entered into pursuant to a plan that has been approved by the board of directors of the financial guaranty insurance corporation and filed with and approved by the commissioner.

B. (1) A financial guaranty corporation shall not transact business unless it has paid-in capital of at least $2.5 million and paid-in surplus of at least $72.5 million, and shall at all times thereafter maintain a minimum surplus to policyholders of at least $65 million;

(2) An insurer transacting only financial guaranty insurance prior to the effective date of this article which has a paid-in capital of at least $2.5 million and maintains surplus to policyholders of at least $45 million shall have thirty-six (36) months from the effective date of this article to fully comply with the surplus requirements set forth in paragraph one (1) of this subsection.

Section 3. Contingency, Loss and Unearned Premium Reserves

Drafting Note: States can either adopt the following from Article 69 of the New York Insurance Law or the section that follows from the California Insurance Code. Both are shown in this guideline to provide alternatives for enactment.

A. Contingency reserves.

(1) A corporation shall establish and maintain contingency reserves for the protection of insureds and claimants against the effects of excessive losses occurring during adverse economic cycles.

(2) With respect to all financial guarantees written prior to and in force as of the first day of the next calendar quarter commencing after July 1, 1989:

(a) The insurer shall establish and maintain a contingency reserve consistent with the requirements applicable for municipal bond guarantees in effect prior to July 1, 1989 equal to fifty percent (50%) of earned premiums on such policies; and

(b) To the extent that the insurer's contingency reserves maintained as of the first day of the next calendar quarter commencing after July 1, 1989 are less than those required for municipal bond guarantees, the insurer shall have three (3) years from such date to bring its contingency reserves into compliance.

(3) With respect to financial guarantees of municipal obligation bonds, special revenue bonds, industrial development bonds and utility first mortgage obligations written on and after the first day of the next calendar quarter commencing after the date that the act enacting this article shall become law:

(a) The insurer shall establish and maintain a contingency reserve for all such insured issues in each calendar year for each category listed in subparagraph (b) of this paragraph;

(b) The total contingency reserve required shall be the greater of fifty percent (50%) of premiums written for each such category or the following amount prescribed for each such category:

(i) Municipal obligation bonds, 0.55 percent (55%) of principal guarantied;

(ii) Special revenue bonds, and obligations demonstrated to the satisfaction of the commissioner to be the functional equivalent thereof, 0.85 percent (.85%) of principal guarantied;

(iii) Investment grade industrial development bonds, secured by collateral or having a term of seven (7) years or less, and utility first mortgage obligations, 1.0 percent (1%) of principal guarantied;

(iv) Other investment grade industrial development bonds, 1.5 (1.5%) percent of principal guarantied; and

(v) All other industrial development bonds, 2.5 percent (2.5%) of principal guarantied; and

(c) Contributions to the contingency reserve required by this paragraph, equal to one-eightieth of the total reserve required, shall be made each quarter for twenty (20) years, provided, however, that contributions may be discontinued so long as the total reserve for all categories listed in Items (i) through (v) of Subparagraph (b) of this paragraph exceeds the percentages contained in such Items (i) through (v) when applied against unpaid principal.

(4) With respect to all other financial guarantees written on or after July 1, 1989

(a) The insurer shall establish and maintain a contingency reserve for all such insured issues in each calendar year for each such category listed in Subparagraph (b) of this paragraph;

(b) The total contingency reserve required shall be the greater of fifty percent (50%) of premiums written for each such category or the following amount prescribed for each such category:

(i) Investment grade obligations, secured by collateral or having a term of seven (7) years or less, 1.0 percent (1%) of principal guarantied;

(ii) Other investment grade obligations, 1.5 percent (1.5%) of principal guarantied;

(iii) Non-investment grade consumer debt obligations, 2.0 percent (2%) of principal guarantied;

(iv) Non-investment grade asset-backed securities, 2.0 percent (2%) of principal guarantied;

(v) Other non-investment grade obligations, 2.5 percent (2.5%) of principal guarantied; and

(c) Contributions to the contingency reserve required by this paragraph, equal to one-sixtieth of the total reserve required, shall be made each quarter for fifteen (15) years, provided, however, that contributions may be discontinued so long as the total reserve for all categories listed in Items (i) through (v) of Subparagraph (b) of this paragraph exceeds the percentages contained in such Items (i) through (v) when applied against unpaid principal.

(5) Contingency reserves required in paragraphs two, three and four of this subsection may be established and maintained net of collateral and reinsurance, provided that, in the case of reinsurance, the reinsurance agreement requires that the reinsurer shall, on or after the effective date of the reinsurance, establish and maintain a reserve in an amount equal to the amount by which the insurer reduces its contingency reserve, and contingency reserves required in paragraphs three and four of this subsection may be maintained:

(a) Net of refunds and refinancing to the extent the refunded or refinanced issue is paid off or secured by obligations which are directly payable or guarantied by the United States government and

(b) Net of insured securities in a unit investment trust or mutual fund that have been sold from the trust or fund without insurance.

(6) The contingency reserves may be released thereafter in the same manner in which they were established and withdrawals thereof, to the extent of any excess, may be made from the earliest contributions to such reserves remaining therein:

(a) With the prior written approval of the commissioner:

(i) If the actual incurred losses for the year, in the case of the categories of guarantees subject to paragraph three (3) of this subsection exceeds thirty-five percent (35%) of earned premiums, or in the case of the categories of guarantees subject to Paragraph Four (4) of this subsection exceed sixty-five percent (65%) of earned premiums; or

(ii) If the contingency reserve applicable to the categories of guarantees subject to paragraph three (3) of this subsection has been in existence for less than forty (40) quarters, or for less than thirty (30) quarters for the categories of guarantees subject to paragraph four (4) of this subsection, upon a demonstration satisfactory to the commissioner that the amount carried is excessive in relation to the insurer's outstanding obligations under its financial guarantees.

(b) As shall not otherwise be disapproved by the commissioner within thirty (30) days following receipt of written notification providing a demonstration satisfactory to the commissioner that the amount carried is excessive in relation to the insurer's outstanding obligations under its financial guarantees, provided that the contingency reserve applicable to the categories of guarantees subject to paragraph three (3) of this subsection has been in existence for forty (40) quarters, or thirty (30) quarters for categories of guarantees subject to paragraph four (4) of this subsection.

(7) An insurer providing financial guaranty insurance may invest the contingency reserve in tax and loss bonds (or similar securities) purchased pursuant to Section 832(e) of the Internal Revenue Code (or any successor provision), only to the extent of the tax savings resulting from the deduction for federal income tax purposes of a sum equal to the annual contributions to the contingency reserve. The contingency reserve shall otherwise be invested only in classes of securities or types of investments specified in [insert statutory reference to permissible investments].

End of New York Article 69.

Drafting Note: States can either adopt the following from Section 12108 of the California Insurance Code, or the previous section from the New York Insurance Law.

A. An admitted financial guaranty insurance corporation shall establish and maintain a contingency reserve.

B. With respect to all financial guarantees written prior to and in force as of July 1, 1989:

(1) The financial guaranty insurance corporation shall establish and maintain a contingency reserve consistent with the requirements applicable for municipal bond insurance policies which were in effect prior to July 1, 1989, in an amount equal to 50 percent (50%) of earned premiums on those policies.

(2) To the extent that the financial guaranty insurance corporation's contingency reserves maintained as of July 1, 1989, are less than those required for municipal bond insurance policies pursuant to paragraph one (1), the corporation shall have until January 1, 1994, to bring its reserves into compliance.

C. With respect to financial guarantees of municipal obligation bonds, special revenue bonds and investment grade industrial development bonds written after July 1, 1989:

(1) The financial guaranty insurance corporation shall establish and maintain a contingency reserve in accordance with Paragraph Three (3) of Subdivision (D) for all those insured issues in each calendar year for each category listed in paragraph two (2) of this subdivision.

(2) The total contingency reserve required shall be the greater of 50 percent (50%) of premiums written for each such category or the following amount prescribed for each such category:

(a) Municipal obligation bonds, 0.8 percent (.8%) of principal outstanding.

(b) Special revenue bonds, 1.2 percent (1.2%) of principal outstanding.

(c) Investment grade industrial development bonds secured by collateral or with a remaining term at the date of insurance of seven (7) years or less and utility first mortgage obligations, 1.4 percent (1.4%) of principal outstanding.

(d) All other investment grade industrial development bonds, 1.6 percent (1.6%) of principal outstanding.

(3) Contributions to the contingency reserve required by this paragraph, equal to one-eightieth of the total reserve required, shall be made each quarter for twenty (20) years, provided, however, that contributions may be discontinued so long as the total reserve for all categories listed in Items (a) through (d) of subparagraph two (2) exceeds the percentages contained in Items (a) through (d) when applied against unpaid principal.

D. With respect to all other financial guarantees written on or after July 1, 1989:

(1) The financial guaranty insurance corporation shall establish and maintain a contingency reserve in accordance with paragraph three (3) for all those insured issues in each calendar year for each such category listed in paragraph two (2).

(2) The total contingency reserve required shall be the greater of 50 percent (50%) of premiums written for each such category or the following amount prescribed for each such category:

(a) Investment grade obligations, secured by collateral, or with a remaining term at the date of insurance of seven (7) years or less, 1.2 percent (1.2%) of principal outstanding.

(b) Other investment grade obligations, 1.7 percent (1.7%) of principal outstanding.

(c) Non-investment grade obligations secured by collateral, 2.5 percent (2.5%) of principal outstanding.

(d) Other non-investment grade obligations, 3.0 percent (3.0%) of principal outstanding.

(3) Contributions to the contingency reserve required by subparagraphs (a) and (b) of paragraph two (2), equal to one-sixtieth of the total reserve required, shall be made each quarter for fifteen (15) years, and contributions to the contingency reserve required by subparagraphs (c) and (d) of paragraph two (2), equal to one-fortieth of the total reserve required, shall be made each quarter for ten (10) years provided, however, that contributions may be discontinued so long as the total reserve for all categories listed in subparagraphs (a) through (d) of paragraph two (2) exceeds the percentages contained in subparagraphs (a) through (d) when applied against unpaid principal.

E. Contingency reserves required in Subdivisions (B), (C), and (D) may be established and maintained net of collateral and reinsurance, provided that, in the case of reinsurance, the reinsurance agreement requires that the reinsurer shall, on or after the effective date of the reinsurance, establish and maintain a reserve in an amount equal to the amount by which the financial guaranty insurance corporation reduces its contingency reserve. In addition, contingency reserves required in Subdivisions (C) and (D) may be maintained net of refunds and refinancing to the extent the refunded or refinanced issue is paid off or secured by obligations that are directly payable or guarantied by the United States government, and net of insured securities in a unit investment trust or mutual fund that have been sold from the trust or fund without insurance.

F. The contingency reserves may be released thereafter in the same manner in which they were established and withdrawals thereof, to the extent of any excess, may be made from the earliest contributions to such reserves remaining therein:

(1) With the prior written approval of the commissioner, if the actual incurred losses for the year, in the case of the categories of guarantees subject to Subdivision (C) exceeds 35 percent (35%) of earned premiums, or in the case of the categories of guarantees subject to Subdivision (D) exceed 65 percent (65%) of earned premiums.

(2) Upon thirty (30) days prior written notice to the commissioner, provided that the contingency reserve has been in existence for forty (40) quarters, for reserves subject to Subdivision (C), and thirty (30) quarters, for reserves subject to Subdivision (D), upon demonstration that the amount carried is in excess of required amounts or excessive in relation to the financial guaranty insurance corporation's outstanding obligations.

(3) A financial guaranty insurance corporation may invest the contingency reserve in tax and loss bonds or similar securities purchased pursuant to Section 832(e) of the Internal Revenue Code (or any successor provision), only to the extent of the tax savings resulting from the deduction for federal income tax purposes of a sum equal to the annual contributions to the contingency reserve. The contingency reserve shall otherwise be invested only in classes of securities or types of investments specified in [insert applicable reserve investment statutory reference].

End of California Contingency Reserve Language.

B. Loss reserves.

(1) In addition to the contingency reserve, the case basis method or other method as may be prescribed by the commissioner shall be used to establish and maintain loss reserves, net of collateral, for claims reported and unpaid, in a manner consistent with Section [insert section], A deduction from loss reserves shall be allowed for the time value of money by application of a discount rate equal to the average rate of return on the admitted assets of the insurer as of the date of the computation of the reserve. The discount rate shall be adjusted at the end of each calendar year.

(2) If the insured principal and interest on a defaulted issue of obligations due and payable during any three (3) years following the date of default exceeds ten percent (10%) of the insurer's surplus to policyholders and contingency reserves, its reserve so established shall be supported by a report from an independent source acceptable to the commissioner.

C. Unearned premium reserve. An unearned premium reserve shall be established and maintained net of reinsurance and collateral with respect to all financial guaranty premiums. Where financial guaranty insurance premiums are paid on an installment basis, an unearned premium reserve shall be established and maintained, net of reinsurance and collateral, computed on a daily or monthly pro rata basis. All other financial guaranty insurance premiums written shall be earned in proportion with the expiration of exposure, or by such other method as may be prescribed by the commissioner.

Section 4. Limitations

A. Financial guaranty insurance may be transacted in this state only by a corporation licensed for that purpose pursuant to Section 2 (II) of this act.

B. Permissible guarantees.

(1) The commissioner shall not permit the writing of financial guaranty insurance except as defined in Subparagraph (a) of Paragraph One (1) of Subsection (A) of section one of this article, and a corporation may insure the timely payment of United States dollar debt instruments, or other monetary obligations, only in the following categories:

(a) Municipal obligation bonds;

(b) Special revenue bonds;

(c) Industrial development bonds;

(d) Obligations of the governments of a country not qualifying as a governmental unit or a municipality, a political subdivision, or any public agency or instrumentality thereof;

(e) Obligations of corporations, trusts or other similar entities established under applicable law;

(f) Partnership obligations;

(g) Asset-backed securities, trust certificates and trust obligations other than mortgage-backed securities secured by first mortgages on real property which are insurable by a mortgage guaranty insurer authorized under Section [insert section], unless:

(i) Such mortgages with loan-to-value ratios in excess of eighty percent (80%) are:

(I) In the case of mortgages on property located in the state of [insert state], insured by mortgage guaranty insurers authorized under Section [insert section];

(II) In the case of mortgages on property located in a state other than the state of [insert state], insured by mortgage guaranty insurers authorized to do business in such other state; or

(III) In an aggregate principal amount less than the single risk limits prescribed in paragraph five (5) of subsection (D) of this section; or

(ii) Additional mortgages with principal balances, other collateral with a market value, or (provided the insured risk is investment grade) excess spread in an amount, in each instance at least equal to the coverage that would otherwise be provided by such mortgage guaranty insurers in accordance with Item (i) of this subparagraph are pledged as additional security for the asset-backed securities;

(h) Installment purchase agreements executed as a condition of sale;

(i) Consumer debt obligations;

(j) Utility first mortgage obligations; and

(k) Any other debt instrument or financial obligation which the commissioner determines to be substantially similar to any of the foregoing.

(2) An insurer may insure obligations enumerated in Subparagraphs (a), (b) and (c) of Subsection B(1) that are not investment grade so long as at least ninety-five percent (95%), or such lower percentage as shall be acceptable to the commissioner of the insurer's aggregate net liability on the kinds of obligations enumerated in Subparagraphs (a), (b) and (c) of Subsection B(1) shall be investment grade. The commissioner may accept a lower percentage of the insurer's aggregate net liability to be investment grade upon determination that there is no undue risk to the insurer's policyholders associated with so doing. In making such a determination, the commissioner shall take into consideration, among other factors, the corporation's outstanding liabilities on non-investment grade instruments and obligations and in relation to the amount of its surplus to policyholders.

(3) A corporation may insure the timely payment of monetary obligations in any category designated in this subsection notwithstanding that such obligation may be insured by a financial guaranty insurance policy issued by another insurer. In the event that any obligation is insured by more than one financial guaranty insurance policy, then each such insurance policy may by its terms specify its priority of payment in the event of a default under the obligation insured or any other insurance policy, provided that an insurer shall be entitled to take into account payment under another policy insuring such obligation for purposes of (i) determining compliance with single risk limits in Subsection D of this section and (ii) establishing and maintaining loss reserves only to the extent that the policy issued by such insurer provides for payment only in the event of payment default under both such obligation and the other policy.

(4) A corporation may also write financial guaranty insurance as defined in Subparagraph (a) of Paragraph One (1) of Subsection (A) of Section One (I) of this article to insure the timely payment of non-United States dollar debt instruments or other monetary obligations denominated or payable in foreign currency, only for the categories listed in subparagraphs (a) through (k) of paragraph one (1) of this subsection, provided that:

(a) Such currency is that of an Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development country or such other country

(i) Whose sovereign rating is investment grade; or

(ii) As shall not otherwise be disapproved by the commissioner within thirty (30) days following receipt of written notification. The commissioner shall not disapprove such notification upon demonstration that there is no undue risk associated with insuring the timely payment of such instruments or obligations. In making such a determination the commissioner shall take into consideration the corporation's outstanding liabilities on non-investment grade instruments and obligations in relation to its outstanding liabilities on all instruments and obligations and in relation to the amount of its surplus to policyholders.

(b) Reserves required pursuant to Section Three of this article in regard to such obligations shall be established and adjusted quarterly based upon the then current foreign exchange rates;

(c) Such obligations shall not exceed twenty-five percent (25%) of an insurer's aggregate net liability; and

(d) The aggregate and single risk limitations prescribed by Subsections (C) and (D) of this section shall be determined by applying the then current foreign exchange rates.

C. Aggregate risk limits. The corporation must at all times maintain surplus to policyholders and contingency reserves in the aggregate no less than the sum of:

(1) (a) 0.3333 percent (.3333%) or 1/300th of the aggregate net liability under guarantees of municipal bonds including obligations demonstrated to the satisfaction of the commissioner to be the functional equivalent thereof and investment grade utility first mortgage obligations; plus

(b) 0.6666 percent (.6666%) or 1/150th of the aggregate net liability under guarantees of investment grade asset-backed securities; plus

(c) 1.0 percent (1%) or 1/100th of the aggregate net liability under guarantees, secured by collateral or having a term of seven (7) years or less, of:

(i) Investment grade industrial development bonds,

(ii) Other investment grade obligations; plus

(d) 1.5 percent (1.5%) or 1/66.67th of the aggregate net liability under guarantees of other investment grade obligations; plus

(e) 2.0 percent (2%) or 1/50th of the aggregate net liability under guarantees of:

(i) Non-investment grade consumer debt obligations, and

(ii) Non-investment grade asset-backed securities; plus

(f) 2.5 percent (2.5%) or 1/40th of the aggregate net liability under guarantees of non-investment grade obligations secured by first mortgages on commercial real estate and having loan-to-value ratios of eighty percent (80%) or less; plus

(g) 4.0 percent (4%) or 1/25th of the aggregate net liability under guarantees of other non-investment grade obligations; and

(h) If the amount of collateral required by subparagraph (c) of this paragraph is no longer maintained, that proportion of the obligation insured which is not so collateralized shall be subject to the aggregate limits specified in subparagraph (d) of this paragraph; and

(2) Surplus to policyholders determined by the commissioner to be adequate to support the writing of residual value insurance, surety insurance and credit insurance, if the corporation has elected to transact those kinds of insurance pursuant to Section 2(A) of this Act.

D. Single risk limits. A financial guaranty insurance corporation shall limit its exposure to loss, net of collateral and reinsurance, as follows:

(1) For municipal obligation bonds, special revenue bonds and obligations demonstrated to the satisfaction of the commissioner to be the functional equivalent thereof:

(a) The insured average annual debt service with respect to any one entity and backed by a single revenue source may not exceed ten percent (10%) of the aggregate of the corporation's surplus to policyholders and contingency reserve; and

(b) The insured unpaid principal issued by a single entity and backed by a single revenue source may not exceed seventy-five percent (75%) of the aggregate of the corporation's surplus to policyholders and contingency reserve;

(2) For each issue of asset-backed securities issued by a single entity and for each pool of consumer debt obligations, the lesser of:

(a) Insured average annual debt service; or

(b) Insured unpaid principal (reduced by the extent to which the unpaid principal of the supporting assets and, provided the insured risk is investment grade, excess spread exceed the insured unpaid principal) divided by nine; shall not exceed ten percent (10%) of the aggregate of the insurer's surplus to policyholders and contingency reserve, provided that no asset in the pool supporting the asset-backed securities exceeds the single risk limits prescribed in paragraph five (5) of this subsection, if directly guaranteed; and provided further that, if the issuer of such insured asset-backed securities is a special purpose corporation, trust or other entity and such issuer shall have indebtedness outstanding with respect to any other pool of assets, either such other indebtedness shall be entitled to the benefits of a financial guaranty policy of the same insurer, or such other indebtedness shall:

(i) Be fully subordinated to the insured obligation, with respect to, or be non-recourse with respect to, the pool of assets that supports the insured obligation;

(ii) Be non-recourse to the issuer other than with respect to the asset pool securing such other indebtedness and proceeds in excess of the proceeds necessary to pay the insured obligation ("excess proceeds"); and

(iii) Not constitute a claim against the issuer to the extent that the asset pool securing such other indebtedness or excess proceeds are insufficient to pay such other indebtedness.

(3) For obligations issued by a single entity and secured by commercial real estate, and not meeting the definition of asset-backed securities, the insured unpaid principal less fifty percent (50%) of the appraised value of the underlying real estate shall not exceed ten percent (10%) of the aggregate of the insurer's surplus to policyholders and contingency reserve;

(4) For utility first mortgage obligations, the insured average annual debt service shall not exceed ten percent (10%) of the aggregate of the insurer's surplus to policyholders and contingency reserve; and

(5) For all other policies providing financial guaranty insurance with respect to obligations issued by a single entity and backed by a single revenue source, the insured unpaid principal shall not exceed ten percent (10%) of the aggregate of the insurer's surplus to policyholders and contingency reserve.

E. Except as provided in Subsection (F) of this section, if an insurer at any time exceeds any limitation prescribed by Subsection (C) or (D) of this section or the last sentence of paragraph one (1) of subsection (B) of this section, the insurer shall within thirty (30) days after the limitations are breached, submit a written plan to the commissioner detailing the steps that it will take or has taken to reduce its exposure to loss to no more than the permitted amounts, and if after notice and hearing the commissioner determines that an insurer has exceeded any limitation prescribed by this section, he may order such insurer to cease transacting any new financial guaranty insurance business until its exposure to loss no longer exceeds said limitations or with respect to the limitations prescribed in the last sentence of paragraph one (1) of subsection (B) of this section, may order such insurer to limit its writing of the types of guarantees permitted under subparagraphs (a), (b) and (c) of paragraph one (1) of subsection (B) of this section to investment grade obligations until such time as it shall be in compliance with such limitations.

F. An insurer shall not be deemed in violation of any limitation prescribed by Subsection (D) of this section with respect to any financial guaranty insurance outstanding prior to the effective date of this article, if the insurer was in compliance with the applicable single risk limit in effect in this state at the time that the financial guaranty insurance policy was issued. If the insurer was not so in compliance, such financial guaranty insurance shall comply with the limitations prescribed by Subsection (D) of this section no later than three (3) years after the effective date of this article.

G. No insurer authorized to transact the business of financial guaranty insurance shall pay any commission or make any gift of money, property or other valuable thing to any employee, agent, or representative of any potential purchaser of a financial guaranty insurance policy as an inducement to the purchase of such a policy, and no such employee, agent, or representative of such potential purchaser shall receive any such payment or gift. Violation of the provisions of this section shall not, however, have the effect of rendering void the insurance policy issued by the insurer.

Section 5. Filing of Policy Forms and Rates

A. Policy forms and any amendments thereto shall be filed with the commissioner within thirty (30) days of their use by the insurer if not otherwise filed prior to the effective date of this article. Every such policy shall provide that, in the event of a payment default by or insolvency of the obligor, there shall be no acceleration of the payment required to be made under such policy unless such acceleration is at the sole option of the corporation provided that:

(1) Policies may insure amounts payable under a credit default swap or interest rate, currency, or other swap upon a credit event or termination event if the expected amount payable on an accelerated basis in respect of any individual obligation referenced by a credit default swap or in the aggregate under an interest rate, currency or other swap does not exceed the single risk limits prescribed in Paragraph Five (5) of Subsection (D) of Section Four (4) of this article; and

(2) Policies insuring credit default swaps referencing an obligation shall be treated as if the insurer had directly insured the referenced obligation for all other purposes of this article, except that the currency of amounts owed under the credit default swap, rather than the currency of the obligations referenced by the credit default swap, shall apply for purposes of determining whether the obligation is a permissible guaranty under Subsection (B) of Section Four of this article. The commissioner may prescribe minimum policy provisions determined by the commissioner to be necessary or appropriate to protect policyholders, claimants, obligees or indemnitees.

B. Rates shall not be excessive, inadequate, unfairly discriminatory, destructive of competition, detrimental to the solvency of the insurer or otherwise unreasonable. In determining whether rates comply with the foregoing standards, the commissioner shall include all income earned by such insurer. Criteria and guidelines utilized by insurers in establishing rating categories and ranges of rates to be utilized shall be filed with the commissioner for information prior to their use by the insurer if not otherwise filed prior to the effective date of this article.

Drafting Note: If this standard is contained in the state's insurance law, a section reference may be substituted.

C. All filings shall be available for public inspection at the insurance department.

Section 6. Reinsurance

A. For financial guaranty insurance that takes effect on or after the effective date of this Act, a financial guaranty insurance corporation shall receive credit for reinsurance in accordance with the provisions of this chapter applicable to property and casualty insurers as an asset or as a reduction from liabilities provided that the reinsurance is subject to an agreement that for its stated term and with respect to any such reinsured financial guaranty insurance in force, the reinsurance agreement (facultative or treaty) may only be terminated or amended (i) at the option of the reinsurer or the ceding insurer, if the reinsurance agreement provides that the liability of the reinsurer with respect to policies in effect at the date of termination shall continue until the expiration or cancellation of each such policy; or (ii) with the consent of the ceding company, if the reinsurance agreement provides for a cutoff of the reinsurance in force at the date of termination; or (iii) at the discretion of the commissioner acting as rehabilitator, liquidator or receiver of the ceding or assuming insurer; and provided that such reinsurance is:

(1) Placed with another financial guaranty insurance corporation licensed under this Act or an insurer writing only financial guaranty insurance as is or would be permitted by this Act; or

(2) Placed with a property and casualty insurer or an accredited reinsurer licensed or accredited to reinsure risks of every kind or description (including municipal obligation bonds), as set forth in [insert section authorizing property and casualty reinsurance], if the reinsurance agreement with such insurer requires that such insurer:

(a) Have and maintain surplus to policyholders of at least $35 million;

(b) Establish and maintain the reserves required in Section 3 (III) of this guideline, except that if the reinsurance agreement is not pro rata the contribution to the contingency reserve shall be equal to fifty percent (50%) of the quarterly earned reinsurance premium. However, the assuming insurer need not establish and maintain such reserve to the extent that the ceding insurer has established and continues to maintain such reserve;

(c) Comply with the provisions of Subsection C of Section 4 (IV) of this act, except that its maximum total exposures reinsured net of retrocessions and collateral shall be one-half that permitted for a financial guaranty insurance corporation;

(d) If a parent of the insurer, another subsidiary of the parent of the insurer, or a subsidiary of the insurer, then the aggregate of all risks assumed by such reinsurers shall not exceed ten percent (10%) of the insurer's exposures, net of retrocessions and collateral. Direct or indirect ownership interests of fifty percent (50%) or more shall be deemed a parent/subsidiary relationship;

(e) If an affiliate of the financial guaranty insurance corporation, the affiliate shall not assume a percentage of the corporation's total exposures insured net of retrocessions and collateral in excess of its percentage of equity interest in the corporation; and

(f) Assumes from the financial guaranty insurer and any affiliate, parent of the insurer, another subsidiary of the parent of the insurer, or subsidiary of the insurer that is a financial guaranty insurance corporation or an insurer writing only financial guaranty insurance as is or would be permitted by this article and such other kinds of insurance that a financial guaranty insurance corporation may write in this state, together with all other reinsurers subject to this paragraph, less than fifty percent (50%) of the total exposures insured by the financial guaranty insurer and such affiliates, parents or subsidiaries of the insurer, net of collateral, remaining after deducting any reinsurance placed with another financial guaranty insurance corporation that is not an affiliate, a parent of the financial guaranty insurer, another subsidiary of the parent of the insurer, or a subsidiary of the insurer or a financial guaranty insurer writing only financial guaranty insurance as is or would be permitted by this article that is not an affiliate, a parent of the financial guaranty insurer, another subsidiary of the parent of the insurer, or a subsidiary of the insurer; or

(3) If placed with an unauthorized or unaccredited reinsurer which otherwise meets the requirements of either the opening paragraph of this subsection and paragraph one (1) of this subsection, or the opening paragraph of this subsection and subparagraphs (a), (d), (e) and (f) of paragraph two (2) of this subsection, in an amount not exceeding the liabilities carried by the ceding insurer for amounts withheld under a reinsurance treaty with the reinsurer or amounts deposited by the reinsurer as security for the payment of obligations under the treaty, if the funds or deposit are held subject to withdrawal by, and under the control of the ceding insurer.

B. In determining whether the corporation meets the aggregate risk limitations, in addition to credit for other types of qualifying reinsurance, the corporation's aggregate risk may be reduced to the extent of the limit for aggregate excess reinsurance but, in no event, in an amount greater than the amount of the aggregate risk which will become due during the unexpired term of the reinsurance agreement in excess of the corporation's retention pursuant to the reinsurance agreement.

Section 7. Transition Provisions

A licensed insurer writing financial guaranty insurance prior to the effective date of this article, but which is not authorized to write financial guaranty insurance in this state, shall be subject to all the provisions of this article, except Section Two of this article, and:

A. May, unless the commissioner determines after notice and an opportunity to be heard that such activity poses a hazard to the insurer, its policyholders or to the public, continue to write financial guarantees (except guarantees of municipal bonds) of the types authorized by Subsection (B) of Section Four of this article applicable to financial guaranty insurance corporations, subject to the following conditions:

(1) For a transition period not to exceed sixty (60) months from the effective date of this article, if the insurer has and maintains surplus to policyholders of at least $75 million (for the purpose of this paragraph, if the insurer is a foreign insurer, its surplus to policyholders shall be computed as if it were a domestic insurer); provided that:

(a) During the sixty (60) month transition period, the amount of surplus to policyholders needed to meet the single and aggregate risk limitations imposed by this article must be less than four percent (4%) of the insurer's surplus to policyholders;

(b) Within nine (9) months of the effective date of this article, the insurer shall file a reasonable plan of operation, acceptable to the commissioner, which shall contain:

(i) A reasonable timetable and appropriate procedures to implement that timetable to make a determination as to whether or not the insurer will make application to organize a financial guaranty insurance corporation during the aforesaid sixty (60) month period;

(ii) The types and projected diversification of guarantees that will be issued during the transition period;

(iii) The underwriting procedures that will be followed;

(iv) Oversight methods;

(v) Investment policies; and

(vi) Such other matters as may be prescribed by the commissioner.

The plan of operation shall be deemed acceptable unless, within sixty (60) days of its filing, the commissioner notifies the insurer of any specific objections to such plan. The plan shall be updated in the event of a material change with respect to the foregoing and at least annually:

(c) If the insurer has determined that it will not organize a financial guaranty insurance corporation, within thirty (30) days after that determination it shall notify the commissioner, cease writing policies of financial guaranty insurance and comply with the provisions of paragraph four (4) of this subsection; and

(d) The insurer shall file such additional statements or reports as may be required by the commissioner.

(2) For a transition period not to exceed ninety-six (96) months from the effective date of this article, if the insurer has and maintains surplus to policyholders of at least $150 million (for the purpose of this section, surplus to policyholders means the aggregate surplus to policyholders of said insurer and other member companies of an inter-company pool, and if the insurer is a foreign insurer its surplus to policyholders shall be computed as if it were a domestic insurer) and the aggregate financial guaranty written premium of said insurer and other member companies of an inter-company pool shall have been at least $1 million in any one of the five (5) years ending December thirty-first (31) of the year prior to this article becoming law, provided that:

(a) During the first sixty (60) months of the transition period, the amount of surplus to policyholders needed to meet the aggregate risk limitations imposed by this article must be less than four percent (4%) of the insurer's surplus to policyholders. After such sixty (60) month period, provided the insurer complies with subparagraph (d) of this paragraph, the amount of surplus to policyholders needed to meet such aggregate risk limitations must be less than five percent (5%) of the insurer's surplus to policyholders for the succeeding twelve (12) month period and less than six percent (6%) for the next succeeding twenty-four (24) month period;

(b) During the transition period, the amount of surplus to policyholders needed to meet the single risk limitations imposed by Paragraphs Two through Five of Subsection (D) of Section Four of this article must be less than twenty percent (20%) of the insurer's surplus to policyholders, except that the single risk limitation with respect to investment grade obligations under such paragraph five (5) shall be the lesser of $80 million or seven percent (7%) of the insurer's surplus to policyholders;

(c) During the transition period, notwithstanding the last sentence of Paragraph One (1) of Subsection (B) of Section Four, industrial development bonds shall not be included in the investment grade requirements set forth in such sentence;

(d) During the transition period, reinsurance in the form of inter-company pooling agreements, shall not be subject to Subparagraphs (c), (d), (e) and (f) of Paragraph Two (2) of Subsection (A) of Section Six of this article, if such inter-company pooling agreements were in effect on January first (1), of the year in which this article becomes effective, and reinsurance placed with insurers which are subject to the provisions of Paragraph Two (2) of Subsection (A) of Section Six and are not members of the ceding company's inter-company pooling agreement may not exceed sixty percent (60%) of the total exposures insured net of collateral remaining after deducting any reinsurance placed with another financial guaranty insurance corporation or an insurer writing only financial guaranty insurance as is or would be permitted by this article;

(e) Within sixty (60) months of the effective date of this article, the insurer shall file a reasonable plan of operation, acceptable to the commissioner, which shall contain:

(i) A reasonable timetable and appropriate procedures to implement that timetable to make a determination as to whether or not the insurer will make application to organize a financial guaranty insurance corporation during the aforesaid ninety-six (96) month period;

(ii) The types and projected diversification of guarantees that will be issued during the transition period;

(iii) The underwriting procedures that will be followed;

(iv) Oversight methods;

(v) Investment policies; and

(vi) Such other matters as may be prescribed by the commissioner.

The plan of operation shall be deemed acceptable unless, within sixty (60) days of its filing, the commissioner notifies the insurer of any specific objections to such plan. The plan shall be updated in the event of a material change with respect to the foregoing and at least annually:

(f) If the insurer has determined that it will not organize a financial guaranty insurance corporation, within thirty (30) days after that determination it shall notify the commissioner, cease writing policies of financial guaranty insurance and comply with the provisions of paragraph four (4) of this subsection; and

(g) The insurer shall file such additional statements or reports as may be required by the commissioner.

(3) For a transition period not to exceed twelve (12) months from the effective date of this article, in the case of an insurer transacting only financial guaranty insurance prior to the effective date of this article and which qualifies for licensing as a financial guaranty insurance corporation under Section Two of this article, provided that it makes application to amend its current license to that of a financial guaranty insurance corporation licensed to transact only those kinds of insurance permitted pursuant to Section Two of this article within sixty (60) days of the effective date of this article, and provided that, for purposes of this paragraph, an insurer shall be deemed to be transacting only financial guaranty insurance prior to the effective date of this article if, with the approval of the commissioner, it has reinsured all of any other insurance liabilities with one or more authorized insurers or has otherwise made provision for such liabilities.

(4) For a transition period not to exceed nine (9) months, in the case of an insurer that does not qualify under either paragraph one (1), two (2) or three (3) of this subsection or does not file a plan of operation pursuant to paragraph one (1) or two (2) of this subsection, such insurer shall cease writing any new financial guaranty insurance business and may:

(a) Reinsure its net in force business with a licensed financial guaranty insurance corporation; or

(b) Subject to the prior approval of its domiciliary commissioner, reinsure all or part of its net in force business in accordance with the requirements of Paragraph Two (2) of Subsection (A) of Section Six of this article, except that Subparagraphs (d), (e) and (f) of Paragraph Two (2) of such subsection shall not be applicable. The assuming insurer shall maintain reserves of such reinsured business in the manner applicable to the ceding insurer under this paragraph; or

(c) Thereafter continue the risks then in force and, with thirty (30) days prior written notice to its domiciliary commissioner, issue new financial guaranty policies, provided that the issuing of such policies is reasonably prudent to mitigate either the amount of or possibility of loss in connection with business transacted prior to the effective date of this article. However, an insurer must receive the prior approval of its domiciliary commissioner before issuing any new financial guaranty insurance policies that would have the effect of increasing its risk of loss.

B. Shall, for all guarantees in force prior to the effective date of this article, including those which fall under the definition of financial guaranty insurance contained in Subsection (A) of Section One of this article, be subject to the reserve requirements in Section 3 (III) of this article. To the extent that the insurer's contingency reserves maintained as of the effective date of this article are less than those required by Section 3 (III) of this article, the insurer shall have three (3) years to bring its reserves into compliance, except that a part of the reserve may be released proportional to the reduction in aggregate net liability resulting from reinsurance, provided that the reinsurer shall, on the effective date of the reinsurance, establish a reserve in an amount equal to the amount released and, in addition, a part of the reserve may be released with the approval of the commissioner upon demonstration that the amount carried is excessive in relation to the corporation's outstanding obligations; and

C. Shall be subject to the reserve requirements specified in Section Three of this article for all policies of financial guaranty insurance issued on or after the effective date of this article.

Drafting Note: This section contains transitional provisions for those states currently without a financial guaranty insurance statute and with licensed multiline insurers currently writing financial guaranty insurance. The transition provisions permit such insurers to continue to write financial insurance for the specified time period, subject to certain conditions, while the insurer determines whether to form a monoline financial guaranty insurer to continue writing business after expiration of the transition period.

Section 8. Applicability of Other Laws

An insurer issuing policies of financial guaranty insurance shall be subject to all of the provisions of this chapter applicable to property and casualty insurers to the extent that such provisions are not inconsistent with the provisions of this article.

Section 9. Relationship to Security Fund

No insurer or agent of an insurer may deliver a policy of financial guaranty insurance unless such policy and any prospectus delivered on or after the effective date of this article with respect to the insured obligations clearly discloses that the policy is not covered by the [property and casualty insurance security fund or guaranty association] specified in Article [insert article].

PROJECT HISTORY - 2007

FINANCIAL GUARANTY INSURANCE GUIDELINE (#1626)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

The project began on March 1, 2007, when the Financial Guaranty Model Act Revisions (E) Working Group (the "Working Group") held its first conference call. The project included reviewing the NAIC Financial Guaranty Insurance Model Act (#626) to determine if any updates should be made to the model. The review consisted primarily of comparing the NAIC model, which had not been updated since its original adoption in 1986, with the language included in the New York and California statutes on financial guaranty insurance that had been updated several times since enactment, most recently in 2004 and 2005. The comparison to New York's statute was considered appropriate as 7 of the 19 financial guaranty insurers that file with the NAIC are domiciled in New York, with many of the other states that have monoline companies utilizing the more detailed New York statute when necessary. The comparison to California was considered appropriate because its statute is considered similar to the New York statute and California is a large market for many of the financial guaranty insurers.

Purpose of the Project

The primary purpose of updating the NAIC model act is to provide a guide for law making bodies setting requirements for monoline financial guaranty insurers. An updated NAIC model allows for consistency with the New York and California statutes, which are seen as the highest standards by the industry, thus encouraging only legislation that is consistent with the best of current practice. To the extent states consider changes to their statutes for monoline financial guaranty insurance in the future; this update does request that such states consider adopting this updated guideline.

Adopted As a Guideline

In May 2007, the NAIC developed a new process for the consideration of model laws which established specific criteria that must be met for an item to be considered an NAIC model. At the onset of this project, NAIC records indicated that only six states had adopted legislation for monoline financial guaranty insurance. Upon review of the criteria, the Working Group determined the criteria had not been met relative to this model or the proposed changes to the model. The Working Group recommends adoption as a guideline.

Significant Changes to the Guideline

Since 1986, New York and California have made significant changes to their statutes to accommodate changes in marketplace practice. The changes to this guideline include numerous changes that bring the guidance in line with the New York and California statutes. The following represents a summary of the more significant changes:

> Clarifies financial guaranty insurance definitions; allows the use of credit default swaps as collateral; strengthens the contingency reserve requirements as well as changes to the limitations; includes of transitional language for those states currently without a financial guaranty statute and for licensed multi-line insurers writing financial guaranty insurance.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

Financial Guaranty Model Act Revisions (E) Working Group

States Participating:

New York, Chair
California
New Jersey
Maryland
Wisconsin

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The Financial Condition (E) Committee charged the newly formed Financial Guaranty Model Act Revisions (E) Working Group at the 2006 Winter National Meeting:

> Review the Financial Guaranty Insurance Model Act and consider any changes necessary to update the model.

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated

The drafting process began with a document prepared by the Association of Financial Guaranty Insurers ("AFGI") that showed all of the changes necessary to bring the NAIC model in line with the statutory amendments that New York and California adopted to reflect changes in best practices for monoline financial guaranty insurers. The document prepared by AFGI also explained the specific reason for each particular change.

The document was exposed for comment to interested regulators and interested parties on March 1, 2007 with a 30 day comment deadline. Limited comments were received from the industry interested parties, and those noted were accepted by the Working Group. One representative of AFGI noted on one conference call that the industry views this project as a mechanical process to simply update the model and is not opposed to the project or the changes.

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

The Working Group held three conference calls subsequent to the initial meeting, during which the document was revised and redistributed for further discussion after each call. As noted previously, comments from the industry were limited, thus additional exposure time was never considered necessary.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response)

Section 3A(6)(b)-Release of Contingency Reserves
This section has specific language about the release of contingency reserves. One member of the Working Group expressed concern with this language, and requested it be modified to require satisfactory demonstration to the commissioner before the reserves are released. The language was revised and modified as requested.

Section 3B(2) — Contingency, Loss and Unearned Premium Reserves
This section requires an independent review of the claim reserves if the claims experience was unfavorable in the prior three years and exceeded ten percent of surplus. One member of the Working Group questioned how this 10% figure was established and wondered if it should be reduced. Another Working Group member noted that when this threshold was established in his state, there was no empirical evidence or statistical analysis to support the 10%; however, they thought 10% was a good measure of a material event. The Working Group did not change this provision believing that the independent auditor's separate opinion on the adequacy of the reserves provides an opportunity for the reserves to be challenged on an objective ground and at a more granular level.

Section 4B(1)(g) — Mortgage Guaranty Insurers
This section 4 provides limits on certain asset backed securities. This particular section includes some delineation between financial guaranty insurers and mortgage guaranty insurers, and one of the members questioned if the two types of entities could coexist with similar products. Another member responded that there had not been any issues raised in his state relative to this language. Ultimately the Working Group made no change to this area, with the belief that there were no concerns in this area.

Section 4B(2)-Insured Municipal Obligations
This section requires that 95% of outstanding total liabilities on municipal obligations be investment grade. One member of the Working Group requested language to be added to allow commissioner discretion in this area. A separate member supported this change. However, another member expressed concern with allowing commissioner discretion, as it could result in increased risk. It was noted that the rating agencies generally limit exposure below the level in this guideline to be considered a AAA company, but may be lower if the reporting entity was willing to operate with a lower rating. To the extent such a company existed, and did business in this state, it could either require a change in statute in that state, or some type of action by this state. Ultimately the Working Group maintained this language, although this state abstained from voting on final guideline, therefore this item was particularly controversial.

Section 5 — Filing of Policy Forms and Rates

This section sets out requirements for filing policy forms with a commissioner. One member of the Working Group expressed concern with how this section allows the product to be used immediately and differs from the more typical file-and-use statute. This same member noted that if this model were to become an accreditation standard, his state may not be willing to allow this type of filing. It was noted that this model had been around for nearly two decades, and given there hadn't previously been a push for accreditation it didn't appear that would be an issue. Ultimately the Working Group agreed to adopt the language that allows the product to be used immediately.

7. Any Other Important Information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard).

2011 TITLE AGENT STATISTICAL DATA PLAN IMPLEMENTATION GUIDELINE

Contents

Part A. Introduction

The purpose of the Title Agent Statistical Data Plan (the "stat plan") is to give information that is more useful to state regulators about the business of title insurance at the agency level. In the 2007 United States Government Accountability Office (GAO) Report on Title Insurance, Actions Needed to Improve Oversight of the Title Industry and Better Protect Consumers (GAO-07-401), it was noted that "large insurers [tend] to use local or regional title agents to conduct their business." Additionally, the GAO stated "potentially understanding the relationship between costs and the amounts consumers pay could help regulators improve their ability to protect consumers." Finally, the report recommended that:

> State regulators take action to (1) improve consumers' ability to shop for title insurance and (2) improve their oversight of title agents. As part of this process, we are recommending that these regulators consider evaluating the competitive benefits of publicizing complete title insurance cost information... including the collection of data on title agents' operations...

While annual financial reporting by insurers (also called underwriters) captures the overall picture of premiums and losses, there are many factors of the business which are only experienced by the ground-level title agent, including actual operating costs and losses not typically paid by an underwriter. This lack of information about the role of agencies in providing title insurance products and related services makes the business of title insurance particularly susceptible to question about the amount of premium retained by agencies, profitability of the industry, and the value of title insurance in general.

Although the stat plan attempts to capture comprehensive information on the title agency experience, the plan in its current form does not capture all information regarding the daily experience of title agencies. In the course of searching and examining land records, title agencies fulfill their main role in the title insurance process of identifying actual and/or potential clouds or defects on the title that may lead to future losses. Agents may work to correct or eliminate the title defects that can be fixed, and inform the insured of which ones cannot be cured by the agent and will be listed as exceptions in the policy. Title agents may also cure defects at the direction of the buyer, the lending institution, or the title insurer. Depending on the state, this function may be performed by an escrow agent, a title agent, or another third party. Sometimes, an entity will spend numerous hours evaluating and eliminating risk before the premium is even paid.

This statistical plan does not differentiate between the resources spent to correct or eliminate title defects and the resources spent to identify title defects and to perform other policy acquisition activities. This is one of the fundamental differences between title insurance and casualty insurance. While technology helps to some extent, automated land records do not eliminate the cost of searching for and addressing defects in title. In most jurisdictions, automated land records are no more than automated indices and images of documents. Although these systems can reduce the time and effort necessary to search land records, the actual process is unchanged, and title insurance producers or abstractors still must search all records, find those related to a property, and manually examine each document. While some software systems collect and store information, they can be prohibitively expensive for many agencies. In an effort to keep the burden of completing the stat plan as low as possible, information on specific defects found and/or fixed in each search is not collected at this time. Therefore, the stat plan should not be viewed as a fully accurate picture of the profitability of title insurance agencies, but rather as a tool to better understand the economics of the industry.

Part B. Mechanism for Reporting and Collection of Data/Implementation

Although the actual data points collected in the stat plan are points that should be readily available to reporting entities, it is important to note that most have not been previously required to collect and report this data in the current form. Title insurance agencies will need time to develop and put in place systems for collecting and organizing the data, which may involve purchasing new or updating existing software systems, developing tracking mechanisms, and other administrative tasks involved with the collection of requested data.

Therefore, it is suggested that state regulatory agencies provide as much notice as possible prior to the actual expected dates for collecting required data for reporting in the following year. A regulator looking to implement the stat plan should provide sufficient notice prior to January 1 of the year that collection will begin, thereby ensuring enough time for agencies to adopt and adapt their systems before having to track and collect the data. After that, title agencies will track the data points through the year, and ongoing basis, enabling them to easily compile, prepare, and submit the data plan each year to their regulatory agency. The Task Force recommends a yearly reporting date of June 1 for the previous year's data.

Prior to implementation, regulators should also examine the values, labels, and instructions in the stat plan and make any necessary modifications to conform the plan to local practices and customs. Although it is recommended that the plan remain substantially similar, it is recognized that not all terms and values in the plan will translate well from jurisdiction to jurisdiction.

If feasible, the regulator should establish a web-based reporting site for electronic collection of stat plan data, as well as to disseminate important information about the stat plan. A web-based reporting site should include anticipatory and experientially based FAQs. In the absence of a web-based reporting system, the regulator should develop a system for manually reporting data which can be used by all reporting entities, that prescribes a format and set parameters common to the industry and consistent with other data collection requirements.

The state's data reporting and collection system should include controls that prevent the entry of data that are invalid or internally inconsistent. The system should be designed to meet the needs of various types of reporting entities, many of which have not been accustomed to reporting any kind of information to the commissioner.

The regulator should strive to be as clear as possible about the requirements of reporting, including by issuing FAQs and other formal guidance for reporting agents to rely upon when reporting data under the stat plan. To promote efficiency of reporting and quality of data, regulators should make the operation and format of the stat plan's data reporting and collection system consistent with other uniform data collection conventions and those of other states. In order to facilitate uniformity among states, regulators are encouraged to share with other states any information available regarding the design and operation of each state's system.

Part C. Confidentiality of Data

Due to the sensitive nature of individual agent data, including income, expense, and loss experience, it is strongly recommended that regulators keep individual responses on the stat plan confidential. While such data may already be protected as proprietary, financial, or other sensitive information, it is highly recommended that states determine whether they can hold the stat plan information confidential, and enact any statutory or regulatory amendments necessary to do so. However, nothing herein should be construed as attempting to limit the sharing or publication of aggregate data, since such publication may in fact make important disclosures regarding the experience of title agents in a particular geographic area or business demographic (i.e. by county, state, or by agency type). Additionally, the sharing of data among regulators should be exempted from any confidential protections given to collected data.

Part D. Uses of Data

Because the data collected as part of the stat plan does not fully capture the agent experience as it pertains to items caught and corrected prior to issuance of policy, caution should be taken if regulators intend on using the stat plan to set rates or analyze entities' justifications of rates and fees. Although rate and fee setting is a conceivable use of the data collected, regulators need to be aware of the shortcomings of the plan, and willing to accept data and justifications provided beyond the scope of the stat plan.

Other uses of the data collected include:

- Fulfilling GAO recommendations of increased title agent data collection
- Comparison of relationship of costs to title agents and prices consumers pay
- Quantitative analysis of differences between title insurance and other lines of insurance (particularly in operating costs vs. loss costs)
- Comparison of FTEs in agencies vs. total licensees in a jurisdiction

- Agent premium experience
- Market share analysis
- Marketing expense ratios (compared to market share)
- Premium vs. agency claims loss experience
- Agent experience by locality (county, city, etc.)
- Develop Market Conduct Base Line Market Analyses

Part E. Insurance Department Outreach Efforts

Under the stat plan, regulators are responsible for collecting data from entities not traditionally required to provide annual data statistics to insurance departments. To ensure efficient implementation and timely compliance with annual reporting requirements, regulators should engage in outreach and training initiatives. Some of the groups to contact during outreach efforts include:

Industry Associations

- State land title associations
- National land title associations
- National Title Insurance Computer System Providers
- Title Insurance Data Collection and Consulting firms

Other Organizations

- Title insurance underwriters' state offices
- Other state departments of insurance
- National Association of Insurance Commissioners

The organizations listed above can help regulators make reporting entities aware of the state's annual title agency statistical reporting requirements. Training programs conducted by regulators and accessibility to members of these organizations will improve the timeliness and quality of data submitted by reporting entities.

Part F. Suggested Statute Language

Title Agent Statistical Data Plan.

(1) Every title agency doing business in this state, on or before the last day of May in each year, shall submit to the commissioner a report, signed and certified by an owner, officer, partner, or director of the agency, of the specific information listed in the NAIC Title Insurance Agent Statistical Data Plan.

(2) Information relating to the individual agencies filed with the commissioner under subsection (1) shall be kept confidential and not subject to public disclosure. However, nothing in this subsection (2) shall prohibit the commissioner from publishing data collected in an aggregate form, so as not to identify individual agencies' data, or from sharing particular agency data with other state, federal, and international regulatory agencies, with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, its affiliates or subsidiaries, and with state, federal, and international law enforcement authorities, provided that the recipient agrees to maintain the confidentiality and privileged status of the information.

(3) The commissioner may establish rules, including rules providing statistical plans, for use by all title insurers and title insurance agents in the collection and reporting of demographic, revenue, expense and loss experience data in such form and detail as is necessary to aid him or her in the evaluation of the title insurance industry at the agency level.

Drafting note: States that require the data to be submitted electronically should establish a method of electronic signature verification that is acceptable to the commissioner.

Part G. Suggested Regulation on Reporting Requirements

Drafting Note: This is not a model regulation, but a suggested regulation/best practice for any necessary rules that may need to be promulgated for the implementation of the stat plan. When drafting regulations, take into account local statutes, practices, and customs and modify this regulation accordingly.

Section 1. Statement of Purpose

This regulation is intended to provide standards and direction for the collection and reporting of title agent data in accordance with the NAIC's Title Agent Statistical Data Plan. The regulation specifies the data required, due dates and time periods for collection and submission of data, methods of submission, and addresses the confidentiality of the data submitted.

Section 2. Statutory Authority

This regulation is issued based upon the authority granted the commissioner under (cite any enabling legislation and state law corresponding to market analysis, market regulation, and/or title insurance regulation).

Section 3. Applicability and Scope

Under this regulation, all operating title insurance agencies and underwriter direct operations are required to provide yearly report of their policy issuance, business income and expense, and loss experience (excluding losses forwarded to or paid by an underwriter). Agencies include independent title agencies, affiliated business arrangement (AfBA) title agencies, attorney firms/title agencies, and underwriter direct operations.

Drafting Note: Types of entities may vary by state.

Section 4. Definitions

1. Affiliated Business Arrangement (AfBA) – an arrangement in which a settlement producer, such as a real estate broker, developer, mortgage loan originator, or bank, or any other individual or entity that is in a position, directly or indirectly, to refer settlement business to a title entity, also maintains a direct or beneficial ownership interest in that title entity.

2. Affiliated title agency - a title agency that is owned, either wholly or in part, by a title insurance company/underwriter, but does not operate as an underwriter direct agency.

3. Attorney firm/title agency - a title agency that is owned and operated by an attorney or law firm.

4. Independent title agency - a title agency that is not part of an ownership arrangement with a real estate settlement producer, or with a title insurance company/underwriter.

5. NAIC title agent statistical data plan - also known as the "stat plan", this is the data reporting plan developed by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners Title Agent Statistical Data Plan Working Group, incorporated by reference herein.

6. Reporting entity - any title agency that is required to submit the information required under the stat plan, including independent, AfBA, attorney, and underwriter direct agencies.

7. Reporting period - the calendar year immediately preceding the current stat plan due date.

8. Stat plan due date - the due date for reporting entities to submit data to the commissioner. The standard due date under the stat plan is May 30 of each year.

9. Underwriter direct agency - a title agency that is wholly owned and operated by a title insurance company/underwriter.

Drafting Note: Individual states may have different definitions for some of the above items, or may have more or fewer definitions to include. In addition, definitions under Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA) may vary from those listed above. States should update, add, or delete definitions, as well as add relevant statutory citations as necessary.

Section 5. Data Required

Incorporate reference to stat plan here, rather than including the actual plan (to accommodate for future amendments to plan)

Section 6. Due Dates/Time Periods for Collection

All reporting entities are required to submit the data referenced in Section 5 of this regulation on or before May 30 for the immediately preceding reporting period.

Section 7. Method of Submission

All reporting entities shall submit the data in a manner prescribed by the commissioner.

Drafting Note: States should develop a method for collecting data electronically, either through a database in which entities can log in to report or through a dedicated email address, as well as methods of communicating requirements and any changes to the industry. Such method should be noted in Section 7.

Section 8. Confidentiality and Sharing

Information filed with the commissioner relating to the experience of a particular agent shall be kept confidential unless the commissioner finds it in the public interest to disclose the information required of title insurers or title insurance agents under this section.

In order to assist in the performance of the commissioner's duties under this chapter, the commissioner may share data and information submitted by title insurance entities, including agencies, insurer direct operations, and title agent attorney firms, pursuant to Title Agent Statistical Plan data calls and collections, with other state, federal, and international regulatory agencies, with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, its affiliates or subsidiaries, and with state, federal, and international law enforcement authorities, provided that the recipient agrees to maintain the confidentiality and privileged status of the information. Additionally, nothing contained herein shall prohibit the commissioner from sharing or publishing data in an aggregate form with the above parties or any other stakeholder.

Drafting Note: States should ensure that the language that they use does not, nor can be construed as attempting to, limit the sharing or publication of aggregated data, since such publication may in fact make important disclosures regarding the experience of title agents in a particular geographic area or business demographic (i.e. by county, state or by agency type.)

Furthermore, States should contemplate whether or not they intend to publish aggregated data and the extent to which they are prepared to be required to publish or just may publish, etc.

Section 9. Enforcement

The commissioner may require that the information provided under this section be verified by oath of the insurer's or agent's president or vice president or secretary, as applicable. The commissioner may further require that the information required under this section be subject to an audit conducted by the commissioner. The commissioner shall have the authority to establish a minimum threshold level at which an audit would be required.

Noncompliance with this regulation may result, after proper notice and hearing, in the imposition of any of the sanctions available in the [insert state] statutes pertaining to the business of insurance or other laws which include the imposition of fines, issuance of cease and desist orders, and/or suspensions or revocation of license. Among others, the penalties provided for in [cite appropriate state laws concerning failure to respond, unfair business practices, etc.] may be applied.

Section 10. Severability

If any of the provisions of this regulation shall be held invalid or unenforceable, this regulation shall be construed as if not containing such provisions and the validity, legality, and enforceability of the remaining provisions shall not be affected or impaired in any way.

Section 11. Effective Date

This regulation is effective on [insert date] and applies to all transactions entered into after the effective date.

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC guideline. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in to find a citation; to perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

Who do I speak to if I have questions?

If you have questions or believe information related to a state should be updated, please contact Jennifer Neuerburg at jneuerburg@naic.org.

Disclaimer: This chart does not constitute a formal legal opinion by the NAIC staff on the provisions of state law and should not be relied upon as such. Nor does this state page reflect a determination as to whether a state meets any applicable accreditation standards. Every effort has been made to provide correct and accurate summaries to assist readers in locating useful information. Readers should consult state law for further details and for the most current information.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2011

TITLE AGENT STATISTICAL DATA PLAN IMPLEMENTATION GUIDELINE (#1650)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

The purpose of the Title Agent Statistical Data Plan (the "stat plan") is to give information that is more useful to state regulators about the business of title insurance at the agency level. In the 2007 United States Government Accountability Office (GAO) Report on Title Insurance, Actions Needed to Improve Oversight of the Title Industry and Better Protect Consumers (GAO-07-401), it was noted that "large insurers [tend] to use local or regional title agents to conduct their business." Additionally, the GAO stated "potentially understanding the relationship between costs and the amounts consumers pay could help regulators improve their ability to protect consumers." Finally, the report recommended that: "state regulators take action to (1) improve consumers' ability to shop for title insurance and (2) improve their oversight of title agents. As part of this process, we are recommending that these regulators consider evaluating the competitive benefits of publicizing complete title insurance cost information... including the collection of data on title agents' operations..."

The Title Statistical Plan (C) Working Group of the Title Insurance (C) Task Force first developed a Title Insurance Agent Statistical Report. This statistical report contains the various data elements title agents are to report on an annual basis to each jurisdiction. After developing the Title Insurance Agent Statistical Report, the Working Group developed a Title Agent Statistical Data Plan Implementation Guideline as a resource for regulators to implement the Title Insurance Agent Statistical Report.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Title Statistical Plan (C) Working Group of the Title Insurance (C) Task Force was chaired by Colorado with members participating from Arkansas, Florida, Maryland, Michigan, Missouri, Oregon and Washington.

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

During the NAIC Winter 2008 National Meeting the Title Insurance Issues (C) Working Group, later became the Title Insurance (C) Task Force, decided a statistical plan for title insurers should attempt to measure, on a state-by-state basis, the profitability and competitiveness of the title industry and the reasonableness of title rates and charges. In addition to title insurance, the data captured would include non-regulated items such as escrow, closing and settlement revenues and charges. In order for the data to be meaningful, mandatory reporting would be needed. The Title Insurance Issues (C) Working Group was first charged by the Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee in 2009 to complete a study on the ability to undertake a uniform data collection system to capture title insurance premium and expense data that would allow for cross-jurisdiction premium comparisons. The data would include commissions and fees. The Working Group decided a survey of all jurisdictions needed to be completed. The survey was conducted in the autumn of 2009 of state laws on the collection of title agent data and other information. The survey results indicate that 61% of the states are authorized to require data reporting by title agents, and the Working Group believed it could assist states in developing data requests that will help in analyzing the marketplace. The Working Group became a Task Force in January 2010 and the Title Insurance (C) Task Force appointed the Title Statistical Plan Working Group to develop a nationwide title statistical plan that would include, if feasible, title agent data.

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated

The Title Insurance Agent Statistical Report was developed by the Working Group. All conference calls were open to interested parties who participated in the development of the project throughout the process. The American Land Title Association (ALTA) reached out to member title insurance companies, title agents and to software vendors to participate in the conference calls.

After developing the Title Insurance Agent Statistical Report, the Working Group decided to proceed with drafting a guideline for jurisdictions to use in collecting and keeping the data confidential. Because some jurisdictions will not collect the data and some have the authority to collect the data, the NAIC membership will not be able to meet the requirements to promulgate a model law. The Working Group agreed the guideline will include a section with suggested wording for jurisdictions that need a statute or regulation to be able to implement the reporting requirements.

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

The Title Statistical Plan (C) Working Group adopted an Aug. 6, draft of the Title Insurance Agent Statistical Report. The Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee adopted the report during the Summer 2010 National Meeting including the accompanying Single-State Agent, Multi-State Agent, Attorney Agent and Underwriter Direct Instructions. The report was subsequently adopted in the consent agenda of the Plenary Committee during the Fall 2010 National Meeting and is available on the Web site at www.naic.org/documents/committees_c_title_stat_plan_tasp_final.xls.

Many of the same regulators and interested parties participated with the Working Group when it focused on developing the Title Agent Statistical Data Plan Implementation Guideline in September 2010. Ten conference calls produced eight drafts for review and consideration culminating in the July 28, 2011, draft.

The Title Agent Statistical Data Plan Implementation Guideline was adopted Sept. 1, by the Title Insurance (C) Task Force and the Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee Sept. 16, 2011.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response)

After reviewing information and hearing from interested parties the Working Group realized the data gathering of information regarding rate setting and profitability was not practical. During the conference call of March 18, 2010, the Working Group decided the focus is to collect data for market analysis and market regulation. There is recognition that the performance of the title business is based on the title agent, rather than the underwriter, in most jurisdictions. The current reporting is from title companies, and that reporting does not give regulators a complete picture of the profit, loss and expenses in the title insurance business. Because of this, jurisdictions need to obtain data from agents. The agent statistical plan should be a unique plan to capture critical data with the least amount of reporting. In addition, five basic categories of information would be collected: general information and agency information; risk assumption; income; expenses; and loss, loss mitigation.

The Working Group agreed that each jurisdiction would issue a statistical plan data call requesting the information. Completion of the form is expected by every agent/producer, and alternatively, a firm or agency can submit the information for each of the covered agents in an entity. Information would be collected from all agency operations, whether direct or independent and include attorney agents. Interested parties believed small operations and even attorney agents should be exempted from reporting, but the Working Group believed that leaving these smaller entities out would not provide the regulator with sufficient information of the marketplace as the aggregate amount of the proposed exempted entities would be significant. The Working Group decided the goal of the statistical report is to capture granular data that will be meaningful to regulators and yet not overly burdensome on the industry, particularly to small businesses.

The Working Group agreed that national data would not be collected, and each jurisdiction is to collect data uniformly if they choose to collect data. The statistical plan needs to be uniform no matter what the structure or unique nature is in a particular jurisdiction.

Another significant issue in developing the statistical plan is the Working Group agreed the plan would not be able to collect data on all issues avoided during the search and exam process (title problems avoided). The reason for this is that it would prove to be overly burdensome and costly to small agents, especially since there is no current technology that would make such collection feasible.

In developing the guideline, the Working Group conducted a survey in mid-2010 of all jurisdictions to determine what each jurisdiction needs to implement a data call, such as a statute or rule change to collect data and to keep the data confidential. The survey from 31 jurisdictions indicated: some jurisdictions do not plan to implement the data call; some jurisdictions currently have the authority to collect the data; jurisdictions generally have the technology available for electronic collection and compilation of data; jurisdictions need a statute and/or regulation change to collect the data; and jurisdictions need a statute and/or regulation change to keep the collected data confidential. The survey revealed the need to proceed with drafting a guideline for jurisdictions to use in collecting and keeping the data confidential. Because some jurisdictions will not collect the data and some have the authority to collect the data, the NAIC membership will not be able to meet the requirements to promulgate a model law.

7. Any Other Important Information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard).

The Working Group decided to include a confidentiality section and regulators will still be able to share individual agent information with other states.

The guideline includes language to clarify the intent of the report and the guideline is not to collect all the information that some jurisdictions may need for developing rates.

Preface

Insurance fraud costs insurers and consumers billions of dollars annually, and no line of insurance is immune to fraud. Because of this, state departments of insurance (DOIs) believe it is imperative that insurers make detection, investigation, and reporting of suspected fraud a priority in their overall operations. Failure to dedicate resources to the fight against insurance fraud can affect an insurer's financial stability as well as the rates charged to consumers. In light of this, insurers are encouraged to proactively take measures to minimize the cost of fraud.

To encourage insurers to take a proactive approach to fighting fraud, and minimize organizational risk, many states require the preparation and/or submission of an antifraud plan. Such plans are often audited and inspected for compliance purposes and/or reviewed in conjunction with market conduct and financial examinations.

While the development and submission of an antifraud plan is currently not mandated in all states, most state DOIs and fraud fighting agencies believe it is a best practice for all insurers, whether state mandated or not, to develop an antifraud plan that documents the antifraud efforts an insurer has put in place to prevent, detect, investigate, and report fraud. As such, this guideline is intended to serve as a guide for insurance company special investigation units (SIUs) and other interested parties in the preparation of antifraud plans that meet state mandates.

In the spirit of promoting uniformity among the states and providing insurers with added insight regarding key elements that should be considered when developing an antifraud plan, state fraud bureaus are encouraged to utilize this guideline to introduce new antifraud plan legislation or revise existing antifraud plan laws in their states.

To further uniformity in this area and assist both insurers and state DOIs with compliance efforts, the NAIC Antifraud Task Force intends to utilize this revised guideline as a basis for developing an antifraud plan submission repository/system that will streamline insurer antifraud plan compliance nationwide. Until such a system is developed and implemented, insurers are encouraged to utilize this guideline, and incorporate all information outlined within the document when developing or updating company antifraud plans.

Important Note: Unless this guideline is adopted by a state, this guideline does not preempt existing state laws.

Section 1. Application

The purpose of this guideline is to establish standards for insurance company special investigation units (SIUs) and any other interested parties regarding the preparation of an Antifraud Plan that meets the mandated requirements of [insert Department of Insurance (DOI) name].

Drafting Note: In lieu of an agency name, states may amend this statement to incorporate a reference to a state law/rule.

Section 2. Definitions

A. "Insurance" means any of the lines of authority authorized by state law.

B. "Insurance commissioner" or "commissioner" means the insurance commissioner of this state.

C. "Insurer" means a company required to be licensed under the laws of this state to provide insurance products.

D. "Material or substantive change" means any change, modification or alteration of the operations, standards, methods, staffing, or outsourcing utilized by the insurer to detect, investigate and report suspected insurance fraud.

E. "National Association of Insurance Commissioners" (NAIC) means the organization of state insurance regulators from the fifty (50) states, the District of Columbia and all participating U.S. territories.

F. "Report in a timely manner" means in accordance with all applicable laws and rules of the state.

Drafting Note: States should insert a reference to a state law/rule if they feel it is necessary.

G. "Respond in a reasonable time" means to respond in accordance with all applicable laws and rules of the state.

Drafting Note: States should insert a reference to a state law/rule if they feel it is necessary.

H. "Special Investigation Unit" (SIU) means an insurer's unit or division that is established to investigate suspected insurance fraud. The SIU may be made up of insurer employees or by contracting with other entities.

I. "Suspected Insurance Fraud" means any misrepresentation of fact or omission of fact pertaining to a transaction of insurance including claims, premium and application fraud. These facts may include but are not limited to evidence of doctoring, altering or destroying forms, prior history of the claimant, policy holder, applicant or provider, receipts, estimates, explanations of benefits (EOB), medical evaluations or billings, medical provider notes, police and/or investigative reports, relevant discrepancies in written or oral statements and examinations under oath (EUO), unusual policy activity and falsified or untruthful application for insurance. An identifiable pattern in a claim history may also suggest the possibility of suspected fraudulent claims activity. A claim may contain evidence of suspected insurance fraud regardless of the payment status.

Drafting Note: States can insert, modify, or delete definitions as needed and/or insert references to state law if necessary.

Section 3. Antifraud Plan Creation/Submission

A. An insurer, subject to [insert appropriate state code], shall create an antifraud plan that documents the insurer's antifraud efforts.

B. An insurer shall develop a written plan within [insert number of days based upon state law] days after obtaining its license to transact business within this state or within [insert number of days] days after beginning to engage in the business of insurance.

C. The DOI has the right to review an insurer's antifraud plan in order to determine compliance with appropriate state laws.

D. An insurer shall submit their antifraud plan in accordance with all state laws, regulations, and requirements.

Drafting Note: States should insert a reference to a state law/rule if they feel it is necessary.

E. If an insurer makes a material/substantive change in the manner in which they detect, investigate and/or report suspected insurance fraud, or there is a change in the person(s) responsible for the insurer's antifraud efforts, the insurer will be required to amend [and submit] their antifraud plan within [insert number of days] days of the change(s) being made.

Drafting Note: States without mandatory submission requirements should adjust this section appropriately.

Section 4. Antifraud Plan Requirements

A. An antifraud plan is an overview of the insurer's efforts to prevent, detect, investigate and report all aspects of suspected insurance fraud related to the different types of insurance offered by that insurer.

B. One antifraud plan may cover several insurer entities if one SIU has the fraud investigation mission for all entities.

C. The following information should be included in the submitted antifraud plan to satisfy this Section:

(1) The insurer's name and NAIC individual and group code numbers.

(2) A description of the insurer's approved lines of authority.

Drafting Note: Upon exploring the creation of an electronic fraud plan submission system, the working group will explore the possibility of the above noted information auto-populating based upon NAIC carrier data maintained by individual/group codes.

(3) An acknowledgment that the insurer has established criteria that will be used for the investigation of internal fraud and suspected fraud related to the different types of insurance offered.

(4) A statement as to whether the insurer has implemented an internal and/or external fraud awareness and/or outreach program to educate employees, applicants, policy holders and/or members of the general public about insurance fraud.

(5) A description of the insurer's external fraud awareness or outreach program(s) geared towards applicants, policy holders and members of the general public.

(6) A description of the insurer's internal awareness/antifraud education and training initiatives of any personnel involved in antifraud related efforts. The description shall include:

(a) An overview of antifraud training provided to new employees.

(b) The internal positions the insurer offers regular education and training to, such as underwriters, adjusters, claims representatives, appointed agents, attorneys, etc.

(c) A description of training topics covered with employees.

(d) The method(s) in which training is provided.

(e) The frequency and minimum number of training hours provided.

(f) The method(s) in which employees, policyholders and members of the general public can report suspected fraud.

(7) A description of the insurer's corporate policies for preventing, detecting and investigating suspected internal fraud committed by company employees, consultants or others, such as underwriters, claims representatives, appointed agents, etc.

(a) The insurer shall include a description of their internal fraud reporting policy.

(b) The insurer shall identify the person and/or position within the organization who is ultimately responsible for the investigation of internal fraud.

(c) A description of the insurer's standard operating procedures (SOP) for investigating internal fraud.

(d) The insurer shall include a description of the reporting procedures it will follow upon a criminal and/or insurance law violation being identified as the result of an internal investigation conducted (i.e. agent misconduct, referral to Fraud Unit or law enforcement, etc.).

(8) A description of the insurer's corporate policies for preventing fraudulent insurance acts committed by first- or third-party claimants, medical or service providers, attorneys, or any other party associated with a claim.

(a) A description of the technology and/or detection procedures the insurer has put in place to identify suspected fraud.

(b) The criteria used to report suspicious claims of insurance fraud for investigation to an insurer's SIU.

(9) A statement as to whether the insurer has established an internal SIU to investigate suspected insurance fraud.

(a) A description as to whether the unit is part of any other department within the organization.

(b) A description or chart outlining the organizational arrangement of all internal SIU positions/ job titles.

(c) A general overview of each SIU position is required. In lieu of a general overview, insurers can provide a copy of all applicable position descriptions to the DOI.

Drafting Note: Upon exploring the creation of an electronic fraud plan submission system, the working group will explore the possibility of insurers having the ability to upload an organization chart/list of SIU employees/position descriptions, etc.

(d) General contact information for the company's SIU as well as contact information for the person/position(s) responsible for overseeing the insurer's antifraud efforts.

(e) A description of the insurer's SOPs for investigating suspected insurance fraud.

(10) A statement as to whether the insurer utilizes an external/third party as their SIU or in conjunction with their internal SIU.

(a) If an external/third party is used to substantially perform the insurer's SIU function, the insurer shall provide the name of the company(ies) used and contact information for the company(ies).

(b) The insurer shall specify the internal persons or position responsible for maintaining contact with the external company(ies) which will serve as the insurer's SIU. The insurer shall provide a description of how they will monitor and/or gauge the external/third party's compliance with insurer antifraud mandates.

Drafting Note: If a state requires the disclosure of specific and/or all vendors for investigative activities conducted, this section can be modified accordingly.

(11) A description of the method(s) used to document SIU referrals received and investigations conducted.

(a) An overview of any case management system and/or computer program used to memorialize SIU referrals received and investigations conducted.

(b) The manner in which the insurer tracks SIU/investigative information for compliance purposes, i.e., the number of SIU referrals received, the number of investigations opened, the outcome of investigations conducted, etc.

Drafting Note: States that do not mandate fraud reporting or have other requirements should revise this section to reflect state requirements.

(12) A description of the procedures the insurer has established to ensure that suspected insurance fraud is timely reported to [agency/division name] pursuant to [insert reference to state law].

(13) A statement as to which individual(s) or group, within the organization is responsible for reporting suspected fraud on the insurer's behalf.

(a) When composing such a statement, companies may cite specific position descriptions in lieu of employee names.

(b) A description of the insurer's criteria or threshold for reporting fraud to the commissioner.

(c) A description of insurer's means of submission of suspected fraud reports to the commissioner (e.g. Online Fraud Reporting System (OFRS), National Insurance Crime Bureau (NICB), National Health Care Anti-Fraud Association (NHCAA), electronic state system, or other).

Drafting Note: States that do not mandate fraud reporting should revise or remove inapplicable requirements from this section.

Drafting Note: If a state has a mandatory reporting method, this section should be adjusted to reflect an acknowledgment of the reporting method.

(14) An insurer shall incorporate within its antifraud plan the steps it will take to ensure all information they, or a contracted party, possess about a specific claim or incident of suspected insurance fraud is provided in a timely and complete manner when a formal written request from the [insert agency/division name] has been received.

(a) For the purpose of this section, the timely release of information means by the deadline provided by the DOI.

Drafting Note: States who have a specific time period in which carriers must provide information can determine if a reference to a state statute or rule is warranted.

(b) Unless an insurer is able to cite legal grounds for withholding information, they must not redact or withhold any information that has been requested by the DOI.

(c) If an insurer has a reasonable belief that information cannot legally be provided to the DOI, the insurer will be required to provide, in writing, a description of any information being withheld, and cite the legal grounds for withholding such information.

Section 5. Regulatory Compliance

The DOI has the right, in accordance with Section [insert specific state code], to take appropriate administrative action against an insurer if it fails to comply with the mandated requirements and/or state laws.

Section 6. Confidentiality of Antifraud Plan

The submission of required information is not intended to constitute a waiver of an insurer's privilege, trade secret, confidentiality or any proprietary interest in its antifraud plan or its antifraud related policies and procedures. The Commissioner shall maintain the antifraud plan as confidential. Submitted plans shall not be subject to the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) if submitted properly under the state statutes or regulations which would afford protection of these materials [insert applicable state code].

Drafting Note: State will need to cite state specific privacy and protection authority.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2021

ANTIFRAUD PLAN GUIDELINE (#1690)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

In 2020, the Antifraud (D) Task Force discussed implementation of the revised Antifraud Plan Guideline (#1690). Currently, 23 states require their insurers to file an Antifraud Plan with their insurance commissioner. The purpose of an Antifraud Plan is to describe in detail how the company detects, addresses and prevents insurance fraud.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Antifraud Technology (D) Working Group of the Antifraud (D) Task Force.

Chair: Utah. Participating states: Arizona, Arkansas, California, Florida, Louisiana, New Mexico, Ohio, Texas and Virginia.

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

On Dec. 10, 2019, the Antifraud Technology (D) Working Group was given the charge to "[r]eview and provide recommendations for the development of an Antifraud Plan Repository to be used by insurers to centrally file their antifraud plan to all states/jurisdictions." The revision of Guideline #1690 was determined to be the first step in completing this charge. The Working Group continues to discuss potential recommendations for an Antifraud Plan Repository.

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated.

The Antifraud Technology (D) Working Group initially sent a request for comments on Nov. 25, 2019, to the Antifraud (D) Task Force, interested state insurance regulators, and interested parties. The Working Group chair and the Ohio Working Group member drafted the initial revisions to Guideline #1690 that was exposed for comment in March 2020.

The Working Group met again Sept.17, 2020, to discuss additional comments received and review proposed revisions. The Working Group exposed a second draft for comment following the September call.

The Working Group met Oct. 14, 2020, to review the final draft and Oct. 29, 2020, to adopt the revised Guideline #1690.

Working Group members, state insurance regulators, and interested parties provided comments, and they were invited to participate in all Working Group calls. Revised drafts were released for comment following each Working Group call. The drafts were circulated via email and posted to the Task Force web page on the NAIC home page.

Written comments were received by the following groups:

Interested State Insurance Regulators

Minnesota, Ohio and Utah.

Interested Parties

The Center for Economic Justice (CEJ), the Coalition Against Insurance Fraud (CAIF), the National Association of Mutual Insurance Companies (NAMIC), and the National Insurance Crime Bureau (NICB).

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

The initial draft of Guideline #1690 was exposed in December 2019. Comments were received until Dec. 31, 2019. The Antifraud Technology (D) Working Group met in March 2020 to discuss the comments received.

A second draft was distributed following the call in March. Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the activity of the Working Group was temporarily delayed, and the comment period was extended until September. The Working Group met in September and October to finalize and adopt the revisions to Guideline #1690.

In October 2020, the Antifraud (D) Task Force exposed the revised draft for comment. No comments were received on the revised draft. The Task Force met Nov. 16, 2020, to discuss the proposed revisions and adopt the revised Guideline #1690.

The Market Regulation and Consumer Affairs (D) Committee adopted the revised Guideline #1690 during the 2020 Fall National Meeting.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response)

The purpose of Guideline #1690 is to bring greater uniformity among the states in antifraud plan requirements and to be used as a template in creating the Antifraud Plan Repository. This Antifraud Plan Repository is intended to streamline the process used by industry to submit their Antifraud Plans to all appropriate insurance departments and streamline the process for state review.

Ohio suggested incorporating a comprehensive narrative at the beginning of Guideline #1690 to explain its purpose as a best practice because not all states mandate the reporting of Antifraud Plans. Antifraud Technology (D) Working Group members, state insurance regulators, and industry representatives unanimously agreed that the language suggested by Ohio was not necessary. The Working Group decided to reorganize the structure of the existing Guideline #1690 and keep the existing language.

The Working Group added and changed definitions within Guideline #1690. The Antifraud (D) Task Force decided to modify these changes by using certain definitions from existing NAIC model laws.

The first definition added was "insurance commissioner" or "commissioner." The Working Group incorporated the definition used in the Insurance Data Security Model Law (#668).

The next definition added was for "insurer." In the initial draft, the Working Group defined "insurer" as a business entity who is in the process of obtaining or has obtained a certificate of authority to enter into arrangements of contracts of insurance or reinsurance and who agrees to: 1) pay or indemnify another as to loss from certain contingencies called "risks," including through reinsurance; 2) pay or grant a specified amount or determinable benefit to another in connection with ascertainable risk contingencies; 3) pay an annuity to another; or 4) act as surety. Except for using the language "including annuities," the Task Force decided to use language found in the Suitability in Annuity Transactions Model Regulation (#275) definition for "insurer." This language states that an "insurer is a company required to be licensed under the laws of this state to provide insurance products, including annuities."

The last definition added to was for the "NAIC" stating, "the NAIC is the organization of insurance regulators from 50 states, the District of Columbia and all participating U.S. territories."

The Task Force members, state insurance regulators, and interested parties unanimously agreed that Guideline #1690 should not be considered a regulation but rather a guideline to assist states that currently require the submission of an Antifraud Plan and encourage the remaining jurisdictions to adopt a requirement for insurers' submission of an Antifraud Plan.

7. Any Other Important Information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard).

None.

AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE FRAUD GUIDELINES

Table of Contents

Section 1. Application

These Guidelines relate to the use of runners, cappers, or steerers and police accident reports in solicitation schemes and attempts to fraudulently assert a claim against an insured or an insurance carrier.

Section 2. Definitions

A. "Runner," "capper," or "steerer" defined. A person who receives a pecuniary benefit from a practitioner or health care service provider, whether directly or indirectly, to solicit, procure or attempt to procure a client, patient, or customer at the direction or request of, or in cooperation with, a practitioner or health care service provider whose purpose is to obtain benefits under a contract of insurance or to assert a claim against an insured or an insurer for providing services to the client, patient, or customer. Runner, capper, or steerer does not include a practitioner or health care service provider who procures clients, patients, or customers through the use of public media or a health, mental health, or substance abuse information service that provides information upon request and without charge to consumers about providers of health care goods or services, providing the service does not attempt to steer or lead a consumer to select or consider selecting a particular health care provider or health care facility through any financial inducement, commission, rebate, bones, kickback, or in-kind reward, to include free transportation.

B. "Practitioner" defined. An attorney, health care professional, an owner or partial owner of a health care practice or facility, or any person employed or acting on behalf of any of the aforementioned persons.

C. "Public media" defined. Telephone directories, professional directories, newspapers and other periodicals, radio and television, billboards and mailed or electronically transmitted written communications that do not involve in-person contact with a specific prospective client, patient or customer.

Section 3. Prohibition of Solicitation

A. It is unlawful for a practitioner or health care service provider, whether directly or through a paid intermediary or volunteer, to solicit for financial gain a client, patient, or customer within sixty (60) days of a motor vehicle accident for the purpose of seeking benefits under a contract of insurance or to assert a claim against an insured, a governmental entity, or an insurer on behalf of any person arising out of the accident occurrence.

Section 4. Unlawful Acts Regarding a Runner, Capper, or Steerer

A. It is unlawful for:

(1) Any person, in an individual capacity or in a capacity as a public or private employee, or for any firm, corporation, partnership or association to act as a runner, capper, or steerer, for any practitioner or health care service provider. A violation of this provision is a felony and is punishable by a period of confinement not to exceed five years and a fine not to exceed $5000 per violation. This provision shall not prohibit an attorney or health care provider from making a referral and receiving compensation as is permitted under applicable professional rules of conduct.

(2) Any practitioner or health care service provider to compensate or give anything of value to a person acting as a runner, capper, or steerer, or organization to recommend or secure his employment by a client, patient, or customer if such practitioners intent is to obtain benefits under a contract of insurance or to assert a claim against an insured or an insurer for providing services to the client, patient, or customer. A violation of this provision is a felony and is punishable by a period of confinement not to exceed five years and a fine of not to exceed $5000 per violation. This provision shall not include a practitioner or health care service provider who procures clients, patients, or customers through the use of public media.

Section 5. Unlawful Use or Procurement of Vehicle Accident Reports

A. With respect to a motor vehicle accident or crash report or related investigative report or supplemental report, for a period of sixty (60) days after the date the report is filed, no employee of any law enforcement, state or local agency shall allow any person, including a practitioner, an attorney, health care service provider, or their agents, to examine or obtain a copy of any accident or crash report or related investigative report or supplemental report when such employee knows or should reasonably know that the request for access to the report is for commercial solicitation purposes. For purposes of this subsection, a request to examine or obtain a copy of a report is for "commercial solicitation purposes" if made at a time when there is no relationship between the person or his principal requesting the report and any party to the accident, and there is no apparent reason for the person to request the report other than for purposes of soliciting a business or commercial relationship. A violation of this provision is a misdemeanor and is punishable by a period of confinement not to exceed one year and a fine not to exceed $1000 per violation.

B. No person, for a period of sixty (60) days after the date the report is filed, shall request any law enforcement, state or local agency to permit examination or to furnish a copy of any motor vehicle accident or crash report or related investigative report or supplemental report for commercial solicitation purposes. For purposes of this subsection, a request to examine or obtain a copy of a report is for "commercial solicitation purposes" if made at a time when there is no relationship between the person or his principal requesting the report and any party to the accident, and there is no apparent reason for the person to request the report other than for purposes of soliciting a business or commercial relationship. A violation of this provision is a misdemeanor and is punishable by a period of confinement not to exceed one year and a fine not to exceed $1000 per violation.

C. Motor vehicle accident or crash reports held by any law enforcement, state or local agency under Sections 5(A) and 5(B) may be made immediately available to the parties involved in the crash, their legal representatives, their licensed insurance agents, their insurers or insurers to which they have applied for coverage, persons under contract with such insurers to provide claims or underwriting information, prosecutorial authorities, state licensed or state authorized victim services programs, radio and television stations licensed by the Federal Communications Commission, newspapers qualified to publish legal notices under applicable state law published once a week or more often, available and of interest to the public generally for the dissemination of news. For the purposes of this section, the following products or publications are not newspapers as referred to in this section: those intended primarily for members of a particular profession or occupational group; those with the primary purpose of distributing advertising; and those with the primary purpose of publishing names and other personal identifying information concerning parties to motor vehicle crashes.

D. In addition to any other requirements and except as provided in subsection (3), a person requesting to inspect or copy a motor vehicle accident or crash report or related investigative report or supplemental report within sixty (60) days of the accident shall:

(1) Produce for inspection and copying a government issued photo identification; and

(2) Provide a written, signed sworn statement that:

(a) Identifies the requested report(s) and the requestor's relationship to the parties;

(b) Includes the printed name of the requestor; and

(c) Verifies that the requestor is not prohibited from obtaining the report pursuant to Section 5.

(d) Information from the reports will not be used for any commercial solicitation purpose of accident victims, or knowingly disclose to any third party for the purpose of such solicitation, during the sixty (60) day time period specified in Section 5(A) and (B).

(3) All parties involved in the crash, their legal representatives, their licensed insurance agents, their insurers or insurers to which they have applied for coverage, persons under contract with such insurers to provide claim or underwriting information, prosecutorial authorities are exempt from providing a written signed sworn statement. In lieu of requiring the governmental issued photo identification any law enforcement, state or local agency may provide reports by electronic means to an insurance producer, insurer, or employee or agent of the insurer of an individual involved in the accident or prosecutorial authorities.

(4) In lieu of requiring the written signed sworn statement, any law enforcement, state or local agency may provide reports by electronic means to third-party venders under contract with one or more insurers, but only when such contract states that information from a report made confidential and exempt by Section 5(A) and 5(B) will not be used for any commercial solicitation purpose of accident victims by the vendors, or knowingly disclose by the vendors to any third party for the purpose of such solicitation , during the sixty (60) day time period specified in Section 5(A) and (B), and only when a copy of such contract is furnished to the agency as proof of the vendor's claimed status.

E. For each request to inspect or copy a motor vehicle accident report or crash report or related investigative reports or supplement report made within 60 days of the accident, the law enforcement, state or local agency shall maintain for one year a copy of the requestor's photo identification and the statement provided pursuant to Section 5(D).

Section 6. Severability

If any provision of this Act, or the application of the provision to any person or circumstance shall be held invalid, the remainder of the Act, and the application of the provision to persons or circumstances other than those to which it is held invalid, shall not be affected.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2007

AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE FRAUD GUIDELINES (#1694)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

These Guidelines relate to the use of runners, cappers, and steerers and police accident reports in solicitation schemes and attempts to fraudulently assert a claim against an insured or an insurance carrier.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

Antifraud Liaison Working Group of the Antifraud (D) Task Force

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

Appoint an Antifraud Liaison Working Group to (1) develop initiatives and guidelines to enhance relationships with industry Special Investigation Units (SIUs), external private sector antifraud entities and antifraud organizations to include but not limited to training opportunities, model protocols and bench marking projects. Projects will include guidelines for working with insurance fraud prosecutors, state fraud bureaus, and industry referring fraud cases to state fraud bureaus. (2) Develop an Automobile Insurance Fraud Model Law. (3) Provide an advisory role for the merger of the Coalition Against Insurance Fraud, International Association of Special Investigation Unit (IASIU) and National Insurance Crime Bureau (NICB). (Essential)

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated

Members of the Antifraud Liaison Working Group and the Antifraud (D) Task force drafted the Guidelines. Interested parties and regulators participated, including Property Casualty Insurers Association of America (PCI), Coalition Against Insurance Fraud, National Insurance Crime Bureau (NICB), in the drafting process and comment periods. Drafts of the Guidelines were posted on the NAIC website and distributed at the national meetings for review.

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

The working group and task force held several public discussions during national meetings and open comment periods and offered and opportunity for the public and interested parties and regulators to comment on this paper. Beginning with the September 2006 National Meeting the working group opened the topic of developing the Automobile Insurance Fraud Model Act. December 2006 National Meeting the first draft of the Model were distributed and opened for discussion by the working group. September 27, 2006, and February 28, 2007, drafts were open for comment and both drafts were posted on the NAIC website. By the June 2007 National Meeting the new NAIC Model law requirements were implemented, and the Model Act was redrafted into the Automobile Insurance Fraud Guidelines. The July 17, 2007, draft was distributed at the June 2007 National Meeting and posted on the NAIC website for comment.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response)

Interested parties were initially concerned that the intent of the act was to require insurers to provide photo identification and provide a written, signed sworn statement to obtain an accident or crash reports from law enforcement, state, or local agency. The Working Group's intent was to require proof of identification of who was obtaining the reports and to restrict access to accident or crash report for sixty (60) days after the date of the report being filed. Language was added to allow all parties involved in the accident, their legal representatives, their insurance agents, insurer or employee or agent of the insurer and prosecutors access to the report and are exempt from having to provide a written, signed sworn statement.

However, any person requesting access or copy of a motor vehicle accident or crash report or related investigative report or supplement report must provide a government issued photo identification. I lieu of requiring the government issued identification, any law enforcement, state, or local agency may provide reports by electronic means to an insurance agent, insurer, or employee or agent of the insurer of an individual involved in the accident.

7. Any Other Important Information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard).

No other information is available.

GUIDELINE FOR IMPLEMENTATION OF STATE ORDERLY LIQUIDATION AUTHORITY

Drafting Note: Title II of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act, Pub. L. No. 111-203 provides for the orderly liquidation of certain financial companies, including qualifying insurance companies, with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) generally seeking the appointment as receiver. However, in the case of qualifying insurance companies, the liquidation or rehabilitation of such a financial company will be conducted as provided under state law pursuant to 12 U.S.C. § 5383(e). If at the end of the 60-day period provided for under 12 U.S.C. § 5383(e)(3) the commissioner (or other appropriate regulatory agency) has not filed the appropriate state judicial action to place the insurer into orderly liquidation, the FDIC shall have the authority to stand in the place of the commissioner and file the appropriate judicial action in the appropriate state court to place the insurer into orderly liquidation under the laws and requirements of the state. The following statutory language is not an amendment to the NAIC receivership models, but is intended as a Guideline for use by those states seeking to review their authority under existing state law for purposes of initiating rehabilitation or liquidation proceedings in accordance with the federal statute:

[ ] Orderly Liquidation Authority

In accordance with Title II of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act, Pub. L. No. 111-203 with respect to an insurance company that is a covered financial company, as that term is defined under 12 U.S.C. § 5381:

A. The commissioner may file in the [insert proper court] court of this state a petition for an order of rehabilitation or liquidation on any of the following grounds:

(1) Upon a determination and notification given by the Secretary of Treasury (in consultation with the President) that the insurance company is a financial company satisfying the requirements of 12 U.S.C. § 5383(b), and the board of directors (or body performing similar functions) of the insurance company acquiesces or consents to the appointment of a receiver pursuant to 12 U.S.C. § 5382(a)(1)(A)(i), with such consent to be considered as consent to an order of rehabilitation or liquidation; or

(2) Upon an order of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia under 12 U.S.C. § 5382(a)(1)(A)(iv)(I) granting the petition of the Secretary of the Treasury concerning the insurance company under 12 U.S.C. § 5382(a)(1)(A)(i); or

(3) A petition by the Secretary of the Treasury concerning the insurance company is granted by operation of law under 12 U.S.C. § 5382(a)(1)(A)(v).

B. Notwithstanding any other provision in this Act or other law, after notice to the insurance company, the receivership court may grant a petition for rehabilitation or liquidation within 24 hours of the filing of a petition pursuant to this section.

C. If the court does not make a determination on the petition for rehabilitation or liquidation filed pursuant to this section within 24 hours after the filing of the petition, it shall be deemed granted by operation of law upon the expiration of the 24 hour period. At the time that an order is deemed granted under this section, the provisions of [cite to applicable state law addressing rehabilitation or liquidation] shall be deemed to be in effect, and the receiver shall be deemed to be appointed [optional: affirmed] and have all of the applicable powers provided by [refer to applicable state law addressing rehabilitation or liquidation], regardless of whether an order has been entered. The receivership court shall expeditiously enter an order of rehabilitation or liquidation that:

(1) Is effective as of date that it is deemed granted by operation of law; and

(2) Conforms to [cite to applicable state law addressing rehabilitation or liquidation], as applicable.

D. Any order of rehabilitation or liquidation made pursuant to this section shall not be subject to any stay or injunction pending appeal.

E. Nothing in this section shall be construed to supersede or impair any other power or authority of the commissioner or state courts under this Act.

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC guideline. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in to find a citation; to perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

Who do I speak to if I have questions?

If you have questions or believe information related to a state should be updated, please contact Jennifer Neuerburg at jneuerburg@naic.org.

Disclaimer: This chart does not constitute a formal legal opinion by the NAIC staff on the provisions of state law and should not be relied upon as such. Nor does this state page reflect a determination as to whether a state meets any applicable accreditation standards. Every effort has been made to provide correct and accurate summaries to assist readers in locating useful information. Readers should consult state law for further details and for the most current information.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2011

GUIDELINE FOR IMPLEMENTATION OF STATE ORDERLY LIQUIDATION AUTHORITY (#1700)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

Following passage of the federal Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act (Dodd-Frank Act) in 2010, the Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task force realized the need for a comprehensive review of how the state-based receivership community would respond in the event of a federal determination of systemic risk involving an insurance company or affiliate of an insurance. Specifically, Title II of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act, Pub. L. No. 111-203 provides for the orderly liquidation of certain financial companies, including qualifying insurance companies, with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) generally seeking the appointment as receiver. However, in the case of qualifying insurance companies, the liquidation or rehabilitation of such a financial company will be conducted as provided under state law pursuant to 12 U.S.C. § 5383(e). If at the end of the 60-day period provided for under 12 U.S.C. § 5383(e)(3) the commissioner has not filed the appropriate state judicial action to place the insurer into orderly liquidation, the FDIC shall have the authority to stand in the place of the commissioner and file the appropriate judicial action in the appropriate state court to place the insurer into orderly liquidation under the laws and requirements of the state. The new model guideline statutory language is not an amendment to the NAIC receivership models but is intended as a Guideline for use by those states seeking to review their authority under existing state law for purposes of initiating rehabilitation or liquidation proceedings in accordance with the federal statute.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Dodd-Frank Receivership Implementation (E) Working Group was formed by the Task Force to address this issue. The states participating were Illinois, California, Connecticut, Florida, Iowa, Indiana, Louisiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Texas.

The Working Group members consisted of: Patrick Hughes (IL), Harry Levine and David Wilson (CA), Jon Arsenault (CT), Wayne Johnson and Sha'ron James (FL), Jim Mumford (IA), Kevin Baldwin (IL), Cindy Donovan (IN), Arlene Knighten (LA), Kristen Brown and Lynda Loomis (OH), Laura Lyon-Slaymaker (PA), and James Kennedy (TX).

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The charge was delegated from the Task Force to the Dodd-Frank Receivership Implementation (E) Working Group. The charge was as follows: Review and consider portions of the recently adopted Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act to determine what, if any state laws, regulations or procedures are necessary for state receivers and the NAIC to be prepared for its requirements related to receivership activities, as well as, monitor, review and provide input on federal rulemaking and studies related to insurance receivership.

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process and Due Process

The Dodd-Frank Receivership Implementation (E) Working Group formed a Legal Issues Drafting Group that was tasked with drafting an NAIC model guideline to help some states better prepare for a Title II event. The Subgroup consisted of the following members: Kevin Baldwin (IL), Arlene Knighten (LA), Kristen Brown and Lynda Loomis (OH), and James Kennedy (TX). The drafting group met via regulator-to-regulator conference call on four separate occasions in 2011, spending considerable time deliberating the receivership implementation issues.

In January 2011, the Legal Issues Drafting Group drafted a document titled Preliminary Outline Of Legal Items For Consideration By The Dodd-Frank Receivership Implementation (E) Working Group.

On February 4, 2011, the Working Group met via conference call with interested parties and regulators. During the call Kevin Baldwin provided an update from the Legal Issues Drafting Group. The update discussed the legal issues outline which identified potential concerns with state laws and regulations in the event of a Dodd-Frank receivership. Also, the legal issues outline proposed the Working Group seek the authority to develop an NAIC model guideline that states could use, as opposed to a model law or regulation. The Working Group exposed the outline for public comment for a period of 19 days with a comment deadline of Wednesday, February 23, 2011.

The Working Group met at the NAIC Spring National Meeting on March 27, 2011. At the meeting, Mr. Hughes directed the Working Group to receive and discuss comments relating to the public exposure. Florida made a motion to receive the edits that were distributed and to approve the preliminary outline. California seconded the motion and it passed.

The Working Group held a conference call on June 3, 2011. During the call, Mr. Baldwin discussed that the intention of the model guideline is to provide guidance and serve as a template for potential state law drafting revisions. Mr. Baldwin discussed that individual states might want to review existing state law to ensure appropriate authority is available in the event of a Dodd-Frank Act determination with a domestic insurer. The guideline provides that any of the triggers for a Dodd-Frank Act receivership constitute an automatic ground for receivership under state law. It also provides for some timing and procedural rules that would work to effectively implement the state-based receivership in the rapid order that is called for under the Dodd-Frank Act. Mr. Baldwin stated that the guideline is included for the states to utilize, to the extent that they feel necessary, when changes need to be made to existing state laws. The document was once again exposed for public comment.

The Working Group held a conference call on August 1, 2011. The purpose of the call was to discuss comments received from the June 3 public exposure of the model guideline.

Following the Aug. 1 conference call, the document was revised and exposed for public comment on Aug. 8, with comments due by the close-of-business Aug.12. No comments were received within the deadline period.

The Working Group held a conference call on Aug. 16. A motion was proposed and accepted to send model guideline to the Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force (RITF). The Receivership & Insolvency Task Force adopted on August 30, 2011.

5. A Discussion of the Significant Issues

The following significant issue was discussed with regard to this model guideline.

Denied Commissioner Petition
Interested parties commented that there was ambiguity in the model guideline relating to circumstances where a state court has denied the commissioner's petition. The Working Group adjusted the preamble of the model guideline to provide clarity on the issue.

6. Any Other Important Information

None.

TITLE INSURANCE CONSUMER PROTECTION FUND GUIDELINE

Table of Contents

Section 1. Title

This Act may be cited as the "[State] Title Insurance Guaranty Association – Title Insurance Consumer Protection Fund."

Section 2. Purpose

The purpose of this Act is to provide a mechanism for continuation of coverage; to provide payment of covered claims under certain insurance policies; to avoid excessive delay in payment; to avoid financial loss to policyholders because of the insolvency of a title insurer; and to provide an Association to assess the costs of such protection.

Section 3. Scope

This Act applies to all title insurers authorized to transact insurance in this state.

Section 4. Definitions

A. "Association" means the title insurance guaranty association.

B. "Authorized to transact insurance" means a title insurer as defined in [insert appropriate citation to the state insurance code].

C. "Commissioner" means the chief regulatory insurance official of this state, whether referred to as Director, Superintendent, Commissioner, or other similar title.

D. "Covered claim" means an unpaid claim of an insured covered under, and not in excess of, the applicable limits of a title insurance policy insuring land located in this state issued by an insolvent insurer. Subject to applicable policy limits, the Association's liability for covered claims shall not exceed $300,000 per claim. The total amount that may be recovered from the Association by a claimant for all covered claims shall not exceed $600,000. "Covered claim" does not include supplementary payment obligations, including, but not limited to, adjustment fees and expenses, escrow or other closing protection claims; nor does it include punitive, exemplary, extra-contractual or bad-faith damages awarded by a court judgment against an insurer. "Covered claim" does not include any first-party or third-party claim by or against an insured whose net worth on December 31 of the year preceding the date the insurer becomes insolvent exceeds $25,000,000 ($25 million), provided the insured's net worth on such date shall be deemed to include the aggregate net worth of the insured and all of its affiliates as calculated on a consolidated basis, and the insured has not applied for or consented to appointment of a receiver, trustee, or liquidator for all or substantially all of its assets; filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition; or filed a proceeding under state law to reorganize or receive protection under any insolvency law. The amount of a covered claim shall be reduced by the amount or other benefit that an insured recovers from any person, including an agent, regardless of whether an assignment is taken.

Drafting Note: States that desire to include additional claims in the fund may omit one or more of the exclusions from this definition.

E. "Insolvent insurer" means:

(1) An insurer authorized to transact business in this state at the time the policy was issued or an insurer that subsequently assumes such policy under an assumption agreement;

(2) An insurer against which an Order of Liquidation with a finding of insolvency has been entered after the effective date of this Act by a court or administrative agency of competent jurisdiction in the insurer's state of domicile, or of this state under [insert state liquidation law citation]; and

(3) An insurer against which an Order of Liquidation has not been stayed or been the subject of a writ that supersedes or other comparable Order.

F. "Insured" means a person entitled to payment for insured loss under a policy issued by the insolvent title insurance company on title to real property located in this state.

G. "Member insurer" means any person who is authorized to transact title insurance in this state.

Drafting Note: Some states may authorize property and casualty insurers to transact title insurance. Other states may limit the transaction of title insurance to monoline title insurers.

H. "Net direct title premium" means direct gross premiums written in this state on insurance policies to which this Act applies.

I. "Person" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association, trust, or voluntary organization.

J. "Policy" means a title insurance policy, or assumption certificate whose subject of coverage or protection is title to real property located in this state; and "Title Policy" means any written instrument or contract by means of which title insurance liability is assumed by a title insurer.

K. "Receiver" means receiver, liquidator, rehabilitator, or conservator as the context may require.

L. "Servicing facility" means a person or persons delegated by the Board of Directors to settle or compromise claims and to expend Association assets to pay claims.

Section 5. Organization of Association

There is hereby created a nonprofit legal entity to be known as the [State] Title Insurance Guaranty Association. All member insurers shall maintain membership in the Association as a condition of their authority to transact title insurance in this state. The Association may take any appropriate form of legal entity available under the laws of this state, including, but not limited to, a corporation or receivership association as approved by the Commissioner.

Section 6. Board of Directors

A. The Board of Directors of the Association shall consist of not less than five (5), and not more than eleven (11), persons serving terms as established in the Plan of Operation. In addition to the voting members of the board, the Commissioner or his/her designated representative shall be an ex-officio non-voting member of the board. The members of the board shall be selected by member insurers subject to the approval of the Commissioner and shall have as a majority of its members, persons who are employed by member insurers. Vacancies on the board shall be filled for the remaining period of the term by a majority vote of the remaining board members, subject to the approval of the Commissioner.

B. In approving selections to the board, the Commissioner shall consider, among other things, whether all member insurers are fairly represented.

C. Members of the Board of Directors shall not receive compensation for serving as members of the Board of Directors, or any committees thereof, but may be reimbursed from the administrative account for actual expenses incurred by them as members of the Board of Directors.

Section 7. Powers and Duties of the Association

A. The Association shall:

(1) Be obligated to the extent of the amount of covered claims not resolved, whether reported or not, prior to the determination of insolvency, except that the Association shall not be obligated as to policies that have been replaced by another title insurance policy issued by a solvent authorized title insurer. In no event shall the Association be obligated for an amount in excess of the obligation of the insolvent insurer under the policy from which the claim arises;

Drafting Note: The phrase "not resolved" includes claims that are unpaid or otherwise unresolved by the member insurer as of the insolvency determination date, including claims that may not have been asserted but exist due to a defect in title or other event covered under the terms of the title policy issued by the insolvent member insurer. If another title insurance company assumes or otherwise issues a replacement policy, there should be no covered claims under the original, now insolvent, title insurance company policy. States may want to cut off claims by requiring the Association, or the Commissioner as liquidator, to cancel title insurance policies after five years. Alternatively, as reflected in this Act, states may not want to have a guaranty fund claim cut-off.

(2) Have no liability for the alleged bad faith of the insolvent insurer in the handling of any claim prior to the determination of insolvency or for any exemplary or punitive damages;

(3) Investigate claims made against the policies of an insolvent insurer and adjust, negotiate, resolve, settle, and pay covered claims to the extent of the Association's obligation and deny all other claims. Handle claims through its employees or through one or more insurers or other persons designated as servicing facilities. The designation of a servicing facility is subject to the approval of the Board of Directors, but the designation of such insurer may be declined by the member insurer; and

(4) Refund to the member insurers in proportion to the contribution of each member insurer to that account that amount by which the assets of the account exceed the covered claims and expenses, including loss adjustment expenses, and receivership expenses for the coming year if, at the end of any calendar year, the Board of Directors finds that the assets of the Association in the fund exceed the liabilities of that account.

B. The Association may, subject to approval by the Board of Directors:

(1) Employ or retain persons or companies as servicing facilities necessary to handle claims and perform other duties of the Association;

(2) Review settlements, releases, and judgments to which the insolvent insurer or its insureds were parties to in order to determine the extent to which such settlements, releases, and judgments may be properly contested;

(3) Borrow funds necessary to affect the purposes of this Act in accordance with the Plan of Operation;

(4) Sue or be sued and intervene in any court or arbitration forum having jurisdiction over an insolvent member insurer;

(5) Negotiate and become a party to contracts necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act, including assumption or reinsurance agreements relating to the title policies of an insolvent insurer;

(6) Take actions as provided in Subsection A and Subsection B of this section prior to an insurer being declared insolvent by a court, where an insurer is potentially unable to fulfill its contractual obligations or is determined to be impaired; and

(7) Perform other acts necessary or proper to effectuate the purposes of this Act.

C. If the Association fails to act within a reasonable time, the Commissioner shall assume the powers and duties of the Board of Directors of the Association and cause it to act as appropriate.

Section 8. Plan of Operation

A. The Association shall submit to the Commissioner a Plan of Operation and any amendments thereto necessary or suitable to ensure the fair, reasonable, and equitable administration of the Association. The Plan of Operation and any amendments thereto shall become effective upon the approval in writing by the Commissioner. If, at any time, the Association fails to submit suitable amendments to the Plan of Operation, the Commissioner shall, after notice and hearing, adopt rules necessary or advisable to effectuate the provisions of this Act. The rules shall continue in force until modified by the Commissioner or superseded by a plan or amendments submitted by the Association and approved by the Commissioner.

B. All member insurers shall comply with the Plan of Operation, subject to the provisions of this Act.

C. The Plan of Operation, among other things, shall establish procedures for conducting the business of the Association, for handling its assets, for keeping records, and for the conduct of other activities necessary for execution of the powers and duties of the Association.

D. The Plan of Operation may provide that any and all powers and duties of the Association, except those under Section 6 and Section 7 of this Act that are to be performed by the Board of Directors, or be delegated to a corporation, association or other organization that performs, or will perform, functions similar to those of the Association, or its equivalent, in two (2) or more states. Such a corporation, association or organization shall be reimbursed as a servicing facility would be reimbursed and shall be paid by the Association for its costs incurred in performance of such functions.

Section 9. Duties and Powers of Commissioner

A. The Commissioner shall:

(1) Serve on the Association a copy of any complaint seeking an Order of Liquidation with a finding of insolvency against a member insurer domiciled in this state at the same time that such complaint is filed with a court of competent jurisdiction; and

(2) Notify the Association of the existence of an insolvent insurer not later than three (3) days after receipt of notice of the determination of the insolvency; and, upon request of the Board of Directors, provide the Association with a statement of the reported direct premiums written for the [insert time period] of each member insurer.

B. The Commissioner may:

(1) Suspend or revoke, after notice and hearing, the Certificate of Authority to transact insurance in this state of any member insurer that fails to pay an assessment when due or fails to comply with the Plan of Operation. As an alternative, the Commissioner may levy a civil penalty on any member insurer that fails to pay an assessment when due. The civil penalty shall not exceed five percent (5%) of the unpaid assessment per month, except that no civil penalty shall be less than one hundred dollars ($100) a month; and

(2) Revoke the designation of any servicing facility if the Commissioner finds claims are being handled unsatisfactorily.

Section 10. Coordination Among Guaranty Associations

A. The Association may join one or more organizations of other state title guaranty associations of similar purposes, to further the purposes and administer the powers and duties of the Association. The Association may designate one or more of these organizations to act as a liaison for the Association and to the extent which the Association authorizes, to bind the Association in agreements or settlements with the receiver of the insolvent insurer or his or her designated representative.

B. The Association, in cooperation with other obligated or potentially obligated guaranty associations, or their designated representatives, shall make all reasonable efforts to coordinate and cooperate with the receiver, or his or her designated representative, in the most efficient and uniform manner.

Section 11. Effect of Paid Claims

A. Any person recovering under this Act shall be deemed to have assigned his or her rights under the policy to the Association to the extent of his recovery from the Association. Every insured seeking the protection of this Act shall cooperate with the Association to the same extent as he or she would have been required to cooperate with the insolvent insurer. The Association shall have no cause of action against an insured for any sums it has paid out except such causes of action as the insolvent insurer would have had if such sums had been paid by the insolvent insurer. In the case of an insolvent insurer operating on a plan with assessment liability, payments of claims of the Association do not operate to reduce the liability of the insured to the receiver, liquidator, or statutory successor for unpaid assessments.

B. The court having jurisdiction shall grant such claims assigned pursuant to Subsection A of this section and the expenses of the Association or similar organization in another state the same priority as the claims and expenses of policyholders. The Association may make application to the receivership court for reimbursement of such reasonable claims and expenses and upon proper showing to the court for reimbursement of such amounts the court shall order appropriate reimbursement of reasonable claims and expenses to be made.

C. The receiver for the insolvent insurer shall, each time a request for funds is submitted to the Association, but not less than once every six (6) months within the time set by the receivership court, file with the Commissioner or liquidator court of the insolvent insurer, a statement of the covered claims paid, reserves for unpaid claims, claims expense incurred, and the balance of funds then in the possession of the receiver.

Section 12. Non-Duplication of Recovery

Any person having a claim against an insurer under any provision in an insurance policy other than a policy of an insolvent insurer that is also a covered claim, shall be required to first exhaust his or her rights under such policy. Any amount payable on a covered claim under this Act shall be reduced by the amount of any recovery or value thereof received under such insurance policy.

Section 13. Examination of Association; Financial Reports

The Association is subject to examination and shall complete audited financial statements. The Board of directors shall submit to the Commissioner and its member insurers, not later than June 30 of each year, a financial report for the preceding year in a form approved by the Commissioner.

Section 14. Assessment Authority of Commissioner and Association

A. Making of Assessment

(1) If the Commissioner determines that a title insurance company has become insolvent, the Association shall promptly estimate the amount of additional money needed to supplement the assets of the impaired title insurance company to pay all covered claims and administrative expenses.

(2) The Association shall assess title insurance companies in writing an amount as determined under Subsection B of this section. A member insurer does not incur real or contingent liability under this Act until the Association provides the member insurer with a written assessment.

B. Amount of Assessment: Proration of Payment

(1) The Association shall assess member insurers the amount necessary to pay: (a) the Association's obligations under this Act and the expenses of handling covered claims subsequent to an insolvency; and (b) other expenses authorized by this Act.

(2) The assessment of each member insurer must be in the proportion that the net direct written title premiums of that company for the calendar year preceding the assessment bear to the net direct written title premiums of all member insurers for that year.

(2) The total assessment of a member insurer in a year may not exceed an amount equal to two percent (2%) of the member's net direct title premium earned for the calendar year preceding the assessment. If the maximum assessment and the Association's other assets are insufficient in any one year to make all necessary payments, the money available shall be prorated and the unpaid portion shall be paid in subsequent years.

C. Notice and Payment

(1) Not later than the forty-fifth (45th) day before the date an assessment is due, the Association shall notify member insurers of the amount of the assessment.

(2) Not later than the forty-fifth (45th) day after the date an assessment is made, the member insurer shall pay the Association the amount of the assessment.

D. Exemption for Impaired Title Insurance Company

A member insurer is exempt from assessment during the period beginning on the date the Commissioner designates the company as an impaired member insurer and ending on the date the Commissioner determines that the company is no longer an impaired member insurer.

Drafting Note: The term "hazardous financial condition" or "inability to meet obligations" may be substituted for the term "impaired."

E. Deferment

(1) At the discretion of the Commissioner, the Association may defer, in whole or in part, an assessment of a member insurer that would cause the member's financial statement to show amounts of capital or surplus less than the minimum amount required for a Certificate of Authority in any jurisdiction in which the company is authorized to engage in the business of insurance.

(2) The member insurer shall pay the deferred assessment when payment will not reduce capital or surplus below required minimums. The payment shall be refunded to or credited against future assessments of any member insurer receiving a larger assessment because of the deferment, as elected by that member.

(3) During a period of deferment, the member insurer may not pay a dividend to shareholders or policyholders.

F. Accounting; Reports

(1) The Association shall adopt accounting procedures to show how money received from assessments or partial assessments is used.

(2) The Association shall make interim accounting reports as the Commissioner requires.

(3) The Association shall make a final report to the Commissioner showing how money received from assessments or partial assessments has been used, including a statement of any final balance of that money.

G. Use of Assessments

The Association may use money from assessments to negotiate and consummate contracts of reinsurance, assumption of liabilities, or replacement policies from authorized title insurers to provide for outstanding liabilities of covered claims. Assessments shall be used to pay the Association's general expenses and statutory obligations.

H. Failure to Pay

(1) The Association shall promptly report to the Commissioner a failure of a member insurer to pay an assessment when due.

(2) On failure of a member insurer to pay an assessment when due, the Commissioner may take any action as provided in Section 9B of this Act.

(3) A member insurer whose certificate of authority is canceled or surrendered is liable for any unpaid assessments made before the date of the cancellation or surrender.

I. Recovery of Assessment in Rates; Tax Credit

(1) The surcharge on title insurance policies shall be based on historical need and include amounts sufficient to recoup a sum equal to the amounts paid to the Association by the member insurers, less any amounts returned to the member insurers by the Association, and such rates shall not be deemed excessive because they contain an amount reasonably calculated to recoup assessments paid by the member insurers.

(2) Unless the Commissioner determines that all amounts paid as assessments by each member insurer have been recovered under Subsection A of this section, for any amount not recovered the member insurer is entitled to a credit against its premium tax [include reference to state law providing for premium taxes]. The credit may be taken at a rate of twenty percent (20%) each year for five (5) successive years following the date of assessment and, if the member insurer elects, may be taken over an additional number of years.

Drafting Note: State law may not permit this tax offset, as premium taxes are for general fund purposes and assessments as provided in this Act are for a specific purpose.

(3) An amount of a tax credit allowed by this section that is unclaimed may be shown in the member insurer's books and records as an admitted asset for all purposes, including an annual financial statement under [include reference to state law].

Drafting Note: State law may not permit this tax offset; therefore Subsection (2) and Subsection (3) may be omitted.

Section 15. Immunity and Confidentiality

A. There shall be no liability on the part of, and cause of action of any nature shall arise against, any member insurer, the Association or its officers, agents or employees, the Board of Directors, any individual director, or the Commissioner or his or her representative for any action taken by them in the performance of their powers and duties under this Act or for failure to prevent any insolvency.

B. The meetings, activities, recommendations, and decisions of the Board of Directors of the Association as required or permitted in this Act shall not be open to public inspection, nor considered public documents pursuant to [insert relevant state law]. No representative of a member insurer shall be excluded from any meeting of the Board of Directors, with the exception of a representative of an insolvent insurer.

Section 16. Stay of Proceedings

All proceedings in which the insolvent insurer is a party or is obligated to defend a party in any court in this state shall, subject to waiver of the Association for specific cases involving covered claims, be stayed for six (6) months and such additional time as may be determined by the court from the date the insolvency is determined or an ancillary proceeding is instituted in this state, whichever is later, to permit proper defense by the Association of all pending causes of action.

The liquidator, receiver, or statutory successor of an insolvent insurer covered by this Act shall permit access by the Board of Directors, or its authorized representative, to such of the insolvent insurer's records that are necessary for the Board of Directors in carrying out its functions under this Act with regard to covered claims. In addition, the liquidator, receiver, or statutory successor shall provide the Board of Directors, or its authorized representative, with copies of those records upon the request by the Board of Directors and at the expense of the Board of Directors.

Section 17. Termination; Distribution of Funds

A. The Commissioner shall by Order terminate the operation of the Association if he or she finds, after hearing, that there is in effect a statutory or voluntary plan which:

(1) Is a permanent plan that is adequately funded or for which an adequate means of funding is provided; and

(2) Extends, or will extend, to the policyholders of this state protection and benefits with respect to insolvent member insurers not substantially less favorable and effective to the policyholders than the protection provided under this Act.

B. If operation of the Association is terminated or if the Association has no further known obligations, the Association, as soon as possible thereafter, shall distribute the balance of money and assets remaining, after discharge of the functions of the Association, with respect to prior insurer insolvencies not covered by another plan, together with expenses, to the member insurers or former member insurers, pro rata upon the basis of the aggregate of such payments made by the respective insurers during the period of five (5) years next preceding the date of the Order.

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC guideline. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in to find a citation; to perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

Who do I speak to if I have questions?

If you have questions or believe information related to a state should be updated, please contact Jennifer Neuerburg at jneuerburg@naic.org.

Disclaimer: This chart does not constitute a formal legal opinion by the NAIC staff on the provisions of state law and should not be relied upon as such. Nor does this state page reflect a determination as to whether a state meets any applicable accreditation standards. Every effort has been made to provide correct and accurate summaries to assist readers in locating useful information. Readers should consult state law for further details and for the most current information.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2015

TITLE INSURANCE CONSUMER PROTECTION FUND GUIDELINE (#1750)

1. Description of the Project

In 2011, during discussions at Title Insurance (C) Task Force meetings, it was pointed out that only a few states had guaranty funds that would protect title insurance policyholders in the event of a title insurance company insolvency. The Task Force committed to perform a review of the need for a model law or guideline that states that did not already have a title guaranty fund could use to establish a fund in their state. Working with the Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force, the Title Insurance (C) Task Force appointed the Title Insurance Guaranty Fund (C/E) Working Group of the Title Insurance (C) Task Force and Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force. The Working Group was chaired by Cindy Donovan (IN) and John Finston (CA).

With the assistance of NAIC staff, the Working Group developed information about past title insolvencies and how title consumers were affected. The research focused on the following questions:

1. Is there a serious title insolvency problem?
2. Is a 50-state guaranty fund the best way to address this problem?
3. How has the public been affected by title company insolvencies?
4. What is the scope of title guaranty fund payments?
5. How have title insolvencies played out in the past (both with and without title guaranty funds)?
6. Have guaranty funds worked in the states that have them?
7. What steps would a guaranty fund take to manage insolvency?

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Title Insurance Guaranty Fund (C/E) Working Group. Participating states include: California; Colorado; District of Columbia; Indiana; Kansas; Minnesota; Missouri; Nebraska; New Mexico; Oklahoma; Rhode Island; and Texas.

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

"Appoint a Title Insurance Guaranty Fund (C/E) Working Group to consider whether a title insurance guaranty fund model law or guideline should be developed. Determine the attributes of recent title company financial failures. Report the results by the Summer National Meeting."—Fall 2012 Meeting. Charge adopted for 2013.

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process and Due Process

- The following charge was proposed at the 2011 Fall National Meeting: "Consider Development of Model Law or Guideline on Title Insurance Guaranty Association Model Act" (Nov. 4, 2012, National Meeting). The charge was not adopted for the Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee, but it was decided instead to form a joint Title Insurance Guaranty Fund (C/E) Working Group.

- At the 2012 Spring National Meeting, the Task Forces authorized the Title Insurance Guaranty (C/E) Working Group to continue research on title insurance insolvencies, agent defalcations and states with existing title guaranty funds.

- In 2012, the NAIC conducted research regarding title insurance company insolvencies and title agent defalcations and presented the results to the Working Group Nov. 13, 2012.

- Other parties participating in the Working Group discussions were: Agents National Title Insurance Company; American Land Title Association (ALTA); Center for Economic Justice (CEJ); ClosingCorp; Demotech; Fidelity National Title; First American Title; October Research; Old Republic Title Insurance Company (ORTIG); PricewaterhouseCoopers; Security Title Guarantee Corporation of Baltimore; Stewart Title Guaranty Company; Title Insurance Company; and Westcor Land.

- The Working Group chairs recommended that a model law not be developed due to a lack of evidence and instead focus on continued work related to administrative controls identified in the Title Insurance Escrow Theft White Paper rather than develop a title insurance guaranty fund model law or guideline.

- Working Group members voted to proceed with the development of a "Title Guaranty Fund Guideline" that states could implement (Feb. 14, 2013).

- A draft guideline was developed by David Cox (MO) and modified by members of the Working Group and NAIC legal staff (May 28, 2013). The draft guideline was exposed for public comment (July 10, 2013). Written comments were received from ALTA, the American Insurance Association (AIA); and the National Conference of Insurance Guaranty Funds (NCIGF).

- ALTA submitted an alternative "Option 3" version (Dec. 30, 2013). It was rejected in a letter to ALTA after review by the Working Group chairs and NAIC legal staff (January 2014). Additional revisions to the draft were subsequently proposed by ALTA and the Working Group chair.

- The Working Group exposed a revised June 26, 2014, draft "Title Insurance Guaranty Association – Title Insurance Consumer Protection Fund Guideline" (July 8, 2014).

- Comments were received from ALTA and Fidelity National Title (August 11, 2014). In response to comments, additional edits were made to the draft, and the title of the Guideline was revised to Guaranty Association for Title Insurance.

- The Working Group renamed the document to "Title Insurance Guaranty Association-Title Insurance Consumer Protection Fund Guideline" (Sept. 30, 2014).

- On Oct. 23, 2014, the Working Group voted to expose the revised draft for public comment a second time for a four-week period ending Nov. 20, 2014. No additional comments were received.

- A conference call was held Dec. 10, 2014, and an e-vote was conducted to approve forwarding the document to the Title Insurance (C) Task Force and Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force for further consideration (Dec. 15, 2014). The motion passed.

- The Title Insurance (C) Task Force and the Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force adopted the Guideline at the 2015 Spring National Meeting.

5. Discussion of Significant Issues

Initial studies did not indicate that there were enough title insurance company insolvencies or agent defalcations to merit the formation of an NAIC model law for all states. A consumer advocate group, the CEJ, challenged this finding and encouraged the group to continue working on a model law. The Working Group reconsidered discontinuing work on the project and decided that it would be worthwhile to develop guidelines that states that did not have a guaranty fund could consider should they decide to form one.

Initial drafts of guidelines were challenged by industry groups that disagreed with assessment language for guaranty association member companies. Numerous drafts were presented and modified before the Working Group approved a final version in December 2014.

6. Any Other Important Information

PROPERTY AND CASUALTY MODEL RATING LAW (FILE AND USE VERSION)

Table of Contents

Section 1. Purposes of Act

The purposes of this Act are:

A. To prohibit price fixing agreements and other anticompetitive behavior by insurers;

B. To protect policyholders and the public against the adverse effects of excessive, inadequate or unfairly discriminatory rates;

C. To promote price competition among insurers so as to provide rates that are responsive to competitive market conditions;

D. To provide regulatory procedures for the maintenance of appropriate data reporting systems;

E. To provide regulatory controls in the absence of competition;

F. To improve availability, fairness and reliability of insurance;

G. To authorize essential cooperative action among insurers in the ratemaking process and to regulate such activity to prevent practices that tend to substantially lessen competition or create a monopoly;

H. To encourage the most efficient and economical marketing practices; and

I. To cause the provision of price and other information to enable consumers to purchase insurance suitable for their needs and to foster competitive insurance markets.

Section 2. Definitions

A. "Advisory organization" means any entity, including its affiliates or subsidiaries, which either has two (2) or more member insurers or is controlled either directly or indirectly by two (2) or more insurers, and which assists insurers in ratemaking-related activities such as enumerated in Sections 10 and 11. Two (2) or more insurers having a common ownership or operating in this State under common management or control constitute a single insurer for purposes of this definition.

B. "Classification system" or "classification" means the process of grouping risks with similar risk characteristics so that differences in costs may be recognized.

C. "Commercial risk" means any kind of risk which is not a personal risk.

D. "Commissioner" means the Commissioner of Insurance of this state.

E. "Competitive market" means a market which has not been found to be noncompetitive pursuant to Section 4.

F. "Developed losses" means losses (including loss adjustment expenses) adjusted, using standard actuarial techniques, to eliminate the effect of differences between current payment or reserve estimates and those which are anticipated to provide actual ultimate loss (including loss adjustment expense) payments.

G. "Expenses" means that portion of a rate attributable to acquisition, field supervision, collection expenses, general expenses, taxes, licenses and fees.

H. "Experience rating" means a rating procedure utilizing past insurance experience of the individual policyholder to forecast future losses by measuring the policyholder's loss experience against the loss experience of policyholders in the same classification to produce a prospective premium credit, debit or unity modification.

I. "Joint underwriting" means a voluntary arrangement established to provide insurance coverage for a risk pursuant to which two (2) or more insurers jointly contract with the insured at a price and under policy terms agreed upon between the insurers.

J. "Loss adjustment expense" means the expenses incurred by the insurer in the course of settling claims.

K. "Trending" means any procedure for projecting losses to the average date of loss, or premiums or exposures to the average date of writing, for the period during which the policies are to be effective.

L. "Market" means the interaction between buyers and sellers consisting of a product component and a geographic component. A product component consists of identical or readily substitutable products including but not limited to consideration of coverage, policy terms, rate classifications and underwriting. A geographic component is a geographical area in which buyers seek access to the insurance product through sales outlets and other distribution mechanisms. Determination of a geographic component shall consider existing distribution patterns.

M. "Noncompetitive market" means a market for which there is a ruling in effect pursuant to Section 4 that a reasonable degree of competition does not exist.

N. "Personal risk" means homeowners, tenants, private passenger nonfleet automobiles, mobile homes and other property and casualty insurance for personal, family or household needs.

O. "Pool" means a voluntary arrangement, established on an on-going basis, pursuant to which two or more insurers participate in the sharing of risks on a predetermined basis. The pool may operate through an association, syndicate or other pooling agreement.

P. "Prospective loss costs" means that portion of a rate that does not include provisions for expenses (other than loss adjustment expenses) or profit, and are based on historical aggregate losses and loss adjustment expenses adjusted through development to their ultimate value and projected through trending to a future point in time.

Q. "Rate" means that cost of insurance per exposure unit whether expressed as a single number or as a prospective loss cost with an adjustment to account for the treatment of expenses, profit, and individual insurer variation in loss experience, prior to any application of individual risk variations based on loss or expense considerations, and does not include minimum premium.

R. "Residual market mechanism" means an arrangement, either voluntary or mandated by law, involving participation by insurers in the equitable apportionment among them of insurance which may be afforded applicants who are unable to obtain insurance through ordinary methods.

S. "Special assessments" means guaranty fund assessments, Second Injury Fund assessments, Vocational Rehabilitation Fund Assessments, and other similar assessments. Special assessments shall not be considered as either expenses or losses.

Drafting Note: A state may wish to add "assessments for residual market mechanisms" or other assessments as one of the listed special assessments.

T. "Statistical agent" means an entity that has been licensed by the commissioner to collect statistics from insurers and provide reports developed from these statistics to the commissioner for the purpose of fulfilling the statistical reporting obligations of those insurers under this Act.

U. "Supplementary rating information" includes any manual or plan of rates, classification, rating schedule, minimum premium, policy fee, rating rule, underwriting rule and any other similar information needed to determine the applicable rate in effect or to be in effect.

Drafting Note: A "plan of rates" filed by an insurer would contain final rates including provisions for expenses and profit. A "plan of rates" filed by an advisory organization would contain only prospective loss costs which would exclude provisions for expenses (other than loss adjustment expenses) and profit.

V. "Supporting information" means:

(1) The experience and judgment of the filer and the experience or data of other insurers or advisory organizations relied upon by the filer;

(2) The interpretation of any other data relied upon by the filer;

(3) Descriptions of methods used in making the rates; and

(4) Any other information required by the commissioner to be filed.

Section 3. Scope of Act

This Act applies to all forms of casualty insurance, including fidelity, surety and guaranty bond, to all forms of fire, marine and inland marine insurance, and to any combination of any of the foregoing, on risks or operations located in this State. Inland marine insurance shall be deemed to include insurance now or hereafter defined by statute, or by interpretation thereof, or if not so defined or interpreted, by ruling of the commissioner, or as established by general custom of the business, as inland marine insurance.

Drafting Note: The kinds of insurance are named herein in their generally accepted trade sense unless otherwise defined by statute or regulation. The wording of the section should be fitted to any laws of the state which classify insurance.

This Act shall not apply to:

A. Reinsurance, other than statutorily authorized joint reinsurance mechanisms to the extent stated in Section 13;

B. Accident and health insurance;

C. Insurance of vessels or craft, their cargoes, marine builders' risks, marine protection and indemnity, or other risks commonly insured under marine, excluding inland marine insurance as determined by the commissioner;

D. Title insurance;

E. Insurance;

Drafting Note: Here should be listed (a) other kinds of insurance, if any, and (b) particular types of insurers, if any, to which this Act is not to apply in the state or jurisdiction adopting the Act. The specific exemption of aircraft hull and liability insurance contained in the 1946 NAIC Model Bills is omitted from Section 3 of this Act. A number of states have, since 1946, provided for regulation of aircraft hull and liability insurance rates.

Section 4. Competitive Market

A competitive market is presumed to exist unless the commissioner, after hearing, determines that a reasonable degree of competition does not exist in the market and the commissioner issues a ruling to that effect. Such a rule shall expire no later than one year after issue unless the commissioner renews the rule after hearings and a finding as to the continued lack of a reasonable degree of competition. In determining whether a reasonable degree of competition exists, the commissioner shall consider relevant tests of workable competition pertaining to market structure, market performance and market conduct and the practical opportunities available to consumers in the market to acquire pricing and other consumer information and to compare and obtain insurance from competing insurers.

Drafting Note: Any state desiring an alternative section incorporating specific examples of tests of workable competition may wish to use the following:

[A competitive market is presumed to exist unless the commissioner, after hearing, determines that a reasonable degree of competition does not exist in the market and the commissioner issues a ruling to that effect. Such a rule shall expire no later than one year after issue, unless the commissioner renews the rule after hearing and a finding as to the continued lack of a reasonable degree of competition. In determining whether a reasonable degree of competition exists, the commissioner shall consider relevant tests of workable competition pertaining to market structure, market performance and market conduct and the practical opportunities available to consumers in the market to acquire pricing and other consumer information and to compare and obtain insurance from competing insurers. Such tests may include, but are not limited to, the following: size and number of firms actively engaged in the market; market shares and changes in market shares of firms; ease of entry and exit from a given market; underwriting restrictions; whether profitability for companies generally in the market segment is unreasonably high; availability of consumer information concerning the product and sales outlets or other sales mechanisms; and efforts of insurers to provide consumer information. The determination of competition involves the interaction of the various tests and the weight given to specific tests depends upon the particular situation and pattern of test results.]

Section 5. Rate Standards

Rates shall be made in accordance with the following provisions:

A. Rates shall not be excessive, inadequate or unfairly discriminatory.

(1) Excessive Rates.

(a) Competitive market. A rate in a competitive market is not excessive.

(b) Noncompetitive market. A rate in a noncompetitive market is excessive if it is likely to produce a profit that is unreasonably high for the insurance provided or if expenses are unreasonably high in relation to services rendered.

(2) Inadequate Rates. A rate is not inadequate unless such rate is clearly insufficient to sustain projected losses, expenses and special assessments in the class of business to which it applies and the use of such rate has or, if continued, will have the effect of substantially lessening competition or the tendency to create monopoly in any market.

Drafting Note: The following paragraph may modify Section 5A(2). It is presented for those states that wish to supplement the financial regulatory laws:

[A rate is not inadequate unless: (a) the rate is unreasonably low for the insurance provided and the continued use of the rate endangers the solvency of the insurer using it; or unless (b) the rate is unreasonably low for the insurance provided and the use of the rate by the insurer has, or if continued will have, the effect of destroying competition or creating a monopoly.]

(3) Unfairly Discriminatory Rates. Unfair discrimination exists if, after allowing for practical limitations, price differentials fail to reflect equitably the differences in expected losses and expenses. A rate is not unfairly discriminatory if it is averaged broadly among persons insured under a group, franchise or blanket policy or a mass marketed plan. As used in this paragraph, a mass marketed plan means a method of selling property-liability insurance wherein:

(a) The insurance is offered to employees of particular employers or to members of particular associations or organizations or to persons grouped in other ways, except groupings formed principally for the purpose of obtaining such insurance; and

(b) The employer, association or other organization, if any, has agreed to, or otherwise affiliated itself with, the sale of such insurance to its employees or members.

(4) Rating Methods. In determining whether rates comply with the excessiveness standard in a noncompetitive market under Paragraph (1)(b), the inadequacy standards under Paragraph (2) and the unfair discrimination standard under Paragraph (3), the following criteria shall apply:

(a) Basic factors in rates. Due consideration shall be given to past and prospective loss experience within and outside this State; to the conflagration and catastrophe hazards; to a reasonable margin for profit and contingencies; to dividends, savings, or unabsorbed premium deposits allowed or returned by insurers to their policyholders, members or subscribers; to past and prospective expenses both countrywide and those specially applicable to this State; and to provisions for special assessments and to all other relevant factors within and outside this State.

(b) Classification. Risks may be grouped by classifications for the establishment of rates and minimum premiums. Classification rates may be modified to produce rates for individual risks in accordance with rating plans which establish standards for measuring variations in hazards or expense provisions, or both. Such standards may measure any differences among risks that can be demonstrated to have a probable effect upon losses or expenses. No risk classification, however, may be based upon race, creed, national origin or the religion of the insured.

(c) Expenses. The expense provisions included in the rates to be used by an insurer shall reflect the operating methods of the insurer and its anticipated expenses.

(d) Profits. The rates may contain provision for contingencies and an allowance permitting a reasonable profit. In determining the reasonableness of the profit, consideration shall be given to all investment income attributable to the line of insurance.

Section 6. Rate Filings

A. (1) Every insurer shall file with the commissioner, except as to inland marine risks which are not written according to manual rates or rating plans, every manual, minimum premium, class rate, rating schedule or rating plan and every other rating rule, and every modification of any of the foregoing which it proposes to use. An insurer may file its rates by either filing its final rates or by filing a multiplier and, if applicable, an expense constant adjustment to be applied to prospective loss costs that have been filed by an advisory organization on behalf of the insurer as permitted by Section 14. Every such filing shall state the effective date, and shall indicate the character and extent of the coverage contemplated.

(2) Every insurer shall file or incorporate by reference to material which has been filed with or approved by the commissioner, at the same time as the filing of the rate, all supplementary rating and supporting information to be used in support of or in conjunction with a rate. The information furnished in support of a filing may include or consist of a reference to:

(a) The experience or judgment of the insurer or information filed by the advisory organization on behalf of the insurer as permitted by Section 14;

(b) Its interpretation of any statistical data it relies upon;

(c) The experience of other insurers or advisory organizations; or

(d) Any other relevant factors.

A filing and any supporting information shall be open to public inspection upon receipt of the filing.

(3) When a filing is not accompanied by the information upon which the insurer supports such filing, the commissioner may require such insurer to furnish the information upon which it supports such filing and in that event the waiting period shall commence as of the date such information is furnished. Until the requested information is provided, the filing shall not be deemed complete or filed nor available for use by the insurer. If the requested information is not provided within a reasonable time period, the filing may be returned to the insurer as not filed and not available for use.

(4) After reviewing an insurer's filing, the commissioner may require that the insurer's rates be based upon the insurer's own loss, special assessment and expense information. If the insurer's loss or allocated loss adjustment expense information is not actuarially credible, as determined by the commissioner, the insurer may use or supplement its experience with information filed with the commissioner by an advisory organization or statistical agent.

(5) Insurers utilizing the services of an advisory organization must provide with their rate filing, at the request of the commissioner, a description of the rationale for such use, including its own information and method of utilization of the advisory organization's information.

Drafting Note: States may desire to move Paragraphs (2), (3) and (4) to Section 6D. If these paragraphs are moved to Section 6D, then the following language should be added to Section 6B: "The commissioner may require an insurer to furnish any additional information."

B. The commissioner shall review filings as soon as reasonably possible after they have been made in order to determine whether they meet the requirements of this Act.

C. In a competitive market, every insurer shall file with the commissioner the information specified in Subsection A of this section that it will use in this state. The rates and supplementary rating information shall be filed on or before the effective date. In a competitive market, if the commissioner finds, after a hearing, that an insurer's rates require closer supervision because of the insurer's financial condition or unfairly discriminatory rating practices, the insurer shall file with the commissioner at least [insert number of days] before the effective date, all such rates and supplementary rating information and supporting information as prescribed by the commissioner. Upon application by the filer, the commissioner may authorize an earlier effective date.

D. In a noncompetitive market, subject to the exception specified in Subsection E of this section, each filing shall be on file for a waiting period of [insert number of days] days before it becomes effective, which period may be extended by the commissioner for an additional period not to exceed [insert number of days] days if written notice is given within such waiting period to the insurer or advisory organization which made the filing that additional time is needed for the consideration of the filing. Upon written application by the insurer, the commissioner may authorize a filing which has been reviewed to become effective before the expiration of the waiting period or any extension thereof. A filing shall be deemed to meet the requirements of this Act unless disapproved by the commissioner within the waiting period or any extension thereof.

Drafting Note: The waiting period specified in current state statutes ranges from 15 to 90 days.

E. Under such rules and regulations as may be adopted, the commissioner may, by written order, suspend or modify the requirement of filing as to any kind of insurance, subdivision or combination thereof, or as to classes of risks, for which the rates cannot practicably be filed before they are used. The commissioner may make such examination as deemed advisable to ascertain whether any rates affected by such order meet the standards set forth in Section 5.

F. Upon the written application of the insurer and insured, stating its reasons therefore, filed with and approved by the commissioner, a rate in excess of that provided by a filing otherwise applicable may be used on any specific risk.

G. No insurer shall make or issue a contract or policy except in accordance with the filings which have been approved and are in effect for said insurer as provided in this Act or in accordance with Subsections E or F of this section. This subsection shall not apply to contracts or policies for inland marine risks as to which filings are not required.

H. A rate for a residual market in which insurers are mandated by law to participate shall not become effective until approved by the commissioner.

Drafting Note: To accommodate the transition from a prior rating law to this model, consideration should be given to inclusion of "transitional language" such as:

"Nothing in this Act shall be construed to require an advisory organization or its members or its subscribers to immediately refile final rates or premium charges previously approved by the commissioner. Members or subscribers of an advisory organization are authorized to continue to use insurance rates or premium charges approved before the effective date of this act or decreases from those rates or premium charges filed by the advisory organization and subsequently approved after the effective date of this section. "

Section 7. Disapproval of Filings

A. For filings made in a noncompetitive market and residual market filings, if within the waiting period or any extension thereof as provided in Section 6D, the commissioner finds that a filing does not meet the requirements of this Act, written notice of disapproval shall be sent to the insurer or advisory organization which made the filing, specifying therein in what respects the filing fails to meet the requirements of this Act and stating that such filing shall not become effective. If a filing is disapproved by the commissioner, the insurer or advisory organization may request a hearing on the disapproval within thirty (30) days and the commissioner shall schedule that hearing within thirty (30) days of the receipt of the request. The insurer or advisory organization bears the burden of proving compliance with the standards established by this Act.

B. If at any time after a rate has been approved and for filings made in a competitive market, the commissioner finds that the rate no longer meets the requirements of this Act, the commissioner may order the discontinuance of use of the rate. The order of discontinuance may be issued after a hearing with at least ten (10) days' prior notice for all insurers affected by the order. The order must be in writing and state the grounds for the order. It shall also state when, within a reasonable time thereafter, the filing will be deemed no longer effective. The order shall not affect any contract or policy made or issued prior to the expiration of the period set forth in the order. The commissioner's order may include a provision for a premium adjustment for contracts or policies made or issued after the effective date of the order.

C. Any insured aggrieved with respect to any filing which is in effect may make written application to the commissioner for a hearing thereon. The application shall specify the grounds to be relied upon by the applicant. If the commissioner shall find that the application is made in good faith, that the applicant would be so aggrieved if his grounds are established, and that such grounds otherwise justify holding such a hearing, a hearing shall be held within thirty (30) days after receipt of such application upon not less than ten (10) days' written notice to the applicant and to every insurer and advisory organization which made such filing.

If, after such hearing, the commissioner finds that the filing does not meet the requirements of this Act, an order shall issue specifying in what respects such filing fails to meet the requirements of this Act, and stating when, within a reasonable period thereafter, such filing shall no longer be deemed to be in effect. Copies of the order shall be sent to the applicant and to every such insurer and advisory organization. The order shall not affect any contract or policy made or issued prior to the expiration of the period set forth in the order.

D. Whenever an insurer has no legally effective rates as a result of the commissioner's disapproval of rates or other act, the commissioner shall on request of the insurer specify interim rates for the insurer that are high enough to protect the interest of all parties and may order that a specified portion of the premiums be placed in an escrow account approved by the commissioner. When the new rates become legally effective, the commissioner shall order the escrowed funds or any overcharge in the interim rates to be distributed appropriately, except that refunds to policyholders that are de minimis shall not be required.

Section 8. Monitoring Competition

In determining whether or not a competitive market exists pursuant to Section 4, the commissioner shall monitor the degree of competition in this State. In doing so, the commissioner shall utilize existing relevant information, analytical systems and other sources; cause or participate in the development of new relevant information, analytical systems and other sources; or rely on some combination thereof. Such activities may be conducted internally within the insurance department, in cooperation with other state insurance departments, through outside contractors and/or in any other appropriate manner.

Section 9. Information to be Furnished Insureds: Hearings and Appeals of Insureds

A. Every advisory organization and every insurer shall, within a reasonable time after receiving written request, furnish to any insured affected by a rate made by the insurer, or to the authorized representative of the insured, all pertinent information as to such rate. Every advisory organization and every insurer shall provide within this State reasonable means whereby the insured aggrieved by the application of its rating system may be heard, in person or by his or her authorized representative, on written request to review the manner in which such rating system has been applied in connection with the insurance afforded the insured. If the advisory organization or insurer fails to grant or reject such request within thirty (30) days after it is made, the applicant may proceed in the same manner as if the application had been rejected. The insured affected by the action of the advisory organization or insurer on such request may, within thirty (30) days after written notice of such action, appeal to the commissioner, who, after a hearing held upon not less than ten (10) days' written notice to the appellant and to the advisory organization or insurer, may affirm or reverse such action.

Drafting Note: Language could be inserted here which would allow an insurer or advisory organization to charge a reasonable fee to cover the expense of providing any information requested under this section, but charges should not be permitted when the information relates to the specific application of an experience rating modification or a schedule rating modification.

B. If, after a hearing held under this section, it is determined that the rates charged by an insurer are in excess of the otherwise appropriate rate, such overcharge shall be refunded to the insured.

Section 10. Consumer Information

The commissioner shall utilize, develop or cause to be developed a consumer information system(s) which will provide and disseminate price and other relevant information on a readily available basis to purchasers of homeowners, private passenger nonfleet automobile, or property insurance for personal, family or household needs. The commissioner may utilize, develop or cause to be developed a consumer information system(s) which will provide and disseminate price and other relevant information on a readily available basis to purchasers of insurance for commercial risks and personal risks not otherwise specified herein. Such activity may be conducted internally within the insurance department, in cooperation with other state insurance departments, through outside contractors and/or in any other appropriate manner. To the extent deemed necessary and appropriate by the commissioner, insurers, advisory organizations, statistical agents and other persons or organizations involved in conducting the business of insurance in this State, to which this section applies, shall cooperate in the development and utilization of a consumer information system(s).

Drafting Note: For jurisdictions that need a separate and distinct means of funding a consumer information system the following provision may be added to Section 10:

The cost of complying with this section shall be assessed against insurers subject to this Act and authorized to write types of business subject to a consumer information system. The assessments shall be made on an equitable and practicable basis established, after hearing, in a rule promulgated by the commissioner. This activity shall be conducted in a reasonably economical manner consistent with the purposes of this Act.

Section 11. Licensing Advisory Organizations and Statistical Agents

A. No advisory organization or statistical agent shall provide any service relating to statistical collection or the rates of any insurance subject to this Act, and no insurer shall utilize the services of such organization for such purposes unless the organization has obtained a license under Subsection C.

B. No advisory organization or statistical agent shall refuse to supply any services for which it is licensed in this State to any insurer authorized to do business in this State and offering to pay the fair and usual compensation for the services.

C. Licensing.

(1) An advisory organization or statistical agent applying for a license shall include with its application:

(a) A copy of its constitution, charter, articles of organization, agreement, association or incorporation, and a copy of its bylaws, plan of operation and any other rules or regulations governing the conduct of its business;

(b) A list of its members and subscribers;

(c) The name and address of one or more residents of this State upon whom notices, process affecting it, or orders of the commissioner may be served;

(d) A statement showing its technical qualifications for acting in the capacity for which it seeks a license;

(e) A biography of the ownership and management of the organization; and

(f) Any other relevant information and documents that the commissioner may require.

(2) Every organization which has applied for a license shall notify the commissioner of every material change in the facts or in the documents on which its application was based. Any amendment to a document filed under this section shall be filed at least thirty (30) days before it becomes effective.

(3) If the commissioner finds that the applicant and the natural persons through whom it acts are competent, trustworthy and technically qualified to provide the services proposed, and that all requirements of the law are met; he or she shall issue a license specifying the authorized activity of the applicant. The commissioner shall not issue a license if the proposed activity would tend to create a monopoly or to substantially lessen the competition in any market.

(4) Licenses issued pursuant to this section shall remain in effect for one year unless the license is suspended or revoked. The commissioner may at any time, after hearing, revoke or suspend the license of an advisory organization or statistical agent which does not comply with the requirements and standards of this Act.

(5) Advisory organizations wishing to operate as statistical agents may be so authorized under their license as an advisory organization. A separate license is not required.

Note: States may wish to insert language here providing for an annual license fee for advisory organizations and statistical agents.

Section 12. Insurers and Advisory Organizations: Prohibited Activity

A. No insurer or advisory organization shall:

(1) Attempt to monopolize, or combine or conspire with any other person to monopolize an insurance market.

(2) Engage in a boycott, on a concerted basis, of an insurance market.

B. (1) No insurer shall agree with any other insurer or with an advisory organization to mandate adherence to or to mandate use of any rate, prospective loss cost, rating plan, rating schedule, rating rule, policy or bond form, rate classification, rate territory, underwriting rule, survey, inspection or similar material, except as needed to facilitate the reporting of statistics to advisory organizations, statistical agents or the commissioner.

The fact that two (2) or more insurers, whether or not members or subscribers of an advisory organization, use consistently or intermittently the same rates, prospective loss cost, rating plans, rating schedules, rating rules, policy or bond forms, rate classifications, rate territories, underwriting rules, surveys or inspections or similar materials is not sufficient in itself to support a finding that an agreement exists.

(2) Two (2) or more insurers having a common ownership or operating in this State under common management or control may act in concert between or among themselves with respect to any matters pertaining to those activities authorized in this Act as if they constituted a single insurer.

C. No insurer or advisory organization shall make any arrangement with any other insurer, advisory organization, or other person which has the purpose or effect of unreasonably restraining trade or unreasonably lessening competition in the business of insurance.

Section 13. Advisory Organizations and Statistical Agents: Prohibited Activity

In addition to the other prohibitions contained in this Act, except as specifically permitted under Section 14, no advisory organization or statistical agent shall compile or distribute recommendations relating to rates that include expenses (other than loss adjustment expenses) or profit.

Section 14. Advisory Organizations: Permitted Activity

Any advisory organization in addition to other activities not prohibited, is authorized, on behalf of its members and subscribers, to:

A. Develop statistical plans including territorial and class definitions;

B. Collect statistical data from members, subscribers or any other source;

C. Prepare, file and distribute prospective loss costs which may include provisions for special assessments;

D. Prepare, file and distribute factors, calculations or formulas pertaining to classification, territory, increased limits and other variables;

E. Prepare, file and distribute manuals of rating rules, rating schedules and other supplementary rating information that do not include final rates, expense provisions, profit provisions or minimum premiums;

F. Distribute information that is required or directed to be filed with the commissioner;

G. Conduct research and on-site inspections in order to prepare classifications of public fire defenses;

H. Consult with public officials regarding public fire protection as it would affect members, subscribers and others;

I. Conduct research in order to discover, identify and classify information relating to causes or prevention of losses;

J. Conduct research relating to the impact of statutory changes upon prospective loss costs and special assessments;

K. Prepare, file and distribute policy forms and endorsements and consult with members, subscribers and others relative to their use and application;

L. Conduct research and on-site inspections for the purpose of providing risk information relating to individual structures;

M. Conduct on-site inspections to determine rating classifications for individual insureds;

N. For workers' compensation insurance, establish a committee which may include insurance company representatives to review the determination of the rating classification for individual insureds and suggest modifications to the classification system.

O. Collect, compile and publish past and current prices of individual insurers, provided such information is also made available to the general public at a reasonable cost;

P. Collect and compile exposure and loss experience for the purpose of individual risk experience ratings;

Q. File final rates, at the direction of the commissioner, for residual market mechanisms;

R. Furnish any other services, as approved or directed by the commissioner, related to those enumerated in this section.

Section 15. Statistical Agents: Permitted Activity

In addition to other activities not prohibited, any statistical agent is authorized, on behalf of its members and subscribers, to:

A. Develop statistical plans including territorial and class definitions;

B. Collect statistical data from members, subscribers or any other source;

C. Distribute information that is required or directed to be filed with the commissioner;

D. Collect, compile and distribute past and current prices of individual insurers and publish such information;

E. Collect and compile exposure and loss experience for the purpose of individual risk experience ratings, and

F. Furnish any other services, as approved or directed by the commissioner, related to those enumerated in this section.

Section 16. Advisory Organizations: Filing Requirements

Every advisory organization shall file with the commissioner for approval every statistical plan, all prospective loss costs, provisions for special assessments and all supplementary rating information and every change or amendment or modification of any of the foregoing proposed for use in this State. Such filings shall be subject to the provisions of Sections 6 and 7 and other provisions of this Act relating to filings made by insurers.

Section 17. Joint Underwriting, Joint Reinsurance Pool and Residual Market Activities

A. Notwithstanding Section 12B(1), insurers participating in joint underwriting, joint reinsurance pools or residual market mechanisms may in connection with such activity act in cooperation with each other in the making of rates, rating systems, policy forms, underwriting rules, surveys, inspections and investigations, the furnishing of loss and expense statistics or other information, or carrying on research. Joint underwriting, joint reinsurance pools and residual market mechanisms shall not be deemed advisory organizations.

B. Except to the extent modified by this section, insurers, joint underwriting, joint reinsurance pool and residual market mechanism activities are subject to the other provisions of this Act.

C. If, after hearing, the commissioner finds that any activity or practice of an insurer participating in joint underwriting or a pool is unfair, is unreasonable, will tend to lessen competition in any market or is otherwise inconsistent with the provisions or purposes of this Act, the commissioner may issue a written order and require the discontinuance of such activity or practice.

D. Every pool shall file with the commissioner a copy of its constitution; its articles of incorporation, agreement or association; its bylaws, rules and regulations governing its activities; its members; the name and address of a resident of this State upon whom notices or orders of the commissioner or process may be served; and any changes in amendments or changes in the foregoing.

E. Any residual market mechanism, plan or agreement to implement such a mechanism, and any changes or amendments thereto, shall be submitted in writing to the commissioner for consideration and approval, together with such information as may be reasonably required. The commissioner shall approve only such agreements as are found to contemplate: (i) the use of rates which meet the standards prescribed by this Act, and (ii) activities and practices that are not unfair, unreasonable or otherwise inconsistent with the provisions of this Act. At any time after such agreements are in effect, the commissioner may review the practices and activities of the adherents to such agreements and if, after a hearing, the commissioner finds that any such practice or activity is unfair or unreasonable, or is otherwise inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, the commissioner may issue a written order to the parties and either require the discontinuance of such acts or revoke approval of any such agreement.

Section 18. Examinations

The commissioner may, as often as he or she may deem it expedient, make or cause to be made an examination of each advisory organization or statistical agent referred to in Section 11 and of each group, association or other organization referred to in Section 17, provided that each statistical agent and advisory organization licensed in this state shall be examined at least once every five (5) years. The reasonable costs of any such examination shall be paid by the advisory organization, statistical agent or group, association or other organization examined. The officers, manager, agents and employees of such advisory organization, statistical agent, or group, association or other organization may be examined at any time under oath and shall exhibit all books, records, accounts, documents or agreements governing its method of operation. In lieu of any such examination, the commissioner may accept the report of an examination made by the insurance supervisory official of another state, pursuant to the laws of that state.

Drafting Note: Under the laws of several of the states, reports on examination are not made public until the organization examined has had an opportunity to review the proposed report and to have a hearing with reference thereto, after which the report is filed for public inspection and becomes admissible in evidence as a public record. In any state that has no such law, it is suggested that provisions to this effect be adopted. Examinations of statistical agents and advisory organizations require specialized expertise; commonly require the hiring of contractors, and can be expensive. States adopting mandatory examination provisions should plan for personnel to be able to undertake or oversee these examinations, and check whether the costs for examinations, even though charged to the organization being examined, must go through the insurance department's budget.

Section 19. Workers' Compensation

A. Every workers' compensation insurer shall adhere to a uniform classification system and uniform experience rating system filed with the commissioner by an advisory organization designated by the commissioner.

B. Every workers' compensation insurer shall report its experience in accordance with the statistical plans and other reporting requirements in use by an advisory organization designated by the commissioner.

C. A workers' compensation insurer may develop subclassifications of the uniform classification system upon which rates may be made. Such subclassifications and their filing shall be subject to the provisions of this Act applicable to filings generally.

D. A workers' compensation insurer may develop rating plans which identify loss experience as a factor to be used. Such rating plans and their filing shall be subject to the provisions of the Act applicable to filings generally.

E. The commissioner shall disapprove subclassifications, rating plans, or other variations from manual rules filed by a workers' compensation insurer if the insurer fails to demonstrate that the data thereby produced can be reported consistent with the uniform classification system and experience rating system and in such a fashion so as to allow for the application of experience rating filed by the advisory organization.

Section 20. Statistical and Rate Administration

A. The commissioner may adopt reasonable rules for use by companies to record and report to the commissioner their rates and other information determined by the commissioner to be necessary or appropriate for the administration of this Act and the effectuation of its purposes.

B. The commissioner may promulgate reasonable rules to assure that the experience of all insurers is made available at least annually in such form and detail as is necessary to aid in effecting the purposes of this Act. The commissioner may designate one or more advisory organizations or statistical agents to assist in gathering such experience and making compilations thereof. The scope of such rules may include the data which must be reported by insurers, definitions of data elements, the timing and frequency of statistical reporting by insurers, data quality standards, data edit and audit requirements, data retention requirements, reports to be generated by advisory organizations or statistical agents to fulfill the requirements of this section, and the timing of such reports.

Drafting Note: States that want the commissioner to be required to promulgate rules for the collection of statistical experience can replace the "may" in the first line of Subsection B with "shall".

C. The following provisions apply only to the disclosure of data and reports provided to the commissioner pursuant to this section and of reports produced by the commissioner from data and reports provided to the commissioner pursuant to this section:

(1) Data shall not be disclosed when it is likely to identify individual policyholders or claimants, or where there is reason to suspect that individual open claim reserves may be identified with individual policyholders or claimants.

Drafting Note: Paragraph (1) should be amended for states that wish to provide for the release of the names of individual policyholders without their permission for the purpose of assigned risk depopulation programs. The amendment should allow the commissioner to release such names on a basis designed to protect policyholder privacy by restricting distribution to producers and insurers interested in writing this business on a voluntary basis.

(2) The commissioner may agree in advance to withhold data from public disclosure when confidentiality is requested by the insurer, advisory organization or statistical agent providing the data to the commissioner, but only if the data include data elements that the commissioner had not required, prior to their writing or occurrence, to be recorded by insurers.

(3) Unless exempted by Paragraph (1) or (2), reports from a statistical agent or advisory organization in which the information is summed and presented on a combined basis for the insurers reporting to that statistical agent or advisory organization shall be open to disclosure.

D. Reasonable rules and plans may be promulgated by the commissioner for the interchange of data necessary for the application of rating plans.

E. In order to assist in the performance of the commissioner's duties under this Act, the commissioner may share documents, materials and other information, including confidential and privileged documents, materials or information with other state, federal and international regulatory agencies, with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, its affiliates or subsidiaries, and with state, federal and international law enforcement authorities, provided that the recipient agrees to maintain the confidentiality and privileged status of the document, material or other information.

Section 21. Rules and Regulations

The commissioner may make reasonable rules and regulations necessary, including definitions of the rate standards contained in Section 5, to effect the purposes of this Act.

Section 22. False or Misleading Information

No person or organization shall willfully withhold information which will affect the rates or premiums chargeable under this Act from, or knowingly give false or misleading information to the commissioner, any statistical agent, any advisory organization or any insurer. A violation of this section shall subject the one guilty of such violation to the penalties provided in Section 25 of this Act.

Section 23. Assigned Risks

Agreements may be made among insurers with respect to the equitable apportionment among them of insurance which may be afforded applicants who are in good faith entitled to, but who are unable to procure such insurance through ordinary methods, and such insurers may agree among themselves on the use of reasonable rate modifications for such insurance, such agreements and rate modifications to be subject to the approval of the commissioner.

Drafting Note: This section is taken from the Casualty and Surety Model Bill approved in 1946 by the NAIC. Since then a number of states have enacted assigned risk provisions of more limited scope. There is no intent here to recommend extension of assigned risk provisions in present state statutes.

This section does not purport to deal with the questions as to whether Assigned Risk Plans should be voluntary or statutory, nor as to what features, including judicial review, should be contained in such plans. If these questions are to be dealt with by statutory provision, such provision should preferably be in another statute.

Section 24. Exemptions

The commissioner may by his or her own initiative or upon request of any person, by rule exempt any market from any or all of the provisions of this Act, if and to the extent that the exemption is necessary to achieve the purposes of this chapter.

Section 25. Penalties

The commissioner may, upon a finding that any person or organization has violated any provision of this Act, impose a penalty of not more than $10,000 for each such violation, but if the violation is found to be willful, a penalty of not more than $25,000 may be imposed for each violation. Such penalties may be in addition to any other penalty provided by law.

For purposes of this section, any insurer using a rate for which the insurer has failed to file the rate, supplementary rate information, underwriting rules or guides, or supporting information as required by this Act, shall have committed a separate violation for each day such failure continues.

The commissioner may suspend or revoke the license of any advisory organization, statistical agent or insurer which fails to comply with an order of the commissioner within the time limited by such order, or any extension thereof which the commissioner may grant.

The commissioner may determine when a suspension of license shall become effective and it shall remain in effect for the period fixed by him or her, unless the commissioner modifies or rescinds such suspension, or until the order upon which such suspension is based is modified, rescinded or reversed.

No penalty shall be imposed and no license shall be suspended or revoked except upon a written order of the commissioner stating his or her findings, made after hearing.

Drafting Note: States may wish to insert a section here regarding hearing procedure and judicial review which references the state's administrative procedures act.

Section 26. Laws Repealed

Sections [insert applicable sections] of the statutes of this state are hereby repealed. All other laws or parts of laws inconsistent with the provisions of this Act are hereby repealed.

Section 27. Severability

If any section, subsection, subdivision, paragraph, sentence or clause of this Act is held invalid or unconstitutional, such decision shall not affect the remaining portions of this Act.

Section 28. Effective Date

This Act shall take effect [insert effective date].

Drafting Note: The effective date of this Act should be set to allow state insurance departments, insurance companies and advisory organizations to prepare themselves to carry out the purposes of the Act. One year is recommended.

PROPERTY AND CASUALTY MODEL RATE AND POLICY FORM LAW GUIDELINE

Table of Contents

Section 1. Purposes of Act

The purposes of this Act are:

A. To prohibit price fixing agreements and other anticompetitive behavior by insurers;

B. To protect policyholders and the public against the adverse effects of excessive, inadequate or unfairly discriminatory rates;

C. To promote beneficially competitive markets and to protect insurance consumers from the absence of beneficially competitive markets;

D. To provide regulatory procedures for the maintenance of appropriate data reporting systems;

E. To improve availability, fairness and reliability of insurance;

F. To authorize essential cooperative action among insurers in the ratemaking process and to regulate such activity to prevent practices that tend to substantially lessen competition or create a monopoly;

G. To promote loss prevention through rating and policy forms;

H. To cause the provision of price and other information to enable consumers to purchase insurance suitable for their needs and to foster competitive insurance markets; and

I. To regulate insurance contracts to the end that they not be contrary to the laws of the state, misleading, illusory, ambiguous, deceptive, contrary to public policy, unreasonably restrictive, or likely to mislead or deceive the policyholder, or contain inconsistent provisions.

Section 2. Definitions

A. "Advisory organization" means an entity, including its affiliates or subsidiaries, that either has two (2) or more member insurers or is controlled either directly or indirectly by two (2) or more insurers, and that assists insurers in promulgation of forms and ratemaking-related activities such as enumerated in Sections 17, 18 and 19. Two (2) or more insurers having a common ownership or operating in this state under common management or control constitute a single insurer for purposes of this definition.

B. "Classification system" or "classification" means the process of grouping risks with similar risk characteristics so that differences in costs may be recognized.

C. "Commercial risk" means any kind of risk that is not a personal risk.

D. "Commissioner" means the Commissioner of Insurance of this state.

E. "Common underwriting management" means an arrangement by which insurers, whether financially related or not, share underwriting facilities.

F. "Competitive market" means a market that has not been found to be noncompetitive pursuant to Section 4.

G "Developed losses" means losses (including loss adjustment expenses) adjusted, using standard actuarial techniques, to eliminate the effect of differences between current payment or reserve estimates and those that are anticipated to provide actual ultimate loss (including loss adjustment expense) payments.

H. "Exempt commercial policyholder" means an entity to which specified aspects of rate or form regulation do not apply or have been relaxed in accordance with regulations adopted pursuant to Section 11 of this Act.

I. "Expenses" means that portion of a rate attributable to acquisition, field supervision, collection expenses, general expenses, taxes, licenses and fees but shall not include loss-adjustment expenses.

J. "Experience rating" means a rating procedure utilizing past insurance experience of the individual policyholder to forecast future losses by measuring the policyholder's loss experience against the loss experience of policyholders in the same classification to produce a prospective premium credit, debit or unity modification.

K. "Insurer" means an insurer as defined in [refer to the general cite for the definition of insurer], except that two (2) or more insurers that are managed by the same persons or entity for the underwriting of individual risks, for the pricing of individual risks, or for the appointment of agents shall, for purposes of this Act, be considered as a single insurer.

L. "Joint underwriting" means a voluntary arrangement established on an individual-risk basis by which two (2) or more insurers jointly contract to provide insurance coverage for insureds whose property values to be covered or limits of liability to be provided exceed those that a single insurer is able and willing to provide.

M. "Loss adjustment expense" means the expenses incurred by the insurer in the course of settling claims.

N. "Trending" means any procedure for projecting losses to the average date of loss, or premiums or exposures to the average date of writing, for the period during which the policies are to be effective.

O. "Market" means the interaction between buyers and sellers consisting of a product component and a geographic component. A product component consists of identical or readily substitutable products including but not limited to consideration of coverage, policy terms, rate classifications and underwriting. A geographic component is a geographical area in which buyers seek access to the insurance product through sales outlets and other distribution mechanisms. Determination of a geographic component shall consider existing distribution patterns.

P. "Noncompetitive market" means a market for which there is a ruling in effect pursuant to Section 4 that a reasonable degree of competition does not exist.

Q. "Personal risk" means homeowners, tenants, private passenger nonfleet automobiles, mobile homes and other property and casualty insurance for personal, family or household needs.

R. "Policy form" means the insurance contract language, including the declaration or information page, any endorsements or other contract language that constitute the contractual agreement between an insurer and its policyholder.

S. "Pool" means a voluntary arrangement, established on an on-going basis, pursuant to which two (2) or more insurers participate in the sharing of risks on a predetermined basis. The pool may operate through an association, syndicate or other pooling agreement.

T "Prospective loss costs" means that portion of a rate that does not include provisions for expenses (other than loss adjustment expenses) or profit, and are based on historical aggregate losses and loss adjustment expenses adjusted through development to their ultimate value and projected through trending to a future point in time.

U. "Rate" means that cost of insurance per exposure unit whether expressed as a single number or as a prospective loss cost with an adjustment to account for the treatment of expenses, profit, and individual insurer variation in loss experience, prior to any application of individual risk variations based on loss or expense considerations, and does not include minimum premium.

V. "Residual market mechanism" means an arrangement, either voluntary or mandated by law, involving participation by insurers in the equitable apportionment among them of insurance which may be afforded applicants who are unable to obtain insurance through ordinary methods.

W. "Special assessments" means guaranty fund assessments, Second Injury Fund assessments, Vocational Rehabilitation Fund Assessments, and other similar assessments. Special assessments shall not be considered as either expenses or losses.

Drafting Note—Residual Market Assessments: A state may wish to add "assessments for residual market mechanisms" or other assessments as one of the listed special assessments.

X. "Statistical agent" means an entity that has been licensed by the commissioner to collect statistics from insurers and provide reports developed from these statistics to the commissioner for the purpose of fulfilling the statistical reporting obligations of those insurers under this Act.

Y. "Supplementary rating information" includes any manual or plan of rates, classification, rating schedule, minimum premium, policy fees, rating rules or any other similar information needed to determine the applicable rate or premium. This shall include underwriting rules, but only to the extent necessary to determine the rate or premium that will be applicable to a risk should the insurer decide to provide coverage. This does not include guidelines that relate to the selection of those risks that are acceptable to an insurer.

Drafting Note—Plan of Rates: A "plan of rates" filed by an insurer would contain final rates including provisions for expenses and profit. A "plan of rates" filed by an advisory organization would contain only prospective loss costs which would exclude provisions for expenses (other than loss adjustment expenses) and profit.

Z. "Supporting information" means:

(1) The experience and judgment of the filer and the experience or data of other insurers or advisory organizations relied upon by the filer;

(2) The interpretation of any other data relied upon by the filer;

(3) Descriptions of methods used in making the rates; and

(4) Any other information required by the commissioner to be filed.

Drafting Note—Commercial Service Contract Definition: States exempting commercial service contracts from this Act (see drafting note under Section 3) may wish to add the following definition:

AA. "Commercial service contract" means a service contract or other similar agreement for a separately stated consideration to indemnify or provide for the repair, replacement or similar service of goods, equipment, machinery or other property normally used for commercial or business purposes for the operational or structural failure due to a defect in materials or workmanship or normal wear and tear, with or without additional provision for incidental expenses, provided that the obligor under the service contract or other similar agreement (a) has procured an insurance policy issued by an insurer authorized to transact insurance in this state or issued pursuant to [insert code section permitting surplus lines business] that provides reimbursement coverage or coverage to the obligee in the event the obligor becomes insolvent, ceases to transact business, or fails to perform the obligations and liabilities under the terms of the commercial service contract; or (b) has provided another form of financial responsibility approved by the commissioner."

Section 3. Scope of Act

This Act applies to all forms of casualty insurance, including fidelity, surety and guaranty bond, to all forms of fire, marine and inland marine insurance, and to any combination of any of the foregoing, on risks or operations located in this state. Inland marine insurance shall be deemed to include insurance now or hereafter defined by statute, or by interpretation thereof, or if not so defined or interpreted, by ruling of the commissioner, or as established by general custom of the business, as inland marine insurance. In determining whether new types of inland marine insurance fall under this exemption, the commissioner shall consider the similarity of the new insurance to existing types of insurance and classes of risk and whether it would be reasonably practical to create and file rating systems prior to use.

Drafting Note—Kinds of Insurance: The kinds of insurance are named herein in their generally accepted trade sense unless otherwise defined by statute or regulation. The wording of the section should be fitted to any laws of the state which classify insurance.

Drafting Note—Commercial Service Contracts: States that consider commercial service contracts to be insurance may wish to exempt all such contracts, or those contracts exceeding thresholds relating to size or consumer sophistication, or both, from the Act.

This Act shall not apply to:

A. Reinsurance, other than statutorily authorized joint reinsurance mechanisms to the extent stated in Section 13;

B. Accident and health insurance;

C. Insurance of vessels or craft, their cargoes, marine builders' risks, marine protection and indemnity, or other risks commonly insured under marine, excluding inland marine insurance as determined by the commissioner;

D. Title insurance;

E. Financial guaranty insurance;

F. Insurance.

Drafting Note—Types of Insurance: Here should be listed (a) other kinds of insurance, if any, and (b) particular types of insurers, if any, to which this Act is not to apply in the state or jurisdiction adopting the Act. The specific exemption of aircraft hull and liability insurance contained in the 1946 NAIC Model Bills is omitted from Section 3 of this Act. A number of states have, since 1946, provided for regulation of aircraft hull and liability insurance rates.

Prefatory Drafting Note Regarding Rate Regulation—Reliance on Competition: The NAIC long ago concluded that competition could be an effective regulator of property/casualty insurance rates. Recent consideration of commercial lines rate regulation has led to the conclusion that commercial insurance consumers will generally be better served by less restrictive regulatory schemes, i.e., by greater reliance on competition. Consistent with these two conclusions, the rate-regulatory provisions that follow reflect a file and use rate-regulatory scheme. It should be noted, however, that the NAIC has not taken a position respecting any particular line of insurance in any particular state. While this model law "defaults" to file and use, it is expected that each state will consider whether other approaches are more appropriate for specific lines or all lines. Drafting notes following the main body of sections 4 through 7 contemplate several alternative approaches, providing for greater or lesser degrees of reliance on competition, which a state may determine to be preferable.

The movement of states away from prior approval of rates has been more pronounced in connection with commercial lines than personal lines. It has occurred less rapidly in connection with workers' compensation insurance than with most other commercial lines. Although many states have adopted competitive rating approaches for medical professional liability insurance, each state will want to consider the extent to which that state's marketplace for such insurance is, in fact, structured in such a way that reliance upon competition is a viable approach. Each state will also want to consider the extent to which the reverse-competitive market structures of credit property insurance, credit involuntary unemployment insurance and mortgage guaranty insurance either suggest or demand a more guarded regulatory approach than is used for other lines of insurance.

"Reverse competition" means competition among insurers that regularly takes the form of insurers vying with each other for the favor of persons who control, or who may control, the placement of the insurance with insurers. Reverse competition tends to increase insurance premiums or to prevent lowering of premiums in order that greater commissions or other allowances may be paid to persons for such business as a means of obtaining the placement of business controlled by the person with the insurers paying the highest commissions. In such situations, the competitive pressure to obtain business by paying high commissions or providing other compensation or services to these persons overwhelms any downward pressures consumers may exert on the price of insurance, thus causing prices to rise.

Section 4. Competitive Market

A competitive market is presumed to exist unless the commissioner, after hearing, determines that a reasonable degree of competition does not exist in the market and the commissioner issues a ruling to that effect. Such a rule shall expire no later than one year after issue unless the commissioner renews the rule after hearings and a finding as to the continued lack of a reasonable degree of competition. In determining whether a reasonable degree of competition exists, the commissioner shall consider relevant tests of workable competition pertaining to market structure, market performance and market conduct and the practical opportunities available to consumers in the market to acquire pricing and other consumer information and to compare and obtain insurance from competing insurers.

Drafting Note—Competitive Market Alternative: Any state desiring an alternative section incorporating specific examples of tests of workable competition may wish to use the following:

[A competitive market is presumed to exist unless the commissioner, after hearing, determines that a reasonable degree of competition does not exist in the market and the commissioner issues a ruling to that effect. Such a rule shall expire no later than one year after issue, unless the commissioner renews the rule after hearing and a finding as to the continued lack of a reasonable degree of competition. In determining whether a reasonable degree of competition exists, the commissioner shall consider relevant tests of workable competition pertaining to market structure, market performance and market conduct and the practical opportunities available to consumers in the market to acquire pricing and other consumer information and to compare and obtain insurance from competing insurers. Such tests may include, but are not limited to, the following: size and number of firms actively engaged in the market; market shares and changes in market shares of firms; ease of entry and exit from a given market; underwriting restrictions; whether profitability for companies generally in the market segment is unreasonably high; availability of consumer information concerning the product and sales outlets or other sales mechanisms; and efforts of insurers to provide consumer information. The determination of competition involves the interaction of the various tests and the weight given to specific tests depends upon the particular situation and pattern of test results.]

Section 5. Rate Standards

Rates shall be made in accordance with the following provisions:

A. Rates shall not be excessive, inadequate or unfairly discriminatory.

(1) Excessive Rates.

(a) A rate is excessive if it is likely to produce a profit that is unreasonably high for the insurance provided or if expenses are unreasonably high in relation to services rendered.

(b) A rate in a competitive market is presumed not to be excessive.

(2) Inadequate Rates. A rate is not inadequate unless: (a) its continued use would endanger the solvency of the insurer, or (b) the rate is clearly insufficient to sustain projected losses, expenses and special assessments in the class of business to which it applies and the use of the rate has or, if continued, will have the effect of substantially lessening competition or the tendency to create monopoly in any market.

(3) Unfairly Discriminatory Rates. Unfair discrimination exists if, after allowing for practical limitations, price differentials fail to reflect equitably the differences in expected losses and expenses. A rate is not unfairly discriminatory if it is averaged broadly among persons insured under a group, franchise or blanket policy or a mass marketed plan. As used in this paragraph, a mass marketed plan means a method of selling property-liability insurance wherein:

(a) The insurance is offered to employees of particular employers or to members of particular associations or organizations or to persons grouped in other ways, except groupings formed principally for the purpose of obtaining such insurance; and

(b) The employer, association or other organization, if any, has agreed to, or otherwise affiliated itself with, the sale of such insurance to its employees or members.

(4) Rating Methods. In determining whether rates comply with the excessiveness standard under Paragraph (1)(a), the inadequacy standards under Paragraph (2) and the unfair discrimination standard under Paragraph (3), the following criteria shall apply:

(a) Basic factors in rates. Due consideration shall be given to past and prospective loss experience within and outside this state; to the conflagration and catastrophe hazards; to a reasonable margin for profit and contingencies; to dividends, savings, or unabsorbed premium deposits allowed or returned by insurers to their policyholders, members or subscribers; to past and prospective expenses both countrywide and those specially applicable to this state; and to provisions for special assessments and to all other relevant factors within and outside this state.

(b) Classification. Risks may be grouped by classifications for the establishment of rates and minimum premiums. Classification rates may be modified to produce rates for individual risks in accordance with rating plans which establish standards for measuring variations in hazards or expense provisions, or both. Such standards may measure any differences among risks that can be demonstrated to have a probable effect upon losses or expenses. No risk classification, however, may be based upon race, creed, national origin or the religion of the insured.

(c) Expenses. The expense provisions included in the rates to be used by an insurer shall reflect the operating methods of the insurer and its anticipated expenses.

(d) Profits. The rates may contain provision for contingencies and an allowance permitting a reasonable profit. In determining the reasonableness of the profit, consideration shall be given to all investment income attributable to the line of insurance.

(5) Two (2) or more insurers operating under common underwriting management for a line or kind of insurance or subdivision of a line or kind in this state shall, for that line or kind of insurance or subdivision, be treated as a single insurer for purposes of this section in order to prevent unfair discrimination between similarly situated policyholders.

Drafting Note—Disallowed Expenses in Rates: If a state desires to provide the commissioner with explicit guidance regarding certain categories of expenses that may not be included in insurers' rates, it should consider the following language instead of that provided in Section 5A(4)(c): "Expenses. The expense provisions included in the rates to be used by an insurer shall reflect the reasonable operating methods of the insurer and its reasonable anticipated expenses. Insurers' rates shall not include provisions for disallowed expenses. Disallowed expenses include [insert specific expenses, if any] and any unreasonably incurred expenses as determined by the commissioner." Such expenses may include lobbying expenses; amounts paid by an insurer as damages in a suit against the insurer for bad faith or as fines or penalties for violations of the law; contributions to organizations engaged in legislative advocacy; fees and penalties imposed upon the insurer for civil or criminal violations of the law; fees or penalties paid by the insurer to settle administrative enforcement actions; and contributions to social, religious, political or fraternal organizations.

Section 6. Rate Filings

A. (1) Every insurer shall file with the commissioner, except as to inland marine risks which are not written according to manual rates or rating plans, every manual, minimum premium, class rate, rating schedule or rating plan and every other rating rule, and every modification of any of the foregoing which it proposes to use. The filing shall include underwriting rules to the extent necessary to determine the applicable rate. An insurer may file its rates by either filing its final rates or by filing a multiplier and, if applicable, an expense constant adjustment to be applied to prospective loss costs that have been filed by an advisory organization on behalf of the insurer as permitted by Section 18. The filing shall contain sufficient information to allow the commissioner to meet his or her obligation to provide consumer information under Sections 13 and 14. The filing shall state the effective date, and shall indicate the character and extent of the coverage contemplated.

(2) Every insurer shall file or incorporate by reference to material which has been filed with or approved by the commissioner, at the same time as the filing of the rate, all supplementary rating and supporting information to be used in support of or in conjunction with a rate. The information furnished in support of a filing may include or consist of a reference to:

(a) The experience or judgment of the insurer or information filed by the advisory organization on behalf of the insurer as permitted by Section 18;

(b) Its interpretation of any statistical data it relies upon;

(c) The experience of other insurers or advisory organizations; or

(d) Any other relevant factors.

A filing and any supporting information shall be open to public inspection upon receipt of the filing.

(3) When a filing is not accompanied by the information upon which the insurer supports the filing, the commissioner may require the insurer to furnish the information upon which it supports the filing and in that event the waiting period shall commence as of the date the information is furnished. Until the requested information is provided, the filing shall not be deemed complete or filed nor available for use by the insurer. If the requested information is not provided within a reasonable time period, the filing may be returned to the insurer as not filed and not available for use.

(4) After reviewing an insurer's filing, the commissioner may require that the insurer's rates be based upon the insurer's own loss, special assessment and expense information. If the insurer's loss or allocated loss adjustment expense information is not actuarially credible, as determined by the commissioner, the insurer may use or supplement its experience with information filed with the commissioner by an advisory organization or statistical agent.

(5) Insurers utilizing the services of an advisory organization must provide with their rate filing, at the request of the commissioner, a description of the rationale for such use, including its own information and method of utilization of the advisory organization's information.

Drafting Note—Filing Review: States may desire to move Paragraphs (2), (3) and (4) to Section 6D. If these paragraphs are moved to Section 6D, then the following language should be added to Section 6B: "The commissioner may require an insurer to furnish any additional information."

B. The commissioner shall review filings as soon as reasonably possible after they have been made in order to determine whether they meet the requirements of this Act.

C. (1) In a competitive market, every insurer shall file with the commissioner the information specified in Subsection A of this section that it will use in this state. The rates and supplementary rating information shall be filed on or before the effective date. In a competitive market, if the commissioner finds, after a hearing, that an insurer's rates require closer supervision because of the insurer's financial condition or unfairly discriminatory rating practices, the insurer shall file with the commissioner at least [insert number of days] before the effective date, all such rates and supplementary rating information and supporting information as prescribed by the commissioner. Upon application by the filer, the commissioner may authorize an earlier effective date.

(2) In a competitive market, Section 6C(1) not withstanding, the commissioner may, after a hearing, determine that the filing for review of rates and/or supplementary and supporting information by insurers is not necessary for all or for portions of one or more commercial lines of insurance. In these cases, the commissioner instead may require, on a purely advisory or informational basis, the filing of rates and such other information as he or she needs to monitor competition and to provide consumer information. Any determination by the commissioner to waive filing requirements may be revoked at any time and the commissioner may order that rates in effect at the time of revocation shall be filed within a reasonable period of time as specified in the order.

Drafting Note—Rate Filing Waiver Authority: Section 6C(2) may be deleted, and Section 6C(1) renumbered to be Section 6C, if states do not wish to grant the commissioner authority to waive rate filing requirements. Section 6C(2) could also be modified so as to limit waiver authority to supplementary and/or supporting information alone, rather than to actual rate filings. Alternatively, the word "commercial" could be deleted from Section 6C(2) if a state wishes to extend the commissioner's waiver authority to include personal lines coverages.

D. In a noncompetitive market, for advisory organization filings and for the following lines of insurance [insert prior approval lines, if any], subject to the exception specified in Subsection E of this section, each filing shall be on file for a waiting period of thirty (30) days before it becomes effective, which period may be extended by the commissioner for an additional period not to exceed thirty (30) days if written or electronic notice is given within the waiting period to the insurer or advisory organization that made the filing that additional time is needed for the consideration of the filing. Upon written or electronic application by the insurer, the commissioner may authorize a filing that has been reviewed to become effective before the expiration of the waiting period or any extension thereof. A filing shall be deemed to meet the requirements of this Act unless disapproved by the commissioner within the waiting period or any extension thereof. The operation of the deemer provision shall be suspended during a period of not more than sixty (60) days upon written or electronic notice to the insurer or advisory organization that made the filing that additional information is needed to complete the review of the filing. Failure of the insurer or advisory organization to provide the requested information within sixty (60) days shall be deemed a request to withdraw the filing from further consideration. The commissioner shall either approve or disapprove the filing within thirty (30) days of receipt of the requested additional information. Failure of the commissioner to act within the thirty-(30)-day period shall result in the filing being deemed to meet the requirements of the Act. Neither the insurer nor the commissioner may waive the timeliness requirements of the deemer provisions in this section.

E. Under such rules and regulations as may be adopted, the commissioner may, by written or electronic order, suspend or modify the requirement of filing as to any kind of insurance, subdivision or combination thereof, or as to classes of risks, for which the rates cannot practicably be filed before they are used. The commissioner may make such examination as deemed advisable to ascertain whether any rates affected by such order meet the standards set forth in Section 5.

F. Upon the written or electronic application of the insurer and insured, stating its reasons therefore, filed with and approved by the commissioner, a rate in excess of that provided by a filing otherwise applicable may be used on any specific risk. The commissioner may, by rule, waive the requirement that excess rates be filed for approval. The commissioner may examine the books and records of the insurer to determine if a pattern or practice of business exists that would indicate that the insurer is avoiding the filing requirements of this Act by extensive use of this section to issue its policies.

G. No insurer shall make or issue a contract or policy except in accordance with the filings that have been approved and are in effect for the insurer as provided in this Act or in accordance with Subsections E or F of this section. This subsection shall not apply to contracts or policies for inland marine risks as to which filings are not required.

H. A rate for a residual market in which insurers are mandated by law to participate shall not become effective until approved by the commissioner.

Section 7. Disapproval of Rate Filings

A. For filings made in a noncompetitive market, for advisory organization filings the following lines of insurance [insert prior approval lines, if any] and residual market filings, if within the waiting period or any extension thereof as provided in Section 6D, the commissioner finds that a filing does not meet the requirements of this Act, written or electronic notice of disapproval shall be sent to the insurer or advisory organization which made the filing, specifying therein in what respects the filing fails to meet the requirements of this Act and stating that such filing shall not become effective. If a filing is disapproved by the commissioner, the insurer or advisory organization may request a hearing on the disapproval within thirty (30) days and the commissioner shall schedule that hearing within thirty (30) days of the receipt of the request. The insurer or advisory organization bears the burden of proving compliance with the standards established by this Act.

B. If at any time after a rate has been approved and for filings made in a competitive market, the commissioner finds that the rate no longer meets the requirements of this Act, the commissioner may order the discontinuance of use of the rate. The order of discontinuance may be issued after a hearing with at least ten (10) days' prior notice for all insurers affected by the order. The order shall be in writing or electronically transmitted and state the grounds for the order. It shall also state when, within a reasonable time thereafter, the filing will be deemed no longer effective. The order shall not affect any contract or policy made or issued prior to the expiration of the period set forth in the order. The commissioner's order may include a provision for a premium adjustment for contracts or policies made or issued after the effective date of the order.

C. Any insured aggrieved with respect to any filing that is in effect may make application to the commissioner for a hearing. The application shall be written or transmitted in a manner designated by the commissioner. The application shall specify the grounds to be relied upon by the applicant. If the commissioner shall find that the application is made in good faith, that the applicant would be so aggrieved if his grounds are established, and that the grounds otherwise justify holding a hearing, a hearing shall be held within thirty (30) days after receipt of the application upon not less than ten (10) days' written or electronic notice to the applicant and to every insurer and advisory organization that made a filing.

If, after the hearing, the commissioner finds that the filing does not meet the requirements of this Act, an order shall issue specifying in what respects the filing fails to meet the requirements of this Act, and stating when, within a reasonable period thereafter, the filing shall no longer be deemed to be in effect. Copies of the order shall be sent or electronically transmitted to the applicant and to every such insurer and advisory organization. The order shall not affect any contract or policy made or issued prior to the expiration of the period set forth in the order.

D. Whenever an insurer has no legally effective rates as a result of the commissioner's disapproval of rates or other act, the commissioner shall on request of the insurer specify interim rates for the insurer that are high enough to protect the interest of all parties and may order that a specified portion of the premiums be placed in an escrow account approved by the commissioner. When the new rates become legally effective, the commissioner shall order the escrowed funds or any overcharge in the interim rates to be distributed appropriately, except that refunds to policyholders that are de minimis shall not be required.

Section 8. Policy Form Standards

A. Policy forms shall not:

(1) Contain provisions, exceptions or conditions that are misleading, illusory, inconsistent, ambiguous, deceptive, contrary to public policy, that unreasonably affect the risk purported to be assumed in the general coverage of the policy, or that encourage misrepresentation of the coverage; or

(2) Violate or fail to comply with any provision of the insurance code or the laws of this state.

B. The insurer shall include the following elements in its policy either by placing them in the main policy form or by attaching an endorsement or other contract language to the policy form:

(1) A statement that specifies when a policy may be cancelled or nonrenewed and provides at least the following minimum notice in the event of cancellation or nonrenewal of the policy:

(a) Ten (10) days advance notice for cancellation because of fraud, misrepresentation or because the insured has failed to pay premium when due. Premium includes any amounts due from the insured in accordance with policy provisions;

(b) Thirty (30) days advance notice for all other cancellations for cause that are allowed under the insurance code; and

(c) Forty-five (45) days advance notice when the insurer decides that it will not offer to renew the policy for another term; and

(2) For personal lines, a statement that any return premium due the insured will be tendered by the insurer within ten (10) days of the effective date of cancellation regardless of whether the cancellation is initiated by the insurer or the insured. For cancellation at the request of the insured, the policy may provide for the application of less than a full pro rata return of premium, provided that insurer shall not demand a penalty greater than ten percent (10%) of the unearned premium for the remaining term of the policy. The terms and conditions of any penalty for early cancellation by the insured shall be clearly stated in the policy form or an endorsement;

Drafting Note: States may wish to consider adding one or more of these specific requirements for policy forms to the list of requirements in Section 8:

(1) A declaration or information page that shows the individuals or entities insured and the property to which the insurance applies, if applicable, shows the limit of the insurer's liability for each coverage provided, shows the effective date and time for policy inception and expiration and shows the premium consideration;

(2) An insuring agreement that clearly states who and what is covered under the policy;

(3) The conditions under which the coverage will apply;

(4) Any exclusion where coverage is not applicable;

(5) Any definitions needed to clarify the intent of the coverage provided in the policy;

(6) A statement that the bankruptcy or insolvency of the insured shall not relieve the insurer of its obligations under the policy;

(7) A statement concerning procedures for resolution of policy disputes. Insurers may choose to provide for mediation, arbitration, appraisal or other methods of dispute resolution that are acceptable to the commissioner that encourage policyholders to informally resolve policy disputes without the need to request a formal hearing; and

(8) A statement that the policy form, any endorsements and other contract language shall constitute the entire contract.

Section 9. Policy Form Filings

A. Policy forms, endorsements and other contract language and related attachment rules shall comply with the following provisions:

(1) Except as provided in Subsections A(3) and B(2) of this section, an insurer shall file all policy forms, endorsements and other contract language and any related attachment rules with the commissioner prior to use. The filing shall state its proposed effective date and shall explain the intended use of the forms.

(2) An insurer may authorize an advisory organization to file policy forms, endorsements and other contract language and related attachment rules on its behalf.

(3) Policy forms, endorsements and other contract language unique in character and designed for and used with regard to a particular risk shall be exempt from filing, except that the commissioner may by regulation or order make specific restrictions relating to this exemption. In making a determination, the commissioner shall consider whether the policy forms, endorsements and other contract language otherwise exempt would be likely to meet the requirements of Section 8 and the extent to which it would be practical to file the forms prior to their use for specific risks. Insurers shall not use this provision to avoid the consent-to-form provisions of Subsection A(4) of this section.

(4) Policy forms, endorsements and other contract language providing coverage that is more restrictive than that provided by a filing otherwise applicable may be used on specific risk upon the prior written or electronic application of the insured, stating reasons therefore, filed with and approved by the commissioner. The application and any correspondence relating thereto shall be considered a confidential communication and shall not be made public by the commissioner except as may be compiled by the department in summaries of activity.

(5) The commissioner may, by regulation, allow commercial policy forms, endorsements and other contract language that is more expansive, and in no respect more restrictive, than that provided by an approved filing otherwise applicable, to be used without prior approval by the commissioner. Any such commercial policy forms, endorsements, and other contract language shall, by regulation, be filed prior to use either (a) in all cases, or (b) to the extent needed to meet regulatory purposes.

B. Filings of policy forms, endorsements and other contract language shall comply with the following provisions:

(1) Each filing shall be on file for a waiting period of thirty (30) days before it becomes effective except as provided in Paragraph (2). The waiting period may be extended for an additional period not to exceed thirty (30) days if the commissioner gives written notice within the waiting period to the insurer or advisory organization that made the filing that additional time is needed for the consideration of the filing. Upon written or electronic application by the insurer or advisory organization, the commissioner may authorize a filing to become effective before the expiration of a waiting period. A filing shall be deemed to meet the requirements of the Act unless disapproved by the commissioner within the waiting period or any extension thereof. The operation of the deemer provision shall be suspended during a period of not more than sixty (60) days upon written or electronic notice to the insurer or advisory organization that made the filing that additional information is needed to complete the review of the filing. Failure of the insurer or advisory organization to provide the requested information within sixty (60) days shall be deemed a request to withdraw the filing from further consideration. A filing and any supporting information shall be open to public inspection upon receipt of the filing.

(2) The commissioner may by regulation or order suspend or modify the filing requirements of Subsection A or B of this section as to any line or kind of insurance or subdivision or combination of such line or kind of insurance or as to classes of risks for which rating systems or forms cannot practicably be filed before they are used. The commissioner may make an examination if he or she deems it necessary to ascertain whether any policy forms, endorsements and other contract language affected by the regulation or order meet the requirements of Section 8.

(3) An insurer shall not issue a contract or policy except in accordance with the filings that have been approved and are in effect for the insurer as provided in this Act or in accordance with Subsection A(4) of this section. This subdivision shall not apply to forms or rating systems to the extent that they are exempt or have been exempted by Subsection A(3) or B(2) of this section.

(4) Upon the written or electronic application of the insurer and insured, stating its reasons therefore, filed with and approved by the commissioner, a policy form that differs from any provided by a filing otherwise applicable to the insurer may be used on any specific risk. This section applies only to manuscript forms or other policies that are unique to a specific risk. The commissioner may, by rule, waive the requirement that these unique manuscript forms be filed for approval. The commissioner may examine the books and records of the insurer to determine if a pattern or practice of business exists that would indicate that the insurer is avoiding the filing requirements of this Act by extensive use of this section to issue its policies.

Section 10. Disapproval of Policy Form Filings

A. If, within the waiting period provided by Section 9 or any extension thereof, the commissioner finds that a filing does not meet the requirements of the Act, he or she shall send written or electronic notice of disapproval to the insurer or advisory organization that made the filing specifying in what respects the filing fails to meet the requirements of the Act and stating that the filing shall not become effective. If a filing is disapproved by the commissioner, the insurer or advisory organization may request a hearing on the disapproval within thirty (30) days and the commissioner shall schedule that hearing within thirty (30) days of the receipt of the request. The insurer or advisory organization bears the burden of proving compliance with the standards established by this Act.

B. If, at any time after approval, the commissioner finds that a policy form, an endorsement and other contract language or attachment rule relating thereto, does not meet or no longer meets the requirements of the Act, the commissioner shall hold a hearing in accordance with Section 29.

C. Any insured aggrieved with respect to any filing that is in effect may make written or electronic application to the commissioner for a hearing thereon. The application shall specify the grounds to be relied upon by the applicant. If the commissioner finds that the application is made in good faith, that the applicant would be so aggrieved if his or her grounds are established, or that such grounds otherwise justify holding a hearing, then a hearing shall be held in accordance with Section 29.

D. If after a hearing pursuant to subsection B or C of this section, the commissioner finds that a filing does not meet the requirements of the Act, he or she shall issue an order stating in what respects the filing fails to meet the requirements and when, within a reasonable period thereafter, the policy form, endorsement or other contract language or related attachment rule, shall no longer be used. Copies of the order shall be sent to the applicant, if applicable, and to every affected insurer and advisory organization. The order shall not affect any contract or policy made or issued prior to the expiration of the period set forth in the order.

Section 11. Exemption from the Requirement for Insurers to Use Filed Rates and Forms for Certain Commercial Policyholders

A. The commissioner shall, by regulation, establish a class of large commercial policyholders, to be known as exempt commercial policyholders (ECPs), which shall be exempt from all rate and form requirements established by this Act, except for form provisions relating to [insert description of any form provisions that ECPs must adhere to, if any. An example of such provisions might be workers' compensation mandatory coverage provisions.].

B. In the promulgation of this regulation, the commissioner shall consider the following factors in determining the definition of an ECP:

(1) The characteristics of insureds that are likely to study and understand the details of their business risks, insurance coverages and exclusions;

(2) The characteristics of insureds that are likely to avail themselves of regular price comparisons between competing insurers and are likely to study and understand the differences and details of pricing proposals that they receive;

(3) The characteristics of insureds that are likely to require individually written policies, as contrasted to insureds that can customarily have their coverage needs met through a compilation of forms with applicability to other insureds as well;

(4) The characteristics of insureds for which filed rates and rating plans are less likely to provide the lowest premiums otherwise consistent with the provisions of this Act;

(5) The favorable or adverse experiences with exemptions from regulatory requirements, especially the experience in this state;

(6) The extent to which commercial insureds primarily located in another jurisdiction are subject to similar exemptions or waivers in that jurisdiction; and

(7) Any other relevant factor.

C. The commissioner may, by regulation, waive some or all of the diligent search requirements related to placement of risks in the approved surplus lines market for some or all ECPs.

Drafting Note—Restriction of Exemption Powers: States wishing to restrict the commissioner from exempting specific lines of commercial lines insurance may use the language that follows. The inclusion of this drafting note should not be construed as a recommendation that these provisions be inapplicable to any commercial line of insurance. Rather, it is inserted to recognize that some states may wish to provide such restrictions.

D. The regulation adopted pursuant to this section may not alter [insert description, including whether the restriction applies to rates, forms or both.].

Drafting Note—Legislative Determination of Qualification Requirements For Exempt Commercial Policyholders: Legislatures wishing to establish dollar amounts and other specific qualification requirements for exempt commercial policyholders, instead of directing the commissioner to make this determination, may wish to use the criteria listed in Subsection B of this section in making their determinations. The NAIC's white paper, Regulatory Re-engineering of Commercial Lines Insurance, contained the following definition of an ECP:

An "ECP" is an entity that meets any two of the following criteria:

- Net worth of over $50 million;
- Net revenues or sales of over $100 million;
- More than 500 employees per individual company or 1,000 per holding company aggregate;
- Procures its insurance through use of a risk manager, employed or retained;
- Aggregate premiums of over $500,000;
- Is a not for profit, or public entity with an annual budget or assets of at least $45 million, or
- Is a municipality with a population of over 50,000.

It should be noted that in legislative sessions subsequent to the white paper, some states adopted ECP definitions similar to or the same as those in the white paper, while other states opted to enact much lower ECP definitions, in some cases with exemptions applying only to filing requirements and not rate and policy form standards.

Section 12. Form Approval Requirements Applying to Multistate Commercial Risks

The commissioner shall adopt reasonable regulations to provide that this state's form approval requirements shall apply only to insurance written for individual commercial risks that are primarily located in this state.

A. In the development of practical requirements for insurers to use in determining whether a risk is primarily located in this state, the commissioner shall consider whether the headquarters of the risk is located in this state and whether contracts of insurance are purchased by officers or employees that are primarily located in this state. For purposes of this section, the location of the headquarters shall be primarily determined by the location where the officers and senior management are physically located.

B. The regulations shall provide that the requirements of [insert appropriate statutory references] will not apply when in conflict with a policy written for a commercial risk primarily located in another state.

C. Regulations adopted pursuant to this section may not allow the alteration of mandatory coverage provisions in workers' compensation policies [or mandatory coverage provisions required by the state's automobile insurance law].

Section 13. Monitoring Competition

In determining whether or not a competitive market exists pursuant to Section 4, the commissioner shall monitor the degree of competition in this state. In doing so, the commissioner shall utilize existing relevant information, analytical systems and other sources; cause or participate in the development of new relevant information, analytical systems and other sources; or rely on some combination thereof. The activities may be conducted internally within the insurance department, in cooperation with other state insurance departments, through outside contractors or in any other appropriate manner.

Drafting Note: The following language provides a more definitive alternative way for states to monitor competition. (See drafting note at the end of the model law).

Section 14. Information to be Furnished Insureds: Hearings and Appeals of Insureds

A. Every advisory organization and every insurer shall, within a reasonable time after receiving written or electronic request, furnish to any insured affected by a rate made by the insurer, or to the authorized representative of the insured, all pertinent information as to such rate. Every advisory organization and every insurer shall provide within this state reasonable means whereby the insured aggrieved by the application of its rating system may be heard, in person or by his or her authorized representative, on written request to review the manner in which the rating system has been applied in connection with the insurance afforded the insured. If the advisory organization or insurer fails to grant or reject the request within thirty (30) days after it is made, the applicant may proceed in the same manner as if the application had been rejected. The insured affected by the action of the advisory organization or insurer on the request may, within thirty (30) days after written or electronic notice of action, appeal to the commissioner, who, after a hearing held upon not less than ten (10) days' written notice to the appellant and to the advisory organization or insurer, may affirm or reverse the action.

Drafting Note: Language could be inserted here which would allow an insurer or advisory organization to charge a reasonable fee to cover the expense of providing any information requested under this section, but charges should not be permitted when the information relates to the specific application of an experience rating modification or a schedule rating modification.

B. If, after a hearing held under this section, it is determined that the rates charged by an insurer are in excess of the otherwise appropriate rate, such overcharge shall be refunded to the insured.

Section 15. Consumer Information

The commissioner shall utilize, develop or cause to be developed a consumer information system that will provide and disseminate price and other relevant information on a readily available basis to purchasers of homeowners, private passenger nonfleet automobile, or property insurance for personal, family or household needs. The commissioner may utilize, develop or cause to be developed a consumer information system that will provide and disseminate price and other relevant information on a readily available basis to purchasers of insurance for commercial risks and personal risks not otherwise specified in this Act. The activity may be conducted internally within the insurance department, in cooperation with other state insurance departments, through outside contractors and/or in any other appropriate manner. To the extent deemed necessary and appropriate by the commissioner, insurers, advisory organizations, statistical agents and other persons or organizations involved in conducting the business of insurance in this state, to which this section applies, shall cooperate in the development and utilization of a consumer information system.

Drafting Note: For jurisdictions that need a separate and distinct means of funding a consumer information system the following provision may be added to Section 14:

"The cost of complying with this section shall be assessed against insurers subject to this Act and authorized to write types of business subject to a consumer information system. The assessments shall be made on an equitable and practicable basis established, after hearing, in a rule promulgated by the commissioner. This activity shall be conducted in a reasonably economical manner consistent with the purposes of this Act."

Section 16. Licensing Advisory Organizations and Statistical Agents

A. No advisory organization or statistical agent shall provide any service relating to statistical collection or the rates of any insurance subject to this Act, and no insurer shall utilize the services of such an organization for these purposes unless the organization has obtained a license under Subsection C.

B. No advisory organization or statistical agent shall refuse to supply any services for which it is licensed in this state to any insurer authorized to do business in this state and offering to pay the fair and usual compensation for the services.

C. Licensing.

(1) An advisory organization or statistical agent applying for a license shall include with its application:

(a) A copy of its constitution, charter, articles of organization, agreement, association or incorporation, and a copy of its bylaws, plan of operation and any other rules or regulations governing the conduct of its business;

(b) A list of its members and subscribers;

(c) The name and address of one or more residents of this state upon whom notices, process affecting it, or orders of the commissioner may be served;

(d) A statement showing its technical qualifications for acting in the capacity for which it seeks a license;

(e) A biography of the ownership and management of the organization; and

(f) Any other relevant information and documents that the commissioner may require.

(2) Every organization which has applied for a license shall notify the commissioner of every material change in the facts or in the documents on which its application was based. An amendment to a document filed under this section shall be filed at least thirty (30) days before it becomes effective.

(3) If the commissioner finds that the applicant and the natural persons through whom it acts are competent, trustworthy and technically qualified to provide the services proposed, and that all requirements of the law are met; he or she shall issue a license specifying the authorized activity of the applicant. The commissioner shall not issue a license if the proposed activity would tend to create a monopoly or to substantially lessen the competition in any market.

(4) Licenses issued pursuant to this section shall remain in effect for one year unless the license is suspended or revoked. The commissioner may at any time, after hearing, revoke or suspend the license of an advisory organization or statistical agent that does not comply with the requirements and standards of this Act.

(5) Advisory organizations wishing to operate as statistical agents may be so authorized under their license as an advisory organization. A separate license is not required.

Note: States may wish to insert language here providing for an annual license fee for advisory organizations and statistical agents.

Section 17. Insurers and Advisory Organizations: Prohibited Activity

A. No insurer or advisory organization shall:

(1) Attempt to monopolize, or combine or conspire with any other person to monopolize an insurance market.

(2) Engage in a boycott, on a concerted basis, of an insurance market.

B. (1) No insurer shall agree with any other insurer or with an advisory organization to mandate adherence to or to mandate use of any rate, prospective loss cost, rating plan, rating schedule, rating rule, policy or bond form, rate classification, rate territory, underwriting rule, survey, inspection or similar material, except as needed to facilitate the reporting of statistics to advisory organizations, statistical agents or the commissioner. The fact that two (2) or more insurers, whether or not members or subscribers of an advisory organization, use consistently or intermittently the same rates, prospective loss cost, rating plans, rating schedules, rating rules, policy or bond forms, rate classifications, rate territories, underwriting rules, surveys or inspections or similar materials is not sufficient in itself to support a finding that an agreement exists.

(2) Two (2) or more insurers having a common ownership or operating in this state under common management or control may act in concert between or among themselves with respect to any matters pertaining to those activities authorized in this Act as if they constituted a single insurer.

C. No insurer or advisory organization shall make any arrangement with any other insurer, advisory organization, or other person that has the purpose or effect of unreasonably restraining trade or unreasonably lessening competition in the business of insurance.

Section 18. Advisory Organizations and Statistical Agents: Prohibited Activity

In addition to the other prohibitions contained in this Act, except as specifically permitted under Section 19, no advisory organization or statistical agent shall compile or distribute recommendations relating to rates that include expenses (other than loss adjustment expenses) or profit.

Section 19 Advisory Organizations: Permitted Activity

An advisory organization in addition to other activities not prohibited, is authorized, on behalf of its members and subscribers, to:

A. Develop statistical plans including territorial and class definitions;

B. Collect statistical data from members, subscribers or any other source;

C. Prepare, file and distribute prospective loss costs which may include provisions for special assessments;

D. Prepare, file and distribute factors, calculations or formulas pertaining to classification, territory, increased limits and other variables;

E. Prepare, file and distribute manuals of rating rules, rating schedules and other supplementary rating information that do not include final rates, expense provisions, profit provisions or minimum premiums;

F. Distribute information that is required or directed to be filed with the commissioner;

G. Conduct research and on-site inspections in order to prepare classifications of public fire defenses;

H. Consult with public officials regarding public fire protection, building codes and other loss prevention or mitigation measures as it would affect members, subscribers and others;

I. Conduct research in order to discover, identify and classify information relating to causes or prevention of losses;

J. Conduct research relating to the impact of statutory changes upon prospective loss costs and special assessments;

K. Prepare, file and distribute policy forms and endorsements and consult with members, subscribers and others relative to their use and application;

L. Conduct research and on-site inspections for the purpose of providing risk information relating to individual structures;

M. Conduct on-site inspections to determine rating classifications for individual insureds;

N. For workers' compensation insurance, establish a committee which may include insurance company representatives to review the determination of the rating classification for individual insureds and suggest modifications to the classification system.

O. Collect, compile and publish past and current prices of individual insurers, provided such information is also made available to the general public at a reasonable cost;

P. Collect and compile exposure and loss experience for the purpose of individual risk experience ratings;

Q. File final rates, at the direction of the commissioner, for residual market mechanisms; and

R. Furnish any other services, as approved or directed by the commissioner, related to those enumerated in this section.

Section 20. Statistical Agents: Permitted Activity

In addition to other activities not prohibited, a statistical agent is authorized, on behalf of its members and subscribers, to:

A. Develop statistical plans including territorial and class definitions;

B. Collect statistical data from members, subscribers or any other source;

C. Distribute information that is required or directed to be filed with the commissioner;

D. Collect, compile and distribute past and current prices of individual insurers and publish such information;

E. Collect and compile exposure and loss experience for the purpose of individual risk experience ratings; and

F. Furnish any other services, as approved or directed by the commissioner, related to those enumerated in this section.

Section 21. Advisory Organizations: Filing Requirements

Every advisory organization shall file with the commissioner for approval every statistical plan, all prospective loss costs, provisions for special assessments and all supplementary rating information, all policy forms, endorsements and other contractual language and every change or amendment or modification of any of the foregoing proposed for use in this state. The filings shall be subject to the provisions of Sections 6, 7, 9 and 10 and other provisions of this Act relating to filings made by insurers.

Section 22. Joint Underwriting, Joint Reinsurance Pool and Residual Market Activities

A. Notwithstanding Section 16B(1), insurers participating in joint underwriting, joint reinsurance pools or residual market mechanisms may in connection with such activity act in cooperation with each other in the making of rates, rating systems, policy forms, endorsements and other contractual language, underwriting rules, surveys, inspections and investigations, the furnishing of loss and expense statistics or other information, or carrying on research. Joint underwriting, joint reinsurance pools and residual market mechanisms shall not be deemed advisory organizations.

B. Except to the extent modified by this section, insurers, joint underwriting, joint reinsurance pool and residual market mechanism activities are subject to the other provisions of this Act.

C. If, after hearing, the commissioner finds that any activity or practice of an insurer participating in joint underwriting or a pool is unfair, is unreasonable, will tend to lessen competition in any market or is otherwise inconsistent with the provisions or purposes of this Act, the commissioner may issue a written or electronic order and require the discontinuance of the activity or practice.

D. Every pool shall file with the commissioner a copy of its constitution; its articles of incorporation, agreement or association; its bylaws, rules and regulations governing its activities; its members; the name and address of a resident of this state upon whom notices or orders of the commissioner or process may be served; and any changes in amendments or changes in the foregoing.

E. A residual market mechanism, plan or agreement to implement such a mechanism, and any changes or amendments thereto, shall be submitted in writing or electronically transmitted to the commissioner for consideration and approval, together with such information as may be reasonably required. The commissioner shall approve only agreements found to contemplate: (i) the use of rates and forms that meet the standards prescribed by this Act, and (ii) activities and practices that are not unfair, unreasonable or otherwise inconsistent with the provisions of this Act. At any time after the agreements are in effect, the commissioner may review the practices and activities of the adherents to the agreements and if, after a hearing, the commissioner finds that a practice or activity is unfair or unreasonable, or is otherwise inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, the commissioner may issue a written order to the parties and either require the discontinuance of the acts or revoke approval of the agreement.

Section 23. Examinations

The commissioner may, as often as he or she may deem it expedient, make or cause to be made an examination of each advisory organization or statistical agent referred to in Section 15 and of each group, association or other organization referred to in Section 21, provided that each statistical agent and advisory organization licensed in this state shall be examined at least once every five (5) years. The reasonable costs of the examination shall be paid by the advisory organization, statistical agent or group, association or other organization examined. The officers, managers, agents and employees of the advisory organization, statistical agent or group, association or other organization may be examined at any time under oath and shall exhibit all books, records, accounts, documents or agreements governing its method of operation. In lieu of an examination, the commissioner may accept the report of an examination made by the insurance supervisory official of another state, pursuant to the laws of that state.

Drafting Note: Under the laws of several of the states, reports on examination are not made public until the organization examined has had an opportunity to review the proposed report and to have a hearing with reference thereto, after which the report is filed for public inspection and becomes admissible in evidence as a public record. In any state that has no such law, it is suggested that provisions to this effect be adopted. Examinations of statistical agents and advisory organizations require specialized expertise; commonly require the hiring of contractors, and can be expensive. States adopting mandatory examination provisions should plan for personnel to be able to undertake or oversee these examinations, and check whether the costs for examinations, even though charged to the organization being examined, must go through the insurance department's budget.

Section 24. Workers' Compensation

A. Every workers' compensation insurer shall adhere to a uniform classification system and uniform experience rating system filed with the commissioner by an advisory organization designated by the commissioner.

B. Every workers' compensation insurer shall report its experience in accordance with the statistical plans and other reporting requirements in use by an advisory organization designated by the commissioner.

C. A workers' compensation insurer may develop sub-classifications of the uniform classification system upon which rates may be made. Such sub-classifications and their filing shall be subject to the provisions of this Act applicable to filings generally.

D. A workers' compensation insurer may develop rating plans which identify loss experience as a factor to be used. The rating plans and their filing shall be subject to the provisions of the Act applicable to filings generally.

E. The commissioner shall disapprove sub-classifications, rating plans or other variations from manual rules filed by a workers' compensation insurer if the insurer fails to demonstrate that the data thereby produced can be reported consistent with the uniform classification system and experience rating system and in such a fashion so as to allow for the application of experience rating filed by the advisory organization.

Section 25. Statistical and Rate Administration

A. The commissioner may adopt reasonable regulations for use by companies to record and report to the commissioner their rates and other information determined by the commissioner to be necessary or appropriate for the administration of this Act and the effectuation of its purposes.

B. The commissioner may adopt reasonable regulations to assure that the experience of all insurers is made available at least annually in such form and detail as is necessary to aid in determining whether rating systems comply with the standards set forth in Section 5. The commissioner may designate one or more advisory organizations or statistical agents to assist in gathering the experience and making compilations thereof, and the compilations shall be public documents. The scope of the regulations may include the data to be reported by insurers, definitions of data elements, the timing and frequency of statistical reporting by insurers, data quality standards, data edit and audit requirements, data retention requirements, reports to be generated by advisory organizations or statistical agents to fulfill the requirements of this section, and the timing of the reports.

Drafting Note: States that want the commissioner to be required to promulgate rules for the collection of statistical experience can replace the "may" in the first line of Subsection B with "shall."

C. Reasonable regulations and plans may be promulgated by the commissioner for the interchange of data necessary for the application of rating plans.

D. In order to further uniform administration of rate regulatory laws, the commissioner and every insurer, advisory organization and statistical agent may exchange information and experience data with insurance supervisory officials, insurers and advisory organizations in other states and may consult with them with respect to the application of rating systems and the collection of statistical data.

Section 26. Regulations

The commissioner may make reasonable regulations necessary to effect the purposes of this Act.

Section 27. False or Misleading Information

No person or organization shall willfully withhold information that will affect the rates or premiums chargeable under this Act from, or knowingly give false or misleading information to the commissioner, any statistical agent, any advisory organization or any insurer. A violation of this section shall subject the one guilty of such violation to the penalties provided in Section 32 of this Act.

Section 28. Assigned Risks

Agreements may be made among insurers with respect to the equitable apportionment among them of insurance which may be afforded applicants who are in good faith entitled to, but who are unable to procure such insurance through ordinary methods, and such insurers may agree among themselves on the use of reasonable rate modifications for such insurance, such agreements and rate modifications to be subject to the approval of the commissioner.

Drafting Note: This section is taken from the Casualty and Surety Model Bill approved in 1946 by the NAIC. Since then a number of states have enacted assigned risk provisions of more limited scope. There is no intent here to recommend extension of assigned risk provisions in present state statutes. This section does not purport to deal with the questions as to whether assigned risk plans should be voluntary or statutory, nor as to what features, including judicial review, should be contained in such plans. If these questions are to be dealt with by statutory provision, the provision should preferably be in another statute.

Section 29. Hearing; Request

An insurer, insurer engaged in joint underwriting, joint-reinsurance pool, or advisory organization aggrieved by any order or decision of the commissioner made without a hearing may, within thirty (30) days after notice of the order, make written or electronic request to the commissioner for a hearing thereon in accordance with Section 29. Pending hearing and decision, the commissioner may suspend the effective date of his or her action.

Section 30. Hearing; Procedure

If a hearing is being held at the request of a party other than the commissioner, unless mutually agreed upon by the commissioner and all interested parties, notice of hearing shall be provided within thirty (30) days of the commissioner's receipt of a written or electronic request for a hearing. Notice of the hearing shall be given to all interested parties and shall state the time, place and purpose of the hearing. Unless mutually agreed upon by the commissioner and all interested parties, the hearing shall be held not less than (10) days after notice is served. In addition, unless mutually agreed upon by the commissioner and all interested parties or unless the hearing is being held at the request of the commissioner, the hearing shall be held not more than thirty (30) days after notice is served.

Section 31. Appeals

An order or decision of the commissioner made pursuant to the Act may be appealed by any party in interest. The appeal shall be in accordance with the [insert reference to the state Administrative Procedures Act].

Section 32. Exemptions

The commissioner may by his or her own initiative or upon request of any person, by regulation exempt any market from any or all of the provisions of this Act, if and to the extent that the exemption is necessary to achieve the purposes of this Act.

Section 33. Penalties

A. The commissioner may, upon a finding that any person or organization has violated any provision of this Act, impose a penalty of not more than $10,000 for each violation, but if the violation is found to be willful, a penalty of not more than $25,000 may be imposed for each violation. These penalties may be in addition to any other penalty provided by law.

B. For purposes of this section, any insurer using a rate or insurance contract for which the insurer has failed to file the rate, supplementary rate information, policy form, endorsement or other contractual language, shall, if this Act requires such materials to be filed, have committed a separate violation for each day such failure continues.

C. The commissioner may suspend or revoke the license of any advisory organization, statistical agent or insurer that fails to comply with an order of the commissioner within the time limited by the order, or any extension thereof which the commissioner may grant.

D. The commissioner may determine when a suspension of license shall become effective and it shall remain in effect for the period fixed by him or her, unless the commissioner modifies or rescinds the suspension, or until the order upon which the suspension is based is modified, rescinded or reversed.

E. No penalty shall be imposed and no license shall be suspended or revoked except upon a written or electronically transmitted order of the commissioner stating his or her findings, made after hearing.

Drafting Note: States may wish to insert a section here regarding hearing procedure and judicial review which references the state's administrative procedures act.

Section 34. Laws Repealed

Sections [insert applicable sections] of the statutes of this state are hereby repealed. All other laws or parts of laws inconsistent with the provisions of this Act are hereby repealed.

Section 35. Severability

If any section, subsection, subdivision, paragraph, sentence or clause of this Act is held invalid or unconstitutional, such decision shall not affect the remaining portions of this Act.

Section 36. Effective Date

This Act shall take effect [insert effective date].

DRAFTING NOTES

Drafting Note: The effective date of this Act should be set to allow state insurance departments, insurance companies and advisory organizations to prepare themselves to carry out the purposes of the Act. One year is recommended.

Flexible Rating Drafting Note: For states that are not completely comfortable with a competitive rating environment, flexible rating allows the combination of the features of a file and use law with those of a prior approval law. For rate filings within a legislatively determined range of values, a file and use system is allowed to operate. For rate filings that exceed or go below the threshold, prior approval of the filings is required. The following language will allow a state to adopt a flexible rating system for a specified line of coverage.

A. Except as provided in Subsection B of this section, overall average (for all coverages combined) rate level increases or decreases of [insert desired percentage range] percent above or below the insurer's rates in effect may take effect without prior approval with respect to rates for policies covering [insert lines of insurance to which flexible rating applies].

B. Notwithstanding any other provisions of this Act, for any policies governed by this section, filings that produce rate level changes within the limitation specified in Subsection A of this section shall become effective without prior approval pursuant to [insert appropriate statutory reference]. However:

(1) No more than one rate increase within the limitation specified in Subsection A of this section may be implemented during any twelve-month (12) period; and

(2) No rate increase within the limitation specified in Subsection A of this section may be implemented until the onset of the new policy period and unless the insurer, at least thirty (30) but not more than sixty (60) days in advance of the end of the policy period, mails or delivers to the named insured, at the address shown in the policy, a written or electronic notice of its intention to change the rate. The specific reason or reasons for the rate change shall be stated in or shall accompany the notice.

C. The commissioner shall promulgate rules and regulations implementing the provisions of this section.

D. On or before [date] the commissioner shall report to the legislature on the effectiveness of the flexible rating. The report shall analyze the impact of flexible rating on the extent and nature of competition; size and significance of coverage; level and range of rates and rate changes among insurers; extent of consumer complaints to the insurance department; volume of cancellations and non-renewals; changes in the number of policies, by territory, and by class in each territory, written under a plan or plans approved by the commissioner; and the number of new insureds, non-renewed insureds and business written by each insurer.

A variation of the flexible rating approach involves the establishment by the regulator of benchmark rates by coverage, rating class, and rating territory, which, in conjunction with a flexibility band, or range of rate variation, creates a rate range within which insurers may file and use rates without prior approval. Rates outside the range must be approved prior to use. This system may be useful if a state wishes to provide guidance on risk classifications.

Prior Approval Drafting Note: For states not at all comfortable with a competitive rating environment for selected lines of insurance, prior approval of rates may be deemed more appropriate than either file and use or flexible rating. To designate certain lines of business as prior approval lines, they should be listed in Sections 6D and 7A in the first sentence as indicated by the brackets.

Use & File Drafting Note: For states wishing to use a use and file system to regulate rates, the following changes could be made to Sections 6C to implement a use and file system in place of the file and use system specified in the model. The principle advantage of a use and file system is that insurers will be able to bring new products to market and make rate adjustments in a more timely fashion. The principle disadvantage is that that rates that do not meet statutory standards may be charged to consumers prior to review by insurance regulators and marketing materials containing those noncomplying rates may be distributed to the public in advance of receipt of a filing hindering the regulator's ability to assist consumers with their insurance purchases or deal with questions and problems.

Use & File Alternative to Section 6. Rate Filings

C. In a competitive market, every insurer shall file with the commissioner the information specified in Subsection A of this section that it will use in this state. The rates and supplementary rating information shall be filed within thirty (30) days of the effective date. In a competitive market, if the commissioner finds, after a hearing, that an insurer's rates require closer supervision because of the insurer's financial condition or unfairly discriminatory rating practices, the insurer shall file with the commissioner at least [insert number of days] before the effective date, all rates and supplementary rating information and supporting information as prescribed by the commissioner. Upon application by the filer, the commissioner may authorize an earlier effective date.

Drafting Note: For states wishing to use a file and use system to regulate policy forms endorsements and other contract language, the following changes could be made to Sections 9B and 10 to implement that type of change. The principle advantage of a file and use system is that insurers will be able to bring new products and amendments to market in a more timely fashion. The principle disadvantage is that forms not meeting statutory standards may be sold to consumers prior to review by insurance regulators and marketing materials may be distributed to the public in advance of receipt of a filing hindering the regulator's ability to assist consumers with their insurance purchases.

Alternative Section 9. Policy Form Filings

B. Filings of policy forms, endorsements and other contract language shall comply with the following provisions:

(1) Each filing shall be filed on or before the date it becomes effective except as provided in Subsection B(2). A filing and any supporting information shall be open to public inspection upon receipt of the filing;

(2) The commissioner may by regulation or order suspend or modify the filing requirements of Subsection A or B of this section as to any line or kind of insurance or subdivision or combination of such line or kind of insurance or as to classes of risks for which rating systems or forms cannot practicably be filed before they are used. The commissioner may make an examination as he or she deems necessary to ascertain whether any policy forms, endorsements and other contract language affected by the regulation or order meet the requirements of Section 8; and

(3) No insurer shall issue a contract or policy except in accordance with the filings that have been filed and are in effect for the insurer as provided in the Act or in accordance with Subsection A(4) of this section. This subdivision shall not apply to forms or rating systems to the extent that they are exempt or have been exempted by Subsection A(3) or B(2) of this section.

Alternative Section 10. Disapproval of Policy Form Filings

A. If the commissioner finds that a filing does not meet the requirements of the Act, he or she shall send written or electronic notice of disapproval to the insurer or advisory organization that made the filing specifying in what respects the filing fails to meet the requirements of the Act and stating when the filing shall no longer be effective. If a filing is disapproved by the commissioner, the insurer or advisory organization may request a hearing on the disapproval within thirty (30) days and the commissioner shall schedule that hearing within thirty (30) days of the receipt of the request. The insurer or advisory organization bears the burden of proving compliance with the standards established by this Act.

B. Any insured aggrieved with respect to any filing that is in effect may make written or electronic application to the commissioner for a hearing. The application shall specify the grounds to be relied upon by the applicant. If the commissioner finds that the application is made in good faith, that the applicant would be so aggrieved if his or her grounds are established, or that the grounds otherwise justify holding a hearing, then a hearing shall be held in accordance with Section 29.

C. If after a hearing pursuant to Subsection B of this section, the commissioner finds that a filing does not meet the requirements of the Act, he or she shall issue an order stating in what respects the filing fails to meet the requirements and when, within a reasonable period thereafter, the policy form, endorsement or other contract language or attachment rule relating thereto, shall no longer be used. Copies of the order shall be sent to the applicant, if applicable, and to every affected insurer and advisory organization. The order shall not affect any contract or policy made or issued prior to the expiration of the period set forth in the order.

Drafting Note: For states wishing to use a use and file system to regulate policy forms endorsements and other contract language, the following changes could be made to Sections 9B and 10 to implement that type of change. The principle advantage of a use and file system is that insurers will be able to bring new products and amendments to market in a more timely fashion. The principle disadvantage is that that forms not meeting statutory standards may be sold to consumers prior to review by insurance regulators and marketing materials may be distributed to the public and products may actually be sold in advance of receipt of a filing hindering the regulator's ability to assist consumers with their insurance purchases or deal with questions and problems.

Alternative Section 9. Policy Form Filings

B. Filings of policy forms, endorsements and other contract language shall comply with the following provisions:

(1) Each filing shall be filed within thirty (30) days after it becomes effective except as provided in Subsection B(2). A filing and any supporting information shall be open to public inspection upon receipt of the filing;

(2) The commissioner may by rule or order suspend or modify the filing requirements of Subsection A or B of this section as to any line or kind of insurance or subdivision or combination of such line or kind of insurance or as to classes of risks for which rating systems or forms cannot practicably be filed before they are used. The commissioner may make an examination as he or she deems necessary to ascertain whether any policy forms, endorsements and other contract language affected by such rule or order meet the requirements of Section 8; and

(2) No insurer shall issue a contract or policy except in accordance with the filings that have been filed and are in effect for the insurer as provided in the Act or in accordance with Subsection A(4) of this section. This subdivision shall not apply to forms or rating systems to the extent that they are exempt or have been exempted by Subsection A(3) or B(2) of this section.

Alternative Section 10. Disapproval of Policy Form Filings

A. If the commissioner finds that a filing does not meet the requirements of the Act, he or she shall send written or electronic notice of disapproval to the insurer or advisory organization that made the filing specifying in what respects the filing fails to meet the requirements of the Act and stating when the filing shall no longer be effective. If a filing is disapproved by the commissioner, the insurer or advisory organization may request a hearing on the disapproval within thirty (30) days and the commissioner shall schedule that hearing within thirty (30) days of the receipt of the request. The insurer or advisory organization bears the burden of proving compliance with the standards established by this Act.

B. Any insured aggrieved with respect to any filing that is in effect may make written or electronic application to the commissioner for a hearing. The application shall specify the grounds to be relied upon by the applicant. If the commissioner finds that the application is made in good faith, that the applicant would be so aggrieved if his or her grounds are established, or that the grounds otherwise justify holding a hearing, then a hearing shall be held in accordance with Section 29.

C. If after a hearing pursuant to Subsection B of this section, the commissioner finds that a filing does not meet the requirements of the Act, he or she shall issue an order stating in what respects the filing fails to meet the requirements and when, within a reasonable period thereafter, the policy form, endorsement or other contract language or attachment rule relating thereto, shall no longer be used. Copies of the order shall be sent to the applicant, if applicable, and to every affected insurer and advisory organization. The order shall not affect any contract or policy made or issued prior to the expiration of the period set forth in the order.

Drafting Note—Alternative System for Monitoring Competition

For states wishing to implement a more structured methodology for monitoring competition within a given market, the following alternative Section 12 may be considered. The advantage of the more structured approach is that state legislatures may have a greater comfort level that a hands-off rate-regulatory approach is working if there is some periodic scheduled oversight of the inner workings of the market. This alternative section provides states with that structure and encourages legislators to select the method that they believe will work best given the market realities faced in each state, for each line of business. For example, the alternative Section 12 might be applied to auto insurance, homeowners, medical malpractice and workers' compensation, while the less structured Section 12 might be applied to other property/ casualty lines. A definition of "reverse competition" would need to be added.

Section 2. Definitions

Add:

"Reverse competition" means competition among insurers that regularly takes the form of insurers vying with each other for the favor of persons who control, or who may control, the placement of the insurance with insurers. Reverse competition tends to increase insurance premiums or to prevent lowering of premiums in order that greater commissions or other allowances may be paid to persons for such business as a means of obtaining the placement of business controlled by the person with the insurers paying the highest commissions. In such situations, the competitive pressure to obtain business by paying high commissions or providing other compensation or services to these persons overwhelms any downward pressures consumers may exert on the price of insurance, thus causing prices to rise.

Section 12. Monitoring Competition

A. In determining whether or not a competitive market exists pursuant to Section 4, the commissioner shall hold a public hearing and issue a tentative report detailing the state of competition in for the following property or casualty lines of insurance [insert reference to applicable lines of insurance]. The report shall be based on relevant economic tests, including but not limited to those in Subsection C. The findings in the report shall not be based on any single measure of competition, but appropriate weight shall be given to all measures of competition. The report shall include a certification of whether or not competition exists in each form of insurance.

B. Not later than [DATE] and every other year thereafter, the commissioner shall issue a final report that shall include a final certification of whether or not competition exists in each form of insurance. The final report and certification shall be supported by substantial evidence.

C. All of the following may be considered by the commissioner for purposes of Subsections A and B:

(1) The extent to which the largest insurer groups control the insurance marketplace. A specific insurance market shall be considered competitive, from the standpoint of market concentration, so long as, measured by premium volume, the cumulative share of the market controlled by the four (4) largest insurer groups in the specific market does not exceed fifty percent (50%). If the fifty percent (50%) threshold is surpassed, other measures of concentration, such as the Herfindahl-Hirshman Concentration Index, should also be considered, on the basis of both premium volume and policy counts, in determining the extent to which market concentration may be limiting market competition;

(2) Whether the total number of companies writing the form of insurance in this state is sufficient to provide multiple options to the public;

(3) The extent to which insurer entries and exits, considered over several years, suggest the presence or lack of entry or exit barriers or both;

(4) The degree to which the insurance products offered to consumers are homogenous in nature and, thus, comparable;

(5) The availability of insurance coverage in all geographic areas. A review of changes in residual market shares, if applicable, may be used as an indication of availability;

(6) The overall rate level which is not excessive, inadequate or unfairly discriminatory;

(7) The profitability of each form of insurance over a period of several years;

(8) The level of knowledge of market participants and the extent to which comparative pricing information has been made readily available to consumers;

(9) The extent to which the market for each type of insurance is growing;

(10) The presence of conditions indicating reverse competition; and

(11) Any other factors the commissioner considers relevant.

D. The reports and certifications required under Subsections A and B shall be forwarded to the governor and all relevant members of the state legislature and shall be available to the public.

E. It is rebuttably presumed that competitive markets exist. However, if the commissioner certifies that a reasonable degree of competition does not exist with respect to a form of insurance on a statewide basis or any geographic areas, or that insurance is unavailable to a segment of the market who are, in good faith, entitled to obtain insurance through ordinary means, the commissioner shall take steps to enhance competition or availability where it does not exist. A plan for enhancing competition or availability adopted pursuant to this section shall be included in a final certification of noncompetition. The plan shall only relate to those geographic areas, classifications or kinds of risks where adequate competition has been certified not to exist. The plan may include methods designed to enhance competition or availability that the commissioner considers necessary, and may provide for the commissioner to do one or more of the following:

(1) Authorize, by order, joint underwriting activities in a manner specified in the commissioner's order; and

(2) Modify the rate approval process in a manner to increase competition or availability, while at the same time providing for reasonably timely rate approvals, including reverting to prior approval of all filings.

PROPERTY AND CASUALTY MODEL RATING LAW (PRIOR APPROVAL VERSION)

Table of Contents

Section 1. Purpose of Act

The purpose of this Act is to promote the public welfare by regulating insurance rates to the end that they shall not be excessive, inadequate or unfairly discriminatory, and to authorize and regulate limited cooperative action among insurers in ratemaking-related activities and in other matters within the scope of this Act. Nothing in this Act is intended (1) to prohibit or discourage reasonable competition, or (2) to prohibit or encourage, except to the extent necessary to accomplish the aforementioned purpose, uniformity in rating systems, rating plans or practices. This Act shall be liberally interpreted to carry into effect the provisions of this section.

Section 2. Definitions

A. "Advisory organization" means any entity, including its affiliates or subsidiaries, which either has two or more member insurers or is controlled either directly or indirectly by two or more insurers, and which assists insurers in ratemaking-related activities such as enumerated in Sections 10 and 11. Two or more insurers having a common ownership or operating in this State under common management or control constitute a single insurer for purposes of this definition.

B. "Commercial risk" means any kind of risk which is not a personal risk.

C. "Commissioner" means the Commissioner of Insurance of this state.

D. "Developed losses" means losses (including loss adjustment expenses) adjusted, using standard actuarial techniques, to eliminate the effect of differences between current payment or reserve estimates and those which are anticipated to provide actual ultimate loss (including loss adjustment expense) payments.

E. "Expenses" means that portion of a rate attributable to acquisition, field supervision, collection expenses, general expenses, taxes, licenses and fees.

F. "Joint underwriting" means a voluntary arrangement established to provide insurance coverage for a commercial risk pursuant to which two or more insurers jointly contract with the insured at a price and under policy terms agreed upon between the insurers.

G. "Loss trending" means any procedure for projecting developed losses to the average date of loss for the period during which the policies are to be effective.

H. "Personal risk" means homeowners, tenants, private passenger nonfleet automobiles, mobile homes and other property and casualty insurance for personal, family or household needs.

I. "Pool" means a voluntary arrangement, established on an on-going basis, pursuant to which two or more insurers participate in the sharing of risks on a predetermined basis. The pool may operate through an association, syndicate or other pooling agreement.

J. "Prospective loss costs" means that portion of a rate that does not include provisions for expenses (other than loss adjustment expenses) or profit, and are based on historical aggregate losses and loss adjustment expenses adjusted through development to their ultimate value and projected through trending to a future date.

K. "Rate" means that cost of insurance per exposure unit whether expressed as a single number or as a prospective loss cost with an adjustment to account for the treatment of expenses, profit, and individual insurer variation in loss experience, prior to any application of individual risk variations based on loss or expense considerations, and does not include minimum premium.

L. "Residual market mechanism" means an arrangement, either voluntary or mandated by law, involving participation by insurers in the equitable apportionment among them of insurance which may be afforded applicants who are unable to obtain insurance through ordinary methods.

M. "Special assessments" means guaranty fund assessments, Second Injury Fund assessments, Vocational Rehabilitation Fund Assessments, and other similar assessments. Special assessments shall not be considered as either expenses or losses.

Drafting Note: A state may wish to add "assessments for residual market mechanisms" or other assessments as one of the listed special assessments.

N. "Statistical agent" means an entity that has been licensed by the commissioner to collect statistics from insurers and provide reports developed from these statistics to the commissioner for the purpose of fulfilling the statistical reporting obligations of those insurers under this Act.

O. "Supplementary rating information" includes any manual or plan of rates, classification, rating schedule, minimum premium, policy fee, rating rule, underwriting rule and any other similar information needed to determine the applicable rate in effect or to be in effect.

Drafting Note: A "plan of rates" filed by an insurer would contain final rates including provisions for expenses and profit. A "plan of rates" filed by an advisory organization would contain only prospective loss costs which would exclude provisions for expenses (other than loss adjustment expenses) and profit.

P. "Supporting information" means:

(1) The experience and judgment of the filer and the experience or data of other insurers or advisory organizations relied upon by the filer;

(2) The interpretation of any other data relied upon by the filer;

(3) Descriptions of methods used in making the rates; and

(4) Any other information required by the commissioner to be filed.

Section 3. Scope of Act

This Act applies to all forms of casualty insurance, including fidelity, surety and guaranty bond, to all forms of fire, marine and inland marine insurance, and to any combination of any of the foregoing, on risks or operations located in this State. Inland marine insurance shall be deemed to include insurance now or hereafter defined by statute, or by interpretation thereof, or if not so defined or interpreted, by ruling of the commissioner, or as established by general custom of the business, as inland marine insurance.

Drafting Note: The kinds of insurance are named herein in their generally accepted trade sense unless otherwise defined by statute or regulation. The wording of the section should be fitted to any laws of the state which classify insurance.

This Act shall not apply to:

A. Reinsurance, other than statutorily authorized joint reinsurance mechanisms to the extent stated in Section 14;

B. Accident and health insurance;

C. Insurance of vessels or craft, their cargoes, marine builders' risks, marine protection and indemnity, or other risks commonly insured under marine, excluding inland marine insurance as determined by the commissioner;

D. Title insurance;

E. Insurance;

Drafting Note: Here should be listed (a) other kinds of insurance, if any, and (b) particular types of insurers, if any, to which this Act is not to apply in the state or jurisdiction adopting the Act. The specific exemption of aircraft hull and liability insurance contained in the 1946 NAIC Model Bills is omitted from Section 3 of this Act. A number of states have, since 1946, provided for regulation of aircraft hull and liability insurance rates.

Section 4. Rate Standards

Rates shall be made in accordance with the following provisions:

A. Rates shall not be excessive, inadequate or unfairly discriminatory.

Drafting Note: The specific standards for excessiveness, inadequacy or unfair discrimination may be defined or explained through regulation.

B. Due consideration shall be given to past and prospective loss experience within and outside this State; to the conflagration and catastrophe hazards; to a reasonable margin for profit and contingencies; to dividends, savings, or unabsorbed premium deposits allowed or returned by insurers to their policyholders, members or subscribers; to past and prospective expenses both countrywide and those specially applicable to this State; and to provisions for special assessments and to all other relevant factors within and outside this State. In determining the reasonableness of the profit, consideration shall be given to investment income.

C. Risks may be grouped by classifications for the establishment of rates and minimum premiums. Classification rates may be modified to produce rates for individual risks in accordance with rating plans which establish standards for measuring variations in hazards or expense provisions, or both. Such standards may measure any differences among risks that can be demonstrated to have a probable effect upon losses or expenses. No risk classification, however, may be based upon race, creed, national origin or the religion of the insured.

D. The expense provisions included in the rates to be used by an insurer shall reflect the operating methods of the insurer and its anticipated expenses.

Drafting Note: Specific reference to "rating schedules" is omitted as unnecessary, because the "rating schedules" referred to in Section 3(a) of the Fire and Marine Model Bill as approved by the NAIC in 1946 are regarded as an example of permissible modification of classification rates.

Section 5. Rate Filings

A. (1) Every insurer shall file with the commissioner, except as to inland marine risks which are not written according to manual rates or rating plans, every manual, minimum premium, class rate, rating schedule or rating plan and every other rating rule, and every modification of any of the foregoing which it proposes to use. An insurer may file its rates by either filing its final rates or by filing a multiplier to be applied to prospective loss costs that have been filed by an advisory organization on behalf of the insurer as permitted by Section 11. Every such filing shall state the proposed effective date thereof, and shall indicate the character and extent of the coverage contemplated.

(2) Every insurer shall file or incorporate by reference to material which has been approved by the commissioner, at the same time as the filing of the rate, all supplementary rating and supporting information to be used in support of or in conjunction with a rate. The information furnished in support of a filing may include or consist of a reference to:

(a) The experience or judgment of the insurer or information filed by the advisory organization on behalf of the insurer as permitted by Section 11,

(b) Its interpretation of any statistical data it relies upon,

(c) The experience of other insurers or advisory organizations, or

(d) Any other relevant factors.

A filing and any supporting information shall be open to public inspection upon receipt of the filing.

(3) When a filing is not accompanied by the information upon which the insurer supports such filing, the commissioner may require such insurer to furnish the information upon which it supports such filing and in that event the waiting period shall commence as of the date such information is furnished. Until the requested information is provided, the filing shall not be deemed complete or filed nor available for use by the insurer. If the requested information is not provided within a reasonable time period, the filing may be returned to the insurer as not filed and not available for use.

(4) After reviewing an insurer's filing, the commissioner may require that the insurer's rates be based upon the insurer's own loss, special assessment and expense information. If the insurer's loss or allocated loss adjustment expense information is not actuarially credible, as determined by the commissioner, the insurer may use or supplement its experience with information filed with the commissioner by an advisory organization or statistical agent.

(5) Insurers utilizing the services of an advisory organization must provide with their rate filing, at the request of the commissioner, a description of the rationale for such use, including its own information and method of utilization of the advisory organization's information.

B. The commissioner shall review filings as soon as reasonably possible after they have been made in order to determine whether they meet the requirements of this Act.

C. Subject to the exception specified in Subsection D of this section, each filing shall be on file for a waiting period of [insert number] days before it becomes effective, which period may be extended by the commissioner for an additional period not to exceed [insert number] days if written notice is given within such waiting period to the insurer or advisory organization which made the filing that additional time is needed for the consideration of the filing. Upon written application by the insurer, the commissioner may authorize a filing which has been reviewed to become effective before the expiration of the waiting period or any extension thereof. A filing shall be deemed to meet the requirements of this Act unless disapproved by the commissioner within the waiting period or any extension thereof.

Drafting Note: The waiting period specified in current state statutes ranges from 15 to 90 days.

D. Under such rules and regulations as may be adopted, the commissioner may, by written order, suspend or modify the requirement of filing as to any kind of insurance, subdivision or combination thereof, or as to classes of risks, for which the rates cannot practicably be filed before they are used. The commissioner may make such examination as deemed advisable to ascertain whether any rates affected by such order meet the standards set forth in Section 4.

E. Upon the written application of the insurer and insured, stating its reasons therefore, filed with and approved by the commissioner, a rate in excess of that provided by a filing otherwise applicable may be used on any specific risk.

F. No insurer shall make or issue a contract or policy except in accordance with the filings which have been approved and are in effect for said insurer as provided in this Act or in accordance with Subsections D or E of this section. This subsection shall not apply to contracts or policies for inland marine risks as to which filings are not required.

Drafting Note: To accommodate the transition from a prior rating law to this model, consideration should be given to inclusion of "transitional language" such as:

"Nothing in this Act shall be construed to require an advisory organization or its members or its subscribers to immediately refile final rates or premium charges previously approved by the commissioner. Members or subscribers of an advisory organization are authorized to continue to use insurance rates or premium charges approved before the effective date of this Act or decreases from those rates or premium charges filed by the advisory organization and subsequently approved after the effective date of this section."

Section 6. Disapproval of Filings

A. If within the waiting period or any extension provided in Section 5C, the commissioner finds that a filing does not meet the requirements of this Act, written notice of disapproval shall be sent to the insurer or advisory organization which made the filing, specifying therein in what respects the filing fails to meet the requirements of this Act and stating that such filing shall not become effective. If a filing is disapproved by the commissioner, the insurer or advisory organization may request a hearing on the disapproval within thirty (30) days and the commissioner shall schedule that hearing within thirty (30) days of the receipt of the request. The insurer or advisory organization bears the burden of proving compliance with the standards established by this Act.

B. If at any time after a rate has been approved, the commissioner finds that the rate no longer meets the requirements of this Act, the commissioner may order the discontinuance of use of the rate. The order of discontinuance may be issued after a hearing with at least ten (10) days' prior notice for all insurers affected by the order. The order must be in writing and state the grounds for the order. It shall also state when, within a reasonable time thereafter, the filing will be deemed no longer effective. The order shall not affect any contract or policy made or issued prior to the expiration of the period set forth in the order. The commissioner's order may include a provision for a premium adjustment for contracts or policies made or issued after the effective date of the order.

C. Any insured aggrieved with respect to any filing which is in effect may make written application to the commissioner for a hearing thereon. The application shall specify the grounds to be relied upon by the applicant. If the commissioner shall find that the application is made in good faith, that the applicant would be so aggrieved if his grounds are established, and that such grounds otherwise justify holding such a hearing, a hearing shall be held within thirty (30) days after receipt of such application upon not less than ten (10) days' written notice to the applicant and to every insurer and advisory organization which made such filing.

If, after such hearing, the commissioner finds that the filing does not meet the requirements of this Act, an order shall issue specifying in what respects such filing fails to meet the requirements of this Act, and stating when, within a reasonable period thereafter, such filing shall no longer be deemed to be in effect. Copies of the order shall be sent to the applicant and to every such insurer and advisory organization. The order shall not affect any contract or policy made or issued prior to the expiration of the period set forth in the order.

Section 7. Information to be Furnished Insureds: Hearings and Appeals of Insureds

A. Every advisory organization and every insurer shall, within a reasonable time after receiving written request, furnish to any insured affected by a rate made by the insurer, or to the authorized representative of the insured, all pertinent information as to such rate. Every advisory organization and every insurer shall provide within this state reasonable means whereby the insured aggrieved by the application of its rating system may be heard, in person or by his or her authorized representative, on written request to review the manner in which such rating system has been applied in connection with the insurance afforded the insured. If the advisory organization or insurer fails to grant or reject such request within thirty (30) days after it is made, the applicant may proceed in the same manner as if the application had been rejected. The insured affected by the action of the advisory organization or insurer on such request may, within thirty (30) days after written notice of such action, appeal to the commissioner, who, after a hearing held upon not less than ten (10) days' written notice to the appellant and to the advisory organization or insurer, may affirm or reverse such action.

Drafting Note: Language could be inserted here which would allow an insurer to charge a reasonable fee to cover the expense of providing any information requested under this section, but charges should not be permitted when the information relates to the specific application of an experience rating modification or a schedule rating modification.

B. If, after a hearing held under this section, it is determined that the rates charged by an insurer are in excess of the otherwise appropriate rate, such overcharge shall be refunded to the insured.

Section 8. Licensing Advisory Organizations and Statistical Agents

A. No advisory organization or statistical agent shall provide any service relating to statistical collection or the rates of any insurance subject to this Act, and no insurer shall utilize the services of such organization for such purposes unless the organization has obtained a license under Subsection C.

B. No advisory organization or statistical agent shall refuse to supply any services for which it is licensed in this state to any insurer authorized to do business in this State and offering to pay the fair and usual compensation for the services.

C. Licensing.

(1) An advisory organization or statistical agent applying for a license shall include with its application:

(a) A copy of its constitution, charter, articles of organization, agreement, association or incorporation, and a copy of its bylaws, plan of operation and any other rules or regulations governing the conduct of its business;

(b) A list of its members and subscribers;

(c) The name and address of one or more residents of this State upon whom notices, process affecting it, or orders of the commissioner may be served;

(d) A statement showing its technical qualifications for acting in the capacity for which it seeks a license;

(e) A biography of the ownership and management of the organization; and

(f) Any other relevant information and documents that the commissioner may require.

(2) Every organization which has applied for a license shall notify the commissioner of every material change in the facts or in the documents on which its application was based. Any amendment to a document filed under this section shall be filed at least thirty (30) days before it becomes effective.

(3) If the commissioner finds that the applicant and the natural persons through whom it acts are competent, trustworthy and technically qualified to provide the services proposed, and that all requirements of the law are met; he or she shall issue a license specifying the authorized activity of the applicant. The commissioner shall not issue a license if the proposed activity would tend to create a monopoly or to substantially lessen the competition in any market.

(4) Licenses issued pursuant to this section shall remain in effect for one year unless the license is suspended or revoked. The commissioner may at any time, after hearing, revoke or suspend the license of an advisory organization or statistical agent which does not comply with the requirements and standards of this Act.

(5) Advisory organizations wishing to operate as statistical agents may be so authorized under their license as an advisory organization. A separate license is not required.

Drafting Note: States may wish to insert language here providing for an annual license fee for advisory organizations and statistical agents.

Section 9. Insurers and Advisory Organizations: Prohibited Activity

A. No insurer or advisory organization shall:

(1) Attempt to monopolize, or combine or conspire with any other person to monopolize an insurance market.

(2) Engage in a boycott, on a concerted basis, of an insurance market.

B. (1) No insurer shall agree with any other insurer or with an advisory organization to mandate adherence to or to mandate use of any rate, prospective loss cost, rating plan, rating schedule, rating rule, policy or bond form, rate classification, rate territory, underwriting rule, survey, inspection or similar material, except as needed to facilitate the reporting of statistics to advisory organizations, statistical agents or the commissioner.

The fact that two or more insurers, whether or not members or subscribers of an advisory organization, use consistently or intermittently the same rates, prospective loss cost, rating plans, rating schedules, rating rules, policy or bond forms, rate classifications, rate territories, underwriting rules, surveys or inspections or similar materials is not sufficient in itself to support a finding that an agreement exists.

(2) Two or more insurers having a common ownership or operating in this State under common management or control may act in concert between or among themselves with respect to any matters pertaining to those activities authorized in this Act as if they constituted a single insurer.

C. No insurer or advisory organization shall make any arrangement with any other insurer, advisory organization, or other person which has the purpose or effect of unreasonably restraining trade or lessening competition in the business of insurance.

Section 10. Advisory Organizations and Statistical Agents: Prohibited Activity

In addition to the other prohibitions contained in this Act, except as specifically permitted under Section 11, no advisory organization or statistical agent shall compile or distribute recommendations relating to rates that include expenses (other than loss adjustment expenses) or profit.

Section 11. Advisory Organizations: Permitted Activity

Any advisory organization in addition to other activities not prohibited, is authorized, on behalf of its members and subscribers, to:

A. Develop statistical plans including territorial and class definitions;

B. Collect statistical data from members, subscribers or any other source;

C. Prepare and distribute prospective loss costs which may include provisions for special assessments;

D. Prepare and distribute factors, calculations or formulas pertaining to classification, territory, increased limits and other variables;

E. Prepare and distribute manuals of rating rules and rating schedules that do not include final rates, expense provisions, profit provisions or minimum premiums;

F. Distribute information that is required or directed to be filed with the commissioner;

G. Conduct research and on-site inspections in order to prepare classifications of public fire defenses;

H. Consult with public officials regarding public fire protection as it would affect members, subscribers and others;

I. Conduct research in order to discover, identify and classify information relating to causes or prevention of losses;

J. Conduct research relating to the impact of statutory changes upon prospective loss costs and special assessments;

K. Prepare policy forms and endorsements and consult with members, subscribers and others relative to their use and application;

L. Conduct research and on-site inspections for the purpose of providing risk information relating to individual structures;

M. Conduct on-site inspections to determine rating classifications for individual insureds;

N. For workers' compensation insurance, establish a committee which may include insurance company representatives to review the determination of the rating classification for individual insureds and suggest modifications to the classification system.;

O. Collect, compile and distribute past and current prices of individual insurers and publish such information;

P. Collect and compile exposure and loss experience for the purpose of individual risk experience ratings;

Q. File final rates, at the direction of the commissioner, for residual market mechanisms; and

R. Furnish any other services, as approved or directed by the commissioner, related to those enumerated in this section.

Section 12. Statistical Agents: Permitted Activity

In addition to other activities not prohibited, any statistical agent is authorized, on behalf of its members and subscribers, to:

A. Develop statistical plans including territorial and class definitions;

B. Collect statistical data from members, subscribers or any other source;

C. Distribute information that is required or directed to be filed with the commissioner;

D. Collect, compile and distribute past and current prices of individual insurers and publish that information;

E. Collect and compile exposure and loss experience for the purpose of individual risk experience ratings, and

F. Furnish other services, as approved or directed by the commissioner, related to those enumerated in this section.

Section 13. Advisory Organizations: Filing Requirements

Every advisory organization shall file with the commissioner for approval all prospective loss costs, provisions for special assessments and all supplementary rating information and every change or amendment or modification of any of the foregoing proposed for use in this state. Such filings shall be subject to the provisions of Sections 5 and 6 and other provisions of this Act relating to filings made by insurers.

Section 14. Joint Underwriting, Joint Reinsurance Pool and Residual Market Activities

A. Notwithstanding Section 9B(1), insurers participating in joint underwriting, joint reinsurance pools or residual market mechanisms may in connection with such activity act in cooperation with each other in the making of rates, rating systems, policy forms, underwriting rules, surveys, inspections and investigations, the furnishing of loss and expense statistics or other information, or carrying on research. Joint underwriting, joint reinsurance pools and residual market mechanisms shall not be deemed a advisory organizations.

B. Except to the extent modified by this section, insurers, joint underwriting, joint reinsurance pool and residual market mechanism activities are subject to the other provisions of this Act.

C. If, after hearing, the commissioner finds that any activity or practice of an insurer participating in joint underwriting or a pool is unfair, is unreasonable, will tend to lessen competition in any market or is otherwise inconsistent with the provisions or purposes of this Act, the commissioner may issue a written order and require the discontinuance of such activity or practice.

D. Every pool shall file with the commissioner a copy of its constitution; its articles of incorporation, agreement or association; its bylaws, rules and regulations governing its activities; its members; the name and address of a resident of this State upon whom notices or orders of the commissioner or process may be served; and any changes in amendments or changes in the foregoing.

E. Any residual market mechanism, plan or agreement to implement such a mechanism, and any changes or amendments thereto, shall be submitted in writing to the commissioner for consideration and approval, together with such information as may be reasonably required. The commissioner shall approve only such agreements as are found to contemplate: (i) the use of rates which meet the standards prescribed by this Act, and (ii) activities and practices that are not unfair, unreasonable or otherwise inconsistent with the provisions of this Act. At any time after such agreements are in effect, the commissioner may review the practices and activities of the adherents to such agreements and if, after a hearing, the commissioner finds that any such practice or activity is unfair or unreasonable, or is otherwise inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, the commissioner may issue a written order to the parties and either require the discontinuance of such acts or revoke approval of any such agreement.

Section 15. Examinations

The commissioner may, as often as he or she may deem it expedient, make or cause to be made an examination of each advisory organization or statistical agent referred to in Section 8 and of each group, association or other organization referred to in Section 14, provided that each statistical agent and advisory organization licensed in this state shall be examined at least once every five (5) years. The reasonable costs of any such examination shall be paid by the advisory organization, statistical agent or group, association or other organization examined. The officers, manager, agents and employees of such advisory organization, statistical agent, or group, association or other organization may be examined at any time under oath and shall exhibit all books, records, accounts, documents or agreements governing its method of operation. In lieu of any such examination, the commissioner may accept the report of an examination made by the insurance supervisory official of another state, pursuant to the laws of that state.

Drafting Note: Under the laws of several of the states, reports on examination are not made public until the organization examined has had an opportunity to review the proposed report and to have a hearing with reference thereto, after which the report is filed for public inspection and becomes admissible in evidence as a public record. In any state that has no such law, it is suggested that provisions to this effect be adopted. Examinations of statistical agents and advisory organizations require specialized expertise; commonly require the hiring of contractors, and can be expensive. States adopting mandatory examination provisions should plan for personnel to be able to undertake or oversee these examinations, and check whether the costs for examinations, even though charged to the organization being examined, must go through the insurance department's budget.

Section 16. Workers' Compensation

A. Every workers' compensation insurer shall adhere to a uniform classification system and uniform experience rating system filed with the commissioner by an advisory organization designated by the commissioner.

B. Every workers' compensation insurer shall report its experience in accordance with the statistical plans and other reporting requirements in use by an advisory organization designated by the commissioner.

C. A workers' compensation insurer may develop subclassifications of the uniform classification system upon which rates may be made. Such subclassifications and their filing shall be subject to the provisions of this Act applicable to filings generally.

D. A workers' compensation insurer may develop rating plans which identify loss experience as a factor to be used. Such rating plans and their filing shall be subject to the provisions of the Act applicable to filings generally.

E. The commissioner shall disapprove subclassifications, rating plans, or other variations from manual rules filed by a workers' compensation insurer if the insurer fails to demonstrate that the data thereby produced can be reported consistent with the uniform classification system and experience rating system and in such a fashion so as to allow for the application of experience rating filed by the advisory organization.

Section 17. Statistical and Rate Administration

A. The commissioner may adopt reasonable rules for use by companies to record and report to the commissioner their rates and other information determined by the commissioner to be necessary or appropriate for the administration of this Act and the effectuation of its purposes.

B. The commissioner may promulgate reasonable rules to assure that the experience of all insurers is made available at least annually in such form and detail as is necessary to aid in effecting the purposes of this Act. The commissioner may designate one or more advisory organizations or statistical agents to assist in gathering such experience and making compilations thereof. The scope of such rules may include the data which must be reported by insurers, definitions of data elements, the timing and frequency of statistical reporting by insurers, data quality standards, data edit and audit requirements, data retention requirements, reports to be generated by advisory organizations or statistical agents to fulfill the requirements of this section, and the timing of such reports.

Drafting Note: States that want the commissioner to be required to promulgate rules for the collection of statistical experience can replace the "may" in the first line of Subsection B with "shall".

C. The following provisions apply only to the disclosure of data and reports provided to the commissioner pursuant to this section and of reports produced by the commissioner from data and reports provided to the commissioner pursuant to this section:

(1) Data shall not be disclosed when it is likely to identify individual policyholders or claimants, or where there is reason to suspect that individual open claim reserves may be identified with individual policyholders or claimants.

Drafting Note: Paragraph (1) should be amended for states that wish to provide for the release of the names of individual policyholders without their permission for the purpose of assigned risk depopulation programs. The amendment should allow the commissioner to release such names on a basis designed to protect policyholder privacy by restricting distribution to producers and insurers interested in writing this business on a voluntary basis.

(2) The commissioner may agree in advance to withhold data from public disclosure when confidentiality is requested by the insurer, advisory organization or statistical agent providing the data to the commissioner, but only if the data include data elements that the commissioner had not required, prior to their writing or occurrence, to be recorded by insurers.

(3) Unless exempted by Paragraph (1) or (2), reports from a statistical agent or advisory organization in which the information is summed and presented on a combined basis for the insurers reporting to that statistical agent or advisory organization shall be open to disclosure.

D. Reasonable rules and plans may be promulgated by the commissioner for the interchange of data necessary for the application of rating plans.

E. In order to assist in the performance of the commissioner's duties under this Act, the commissioner may share documents, materials and other information, including confidential and privileged documents, materials or information with other state, federal and international regulatory agencies, with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, its affiliates or subsidiaries, and with state, federal and international law enforcement authorities, provided that the recipient agrees to maintain the confidentiality and privileged status of the document, material or other information.

Section 18. Rules and Regulations

The commissioner may make reasonable rules and regulations necessary, including definitions of the rate standards contained in Section 4, to effect the purposes of this Act.

Section 19. False or Misleading Information

No person or organization shall willfully withhold information which will affect the rates or premiums chargeable under this Act from, or knowingly give false or misleading information to the commissioner, any statistical agent, any advisory organization or any insurer. A violation of this section shall subject the one guilty of such violation to the penalties provided in Section 22 of this Act.

Section 20. Assigned Risks

Agreements may be made among insurers with respect to the equitable apportionment among them of insurance which may be afforded applicants who are in good faith entitled to, but who are unable to procure such insurance through ordinary methods, and such insurers may agree among themselves on the use of reasonable rate modifications for such insurance, such agreements and rate modifications to be subject to the approval of the commissioner.

Drafting Note: This section is taken from the Casualty and Surety Model Bill approved in 1946 by the NAIC. Since then a number of states have enacted assigned risk provisions of more limited scope. There is no intent here to recommend extension of assigned risk provisions in present state statutes.

This section does not purport to deal with the questions as to whether Assigned Risk Plans should be voluntary or statutory, nor as to what features, including judicial review, should be contained in such plans. If these questions are to be dealt with by statutory provision, such provision should preferably be in another statute.

Section 21. Exemptions

The commissioner may by his or her own initiative or upon request of any person, by rule exempt any market from any or all of the provisions of this Act, if and to the extent that the exemption is necessary to achieve the purposes of this chapter.

Section 22. Penalties

The commissioner may, upon a finding that any person or organization has violated any provision of this Act, impose a penalty of not more than $10,000 for each such violation, but if the violation is found to be willful, a penalty of not more than $25,000 may be imposed for each violation. Such penalties may be in addition to any other penalty provided by law.

For purposes of this section, any insurer using a rate for which the insurer has failed to file the rate, supplementary rate information, underwriting rules or guides, or supporting information as required by this Act, shall have committed a separate violation for each day such failure continues. The commissioner may suspend or revoke the license of any advisory organization, statistical agent or insurer which fails to comply with an order of the commissioner within the time limited by such order, or any extension thereof which the commissioner may grant.

The commissioner may determine when a suspension of license shall become effective and it shall remain in effect for the period fixed by him or her, unless the commissioner modifies or rescinds such suspension, or until the order upon which such suspension is based is modified, rescinded or reversed.

No penalty shall be imposed and no license shall be suspended or revoked except upon a written order of the commissioner stating his or her findings, made after hearing.

Drafting Note: States may wish to insert a section here regarding hearing procedure and judicial review which references the state's administrative procedures act.

Section 23. Laws Repealed

Sections [insert applicable sections] of the statutes of this state are hereby repealed. All other laws or parts of laws inconsistent with the provisions of this Act are hereby repealed.

Section 24. Severability

If any section, subsection, subdivision, paragraph, sentence or clause of this Act is held invalid or unconstitutional, such decision shall not affect the remaining portions of this Act.

Section 25. Effective Date

This Act shall take effect [insert effective date].

Drafting Note: The effective date of this Act should be set to allow state insurance departments, insurance companies and advisory organizations to prepare themselves to carry out the purposes of the Act. One year is recommended.

PROPERTY AND CASUALTY MODEL RATE AND POLICY FORM REGULATION GUIDELINE (#1781) - 2010

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

The Commercial Lines Re-engineering Working Group of the Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee was charged to rework the NAIC's two model rating laws for property and casualty insurance into one law, which:

1. Also regulates forms;
2. Establishes uniform non-renewal and cancellation provisions;
3. Creates waivers of form requirements for multi-state risks;
4. Establishes an exemption from rate and form requirements for large commercial policyholders; and
5. Enables the degree of regulation to vary so as to fit the needs of each marketplace.

The new model law guideline contemplates several possible approaches to rate regulation, but defaults to file and use. A prefatory drafting note to the sections relating to rate regulation conveys the context;

> The NAIC long ago concluded that competition could be an effective regulator of property/casualty insurance rates. Recent consideration of commercial lines rate regulation has led to the conclusion that commercial insurance consumers will generally be better served by less restrictive regulatory interventions—by greater reliance on competition. Consistent with these two conclusions, the rate-regulatory provisions contained in the model law guideline reflect a file and use rate-regulatory approach. It should be noted, however, that the NAIC has not taken a position respecting any particular line of insurance in any particular state. While this model law guideline "defaults" to file and use, it is expected that each state will consider whether other approaches are more appropriate for specific lines or all lines. Drafting notes contained in an appendix for sections 4 through 7 contemplate several alternative approaches, providing for greater or lesser degrees of reliance on competition, which a state may determine to be preferable.
> The movement of states away from prior approval of rates has been more pronounced in connection with commercial lines than personal lines. It has occurred less rapidly in connection with workers' compensation insurance than with most other commercial lines. Although many states have adopted competitive rating approaches for medical professional liability insurance, each state will want to consider the extent to which that state's marketplace for such insurance is, in fact, structured in such a way that reliance upon competition is a viable approach. Each state will also want to consider the extent to which the reverse-competitive market structures of credit property insurance, credit involuntary unemployment insurance and mortgage guaranty insurance either suggest or demand a more guarded regulatory approach than is used for other lines of insurance.

The NAIC did not have a general policy form model law prior to the inclusion of policy form standards and filing requirements in this model law guideline. Development of the standards and filing requirements was necessary to meet the charge given the group to develop appropriate relaxation of regulatory requirements for certain large commercial policyholders. In the prior law there were no regulatory requirements for policy forms. Thus, a baseline was established so that a less restrictive stance for the sophisticated commercial buyer could be implemented. A "default" of prior approval was selected for policy form filings. While this was not very popular with the insurance industry, it reflects the reality of how the regulation of policy forms is accomplished in most states today, and the importance of assuring, prior to use, that policy forms meet minimum standards.

The project also includes a companion model regulation guideline that was developed to provide guidance to states when the model law guideline directs to commissioner to establish a regulation to implement a portion of a law.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Commercial Lines Re-engineering Working Group of the Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee was responsible for revising the Property and Casualty Model Rating Law and the Property and Casualty Model Rating Law (File and Use Version). The following states were members of the working group with Texas serving as chair: Florida, Iowa,

Kentucky, Massachusetts, Maine, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, Ohio and South Dakota. Other regulators and various interested parties assisted in the process.

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

In 1999, the Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee was charged to: "Continue to discuss the feasibility of relaxing regulatory requirements for some commercial lines. Present at the 1999 Winter National Meeting the completed changes to NAIC model rating laws to implement the recommendations made by the (EX) Special Committee on Regulatory Re-engineering in its white paper on commercial lines." It appointed the Commercial Lines Re-engineering Working Group to develop the changes to the model rating laws. The charge was carried over into 2000 to provide the added time needed to meet it.

The law and regulation were adopted by the Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee at the 2000 Spring National Meeting, as was the NAIC Statement of Intent: The Future of Insurance Regulation However, the Committee also passed a motion to recommend a new charge to monitor the discussions of the then-Speed to Market (EX) Working Group relative to rate and form filings for property and casualty insurers and to revisit the model law and regulation for consistency with the recommendations of the Working Group.

In June 2000, the Executive (EX) Committee received the model law and model regulation, but instead of adopting them, referred them to the Speed to Market (EX) Working Group for further consideration. Many years passed while the Speed to Market (EX) Task Force considered the Personal Lines Regulatory Framework white paper and on April 16, 2009, the Speed to Market (EX) Task Force passed the following motion: "That model laws #775 and #780 and the 2000 draft model law and regulation be identified as guidelines and retained as a resource." The NAIC model law coordinator converted model laws #775 and #780 to guidelines consistent with the revised NAIC policy regarding model law development. The coordinator was unsure whether the 2000 model law and model regulation should be made a guideline without affirmative action from the Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee. The Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee was then asked to consider the model law and model regulation.

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated

The drafting process was very open as the Commercial Lines Re-engineering Working Group solicited comments from all interested parties, including interested regulators, funded consumer representatives and insurance industry representatives. The Commercial Lines Re-engineering Working Group began its work in November of 1998, and adopted an initial exposure draft of the model law in March of 1999 at the NAIC Spring National Meeting. It met at all NAIC National Meetings in 1999, held an interim meeting and numerous conference calls to be certain that all issues were addressed and that all parties were given an opportunity to be heard. Because of the volume of comments and the important nature of the issues, the working group did not adopt the model law and the model regulation until March 14, 2000, having adopted a final exposure draft in December 1999. The Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee first adopted the model law and model regulation on March 15, 2000.

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

All of the meetings of the Commercial Lines Re-engineering (C) Working Group, the Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee, the Personal Lines Regulatory Framework (EX) Working Group and the Speed to Market (EX) Task Force were open to all interested parties. All revised drafts of the model law were circulated for public comment. Most of the drafting was done by NAIC staff or members of the working group. There was language adopted by the working group as a result of suggestions from the American Insurance Association, the Alliance of American Insurers, the Property Casualty Insurers Association of America, the Independent Insurance Agents of America, various individual insurer representatives and law firms and the Center for Economic Justice.

On March 28, 2010, the Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee adopted the law and regulation as guidelines with the vote being subject to a 30-day review and comment period where Committee members can submit comments or ask for reconsideration; no comments or reconsideration request were made.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response)

While in the early drafting sessions, the working group's initial focus was upon relaxing regulatory requirements for large, sophisticated commercial risks, the working group also recognized that if it were to meet its assigned charge, that risks other than large commercial risks must also be addressed. As a result, the working group's main focus centered on developing a model rate and form law that would work for all risks, including personal lines.

While ensuring continued consumer protections, the working group's revision to the model law accomplishes the following:

1. provides a greater reliance on competition than the two other NAIC model rating laws;
2. "defaults" to a file and use competitive approach for rate filings with several legislative options suggested through drafting notes;
3. defaults to a prior approval approach for policy forms and other contract language;
4. suggests that the commissioner be granted authority to monitor competition and react with appropriate changes to regulatory processes through implementation of regulations, including the waiver if some or all rate filing requirements for one or more commercial lines of insurance, and a more limited degree of waivers relating to commercial policy forms;
5. addresses inefficiencies for multi-state commercial policyholders by introducing a limited form of reciprocity for insurers selling policies to risks operating in more than one state;
6. exempts from rate and form regulation sales made to "Exempt Commercial Policyholders" (state defined large, sophisticated commercial risks); and
7. promotes the use of the System for Electronic Rate and Form Filing (SERFF) through changes that make the rate and form filing process media neutral.

7. Any Other Important Information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard).

Insurers, agent associations and consumer representatives had significantly different opinions regarding the extent to which rates and forms should be subject to regulatory scrutiny. Insurers generally believe that the working group did not go far enough in granting relief from rate and form filing and approval requirements. There were disagreements on where to draw the line that separates a sophisticated commercial buyer from an unsophisticated one. It is safe to say that insurers would generally favor an approach that employs use and file, informational filings or no filings for rate and policy forms. Consumer representatives, agents and regulators were not generally supportive of these options. Insurer representatives were supportive of lower thresholds for defining what type of entity is exempt from various regulatory requirements. Agents were generally opposed to low thresholds fearing an increase in litigation about the advice they provide to clients. Regulators generally opposed low thresholds as a matter of adequate consumer protection. Consumer interests feared that low thresholds place some consumers in an unequal bargaining position when dealing with insurers. Members of the working group have taken a balanced approach that considers the interests of all parties. They are proud of their work effort and believe that they have addressed all concerns. While not everyone agrees with the outcome on every issue, all parties will agree that the working group was open to hearing their issues and concerns. Members of the insurance industry, the producer community and consumer interests believe that a reasonable model law guideline and companion model regulation guideline have been developed.

PROJECT HISTORY – 2002

PROPERTY AND CASUALTY MODEL RATING LAW (PRIOR APPROVAL VERSION)
PROPERTY AND CASUALTY MODEL RATING LAW (FILE AND USE VERSION)

1. Project Description

The NAIC currently has three alternative model rating laws that apply to property and casualty coverages. This project amends two of the three models. In particular, the Property and Casualty Model Rating Law (Prior Approval Version) and the Property and Casualty Model Rating Law (File and Use Version) have a common section that relates to the collection of statistical information to aid in determining whether rating systems comply with the rate standards set forth in the model laws. The section proved to be very controversial as insurers and consumer advocates could not agree on the level of public disclosure that should be required. Eventually the Statistical Task Force provided a recommendation to the Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee, however, the membership of the task force had dwindled to four states at the time—in large part because of the controversy related to this project. In its recommendation, the task force recognized that no consensus could be reached among the four states and so informed the committee. The issue proved to be no less controversial at the committee level than it was when the task force was wrestling with the issue. Eventually Commissioner José Montemayor (TX) tendered a compromise. He suggested that the real controversy lies in the issue of how insurer-specific data should be treated. In June 2001, he proposed a fairly simple resolution of the matter before the committee. He suggested that if regulators cannot agree on what to say regarding insurer-specific data, they should agree to say nothing. The effect of the silence by the committee is to leave such data open to disclosure, except to the extent protected under each state's public information laws. The committee unanimously accepted the compromise after further deliberation on the matter.

2. Group Responsible for Drafting Model and States Participating

The Statistical (EX) Task Force, later known as the Statistical (Technical) Task Force and now known as the Statistical Information (C) Task Force was originally asked to update the language in the two NAIC property and casualty model rating laws in place at that time. Over the period when the discussions were held, the following states served on the task force: Alaska, California, District of Columbia, Illinois, Iowa, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Oregon, Texas and Virginia. When the recommendation was sent to the committee, the Statistical (Technical) Task Force was chaired by Missouri and had the District of Columbia, New York and Texas as members. When the recommendation, as amended, was finally adopted by the C Committee, the committee was chaired by South Dakota and had the following members: California, Kentucky, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Oregon. Puerto Rico and Texas.

3. Charge Authorizing Project

In 1996 the Statistical (EX) Task Force was charged to—Review and recommend revisions to the Model Regulation to Require Statistical Reporting and (if necessary) to the model rating laws. Make final report by December 1996.

In 1997 the Statistical (Technical) Task Force was charged to—Complete consideration of the Model Regulation to Require Statistical Reporting and of statistically-related changes to the Property and Casualty Model Rating Law and the Property and Casualty Model Rating Law (File and Use Version). Make final recommendations by June 1997.

In 1998 the Statistical (Technical) Task Force was charged to—Complete the Task Force's consideration of changes to the model P&C rating laws that deal with disclosure of statistical data reported to state insurance departments. Make final recommendations to Property and Casualty Commercial Lines (D) Committee by June 1998. Cost of approximately $200.

In 1999 the Statistical (Technical) Task Force was charged to—Complete consideration of changes to the sections of the model P&C rating laws that address possible disclosure of statistical data collected pursuant to the rating law. Make final recommendation by June 1999.

The task force presented its findings to the Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee in March 1999 and the committee has been considering the proposal since then.

4. General Description of Drafting Process

The Statistical Task Force solicited comments from all interested parties, including interested regulators, funded consumer representatives and industry representatives. The task force also solicited key concerns from interested parties and state regulators regarding their views on collection, compilation and public disclosure of statistical data. The task force and, later, the committee received and reviewed numerous comments from interested parties. The comments varied from one extreme to the other. Those working in the insurance industry are concerned that open access to data could compromise an insurer's competitive position and they tended to favor less data collection and protection of the data as trade secret. Consumer advocates believe that Commissioner Montemayor's proposal lessens public access to insurance data when compared with the current model language and they opposed its adoption. They believe the new proposal deletes current language that provides that data compilations prepared by statistical agents for the Commissioner are public documents and establishes only that industry-aggregate data are public records.

5. Significant Issues Raised

Clearly there is no consensus that can be achieved on this issue. Insurers and advisory organizations tend to favor minimizing the amount of data collected and limiting its publication to the greatest extent possible. On the other hand, consumer advocates tend to favor robust data collection systems that grant access to the public for all or virtually all data. Insurance regulators tend to be in the middle; however, there is also no clear consensus among regulators about the level of detail that should be collected or the amount of data that should be made publicly available. Thus, the proposal by Commissioner Montemayor is viewed as the consensus position. It simply leaves the decision on what data should be collected and how much of it should be published up to each state.

PROPERTY AND CASUALTY MODEL RATE AND POLICY FORM REGULATION GUIDELINE

Table of Contents

Section 1. Authority

This regulation is adopted and promulgated by [title of supervisory authority] pursuant to Section [insert applicable section] of the [insert state] insurance code.

Section 2. Definitions

As used in this regulation:

A. "Exempt commercial policyholder" means an entity that has sufficient insurance buying expertise to negotiate with insurers in a largely unregulated environment and that meets any two (2) of the following qualifying criteria:

(1) Net worth of over $50 million;

(2) Net revenues or sales of over $100 million;

(3) More than 500 employees per individual company or 1,000 per holding company aggregate;

(4) Procures its insurance through use of a risk manager, employed or retained;

(5) Aggregate premiums of over $500,000;

(6) Is a not for profit, or public entity with an annual budget or assets of at least $45 million, or

(7) Is a municipality with a population of over 50,000.

Drafting Note—ECP Definition: The definition of exempt commercial policyholder (ECP) included here was taken from the NAIC white paper: The Regulatory Re-engineering of Commercial Lines Insurance. It should be noted that in legislative sessions subsequent to the white paper, some states adopted ECP criteria similar to or the same as those in the white paper, while other states opted to enact much lower ECP criteria, in some cases with exemption applying only to filing requirements and not rate and policy form standards. It should also be noted that the criteria for ECPs may include variations. For example, lower ECP criteria might be applied in connection with rates than are applied in connection with forms.

B. "Principally located in another state" means that the commercial policyholder maintains its headquarters in another state and that its officers and senior management are physically located at its headquarters.

C. "Risk manager" means a person whose primary economic activity consists of regularly and continuously identifying and analyzing loss exposures, selecting the technique or combination of techniques to be used to handle each exposure to loss, implementing the chosen techniques and monitoring the decisions made.

Drafting Note—"Risk Manager" Definition: To the extent the definition of an ECP in Subsection A is modified, it may also be desirable to modify the definition of "risk manager" and to include language prohibiting the risk manager from having a conflicting economic interest in the policy being negotiated or procured.

Section 3. Waiver of Filing Requirements for Insurers Providing Coverages to Certain Exempt Commercial Policyholders

An insurer providing insurance coverage for an exempt commercial policyholder shall be exempt from all of the following requirements only for those policies issued to exempt commercial policyholders:

A. The rate standards specified in Section [insert appropriate reference].

B. The rate filing requirements specified in Section [insert appropriate reference].

C. The policy form standards specified in Section [insert appropriate reference].

D. The policy form filing requirements specified in Section [insert appropriate reference].

E. All laws of this state containing statutorily mandated policy language, except for those applying to workers' compensation policies or auto insurance policies.

Section 4. Record Retention Requirements Applicable to Certain Exempt Commercial Policyholders

An insurer providing insurance coverage for an exempt commercial policyholder shall maintain adequate records to document that the exempt commercial policyholder met the criteria set forth in this regulation. The insurer shall maintain the records to ascertain that the policyholder was an exempt commercial policyholder for a period of not less than three (3) years from the expiration of the policy to which the exemption applies. The commissioner may make such examination as is deemed advisable to ascertain whether the insurer is claiming exemption for policies issued to policyholders that do not meet the criteria for consideration as an exempt commercial policyholder.

Section 5. Form Approval Requirements Applying to Multistate Commercial Risks

To facilitate the ability of insurers to transact the business of insurance with commercial risks that operate in more than one state, the commissioner finds that it is appropriate to modify the requirements for filing of certain policy forms and adherence to certain laws in this state. The following requirements are modified as indicated:

A. The commissioner hereby waives the policy form filing requirements specified in Section [insert appropriate reference] for those policy forms issued to a commercial risk that operates in two (2) or more states, provided that the business of the commercial risk is principally located in another state.

B. The insurer providing coverage for a commercial risk whose business is principally located in another state is not required to comply with [insert statutory reference to cancellation, nonrenewal and notice requirements and other laws that should not apply], provided that the insurer adheres to the cancellation and nonrenewal, and other laws of the state where the commercial risk is principally located.

C. The insurer providing coverage for the commercial risk whose business is principally located in another state is required to comply with the laws of this state with regard to workers' compensation and the mandatory provisions contained in this state's automobile insurance laws. If the insurer includes a conformity to statute clause in its policies, that clause shall be interpreted to provide the workers' compensation and automobile insurance coverage required in this state.

Section 6. Severability Provision

If any section or portion of a section of this regulation or the application of this regulation to any person, business or circumstance is for any reason held to be invalid by a court, the remainder of the regulation and the application of the provision to other persons, businesses or circumstances shall not be affected.

Section 7. Effective Date

This regulation shall be effective on [insert date].

PROJECT HISTORY – 2009/2010

PROPERTY AND CASUALTYMODEL RATE AND POLICY FORM LAW GUIDELINE (#1780) - 2009
PROPERTY AND CASUALTY MODEL RATE AND POLICY FORM REGULATION GUIDELINE (#1781) - 2010

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

The Commercial Lines Re-engineering Working Group of the Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee was charged to rework the NAIC's two model rating laws for property and casualty insurance into one law, which:

1. Also regulates forms;
2. Establishes uniform non-renewal and cancellation provisions;
3. Creates waivers of form requirements for multi-state risks;
4. Establishes an exemption from rate and form requirements for large commercial policyholders; and
5. Enables the degree of regulation to vary so as to fit the needs of each marketplace.

The new model law guideline contemplates several possible approaches to rate regulation, but defaults to file and use. A prefatory drafting note to the sections relating to rate regulation conveys the context;

> The NAIC long ago concluded that competition could be an effective regulator of property/casualty insurance rates. Recent consideration of commercial lines rate regulation has led to the conclusion that commercial insurance consumers will generally be better served by less restrictive regulatory interventions—by greater reliance on competition. Consistent with these two conclusions, the rate-regulatory provisions contained in the model law guideline reflect a file and use rate-regulatory approach. It should be noted, however, that the NAIC has not taken a position respecting any particular line of insurance in any particular state. While this model law guideline "defaults" to file and use, it is expected that each state will consider whether other approaches are more appropriate for specific lines or all lines. Drafting notes contained in an appendix for sections 4 through 7 contemplate several alternative approaches, providing for greater or lesser degrees of reliance on competition, which a state may determine to be preferable.
> The movement of states away from prior approval of rates has been more pronounced in connection with commercial lines than personal lines. It has occurred less rapidly in connection with workers' compensation insurance than with most other commercial lines. Although many states have adopted competitive rating approaches for medical professional liability insurance, each state will want to consider the extent to which that state's marketplace for such insurance is, in fact, structured in such a way that reliance upon competition is a viable approach. Each state will also want to consider the extent to which the reverse-competitive market structures of credit property insurance, credit involuntary unemployment insurance and mortgage guaranty insurance either suggest or demand a more guarded regulatory approach than is used for other lines of insurance.

The NAIC did not have a general policy form model law prior to the inclusion of policy form standards and filing requirements in this model law guideline. Development of the standards and filing requirements was necessary to meet the charge given the group to develop appropriate relaxation of regulatory requirements for certain large commercial policyholders. In the prior law there were no regulatory requirements for policy forms. Thus, a baseline was established so that a less restrictive stance for the sophisticated commercial buyer could be implemented. A "default" of prior approval was selected for policy form filings. While this was not very popular with the insurance industry, it reflects the reality of how the regulation of policy forms is accomplished in most states today, and the importance of assuring, prior to use, that policy forms meet minimum standards.

The project also includes a companion model regulation guideline that was developed to provide guidance to states when the model law guideline directs to commissioner to establish a regulation to implement a portion of a law.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Commercial Lines Re-engineering Working Group of the Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee was responsible for revising the Property and Casualty Model Rating Law and the Property and Casualty Model Rating Law (File and Use Version). The following states were members of the working group with Texas serving as chair: Florida, Iowa,

Kentucky, Massachusetts, Maine, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, Ohio and South Dakota. Other regulators and various interested parties assisted in the process.

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

In 1999, the Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee was charged to: "Continue to discuss the feasibility of relaxing regulatory requirements for some commercial lines. Present at the 1999 Winter National Meeting the completed changes to NAIC model rating laws to implement the recommendations made by the (EX) Special Committee on Regulatory Re-engineering in its white paper on commercial lines." It appointed the Commercial Lines Re-engineering Working Group to develop the changes to the model rating laws. The charge was carried over into 2000 to provide the added time needed to meet it.

The law and regulation were adopted by the Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee at the 2000 Spring National Meeting, as was the NAIC Statement of Intent: The Future of Insurance Regulation However, the Committee also passed a motion to recommend a new charge to monitor the discussions of the then-Speed to Market (EX) Working Group relative to rate and form filings for property and casualty insurers and to revisit the model law and regulation for consistency with the recommendations of the Working Group.

In June 2000, the Executive (EX) Committee received the model law and model regulation, but instead of adopting them, referred them to the Speed to Market (EX) Working Group for further consideration. Many years passed while the Speed to Market (EX) Task Force considered the Personal Lines Regulatory Framework white paper and on April 16, 2009, the Speed to Market (EX) Task Force passed the following motion: "That model laws #775 and #780 and the 2000 draft model law and regulation be identified as guidelines and retained as a resource." The NAIC model law coordinator converted model laws #775 and #780 to guidelines consistent with the revised NAIC policy regarding model law development. The coordinator was unsure whether the 2000 model law and model regulation should be made a guideline without affirmative action from the Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee. The Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee was then asked to consider the model law and model regulation.

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated

The drafting process was very open as the Commercial Lines Re-engineering Working Group solicited comments from all interested parties, including interested regulators, funded consumer representatives and insurance industry representatives. The Commercial Lines Re-engineering Working Group began its work in November of 1998, and adopted an initial exposure draft of the model law in March of 1999 at the NAIC Spring National Meeting. It met at all NAIC National Meetings in 1999, held an interim meeting and numerous conference calls to be certain that all issues were addressed and that all parties were given an opportunity to be heard. Because of the volume of comments and the important nature of the issues, the working group did not adopt the model law and the model regulation until March 14, 2000, having adopted a final exposure draft in December 1999. The Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee first adopted the model law and model regulation on March 15, 2000.

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

All of the meetings of the Commercial Lines Re-engineering (C) Working Group, the Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee, the Personal Lines Regulatory Framework (EX) Working Group and the Speed to Market (EX) Task Force were open to all interested parties. All revised drafts of the model law were circulated for public comment. Most of the drafting was done by NAIC staff or members of the working group. There was language adopted by the working group as a result of suggestions from the American Insurance Association, the Alliance of American Insurers, the Property Casualty Insurers Association of America, the Independent Insurance Agents of America, various individual insurer representatives and law firms and the Center for Economic Justice.

On March 28, 2010, the Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee adopted the law and regulation as guidelines with the vote being subject to a 30-day review and comment period where Committee members can submit comments or ask for reconsideration; no comments or reconsideration request were made.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response)

While in the early drafting sessions, the working group's initial focus was upon relaxing regulatory requirements for large, sophisticated commercial risks, the working group also recognized that if it were to meet its assigned charge, that risks other than large commercial risks must also be addressed. As a result, the working group's main focus centered on developing a model rate and form law that would work for all risks, including personal lines.

While ensuring continued consumer protections, the working group's revision to the model law accomplishes the following:

1. provides a greater reliance on competition than the two other NAIC model rating laws;
2. "defaults" to a file and use competitive approach for rate filings with several legislative options suggested through drafting notes;
3. defaults to a prior approval approach for policy forms and other contract language;
4. suggests that the commissioner be granted authority to monitor competition and react with appropriate changes to regulatory processes through implementation of regulations, including the waiver if some or all rate filing requirements for one or more commercial lines of insurance, and a more limited degree of waivers relating to commercial policy forms;
5. addresses inefficiencies for multi-state commercial policyholders by introducing a limited form of reciprocity for insurers selling policies to risks operating in more than one state;
6. exempts from rate and form regulation sales made to "Exempt Commercial Policyholders" (state defined large, sophisticated commercial risks); and
7. promotes the use of the System for Electronic Rate and Form Filing (SERFF) through changes that make the rate and form filing process media neutral.

7. Any Other Important Information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard).

Insurers, agent associations and consumer representatives had significantly different opinions regarding the extent to which rates and forms should be subject to regulatory scrutiny. Insurers generally believe that the working group did not go far enough in granting relief from rate and form filing and approval requirements. There were disagreements on where to draw the line that separates a sophisticated commercial buyer from an unsophisticated one. It is safe to say that insurers would generally favor an approach that employs use and file, informational filings or no filings for rate and policy forms. Consumer representatives, agents and regulators were not generally supportive of these options. Insurer representatives were supportive of lower thresholds for defining what type of entity is exempt from various regulatory requirements. Agents were generally opposed to low thresholds fearing an increase in litigation about the advice they provide to clients. Regulators generally opposed low thresholds as a matter of adequate consumer protection. Consumer interests feared that low thresholds place some consumers in an unequal bargaining position when dealing with insurers. Members of the working group have taken a balanced approach that considers the interests of all parties. They are proud of their work effort and believe that they have addressed all concerns. While not everyone agrees with the outcome on every issue, all parties will agree that the working group was open to hearing their issues and concerns. Members of the insurance industry, the producer community and consumer interests believe that a reasonable model law guideline and companion model regulation guideline have been developed.

GUIDELINE ON NONADMITTED ACCIDENT AND HEALTH COVERAGES

Table of Contents

Section 1. Purpose

This guideline provides assistance to states updating laws and establishing procedures for allowing accident and health coverage to be procured in the nonadmitted market either independently or through surplus lines brokers. States considering any action to allow accident and health coverage placement with nonadmitted insurers should consider this guideline during a review of existing laws, regulations, and procedures, with particular attention to whether existing insurance laws, tax laws, or regulations expressly prohibit the export of accident and health coverage, contain restrictive definitions with a similar effect, or include substantive provisions that specifically refer in some manner to property and casualty insurance. Amending or interpreting some of these laws to permit placement of accident and health coverage while leaving other property and casualty-specific laws in place in their current form could result in conflicts or unintended consequences.

The types of accident and health coverage that some states are permitting in their nonadmitted market include, but are not limited to, the following: short term medical, international major medical, excess disability, high-risk disability and other similar coverages. It should be noted that comprehensive health plans, Medicare supplement insurance and standard disability insurance coverage are not suitable for the nonadmitted market.

Section 2. Background

The term "nonadmitted insurance" refers to coverage that is not found in the admitted insurance market and can lawfully be sold on a nonadmitted basis. Nonadmitted insurance coverage is typically utilized to insure against a loss that exceeds the maximum limits or benefits found in coverages available within the admitted market.

While nonadmitted insurance coverages are traditionally found within the property and casualty market, there is an increasing need to supplement the admitted market for certain types of accident and health coverages. The federal Nonadmitted and Reinsurance Reform Act of 2010 (NRRA), passed as part of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act, applies only to property and casualty insurance.

Nonadmitted accident and health coverage can be utilized to fulfill the risk mitigation needs of certain potential insureds. However, as discussed in more detail in Sections 4 and 6, the greater flexibility found in the nonadmitted market involves tradeoffs with less stringent consumer protections. The following background highlights certain coverages and identifies why the coverage may not be available from admitted insurers:

- There are high-income individuals who cannot procure sufficient disability income coverage in the market as admitted carriers may only offer maximum limits that would replace a lower percentage of these individuals' income than they might require to sustain their needs in case of a disability.

- Individuals in high-risk occupations, such as sports, entertainment, and aviation, are often not eligible for adequate disability coverage in the admitted market.

- International major medical insurance is insurance coverage provided to individuals while outside of their home country. This is a specialty line that might have limited or no availability in the admitted market. Comprehensive health plans issued in the U.S. often restrict or exclude coverage for health care obtained while the covered U.S. resident is visiting another country, for a short or long duration. Also, a foreign national visiting the U.S. may not be eligible for medical coverage from U.S. insurers. In either case, an individual's medical insurance from his or her home jurisdiction may not provide coverage in other countries.

- International travel insurance is designed to provide coverage to U.S. residents traveling abroad where domestic insurers do not provide coverage. It should be noted that this insurance may be subject to coverage requirements of the laws of the jurisdiction where it is effective (i.e., destination country) that may differ from the U.S. These policies contemplate the unique risks involved in travel and can be tailored to fit a particular destination or activity: (e.g., a traveler backpacking in several European countries or a student participating in a study abroad program). In addition, this coverage may be purchased to satisfy insurance requirements for entry into a destination country or to qualify for a student visa.

States have already established laws and processes to which carriers and brokers of surplus lines insurance must adhere. There are jurisdictions that have created a list of types of coverages that may be exported to the nonadmitted market, or that specifically prohibit certain coverage types from being exported to a surplus lines insurer. Additional requirements also apply, such as the obligation to exercise due diligence before a surplus lines broker can place coverage, which may be subject to specific procedures in some states.

Section 3. Definition

Some states have enacted laws that recognize the types of insurance that are eligible for placement with nonadmitted insurers. The NAIC Nonadmitted Insurance Model Act (#870), states in part:

> "Surplus lines insurance means any property and casualty insurance in this state on properties, risks or exposures, located or to be performed in this state, permitted to be placed through a surplus lines licensee with a nonadmitted insurer eligible to accept such insurance…."

A state's definition of "Surplus Lines Insurance" or "Nonadmitted Insurance" will often specify the types of insurance permitted by law. A state could elect to expand these definitions to include accident and health coverages. For states that identify specific coverages within their definitions of surplus lines or nonadmitted insurance, this list could be revised to describe the types of accident and health coverage the state has chosen to permit or prohibit.

Section 4. Consumer Protection

The admitted market is closely regulated and features strong, prescriptive consumer protection measures. States should take into consideration the differences between these regulatory philosophies when deciding which types of accident and health coverages may be offered in the nonadmitted market. Steps to ensure consumer protection can be implemented at a statutory level (slowly expanding a restrictive list of allowed coverage in nonadmitted markets) or at a consumer level by requiring disclosures that the coverage is issued by a nonadmitted insurer and what that means for the consumer. These disclosures are particularly important for types of coverage that might be marketed as alternatives to comprehensive health plans, where consumers may expect a high level of consumer protection. This is the tradeoff states should address if they are considering allowing coverage such as short-term medical plans, limited-benefit medical plans, or stop-loss insurance to be offered in the nonadmitted market.

Section 5. Eligibility Criteria for Nonadmitted Insurers

States should review their laws and regulations that set forth eligibility requirements for nonadmitted insurers domiciled in United States jurisdictions to ascertain whether the state's thresholds are adequate for accident and health coverage. Although nonadmitted alien insurers may be eligible on an individual state basis, the NRRA mandates that inclusion on the NAIC's Quarterly Listing of Alien Insurers provides eligibility across all jurisdictions for nonadmitted property and casualty insurance. Many states have incorporated this provision into state law. States that maintain an eligibility listing of nonadmitted insurers should consider whether these procedures should be modified to address accident and health insurers.

Section 6. Lines Open for Export; Export Lists

In some states, current law provides broad authority for the Commissioner to designate a particular type of coverage to be eligible for export without compliance with certain conditions, such as satisfying a diligent search requirement. In some states, these laws could permit accident and health coverages to be included on the export list. But other states have explicit prohibitions against exporting accident and health coverage or other provisions that might operate to limit the scope of their export list laws.

Section 7. Exemption from Filing Rates and Forms; Policy Language

Existing state laws establish a regulatory system for transacting nonadmitted insurance. Fundamental to the nature of this business is the exemption from rate and form filings for all types of nonadmitted insurance. Many states have specific provisions that are required or prohibited in some or all nonadmitted policies, but the mechanism for enforcing these requirements is not through a mandatory rate and form review procedure. Some types of accident and health insurance, by contrast, are subject to specific rate and form filing requirements, in some cases mandated by federal laws or regulations. States need to determine how to accommodate these requirements if they are considering allowing these types of coverage to be offered in the nonadmitted market.

Section 8. Licensing of Producers and Surplus Lines Brokers

States need to assess licensing requirements for producers and surplus lines brokers for placement of accident and health coverage. Existing laws might specifically require property and casualty authority as a necessary prerequisite for surplus lines authority.

Section 9. Requirements for Placement

States should review any statutory and regulatory requirements for a diligent search in the admitted market by a producer or surplus lines broker for the type of coverage the customer has requested. Some states may have further restrictions on eligibility for export, such as limitations on the amount of insurance that is procurable over the amount available from admitted insurers. Furthermore, some states do not allow export for the purpose of securing certain advantages, such as lower premium rates or more favorable terms of the insurance policy.

Section 10. Premium Taxes and Reporting Requirements

States should review their existing laws regarding nonadmitted insurance premium tax and consider applying the same tax rate for the calculation and reporting of premium taxes for all nonadmitted insurance. Otherwise, states should amend those laws with specific provisions for the calculation of premium tax for accident and health insurance.

State laws and procedures for consumer notices, reporting policy transactions, premium tax payments, filing affidavits, reports, and other required documents could be expanded to apply to accident and health coverages.

Section 11. Home State Regulation

The NRRA enacts a federal definition of "home state" and provides that the placement of nonadmitted insurance is subject solely to the statutory and regulatory requirements of the insured's home state. This provides for a consistent method of determining jurisdiction for the regulation of nonadmitted insurance. Many states have incorporated this framework into state law. States should consider applying it to nonadmitted accident and health coverages.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2019

NONADMITTED ACCIDENT AND HEALTH COVERAGES GUIDELINE (#1860)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

This guideline will provide assistance to states updating laws and establishing procedures for allowing accident and health (A&H) coverage to be procured in the nonadmitted market either independently or through surplus lines brokers. Due to current market demands, the types of A&H coverage that some states are permitting in their nonadmitted market include, but are not limited to, the following: short-term medical, international major medical, excess disability, high-risk disability and other similar coverages. States considering any action to allow A&H coverage placement with nonadmitted insurers should consider this guideline during a review of existing laws, regulations and procedures.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Surplus Lines (C) Task Force formed the Nonadmitted A&H Drafting Group, which consisted of Colorado, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland and Wyoming.

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The Surplus Lines (C) Task Force charge indicates that the group is to, "Provide a forum for discussion of current and emerging surplus lines-related issues and topics of public policy and determine appropriate regulatory response and action."

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc). Include any parties outside the members that participated

The guideline was drafted by the members of the Drafting Group through a series of conference calls and a webinar from October 2017 through September 2018. Each member of the Drafting Group was responsible for research and drafting responsibilities. Following an initial draft of the guideline, the Drafting Group members each proofed the document, and a subsequent conference call was held to discuss modifications.

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited)

The Guideline was discussed within an open forum during the Surplus Lines (C) Task Force meetings during the 2017 Summer National Meeting and 2017 Fall National Meeting, during an open conference call in February 2018, during the 2018 Spring National Meeting and 2018 Summer National Meeting, and during a conference call in December 2018. During this time period, there were two open exposures of the guideline.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response)

Although comments were addressed from several state insurance regulators and interested parties, there were no issues that would rise to the level of "significant." All comments received during the exposure periods were addressed, and where appropriate, textual revisions were made to the guideline.

7. Any Other Important Information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard)

GUIDELINES FOR REGULATIONS AND LEGISLATION ON WORKERS' COMPENSATION COVERAGE FOR PROFESSIONAL EMPLOYER ORGANIZATION ARRANGEMENTS

Table of Contents

Executive Summary

This Implementation Commentary is designed to assist states, PEOs, and the insurance industry to implement a regulatory framework consistent with the Guidelines for Regulations and Legislation on Workers' Compensation Coverage for Professional Employer Organization Arrangements (#1950) adopted by the NAIC in 2007, which are attached as Appendix A. The Commentary provides a framework for considering the Guidelines and provides additional information concerning:

- The historical background of the Guidelines, including an overview of professional employer organization (PEO) arrangements;
- Differences between the Guidelines and earlier regulatory approaches;
- Statutory and structural considerations for implementation; and
- Key issues that might be essential for successful implementation.

The PEO business model for employment services outsourcing has continued to expand nationwide.[1] While employment services outsourcing and the concept of co-employment involve a number of issues for the states, one significant issue is how state workers' compensation systems adapt to address the requirements of this method of doing business. Presently, there is a broad disparity among the states as to how these and other types of outsourcing arrangements are regulated. The existing statutory frameworks in some states might not directly or adequately address issues related to workers' compensation, while other states are devoid of any significant statutory provisions.

The Guidelines are designed to provide the states with a possible regulatory framework for addressing the most significant workers' compensation issues that have arisen to date in PEO relationships, with an emphasis on a clear allocation of the respective rights and responsibilities of PEOs, clients, and insurers. In some cases, the Guidelines seek to clarify or codify current best practices, while in others, they mandate some significant changes from the status quo. The purpose of this commentary is to provide additional insight from the working group that developed the Guidelines.

I. Historical Background of the Guidelines

The Guidelines are the culmination of more than 18 years of experience, effort, and deliberation by the NAIC, with input from the International Association of Industrial Accident Boards and Commissions (IAIABC). The Guidelines, as adopted in 2007, are the successor to a model statute and regulation, of far more limited scope, adopted by the NAIC in 1991. The Guidelines draw heavily upon the 2002 Report on Employee Leasing and Professional Employer Organizations produced by the NAIC/IAIABC Joint (C) Working Group, on input from that Joint Working Group, and on more than three years of deliberation and work by the NAIC Professional Employer Organization Model Law (C) Working Group of the NAIC Workers' Compensation (C) Task Force.

This historical overview is designed to provide a context for those who are seeking to use the Guidelines as a basis for statutory and regulatory actions. While the Guidelines pertain only to the issue of workers' compensation in PEO situations, an understanding of the broader context of the evolution of PEOs and of these Guidelines should assist those using them.

A. Origins of the PEO Industry and the Initial Regulatory Responses

The PEO industry began its evolution in the 1970s as the employee leasing industry. Initially, it involved a client terminating its entire workforce, a leasing company employing that workforce, and then the leasing company providing that same workforce back to the client as leased employees. The idea was for the leasing company to be "the employer" or general employer of the workers, who would be working for the client company as "borrowed servants." Unlike traditional staffing entities that would provide additional temporary workers to a client for specific needs, such as seasonal work or filling in for absences, and then reassign those workers to another client when the need was over, this new concept involved entire workforces on a long-term basis.

[1] The National Association of Professional Employer Organizations (NAPEO) estimates that the PEO industry has grown to $68 billion in gross revenues in 2008. One source for information about the PEO industry is the NAPEO Web site, www.napeo.org.

The concept was designed to allow the client to focus on the core business of its enterprise and to leave the employment-related issues to the leasing company, which could save costs through economies and efficiencies of scale usually only available to larger enterprises. The leasing company maintained that, as the employer of the leased workers, it was both able to and required to secure workers' compensation for the worksite employees leased to a client. However, the concept was also susceptible to abuse. As the 2002 NAIC/IAIABC report stated:

There are many reasons for entering into employment services outsourcing agreements. Many businesses become employment services outsourcing clients because they find it to be an efficient way to obtain high quality administrative services, and many of these outsourcing companies have worked hard to develop professional standards for the industry. However, other employment services outsourcing arrangements have been motivated by factors ranging from exploitation of loopholes in rating rules to outright fraud.

In particular, a widespread abuse observed by regulators was the use of employee leasing arrangements for "mod laundering" — that is, the employee leasing company would claim that, as a brand-new employer, its workers' compensation premium should not be affected by the accident experience of its clients before they had joined the employee leasing arrangement. The opaque, poorly documented nature of some employee leasing arrangements also fostered "shell games," in which workers and worksites fell into gaps where neither the client nor the leasing company was paying the premium for the exposure. Occasionally, the leasing company simply charged its clients for insurance it never bought.

Over time, it was generally agreed that "employee leasing" was a misnomer for what factually transpired in the service relationship. From the employees' perspective, their boss was still the client, which continued essentially the same employment relationship with the employees as before. On the other hand, most states recognized that the service firm did also enter into an employment relationship with the employees. Thus, both businesses had employment duties, which were shared and allocated according to the terms of the service contract between the service firm and the client.

Because of these facts, the initial "fire and lease back" concept of employee leasing has largely been abandoned and replaced by the "co-employment" relationship used by today's PEOs. Under this concept, employer responsibilities are shared or allocated between the client and the PEO by contract (and, in some states, by law). Most states now recognize both the PEO and the client as having employer responsibilities with regard to a worksite employee.

Nonetheless, the movement of workers' compensation responsibilities for these employees from client to a leasing company and back, or from leasing company to leasing company, had a major impact on the experience rating system.

Under traditional rating rules, a client customarily lost its experience factor because its entire workforce was absorbed into the leasing company's larger workforce and became insured under a master policy covering the leasing company. As noted earlier, this system allowed unscrupulous leasing companies to offer high-risk, high-experience-factor clients a lower premium by moving the workforce into a leasing company with a lower experience modifier, often a recently organized (or reorganized)[2] company with a "unity" modifier, meaning no adjustment for experience. Experience rating concerns were the principal focus of the 1991 NAIC model act and regulation, which mandated that:

1. Leasing companies must be registered with any state where they did business;

2. A leasing company must use a multiple coordinated policy arrangement in the residual market instead of a master policy; and

3. An insurer in a master policy arrangement must be able to generate the information necessary to establish an accurate experience factor for a client that left a leasing arrangement.

[2] Although the rating rules are designed to prevent employers from reorganizing with a clean slate whenever adverse experience develops, through provisions that combine the experience of predecessor and successor employers, the complexities in the employee leasing relationship and the structure of employee leasing companies as service providers (rather than "bricks and mortar" businesses) provided more opportunities for employee leasing companies and their clients to evade these rules by disguising continuity of operations.

B. Development and Objectives of the Guidelines

As the leasing industry grew and evolved into the PEO industry,[3] the initial NAIC models proved inadequate. Experience rating issues continued to be a problem and additional regulatory concerns were identified. As a result, a second study was undertaken by the NAIC/IAIABC Joint Working Group, the NAIC rescinded the 1991 models, and the present Guidelines were developed.

Several fundamental decisions were made by the Joint Working Group at the outset, which guided development of the Guidelines:

1. Limited Scope – While the Joint Working Group recognized that there are multiple state law and regulatory issues related to PEOs (including other insurance issues, such as health benefits), the Guidelines would be limited solely to the issues of workers' compensation.

2. Multiple Options – The group recognized that there was significant variation across the states with regard to workers' compensation in PEO arrangements. Some states had adopted the initial NAIC models (or a variant of those models), some states required PEOs to use multiple coordinated policies in both the residual and voluntary markets, and other states allowed master policy arrangements in the name of the PEO or leasing company. The Joint Working Group decided to provide guidance that could be adapted and used for any or all of these situations.

3. Voluntary vs. Residual Markets – The Joint Working Group, recognizing the peculiar responsibilities of the residual market, opted to maintain the requirement of a multiple coordinated policy or client-based policy in the residual market. Greater flexibility is allowed under the Guidelines for insurers and insureds in the voluntary market, as long as essential requirements for coverage, experience, and notice are met.

4. Implementation Commentary – Because of the complexity of the Guidelines, the need to address a number of issues legislatively, and the fact that the Guidelines address only the workers' compensation aspects of PEO arrangements, it was decided to issue a companion paper to the Guidelines to give state insurance regulators and legislators additional context for implementation.

Significant changes occurred in the PEO industry and in state-based insurance regulation between the development of the first NAIC model rule and act in 1989–1991 and the efforts of the Professional Employer Organization Model Law (C) Working Group in 2003–2007. In 1991, only four states[4] had any kind of statutory scheme to regulate the PEO (then employee leasing) industry. By the NAIC adoption of the Guidelines in 2007, 32 states[5] had enacted some form of registration or licensing legislation for the industry. While some of these statutes are limited in scope, most of the more recent statutes are more comprehensive and provide significant legislative guidance as to the definition and treatment of the PEO industry. Some specifically address workers' compensation issues and nearly all recognize a PEO as an employer for purposes of workers' compensation.

As work on the Guidelines proceeded, the Working Group recognized the importance of looking, from the ground up, at the tripartite relationship among the PEO, the client, and the insurer, and carefully considering the contractual and financial obligations that each of them has toward each of the other two. As a result, the Guidelines have addressed several areas where the Working Group determined that existing laws and practices needed to be changed, or where vague situations needed to be clarified, including:

[3] Over time, this type of arrangement has become known as a professional employer organization (PEO) co-employment arrangement, where both the PEO and the client have certain employer obligations.

[4] Arkansas, Florida, Maine, and Utah.

[5] Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, and West Virginia.

- A formal, documented obligation by the insurer to the client.

- Termination of one co-employer's coverage does not automatically terminate the other co-employer's coverage, especially when there has not been sufficient notice.

- Clear recognition of a payment structure under which the client's obligation is to pay fees to the PEO and the PEO's obligation is to pay premium to the insurer.

- Coverage issued through a PEO must cover the client's full workforce, unless the client has other coverage that provides full "catch-all" protection for any employees who are not co-employed by the PEO.

- Experience must be reported at the client level on an ongoing basis, not just when the client leaves the PEO.

- An experience modification factor will be calculated for all experience-rated clients, even in situations where the insurer and PEO choose to calculate premium on the basis of the PEO's experience.

- Disclosure requirements so that clients clearly understand their rights and responsibilities.

II. Some Legal Issues Relating to Implementation

- Existing Law

One of the first issues for a state to consider, when seeking to use or implement the Guidelines, is to assess the status of current state law with regard to PEOs and employer status. The Guidelines are structured as a regulation, but state law must provide a proper statutory foundation in order to be able to adopt all or part of the Guidelines as a regulation. In many states, certain provisions contained in the Guidelines might be more cleanly adopted as statutes, while other states might have concerns about delegation of too much authority to an administrative agency. In addition, some provisions go beyond the traditional bounds of insurance regulation, such as the requirement for a PEO to provide clear and conspicuous written notice to clients if the PEO is not assuming responsibility for workers' compensation coverage. Although providing PEO services without workers' compensation coverage is not the norm, it is not an insurance transaction; it is the absence of an insurance transaction. Thus, unless the insurance regulator has already been given general regulatory authority over PEOs, or the Legislature has otherwise specifically addressed the issue, it would not ordinarily trigger the jurisdiction of the insurance regulator.

For these reasons, it is necessary for each state to analyze its individual situation to determine which provisions contained in the Guidelines are best addressed by directly making those changes to state law, and which provisions are best addressed through enabling language so that the state can adopt the Guidelines provisions through rulemaking.[6] It is important to consider these issues carefully, with due regard for possible unintended consequences. For example, some states, when implementing the 1991 recommendation to prohibit master policies in the residual market, phrased their laws in the form "a master policy shall be issued in the voluntary market," which would appear to prohibit the issuance of multiple coordinated policies in the voluntary market.

In states where "delegation of authority" issues are not substantial, one possible approach is to adopt broad enabling language, such as the following:

[6] As the Drafting Note to Section 1 explains: "These guidelines are presented in the form of a regulation; however, some provisions may be more appropriately enacted as legislation in some states. Agencies promulgating regulations based upon these guidelines should ensure that statutes regulating PEOs or employee leasing arrangements, statutes regulating workers' compensation insurance, or other applicable law grant them adequate rulemaking authority. In states where another agency has regulatory jurisdiction over PEOs, the commissioner should consider jointly promulgating regulations with that agency. Agencies promulgating regulations or drafting legislation based upon these guidelines should also ensure that insurers, PEOs and regulators have adequate resources and infrastructure in place to make compliance feasible, including but not limited to the necessary information systems and the necessary reporting mechanisms for data and proof of coverage."

The Commissioner may adopt regulations establishing the terms and conditions governing the provision of workers' compensation insurance coverage for workers in a professional employer organization arrangement.

An informal survey of state insurance department counsel indicates that most states believe they would have the legal authority to take such an approach. However, some state constitutions or administrative procedure acts would require a more detailed delegation of authority, and states might also have public policy reasons for wanting to address some aspects of the Guidelines more explicitly by statute. There are also additional questions that each state must address:

- Is there an existing registration or licensing system that can be used for (or must be considered when adopting) the registration and reporting requirements?
- Are there existing definitions of PEOs or leasing companies that should or must be used, or that ought to be changed?
- How do existing statutes, regulations, and rating rules governing all employers apply to employers involved in "co-employment" relationships?
- Must statutory provisions be added or modified in order to allow for the Guidelines to be promulgated as a regulation or to make the regulatory approach effective?

The provisions for the exclusivity of the workers' compensation system for workplace injuries is a classic example of the last point, where changes in law might be needed and cannot be accomplished by regulation alone. Traditional statutes do not address employee leasing or PEOs from an exclusive remedy standpoint. Failure to address this by statute could lead to circumvention of the exclusive remedy and breed the types of litigation that workers' compensation was designed to prevent.

- Key Issues Beyond the Scope of the Guidelines

The Guidelines relate only to workers' compensation insurance issues. A state considering updating its regulation of PEOs through adoption of the Guidelines should consider whether or not it wishes to approach this area through a comprehensive statute addressing the regulation of the PEO industry, or a global effort to ensure that existing pieces of legislation are consistent with one another and gathering them into a single regulatory scheme, rather than piecemeal rulemaking addressing a limited set of issues against the background of existing law.[7] This is a policy decision that should be addressed with the state Legislature, and should depend in part on how recent and how thoroughly integrated the existing regulatory framework is.

As a part of this process, states should consider how well their existing laws address issues that were identified by the Working Group as being beyond the scope of the Guidelines. These include:

- Concerns raised by cross-ownership of insurers and PEOs.
- Whether adjustments need to be made in existing state law for taxes and assessments when large-deductible policies are issued to PEOs.
- Whether compulsory coverage laws and proof-of-coverage laws need to be amended to clarify the status of PEOs and their clients.
- Whether laws need to be amended to address the employee status and opt-out rights of the owners of client businesses when those owners become PEO co-employees (what one regulator has called the "auto-leasing" problem).

[7] NAPEO, the largest trade association of the PEO industry, has actively promoted registration of PEOs and regulation of the industry. It has developed a model act that contains a comprehensive registration scheme, but its workers' compensation provisions are limited and address only a part of the Guidelines.

III. Specific Issues Related to the Guidelines

Rather than presenting a detailed section-by-section analysis of the Guidelines, this paper focuses on the issues that the authors of the Guidelines identified and how the Guidelines need to be applied in addressing those issues.

A. Statutory-Regulatory Framework for PEOs

A PEO performs a wide range of employment-related services, some of which involve significant amounts of money. These services are relied on by its clients, by employees, by insurers, and by government agencies — and the impact can be devastating if a large PEO becomes insolvent, fails to meet its obligations, or buys insurance and pays taxes based on incorrect information. For these reasons, there is a broad consensus among all interests involved, including leading PEO representatives, that PEO services should be a regulated industry.

There is no consensus, however, as to what form this regulation should take. Should PEOs be licensed or should they be required only to register? Should there be financial requirements and supervision and, if so, what should the requirements be? Almost any regulatory option one could imagine has been used by at least one state.[8] As noted earlier, one of the first and most fundamental questions the Working Group addressed was whether to propose a regulatory framework for PEOs. As important as the issue is, the Working Group concluded that it was not the appropriate body to set comprehensive standards, as its jurisdiction and subject-matter expertise was limited to workers' compensation. The former NAIC model act, adopted in 1991, set up a limited-purpose registration process, requiring a PEO to be registered in order to be issued a master workers' compensation policy or be covered under multiple coordinated policies. However, there was a strong consensus that such a piecemeal arrangement was not desirable, but rather that regulation of PEOs should be comprehensive in scope, involving not only workers' compensation insurance but also other areas, including substantive workers' compensation law, health insurance, unemployment compensation, taxation, and solvency.

Some of these issues are within the purview of other NAIC committees or the IAIABC, and the NAIC/IAIABC Joint Working Group has briefed those bodies and encouraged them to stay involved in these matters. Other essential elements of comprehensive PEO oversight are beyond the jurisdiction of both insurance and workers' compensation regulators. Therefore, the Guidelines are based on the premise that some sort of legislation already exists — as it does in most states — that defines what a PEO is, requires PEOs to be registered or licensed by the state, and recognizes some form of co-employment relationship (either by statute or case law). Section 4 of the Guidelines then provides that workers' compensation coverage may only be provided through a PEO arrangement if the PEO is properly registered (insurers are prohibited from issuing master policies to unregistered PEOs or entering into multiple coordinated policy agreements with them) and Section 15 provides for administrative enforcement by the insurance commissioner.

The Guidelines attempt to recognize the diversity of state laws currently regulating PEOs, and include a number of drafting notes to provide guidance. Drafting notes to Sections 1 and 15 suggest that if a different state agency has regulatory jurisdiction over PEOs, the regulations implementing the Guidelines should be promulgated jointly by that agency and the insurance commissioner. If a state does not currently register or license PEOs, and does not enact such a requirement at the time it implements the Guidelines, a drafting note to Section 4 suggests that as a fallback, the regulation could require a limited-purpose registration similar to the 1991 model act. Similarly, Subsection 3H appears in two versions, one for use in the states that already have a statutory definition of "PEO," incorporating the statutory definition by reference, the other version spelling out an explicit definition for use in the states that need one.

[8] Currently, the most common state regulators of PEOs or employee leasing companies are insurance departments (Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Louisiana, Maine, North Carolina, Oklahoma, and West Virginia); labor departments (Colorado, Connecticut, Montana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, and Vermont); or the industrial or workers' compensation commissions (Alabama, Kentucky, Nevada, Ohio, Oregon, and Virginia).

Other potential inconsistencies between current state laws and the Guidelines are less likely to have a substantive impact on the Guidelines, but still need to be addressed in some manner.[9] Implementation of the Guidelines is a good occasion for the states to review their current regulatory frameworks for PEOs to see if changes should be made and to evaluate how the Guidelines best fit. As recognized in various drafting notes, changes to the Guidelines to adapt to the state's structure and terminology might be necessary. In particular, references to "registration" of PEOs need to be changed to "licensing" in states that require licensure, the term "PEO" needs to be modified if the state uses some other terminology such as "employee leasing," and references to "co-employees" need to be changed in the states that do not recognize co-employment.

B. Master Policies and Client-Level Experience Rating

As indicated above, the issue that originally prompted the concern of insurance regulators and workers' compensation regulators related to the inability of experience rating systems to track experience of individual employers when they became clients of employee leasing firms (later PEOs). Much of this concern is eliminated with multiple coordinated policies, because current insurance statistical and data handling structures have the ability to track experience from separate coordinated policies and to produce experience ratings using all of the client employers' past experience. The fundamental challenge has been "master policies," where multiple client employers are covered under a single policy issued in the name of the PEO.

For this reason, the Working Group gave serious consideration to recommending that master policies be prohibited entirely. However, because of the potential efficiencies that could be realized from the master policy model, representatives of the PEO and insurance industries strongly urged the Working Group to consider whether there was a way to permit master policies that could satisfy regulatory concerns. The Working Group, therefore, took as its starting point the recommendation in the 2002 NAIC/IAIABC Joint Working Group report that the only acceptable alternative to prohibiting master policies would be:

… allowing master policies but with client-specific notice requirements and payroll, loss and other data reporting requirements that would give the client a status similar to that of an individual insured under a group policy.

If the latter approach is taken, careful attention must be paid to the need to guarantee that coverage cannot be terminated or materially altered by the insurer or by the employment services outsourcing company without reasonable advance notice to the client. It is also important to maintain and report accurate and up-to-date information in sufficient detail to permit the calculation of meaningful client-specific experience ratings and verification of proof-of-coverage on the client level. In practice, this may be a moot point, since insurers and employment services outsourcing companies may not consider the master policy a worthwhile option if client-by-client recordkeeping and reporting are unavoidable.[10]

Despite the skepticism that had been expressed, the Working Group and the interested persons were able to reach consensus on a regulatory framework for master policies. In particular, the Guidelines require experience reporting at the client level and the production of experience ratings on an ongoing basis for every client of sufficient size to be eligible for experience rating. This requires two essential enhancements to the current system. One is the ability to identify each client workforce as a discrete unit of coverage, even if coverage is provided to the PEO on a master policy and the client does not purchase a separate policy.[11] This is primarily a regulatory issue, and is one of a number of reasons the Guidelines have adopted a "certificate of coverage" requirement, under which each client is issued a coverage document outlining its rights and obligations under the master policy and clearly establishing both the identity and [9] A majority of the states have existing provisions addressing workers' compensation in PEO arrangements (some using the older "employee leasing" terminology).

[10] NAIC/IAIABC Joint Working Group Report on Employee Leasing and Professional Employer Organizations at 32.

[11] Section 11 of the Guidelines requires that all loss reporting be conducted in a manner that will allow for the experience rating of the client to be maintained on a stand-alone basis.

status of the client and the inception and termination dates of coverage.[12] This has occasionally been a source of misunderstanding because of the traditional usage of the term "certificate of insurance" in the context of the property/casualty insurance industry. Like the certificates issued by insurers under group life and health policies, this is a legally binding coverage document, not just a representation of the status of coverage at some point in time, and has the effect of making the client an additional insured under the policy.[13]

The other essential element of an improved experience rating system is an effective data reporting infrastructure. This is also necessary to make proof of coverage (POC) function effectively at the client level, but it is not something that can be established simply by legislative or regulatory decree. What is mandated must actually be feasible, and those implementation issues are discussed below in "Data Reporting."

Although the Guidelines require the maintenance of separate experience modification factors for each client that is subject to experience rating, they do not mandate the use of those factors when setting premium rates for PEO coverage in the voluntary market. Although a prudent insurer could be expected to consider this information, the Guidelines leave the ultimate decision to the agreement of the parties. One reason for providing this flexibility is that, in some situations, if a PEO has a relatively stable or homogeneous client base, the PEO's aggregate experience might provide meaningful information that client-level experience does not provide. This is because the individual client experience will likely be more volatile and less credible, especially for smaller clients, some of which might be too small to be subject to experience rating at all. Another reason a PEO is not necessarily merely the sum of its clients is that the PEO's risk-management activities might also have an impact on anticipated losses, hopefully for the better. The enhanced data-reporting requirements under the Guidelines can help carriers evaluate whether a PEO is providing effective loss-control services.

The Guidelines also make provision for experience rating in split workforce situations, because the PEO co-employees and the client's direct hire employees will, according to the Guidelines, have the same experience modification factor, but they might have very different risks, especially if the PEO takes on only the safest or most hazardous work units. In these situations — especially if separate experience modification factors cannot be calculated with reasonable accuracy — insurers are allowed to use their reasoned underwriting judgment.[14] The Guidelines also prohibit splitting a client's risk between the residual and voluntary market, an arrangement that has caused problems in the past.[15]

In order to implement an experience rating plan that complies with the Guidelines, adoption of regulations might not be all that needs to be done. It will be necessary to ensure that the state's workers' compensation advisory or rating organization has submitted a compatible experience rating plan, and it also will be necessary to review the experience rating statutes for possible inconsistencies. In particular, any provision that might be construed as mandating the treatment of the PEO as "the employer" for experience rating purposes will need to be revised, and if the state chooses to adopt the provisions allowing the parties to choose an alternative experience rating methodology in the voluntary market, the mandatory experience rating provisions need to accommodate that flexibility by giving the Commissioner sufficient authority through the rulemaking process or the rating plan approval process.

[12] Specifically, the certificate must: 1) specify the effective date of the client's coverage and the expiration date of the underlying master policy (with a renewal certificate issued when the master policy is renewed); 2) provide that coverage shall continue as long as the master policy and the PEO agreement between the PEO and the client both remain in force, spelling out any exceptions; and 3) provide that termination of coverage without replacement requires 30 days' advance notice to the client. C. Lack of Coverage, Gaps in Coverage, and Proof of Coverage

Coverage gaps and omissions are anathema to the workers' compensation ethic. Insurance regulators and workers' compensation administrators agree that the structure of the workers' compensation system should make gaps and omissions in coverage nearly impossible. A well-designed POC system is one essential tool in preventing coverage failures, which should rarely occur once a business has been identified by the system as having employees.

One of the Working Group's most pressing concerns, as it developed the Guidelines, was the awareness that the traditional approach to coverage for PEO arrangements has given rise to several sources of coverage failures:

- Tracking a client in and out of a PEO arrangement: Traditionally, coverage has been reported in the name of the policyholder, which is always the PEO in the case of a master policy and is often the PEO in the case of a multiple coordinated policy arrangement. Unless the POC system also tracks coverage at the client level, it will lose track of an employer when it becomes the client of a PEO and will be unaware of the existence of a new business that becomes a client of a PEO immediately upon its creation. While this might be unimportant when the employer remains a fully covered client of the PEO, it can become a problem when the PEO-client relationship comes to an end while the client's business continues. At that point, a POC system that has not been tracking the client will have no way to know that there is an active, operating employer whose workers' compensation coverage has terminated, unless and until the former client obtains replacement coverage.

- Disputes over client status: If a master policy provides generic coverage to all the unnamed clients of the PEO, it might be unclear and open to dispute whether a particular employer was a covered client. Even when there are clear records demonstrating that a PEO-client relationship existed, they might not be sufficient to establish conclusively when the relationship began, when it ended, or whether it was in place at the time of the accident.

- Split-workforce arrangements: A client employer may choose to engage a PEO for only a specified segment of its entire workforce. Ordinarily, all of an employer's employees within the state are covered under a single policy, but the split-employment arrangement results in split coverage when some work units are covered through the PEO and others are not. This can give rise to coverage disputes if the status of a particular employee is not clear. There is also the danger that the state's compensation administrator will receive a POC report from the PEO's insurer, but not realize that the coverage is only for some of the client's employees, and thus allow the client to operate with the rest of its workforce uninsured. Therefore, when split workforce coverage is permitted, the POC system must not only track the coverage at the client level, but also must identify which work units are covered under the policy and whether that coverage is partial or complete.

- "Orphan" employees: One of the most common and dangerous types of split-workforce arrangements is unintentional (or at least is not the stated and acknowledged intent of the parties). The parties intend for all of the client's employees to be co-employed by the PEO so, in theory, there is full coverage even if the policy's terms limit coverage to the PEO's co-employees. However, because there is only one policy, if there is anyone who is not covered through the PEO, then that employee is not covered at all. The most common danger here is the employee who is not treated as an employee, and whose existence might even be unknown to the PEO and/or its insurer — this might be someone who is held out by the client (often in good faith) to be an independent contractor, or someone who is employed by an uninsured subcontractor of the client. If the policy were issued directly to the client, it would clearly cover all employees of the client, whether or not disclosed to the insurer. However, if the policy is issued to the PEO, these employees risk falling through the cracks because they were never employed by the policyholder. There also are cases where there is no dispute that the worker was employed by the client, but the PEO's insurer disputes whether the necessary steps were taken for the worker to be hired by the PEO, especially in the case of casual employees, such as day laborers who might not have been placed on the PEO's payroll.

- Insolvency: Another factor that increases the risk of coverage disputes is the insolvency of the PEO, the client, or an insurer. If the PEO becomes insolvent, its insurer might use the PEO's failure to comply with its obligations as a basis for contesting coverage. Often, in these cases, the situation is made worse because existing law generally gives the PEO the responsibility of notifying individual clients. When the PEO is already out of business, or generally defaulting on all of its other obligations, the clients are unlikely to be receiving the notice to which they are entitled. If the insurer becomes insolvent, the receiver or the guaranty fund might take a fresh look at the validity of categories of claims the insurer had been paying routinely, especially if PEO losses are perceived as a contributing factor in the insolvency. The receiver also will be cancelling coverage, and clients might not receive this notice in a timely manner when the PEO is the named insured. And, in split-workforce arrangements, the coverage difficulties already noted earlier are complicated, not only by the increased likelihood that any claim that can possibly be contested will be contested, but also by the possibility of additional grounds for disputing a claim. In particular, when there is a solvent insurer on the same risk — even if the insolvent insurer would clearly have had primary responsibility for the claim in the ordinary course of operations — a guaranty fund could argue that the other insurer must pay before the guaranty fund despite providing only secondary coverage.

The Guidelines provide regulatory language (or statutory language in states that enact these provisions by statute) to respond comprehensively to these potential sources of gaps or omissions. It must be emphasized, however, that these protections are incomplete unless the state's POC laws and the advisory organization's POC data system provide a mechanism that effectively tracks coverage at the client level. In addition, there must be an effective mechanism for verifying that PEOs doing business in the state are properly insured, which can be accomplished through either the PEO registration process, some type of two-tier POC system for PEO arrangements that simultaneously tracks worksite employers and a separate PEO category, or a combination of the two approaches. Currently, many states with a comprehensive regulatory framework for PEOs mandate separate reporting by a PEO of incoming and exiting clients. This might be considered as a part of, or supplement to, the present POC system.

Two important new safeguards against coverage failures established by the Guidelines are:

- The certificate of coverage mechanism discussed earlier, which — when properly implemented by insurers and regulators — ensures that even under a master policy, each client's coverage has a clearly established inception and termination date, with adequate advance notice to both the client and the POC system before a client's coverage can be terminated or replaced.[16]

- A presumption that a PEO's policy ordinarily provides full workforce coverage to all covered clients, meaning that coverage during the relationship is equivalent to the coverage a client would have under a stand-alone policy.[17] The PEO's insurer does have the right to issue a policy that limits the scope of coverage to PEO co-employees, but only a full-workforce policy can be used to satisfy the clients' coverage obligations,[18] so there is an expectation that PEOs and their clients will only be interested in non-full-workforce coverage, when they intend from the outset that the PEO arrangement will only cover a portion of the client's workforce.[19]

[16] West Virginia took a different approach in its new PEO law. Under the Guidelines, an insurer issuing a master policy has no responsibility to a client if no certificate of coverage or its equivalent was ever issued by or on behalf of the insurer, unless the insurer is in some way responsible for the failure to issue the certificate. The PEO is obligated to give clear written notice to the client if it provides PEO services without providing workers' compensation coverage, Paragraph 4C, but if the PEO fails to comply, it is the PEO that bears the liability to the client, not the insurer that did not provide the coverage. By contrast, under West Virginia's "stopgap" provision, the PEO's insurer is responsible if the client has no other coverage. See W. Va. Code St. R. § 85-31-6.1. These provisions do not bar the insurer from pursuing indemnification from any solvent party that may be at fault.

[17] Paragraph 7A(1): "If the PEO agreement with a covered client is a full workforce PEO agreement [as defined in Subsection 2(E)], the policy or certificate shall cover all PEO co-employees and shall also cover any other obligations of the client under [insert appropriate statutory reference] to the same extent as if the client had obtained a direct purchase policy in this state."

[18] Subparagraph 7A(2)(b), which also makes an exclusion for the client's direct hire employees unenforceable if the insurer has reported the policy to the POC system. A drafting note advises states to allow non-full-workforce policies to be reported as secondary coverage if a state's POC system tracks both primary and secondary coverage.

[19] The Guidelines contain a drafting note allowing for a "Designated Workplaces Exclusion Endorsement" in this situation where allowable under existing law and regulation. However, under such an exclusion, the client must maintain separate coverage for the workplace in question.

The provision making full-workforce coverage the norm and more limited coverage the exception was one of the most controversial decisions made by the Working Group. Insurers objected that making them cover any unknown employees of a PEO's clients would undermine the certainty they seek when they deal with the PEO. Regulators acknowledged this point, but ultimately decided that an essential feature of the workers' compensation system is that somebody must take responsibility for ensuring that there are no orphan employees. If it is not the PEO's insurer, then it must be the client's insurer, and reasonable steps must be taken to verify that the client does indeed have an insurer that provides the same all-inclusive coverage that any traditional statutory workers' compensation policy provides for all employees, whether or not listed on the employer's payroll.[20] The client's representation that it has no direct-hire employees is not sufficient; after all, if it were sufficient, the PEO's insurer would have no qualms about writing full-workforce coverage in the first place.[21]

Moreover, even if it issues a limited policy, a PEO carrier becomes liable under the Guidelines for full-workforce coverage if it does not promptly issue notice of termination after learning that the client's coverage has been cancelled or is otherwise not in effect. This provision does not address every potential gap in coverage, however, because it does not apply in a situation where the PEO carrier is not aware of the cancellation or termination of a client's policy. After considerable debate and consideration of input from carriers, the drafters of the Guidelines concluded that a cross-notice provision they had originally proposed was unfeasible, and that the offending client would have to bear the consequences of being treated as an uninsured employer.[22] The Guidelines also include provisions for the uninterrupted payment of benefits if the insurers dispute who is responsible for a claim (the client's insurer is provisionally responsible, subject to reimbursement by the PEO's insurer if the dispute is resolved in favor of the client's insurer),[23] and for situations where a PEO agreement is terminated but the workers covered by the PEO continue as employees of the client[24] or where there are two insurers and one becomes insolvent.[25]

D. Notice and Cancellation of Coverage for PEOs and Clients

Workers' compensation coverage is a mandatory requirement for almost every business in almost every state in the United States. It is essential, therefore, that employers who are clients of PEOs receive timely notice before their coverage is terminated without their consent. In a PEO arrangement, the client usually relies on coverage purchased by a third party (the PEO). Because the client remains fully responsible for workers' compensation benefits for its employees, the consequences for the client can be disastrous if that coverage can be terminated without the client's advance knowledge.

This is especially true in PEO relationships, because if a PEO should terminate its co-employment of the client's employees, the client would almost certainly continue its operations as the sole employer of its workers. Doing so without coverage would violate state workers' compensation requirements and be illegal. As a result, the client would be exposed to penalties for operating without insurance, possibly including closure of the business, and exposure to both workers' compensation and tort liability for workplace accidents. Recovery of any resulting losses or penalties from the PEO is likely to be uncertain, slow, and difficult at best. In fact, there would be no prospect of meaningful recovery in situations where the PEO itself has failed and there is no one left to pay a judgment, which unfortunately is one of the situations where the normal communication procedures are at the greatest risk of breaking down.

[20] Subparagraph 7A(2)(a): "A PEO's insurer may not issue or renew coverage with a direct hire exclusion unless it obtains satisfactory evidence demonstrating that the client has coverage for all of its other workers' compensation liabilities."

[21] Subparagraph 7A(2)(e).

[22] It should be noted that this approach also creates a risk of exposure for the uninsured employer fund, in states that have them. West Virginia has decided that concerns such as these outweigh the burden of holding the PEO's insurer responsible for the ongoing verification of client coverage.

[23] Subparagraph 7A(2)(d). In West Virginia, on the other hand, the PEO's insurer is responsible in these situations. See W. Va. Code St. R. §§ 85-31-6.1 & -6.2.

[24] Subparagraph 7A(2)(f).

[25] Subparagraph 7A(2)(g).

The 1991 NAIC Employee Leasing Model Regulation (#936) tried to address this issue by requiring the PEO to notify all of its clients within 15 days after receiving notice that its workers' compensation policy would be cancelled or nonrenewed. However, this left PEO clients with seriously diminished rights, as compared to employers who purchased coverage directly. It also left unaddressed the issue of termination of the PEO arrangement and placed notice issue in the hands of the PEO rather than the carrier.

Under standard workers' compensation policies and practice, and typical state insurance laws, if an insurer fails to give its policyholder timely notice of cancellation or nonrenewal, the termination is invalid and the policyholder remains fully insured. However, where the policyholder is the PEO, or even if the policyholder is the client but its address of record is "care of the PEO," the insurer can comply with its own legal obligations without any guarantee that any notice will actually get to the client. Furthermore, under some scenarios, the client could already be without coverage before the PEO was required to give notice under the 1991 model.

An essential element of the Guidelines is to address what should be one of the client's most valuable rights: continued coverage until adequate notice of cancellation is provided.

The Working Group concluded that the insurer must be responsible for notice in every case where the client is dependent upon receiving timely notice in order to maintain coverage.[26] The insurer can still delegate this function to the PEO, but if that process breaks down, then the insurer must provide extended coverage to the client, subject to applicable premium charges, for the duration of the statutory notice period. Nothing in the Guidelines prevents the insurer from holding the PEO responsible for any failure to comply with its contractual duties, nor from requiring the PEO to post security for the performance of its obligations, but the insurer may not seek recourse from the client for the PEO's default.

For these reasons, cancellation or nonrenewal of a client's coverage is not valid unless either:

- Thirty (30) days' advance notice has been delivered to both the client and the POC system. If termination is initiated by the PEO, this notice may be delivered by the PEO (with notice to the insurer);

- The client initiates or affirmatively consents to the termination. However, the Guidelines expressly prohibit circumventing restrictions on involuntary termination through such devices as documents authorizing the PEO to cancel coverage "voluntarily" on the client's behalf;[27] or

- The PEO has replaced coverage with no break in coverage and provided advance notice to the insurer, the client, and the POC system. This exception only applies if valid replacement coverage has actually been obtained. In that case, any dispute over the cost or other terms of the replacement may be sorted out between the actual parties to the dispute without worrying that the client might go bare.

The relationship between the PEO and the insurer, on the other hand, is closer to the traditional insurer-policyholder relationship and, therefore, raises fewer unique issues that need to be addressed in the Guidelines. Accordingly, the Guidelines explicitly provide that, "A master policy or a coordinated policy may be cancelled or nonrenewed by the insurer on the same grounds and subject to the same conditions as any other workers' compensation insurance policy." It is important to keep in mind, however, that for the reasons discussed earlier, even though the PEO's default on its obligations may result in loss of coverage for the clients, there must be timely notice before that loss of coverage can be effective, and notice to the PEO can never substitute for notice to the clients. Indeed, if the client's coverage must be terminated for reasons beyond the client's control, it is all the more important that the client be given ample time to obtain appropriate replacement coverage.

[26] Section 10.

[27] Subsection 10E.

The Guidelines, therefore, expressly contemplate that even after cancellation or nonrenewal has taken effect as between the insurer and the PEO, the insurer might still have a continuing obligation to cover the client. If that happens, the insurer must implement some other mechanism for providing coverage to the client, and may bill the client directly for that coverage. This situation is especially likely to arise in states that allow expedited cancellation of workers' compensation policies for nonpayment.

A drafting note to the Guidelines advises that, "If applicable state law permits involuntary termination of workers' compensation coverage upon shorter notice in some or all situations, states may consider modifying this provision accordingly." The statutory basis for expedited cancellation of a policy is usually nonpayment of premium. However, states should recognize that nonpayment by the PEO to the insurer does not constitute fault on the part of the client, which might be having similar difficulties of its own if the PEO has stopped performing its obligations. The Guidelines make clear that a client's failure to pay fees when due to the PEO does not constitute nonpayment of premium.[28]

This raises another important issue not adequately addressed by the 1991 model; i.e., responsibility for premium payment. The essence of the PEO coverage model, whether it is implemented through a master policy or multiple coordinated policies, is that the PEO is responsible for paying the premium to the insurer. In turn, the PEO charges fees to its clients that are intended to be sufficient to cover its cost of workers' compensation insurance and all other services provided by the PEO. When the insurer has accepted that the PEO is serving this role, the client is entitled to rely on that acceptance unless and until the insurer has notified the client that any future bills must be paid directly to the insurer. Therefore, the Guidelines provide that, for coverage provided under a master policy or multiple coordinated policy agreement, the insurer's only recourse is against the PEO; i.e., if the PEO defaults on its obligations, the client is protected against being billed a second time for workers' compensation coverage after it has already paid the PEO in full. The need for the insurer to pursue recovery from the PEO might pose difficulties for the insurer, but these can often be mitigated by obtaining adequate security in advance.

But what if the client has not paid the PEO in full? The client's obligation to the PEO is important, but it is a contractual matter between the PEO and the client. Because of the broad and varied scope of PEO services, which extend to matters well outside the scope of an insurance department, the Working Group did not support the regulation of PEO fees. The Working Group considered, but did not favor, a proposal to treat the PEO as a payment intermediary with workers' compensation premiums itemized and billed separately. As a result, fee regulation under the Guidelines is limited to disclosure requirements and prohibitions against insurance-related misrepresentation (See "Pricing" below).

This means that fee disputes and termination disputes between clients and PEOs cannot be resolved through the insurance department's administrative processes. The nature of the PEO-client relationship makes it unrealistic to require good cause for termination, let alone to require the PEO to maintain a client against the PEO's will if good cause is lacking.[29] And without regulated fees or pass-through billing of insurance premium, the complexity of the claims and counterclaims that might occur makes it inappropriate to treat fee disputes as similar to premium disputes. Accordingly, the Working Group did not adopt the PEO industry's request to allow expedited cancellation for nonpayment of PEO fees, in those states that allow expedited cancellation for nonpayment of premium. However, some states allow expedited cancellation for fraud, and those states should consider whether cases involving fraud committed by the client would be within the scope of the Drafting Note on expedited cancellation.

Another termination issue that the 1991 model does not address is the nature of the insurer-employer relationship under a multiple coordinated policy arrangement. Should the client have the right to convert its policy to a direct purchase policy if it leaves the PEO, or should leaving the PEO be a valid ground for terminating the client's coordinated policy? Some regulators felt that an insurer ought to make the same full-year commitment when it issues a coordinated policy covering a business as it does when it issues a direct-purchase policy. However, insurers replied that in the voluntary market, participation in a multiple coordinated policy arrangement through a PEO is often an essential condition for their acceptance of the risk, and termination of that arrangement represents a material change in circumstances that justifies termination of coverage. The insurer might not even have an applicable rating plan for direct-purchase coverage for that class of business. Based on those considerations, the Guidelines provide that the client should not have a legal right to convert to direct-purchase coverage if the PEO relationship terminates. The insurer has the option to allow this, but it also should have the option to terminate coverage once adequate notice can be provided. This means that if the PEO relationship is terminable at will at any time, then the insurance policy might be as well, but the insurer's obligation to provide full statutory notice means the client is left with time to shop for replacement coverage and is in essentially the same position as if it had not joined the PEO in the first place. It should be noted that, because cancellation of coverage must be initiated by the insurer, the process depends on the PEO giving timely notice to the insurer. Until this happens, the client continues to be covered and the PEO continues to be responsible for the premium.

[29] Although the Guidelines prohibit the cancellation of workers' compensation coverage until adequate notice has been provided, they expressly acknowledge that other PEO services may cease immediately upon termination of the PEO agreement to the extent permitted by law, and require this to be disclosed to the client. Paragraph 4D(3).

Of course, if the Guidelines conflict with applicable cancellation statutes, then the statute must prevail. If termination of the PEO relationship is not considered a breach of a valid contractual condition or a sufficiently material change to justify cancellation under applicable state law, a drafting note to the Guidelines recognizes that those states must either amend the statute to provide a new permitted ground for cancellation, or revise their regulation to conform to the statute by mandating conversion to direct-purchase coverage in lieu of cancellation.

E. Policy Forms

As we have seen, the Guidelines require a number of changes in the terms of the insurer-insured relationship, and also in how some of the existing terms are documented. This will require changes to the policy forms, and careful review by regulators. In addition, many of the existing standardized forms and endorsements developed by advisory organizations have been in place in substantially similar form for many years and, in some cases, the language reflects terminology, such as "employee leasing," that is no longer in widespread use. If a significant number of states adopt an approach substantially similar to the Guidelines, the use of standard language will be helpful to all stakeholders, especially insurers, PEOs, and clients that do business on an interstate basis. This means the standardized endorsement language currently in place will need to be updated, and new standard forms will need to be developed: in particular, multiple coordinated policy agreements and master policy certificates of coverage. Insurers, PEOs, producers, clients, and regulators should all be working with the advisory organizations in this process.

F. Data Reporting

In order for workers' compensation administrators and insurance regulators to maintain the experience rating and POC systems discussed in the previous sections, both they and the rating agencies or advisory organizations must have the statistical data essential to enforce and monitor the workers' compensation system. The statistical data must be sufficient to enable the state's compliance administrator to identify efficiently whether an employer within the state has the coverage required by law, and track the employer's claims experience and benefit payments. The method of coverage chosen by an employer must be reported to the compliance administrator as proof that the protection exists on that job site, and subsequent changes to that method must also be reported. For experience rating, Subsection 11A of the Guidelines requires all loss and payroll reporting to be "conducted in a manner that identifies both the PEO and the client, and enables the calculation of experience modification factors" at the client level.

It was generally acknowledged during the development of the Guidelines that data reporting is not a significant issue where coverage is client-based (i.e., either through a stand-alone client-based policy or through a multiple coordinated policy arrangement where each client is identified on a separate policy). The main data issues appear to relate to master policies, or to multiple coordinated policies that are in the name of the PEO and do not adequately identify the individual client or do not adequately enable the reporting of client-level data needed for experience rating and POC systems. Concerns also have been expressed about the reporting of multiple coordinated policies when the policies are issued with the PEO, rather than the client, as the principal named insured, which is an option expressly permitted by the Guidelines as long as it is done "in a manner that clearly specifies the identities of the PEO and client and clearly describes the scope of coverage."[30] Subsection 11A of the Guidelines mandates that all such data be maintained and reported by carriers at the client level, regardless of whether coverage involves a multiple coordinated policy arrangement or a master policy,[31] but does not dictate how this is to be done.

There was significant debate as to the nature of the data-reporting issue, who was responsible, and how to resolve the difficulty. Various carriers said they were able (or were not able) to provide client-based data, rating agencies said they were (or were not) able to handle the data in PEO arrangements, and the states indicated varying levels of sophistication with regard to data collection and/or use. These technical issues are important, but establishing the necessary technical infrastructure is beyond the scope of the Guidelines. Instead, an effort was made to identify the goals of the Guidelines based on an assumption that the technical issues could be resolved.

The root of these technical issues is that present industry standards for the reporting and collection of data are based on separate policies for each employer. These standards support the constant exchange and use of data from carriers' systems to data-collection organizations and, subsequently, to many states' compliance systems. While some industry standards have changed to assist in the complex reporting of PEO-related data, the ability to make significant changes has been limited both by cost considerations and the need to be careful about preserving current capabilities for exchanging data. Additional requirements or changes to industry standards are meaningful responses only if compliance is technically feasible. A significant challenge with reporting and tracking client-level data is that clients can be added or terminated during the policy period, or move from one PEO relationship to another. These activities make it challenging to report and track individual client experience and coverage without separate policies and without substantial changes to industry standards and major costs.

The Workers [sic] Compensation Policy Reporting Specifications (WCPOLS) system, the electronic data-entry system jointly created by the nation's rating agencies, has for many years included a functionality that can identify whether a workers' compensation policy is related to a PEO arrangement. Similarly, the National Council on Compensation Insurance (NCCI), the country's largest advisory and rating organization and POC provider, has developed and implemented an MCP model that is widely used in the residual market. However, issues still remain as to how information on voluntary market policies is provided to and processed by rating agencies and users. For example, it is reported that the "PEO-related policy" flag is not used consistently, for example, and this information is not sufficient by itself to allow client-level data to be tracked effectively.

According to NCCI, a number of issues continue to be significant when determining how compliance requirements can be met and addressed. Under the 1991 model, the delivery methodology chosen for creation of an experience modification for a company leaving what was then called an employee leasing arrangement was the filing of a paper report and a manual calculation. Time has proven that to be both unreliable and inefficient.

Currently, an increasing majority of states statutorily recognize both a PEO and its clients as employers for purposes of workers' compensation. The Guidelines themselves provide the potential for multiple means of providing coverage in a PEO arrangement.[32]

One solution might be to develop some form of system for master policy situations that parallels the multiple coordinated policy framework for reporting data. This would require both carriers and rating agencies to be able to segregate data for clients of PEOs as if each had an individual policy. Carriers that are engaged in PEO coverage indicate a willingness to provide this client-level data, as do the PEOs themselves. NCCI has provided a technical supplement outlining various alternative mechanisms for reporting and compiling this information.[33] However, NCCI has warned that any option requiring significant changes to industry standards, including operating and reporting systems, would be difficult to implement and costly to the industry.

[31] Subsection 7J; see also Sections 11 and 12.

[32] Section 3.

[33] See Appendix B.

While insurers and rating agencies have historically managed their data systems to respond to both regulatory and industry needs, it is the states' ultimate responsibility to determine what data they need and what they will require rating agencies to do. Where possible, the Guidelines have attempted to generate greater, rather than less, flexibility, providing a clear mandate to provide both the states and the rating agencies the data that will allow experience rating programs and POC systems to operate at the client level, but without micromanaging the details of system design. There is, nevertheless, certain basic information that must be collected for both the PEO and its clients:

- Employer Identification – This includes the name of the employer and any Federal Employer Identification Number (FEIN) or Social Security Number (SSN) associated with the employer.

- Location – This includes the actual address of the client, and not just the mailing address of the PEO.

- Payrolls and Classifications – Payrolls must be assigned to appropriate class codes on a client-by-client basis, with the ability to identify the PEO that is involved.

- Loss Data – The same loss data that is required for all other policyholders, in a form that can be attributable to both the client and the PEO.

- Coverage Information – This includes policy dates, the nature of the policy, states that are covered, etc.

Regulators, and many within the industry, contend that this is information a well-managed insurer would want to collect anyway and, therefore, ought to be the wave of the future. One current impediment — the fact that some carriers issuing master policies simply do not track coverage at the client level in the first place — should vanish once the Guidelines' certificate-of-coverage requirements are in force. Carriers also must recognize that issuing coverage on a master policy basis is an option, not a necessity, and if they are unable to issue master policies in compliance with state laws and regulations consistent with the Guidelines, then they can switch to multiple coordinated policies, as some states currently require.[34]

Given that a large majority of states now statutorily recognize PEOs as employers for workers' compensation (and that number is growing rather than shrinking) and that the PEO concept of co-employment is likely to continue, the states and the requisite stakeholders (workers' compensation administrators, rating agencies, carriers, and PEOs) will need to work cooperatively to address system issues. In particular, this includes a nationwide effort to coordinate the evolution of data collection and processing in a consistent and cost-effective manner. At least for a period of time, those states seeking to adopt laws and regulations consistent with the Guidelines might find themselves having to deny carriers the ability to write PEO coverage on a master policy basis until they can have sufficient assurance that client-specific data to support POC and experience rating systems will be reported.

G. Exclusive Remedy

Workers' compensation was designed as a mandatory (in most states) no-fault system to guarantee compensation to a worker injured on the job and, in return, protect the employer from protracted litigation or extraordinary liability for normal worksite injuries. Employers are required to buy workers' compensation coverage (or, in the case of self-insurance, provide it themselves under regulatory oversight), and the insurance or self-insurance is required to cover all worksite injuries. The worker gains certainty of coverage for worksite injury but (except in certain egregious situations) gives up the right to sue in tort for those injuries. The workers' compensation system has become the "exclusive remedy" for recovery if the employer complies with its obligation to maintain coverage.

[34] See, e.g., N.J. Admin. Code, Title 12, § 16-24.6.

In most states (either by law or by interpretation), this exclusive remedy has been extended to protect employers that borrow workers from liability, if the employer supplying the workers provides workers' compensation insurance.[35] However, it is not always clear that this applies in the case of a "co-employment" relationship. Such clarification is necessary, because allowing the worker the option to collect the statutory workers' compensation benefits from the co-employer whose name is on the insurance policy or to sue the other co-employer for the same incident and injury would defeat the nature of the no-fault system. Both co-employers have agreed upon an arrangement that guarantees the availability of workers' compensation benefits, so both deserve the benefit of the exclusive remedy.

In implementing the Guidelines, it is recommended that a state review its workers' compensation provisions to ensure that the exclusive remedy provision will prevent "double-dipping" or create an incentive for more litigation that could undermine the purpose of exclusive remedy. The Working Group, when drafting the Guidelines, recognized that this was a statutory, rather than regulatory, issue, and that the applicable statutes are generally found in the workers' compensation laws, rather than the insurance laws.

In the case of a PEO relationship (or co-employment model), does state law clearly provide that both the PEO and PEO client are entitled to exclusive remedy protection?[36] Or is the exclusive remedy only extended to the party obtaining insurance coverage? Absent a provision clarifying the entitlement of both co-employers to the exclusive remedy, a state runs the risk that a business that chooses to avail itself of PEO services will, thereby, expose itself to tort lawsuits for workplace injuries, even though the business has been careful to make sure that full workers' compensation protection is available through the PEO. In the worst case, the client might be exposed to a "double-dip" lawsuit after the injured worker has already received workers' compensation benefits! (Or, conversely, a PEO that does not provide workers' compensation coverage could expose itself to tort liability for its clients' workplace injuries, even though it has provided only administrative services to its clients.)

States with more comprehensive PEO acts have routinely dealt with this issue when enacting that legislation.[37] If such a provision is not already in place, it should be added to the state's workers' compensation statute. This might require a cooperative effort of the insurance department with a state workers' compensation commission or labor department, depending on which agency is responsible for administering the state's workers' compensation system.

H. Residual Market Issues

What should be the recourse if a PEO is unable to obtain voluntary coverage, either for its own employees or for those workers that it co-employs with its clients? At first glance, it might seem obvious that the PEO should be entitled to coverage in the residual market. However, the Working Group recognized that this is not the only way coverage can be issued. The PEO needs to be able to purchase coverage for its own home office employees on the same basis as any other employer — but as long as each client retains the right to purchase its own residual market coverage, the PEO does not absolutely need the right to buy coverage for all of its clients.

Therefore, the Working Group concluded that it is appropriate to allow the residual market to impose some minimum standards on PEOs that could not be applied to other employers. If a PEO is in good standing, it has the right to purchase residual market coverage on a multiple coordinated policy basis, just as it can under the 1991 model regulation and existing residual market plans. However, Section 6 of the Guidelines

[35] Under this protection, for example, a client using temporary staff personnel would be afforded the exclusive remedy protection of the temporary employment service's workers' compensation coverage for injuries sustained during a temporary worker's assignment to the client.

[36] The Indiana Code, for example, provides, at IC 27-16-9-2: "The protection of the exclusive remedy provisions of IC 22-3-2-6 and IC 22-3-7-6 apply to the PEO, the client, and each covered employee and other employee of the client regardless of whether the PEO or the client is responsible to obtain the worker's compensation coverage for the covered employees under the professional employer agreement."

[37] For example, the New York Professional Employer Act provides: "Both the client and the professional employer organization shall be considered the employer for the purpose of coverage under the workers' compensation law and both the professional employer organization and its client shall be entitled to protection of the exclusive remedy provision of the workers' compensation law irrespective of which entity secures and provides such workers' compensation coverage." New York Labor Code, Article 31, § 922 at paragraph 4.

includes provisions under which the residual market may determine (subject to the PEO's right to appeal to the Commissioner) that a PEO is not in good standing and coverage for the clients' workforces must be purchased by the clients themselves:

- If the PEO or an affiliate owes past-due premium or otherwise does not meet the general qualifications for residual market coverage;

- If the PEO is unable to demonstrate the financial capacity to comply with its obligations under the multiple coordinated policy agreement; or

- If the PEO has been barred by regulators or found to have unfit management or ownership.

In addition, as discussed above in "Experience Rating," an unimpaired ability to enter into split-workforce PEO arrangements might give the PEO and clients an incentive to "dump" the riskiest components of the clients' workforces into the residual market, or for a PEO to buy voluntary market coverage for its best clients and "dump" the others. Therefore, Subsection 6D of the Guidelines makes split-workforce arrangements ineligible for residual market coverage, and gives the residual market the authority to deny or surcharge coverage if a PEO splits its client base.

A final issue that needed to be addressed in order to construct a nationwide model is that different states make residual market coverage available in different ways. Therefore, the Guidelines include two different versions of Section 6: one to be used in states with an assigned risk/servicing carrier program; the other to be used in states with a single statutory carrier of last resort. The Guidelines presume that such a carrier also has the authority to write voluntary market coverage, so states with a single carrier that only provides involuntary coverage should adjust the language accordingly.

I. Pricing

The Guidelines impose no requirement that the PEO itemize the workers' compensation portion of its billings to its clients.[38] Paragraph 4D(2)[39] requires the PEO to provide specific notice that the premium obligation of coverage provided through the PEO is that of the PEO alone, and not the client.

Although itemized charges for workers' compensation are not required, the PEO may choose to provide them. In that case, the PEO has the obligation to be fair and accurate. It cannot, for example, advertise below-market workers' compensation coverage if its true costs are higher and it conceals the difference elsewhere in its bill. Subsection 4F of the Guidelines requires that a PEO "not make any materially inaccurate, knowingly or recklessly misleading, or fraudulent representations to the client of the cost of workers' compensation coverage."

[38] As discussed earlier, the Guideline drafters considered, but rejected, a proposal to require pass-through billing of premium. There was significant sentiment that amounts charged to clients for the workers' compensation services elements of PEO services should be reflective of the costs of workers' compensation coverage, but the ultimate agreement was that this is a commercial and market issue.

[39] "The PEO shall have a written agreement with the client, signed by the client before coverage becomes effective, including clear and conspicuous provisions … Explaining that while the coordinated policy or certificate of coverage is in force, the PEO will be responsible for paying all premium obligations, including any audit adjustments and policyholder assessments, and will be entitled to any premium refunds. The written agreement shall further explain that although the PEO will charge fees to the client that reflect or include the cost of coverage, these fees are not considered insurance premium obligations of the client. If there is a policy deductible, the written agreement shall further explain that the PEO is responsible for reimbursing the insurer for the deductible and may not seek recovery from the client."

In situations where a PEO itemizes the costs of workers' compensation, Subsection 4F requires that any such statement of costs be within defined bounds unless otherwise approved by the Commissioner.[40] This is of particular concern when the PEO assumes responsibility for most or all of the claims cost under a large-deductible or retrospectively rated policy and adopts its own "rating" methodology for recovering those claims costs from its clients. In some states, legislation might be necessary in order to give the Commissioner the authority to impose such restrictions, because they could be viewed as direct regulation of PEO fees and, thus, beyond the jurisdiction of insurance regulators. If a statutory amendment is proposed, it might logically be included in either the state's insurance rate regulatory act or its PEO act. Including the language in the PEO act allows the imposition of sanctions on a noncompliant PEO and, depending on the structure of laws already on the books, Section 4 of the Guidelines can essentially be "lifted" from the regulation and placed in the state's PEO act substantially intact. The state's rating law might be a less appropriate place for these provisions, as the PEO is not an insurance company; nevertheless, a cross-reference in the insurance laws might be necessary in order to give the Commissioner the necessary rulemaking authority.

J. Improper Extensions of Coverage (Piggybacking)

Subsection 7C of the Guidelines is designed to limit coverage of a master policy to only one PEO or one PEO group. It also prohibits extension of coverage under a master or coordinated policy to another PEO, employee leasing company, temporary service agency, or other entity in the business of employment services outsourcing. This provision is designed to prevent "piggybacking" and provides an additional argument for a comprehensive legislative/regulatory approach to PEOs in any given state. It addresses an issue raised by the 2002 NAIC/IAIABC Joint Working Group report.

The classic "piggybacking" scenario occurs when PEO A, which has a master policy, then co-employs all of the employees and worksite co-employees of PEO B, thus seeking to extend coverage to PEO B's co-employees and clients. This represents a significant increase in the insurer's exposure, without any new underwriting by the insurer — and possibly without even the payment of additional premium. There are variations on this scheme, but the purpose is the same: to extend the insurance coverage beyond that for which it was originally intended or contracted. In one common variant, PEO A claims to have acquired PEO B, and asks its insurer to add PEO B to the policy, when the "purchase" is a sham transaction that does not really transfer actual ownership and control.

The drafters designed this provision not only to address piggybacking, but also to prevent a PEO contract with a client temporary staffing agency that, in turn, provides employees on a temporary basis to other clients. It was determined that having the on-site client employer more than one level removed from the employer securing coverage was too problematic.

On the other hand, this provision is not intended to prohibit: 1) a legitimate acquisition of one PEO by another; 2) a PEO providing services to an HR consulting or other entity that does not provide workers or W-2 co-employment services to client companies; or 3) a commonly owned PEO group procuring common coverage. However, pursuant to Subsection 7C, "For a master policy to be issued to a PEO group, all covered PEOs must be combinable for experience rating purposes, each member of the group shall execute a cross-guarantee of the premium payment obligations of the other members, and each covered PEO shall be expressly named as an insured PEO before the effective date of coverage."

The effectiveness of Subsection 7C is enhanced by a state's adoption of the Guidelines' recommendation for registration or regulation of PEOs generally. Once a state has a requirement for registration or licensing of PEOs doing business in the state, it is easier to identify PEOs, know their insurance relationships, and to prevent these types of improper extensions of coverage.

[40] "If the PEO charges the client an itemized amount for workers' compensation coverage, the PEO shall provide the client with a good faith estimate of the actual cost of coverage and an accurate and concise description of the basis upon which it was calculated and the services that are included. Without the prior approval of the commissioner, a PEO may not charge a client an itemized amount for workers' compensation coverage that is:

(1) Materially inconsistent with the actual amounts charged by the insurer or reasonably anticipated loss-sensitive charges;
(2) In conflict with the terms of the uniform classification system; or
(3) Materially in conflict with the terms of the uniform experience rating plan."

K. Self-Insurance

One fundamental question that arises, if a state recognizes a PEO as an employer, is whether the PEO should be allowed to self-insure its workers' compensation exposure on the same basis as other employers. Currently, some states permit self-insurance by PEOs and others do not.

The Working Group was concerned that a PEO self-insurance program is not true "self-insurance," as that term is commonly understood. In effect, a self-insured PEO is really insuring its clients, and allowing a PEO to self-insure would leave the clients and workers with no other recourse if the PEO failed, or would create unacceptable risk for the self-insurance guaranty fund in states that have such a fund. Therefore, the Working Group decided not to propose self-insurance by PEOs as one of the options for coverage in Section 3. Subsection 3B contemplates the possibility that a client might be allowed to self-insure (because not all PEO arrangements give the PEO responsibility for workers' compensation coverage), but not a PEO.

A drafting note to Section 3 acknowledges that some states permit self-insurance by PEOs and that states desiring to maintain such coverage will need to modify the Guidelines accordingly. However, a drafting note suggests that any states considering self-insurance:

… should seriously consider basing such authorization upon licensure as an alternative risk-bearing entity, similar to laws allowing licensure for multiple-employer welfare arrangements and group self-insurance pools, and upon compliance with standards substantially similar to those established by these guidelines for insurers issuing master policies.

L. Loss-Sensitive Coverage

The self-insurance question involved extensive discussions among the Working Group and interested parties concerning the nature of the risk assumed by a PEO with regard to workers' compensation. This risk differs from the risk ordinarily assumed by the employer that self-insures or has a loss-sensitive coverage plan. For a traditional employer, the workers' compensation risk is inherent in its operations, while for a PEO, the risk is assumed from its clients by contract (along with other employment-related risks). The client remains the owner of the operating business where the injury would occur. If a traditional employer self-insures or has a loss-sensitive arrangement, the self-insurance program is pure expense. Self-insurance "pays off" if it is cheaper than buying standard insurance, but the employer can never actually make a profit, only reduce the expense or suffer a loss.

By contrast, a PEO in a loss-sensitive arrangement must estimate its clients' likely workers' compensation losses, and collect payments from the clients that are sufficient to cover the expected losses and the expenses of operating the program. If the PEO manages the workers' compensation elements of its contract successfully and the losses are better than expected, the PEO makes a profit. If losses and expenses (adjusted to present value) are equal to the payments collected, this element of the PEO's operations break even. And if the clients' losses are significantly worse than expected, the PEO will incur a loss.

This analysis initially led some of the regulators on the Working Group to oppose any arrangement in which the PEO was involved in its clients' coverage on any other basis than as a pure intermediary between the clients and a licensed insurer. The industry's response, and that of some carriers, was that it was healthy for a PEO to assume some or all of its clients' risk, because that gave the PEO an economic incentive to operate good risk-management programs, so that a PEO was not simply financing coverage but actually improving the operations of its clients' workplaces. In this regard, the industry argued that the PEO's position was not that of an insurer, but that — as a co-employer with multiple touch points with the workforce (payroll, human resources, benefits, health, and compliance) — it had far greater abilities to invest in and manage risk than a client would have. A PEO, it was argued, was in a better position than the traditional insurer to improve safety, manage return to work, identify fraudulent claims, and address workers' compensation issues.

A consensus emerged on the Working Group that it should be permissible for a PEO to take on some degree of insurance risk. It was noted that the states already allow fronting arrangements in which unlicensed entities can assume insurance risk — as long as a licensed insurer assumes responsibility by issuing the primary policy, the insurer is then permitted to cede the risk to an unlicensed reinsurer, subject to reporting requirements and rules against taking accounting credit for unsecured reinsurance.

Regulators recognized that the rationale for prohibiting self-insurance does not necessarily apply to loss-sensitive coverage, because there is a significant difference between the risk that a PEO assumes under a large-deductible or retrospectively rated policy issued by a licensed insurer and the risk that a PEO assumes under a self-insurance program. With loss-sensitive insurance coverage, a licensed insurer has assumed full responsibility for all payments due under the policy, whether or not the PEO is willing and able to fulfill its obligations to the insurer, in the same manner as a fronting insurer that passes the risk to an unlicensed reinsurer.

Therefore, the Working Group determined that loss-sensitive coverage should be permitted, as long as adequate safeguards are in place. For loss-sensitive coverage, the safeguards established by the Guidelines are designed to ensure that the contract is exactly what it purports to be: an informed bargain between a willing insurer and a willing PEO to allocate risk between each other, without shifting those risks to third parties. As in the context of other issues, the most essential regulatory requirement in the Guidelines is that the insurer must make and honor an unconditional commitment to cover the clients and the workers.

Likewise, when the client has paid the appropriate fees up front, the PEO is not permitted to hit the client with additional charges down the road if claims experience goes sour. Beyond those restrictions, the focus is on transparency, making sure that all parties have all the information they need to make an informed decision. Transparency extends to regulatory reporting, as well. Subsection 11D of the Guidelines requires specific reporting by all insurers (foreign as well as domestic) in the domestic PEO market, and by domestic insurers on their nationwide PEO business. The content of the report is to be specified by the Commissioner, and a drafting note contemplates that it will include information on the rating methodologies, security arrangements, and reinsurance arrangements used, allowing regulators to evaluate whether PEO arrangements pose any material financial risk to the insurer.

Conclusion

The Guidelines are the result of a lengthy effort by regulators and interested parties to address a number of concerns that have arisen in PEO arrangements over the years. While the PEO industry has been largely successful in providing coverage and other services to many businesses on a long term basis, this record of success has not been universal. It has become apparent that the PEO relationship creates a variety of complications in areas such as proof of coverage, experience rating, and notice — and open up opportunities for abuse that require enhanced regulatory oversight.

Some states have addressed PEO issues more comprehensively than others. Some have adopted systems that work particularly well for them, while others are looking to adopt regulations or revise regulations already in place. The ultimate goal of all of the states is to preserve a workers' compensation system where all workers are properly covered and claims are handled promptly and correctly. Additional goals are to preserve competition in the marketplace in an effort to keep workers' compensation rates affordable and, to the extent possible, continue to move coverage from the residual to the voluntary market. To this end, the Guidelines have sought to provide flexibility while addressing issues that have arisen in the past.

It has become clear that, the issue is not simply the needs of the insurance regulatory agency. Action in each state should include other important stakeholders in the process: the workers' compensation administrative agency and/or adjudicator, the advisory organization or rating agency, the insurance carriers involved in the PEO markets, and the PEOs themselves. All of these stakeholders should be involved in the process of developing the regulations necessary within each jurisdiction, while also striving to ensure some commonality for data-reporting and exchange of information nationwide. Implementation of these Guidelines might take time. They might require legislative efforts. They might require a phased approach over time. However, the Working Group believes that the end result will be a better workers' compensation system for all.

Section 1. Authority and Purpose

This regulation is adopted pursuant to [insert applicable statutory authority] to ensure that professional employer organizations (PEOs), and their clients, properly obtain workers' compensation insurance coverage for all of their employees, including both direct hire employees and persons employed under PEO agreements; that the premium paid is commensurate with the anticipated claim experience; and that an appropriate procedural framework is in place for the inception, continuation, and termination of coverage.

Drafting Note: These guidelines are presented in the form of a regulation; however, some provisions may be more appropriately enacted as legislation in some states. Agencies promulgating regulations based upon these guidelines should ensure that statutes regulating PEOs or employee leasing arrangements, statutes regulating workers' compensation insurance, or other applicable law grant them adequate rulemaking authority. In states where another agency has regulatory jurisdiction over PEOs, the commissioner should consider jointly promulgating regulations with that agency. Agencies promulgating regulations or drafting legislation based upon these guidelines should also ensure that insurers, PEOs and regulators have adequate resources and infrastructure in place to make compliance feasible, including but not limited to the necessary information systems and the necessary reporting mechanisms for data and proof of coverage.

Drafting Note: The scope of these guidelines is limited to issues related to workers' compensation insurance. It does not provide a comprehensive regulatory framework for the PEO industry. States may wish to consider regulations or legislation based upon these guidelines as part of a more comprehensive registration or licensing regimen for PEOs. In particular, states should take appropriate measures to ensure, to the extent possible, that both a PEO and a client obtaining coverage in compliance with these guidelines are protected by the state's exclusive remedy provisions.

Section 2. Definitions

A. "Client" means an employer whose work force consists in whole or part of PEO co-employees.

B "Designated advisory organization" means the entity designated by the commissioner for the reporting of claims and experience data and for the administration of the workers' compensation experience rating system.

Drafting Note: If state law or practice uses different terminology or an inconsistent definition, make the appropriate substitution. Where the term "commissioner" is used, states should substitute the title of their chief insurance regulator, if different.

C. "Direct hire employee" of a client or a PEO means an individual who is an employee within the meaning of the Workers' Compensation Act and who is not a PEO co-employee as defined in Subsection J.

D. "Direct purchase basis" means an arrangement in which all contractual obligations under the insurance policy run directly between the insurer and the client without the involvement of the PEO, whether the arrangement is negotiated solely between the client and the insurer or is negotiated with the assistance of the PEO on terms that might not be available to the general public.

E. "Full work force PEO agreement" means a PEO agreement under which the PEO agrees to assume specified employment responsibilities for all of the client's employees within the state, except that a full work force agreement may exclude by name one or more owners and/or officers who have demonstrated that they are excluded from state workers' compensation benefits.

Drafting Note: States that permit the "Designated Workplaces Exclusion Endorsement" to be used in a master policy certificate or coordinated policy should add the following sentence: "A full work force PEO agreement may also exclude employees at one or more named workplaces that are subject to a Designated Workplaces Exclusion Endorsement issued in compliance with this regulation and other applicable legal and procedural requirements."

F. "Master policy basis" means an arrangement under which a single policy issued to the PEO provides coverage for more than one client, and provides coverage to the PEO with respect to its direct hire employees. Two or more clients that are insured under the same policy solely because they are under common ownership are considered a single client for purposes of this definition.

Drafting Note: States that prohibit master policies should omit this subsection and all other references to master policies in regulations or legislation based upon these guidelines.

G. "Multiple coordinated policy basis" means an arrangement under which a separate policy is issued to or on behalf of each client or group of affiliated clients but payment obligations and certain policy communications are coordinated through the PEO.

H. [Option 1] "Professional Employer Organization" or "PEO" means a business entity that enters into agreements with other businesses, whether under a formal contract or otherwise and regardless of the terminology used by the parties to describe the relationship, under which the PEO assumes or shares employment responsibilities for all or a significant number of the worksite employees of the other business. However, "PEO" does not include a business entity that recruits and hires its own employees; assigns them to clients on a temporary basis to support or supplement the client's work force in special work situations such as employee absences, temporary skill shortages and seasonal workloads; and customarily attempts to reassign the employees to other clients when they finish each assignment.

H. [Option 2] "Professional Employer Organization" or "PEO" means a business entity that is required to be [insert appropriate term] pursuant to [insert reference to state's licensure or registration law for PEOs or employee leasing companies].

Drafting Note: Option 1 is for use in those states where these guidelines will not be part of a comprehensive regulatory scheme for PEOs requiring licensure or registration.

I. "Professional employer agreement" or "PEO agreement" means an agreement between a PEO and a client under which the PEO agrees to assume specified employment responsibilities for all or part of the client's work force.

Drafting Note: If the state has an existing comprehensive statutory scheme in place regulating PEOs, these guidelines should be reviewed for consistency with that statutory scheme and revisions should be made if appropriate. This may include revisions to the terminology used in this section if state law uses different terminology, including but not limited to "employee leasing company," to describe some or all of the shared or delegated employer relationships that are the subject of these guidelines. Also, these guidelines presume that the state recognizes some form of employment arrangement under which both the PEO and client are considered employers for purposes of the workers' compensation laws. States should review this definition for consistency with the applicable statutory or common-law definition and make any revisions that might be necessary.

J. [Option 1] "PEO co-employee" means an individual who is an employee, within the meaning of the Workers' Compensation Act, of both a PEO and a client.

J. [Option 2] "PEO co-employee" means an individual whose employment responsibilities are shared between a client and a PEO, either by the terms of a PEO agreement or by operation of law.

Drafting Note: Generally, a client's direct hire employees are reported for tax purposes under the name and identification number of the client, while its PEO co-employees are reported for tax purposes under the name and identification number of the PEO. However, the determination whether the PEO is an employer of an individual for workers' compensation purposes is outside the scope of these guidelines because employer status is not governed by insurance laws. Although the PEO agreement should provide a clear process for determining which members of the client's workforce are PEO co-employees and which (if anyone) are direct hire employees, state law must control if the PEO agreement is inconclusive or is inconsistent with the law. If state law does not recognize co-employment, different terminology such as "PEO worksite employee" should be used and the definition should be revised to be consistent with state law.

Section 3. Insurance Coverage on PEO Co-Employees

The following are the methods approved by the commissioner as providing coverage for a client and a PEO that have entered into a PEO agreement, sufficient to meet their statutory obligation for coverage as employers under [insert appropriate statutory reference] of their PEO co-employees:

A. The client obtains a standard workers' compensation policy from an insurer on a direct purchase basis, covering all of the client's PEO co-employees and direct hire employees, subject to the same requirements and conditions as if the client were the sole employer of its PEO co-employees. The policy may name the PEO as an additional insured. If licensed as a producer, and authorized by the insurer, the PEO may negotiate coverage, collect premiums on behalf of the insurer, and otherwise act as an intermediary with respect to direct purchase coverage as permitted by law;

Drafting Note: States whose law uses other terminology such as "agent" or "broker" should modify this provision accordingly.

B. The client obtains authorization from the [insert appropriate state official] pursuant to [insert applicable self-insurance licensure statutes] to self-insure its workers' compensation obligations;

Drafting Note: States that allow a PEO as an entity to self-insure should modify this subsection accordingly. However, states considering allowing PEOs to self-insure should seriously consider basing such authorization upon licensure as an alternative risk-bearing entity, similar to laws allowing licensure for multiple-employer welfare arrangements and group self-insurance pools, and upon compliance with standards substantially similar to those established by these guidelines for insurers issuing master policies.

C. The PEO purchases insurance providing workers' compensation coverage on a multiple coordinated policy basis in compliance with this regulation, with a policy providing coverage to the client and to the PEO with respect to the PEO co-employees at the client; or

D. The PEO purchases a master policy, with a certificate of coverage issued in compliance with this regulation providing coverage to the client and to the PEO with respect to the PEO co-employees at the client.

Section 4. Requirements for PEOs

A. A PEO shall be registered as a professional employer organization with the [insert appropriate state official] pursuant to [insert applicable statutes]. An insurer may not enter into or maintain a multiple coordinated policy agreement with, or issue a master policy to, an unregistered PEO. If a PEO providing multiple coordinated policies, or covered under a master policy, ceases to be registered or has been subject to disciplinary sanctions, the [insert appropriate state official] shall promptly notify the insurer of record.

Drafting Note: Substitute "licensed" for "registered" in states with licensing laws. States that have no formal regulatory framework for PEOs may modify this subsection to impose a requirement for registration with or notice to the commissioner, or may omit this subsection entirely.

B. A PEO may not enter into or remain in a multiple coordinated policy agreement with an insurer or be issued a master policy if it is ineligible for coverage pursuant to [insert appropriate statutory citation here if applicable] as a result of a default on a workers' compensation premium or assessment debt.

C. If the services that a PEO offers to a client do not include securing workers' compensation coverage on a master policy or multiple coordinated policy basis, the PEO shall provide the client with clear and conspicuous written notice, before entering into a PEO agreement with the client, that the client will remain responsible for obtaining its own workers' compensation coverage for both PEO co-employees and direct hire employees, and the written PEO agreement shall also clearly set forth that responsibility.

D. If a PEO offers any client services that include securing workers' compensation coverage on either a master policy or multiple coordinated policy basis, the PEO shall have a written agreement with the client, signed by the client before coverage becomes effective, including clear and conspicuous provisions:

(1) Explaining that insurance coverage does not take effect until the effective date designated by the insurer on the policy or certificate of coverage;

(2) Explaining that while the coordinated policy or certificate of coverage is in force, the PEO will be responsible for paying all premium obligations, including any audit adjustments and policyholder assessments, and will be entitled to any premium refunds. The written agreement shall further explain that although the PEO will charge fees to the client that reflect or include the cost of coverage, these fees are not considered insurance premium obligations of the client. If there is a policy deductible, the written agreement shall further explain that the PEO is responsible for reimbursing the insurer for the deductible and may not seek recovery from the client;

(3) Explaining the procedures by which the client or PEO may terminate the PEO agreement, including any fees or costs payable upon termination, and that except as otherwise expressly provided or required by law, all services provided by the PEO to the client shall cease immediately on the effective date of the termination. The written agreement shall explicitly state that the client's coverage under any workers' compensation insurance shall terminate immediately on the termination date of the PEO agreement, subject to the client's right to receive at thirty (30) days' advance notice before workers' compensation insurance coverage may be terminated involuntarily and to purchase an extension of coverage at the client's expense for the remainder of the notice period if the notice period extends beyond the termination date of the PEO agreement;

Drafting Note: In states where Section 10 is revised to permit shorter notice in some or all situations, this provision should be modified accordingly.

(4) Explaining that the insurer has the right to inspect the premises and records of the client;

(5) Explaining that the client's loss experience will continue to be reported in the name of the client to the designated advisory organization, and will be available to subsequent insurers on request;

(6) If coverage is provided under a multiple coordinated policy arrangement, explaining whether the client may elect to purchase coverage directly from an insurer in lieu of participating in the multiple coordinated policy arrangement;

(7) If the PEO agreement is a full work force PEO agreement, explaining that the policy or certificate will cover all employees of the client within the state who are not excluded from workers' compensation benefits. If the PEO agreement is not a full work force PEO agreement, explaining that the policy or certificate will cover only those employees acknowledged in writing by the PEO to be PEO co-employees, and that the client shall at all times maintain other valid coverage for its direct hire employees and shall provide evidence of coverage satisfactory to the PEO's insurer; and

Drafting Note: States that permit the "Designated Workplaces Exclusion Endorsement" should add the following additional sentence between the first and second sentences. "If the client's policy or certificate is subject to a Designated Workplaces Exclusion Endorsement, the above disclosure shall be modified to reflect the terms of the exclusion and shall expressly state the client's obligation to provide separate coverage for the excluded workplaces."

(8) Explaining that the client may take complaints to the [insert applicable regulator] in accordance with [insert applicable law].

Drafting Note: A state that does not have an established regulatory process for complaints by clients against PEOs should consider adding a provision establishing a complaint process for workers' compensation issues.

E. The PEO shall promptly notify the workers' compensation insurance carrier of the termination of any PEO agreement with a client that is covered on a master policy or multiple coordinated policy basis.

F. The PEO shall not make any materially inaccurate, knowingly or recklessly misleading, or fraudulent representations to the client of the cost of workers' compensation coverage. If the PEO charges the client an itemized amount for workers' compensation coverage, the PEO shall provide the client with a good faith estimate of the actual cost of coverage and an accurate and concise description of the basis upon which it was calculated and the services that are included. Without the prior approval of the commissioner, a PEO may not charge a client an itemized amount for workers' compensation coverage that is:

(1) Materially inconsistent with the actual amounts charged by the insurer or reasonably anticipated loss-sensitive charges;

(2) In conflict with the terms of the uniform classification system; or

(3) Materially in conflict with the terms of the uniform experience rating plan.

G. The PEO shall provide any information requested by the commissioner relating to the provisions of its PEO agreements that relate to or have an impact on workers' compensation benefits or coverage, the methods by which the fees charged to clients are calculated to the extent that they are based upon or attributed to the cost of workers' compensation coverage, and any other information relevant to the PEO's workers' compensation coverage arrangements.

H. The PEO shall not impose any fee increase upon a client based upon the actual or anticipated cost of workers' compensation coverage without giving the client at least thirty (30) days' advance notice and an opportunity to withdraw from the PEO agreement without penalty.

I. If a client receives notice of the termination or nonrenewal of coverage, and the client obtains replacement coverage, the client shall have the right to withdraw from the PEO agreement without penalty even if the PEO's coverage has been reinstated or replaced.

J. Except with prior approval of the commissioner and full written advance disclosure to clients, the PEO shall not impose any fee or other charge upon a client that relates to workers' compensation coverage and could become due after the termination of the PEO agreement, other than:

(1) Fees and charges due and billed while the PEO agreement was in force, and fees for the final period of PEO services to the extent normally and customarily billed in arrears;

(2) Reasonable charges for additional services requested by the former client after termination of the PEO agreement;

(3) The cost to the PEO of workers' compensation coverage, including reasonable administrative expense, during any extension of the coverage period after termination of the PEO agreement;

(4) Reasonable interest on overdue fees and charges; and

(5) Reasonable charges for late payment of fees or early termination of the PEO agreement.

Section 5. Multiple Coordinated Policy Agreement

If a PEO secures workers' compensation coverage on a multiple coordinated policy basis, it shall first enter into a written agreement with the insurer establishing the terms and conditions under which multiple coordinated policies will be issued to the PEO and each client. The agreement may consist in whole or part of an endorsement to the coordinated policy covering the PEO's direct hire employees. The agreement shall include provisions addressing the following issues and such other reasonable provisions as the parties consider appropriate:

A. A copy of the policy form to be used for each coordinated policy issued under the agreement;

B. The premium discount, if any, to be applied to policies issued under the agreement, and any other modifications of the insurer's standard underwriting guidelines and rating plan;

C. The provision of financial and ownership information and coverage history by the PEO to the insurer, the form and amount of security to be held by the insurer, and the conditions under the insurer may draw upon it;

Drafting Note: States with laws limiting an insurer's ability to require prepayment of premium should consider whether it is necessary to clarify that a requirement to post a reasonable level of security under this subsection is not considered a prohibited prepayment requirement.

D. Whether a client may elect to purchase coverage directly from the same or another insurer in lieu of participating in the multiple coordinated policy arrangement;

E. The designation of a third-party administrator, if one is to be used. Any third-party administrator must be licensed by the commissioner;

Drafting Note: Omit second sentence if the state does not license third-party administrators, or if workers' compensation insurance is outside the scope of the state's administrator law. States with third party administrator laws that do not encompass workers' compensation coverage should consider amending them.

F. Provisions for billing and claims reporting and for enforcement of these requirements;

G. Provisions addressing the obligations of the PEO and the insurer when the PEO acquires a new client or terminates a relationship with an existing client, including notice to the insurer and to the [workers' compensation regulator];

H. Procedures for termination and renewal of the multiple coordinated policy agreement. Grounds for cancellation by the insurer and procedures for providing notice of cancellation or nonrenewal to the PEO shall be substantially consistent with the restrictions on policy termination set forth in [insert law regulating cancellation of workers' compensation policies]. Termination of PEO registration and continuing material noncompliance with reporting requirements shall be mandatory grounds for cancellation. The PEO shall have the right to a hearing before the commissioner upon a claim that the insurer has cancelled the agreement unlawfully or has failed to provide proper notice of cancellation or nonrenewal;

I. Provisions establishing the conditions and procedures, if any, under which a specific policy may be cancelled or nonrenewed while the multiple coordinated policy agreement remains in force; and

J. Provisions, if any, for conversion of coordinated policies to direct purchase policies upon termination of a PEO agreement, or upon termination of the multiple coordinated policy agreement between the PEO and the insurer.

Section 6. Coverage in the Residual Market

[Option One]: This version of Section 6 is for use by states where the residual market is an assigned risk plan or pooling mechanism. States should make appropriate revisions to the extent that this section is not consistent with the state's residual market structure.

A. The [residual market manager] shall file with the commissioner a standard multiple coordinated policy agreement that shall be made available to all registered PEOs in good standing. The terms of the standard agreement shall be subject to approval by the commissioner and shall include:

(1) Provisions under which, to the extent feasible, the policies covering all clients of the same PEO within this state shall be assigned to the same servicing carrier, and reasonable efforts shall be made to assign a common servicing carrier on an interstate basis;

(2) Provisions under which any client that is otherwise eligible for coverage may obtain direct purchase coverage with no break in coverage if the coordinated policy covering the client terminates for any reason; and

(3) A premium discount schedule that appropriately reflects any cost savings created by multiple coordinated policy arrangements.

Drafting Note: Omit Paragraph (3) in states where there is no premium discount available to large employers in the residual market.

B. If a PEO is not in good standing, residual market coverage for its clients shall be issued in the name of the client on a direct purchase basis. A PEO is not in good standing for purposes of this section if the residual market manager, subject to the PEO's right of appeal to the commissioner, determines that the PEO, an entity that controls or is controlled by the PEO, or an entity in which the PEO or an entity controlling the PEO directly or indirectly holds a 25% or greater ownership interest or actively manages:

(1) Is in default on an undisputed workers' compensation premium or assessment, either for its own coverage or for its clients' coverage, or otherwise fails to qualify as an eligible employer under the terms of the residual market plan;

Drafting Note: Omit the word "undisputed" in states that allow the denial of coverage while a dispute is pending.

(2) Is unable to demonstrate the financial capacity to comply with its obligations under the multiple coordinated policy agreement;

(3) [Insert appropriate reference here if state has a disciplinary provision in its PEO laws that when triggered would restrict a PEO's ability to provide workers' compensation coverage to clients.]; or

(4) Has, or is owned or managed by persons who have, a history of material noncompliance with the law or with contractual obligations, including but not limited to a felony conviction, multiple criminal convictions, judgments of liability for fraud or material representation, or multiple cancellations of insurance policies or multiple coordinated policy agreements.

C. A master policy may not be issued to a PEO in the residual market.

D. An employer that is a client of a PEO is not eligible for issuance or continuation of a residual market policy, nor is the PEO eligible for issuance or continuation of residual market coverage with respect to PEO co-employees at that client, if there is voluntary market coverage with respect to some other portion of the client's work force. With the approval of the commissioner, the residual market may deny coverage, or may charge rates reasonably designed to reflect the additional risk assumed, to a PEO requesting coverage on a multiple coordinated policy basis for some but not all of its clients in this state, if the PEO has other coverage on a master policy or multiple coordinated policy basis for other clients in this state.

Section 6. Coverage by the [Statutory Carrier of Last Resort]

[Option Two]: This version of Section 6 is for use by states in which the residual market is a competitive state fund or other statutory carrier of last resort. States should make appropriate revisions if this section is not consistent with the powers and duties of the carrier of last resort; for example, if that carrier does not also compete in the voluntary market.

A. [Statutory carrier of last resort] may negotiate master policies or multiple coordinated policy agreements with PEOs on a voluntary basis. [Statutory carrier of last resort] shall file with the commissioner a standard multiple coordinated policy agreement that shall be made available to all registered PEOs in good standing. The terms of the standard agreement shall be subject to approval by the commissioner and shall include a premium discount schedule that appropriately reflects any cost savings created by multiple coordinated policy arrangements.

Drafting Note: Change "shall" to "may" in the last sentence in states where there is no requirement to provide a premium discount to large employers with involuntary coverage, and omit the last sentence entirely where premium discounts are prohibited.

B. If a PEO is not in good standing, coverage for its clients by [statutory carrier of last resort] shall be issued in the name of the client on a direct purchase basis. A PEO is not in good standing for purposes of this section if [statutory carrier of last resort], subject to the PEO's right of appeal to the commissioner, determines that the PEO, an entity that controls or is controlled by the PEO, or an entity in which the PEO or an entity controlling the PEO directly or indirectly holds a 25% or greater ownership interest or actively manages:

(1) Is in default on an undisputed workers' compensation premium or assessment, either for its own coverage or for its clients' coverage, or otherwise fails to qualify as an employer eligible for coverage as of right with [statutory carrier of last resort];

Drafting Note: Omit the word "undisputed" in states that allow the denial of coverage while a dispute is pending.

(2) Is unable to demonstrate the financial capacity to comply with its obligations under the multiple coordinated policy agreement;

(3) [If state has a disciplinary provision in its PEO laws that when triggered would restrict a PEO's ability to provide workers' compensation coverage to clients, insert appropriate reference here]; or

(4) Has, or is owned or managed by persons who have, a history of material noncompliance with the law or with contractual obligations, including but not limited to a felony conviction, multiple criminal convictions, judgments of liability for fraud or material representation, or multiple cancellations of insurance policies or multiple coordinated policy agreements.

C. The terms of any master policy issued or multiple coordinated policy agreement entered into by [statutory carrier of last resort] shall include provisions under which any client that is otherwise eligible for coverage may obtain direct purchase coverage with no break in coverage if the coordinated policy covering the client or the client's coverage under the PEO's master policy terminates for any reason.

D. An employer that is a client of a PEO is not entitled to issuance or continuation of coverage as of right by [statutory carrier of last resort], nor is the PEO entitled to issuance or continuation of coverage as of right by [statutory carrier of last resort] with respect to PEO co-employees at that client, if there is voluntary market coverage with respect to some other portion of the client's work force. With the approval of the commissioner, [statutory carrier of last resort] may deny coverage, or may charge rates reasonably designed to reflect the additional risk assumed, to a PEO requesting coverage on a multiple coordinated policy basis for some but not all of its clients in this state, if the PEO has other coverage on a master policy or multiple coordinated policy basis for other clients in this state.

Section 7. Policy Issuance

A. A master policy or coordinated policy shall unconditionally obligate the insurer to pay all benefits due under the workers' compensation laws, whether or not the PEO and client comply with their obligations under the policy, for all injuries to covered employees occurring while the policy is in force, including any extension of coverage required pursuant to Section 10 of this regulation.

(1) If the PEO agreement with a covered client is a full work force PEO agreement, the policy or certificate shall cover all PEO co-employees and shall also cover any other obligations of the client under [insert appropriate statutory reference] to the same extent as if the client had obtained a direct purchase policy in this state.

Drafting Note: States that permit the "Designated Workplaces Exclusion Endorsement" should add the following language at the end: " ... or subject to the terms of a Designated Workplaces Exclusion Endorsement in a form approved by the commissioner, consistent with all other applicable legal and procedural requirements, that is properly executed, attached to the policy, specifically identified in the PEO agreement and contingent upon the client's obligation to maintain coverage at the designated workplaces and upon the insurer's obligation to give .notice of the exclusion to the [workers' compensation regulator] when filing proof of coverage."

(2) If the PEO agreement is not a full work force PEO agreement, the policy or certificate may exclude coverage for direct hire employees and may specify that only those employees acknowledged in writing by the PEO as PEO co-employees shall be covered, subject to the following conditions and requirements:

(a) A PEO's insurer may not issue or renew coverage with a direct hire exclusion unless it obtains satisfactory evidence demonstrating that the client has coverage for all of its other workers' compensation liabilities under [insert appropriate statutory reference]. A direct hire exclusion is not valid if the insurer issues the policy or certificate without first obtaining evidence of coverage for the client's other workers' compensation liabilities, or if the coverage for the client's other workers' compensation liabilities has terminated and the PEO's insurer has failed to act promptly to cancel the policy or certificate after learning of the termination.

(b) A direct hire exclusion is not valid if the PEO's insurer has provided proof of coverage on behalf of the client to the [workers' compensation regulator]. In lieu of providing proof of coverage, an insurer that issues a coordinated policy or a master policy certificate with a direct hire exclusion shall provide notice to the [workers' compensation regulator] in a form prescribed by the commissioner in consultation with the [workers' compensation regulator].

Drafting Note: States with proof-of-coverage reporting systems that are capable of tracking both primary and secondary coverage should replace this provision with a requirement to report PEO coverage with a direct hire exclusion as secondary coverage for the client in order for the exclusion to be enforceable.

(c) A policy or certificate with a direct hire exclusion shall provide that loss of coverage for direct hire employees is a ground for cancellation, unless the client obtains replacement coverage with no break in coverage.

(d) If a client's insurer has issued coverage for direct hire exposure, and an injured employee is entitled to workers' compensation benefits but there is a dispute as to whether the employee is a direct hire employee or a PEO co-employee, the client's insurer shall pay the benefits, subject to reimbursement of claims costs and loss adjustment expenses by the PEO's insurer if it is determined that the claimant is a PEO co-employee.

(e) A representation that the client has no direct hire employees does not constitute proof of coverage for direct hire employees. A client representing that its PEO agreement is not a full work force agreement but that it has no direct hire employees within the state must maintain a valid policy of insurance written on an "if any" basis.

(f) Upon the termination of separate coverage for PEO co-employees, they shall be considered direct hire employees for purposes of the client's policy, and premium shall be charged accordingly. The client'spolicy may include an endorsement requiring the client to provide prompt reporting of any notice of termination by the PEO's insurer and advance notice of any voluntary termination, and, if issued in the voluntary market, may provide that termination of the PEO coverage is a ground for cancellation of the client's policy.

(g) If the PEO and its client have obtained separate policies in compliance with this subsection, and one of the insurers becomes insolvent, coverage obligations shall be allocated between the solvent insurer and the [guaranty association] in the same manner as if both insurers were solvent.

B. A master policy shall be issued in the name of the PEO, and shall provide that all clients holding certificates of coverage are additional insureds to the extent provided in the certificate of coverage.

C. A master policy may cover only one PEO or one PEO group. For a master policy to be issued to a PEO group, all covered PEOs must be combinable for experience rating purposes, each member of the group shall execute a cross-guarantee of the premium payment obligations of the other members, and each covered PEO shall be expressly named as an insured PEO before the effective date of coverage. A PEO, employee leasing company, temporary service agency or other entity in the business of employment services outsourcing may not be covered as a client under a master policy or coordinated policy. Each client's coordinated policy or certificate of coverage, and any policy issued to a PEO for the sole purpose of covering its direct hire employees, shall include a Labor Contractor Exclusion Endorsement or similar provision excluding coverage for employees furnished by the client to other entities or with respect to whom the client acts as a PEO.

Drafting Note: If applicable state law regulates PEO groups, this subsection should be revised as necessary for consistency, and if applicable should include a provision requiring the PEO group to be registered or licensed as such.

D. The insurer or its authorized representative shall issue a certificate of coverage to each client covered under a master policy.

(1) The certificate shall specify the effective date of the client's coverage and the expiration date of the underlying master policy. A renewal certificate shall be issued to each client each time the policy is renewed.

(2) The certificate of coverage shall provide that coverage shall continue as long as the master policy and the PEO agreement between the PEO and the client both remain in force, or shall expressly set forth any exceptions.

(3) The certificate of coverage shall provide that the client is entitled to thirty (30) days' notice before coverage may be cancelled or nonrenewed without the client's consent, except:

(a) When replacement coverage is provided by the PEO with no break in coverage; or

(b) When the insurer has notified the client and the [workers' compensation regulator] at the time the certificate is first issued that the master policy will be cancelled or nonrenewed in less than thirty (30) days.

Drafting Note: In states where Section 10 is revised to permit shorter notice in some or all situations, this provision should be modified accordingly.

E. Coordinated policies, except for the policy covering the PEO's direct hire employees, shall be issued in a manner that clearly specifies the identities of the PEO and client and clearly describes the scope of coverage:

(1) Coverage may be issued in the name of "[PEO] and [client] as co-employers," or substantially similar language, as long as the policy clearly indicates which named insured is the PEO and which named insured is the client.

(2) Coverage may be issued in the name of "[PEO] as labor contractor for [client]," or substantially similar language, as long as the policy clearly provides coverage for the client's obligations as employer under the workers' compensation laws.

(3) Coverage may be issued in the name of "[client], for employees co-employed with [PEO]," or substantially similar language, or in the name of the client with the PEO as an additional insured, as long as the policy clearly provides coverage for the PEO's obligations as employer under the workers' compensation laws.

(4) If a client participates in more than one PEO agreement, employees affiliated with different PEOs shall be covered under different policies unless both PEOs, and both PEOs' insurers, agree to the issuance of a single policy providing comprehensive coverage to the client's entire workforce, comprising direct hire employees and PEO co-employees from all sources.

Drafting Note: If applicable state law specifies a different procedure for designating the named insureds on the policy, this Subsection should be omitted or revised accordingly. States that require coordinated policies to be issued in the name of one of the parties to the PEO agreement should take appropriate measures to ensure that the other party is also adequately protected, particularly on the employer's liability side of the policy.

F. A coordinated policy shall be issued on a standard workers' compensation policy form, with an endorsement or endorsements clearly describing all variations from the terms of the insurer's direct purchase policy, consistent with the terms of the multiple coordinated policy agreement and this regulation, including without limitation provisions establishing that premium payment is the sole obligation of the PEO and clarifying the client's rights and obligations with respect to policy cancellation and, if applicable, policy conversion.

G. All policies for clients issued under a multiple coordinated policy agreement with a PEO shall have the same termination date. If a client enters into a PEO agreement during a policy period, the initial policy will be written for less than a twelve-month period. Subsequent policies shall be written with the same effective date as the policies for other clients. Termination of the PEO agreement between the PEO and client shall be grounds for cancellation of the client's coordinated policy or, if agreed between the insurer and the client, for conversion to a direct purchase policy.

H. The insurer shall send each coordinated policy to the PEO, and shall send the client a certificate adopting by reference the policy form attached to the multiple coordinated policy agreement together with any amendments that may be expressly set forth in the certificate, and providing a method by which the client may obtain a copy of the entire policy on request.

I. The insurer shall use its standard underwriting and rating rules for coordinated policies, except as modified by the terms of the multiple coordinated policy agreement.

J. Regardless of the basis on which coverage is provided, the insurer shall report payroll and claims data for each client to the designated advisory organization in a manner that identifies both the client and PEO, and experience modification factors shall be calculated for each client as if the client were the sole employer of all PEO co-employees. The designated advisory organization may also establish rules for the calculation of an experience modification factor for PEOs which may be used by agreement between a PEO and an insurer in accordance with Section 12A.

K. Policies for clients issued on either a direct purchase or multiple coordinated policy basis shall be issued with a Labor Contractor Endorsement limiting coverage under the policy to PEO co-employees and those direct hire employees who are not covered under a separate policy.

L. An insurer, directly or through an advisory organization authorized to act on its behalf, shall file all applicable master policy forms, master policy certificate of coverage forms, multiple coordinated policy agreement forms and coordinated policy forms with the commissioner at least thirty (30) days before issuing master policies or multiple coordinated policies subject to this regulation, or no later than the effective date of this regulation for forms already in use. If a master policy or a multiple coordinated policy agreement is written on a manuscript basis or materially varies from the forms on file with the commissioner, the insurer shall file the contract as soon as practicable, and no later than ten (10) days after the effective date.

Section 8. Premium Payments

A. The PEO is responsible for payment to the insurer of any premiums, policyholder assessments or deductible reimbursement charges under a master policy or coordinated policy, whether or not the PEO has received timely payment from the client. A client's failure to pay fees when due to the PEO does not constitute nonpayment of premium within the meaning of [insert reference to law regulating cancellation of workers' compensation policies and law or residual market operating rule requiring denial of coverage to employers with outstanding premium debt]. Unless the PEO and client are under common ownership, a client may not be denied coverage pursuant to [insert reference to law or residual market operating rule requiring denial of coverage to employers with outstanding premium debt] on the ground that its PEO has failed to pay premium to the insurer when due.

B. A master policy or multiple coordinated policy agreement shall include provisions requiring the insurer to take prompt action to cancel a client's coverage or convert it to direct purchase coverage, at the carrier's option, if notified by the PEO that the PEO agreement has terminated.

C. An insurer may not issue a master policy or multiple coordinated policies with deductibles or with retrospective or other loss-sensitive rating unless the insurer has applicable program policy forms on file with the commissioner.

Drafting Note: If state law prohibits deductibles, omit reference to deductibles.

D. The client's direct hire employees, if any, shall be included in the client's payroll for rating and classification purposes unless the policy or certificate was issued with a direct hire exclusion pursuant to Section 7A(2).

E. If a coordinated policy is converted to or replaced with a direct purchase policy, the insurer shall provide clear and timely notice to both the PEO and client explaining when the PEO's premium payment obligations end and the client's premium obligations begin. The insurer shall conduct a premium audit within 120 days to determine the PEO's final premium obligation under the policy. Unless otherwise agreed between the insurer and the former PEO client, a converted policy shall have no deductible and shall be rated according to the insurer's generally applicable rating plan.

Drafting Note: If applicable state law provides a different time frame for premium audits, states may consider modifying this provision accordingly.

F. If a client's negligence or fraud results in a substantial understatement of the estimated premium for coverage of the client under a master policy or coordinated policy, or if the PEO's negligence or fraud results in a substantial understatement of the estimated premium for a client's direct purchase policy, the PEO and client are jointly and severally liable to the insurer for the premium actually owed.

Section 9. Verification of Classifications and Payroll

A. At least annually, and more often if reasonably requested by the insurer, a PEO shall furnish to the insurer a complete payroll record of all PEO co-employees covered pursuant to a master policy or multiple coordinated policy agreement, itemized by policy or certificate number and by workers' compensation class code. The insurer may visit the client to review ledger records or may request copies of payroll information from the client to determine the actual amounts paid to PEO co-employees, and to direct hire employees if the direct hire employees are not covered under a separate policy.

B. An insurer shall be permitted access to inspect the client's workplace to determine the proper classifications for insurance purposes. If either the PEO or client disagrees with the insurer's classification assignment, it may ask the designated advisory organization to do an inspection to determine the proper classification, subject to a further right of appeal to the commissioner. This subsection does not limit the insurer's or PEO's right to conduct safety inspections as appropriate.

Section 10. Policy Cancellation or Nonrenewal

A. A master policy or a coordinated policy may be cancelled or nonrenewed by the insurer on the same grounds and subject to the same conditions as any other workers' compensation insurance policy. In addition, the insurer shall cancel or nonrenew a coordinated policy covering a client, or may at its option convert it to a direct purchase policy, if the multiple coordinated policy agreement is cancelled or nonrenewed, voluntarily or involuntarily, or if the PEO agreement between the PEO and the client terminates for any reason. The termination or conversion of coverage shall be concurrent with the termination of the multiple coordinated policy agreement or PEO agreement if adequate advance notice can be given in compliance with this regulation and applicable contractual provisions.

Drafting Note: The lawful termination of any essential component of the tripartite agreement among the insurer, the PEO purchasing the coverage, and the client should be a ground for policy termination, especially where the insured risk no longer conforms to the description in the policy. However, in some states the grounds for termination described in this subsection may be prohibited by statute or public policy, and these states should either amend the law or revise this subsection to mandate conversion to direct purchase coverage in lieu of cancellation, and should also make corresponding revisions to subsections 4(D)(3), 7(D)(2) and (7H).

B. Cancellation or nonrenewal of a PEO's or client's coverage at the initiative of the insurer without the written consent of that party is not effective as to that party unless the insurer has given at least thirty (30) days' advance notice to that party and the [workers' compensation regulator] in compliance with [insert citation to law regulating cancellation of workers' compensation policies].

Drafting Note: If applicable state law permits involuntary termination of workers' compensation coverage upon shorter notice in some or all situations, states may consider modifying this provision accordingly.

C. Cancellation or nonrenewal of coverage under a master policy or coordinated policy at the initiative of the PEO or client shall be governed by the applicable contractual provisions, except as otherwise provided in this regulation.

D. Cancellation or nonrenewal of a client's coverage at the initiative of the PEO without the written consent of the client is not effective as to the client unless either:

(1) The insurer has given at least thirty (30) days' advance notice to the client and the [workers' compensation regulator];

(2) The PEO has given at least thirty (30) days' advance notice by certified mail to the insurer, the client and the [workers' compensation regulator]; or

(3) Coverage for all covered clients has been replaced with no break in coverage, and the PEO has given advance notice to the insurer, the clients, and the [workers' compensation regulator].

Drafting Note: If applicable state law permits involuntary termination of workers' compensation coverage upon shorter notice in some or all situations, states may consider modifying this provision accordingly.

E. A request for termination of coverage by a client, or a client's or PEO's consent to waiver of notice under Subsection B or D of this section, is not effective:

(1) If the request or consent is executed in blank without specifying the termination date at the time of execution, or is executed in advance as security for a future obligation;

(2) If the request is made or the consent is given pursuant to a power of attorney that was executed in advance or by an attorney that was not chosen solely by and acting in the sole interest of the party on whose behalf the request is purportedly being made or on whose behalf the waiver is purportedly being given; or

(3) If the request or consent is received by the insurer after the specified termination date, unless the insurer also receives satisfactory evidence demonstrating that coverage has been replaced with no break in coverage.

Section 11. Statistical Reporting and Experience Rating

A. All loss reporting for injuries to PEO co-employees and all payroll reporting for PEOs shall be conducted in a manner that identifies both the PEO and the client and enables the calculation of experience modification factors in accordance with this section.

B. The experience modification factor for the client shall be based on all experience of both PEO co-employees and direct hire employees during the experience period.

C. If some or all of the client's experience is unavailable or unreliable because relevant experience was not reported in the name of the client during all or part of the experience period or in some or all of the states where the client had operations, an experience modification factor shall be calculated in accordance with procedures established by the designated advisory organization and approved by the commissioner.

D. All domestic insurers providing workers' compensation coverage to PEOs and all foreign insurers providing workers' compensation coverage to PEOs registered in this state shall file an annual report with the commissioner on the coverage provided in this market sector, at a time and in a format specified by the commissioner.

Drafting Note: The information to be collected may vary from state to state according to their respective regulatory needs, and states may wish to specify the information to be collected in more detail when promulgating regulations or drafting legislation based upon these guidelines. The information to be collected could include the following: the number of PEOs and number of clients covered; premium and loss information; the rating methodologies, security arrangements, and reinsurance arrangements used; and cancellations and replacements of coverage.

Section 12. Rating Methodology

The premium an insurer charges a PEO for a client's operations shall be rated using the client's experience modification factor, with the following exceptions:

A. If an experience modification factor has been calculated for the PEO in accordance with procedures established by the designated advisory organization and approved by the commissioner, the insurer and PEO may agree to use that experience modification factor or, with the approval of the commissioner, a formula that takes into account both the PEO's and the various clients' experience modification factors.

B. If coverage is rated on the basis of the client's experience and some of the client's operations are to be covered under one or more policies issued by a different insurer, the insurer may, as one of the terms under which it offers to issue or renew coverage and separate from any other applicable credits or surcharges, either:

(1) Use an experience modification factor based on the portion of the client's operations that are covered by that insurer if such a factor can be calculated with reasonable accuracy; or

(2) Adjust the premium in a manner that in the insurer's reasoned underwriting judgment appropriately reflects the difference in risk between the insured operations.

Drafting Note: Section 12 is not appropriate for jurisdictions that have not adopted Section 11, since Section 12 presupposes the existence of an effective mechanism for implementing experience rating at the client level and is not intended as an exemption from the requirements of Section 11. Also, since Section 12 permits the use of a negotiated alternative rating formula, it is not appropriate in jurisdictions that require insurers to adhere to a uniform rating plan.

Section 13. Interstate Coverage

A. If the PEO or client has its bona fide principal place of business outside this state, the insurer may request that the commissioner grant a variance from one or more requirements of this regulation to enable the PEO's or client's interstate operations to be covered under a single policy or multiple coordinated policy arrangement. The commissioner shall have the discretion to grant a variance upon a determination that the coverage arrangement preserves the statutory rights of employees and clients and offers protections substantially equivalent to those required by this regulation, that the risk is appropriately rated and that the loss experience of individual clients in this state is accurately reported.

B. If the client has operations in multiple states, an interstate experience modification factor shall be used for the client if the client would be subject to interstate modification if it were the sole employer of its PEO co-employees and an accurate loss history is available for the client's interstate operations.

Section 14. Confidentiality

If any information filed with or provided to the commissioner pursuant to this regulation is a trade secret or otherwise exempt from public disclosure under the [insert citation to applicable open records law], the commissioner shall withhold it from public disclosure if the person or entity providing the information makes a written request for confidential treatment that specifies with particularity why the document should be exempt from disclosure under the [insert citation to applicable open records law]. PEO client lists or other information from which the identity of clients may be inferred are presumed to be trade secrets and may not be disclosed to the public except on a finding by the commissioner that the specific information sought to be disclosed is not a trade secret or that failure to disclose the information would tend to conceal fraud or otherwise work injustice.

Drafting Note: In states where residual market employer lists are published, add the following sentence: "If a PEO is covered in the residual market, it shall not be named in the published listing of employers with residual market coverage at any time, and its clients shall not be named until residual market coverage has been in force for sixty (60) consecutive days and shall not be designated as clients of the PEO."

Section 15. Remedies

A. Violations of this regulation by a PEO, client or insurer are subject to penalties as provided in [insert citation to general disciplinary law or other applicable law]. Disputes involving a PEO, client or insurer arising out of a claimed violation of this regulation may be resolved by an adjudicatory hearing before the commissioner.

Drafting Note: In states where another agency has regulatory jurisdiction over PEOs, there should either be a provision specifying procedures for referring disciplinary actions for PEOs to that agency, or provisions under which regulations are jointly promulgated by the agency regulating PEOs and establishing remedies under that agency's regulatory authority.

B. It is a deceptive practice in the business of insurance within the meaning of [insert appropriate citation to unfair trade practices act] for a PEO to represent to clients or prospective clients that they have or will have workers' compensation coverage except when a coordinated policy or certificate of coverage is issued in compliance with this regulation or a duly authorized agent of the insurer has issued a valid temporary binder; for a PEO to purport or threaten to terminate workers' compensation coverage except in accordance with this regulation; or for a PEO to knowingly or recklessly fail to provide the notices or disclosures required by this regulation. If the violation is knowing or willful, it is a fraudulent insurance act within the meaning of [insert appropriate citation to insurance fraud act].

Section 16. Effective Date

The effective date of this regulation is [insert appropriate lead time], except that no later than [one month earlier], the [statutory carrier of last resort or residual market manager] shall file its proposed standard multiple coordinated policy agreement with the commissioner, pursuant to Section 6 of this regulation, and the designated advisory organization shall file proposed state special modifications to its experience rating plan if any are required. This regulation applies to all policies issued or renewed and any applications submitted on or after the effective date of this regulation.

Appendix B

NCCI Alternatives and Technical Supplement on Data Reporting

Purpose of Proof of Coverage (POC) and Experience Rating Data

Workers' compensation administrators and insurance regulators rely on POC and statistical data to enforce and monitor the workers' compensation system. For states that recognize the PEO and their clients as co-employers, compliance programs and regulations need to consider the impact of insurance coverage as it relates to the PEO and the client employer. Regardless of the existence of a PEO or employee leasing arrangement, the integrity of experience rating and POC programs must be effectively maintained with statistical data that is:

- Sufficient to enable the state's compliance administrator to efficiently track and identify whether an employer within the state has the coverage required by law to ensure that injured employees' claims will be processed and the required benefits paid. At a minimum, POC data must identify the worksite employer's name, location, covered work units, and date of inception/cancellation/termination of coverage.

- Detailed enough to allow for the accurate reporting and tracking of payroll and losses attributable to the worksite employer, and enabling the calculation of experience modification factors at the client level.

Master Policy Considerations

The Guidelines support the master policy model when the following conditions are met:

- Client-specific notice requirements and payroll, loss, and other data reporting requirements give the client a status similar to that of an individual insured employer while insured under a master policy;

- Current insurance statistical and data reporting structures have the ability to track client experience and produce client experience ratings using all of the client employers' past experience, whether or not that experience is from the master policy;

- The insurer or the PEO cannot terminate or materially alter coverage without reasonable advance notice to the client;

- Insurers maintain and report data in sufficient and accurate detail to permit the calculation of meaningful client-specific experience ratings and verification of POC on the client level;

- Experience ratings are produced on an ongoing basis for every client that is eligible for experience rating;

- Ability to identify each covered client's workforce as a discrete unit of coverage under the master policy;

- The master policy adopts a "certificate of coverage" requirement, under which each client is issued a coverage document outlining its rights and obligations under the master policy and clearly establishing both the identity and status of the client and the inception and termination dates of coverage.

Considering these conditions, the Master Policy could be issued using the following structure:

- Standard workers' compensation policy (master policy) is issued to the PEO, as the primary named insured;

- Each client company of the PEO is listed as an additional named insured (as provided in Subsection 7(B) of the Guidelines);

- Information page schedules are attached to the master policy to identify each client company's name, FEIN, and job location;

- Each client company is issued a "certificate of insurance" coverage document outlining its rights and obligations under the master policy that clearly establishes both the identity and status of the client, and the inception and termination dates of coverage;

- Each client workforce is identified as a discrete unit of coverage, and corresponding endorsements are attached to specify notice requirements, and policy conditions for each client company covered under the master policy;

- Experience modification factor applicable to the master policy would include the combined experience of the PEO and each client company, including any past experience;

- Pricing and experience rating rules may be adjusted to allow for the combinability of experience and combination of premiums and eligibility for discounts, such as large deductible programs, retrospective rating, and group modification factor.

Data Reporting Options for the Master Policy

The root of the technical problems with obtaining client-level data under a master policy is that present industry standards for the reporting and collection of data are based on the issuance of a separate policy for each employer. These standards support the constant exchange and use of data from carriers' systems to data collection organizations, and subsequently, to many states' compliance systems. The existence of a separate policy identifies the employer as a potential candidate for experience rating and results in the submission of unit statistical data that provide the payroll and losses of the employer used in the experience rating calculation. While some industry standards have changed to assist in the complex reporting of PEO-related data, the ability to make significant changes to the current system is limited both by cost considerations and the need to preserve current capabilities for exchanging data. Adding requirements or changing industry standards is only meaningful if compliance is technically feasible.

Following are two Master Policy options for the reporting of client-level detail. To consider coding changes and system implementation, an 18 to 24 month industry lead time would be required. Should any of these alternatives be considered (or possibly others), it is important to take into account the full range of data reporting and experience rating challenges presented by the Master Policy when client-level detail is required. Both options require the reporting of unit reports for each client that can be linked together for experience rating purposes; the major difference between the options relates to how policy (and POC) data is reported. A third option presented is to convert the current manual reporting system to electronic form. This would support reporting under the 1991 NAIC Model Regulation, but would not be consistent with the Guidelines.

Option 1: Single master policy issued with the reporting of separate client policy and unit data

Data Reporting Requirements

Option 1 sets up a data reporting system for master policy situations that parallels the multiple coordinated policy framework. Separate policy data for each client company and the PEO would be reported as if separate client policies were issued. Separate unit data (payroll and loss) for each client would also be reported, thereby allowing for the reporting and maintenance of client level experience, in addition to the calculation of a group modification factor based on the combined experience of the PEO and its clients. This option would require the reporting of data in sufficient detail to permit the calculation of meaningful client-specific experience ratings, upon termination of a PEO agreement, and verification of POC at the client level. Additionally, policy reporting would need to be sufficient to identify the connection between all the client level policies to ensure that the separate unit data would also be rolled up to the PEO master policy level.

Option 2: Single master policy issued with the reporting of single policy data and separate client-level unit data (Multiple Coordinated Units)

Data Reporting Requirements

Option 2 attempts to support the continuation of reporting a single master policy, but requires the reporting of separate unit data (payroll and loss) for each client. It utilizes the single PEO Master policy and requires multiple coordinated units to be reported. With Option 1, both client-level policy and unit data would be reported; however, with Option 2, only client-level unit data would be reported. As a result, Option 2 would require more detailed policy reporting requirements and the expectation of multiple unit reports for a single master policy. This option would call for significant changes to industry standards, including operating and reporting systems, and might be difficult to implement and costly to the industry.

Option 3: Electronic Reporting of Former Client Experience Rating Data

Currently, when a client leaves a master policy, the PEO carrier reports the client's payroll and loss data to NCCI for experience rating purposes on a hard copy form through a manual process. Option 3 automates the current experience rating manual process, so that carriers would be able to electronically report and collect the individual data of former client companies to NCCI. This option supports the 1991 NAIC Model Regulation, which requires submission of client-level data only after the termination of an employee leasing arrangement; however, it would require changes in industry standards, additional costs, and may prove inadequate if business limitations exist for accurate and timely maintenance and reporting of client-level payroll and losses. This option does not address the maintenance of client-level data while the client is part of the master policy, and therefore is not consistent with the Guidelines.

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC guideline. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in to find a citation; to perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

Who do I speak to if I have questions?

If you have questions or believe information related to a state should be updated, please contact Jennifer Neuerburg at jneuerburg@naic.org.

Disclaimer: This chart does not constitute a formal legal opinion by the NAIC staff on the provisions of state law and should not be relied upon as such. Nor does this state page reflect a determination as to whether a state meets any applicable accreditation standards. Every effort has been made to provide correct and accurate summaries to assist readers in locating useful information. Readers should consult state law for further details and for the most current information.

PROJECT HISTORY – 2010

GUIDELINES FOR REGULATIONS AND LEGISLATION ON WORKERS' COMPENSATION COVERAGE FOR PROFESSIONAL EMPLOYER ORGANIZATION ARRANGEMENTS (#1950)

1. Background

In 1991 the NAIC adopted an Employee Leasing Model Regulation and an Employee Leasing Registration Model Act. However, because of the evolution of this market over the intervening years, the Model Law Review (C) Working Group of the Workers' Compensation (C) Task Force had recommended in 2003 that these models be discontinued, noting that very few states had ever adopted them, and they had become considered seriously out of date. It was believed that only a complete rewrite should be considered. Therefore, during the NAIC 2003 Winter National Meeting, these two 1991 models were discontinued.

The Workers' Compensation (C) Task Force formed the Professional Employer Organization Model Law (C) Working Group[1] during the NAIC 2003 Winter National Meeting to consider the development of new model laws that would be appropriate for this market. Through this working group the Guidelines for Regulations and Legislation on Workers' Compensation Coverage for Professional Employer Organization Arrangements (PEO Guidelines) were drafted to serve as a replacement for the 1991 models. The PEO Guidelines were adopted by Executive/Plenary during the NAIC 2007 Summer National Meeting.

The PEO Guidelines were developed to ensure that professional employer organizations (PEOs) and their clients properly obtain workers' compensation insurance coverage for all their employees, including both direct hire employees and persons employed under PEO agreements; that the premium paid is commensurate with the anticipated claim experience; and that an appropriate procedural framework is in place for the inception, continuation, and termination of coverage.

2. Drafting Group Formed

During the Professional Employer Organization Model Law (C) Working Group's June 10, 2006, meeting, it was suggested that a paper be developed to complement the anticipated adoption of the PEO Guidelines. The paper would be drafted to serve as a companion document to assist states, professional employer organizations, and the insurance industry in implementing a regulatory framework consistent with the PEO Guidelines.

The PEO Guidelines Implementation Paper Drafting Group (Drafting Group) was therefore formed during the June 2006 Working Group meeting for that purpose and was composed of the following regulator and interested party members: Bob Wake (Chair—ME), Alan Wickman (NE), Mona Carter (National Council on Compensation Insurance), and Bill Schilling (National Association of Professional Employer Organizations).

3. Parent Committee Charge Authorizing Project

The following is the Workers' Compensation (C) Task Force 2010 charge that pertains:

> Appoint a Professional Employer Organization Model Law Working Group to complete development of a paper to be of assistance to states in the implementation of the NAIC Guidelines for Regulations and Legislation on Workers' Compensation Coverage for Professional Employer Organization Arrangements (#1950); to coordinate with other NAIC groups on issues relating to professional employer organizations; and to follow changes in the professional employer organization marketplace. The Working Group is to report the results of their ongoing charge at each national meeting.

4. General Description of Drafting Process

The Drafting Group held its first conference call on Nov. 26, 2007, to review a draft outline of the proposed paper. The Drafting Subgroup's next conference call was held March 25, 2008, in which a number of specific drafting assignments were made to address identified issues. Subsequent Drafting Group conference calls were held on the following dates: Dec. 1, 2008; Feb. 19, 2009; March 17, 2009; April 14, 2009; May 12, 2009; June 1, 2009—in which drafting was completed.

[1] Name changed Sept. 22, 2005, from the Employee Leasing Model Laws (C) Working Group to the Professional Employer Organization Model Law (C) Working Group.

The Working Group first reviewed the draft, now titled "Implementation Commentary: Guidelines for Regulations and Legislation on Workers' Compensation Coverage for Professional Employer Organization Arrangements" (Implementation Commentary) during the NAIC 2009 Fall National Meeting. The Working Group determined in a Nov. 6, 2009, conference call that the draft Implementation Commentary should be moved to the Workers' Compensation (C) Task Force during the NAIC 2009 Winter National Meeting—to receive greater exposure.

During the Dec. 6, 2009, Workers' Compensation (C) Task Force meeting the draft "Implementation Commentary" was transferred to the Task Force's purview, with comments on it requested by Feb. 24, 2010. The exposure draft, dated Sept. 22, 2009, continued to remain[2] on the NAIC website under Committee & Activities/White Papers during this period and the draft was also distributed for any final comments to members, interested regulators, and interested parties of the NAIC/IAIABC Joint (C) Working Group and the Professional Employer Organization Model Law (C) Working Group.

Few comments were received during the comment period expiring Feb. 24, which were reviewed and considered, but no material changes made to the draft from that of its Sept. 22, 2009, version. Therefore, the Sept. 22, 2009, version was presented for consideration of adoption to the Workers' Compensation (C) Task Force during the NAIC 2010 Spring National Meeting, at which time the Task Force adopted the draft "Implementation Commentary" without changes. The Sept. 22, 2009, draft was next presented for consideration of adoption to the Property & Casualty Insurance (C) Committee on March 28, 2009—also adopted without change. The draft next is to go before the Executive/Plenary for consideration of adoption during the NAIC 2010 Summer National Meeting.

5. Project Description

The draft Implementation Commentary provides a framework for considering the PEO Guidelines and provides additional information concerning:

- The historical background of the PEO Guidelines, including an overview of PEO arrangements;
- Presents differences between the PEO Guidelines and earlier regulatory approaches;
- Discusses statutory and structural considerations for implementation; and
- Considers key issues that might be essential for successful implementation.

Each of its section titles alludes to the information found within. The section titles are the following:

- Executive Summary
- Section I: Historical Background of the Guidelines
- Section II: Some Legal Issues Relating to Implementation (existing law; key issues beyond the scope of the guidelines)
- Section III: Specific Issues Related to the Guidelines (see "Issues Identified" below)
- Conclusion
- Appendices (The PEO Guidelines; National Council on Compensation Insurance "Alternatives and Technical Supplement on Data Reporting")

6. Issues Identified

Among issues identified which were addressed in Section III of the draft "Implementation Commentary" were the following:

- ✓ Statutory-Regulatory Framework for PEOs
- ✓ Master Policies and Client-Level Experience Rating
- ✓ Lack of Coverage, Gaps in Coverage, and Proof of Coverage
- ✓ Notice and Cancellation of Coverage for PEOs and Clients
- ✓ Policy Forms
- ✓ Data Reporting
- ✓ Exclusive Remedy
- ✓ Residual Market Issues
- ✓ Pricing
- ✓ Improper Extensions of Coverage (Piggybacking)

[2] The Sept. 22, 2009, version of "Implementation Commentary" was originally placed on the NAIC website shortly after its drafting date.

- ✓ Self-Insurance
- ✓ Loss-Sensitive Coverage

7. Other Pertinent Information

The PEO business model for employment services outsourcing has continued to expand nationwide. Presently, there is a broad disparity among the states as to how PEO arrangements are being regulated. The existing statutory frameworks in some states might not directly or adequately address issues related to workers' compensation, while other states are devoid of any significant statutory provisions.

The PEO Guidelines are designed to provide the states with a possible regulatory framework for addressing the most significant workers' compensation issues that have arisen to date in PEO relationships, with an emphasis on a clear allocation of the respective rights and responsibilities of PEOs, clients, and insurers. The purpose of the "Implementation Commentary" is to provide additional insight from the work group that developed, through its drafting group, the guidelines.

The "Implementation Commentary" is to be a lead document, with the PEO Guidelines included as Appendix A. In this way it is believed the PEO Guidelines will be properly introduced and that the additional information provided may prove useful for successful implementation and oversight.

PROJECT HISTORY – 2007

WORKERS' COMPENSATION COVERAGE FOR PROFESSIONAL EMPLOYER ORGANIZATION ARRANGEMENTS MODEL REGULATION

1. Background

In 1991 the NAIC adopted an Employee Leasing Model Regulation and an Employee Leasing Registration Model Act. However, because of the evolution of this market over the intervening years, the Model Law Review (C) Working Group of the Workers' Compensation (C) Task Force had recommended in 2003 that these models be discontinued, noting that very few states had ever adopted them, and they had become considered seriously out of date. It was believed that only a complete rewrite should be considered. During the NAIC 2003 Winter National Meeting these two 1991 models were discontinued.

2. Working Group Formed

The Workers' Compensation (C) Task Force formed the Employee Leasing Model Laws (C) Working Group during the NAIC 2003 Winter National Meeting to consider the development of new model laws that would be appropriate for this market. On Sept. 22, 2005, the Workers' Compensation (C) Task Force changed the name of the Employee Leasing Model Laws (C) Working Group to the Professional Employer Organization Model Law (C) Working Group, since the term "employee leasing" was considered outdated in most states and the more contemporary term for these services was professional employer organization (PEO).

The following jurisdictions are currently members of the Professional Employer Organization Model Law (C) Working Group, chaired by Bob Wake (Maine): Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Florida, Kansas, Kentucky, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina, Utah, West Virginia, and Wisconsin.

3. Parent Committee Charge Authorizing Project

The following is the Workers' Compensation (C) Task Force 2004 charge that pertains:

> Appoint an Employee Leasing Model Law Working Group to develop new employee leasing/professional employer organization model laws that address issues presented in the June 2002 NAIC "Report on Employee Leasing and Professional Employer Organizations" in addition to later credible concerns. The new model laws are to be designed to replace the previous two NAIC model laws on this subject adopted by the NAIC in 1991: Employee Leasing Model Regulation; Employee Leasing Registration Model Act. Make final recommendations for adoption of the new model laws by the NAIC 2005 Fall National Meeting. Report the results of this ongoing charge on a quarterly basis.

4. General Description of Drafting Process

The Professional Employer Organization Model Law (C) Working Group began to assess current PEO regulatory issues during its first conference call, held Feb. 10, 2004. In developing the new model regulation, the Working Group frequently referenced the "Report on Employee Leasing and Professional Employer Organizations," which was developed through the NAIC/IAIABC Joint (C) Working Group and adopted by the NAIC in June 2002.

The Report on Employee Leasing and Professional Employer Organizations dealt primarily with the ramifications of the "master policy" framework for workers' compensation insurance coverage. A master policy arrangement is typically characterized by an insurer issuing a single policy covering the employees of all of its clients (employers), including the internal employees of the master policyholder. In most states, the voluntary market allows for master policies to be written at the insurer's discretion. However, in the residual market each client is required to be insured under a separate insurance policy, referred to as a "multiple coordinated" policy arrangement. A multiple coordinated policy arrangement is characterized by having an insurer issue separate policies, with common policy administration and renewal date, to each client company. The multiple coordinated policy approach raises fewer regulatory problems, but places more administrative burden on insurers and PEOs.

The 1991 models were considered out-of-date by the Professional Employer Organization Model Law (C) Working Group primarily because of their emphasis on residual market issues with only secondarily attention to master policy concerns. The Working Group reviewed the two discontinued models for areas in need of improvement. The Working Group made the decision that the new model should pertain only to workers' compensation, rather than including other insurance lines or non-insurance issues. In developing the draft model, the Working Group obtained information (e.g., charts; surveys; other organization model acts) and comments from a wide number of sources, which included most notably the following: interested insurance regulators that were not members of the Working Group; the International Association of Industrial Accident Boards & Commissions; the National Association of Professional Employer Organizations; and the National Council on Compensation Insurance (NCCI). Additionally, industry responses to PEO questions asked by the Working Group were obtained through an informal ad hoc gathering of various trade associations under the leadership of the Property Casualty Insurers Association of America.

Because of the volume of comments and the importance and complexity of the issues, the Working Group did not adopt the PEO Model Regulation, to be titled the "Workers' Compensation Coverage for Professional Employer Organization Arrangements Model Regulation," until the NAIC 2006 Winter National Meeting held in San Antonio, Texas. The draft model regulation required some significant changes from status quo in regard to how coverage is documented under master policies, how some statistics are to be reported, including those for proof-of-coverage, and how experience rating might be utilized. However, the Working Group believed that dynamic changes were needed to find a way to effectively regulate PEOs in today's marketplace, which encompasses master policies and multiple coordinated policies.

The Workers' Compensation (C) Task Force also considered the PEO Model Regulation for adoption during the NAIC 2006 Winter National Meeting but determined that more time was needed for public exposure, due to revisions to the draft shortly before its Working Group adoption. However, the Task Force and the Property and Casualty Insurance (C) Committee did adopt the March 11, 2007, draft PEO Model Regulation, without changes, during the NAIC 2007 Spring National Meeting.

General Description of Due Process

The Working Group held 17 conference calls and/or meetings since it conducted its first conference call on Feb. 10, 2004. All conference calls and meetings were open, except for one executive session meeting held on Dec. 5, 2004. Additionally, from Feb. 20, 2004, through March 11, 2007, a dozen drafts of the PEO Model Regulation had been circulated at different times to members and interested parties for comment.

5. Project Description

The draft NAIC PEO Model Regulation was developed to ensure that the following occurs:

- PEOs and their clients properly obtain workers' compensation insurance coverage.
- Premiums paid are to be commensurate with anticipated claims experience.
- Coverage would need to be obtained for all employees—including both direct hire employees and persons employed under PEO agreements.
- Appropriate procedural frameworks would be in place for the inception, continuation, and termination of coverage.

Each of its section titles alludes to the comprehensive information found within. The section titles are the following:

- Section 1: Authority and Purpose
- Section 2: Definitions
- Section 3: Insurance Coverage on PEO Co-Employees
- Section 4: Requirements for PEOs
- Section 5: Multiple Coordinated Policy Agreement
- Section 6: [Option One] Coverage in the Residual Market
- [Option Two] Coverage by the [Statutory Carrier of Last Resort]
- Section 7: Policy Issuance
- Section 8: Premium Payments
- Section 9: Verification of Classifications and Payroll
- Section 10: Policy Cancellation or Non-renewal
- Section 11: Statistical Reporting and Experience Rating
- Section 12: Interstate Coverage
- Section 13: Confidentiality
- Section 14: Remedies
- Section 15: Effective Date

6. Significant Issues Raised

Among key issues identified were the following:

- Experience rating, including but not limited to modification laundering. The primary issues motivating the old model laws continued to be identified as a significant problem both by regulators and the NCCI.

- The need for certainty regarding who is insured, who is the insurer, when coverage begins and ends, and how this is verified with the appropriate regulators.

- Ensuring that all affected parties receive the information they need, and that there is due process before coverage is terminated and adequate opportunity to shop for replacement coverage. Affected parties are PEOs, clients, insurers, statistical organizations, claimants, insurance regulators, and workers' compensation regulators.

- Appropriate procedures in place to deal with insolvencies and the threat of insolvency, and to minimize the risk of harm to claimants and PEO clients.

- Piggybacking: A situation where several PEOs are listed as clients on another PEO's policy and coverage is provided through a master policy.

- Coverage for Direct Hire Employees. A "direct hire employee" of a client or a PEO means an individual who is an employee within the meaning of the Workers' Compensation Act and who is not a PEO co-employee as defined in Section 2, Subsection J of the draft.

- Responsible Party for the Premium. Should the client pay the PEO a fee in exchange for the PEO being responsible for payment of the insurance company premium that provides the client coverage?

- The "unknown employee" exposure. This exposure exists when the client does not have any coverage of its own because it intended to cover its entire workforce through the PEO. However, someone unexpectedly files a claim as an employee of the client—either because the claimant was a new employee who has not yet established a documented relationship with the PEO, or because the claimant was regarded by the client as an independent contractor.

7. Other Pertinent Information

- National Conference of Insurance Legislators (NCOIL) Draft PEO Model Act

NCOIL has been developing its own PEO Model Act. However, the NCOIL model is not expected to be as broad in scope as the draft PEO Model Regulation produced by the Professional Employer Organization Model Law (C) Working Group. During the NAIC 2007 Spring National Meeting the Workers' Compensation (C) Task Force formed the NCOIL PEO Model Focus Group, composed of members who were most involved with PEO activities. The purpose of the NCOIL PEO Model Focus Group was to provide comments regarding the recent NCOIL draft for delivery to that organization by its deadline date of March 30, 2007. The comments were submitted by that date. NCOIL next plans to make a decision on its model during the NCOIL Summer Meeting, to be held in Seattle, Washington from July 19—22, 2007. NCOIL is an organization of state legislators whose primary focus is insurance legislation and regulation.

- Complementary Paper

During the Professional Employer Organization Model Law (C) Working Group's June 10, 2006, meeting, a suggestion was made for a paper to be developed to complement an adopted NAIC PEO Model Regulation. The intent of the paper (not anticipated to be a white paper) would be to help states determine law changes that need to be made and to indicate whether insurers, bureaus and PEOs are ready to handle the data and other needs addressed in the model. The Working Group agreed to develop such a paper and therefore plans to continue meeting after adoption of the model.

GUIDELINES FOR THE FILING OF WORKERS' COMPENATION "LARGE DEDUCTIBLE" POLICIES & PROGRAMS

Background: For an exhaustive treatment of large deductible workers' compensation insurance, see the NAIC/IAIABC white paper, Workers' Compensation Large Deductible Study. The intent of these guidelines is to give states suggested approval guidelines for large deductible policies and programs that are consistent with that detailed study, and to give a few comments on the reasoning behind some of them. Unfortunately, the Large Deductible Study has become dated in some respects (TPA-related matters being the prime example), which means that the reader should supplement that background material with a review of relevant NAIC activity since then.

Status of these "Guidelines": During the time that these guidelines were under development, the NAIC decided that issues previously being addressed through the adoption of model laws and regulations would instead be addressed by the adoption of "guidelines" if there was not a widespread feeling among NAIC membership that the NAIC should strongly encourage adoption by the states of the law or regulation on a uniform basis. Accordingly, many items that were previously under development as model laws or regulations were reclassified as "guidelines." This document, however, was never intended for adoption as a regulation or law ("model" or otherwise). Rather, it was (and is) intended to be adapted by the individual state to its laws and then to become part of the state's (often informal) set of published approval standards. While parts of this document may cause a state to consider law changes, no attempt is contained herein to draft any suggested statutes or regulations.

Conformance to State Laws: As referenced in the preceding paragraph, the suggested requirements will need to be modified by individual states as necessary to conform to specific state laws. For instance, some states have laws that restrict the eligibility of some employers for these programs, or that prescribe deductible amounts, or that require specific forms, or that require or prescribe collateralization. Particularly in light of the disfavor with which so-called "desk drawer rules" are viewed, individual states are encouraged to add or delete material from this document in order to make their own review guidelines consistent with the individual state's laws. Each state is then encouraged to make its version of this document freely available through whatever means that the state uses to communicate its approval standards.

Situations in which these guidelines are most likely to require amendment include (a) if state law requires the employer to post collateral in order to obtain large deductible coverage; (b) if state law allows insured employers to self-administer claims or to have any formal right to deny or protest claims; (c) if state law includes PEO provisions that may require amendment of these guidelines where they refer to a PEO; (d) if state law restricts the sale of large deductible coverage to employers of a minimum size or has other requirements of a similar nature, (e) if state law has rate filing requirements or restrictions on allowable rates, and (f) if state law has provisions relating to TPAs, which are likely to vary from state to state especially as/if/when TPA-related laws are revised to recognize workers' compensation. This list is not intended to be all-inclusive. Typically, states are well aware of unique provisions in their laws that would give rise to exceptions.

Deductible size: These approval standards and other requirements have only been written to apply to so-called "large" deductibles, not to small deductibles allowed (or required in some cases) as an option by some states' laws. While there is no attempt in this document to distinguish these "small" deductibles from "large" deductibles, there is generally a clear distinction in the marketplace. "Small" deductibles are typically no more than $5000 or $10,000 and may be for medical losses only. "Large" deductibles are typically at least $100,000 (although some states have approved "large" deductibles as low as $25,000), and $1,000,000 deductibles are not uncommon. They will always or almost always apply to combined medical and indemnity losses.

Rates & statistical reporting: These guidelines do not address rate filing requirements. Each state will need to review its own laws to determine applicable rate filing standards and requirements. These guidelines do, however, recognize that accurate statistical reporting is essential to the integrity of the ratemaking process, and one of the objectives of these requirements is to ensure that experience incurred under these policies can be reported to the NCCI or other state bureau on a basis that preserves information on classifications, payroll and total losses.

– Suggested Filing Requirements –

(1) Insurers are neither obligated to offer large deductible policies, nor to offer them to all customers in all amounts that the insurer might file or that these guidelines might allow.

(2) Under a large deductible policy, the insurer (or TPA on its behalf) must handle the defense and settlement of all claims as if no deductible applies. The policy must provide that the insurer shall pay all deductible amounts directly to the person or health care provider entitled to the benefit pursuant to the law, with deductible amounts paid by the insured employer to the insurer or its TPA. The insurer's obligation to pay claims shall not be eliminated if the employer fails in its obligations to reimburse the insurer or its TPA. Termination of the policy only terminates the insurer's obligation for injuries incurred after the policy period, and shall not affect obligations for injuries prior to the cancellation or expiration of the policy.

(3) All costs borne by the employer must be in the form of payments to the insurer or its TPA. The employer must not pay anything to claimants, doctors, attorneys or any entity other than the insurer or its TPA to settle workers' compensation obligations or to pay for associated settlement costs. (State exceptions may occur with "first aid" costs or in the occasional instance where the policyholder is a hospital or has the capability to provide emergency on-site treatment for injuries.)

(4) Rights of the employer to contest, control, approve or disapprove claim settlements must be consistent with those allowed by state insurance and workers' compensation laws. In many or most states, such rights are limited or do not exist. Provisions that appear to give the employer additional rights to control, approve or disapprove payments or settlements should not be allowed when they conflict with state law, either in policies or in TPA agreements. (Explanation: Applicability of these statements will depend upon state law. In a number of states, the workers' compensation law gives the employer some ability to dispute a workers' compensation claim that its insurer intends to pay. Even in such states, however, an endorsement to this effect is usually unnecessary as this right vests to the employer without any policy endorsement being necessary. As such, provisions of this nature are generally discouraged because, if they are not illegal, then they are probably unnecessary.) The comments in this section are not intended to preclude an insurer or TPA from agreeing with the policyholder to provide detailed or extensive claim reporting or notification procedures, as long as those procedures are not inconsistent with state law. It is not unreasonable to expect large policyholders to want more frequent reporting with greater detail than is common with small policyholders that only have infrequent claims.

(5) Given the likelihood that many policyholders will not have a detailed knowledge of state law and interpretations thereof, it is strongly advisable that contracts include specific language complying with items (2), (3) and (4), to ensure that these items are clearly understood, rather than relying on the statutory obligations of the insurer or a generic conformance clause.

(6) Prompt payment of all amounts owed to the insurer is one of the policyholder's most important contractual obligations. Some of the states that allow relatively quick (e.g., ten days) cancellation for nonpayment of premium explicitly recognize nonpayment of a deductible reimbursement as a ground for accelerated cancellation on the same basis. In states without explicit provisions in their laws to address nonpayment of deductible reimbursements, this should be viewed as a ground for cancellation under laws permitting cancellation for "substantial breach of contractual duties" or similar statutory language. It is also recommended that states allow the insurer to have the right to offset unpaid deductible amounts against unearned premiums, if any, in the event of cancellation of the policy.

(7) Coverage written under these forms is customarily considered workers' compensation coverage for Annual Statement reporting, workers' compensation law, and insurance laws. It is not necessary that these items be mentioned in a manual page for the insurer, but nothing should be approved that states or suggests otherwise.

(8) Typically, large deductible policies will be developed by the attachment of a large deductible endorsement to an otherwise standard workers' compensation policy. Large deductible policies are still considered statutory policies (as opposed to excess workers' compensation policies, which are written for approved self-insureds, and are typically not considered statutory policies), so the large deductible endorsement must not purport to negate any statutorily required provisions. Should an insurer file an entire large deductible policy form, instead of an endorsement, the regulator must take care to see that all statutory provisions are included.

(9) The policy must specify the nature of the losses for which the employer must reimburse the insurer, or reimburse the TPA on the insurer's behalf. The deductible amount may be any one of the following:

(a) Benefits only;

(b) The sum of benefits and actual LAE or ALAE; or

(c) Benefits only, but the employer is liable to reimburse actual LAE or ALAE in addition to the deductible applying to the benefits.

(d) Any reasonable pro-ration of LAE or ALAE between the insurer and the employer is acceptable.

Employers' liability coverage may be included with any of the above. (Some state laws may not allow all of these options and this language will then need to be restricted accordingly.)

(10) The policy must specify whether the deductible is per-person or per-accident. The most common form of deductible (per-accident for accidental injury and per-person for disease) is acceptable; unique proposals should be considered on their merits.

(11) Even in states that otherwise exempt large deductible workers' compensation insurance from rate filing requirements, manual pages and/or other documentation should be filed to assure that policies are written in accordance with these guidelines and any specific state laws. Individual risk filings should not be necessary and are not recommended.

(12) Some states have laws, regulations or other practices that exempt policyholders of a certain size or premium from various aspects of form or rate regulation. In these states, it is likely that most or all large deductible policyholders will qualify. When exemptions from form approval apply, care should be taken that these exemptions may not be used to evade or alter the statutory requirements for workers' compensation policies. In particular, policyholders and insurers may not be given the ability to reduce benefits in any way, and employers may not be given rights to adjust or administer claims, nor to control a TPA or adjuster, except to the limited extent as may be permitted under Items 25 and 26.

This recommendation is not intended to imply that that states should limit large risk flexibilities otherwise granted for workers' compensation rates or premium payment provisions. To the contrary, Item 21 in these guidelines recommends that states grant policyholders and insurers considerable flexibility in the negotiation of collateral and deposit arrangements.

(13) Policy rating must preserve and use usual payroll and classification information and require the use of audited payrolls after policy expiration. In other words, rating that does not use standard workers' compensation rating classifications and actual audited payrolls should not be allowed. The reason for this is to preserve data and data quality associated with these policies. Although it is typically not necessary for the large deductible endorsement or manual pages to mention this, all deductible losses, including those that are reimbursed by the employer, are still reported to the bureau and used for experience rating purposes. Anything in a filing that appears to allow the non-reporting of losses should be disapproved.

(14) An insurer may offer an endorsement to limit the aggregate amount to be reimbursed by the employer under the deductible provision due to claims arising during the policy period. This coverage must be included on the same policy as the rest of the workers' compensation coverage, and not offered as a separate policy.

The reason for this recommendation is that this separate policy would probably be reported as liability insurance and not as workers' compensation, and various assessment bases for residual markets and other compensation-specific assessments would be adversely and unfairly affected. It follows that exceptions to this recommended disapproval policy could be considered if RMLs are minimal or not applicable for a state, and the state has assessment mechanisms for workers' compensation that use something other than net premiums. Exceptions might also be considered for so-called "basket aggregate" policies when the rules filed with the program provide assurance that the net workers' compensation large deductible premium will be much larger than the charge for expected workers' compensation losses under the "basket aggregate" policy.

(15) If aggregate stop-loss protection is provided, the policy must provide for proration of any aggregate retention limits in the event of cancellation by the insurer unless the aggregate limits are a function of the audited exposure. However, the policy may state that proration of the aggregate retention limit will not occur in the event of cancellation due to nonpayment or other serious breach of contract. These "serious breaches" would need to be detailed in the cancellation provisions. (Explanation: Without this provision, an insurer that cancels a policy mid-term, as it neared the aggregate limit, would avoid providing the coverage that the employer had paid for when it purchased an aggregate maximum limit.)

(16) The manual rules must state that coverage is to be provided only when the financial impact of the retention amount (that is, the effect of the deductible, subject to any aggregate provided on the policy) will remain uninsured by the policyholder. That is, anything that appears to involve so-called "deductible reimbursement policies" or that otherwise insures these same exposures should be questioned and not approved. "Deductible reimbursement policies" applying to workers' compensation insurance should also be disapproved, but fully addressing this problem goes beyond the scope of the workers' compensation form approval process, as insurers in the past have used surplus lines or health insurers to write this coverage to avoid this prohibition. The application of this section is not, however, intended to prohibit:

(a) An employer from procuring unreinsured deductible reimbursement insurance from a valid captive insurance arrangement,

(b) A bona fide loss portfolio transfer policy, where an insurer picks up a book of unpaid past incurred claims on a one-time basis, or

(c) A surety bond purchased at arms' length from an unaffiliated insurer used to guarantee reimbursement of claims paid by the insurer under a large deductible arrangement. (A surety bond of this nature purchased from an affiliated insurer would not be a meaningful transfer of credit risk and could be used to "play games.")

(Explanation: The story here is a bit complex, but the primary reason for this guideline is to avoid arbitrage, where an insurer and/or employer may be able to obtain a more favorable treatment for taxes or assessments by using the large deductible policy as a façade. Other reasons for disapproval of this practice includes the harm that this practice can have on financial and statistical reporting, and the potential use of this device as a means to avoid regulation. Readers who are not familiar with the reasons why these situations need to be avoided are advised to read the relevant sections of the full Study.)

(17) Provisions that would allow the insurer to cancel the large deductible endorsement, but otherwise keep the policy in force and cause the policy to revert to a "guaranteed cost" contract, should be unacceptable unless there is agreement from the employer. However, provisions similar to retro provisions dealing with employer insolvency may be included in the policy, and can be extended to nonpayment situations. Such provisions could allow an insurer to value all claims on an incurred basis for the purpose of making a claim against a financially distressed employer's LOC, surety bond, or receiver.

(18) (This section only applies to states that utilize loss-based assessments.) Difficulties are likely to arise when an insurer wishes to recoup loss-based assessments from the policyholder on a dollar-for-dollar basis. While this is fair in principle, it can become very complicated to apply correctly, especially if such assessments are not uniform percentages collected year after year. For an assessment on paid losses that is levied on a sporadic basis, a proper assessment technique would require:

(a) The insurer would wait until after the end of each year – which would be after the time that it would have otherwise billed for most of the losses,

(b) The insurer would then determine whether a loss-based assessment is being made,

(c) The insurer would then apply the tax rate to all paid losses during the prior year and,

(d) Then, long after the policyholder has reimbursed the insurer for the losses, the insurer would bill for the tax.

Thus, for states where assessments on paid losses are not the same percentage year after year, it would be much easier to simply add an additional amount to the premium for an average amount of loss-based assessments and not charge for actual assessments. In addition to being reasonably fair, this procedure will also be far simpler from a billing and statistical reporting standpoint.

(19) The premium tax status of policyholder payments (i.e., whether they are considered taxable as premiums or not) is the subject of state law or interpretations of state law, and should typically not be part of a rate or form filing. Accordingly, reviewers should be alert to anything in a filing that appears to be an attempt to shelter payments by the policyholder from premium taxes or workers' compensation assessments. The total cost to the policyholder of the set of agreements constituting the large deductible arrangement is premium, except to the extent that the law clearly provides that certain payments may legally be considered as something other than premiums. This exception will almost always include reimbursements for losses paid. In some states, it may also apply to loss adjustment and other administrative expenses paid to the TPA, but it will rarely, if ever, include payments such as reimbursements of taxes or assessments by the policyholder. Reports have been received, however, of policyholders seeking to shelter other payments, and analysts should be aware of this possibility within the context of their specific state's laws.

(20) A few states require insurers to obtain collateral from policyholders to assure that the insurer will eventually be reimbursed as losses are paid. Even in states without such requirements, however, it is an unusual account where the insurer does not require collateral of some nature to assure that it will be reimbursed for loss payments. The reason for these requirements and practices is that, if the policyholder becomes bankrupt, the insurer will still be obligated to provide full statutory benefits to injured workers, even if it will not be reimbursed for those claim payments. Thus, it is only prudent for an insurer to protect itself against the possibility of policyholder insolvency or noncompliance.

Collateral and prefunding arrangements, when they exist, are a substantial part of the total agreement between the policyholder and the insurer. A collateral agreement makes no sense without an accompanying coverage agreement, and the insurer will usually not agree to provide coverage without an accompanying collateral agreement. It can therefore be argued that the entirety of such collateral agreements should be considered part of the insurance policy and thus be subjected to state laws requiring the filing of insurance policies and all endorsements and amendments thereto.

Deeming the collateral agreements to be subject to filing requirements would, however, be awkward. Collateral agreements will often involve a third party (e.g., a bank) and may sometimes relate to more than a single workers' compensation policy written for a period of one year. The same statement is true for prepayment arrangements.

It is therefore recommended, instead of applying state form filing laws to the collateral or prepayment agreements themselves, that when such arrangements exist, a reference to the insurers' collateral or prepayment requirements should be a required part of the large deductible endorsement. The primary reason for this recommendation is practicality, and not a lack of regulatory authority in this area. This recommendation differs from the Large Deductible Study, which would have applied form filing laws to collateral agreements, though frequently subject to large risk exemptions.

While the non-filing of collateral agreements should generally cause few problems, the situation would be very different if an insurer attempted to change premium calculations or to amend cancellation or other policy provisions through provisions contained in collateral agreements – or in any other side agreement, for that matter. The policy should constitute the entire contract of insurance between the policyholder and the insurer, and an allowance for separate collateral agreements can only be acceptable if insurers keep these agreements limited to the details of handling the policyholder's collateral.

In summary, as long as no problems arise to cause the regulator to change this approach, this document recommends:

(a) Exempt the collateral agreement from form filing requirements, regardless of the size of risk, but only if the scope of the collateral agreement is narrowly confined to the handling and maintenance of collateral. If the insurer wants the collateral agreement to cover more than that, then it will need to be filed.

(b) When collateral is required, the large deductible endorsement must refer to the existence of the collateral agreement and provide that collateral must be maintained in accordance with that agreement.

At this writing, problems and abuses in this area do not appear to be a subject of significant complaints. Should problems develop in the future, or should states have requirements or limitations regarding collateral agreements that they wish to apply, then the best recourse may be a requirement for these to be mentioned in the insurer's accompanying manual pages. Rulemaking authority may be another possible alternative to the application of form filing laws.

(21) As just discussed, it is common and prudent for an insurer to require collateral when writing a large deductible policy. The amount, adequacy, and especially any lack of collateral are important concerns for actuaries and financial examiners that are evaluating the liabilities of an insurer. Notwithstanding the importance of collateral, this document recommends that states not require insurers' large deductible filings to include a requirement that collateral be posted unless the state has a law to this effect. Presumably, an insurer would only write a large deductible account without collateral in return for a higher price or for accounts (e.g., a governmental entity) where the chance of default was believed to be remote. This is not to discourage an insurer's filing from including a requirement for collateral, only to note that such a requirement should not be a condition for approval unless the state has a law to this effect.

(22) Even when not required by state law, states may wish to consider minimum standard premium size, payroll, net worth, or other provisions of this nature for risks to be written on a large deductible policy. If states implement such minimums, it is recommended that they also consider accompanying exceptions for policyholders that post adequate collateral (e.g., no less than the amount of the deductible, although insurers may routinely require greater amounts of collateral).

(23) If the insurer making the large deductible filing is owned or controlled by a large employer in the state, then careful consideration should be given to disapproving any large deductible filing for the insurer unless its manual rules include a provision that it will not write large deductible coverage for that employer or an affiliated entity without adequate, high-quality security. The reason for this admonition is that it would otherwise be possible for the insurer and the employer or affiliated entity to accumulate substantial unfunded liabilities and, should the employer become bankrupt, then the affiliated insurer would likely become bankrupt as well, leaving the state's guaranty fund to pay the losses. This potential concern may be especially strong if the entity involved is a PEO, as the exposure of a PEO can change significantly on short notice when clients are added, a bankrupt PEO's assets are likely to fall well short, and the client employers will typically not be (and should not be) obligated to reimburse the guaranty funds for obligations of the PEO's estate.

(24) As referenced above, unique issues arise when the policyholder on a large deductible policy is a PEO. While agreements between the PEO and its clients are beyond the scope of a policy filing or the filing of manual rules, nothing contained in the policy or in the manual rules should permit or imply that, in the event that the PEO becomes unable to reimburse losses paid by the insurer, that the clients of the PEO will then become liable to reimburse these losses. This would not be appropriate because of the nature of the PEO-client relationship and because individual clients of the PEO are typically not going to be of sufficient size that they can assume the size of losses that are involved with a large deductible.

(25) Policies written for a policyholder with a contract or agreement with a TPA must be endorsed to reflect the existence of this agreement. At a minimum, this endorsement must: name the TPA; include the responsibility (if any) of the policyholder to pay the TPA; identify the insurer's ability to terminate the TPA agreement; state that the policyholder cannot switch TPAs without the prior consent of the insurer; and provide for actions in case of nonpayment or policyholder default.

(26) The insurer must still be responsible for setting claims handling standards if it uses a TPA or an independent adjuster to handle claims. Except in states that provide that insured employers may adjust claims, a large deductible policy should not be used to give the employer the ability to adjust its own claims. (Limited exceptions may be considered with the agreement of the state's workers' compensation commission, but it is unlikely that state workers' compensation commissions will have much interest in approving exceptions. A possible exception may involve policyholders that had recently been approved self-insurers, but are now purchasing insurance. The workers' compensation commission may approve such an exception to ease the transition for the formerly self-insured employer.)

GUIDELINES FOR THE FILING OF WORKERS' COMPENSATION "LARGE DEDUCTIBLE" POLICIES AND PROGRAMS

What are the state pages?

This chart is intended to provide readers with additional information to more easily access state statutes, regulations, bulletins or administrative rulings related to the NAIC guideline. Such guidance provides readers with a starting point from which they may review how each state has addressed the model and the topic being covered.

How do you use them?

States and territories are listed alphabetically in the chart. Locate the state or territory you are interested in to find a citation; to perform further research, use the citations to locate state laws.

Who do I speak to if I have questions?

If you have questions or believe information related to a state should be updated, please contact Jennifer Neuerburg at jneuerburg@naic.org.

Disclaimer: This chart does not constitute a formal legal opinion by the NAIC staff on the provisions of state law and should not be relied upon as such. Nor does this state page reflect a determination as to whether a state meets any applicable accreditation standards. Every effort has been made to provide correct and accurate summaries to assist readers in locating useful information. Readers should consult state law for further details and for the most current information.

PROJECT HISTORY – 2008

GUIDELINES FOR THE FILING OF WORKERS' COMPENSATION "LARGE DEDUCTIBLE" POLICIES & PROGRAMS (#1970)

1. Background

The Workers' Compensation Large Deductible Study was developed through the NAIC/IAIABC Joint (C) Working Group. The Study was adopted by the NAIC in March 2006. The purpose of the Study was to inform regulators on current workers' compensation large deductible issues and provide findings and recommendations in regard to these issues. There were 17 Findings and Recommendations identified.

Finding and Recommendation No. 5 stated that insurance departments should review their large deductible approval standards and procedures to assure that undesirable practices are not allowed owing to regulatory loopholes, shortcomings in regulatory oversight, or a lack of clarity in the applicable law. The white paper therefore recommended that the Workers' Compensation (C) Task Force be charged to develop approval guidelines for large deductible policies.

Large deductible policies came into existence during the workers' compensation market crisis in the late 1980s and early 1990s. Today, large deductible policies are a major factor in the workers' compensation marketplace. Large deductibles represent an intermediate economic strategy between self-insurance and complete loss transfer to an insurer. Above a deductible threshold, the large deductible policy protects the employer from catastrophic losses. Below the threshold, the policy protects workers from the risk that the employer will default on its share of claims obligations.

The insurer of a large deductible policy makes the same unconditional promise made by all workers' compensation insurers—that all valid claims arising out of injuries occurring within the policy period will be paid according to state benefit laws. This "first-dollar liability" of the insurer distinguishes deductible policies from excess policies. Workers' compensation excess policies are intended for use only by authorized self-insurers, in which the insurer is only liable (to the employer, not the employee) for claims in excess of a specified attachment point.

The distinction between large deductibles and small deductibles is hypothetically only a difference of degree. Usually, however, the marketplace does draw a line because the two products are geared to different markets and, where permitted by state law, large deductibles tend to be very large (i.e., $100,000 often is the low end of the range).

2. Formation and Charge of Working Group

The Large Deductible Study Implementation (C) Working Group was formed by the Workers' Compensation (C) Task Force during the NAIC 2006 Spring National Meeting. The following Task Force charge encompassed the Working Group's activities:

> Appoint a Large Deductible Study Implementation (C) Working Group to assure that the charges presented in the Findings and Recommendations of the NAIC Workers' Compensation Large Deductible Study are properly completed.

As part of this charge, the Working Group held its first conference call on April 19, 2006, to consider how best to fulfill Recommendation No. 5 of the Workers' Compensation Large Deductible Study by developing approval guidelines for large deductible policies.

3. Working Group Members

The following states are currently members of the Working Group, with Nebraska serving as its chair: Alaska, Arkansas, California, Illinois, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Missouri, Nevada, New York, Oklahoma, and West Virginia.

4. General Description of Drafting Process

The meetings and conference calls of the Working Group have all been open. Drafts of the study were regularly circulated to members and interested parties for comment. The intent of the guidelines was to give states suggested approval guidelines for large deductible policies and programs that are in general consistent with the Workers' Compensation Large Deductible Study.

The suggested requirements were drafted with the intent to allow individual states to modify, when necessary, to conform to specific state laws. The guidelines were to neither address nor propose rate filing requirements, nor propose that rating plans be filed. The suggested filing requirements therefore pertain to large deductible form filings. However, a primary objective of these requirements is that experience incurred under these policies be reported to the statistical agent on a basis that preserves information on classifications, payroll and total losses.

5. Project Description

The final draft of the Guidelines for the Filing of Workers' Compensation "Large Deductible" Policies & Programs (Large Deductible Guidelines) consists of introductory material followed by 26 Suggested Filing Requirements.

The introductory material mentions that during the time these guidelines were being developed, the NAIC decided that issues previously being addressed through adoption of model laws and model regulations will instead be addressed by the adoption of guidelines if there is not a widespread feeling among NAIC members that the NAIC should strongly encourage adoption by the states on a uniform basis. This document, however, was never intended for adoption as a model law or regulation, but rather was intended as a set of guidelines for use by the individual states. While parts of this document may cause a state to consider law changes, no attempt was made to draft any suggested statutes or regulations. Additionally, this document encourages each state to make its version of the Large Deductible Guidelines freely available through whatever means that the state uses to communicate its approval standards.

Below are some excerpts from the Suggested Filing Requirements:

- Insurers are neither obligated to offer large deductible policies, nor to offer them to all customers in all amounts that the insurer might file or that these guidelines might allow.

- Typically, large deductible policies will be developed by the attachment of a large deductible endorsement to an otherwise standard workers' compensation policy. Large deductible policies are still considered statutory policies, so the large deductible endorsement must not purport to negate any statutorily required provisions. Should an insurer file an entire large deductible policy form, instead of an endorsement, the regulator must take care to see that all statutory provisions are included.

- Policies written for a policyholder with a contract or agreement with a third party administrator (TPA) must be endorsed to reflect the existence of this agreement.

- The insurer must still be responsible for setting claims handling standards if it uses a TPA or an independent adjuster to handle claims.

6. Issues Raised

The Working Group discussed in detail a number of the suggested filing requirements before final changes were made. In particular, much discussion centered on how best to handle collateral requirements, professional employer organization (PEO) issues, and TPA issues pertinent to large deductible filings.

A number of jurisdictional approaches for workers' compensation large deductible filing review were examined, which included those applied in the following states: Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, and Texas. The Working Group also consulted with the International Association of Industrial Accident Boards and Commissions (IAIABC) regarding various aspects of the document—primarily in regard to TPA large deductible concerns.

7. Group Adoptions

The May 16, 2008, draft Large Deductible Guidelines was unanimously adopted by the Working Group during its May 22, 2008 conference call. Both regulators and interested parties present expressed satisfaction with the final draft. The Workers' Compensation (C) Task Force and the Property & Casualty Insurance (C) Committee adopted the Large Deductible Guidelines during the NAIC 2008 Summer National Meeting held in San Francisco, California.

8. Other Pertinent Information

In further fulfillment of its charge, the Working Group is currently drafting TPA Guidelines, which revise the current NAIC model covering this same subject, except the revision will allow states to include workers' compensation within the scope of the law.

GUIDELINE FOR ADMINISTRATION OF LARGE DEDUCTIBLE POLICIES IN RECEIVERSHIP

Table of Contents

Drafting Note: Having the necessary statutory authority specific to large deductible workers' compensation products in receiverships is key to the successful resolution of these insurers. There are currently two statutory authority options available, and there are differences across states as to which authority has been adopted: 1) Section 712 of the NAIC Insurer Receivership Model Act (#555—IRMA), Administration of Loss Reimbursement Policies; and 2) the National Conference of Insurance Guaranty Funds (NCIGF) Model Large Deductible Legislation, Administration of Large Deductible Policies and Insured Large Deductible Collateral. Both provide statutory guidance that articulates the respective rights and responsibilities of the various parties, which greatly enhance a state's ability to manage complex large deductible programs in liquidation. Generally, both approaches provide for the collection of reimbursements, resolve disputes over who gets the reimbursements and ensure that the claimants are paid. The provisions in each of the two options generally complement each other, except for conflicting provisions regarding the issue of the ultimate ownership of, and entitlement to, the deductible recoveries and large deductible collateral as between the estate and the guaranty association. The issue is whether the guaranty associations, on behalf of the claimants, are entitled to any deductible reimbursements or whether they are a general estate asset that is shared pro rata by the guaranty associations and the uncovered claimants.

As of the drafting of this Guideline, the NCIGF model approach has been adopted by several states using varying language. However, the NCIGF model has evolved over time based on additional experiences from insolvencies and the NCIGF continues to modify its model as warranted. The NAIC has developed the following Guideline based largely on the principles and structure of the NCIGF model with certain modifications made by the NAIC Large Deductible Workers' Compensation (E) Working Group of the Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force. The following statutory language is not an amendment to the NAIC receivership models but is intended as a Guideline for use by states as an alternative to IRMA Section 712, Administration of Loss Reimbursement Policies.

This Guideline shall apply to workers' compensation large deductible policies issued by an insurer subject to delinquency proceedings under [insert cite to state's receivership statute]. Large deductible policies shall be administered in accordance with their terms, except to the extent such terms conflict with this Guideline. This Guideline does not apply to policies where the insurer has no liability for the portion of a claim that is within the deductible or self-insured retention.

Section 1. Definitions

For purposes of this Guideline:

A. "Large deductible policy" means any combination of one or more workers' compensation policies and endorsements and contracts or security agreements entered into between an insured and the insurer in which the insured has agreed with the insurer to:

(1) Pay directly the initial portion of any claim covered under the policy up to a specified dollar amount which the insurer would otherwise be obligated to pay, or the expenses related to any claim; or

(2) Reimburse the insurer for its payment of any claim or related expenses under the policy up to the specified dollar amount of the deductible.

The term "large deductible policy" includes policies which contain an aggregate limit on the insured's liability for all deductible claims, a per-claim deductible limit or both. The primary purpose and distinguishing characteristic of a large deductible policy is the shifting of a portion of the ultimate financial responsibility under the large deductible policy to pay claims from the insurer to the insured, even though the obligation to initially pay claims may remain with the insurer, and the insurer remains liable to claimants in the event the insured fails to fulfill its payment or reimbursement obligations.

Drafting Note: States may wish to establish a minimum dollar deductible threshold for application of this statute based on local conditions. Because the payment of the entire amount of the claim remains the unconditional obligation of the insurer, the insured's loss reimbursement obligation should not be treated as a "deductible" for the purpose of any applicable exclusion from guaranty association coverage, even though these policies are commonly referred to as "large deductible policies."

Large deductible policies do not include policies, endorsements or agreements which provide that the initial portion of any covered claim shall be self-insured and further that the insurer shall have no payment obligation within the self-insured retention. Large deductible policies also do not include policies that provide for retrospectively rated premium payments by the insured or reinsurance arrangements or agreements, except to the extent such reinsurance arrangements or agreements are put in place as security for the policyholder's large deductible obligations.

B. "Deductible claim" means any allowed claim, including a claim for loss and defense and cost containment expense (unless such expenses are excluded), under a large deductible policy to the extent it is within the deductible.

C. "Large deductible collateral" means any cash, letters of credit, surety bond, or any other form of security posted by the insured, or by a captive insurer or reinsurer, to secure the insured's obligation under the large deductible policy to pay deductible claims or to reimburse the insurer for deductible claim payments. Large deductible collateral may also secure an insured's obligation to reimburse or pay to the insurer as may be required for other secured obligations.

D. "Commercially reasonable" means to act in good faith using prevailing industry practices and making all reasonable efforts considering the facts and circumstances of the matter.

E. "Other secured obligations" means obligations of an insured to an insurer other than those under a large deductible policy, such as those under a reinsurance agreement or other agreement involving retrospective premium obligations the performance of which is secured by large deductible collateral that also secures an insured's obligations under a large deductible policy.

Section 2. Handling of Large Deductible Claims

Unless otherwise agreed by the responsible guaranty association, all large deductible claims that are also "covered claims" as defined by the applicable guaranty association law, including those that may have been funded by an insured before liquidation, shall be turned over to the guaranty association for handling.

A. If a deductible claim is not covered by any guaranty association, the receiver shall draw on available large deductible collateral to pay the claim; or make other arrangements with the insured to ensure the timely payment of the claim. The receiver shall pay the claim promptly from the large deductible collateral unless the insured pays the claim directly or there is no available large deductible collateral.

B. Deductible claims paid by the insured or by the receiver in accordance with this Guideline shall not be treated as distributions of estate assets under [insert cite to state's liquidation priority distribution statute]. To the extent the insured, or a third-party administrator on behalf of the insured, pays the deductible claim, pursuant to an agreement by the guaranty association or otherwise, the insured's payment of a deductible claim in whole or in part will extinguish the obligations, if any, of the receiver and/or any guaranty association to pay that claim or that portion of the claim. No credit or charge for an imputed or constructive distribution of any kind shall be made against the receiver or a guaranty association on the basis of an insured's payment of a deductible claim.

Drafting Note: This provision addresses so called "orphan claims," which are situations where, because of variations in state law or for other reasons, claims generally covered by the guaranty fund system are not provided such protection. States should take steps, through statutory revision or otherwise, to avoid orphan claims, especially for workers' compensation insurance. However, if such claims do exist, this provision permits the receiver to utilize available large deductible collateral, or other funds provided by the employer, to ensure that they continue to be paid. Alternative language that states may consider is as follows: "In cases where a deductible claim is not a guaranty association covered claim and the claimant has no other remedy either from the employer or other resources available in a state, the receiver may pay the claim to the extent of the deductible with available Large deductible collateral as described in subsection E(2) below."

Section 3. Deductible Claims Paid by a Guaranty Association

To the extent a guaranty association pays any deductible claim for which the insurer would have been entitled to reimbursement from the insured, a guaranty association shall be entitled to the amount of the reimbursement, and available large deductible collateral as provided for under subsection E to the extent necessary to reimburse the guaranty association. Such amounts shall be paid to the guaranty association net of any of the receiver's collection costs as described in subsection F. Reimbursements paid to the guaranty association pursuant to this subsection shall not be treated as distributions under [insert cite to state's liquidation priority distribution statute] or as early access payments under [insert cite to state's early access statute].

To the extent that a guaranty association pays a deductible claim that is not reimbursed either from large deductible collateral or by an insured's payments, or incurs expenses in connection with large deductible policies that are not reimbursed under this subsection, the guaranty association shall be entitled to assert a claim for those amounts in the delinquency proceeding, except as provided Section 4(E).

Nothing in this subsection limits any rights of the receiver or a guaranty association that may otherwise exist under applicable law to obtain reimbursement from insureds for claims payments made by the guaranty association under policies of the insurer or for the guaranty association's related expenses, such as those provided for pursuant to [insert cite to state's guaranty association net worth provision], or existing under similar laws of other states.

Section 4. Collections

A. The receiver shall take all commercially reasonable action to ensure that the large deductible collateral remains adequate to secure the insured's obligations, and to collect reimbursements owed for deductible claims as provided for herein:

(1) Paid by the insurer prior to the commencement of delinquency proceedings;

(2) Paid by a guaranty association upon receipt by the receiver of notice from a guaranty association of reimbursable payments;

(3) Paid or allowed by the receiver; or

(4) Approved by the receiver for payment.

B If the insured does not make payment within the time specified in the large deductible policy, or within sixty (60) days after the date of billing if no time is specified, the receiver shall take all commercially reasonable actions to collect any reimbursements owed.

C. Neither the insolvency of the insurer, nor the receiver's or insurer's inability to perform any of its obligations under the large deductible policy, shall be a defense to the insured's reimbursement obligation under the large deductible policy.

D. An allegation of improper handling or payment of a deductible claim by the insurer, the receiver and/or any guaranty association shall not be a defense to the insured's reimbursement obligations under the large deductible policy.

E. If the receiver declines to seek or is unsuccessful in obtaining reimbursement from the insured for a large deductible obligation and there is no available large deductible collateral, a guaranty association may, after notice to the receiver, seek to collect the reimbursement due from the insured on the same basis as the receiver, and with the same rights and remedies including without limitation the right to recover reasonable costs of collection from the insured. The guaranty association shall report any amounts so collected from each insured to the receiver. The receiver shall provide the guaranty association with available information needed to collect a reimbursement due from the insured. The receiver shall notify all other guaranty associations that have paid large deductible claims on behalf of the same insured. Amounts collected by a guaranty association pursuant to this paragraph shall be treated in accordance with subsection C. The expenses incurred by a guaranty association in pursuing reimbursement shall not be permitted as a claim in the delinquency proceeding at any priority, except as a agreed by the receiver at or before the time the expenses are incurred; however, a guaranty association may net the expenses incurred in collecting any reimbursement against that reimbursement.

Section 5. Large Deductible Collateral

A. Subject to the provisions of this subsection, the receiver shall utilize large deductible collateral, when available, to secure the insured's obligation to fund or reimburse deductible claims or other secured obligations or other payment obligations. A guaranty association shall be entitled to large deductible collateral as provided for in this subsection to the extent needed to reimburse a guaranty association for the payment of a deductible claim. Any payments made to a guaranty association pursuant to this subsection shall not be treated as distributions of estate assets under [Insert cite to state's liquidation priority distribution statute] or as early access payments under [Insert cite to state's early access statute]. Such payments shall extinguish the receiver's obligations to the guaranty association with respect to any claim or portion of a claim that has been reimbursed from large deductible collateral.

B. All claims against the large deductible collateral shall be paid first to reimburse claim payments made by the insurer, the receiver, or the guaranty associations to reimburse their deductible claim payments on large deductible policies. After these obligations are satisfied, remaining claims shall be paid in the order received and no claim of the receiver, except in accordance with this subsection, shall supersede any other claim against the large deductible collateral.

C. Notwithstanding any agreement between the insured and the insurer, the receiver shall draw down large deductible collateral to the extent necessary in the event that the insured fails to:

(1) Perform its funding or payment obligations under any large deductible policy;

(2) Pay deductible claim reimbursements within the time specified in the large deductible policy or within sixty (60) days after the date of the billing if no time is specified;

(3) Pay amounts due the estate for pre-liquidation obligations;

(4) Timely fund any other secured obligation; or

(5) Timely pay expenses.

D. Excess large deductible collateral may be returned to the insured when deemed appropriate by the receiver after a periodic review of claims paid, outstanding case reserves, and allowance for adverse development and claims incurred but not reported as determined by the receiver.

Section 6. Administrative Fees

A. The receiver is entitled to recover through billings to the insured or from large deductible collateral all reasonable expenses that the receiver incurred in fulfilling its collection obligations under this Guideline. All such deductions or charges shall be in addition to the insured's obligation to reimburse claims and related expenses and shall not diminish the rights of claimants or guaranty associations.

B. To the extent the receiver cannot collect such expenses pursuant to paragraph (1), the receiver is entitled to deduct from the large deductible collateral or from the deductible reimbursements reasonable and actual expenses incurred in connection with the collection of the large deductible collateral and deductible reimbursements.

C. To the extent such amounts are not available from reimbursements or large deductible collateral, the receiver, or guaranty associations if provided under an agreement with the receiver under subsection D(5), shall have a claim against the estate as provided pursuant to [insert cite to state's liquidation priority distribution statute].

Drafting Note: State policymakers should decide whether this provision, when enacted, should apply to existing liquidations.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2021

GUIDELINE FOR ADMINISTRATION OF LARGE DEDUCTIBLE POLICIES IN RECEIVERSHIP (#1980)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

In 2018, the Receivership Large Deductible Workers' Compensation (E) Working Group of the Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force was given charges in response to issues arising out of the 2016 Workers' Compensation Large Deductible Study by the NAIC/International Association of Industrial Accident Boards and Commissioners (IAIABC) Joint (C) Working Group to recommend possible enhancements to the U.S. receivership regime.

In 2018, the Working Group heard presentations from the National Conference of Insurance Guaranty Funds (NCIGF) and nine states/insurers with experience with a receivership involving large deductible workers' compensation. The Working Group also conducted a survey of states' laws, practices and recommendations, to which 27 states responded. It was clear through this work that having statutory authority specific to large deductible workers' compensation products in receiverships was key to the successful resolution of these insurers. As a result of its work, on Nov. 16, 2018, the Working Group presented the Task Force with its recommendation regarding statutory authority.

The Working Group recommended state adoption of clear statutory authority that articulates the respective rights and responsibilities of the various parties in large deductible workers' compensation business receiverships. Having clear statutory authority in place can avoid much of the confusion, and sometimes expensive and prolonged litigation, for both the receiver and the guaranty funds. Clear statutory authority can also avoid collections delays that dilute recoveries.

Based on the study, the Working Group recommended that states adopt statutory authority regarding large deductible workers' compensation products in receiverships. Prior to the development of the new guideline, there were two options available:

1) Insurer Receivership Model Act (#555—IRMA) Section 712—Administration of Loss Reimbursement Policies; or
2) NCIGF Model Large Deductible Legislation.

Twelve states have adopted the NCIGF model using varying language (California, Florida, Indiana, Illinois, Louisiana, Michigan, Missouri, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Texas, Utah and West Virginia). Most of these states follow the NCIGF approach and have amended their insurance liquidation acts to clarify the following when to secure competing claims such as deductible amounts owed the insurer and retroactive premium balances: 1) the ownership of the deductible reimbursements or collateral drawdowns; 2) claims-handling matters; 3) collection responsibility; and 4) allocation of collateral.

After recommending to the Task Force that states adopt clear statutory, the Working Group discussed differences between Model #555 and the NCIGF model during 2019 and 2020. While Section 712 is part of Model #555, it was the opinion of the Working Group that the alternative language to Section 712 should be drafted as a guideline because it does not meet the two-pronged test to be a model law. Therefore, the Working Group agreed to draft a new model guideline for the Administration of Large Deductible Policies in Receivership as an alternative to Model #555, Section 712—Administration of Loss Reimbursement Policies. The new model guideline is based largely on the principles and structure of the NCIGF model with certain modifications.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating

The Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force is responsible for Model #555. The 2020 members of the Task Force are: Texas (Chair), District of Columbia (Vice Chair), Alaska, American Samoa, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Jersey, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee and Utah.

The Receivership Large Deductible Workers' Compensation (E) Working Group evaluated the issues and drafted the draft model guideline relating to Section 712 of Model #555 based on the NCIGF principles from the NAIC model (available on the NCIGF website).

The 2020 members of the Working Group are: Pennsylvania (Co-Chair); Oklahoma (Co-Chair), Alaska, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Maine, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, New Mexico and Texas.

An informal drafting group was formed in 2020 consisting of Donna Wilson (OK), Toma Wilkerson (FL), Robert Wake (ME), James Kennedy (TX), Barbara Cox (NCIGF) and Rowe Snider (Locke Lord LLP).

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group

The Receivership Large Deductible Workers' Compensation (E) Working Group of the Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force was given the follow charge beginning in 2018:

"Study states' receivership laws and practices regarding receivership of insurers with significant books of large deductible workers' compensation business, and evaluate the need for a model act/rule, or amendments to existing models, that governs the rights and duties of the various parties regarding large deductible business in insolvencies, including, but not limited to, consideration of a provision that expressly permits the collection of large deductibles from insureds during an insolvency proceeding. Provide any other recommendations for possible enhancements to the U.S. receivership regime based on this study."

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc.). Include any parties outside the members that participated.

The Receivership Large Deductible Workers' Compensation (E) Working Group, chaired by Donna Wilson (OK) and Laura Lyon Slaymaker (PA), drafted the model guideline. Open conference calls were held where interested parties participated. The information drafting group included four state insurance regulators and two industry volunteers.

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited).

a. The Working Group held five open conference calls between August 2018 and November 2018 where it: 1) heard presentations from the NCIGF; 2) heard presentations from nine states and insurers with experience with a receivership involving large deductible workers' compensation; and 3) reviewed survey results from 27 states regarding their laws, practices and recommendations.

b. The Working Group began by amending the NCIGF model as an alternative approach to Section 712 of Model #555. The Working Group held five open meetings between February 2019 and December 2019. During its Dec. 2, 2019, meeting, the Working Group exposed a new draft model guideline for a 60-day public comment period ending Jan. 31, 2020. The guideline is an alternative approach to Model #555, Section 712 based on the NCIGF model and amended to reflect administrative fees, a state-specific citation for the definition of "large deductible" and the guaranty association entitlement to the net amount of the reimbursement. In conjunction with the model guideline, NAIC legal staff drafted a memorandum explaining the difference between a guideline and a model law.

c. The Working Group received two comment letters during the exposure period from Maine and the NCIGF.

d. The Working Group met via open meeting March 2, 2020 and formed a drafting group to further amend the draft guideline to address comments received. The drafting group met four times between March 2020 and September 2020.

e. On Sept. 30, 2020, via open meeting, the Working Group exposed a revised draft Guideline for Administration of Large Deductible Policies in Receivership for a 30-day period ending Oct. 30, 2020. The revised guideline was re-drafted based largely on the principles and structure of the NCIGF model with certain modifications. It is based on the principles rather than the NCIGF model because the NCIGF model approach has been adopted by several states using varying language. The NCIGF model has evolved over time based on additional experiences from insolvencies and continues to be modified as warranted by the NCIGF.

f. All exposure drafts were distributed to more than 120 interested parties and posted to the Working Group's public web page. Barbara Cox (NCIGF) and Rowe Snider (Locke Lord LLP) actively participated in the drafting group.

g. The Working Group adopt the guideline on Nov. 5, 2020.

h. The Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force adopted the guideline on Nov. 19, 2020.

i. The Financial Condition (E) Committee adopted the guideline at the Fall National Meeting on Dec. 8, 2020.

j. The Executive (EX) Committee and Plenary adopted the guideline at the Spring National Meeting on Apr 14, 2021.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response).

Deductible Reimbursements and Collateral

The primary distinction between the NCIGF and Model #555, Section 712—Administration of Loss Reimbursement Policies, is the issue of deductible reimbursements and collateral. Twelve states have adopted large deductible policy laws based on the NCIGF model principles using varying language. It should be noted that no state has enacted the reinsurance approach described below in Model #555. Therefore, it was the decision of the Working Group to include the NCIGF approach to collateral within the Guideline.

- The NCIGF model "secured claim" approach: Claims within the deductible are primarily the obligation of the policyholder. Under this approach, deductible reimbursements are earmarked to pay those claims, and any collateral posted by or on behalf of the policyholder is held to ensure that those claims are paid. Accordingly, when the guaranty association takes pays a claim within the deductible, it earns the benefit of the reimbursement due from the policyholder and the right to draw on the collateral, if necessary, or to initiate a draw by the receiver, for the benefit of the guaranty fund.

- Model #555 Section 712 "reinsurance" approach: The insurer's obligation to pay all covered claims and the policyholder's obligation to reimburse the insurer are unconditional and each is independent of the other. Under this approach, deductible reimbursements are a general asset of the estate and the guaranty fund only benefits from the deductible reimbursements in proportion to its share as a creditor of the estate. The receiver has the right to collect all deductible reimbursements, drawing on collateral as necessary. Any reimbursements paid to the guaranty association are treated as early access distributions and offset from future recoveries from the estate.

7. Any Other Important Information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard).

GUIDELINE FOR DEFINITION OF RECIPROCAL STATE IN RECEIVERSHIP LAWS

Drafting Note: The receivership laws of most states address the coordination of receiverships involving multiple states. Typically, these laws provide that a domiciliary receiver appointed in another state has certain rights and protections, such as the following:

- The domiciliary receiver is vested with the title to the insurer's assets in the state.
- Attachments, garnishments or levies against the insurer or its assets are prohibited.
- Actions against the insurer and its insureds are stayed for a specified period of time.

In many states' laws, these provisions may apply only if the domiciliary state is a "reciprocal state." Frequently, the definition of a reciprocal state is based on NAIC model laws adopted more than 20 years ago. These definitions may be inconsistent with laws in other states, and they may be more prescriptive than the Part A standards of the NAIC Financial Regulation Standards and Accreditation Program for state receivership laws. As a result, the assets of a receivership estate might not be protected outside of the domiciliary state, and the receiver may be forced to defend litigation in multiple forums.

The provisions described above are intended to promote judicial economy, which benefits all participants in the receivership process. This guideline provides a statutory definition that may be used by states with a reciprocity requirement to effectuate the purposes of these provisions. Under this definition, any state meeting the applicable NAIC Part A Accreditation standards for receivership laws will be treated as a reciprocal state. The definition recognizes the diversity of existing state receivership laws and should prevent unnecessary litigation regarding the recognition of a state as a reciprocal state.

Definition of Reciprocal State for Receivership

"Reciprocal state" means a state that has enacted a law that sets forth a scheme for the administration of an insurer in receivership by the state's insurance commissioner or comparable insurance regulatory official.

PROJECT HISTORY - 2021

GUIDELINE FOR DEFINITION OF RECIPROCAL STATE IN RECEIVERSHIP LAWS (#1985)

1. Description of the Project, Issues Addressed, etc.

The Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force has an active and ongoing charge, which was adopted in each year of this project by the Executive (EX) Committee and Plenary, that reads as follows:

> Perform additional work as directed by the Financial Condition (E) Committee and/or received through referral by other groups.

In 2020, the Task Force finalized its Macroprudential Initiative (MPI) study, which began in 2019, and addressed the referral from the Financial Stability (EX) Task Force to evaluate receivership and guaranty fund laws and practices in the context of the MPI. The Task Force surveyed state insurance regulators and interested parties on each of the key provisions of receivership and guaranty fund laws that states should consider adopting into their laws, particularly with respect to receivership of insurers operating in multiple states. While a receivership of a multi-jurisdictional insurer would not likely have a material impact on financial stability or the broader financial markets, this project highlighted areas of the receivership process that may need attention, including laws related to full faith and credit of stays and injunctions.

The Task Force discussed the effect of whether a stay or injunction entered into a receivership court is honored in another state. This has been the subject of a lot of litigation, and receivers have expressed concern about this issue. The receivership laws of most states address the coordination of receiverships involving multiple states. However, in many states' laws, these provisions may apply only if the domiciliary state is a "reciprocal state." Frequently, the definition of a reciprocal state is based on NAIC model laws adopted more than 20 years ago.

The Task Force drafted this Guideline as an alternative to address how states define "reciprocal state." This Guideline provides an optional statutory definition that may be used by states with a reciprocity requirement to effectuate the purposes of provisions regarding the coordination of receiverships involving multiple states.

2. Name of Group Responsible for Drafting the Model and States Participating.

The Receivership and Insolvency (E) Task Force was responsible for drafting the Guideline. The 2020 and 2021 members of the Task Force were:

2020: Texas (Chair); District of Columbia (Vice Chair); Alaska; American Samoa; Arkansas; California; Colorado; Connecticut; Florida; Illinois; Iowa; Kansas; Kentucky; Maine; Massachusetts; Michigan; Missouri; Montana; Nebraska; New Jersey; North Carolina; Oklahoma; Pennsylvania; Rhode Island; South Carolina; Tennessee; and Utah.

2021: Texas (Chair); Louisiana (Vice Chair); American Samoa; Arizona; Colorado; Connecticut; Florida; Hawaii; Illinois; Iowa; Kansas; Kentucky; Maine; Massachusetts; Michigan; Missouri; Montana; Nebraska; New Jersey; New Mexico; North Carolina; Northern Mariana Islands; Oklahoma; Pennsylvania; Rhode Island; South Carolina; and Utah.

3. Project Authorized by What Charge and Date First Given to the Group.

As described in paragraph 1, on its Oct. 7, 2020, meeting, the Task Force agreed to draft a guideline to address this issue, which was identified through the results of the MPI study and the subsequent survey regarding key provisions of receivership and guaranty fund laws that states should consider adopting into their laws.

4. A General Description of the Drafting Process (e.g., drafted by a subgroup, interested parties, the full group, etc.). Include any parties outside the members that participated.

The Guideline was drafted by Task Force members: Florida; Maine; Texas; and Patrick Cantilo (Cantilo and Bennett LLP), an interested party. This drafting group met Oct. 19, 2020, and considered language contained in both the Florida and Maine laws. Rather than identifying a list of specific key provisions in law that would be required for a state to be defined as "reciprocal," the drafting group agreed to use the same criteria used by the NAIC Financial Regulation Standards and Accreditation Program. Under this definition, any state meeting the applicable NAIC Part A Accreditation standards for receivership laws, which requires a state to have a "receivership scheme," will be treated as a reciprocal state. The definition recognizes the diversity of existing state receivership laws, and it should avoid unnecessary litigation regarding the recognition of a state as a reciprocal state.

5. A General Description of the Due Process (e.g., exposure periods, public hearings, or any other means by which widespread input from industry, consumers and legislators was solicited).

On Nov. 19, 2020, the Task Force met to release the draft Guideline for a 42-day public comment period ending Dec. 31, 2020. The exposure was distributed by email to members, interested state insurance regulators, and interested parties of the Task Force; and it was posted to the NAIC website.

The Task Force did not receive any comments.

The Task Force adopted the Guideline on March 12, 2021.

The Financial Condition (E) Committee adopted the Guideline on April 13, 2021.

The Executive (EX) Committee and Plenary adopted the Guideline on August. 17, 2021.

6. A Discussion of the Significant Issues (items of some controversy raised during the due process and the group's response).

There were no issues of significance raised during the exposure periods or during meetings.

7. List the key provisions of the model (sections considered most essential to state adoption).

The Guideline provides the following definition, as well as an explanatory drafting note:

> "Reciprocal state" means a state that has enacted a law that sets forth a scheme for the administration of an insurer in receivership by the state's insurance commissioner or comparable insurance regulatory official.

8. Any Other Important Information (e.g., amending an accreditation standard).

The Guideline will not be considered for any accreditation standard.

The National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) is the U.S. standard-setting and regulatory support organization created and governed by the chief insurance regulators from the 50 states, the District of Columbia and five U.S. territories. Through the NAIC, state insurance regulators establish standards and best practices, conduct peer review, and coordinate their regulatory oversight. NAIC staff supports these efforts and represents the collective views of state regulators domestically and internationally. NAIC members, together with the central resources of the NAIC, form the national system of state-based insurance regulation in the U.S.
